CAPPING AND GOWNING—With the last of the quarter at hand, thoughts of prospective graduates turn to caps and gowns for use in the Sept. 2 Commencement. One such is Howard Joe Ashbrook of Mount Vernon, a candidate for a master's degree in history. He is shown being measured for his cap by Mona Isbell at the University Center Bookstore.

Safety Coordinator Lists Major Faults Of SIU Fire Plan

Editor's note: The following article is the result of a study conducted by the Daily Egyptian of the fire safety situation at SIU. The study was prompted by a series of deadly campus fires in other parts of the country. Here are the Daily Egyptian findings.

By Mike Killenberg

SIU's fire safety record has been a good one—there have been no fatalities or serious injuries due to fires in the school's 98 year history.

But SIU's unmarred record doesn't mean a tragic fire like the one that swept through a Cornell University dormitory in April, claiming nine lives, won't occur here.

Cornell never expected one. Its officials apparently were so confident that the dormitory was fireproof that fire escape drills were never conducted.

Cornell learned the hard way that sufficient precautions can lower the likelihood of such an occurrence.

SIU has done a great deal in the area of fire safety, including financing a fire station and equipment which will be situated on the campus and operated by Carbondale firemen.

However, the results of a Daily Egyptian study show there is need for improvement to guard against a Cornell tragedy.

SIU safety coordinator Oliver Halderson and services division director Bill Hudgens, two men responsible for fire safety on campus, believe that one major weakness here is the lack of centralization in program.

According to Hudgens, several departments are in charge of fire safety precautions that should come under the safety coordinator's office.

For example, the Housing Maintenance Department is responsible for fire safety in all University living quarters, while the Physical Plant is in charge of fire escapes, hydrants and extinguishers on campus.

As safety coordinator, Halderson should be responsible for overseeing these and other aspects of fire safety but at present his duties are limited because he works alone.

Hudgens said he has requested the University to provide Halderson with an assistant and a graduate student so that the safety coordinator's responsibilities could be increased.

With an enlarged staff, Hudgens said the Halderson also would be able to draw

Keene Plans Talks With Negro Group

Carbondale Mayor David Keene called Tuesday morning's meeting with city officials and business and community leaders "very good."

Keene requested Tuesday's session following a one-hour meeting Monday afternoon attended by Negroes, city officials, business and other community leaders.

At the Monday meeting, a seven man Negro delegation presented a list of 50 grievances which they said needed an immediate solution to head off racial trouble in Carbondale.

Among the demands made by Negroes were the removal of Police Chief Jack Hazel and two officers. Also mentioned was the removal of a woman employee in the general assistance office.

"I don't know why these people were singled out," said Keene. "Specific charges were not made against them, so it's hard to tell."

Keene said people having complaints against city officials would be shown the procedure for registering protests. All protests are handled by the Merit Board.

Several other grievances were listed by the Negroes including making one fifth of all white collar jobs in retail and commercial establishments a Negro post.

"The Negro leaders don't expect all of these demands to be met in full," said Keene. "Some of the Negro leaders have told me they made these demands to bring things to public notice."

Keene termed the racial problem in Carbondale as "serious." "This issue has been building up for some time and people have simply ignored it," said Keene. "I am determined to do everything possible to change things in this city. I want to make this one community—not a

Four Floors Involved

Library Completion To Begin in Fall

By Norma Grogan

Morris Library faces a major program of completion starting probably in the fall—and the addition of another building is in prospect for the future.

The immediate program is the completion of the four top floors, according to Ralph E. McCoy, director of University libraries.

"Even when the library is completed, we will probably be as crowded as we have ever been," McCoy said. "We really need a new building."

And this is what's in the future for Morris Library, but for the present, work is being concentrated on the completion of the fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh floors.

Architects are now in the process of preparing working drawings for the library completion, McCoy said. The work will be done by Burnham and Hammond, the Chicago firm which built the original structure. The firm hopes to begin work in the fall, McCoy said.

Because the upper floors are pretty well filled, the floors will have to be emptied two at a time. Work will be done on two floors at a time so that the materials can be shifted around, McCoy said.

The fourth and fifth floors will be cleared first, according to McCoy. Some materials will have to be moved out of the building. The Shawnee Library has already moved to Marion, McCoy said. The herbarium situated on the seventh floor will also have to be moved.

The stock of textbooks will be moved downtown to the old glove factory, but the current textbooks will remain in the basement of the library, McCoy said.

The library's collection of newspapers and state documents will be moved to the glove factory, he said. Other seldom-used material might be moved there also. If this happens, the library will have to offer deferred service on materials, he said. "We will be very crowded for the next two years," he added.

When the program has been completed, these changes will be in effect in Morris Library, McCoy said.

The basement of the library will be completely reorganized. It will still house the Textbook Service and the Audio-Visual Department, as

Dismissed Professor Had Department's OK

By Wade Roop

No comment was forthcoming Tuesday from President Delyte W. Morris on what has been called his refusal to submit an appointment of a faculty member to the Board of Trustees.

Morris, who was at Edwardsville, was invited to comment on the Associated Press story about the Rev. Peter O'Reilly, controversial figure in "The St. John's Affair."

At issue was a recommendation that Father O'Reilly be appointed to the philosophy faculty at the Edwardsville Campus.

The prospective lecturer was issued a contract April 6, 1967 and signed and returned the contract on April 30, a spokesman for Dean Gerald J.T. Runkle, humanities division at Edwardsville, said Tuesday.

Approval of Father O'Reilly's appointment was handled in the humanities holding the appointment from that department was sent to SIU Vice President for Academic Affairs Robert W. MacVicar, the representative said.

The vice president approved the recommendation for appointment "Where the appointment papers went from there, I do not know," she said.

As to O'Reilly's teaching position at SIU, George W. Linden, head of the philosophy division at Edwardsville, said "I had written him a letter asking if he was looking for a position."

In March Father O'Reilly was interviewed on the Edwardsville campus. Mathew Kelly, assistant professor of philosophy at Carbondale, said the interview was not handled by any representatives of the Carbondale campus.

"I have no comment," Linden said in regard to President Morris's action in division and approval from the Board of Trustees. "The president has the right and authority to make such a decision and he did make that decision."

"Such appointments depend on the individual, not the department," Linden said.

Concerning the publicity Father O'Reilly received at well as the newspaper and document collection.

The first floor will become a General Studies library. Special attention will be paid to the library needs of freshmen and sophomores. The central card catalog will remain on the first floor.

The second floor will continue to house the Humanities Library and the Rare Book Room, McCoy continued.

The third floor will be nearly the same as it is now. It will consist of the Social Studies Library minus the documents now kept there. The Department of Social Studies will have more room to expand.

The fourth floor, the first of the tower floors, will become the Education Library, McCoy said.

The fifth floor will house all the biological sciences material, and the sixth floor will serve the physical sciences, he said.

The seventh floor will house the technical services of the library, such as the ordering department, cataloging, serials and the bindery, according to McCoy.

McCoy said the library will still be crowded even when the building is completed. When it is finished, it will be operating at its capacity, McCoy said. Morris Library was planned to house one million volumes and to serve 15,000 students. SIU's enrollment already exceeds the latter figure, and when the library is completed, there will be at least one million volumes there.

Plans are in the making for a new annex to the library, according to McCoy. The placement of this annex is being considered in relation to the placement of the new Humanities Building, he said. The most likely spot is east of Morris Library, McCoy said.

Vehicle Rulings, Fee Changes on Trustees' Agenda

Motor vehicle regulations, student activity fee recommendations and a proposed world resources center at the Carbondale campus will fill the agenda scheduled for the SIU Board of Trustees Thursday.

The meeting, to begin at 9:30 a.m., will be held on the Edwardsville campus.

Restatement of SIU motor vehicle regulations regarding student privileges will be discussed based on recommendations of the Traffic and Safety Committee report.

Also to be discussed in the Board's open meeting will be a report on student activity fees. A proposal for designating Southern's Carbondale campus as a world resources center will be considered. The proposal was conceived by R. Buckminster Fuller.

The controversial Coleman Commission report is slated for consideration in the Board's informal session, closed to the public. Attention is also thought to be given to the Study Commission of Athletics report during the informal session.

Gov. Kerner Vetoes Bills To Establish ETV Stations

Gov. Otto Kerner has vetoed bills seeking to establish non-commercial educational television stations at Northern and Western Illinois University.

Kerner, in his veto messages, said both are a "piecemeal approach to the development of an educational television system in Illinois. They are designed to set up a special educational television stations with little or no regard to statewide needs and to relationships with existing stations. This type of approach will hinder effective development of a well-integrated telecommunications system," Kerner said.

Also vetoed was a bill to provide for establishing, maintaining, and operating a system of educational television, and appropriations for it. The bill would have placed the network under the jurisdiction of the superintendent of public instruction and the building of an administrative and resources center at or near Springfield. Appropriations of $3,941,000 for such a purpose were contemplated.

In his veto message Kerner said "While I am a strong supporter of extended use of telecommunications facilities, including public classroom television, I feel that the organizational format proposed in Senate Bill 219 would prevent development of a network which would serve adequately the entire telecommunications needs of Illinois. Meeting these needs requires extensive planning to avoid wasteful duplication of staff and facilities."

The 30 children, ranging from first to eighth graders, toured buildings and viewed several exhibits on campus.

St. John's and the effect it may have had on his appointment by the department, Linden said, "We don't concern ourselves with that sort of thing. We judge people on their professional qualification," he added. "We thought he was a good man and he accepted our offer.

The president stopped it," Linden said.

In Father O'Reilly's statement Monday, he said, "I guess this all goes back to the St. John's affair. I've no doubt they look upon me as a troublemaker."

Father O'Reilly, said Monday that his part in a 1965 teachers' strike at St. John's University may have prevented his obtaining a position at SIU. He was speaking at a meeting of the St. John's chapter of the United Federation of College Teachers, which he headed while at St. John's.

Father O'Reilly said, "After I had been approved by the chairman and faculty of the philosophy department, and after the contract had been signed for a one-year lecturing appointment, I learned that President Morris had not presented the papers to the Board of Trustees, nor was he intending to do so."

A federation spokesman, Irving Ranken said, "this violation of academic freedom is further compounded by the failure of President Morris to even state his reasons for extraordinary behavior."

The St. John's dispute in 1965 centered around what Father O'Reilly called a 10-month campaign for greater academic freedom, higher salaries and a larger voice in university policies.

He and 30 other St. John's faculty member were fired. The philosophy professor has not taught since.

Keene has scheduled a meeting at 7:30 p.m. today in the City Hall Conference Room with the Northeast Council—citizens who have been selected to represent the Negro population.

John Holmes and Mike Greer are co-chairmen of the Northeast Council.

"I think talking to groups is what I should do," said Keene. "I see no other way in which we can solve our problems."

Keene said that businessmen and other community leaders were "very receptive" at Tuesday morning's meeting. He said local leaders agreed to work in conjunction with the mayor's office in solving any problem.

Scholarship Bills Vetoed By Governor

Gov. Otto Kerner has vetoed two bills affecting state scholarships.

Senate Bill 534 would have allowed scholarships granted by the General Assembly to be used during graduate study, if the student completed undergraduate study in less than four years.

Kerner, in his veto message, said he believes that this bill would be advantageous to only one class of scholarship holders. It is undesirable to extend the privilege to only one group, and to exclude all others, Kerner said.

The second bill vetoed would have increased the number of special education scholarships from 250 to 350.

These additional scholarships would be an increased financial burden to the participating colleges and universities, Kerner said. He remarked that they would cause an undesirable deficit to these schools.

Kerner in his veto message, said he believes that the forthcoming study of the entire field of scholarships by the Illinois State Scholarship Commission will indicate what provisions would be made concerning the present scholarship policies.

"THE TROUBLE WITH THOSE AMERICANS IS, THEY KEEP INTERFERING IN THE AFFAIRS OF OTHER COUNTRIES!"

Faculty Should Provide Example With Lectures

Students, just out of adolescence, were given opportunity to belly-laugh and recall their childhood days when the "group of professors protested the KA action."

Most could hear again their smiling father who puffed away on a cigarette and said, "Don't do as I do; do as I tell you."

The SIU faculty, who at best only speak out on topics in the realm of the safe and the obvious, believe students should have their right to speech without censorship.

Some contend there was nothing very important ever mentioned in KA which couldn't be traced from its author back to a member of the faculty.

It is difficult to believe that there is one student at SIU who has not heard a faculty member stand before a class and attempt to persuade students to protest against their ills generated by the administration.

Most student problems stem from their relationship, either directly or indirectly, with instructors, advisers and other members of the faculty.

Why should the 10 per cent of the problems of the student which deal with administrative policy be given so much importance over the 90 per cent?

Perhaps the faculty would like to fight its own battles and start a paper of opinion, and let the students vote their approval.

On the other hand, they can continue to indoctrinate the students and have their battles fought for them.

University of Illinois faculty members have been dismissed for advocating free love and several timely issues. Southern professors seem to have nothing to say publicly but, "You have your right to say what you please."

Under their breath and in front of their classrooms they can say, "Don't quote me, but . . ."

These are the brave and fearless leaders who educate our card burners and are mistaken as some kind of god who makes our education system work?

Lecturing is the cheapest form of teaching. Let's hope the day is not too far away when members of our faculty will offer students leadership instead of just endorsement, and example rather than just lecture.

Rioting Underscores Again:

Gun Sales Need Controls

Simply send your money through the mail. Whoever you are, you'll receive a deadly weapon by return post. That Congress allows this situation to continue is inconceivable. Yet it does.

Snipers in the recent New Jersey riots were apparently armed with mail-order guns. New Jersey's strict gun-control law counted for little when weapons were readily obtainable from sources outside the state. Police report that four out of five guns confiscated in Newark in recent years came from outside New Jersey.

Attorney General Ramsey Clark recently testified that half of some 2 million firearms purchased in the United States last year were sold by mail-order houses that "among the purchasers were known dangerous criminals, mental defectives, angry spouses, habitual drunkards, children and drug addicts." He complained that "the issue has been debated beyond reason" and asked, "When will we act?"

Public support for action is at hand. A Gallup Poll showed that the public overwhelmingly supports stricter gun laws.

What then is preventing action? The gun lobby—notably the National Rifle Association (NRA) which has, by the way, never polled its own membership on the issue. The NRA misuses the 2nd Amendment to the Constitution in its efforts to block constructive action. Proposed legislation will not infringe the right of the people to keep and bear arms. But it will regulate this right, as other rights have been regulated, in the interest of the public safety and welfare.

The NRA speaks for the rural West where, as Sen. Frank Church (D) of Idaho put it: "Guns come close to the feeling of sovereignty itself among our people. This is an issue that cuts right to the bone." But in the urban East (and urban West) reasonable legislation to regulate interstate traffic in guns in one essential weapon in the war against crime and violence.

For four years the gun lobby has had Congress so well covered that it has been afraid to make a move. With increasing public support of stricter gun laws and growing evidence of the urgent need to act, perhaps Congress will at last dare to make its move.

Debt Limit

In the interest of keeping up with the national debt limit (it never limits downward), we note that Congress has approved a rise in the permanent debt limit to 358 billion dollars and the temporary limit to 365 billions, effective in 1969. Though the House balked once at raising the roof, the Senate disposed of the matter quickly, as if it deserved little more attention.

Perhaps it does not. By our count, Congress has raised the permanent limit 11 times since 1939 (when it was 45 billions), and the temporary limit 12 times since 1954, when it was instituted on the self-evident theory that the rising national debt is only a temporary matter, to be controlled temporarily. Such as a dozen times in 13 years. The routine no longer merits political curtain calls, and the Senate didn't ask for any. St. Louis Post-Dispatch

Our Man Hoppe

Cussers, Doubters Made Nation Great

By Arthur Hoppe

The American Society of Cussers and Doubters, an historic institution, held an emergency session here to cuss out the President. What angered the Society was Mr. Johnson's intemperate attack on American "cussers and doubters" in a speech in Baltimore billed as setting the keynote of the coming campaign.

"What hurts most, cuss it," said the Society's Imperial Grand Cusser, J. Potter Sneed, "is that we'd always held the President in the highest esteem. There isn't a member of the Society who can hold a candle to him when it comes to plain and fancy cussing. He's been an inspiring model to us all."

"What about doubting?" a reporter asked. "You never heard of the Credibility Gap?" said Mr. Sneed, incredulously. "In the past three years, our Society's membership has gone up 83.6 per cent and we owe it all to Mr. Johnson, cuss him. Why, there's a man who can make a doubter out of you the minute he opens his mouth. When an idol like that turns on you, it kind of destroys your faith."

"But the President said..." began a reporter.

"I doubt it," said Mr. Sneed firmly.

"But he said," persisted the reporter, "that it was you cussers and doubters who were holding the country back and what we needed were builders and doers."

"Holding it back?" cried Mr. Sneed unbelievably. "Why, who do you think made this country great? Who doubted the divine right of kings? Who cussed out the Redcoats at Lexington and Concord? Who doubted the effete East was fit to live in? Who cussed their wagon trains across the Plains? The cussers and doubters, that's who. Our glorious record of accomplishments speaks for itself."

"But what about the builders and doers?" he was asked. "Those cussery-cuss cusses," said Mr. Sneed, demonstrating his powers as Imperial Grand Cusser. "We do all the hard, pioneer work laying the ground. Then they come along and take all the credit."

"History shows they never do a thing to lick a problem unless we cussers start cussing about it. They always think things are going along as best as possible unless we doubters start doubting it."

"Our motto is if you cuss loud enough and doubt long enough, you can make this old world a better place to live. For never forget that grouching is the first step on the road to progress."

Mr. Sneed paused to take in a sip of water and eject a stream of cuss words.

"Now if the President is going to campaign against us cussers and doubters and in favor of those builders and doers, he's got to realize we're going to cuss and doubt him all the harder. And there's more of us than there is of them."

'American Tragedy'

Defiant Silence Maintained

Arab Students Feel U.S. Press Biased

By Joan Isbell

The Israeli-Arab conflict has settled into an uneasy cease-fire, but on campus many of those with close ties to the troubled lands maintain a defiant silence toward the press on the issues.

The trouble strikes home for more than 40 Arab and about six Israeli students who were enrolled in academic studies at SIU in the spring quarter. There are also several members of the faculty from the Middle East.

The reactions of some of the Arabs to the conflict is difficult to determine. When asked about the effects the war would have on their lives, the Arabs would not talk to what they consider a biased press.

Strong emotional responses were made to the idea of giving information to the Daily Egyptian because they feel the American press has discriminated against their political position and has offended their sense of human dignity and moral justice.

The Arabs believe the American press has taken sides through editorials and cartoons. They do not believe adequate examinations of the nations' histories or the reasons for existing animosity have been explained to the American readers.

At the early signs of the Mid-East trouble, newspapers carried articles about and by Arab students. As the American stand became more clearly aligned politically with Israel, the students said, the Arabs discovered themselves, and their heritage discriminated against through cartoons and editorials which showed them in poor light.

They decided that rather than try to defend themselves publicly they would wait for the emotionalism to abate--wait until the situation could be discussed objectively and intelligently. News releases continued with regularity, but the Arabs felt the quick glimpses through cartoons tended to distort the truth.

Richard Coury, in a letter to the Daily Egyptian on June 3, said: "The position of the Arab people in regard to Palestine is certainly logical. How willing would the inhabitants of the state of Illinois be to give up their homes, their property, their sources of income, to return the state to the native American Indians?"

Coury feels that in compensation for their treatment by the Germans, the Jews were given Palestine, and "the Arabs, who have done no harm," were allowed to foot the bill.

Mann Abbass, in another letter to the editor, on July 8, called the American press coverage an "unprecedented display of hostility toward the Arab people," a "disgraceful and conspiratorial campaign against the Arab people that is an insult to the intelligence and conscience of freemen."

What has been the outcome of the conflicts in the lives of the Arab students at SIU?

Certainly there is no clean-cut picture established in the interviews. Many students have gone home hoping that they can help. Others are in doubt about their futures because of the inevitable shifting economics and finances. Some, doubtful as to the safety of their families, can only wait and hope. There are even those who think they, too, may become refugees.

Computers May Dissolve Institutions; All People to Be Educated at Home

By Robert M. Hutchins

We are on the verge of a technological revolution in education. It may go so far as to dissolve the institutions we have known or to make them largely unrecognizable.

We can form some idea of the possibilities if we imagine a learning center in every home. Its basic elements might be a telephone, a television set and a console. Teachers might go from house to house like visiting nurses. The bulk of the instruction and the examinations would be handled by computers.

At present the cost of this equipment is such that it would be highly uneconomical to install it in every home. It is now being placed at central points in colleges and universities, where it is available to students in much the same way as books in a central library.

As the equipment becomes cheaper, it will be possible to increase the number of points at which it is available. This will diminish the importance of any one point by making it unnecessary to go there. When the number of points reaches its ultimate limit, a computer in every home, it will in principle be unnecessary to leave home in order to get an education.

Or at least to get the education the computer and its connections will supply. In principle the computer will eventually be able to supply any kind of education that is desired. But I am afraid we may come to desire the kind of education that is easiest for the computer to provide.

In fact we desire that kind of education already. When Americans think of education, they think of information and training. Machines can do a better job of this kind than people. They are quicker and more reliable.

The criteria of speed and efficiency are standards to which we are devoted, which we have applied wherever we can, and to which education as we have known it has been highly resistant. We shall now have the opportunity at last to apply our favorite standards to mechanized, electronic education. We shall have the enthusiastic support of the large, rich and powerful commercial organizations that are interested in selling their equipment to educational institutions.

The danger then is that the technology of education will in effect determine its methods and its aims, though in principle there is no reason why this should be so. Forebodings in this regard are justified by the fact that mankind has so far been unable to control technology, so much so that in some quarters it is referred to as autonomous.

Mass education is a repellent term. It involves a contradiction. A mass can be trained or informed, but it cannot be educated. Education involves helping individuals to become human by learning to use their minds.

The safest course will be to turn over to the machines the task of training and informing, thus relieving teachers for the work of education.

BARBARA HILL EXAMINES A FIRE ESCAPE

Ants, Flies Add Flavor

Students Give 'tips for Cooking Outside; Stand Back 10 Feet When Lighting Fire

By Barbara Leebens

"From living down here for four years off-campus, I consider myself as good a cook as the average girl who comes down here—probably better," said Jim Austwick, 22, from Alton, Ill.

"I enjoy cooking out," Austwick said. "My speciality is barbecued ribs and I make a good sauce to go with that. Put one cup of barbecue sauce in a pan and mix it with two teaspoons of steak sauce, a fourth of a can of beer, seasoned with salt and pepper, and finish it off with precooked buttered onions."

"I'll leave you all with one simple hint. Always make sure that whatever you cook out, don't be in a hurry to eat and allow it to cook long enough."

Jack Rohde, 22, from Mundelein, Ill., enjoys cooking a variety of meats, usually round steak or hamburgers.

"I can't get too fancy since hamburger is usually all my budget can afford. Hamburgers taste better cooked out on the grill because of the ants and flies which are accidentally blended in creating a flavor that no seasoning can add," Rohde quipped.

"I don't think that I'm too bad of a cook. I like to eat, so, usually I'll eat anything that I cook," Rohde said. "Cooking out is an art that anyone can learn if he or she likes to cook and enjoys the out-of-doors."

Leonard Johnson Jr., 24, from Gurnee, Ill., advises all those who are new to lighting the fire "to stand back about ten feet and aim, then throw a match in. Let it burn for about 10-15 minutes. This enables you to get through a cookout without burning your fingers."

"I think the most important thing to remember when you cook meat, is to season it to bring out the whole flavor that you can enjoy from cooking out-of-doors," Johnson added.

"Everyone should try cooking out-of-doors; you work very hard to get the grill just right, fire to the right degree of heat; and once the food is cooked, it will taste great," Johnson said.

Alarm System Flaws Fire Safety Program

up a comprehensive safety manual that would cover fire prevention regulations plus many other safety requirements.

Presently no such manual exists. Each department responsible for fire safety draws up its own set of procedures. For example, each housing area supervisor devises a separate list of fire escape plans and conducts drills as he sees fit. Even reports of successfully held drills go directly to the office of George Everingham, housing maintenance director, instead of to Halderson.

Lack of a centralized fire safety program is one big problem, but there are other troubled areas, such as the fire alarm system in University housing.

By Illinois statute, housing units must be equipped with automatic detectors that, in case of fire, "transmit the alarm to any available municipal fire department by direct private lines or through an approved central station," such as the campus police.

Right now one of SIU's living quarters fully meet this requirement. If a fire were to break out in University housing, the fire department would have to be reached by telephone or by the campus police radio network.

Direct alarm lines could be run from University housing areas to the new campus fire station now under construction but according to University architect Willard Hart, no such plans are under present consideration.

Fire escape drills present another problem in University housing. The University requires one announced and one unannounced drill each quarter in every housing unit, which amounts to one less drill a year than the nine recommended by the state fire marshal.

The procedure for the drills is determined by each housing unit supervisor who usually is not professionally trained to draw up such plans. There is also some discrepancy as to the thoroughness of these escape plans. Some are quite comprehensive, while others are relatively simple. One housing head wrote the Housing Maintenance Office in order to find out just what procedures should be taken in case of fire.

Additional problem areas are the spiral slide fire escape in buildings Old Main, Allyn and Shryock, which, according to safety coordinator Halderson, are old fashioned and not kept in the best conditions.

The many frame houses and army surplus barracks used on campus for offices and classrooms are fire hazards in themselves, says Halderson. However, SIU is gradually phasing out these structures and replacing them with modern, more fire-safe buildings.

SIU officials questioned in this study said the school's fire safety record has been remarkably good. "We have been very lucky," one administrator said.

But luck does not prevent fires. Only proper precautions can lower the possibility of a Cornell tragedy here. However, as long as SIU officials remain aware that problems exist and attempt to solve them, then the University's fire safety record will probably continue unmarred into the future.

Lawyer Suggests Way to Handle Riots

CHICAGO (AP) - A Washington, D.C., lawyer suggested a way Tuesday to deal with riots - seize and confine the ringleaders until things cool off.

Frederick Bernays Wiener, in an article in the American Bar Association Journal, cited legal opinions to support such action. He also said there is a "large body of law" available, but unused, for such strategy.

Wiener harked back to the labor-management disorders in the 60 years or so before enactment of the National Labor Relations Act in the early 1930's. One solution for such disorders, he added passed legal muster.

"That," he explained, "was for the military, operating under a proclamation of martial law, to seize the ringleaders and to confine them, not by way of punishment but simply to prevent them from transmitting their ardor to their followers."

"This proved an effective depressant, and in two instances around the turn of the century this means of controlling mob violence was held lawful on habeas corpus."

One such detention, he wrote, had been upheld by the Supreme Court of Idaho and the other by the Supreme Court of Colorado.

Wiener quoted a onetime Chief Justice of the United States, Roger Taney, as saying officers engaged in a state's military service "might lawfully arrest anyone who, from the information before them, they had reasonable grounds to believe was engaged in insurrection."

He quoted Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes as saying a governor, acting through the National Guard, may seize

"those he considers to stand in the way of restoring peace." Holmes had added that "such arrests are not necessarily for punishment but are by way of precaution to prevent the exercise of hostile power."

And he quoted Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes as saying that the U.S. Supreme Court has "sustained the authority of the governor to hold in custody temporarily one whom he believed to be engaged in fomenting disorder."

Wiener said that, in any such instances, the ultimate decision on release of the person detained would be with a judge in a habeas corpus proceeding.

"The choice is not between order and liberty," Wiener wrote. "It is between liberty with order and anarchy without either."

DeGaulle's New Pledge Brings Wrath of Canadian Papers

OTTAWA (AP) - Canadian editors poured out their wrath Tuesday on Charles De Gaulle in the face of the French president's new pledge to help French Canadians reach the stage of liberation he says they aspire to.

A few sounded optimistic notes, but such words as "obnoxious" and "insult" were liberally sprinkled through editorials in newspapers carrying reports of De Gaulle's Monday night statement reinforcing the support he gave Quebec separatists during his visit last week.

Some of the editors said the Canadian government had to reply forcefully, while others saw no gains in carrying on the debate. Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson's office, describing him as very unhappy, said a further statement was being considered.

A source close to the prime minister said of De Gaulle's statement: "If that is not intervention of a foreign state in the domestic affairs of another nation is."

Pearson last week rebuked De Gaulle for statements encouraging those who want to separate Quebec from the other nine provinces. De Gaulle then snubbed Pearson by bypassing Ottawa on his way home.

Among the wrathful editorialists, the St. Catharines Ont. Standard suggested: "If we have tears to spare we might shed one or two for the people of France who have to put up with this insufferable old man on a full-time basis."

The Lethbridge Alta. Herald expressed belief that "Canadian unity has gained, not lost, from De Gaulle's visit and his interference."

The London Ont. Free Press said De Gaulle's "shocking demonstration of bad judgment must make his colleagues at home wonder just how wise he is in making other decisions."

Publisher Claude Ryan of Montreal's Le Devoir, a French-language newspaper, called Pearson's rebuff last week "Excessively brutal" and noted that De Gaulle was silent on future relations between the French and Canadian governments.

Large Allied Assault Force Hunts Reds in Mekong Delta

SAIGON (AP) - The largest allied assault force ever assembled in the Mekong delta is hunting Viet Cong in the mud and muck southwest of Saigon. Contact slackened Tuesday after heavy weekend fighting set off by Red efforts to cut a vital highway.

Perhaps 10,000 or more U.S. and South Vietnamese servicemen are engaged in the sweep, called Coronade II, which was launched in secrecy last Friday. In lifting the security wraps, the U.S. Command said 200 Viet Cong had been killed.

Field commanders had different estimates of enemy dead, one saying they totaled 150, another 350.

The U.S. Command said 16 Americans were killed and 59 wounded. Unofficial reports from the field said 28 South Vietnamese soldiers had been killed and 50 wounded.

Troops of the U.S. 9th and 25th infantry divisions, a U.S. Navy task force and South Vietnamese infantrymen, rangers and marines were involved in the drive, which centered west of My Tho, one of the largest cities in the rich rice-producing area 45 miles southwest of Saigon.

The heavily traveled highway linking My Tho and other delta cities with Saigon had been cut by Communist mines eight times in 10 days, reducing the flow of rice and other products to market and thus putting economic pressure on the capital.

Action Tuesday in the allied response was officially described as "light to moderate and scattered." It was the only major ground activity reported by the allied commands.

U.S. Marine elements based just below the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam again exchanged sporadic mortar and artillery fire with Communist gunners.

B52 bombers struck twice at the main Communist infiltration routes below the DMZ in the Khe Sanh area, within sight of the Laotian border.

Air operations Monday cost the United States four aircraft.

Draft Dispute Causes Firing Of Chairman

PEKIN, ILL. (AP) - The chairman of the Tazewell County Draft Board has been removed from the position because of a disagreement over college student and apprentice deferments, a state official said Tuesday.

Col. John H. Hammack, state director of Selective Service, said no inductions or physical examinations were given Tazewell County youths in July and none are expected in August.

After A.R. Donahue of Pekin was removed as chairman, the other members of the board resigned, apparently in sympathy.

They are Jimm Schwartz, Willis Wagler, and Frank Starcevic. The board normally has five members, but one position was vacant. Members serve on a voluntary basis and receive no pay.

Hammack said Donahue was removed for being discourteous to registrants and the public, and for now following recommended policy on deferments.

Freight Rates To Increase $300 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Interstate Commerce Commission granted the nation's railroads Tuesday an emergency freight rate increase totaling about $300 million a year, an average of around three cents on each $1.

It was the railroad's first general increase in seven years and was granted despite administration pleas to consider such raises "in the light of the national interest in promoting price stability."

As if in reply to criticism that the rate hike would be inflationary, the ICC said in its unanimous decision that "reductions in freight rates since 1961 have had a deflationary effect."

It added that "authorizing moderate increases in freight rates at this time would, in the long run, do less harm to price stability than would denial of such increases or prolonged delays in making needed increases effective."

The railroads had sought a raise calculated to average 3.35 per cent, which would have brought $327.6 million in additional revenue per year.

Extradition Decree Signed for Tshombe

KINSHASA, Congo (AP) - Reliable diplomatic sources said today President Houari Boumedienne of Algeria has signed an extradition decree for former Congo Premier Moise Tshombe.

The sources said only the method of transporting Tshombe from Algiers to the Congo still remained to be worked out. They added that the Soviet Union has agreed to the use of its pilots.

Neither Algeria nor the Congo has long-range transport planes piloted by its own nationals, but Boumedienne has a Russian built Ilyushin 18 presidential plane with a Soviet crew permanently at his disposal.

Tshombe, former Katanga separatist leader, is under death sentence in the Congo for treason and conspiracy against the regime of President Joseph D. Mobutu. He was kidnaped in a plane hijacked while flying over the Spanish Balearic Islands June 30 and taken to Algeria.

The Algerian Supreme Court has recommended his extradition to the Congo, where Mobutu has said he will be executed without further trial or appeal.

Air Commander to Investigate Cause of Forrestal Tragedy

SUBIC BAY, Philippines (AP) - Rear Adm. Forsyth Massey, fleet air commander at Quonset Point, R.I., has been appointed by the U.S. Navy to head its investigation of the fire aboard the aircraft carrier Forrestal Saturday in which 129 sailors died.

Capt. Albert K. Earnest, commanding officer of the Oceana, Va. Naval Air Station, and Capt. Martin Stack, commanding officer of the Jacksonville, Fla. Naval Air Station, also were named to the three-man board of inquiry.

The appointments were announced Monday night in Norfolk, Va., by Vice Adm. Charles T. Booth, commander of Naval Air Forces Atlantic.

The investigators will fly to the naval base here, where the Forrestal arrived Monday for preliminary repairs. The base commander, Rear Adm. F. B. Gikeson, will assist in the inquiry.

Recreation Department Plans Playground Circus

Clowns, acrobats, jugglers and even "wild animals" will be part of the show Thursday at the Lincoln School playground circus being staged by the SIU Department of Recreation and jointly sponsored by SIU and the Carbondale Park District.

The circus, which begins at 1 p.m., will include a full-size big top tent and several side show tents.

A circus parade through parts of the downtown area will initiate the program. At 1:30 the midway opens. It includes animal shows, games, booths, bake sales, pony rides, 4-H acts, arts and crafts displays and a fire engine ride.

At 2:30 a matinee show will begin under the big top. The show will feature jugglers, SIU gymnasts, tumblers, clowns and baton twirlers.

The midway will be open between 4 and 5 and 6:30 and 7:30.

At 7:30 another big top show begins. It will be followed at 9:15 by a teen dance, complete with a band and go-go girls.

The circus will conclude the Department of Recreation's summer playground at Lincoln School.

According to a department spokesman, the playground has been an attempt to provide an opportunity for community participation and development and an opportunity to establish a greater rapport between the youth and adults of the community.

The department has sponsored several special events, such as movies, dances, shows, athletic events, field trips and day camps for children throughout the summer.

The Lincoln School playground has been open under supervision of recreation students and faculty between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. Monday through Friday all summer.

Water Carnival Scheduled for Aug. 19; To Feature Greased Melon Rescue

The Activities Programing Board will sponsor a Water Carnival Aug. 19 at the Lake on-the-Campus.

Races will be held and prizes awarded. Students may enter individually, or teams may be formed from floor, residence hall, off-campus living area, departmental club and friends.

The highlight of the afternoon will be a greased watermelon rescue and tug-of-war. In addition, there will be a special Water Carnival dance at the lake, from 8:30-11:30 p.m. featuring the "Henchmen."

Entry forms for the carnival are available at the information desk in the University Center and at the Lake-on-the-Campus beach house. Entry forms may be turned in at the Student Activities Center any time prior to the event. Team applications must be turned in before Aug. 16.

Runners Named For World Games

NEW YORK (AP) - Gerry Lindgren, the distance running ace from Spokane, Wash., pole vaulter Paul William of Downey Calif., and Tommie Smith, the 220 and 440-yard specialist from San Jose, Calif., were among those named to represent the United States in the fifth World Student Games at Tokyo.

Women Score 1-2 Sweep in Pan-Am Games

WINNIPEG, Canada (AP) - The United States scored its first one-two sweep in women's track and field at the Pan-American Games Tuesday when 18-year-old Barbara Friedrich of Asbury Park, N.J., won the javelin gold medal with a games record-breaking toss of 174 feet 9 inches.

The silver second place medal went to RaNaë Bair, 24, an Olympian from San Diego, Calif., whose best toss of 169-5 also broke the Games record of 163-10 set by Maria Ahrens of Chile in 1963.

Miss Friedrich, a tousle-haired blonde, has a pending United States record in the javelin of 198-8, and Miss Bair, who holds the current record of 188-11, has a best mark this year of 196-3.

Packers' Practices Give SIU Football Coaches Pointers

By Tom Wood

You can't argue with success and that's why SIU football coaches Dick Towers and Pat Naughton went directly to the people who seem to have a patent on the commodity, the Green Bay Packers, for some pointers.

Head Coach Towers and assistant Naughton spent three days, July 20-22, in the training camp of the professional world champions.

They were there at the personal invitation of Packer Coach Vince Lombardi, who is a longtime friend of Naughton's.

Towers said they had a chance to attend morning and afternoon Packer practices and got down on the practice field with the players and coaches.

"They have a real fine practice area," Towers said. "Being down on the field gave us the opportunity to pick up some very good first-hand information.

"We didn't go up there with the intention of coming back and making any radical changes in our offense or defense, but the Packers confirm one thing -- that proficiency in two basic things, blocking and tackling, is a necessity."

"The Packers do a tremendous job at both. And although they are a polished ball club, they are at the same time very basic and fundamental."

Towers said seeing these things gave he and Naughton a great deal more confidence in what the coaching staff at Southern is doing.

One of their main concerns in visiting the Packer sessions was to gain some insight into the total atmosphere of a football camp.

The Salukis will be conducting their pre-fall practice sessions at a new camp located at Little Grassy. The camp opens Aug. 31, the first day of practice.

"We will conduct morning sessions at 10, lasting about an hour and forty-five minutes," Towers said.

"The afternoon session will be our heavy, pad practice. That will begin at 3 p.m. The Green Bay camp was one factor in our establishing these times. It was very hot up there, much like our own summer weather, and these were approximately their practice times."

Towers was very interested in the Pack's dining hall. He said he and Naughton paid close attention to the pros' diets.

"They had a lot of meat, fruit and fresh vegetables, a very high protein diet with carbohydrates."

The two SIU coaches attended several of the Packers' squad and coaches' meetings.

The Salukis will scrimmage Saturday, Sept. 2, and play an intrasquad game under the lights at some, still-to-be-designated, area high school Saturday Sept. 9.

That will be the only time they practice outside the Little Grassy camp, according to Towers. The head coach hopes to combine the intrasquad game with a "get acquainted session" and possibly a barbecue dinner for area fans.

Slivers May Replace Splinters, Stadium Seating Study Shows

Stadium seats are a big market for wood, but the forest industries need to keep on their toes to meet the possible competition from fiberglass and plastic materials.

That is indicated in a market analysis of stadium seating characteristics in six north central states by two U.S. Forest Service market analysts, Jerry SESCO and Edwin Kallio, who are located at SIU with the Carbondale unit of the North Central Forest Experiment Station. Their findings are published in a new Forest Service Research Paper NC-11, "Stadium Seating, a Market Analysis."

SESCO and Kallio confined their 1965 study to public-owned open-air stadiums and grandstands in Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Illinois, Missouri and Iowa.

The 810 stadiums surveyed from published directories included 120 university, 60 municipal, 530 fairgrounds and 100 racetrack seating stands which had a total estimated capacity of more than three million persons. They used only a sampling of Illinois high school stadiums in the study.

Wood has been the traditional material used for stadium seats, they said, but fiberglass and plastic chair seats in a variety of designs, as well as pressure-molded planks or plastic covers for single-board seats, have recently come on the market. The most commonly used woods were Douglas fir, redwood, Port Orford cedar, southern cypress and southern yellow pine.

Most of the single-board seats were used in high school stadiums. Slat seats were most common in university and college stadiums. Chair seats with wooden slats, often of northern elm, were most common in municipal stadiums. Chair seats of fiberglass were being used most often at horse racetracks.

Cubs Cut Off Cards' Rally To Win 3-2

Ferguson Jenkins stopped a Cardinal uprising in the ninth inning Tuesday and the Chicago Cubs defeated St. Louis 3-2 to move back within three and one half games of the league leaders.

Glenn Beckert's single, an error on Curt Flood, a wild pitch by Card starter Nelson Briles and Ron Santo's single produced two Cub runs in the first inning.

Santo and Ernie Banks singled in the sixth and Santo came home on Clarence Jones' double for the final Chicago tally.

St. Louis scored both its runs in the eighth when Mike Shannon walked, Bobby Tolan was safe on a Banks error, Alex Johnson's pinch single scored Shannon and Flood singled in Tolan.

Maris then walked and Jenkins got out of the jam by forcing Orlando Cepeda to fly to center. Both Cardinal runs were unearned.

Jenkins struck Ed Selezio out with two men to end the game.

Junior Sports Jamboree Set at Pekin

SPRINGFIELD -- Pekin, which proudly claims itself "The Home of the Champs," will be the temporary home of 589 other "champs" from all over Illinois this week, as host to the state finals of the 12th annual Illinois Junior Sports Jamboree.

The sports-minded community, which claimed its title after winning the state high school basketball tournament early this year, will welcome the young track and field performers with a parade Friday morning. The parade will be from the business district to Memorial Stadium.

Sixteen buses, originating in points on the borders of the state, will leave for Pekin Thursday morning, picking up the contestants in 171 towns and villages along the way, and converging on Pekin Community High School at supertime.

Separate dormitories for the 299 boys and 290 girls and their chaperons will be provided in the gymnasium wings of the high school field house.

The athletes, ranging in age from 10 to 15 years, are the finalists in a statewide track and field competition that began early this summer.

Winners in each event at 217 local meets advanced to sectional competition in 12 different cities. Sectional winners then received the expense-paid trip to the state finals.

They will make the trip as guests of the Illinois Youth Commission, which sponsors the Jamboree along with the Illinois Jaycees. The Pekin Jaycees will be hosts to this year's meet.

Competition will be at Pekin Memorial Stadium, with field events Friday afternoon, track preliminaries under the lights Friday night, and track finals Saturday morning.

Gov. Otto Kerner will arrive at noon on Saturday to attend the awards luncheon and to participate in the presentation of trophies.

The colorful awards ceremony Saturday afternoon will conclude the event, with each contestant stepping through the winners' arch to receive his trophy. John A. Troike, chairman of the Illinois Youth Commission, and W.E. "Skip" Dunkirk, state Jaycee president, will congratulate the winners.

Area Coaches Invited to Attend All-Day Football Clinic Thursday

The SIU football coaching staff will sponsor a clinic for all interested coaches Thursday from 7 to 11 p.m.

The coaching clinic will feature films, lectures and discussions. Each member of the SIU staff will lecture on a different phase of the game.

Refreshments will be served during the clinic, which will be held in Room 119 of the Arena. There will be no admission fee charged and it is not necessary to pre-register.

Head Coach Dick Towers has extended an invitation to all area coaches and any others who might be at Southern at the time of the clinic.

Towers said, "There are several coaches at Southern this summer attending science and math institutes who have expressed an interest in our program and we would like to take this opportunity to acquaint them with it."

Towers said the clinic would feature discussions of SIU's offense, with assistant Ron Marcinak discussing the interior line and blocking and Towers delivering a general talk on the overall offense.
