Budget Necessary To Provide Adequate Facilities -- S I U Officials

(This is the first of a series on three articles explaining Southern Illinois University's request for increased appropriations in 1957-58 for buildings and other campus improvements.)

S I U will ask the coming session of the Illinois General Assembly for $39,319,000 to be spent on new buildings and capital improvements during the next two years.

The huge budget request is necessary, S I U officials say, if the University is going to be able to provide anything like adequate facilities for Southern's rapidly growing student body.

Since 1949, the University has contracted for twenty million dollars worth of construction and campus improvements, but this does not satisfy the need. Some 169,500 square feet of space used for classroom, laboratory and office work is in excess, barracks buildings and temporary structures, most of which are hard to heat in the winter and expensive to maintain.

There are also many campus buildings which cannot be completed without additional funds and old buildings which have had major repairs for 30 years or more.

Less than 12 per cent of the student body can now be housed in permanent campus dormitories. New residence halls are going up but not as fast as enrollment. Dormitories now under construction will provide sleeping quarters for 480 more students, while enrollment is expected to increase by nearly 900 students next fall.

Since 1949, the University has been able to add three large buildings, including a library, in which classes can be taught. During this period, however, enrollment at Southern has jumped from 3,166 to 6,300.

"Despite new construction, the space situation is actually tighter than ever," says President D. W. Morris.

Rickety old homes which are used for classrooms, laboratories, and offices around the periphery of the campus add up to 72,000 square feet of floor space. This is equivalent to a single structure the size of Southern's sprawling new agriculture building which is now under construction.

If the University were to replace with a single building the World War II barracks buildings it now uses, the building would be as large as three-story Old Main which has more than 56,000 square feet of space.

Temporary structures on concrete foundations can be used for some time to come, but replacing them would require a building the size of Southern's gymnasium.

As if things weren't bad enough now, the University is looking forward to 1960 when 9,000 students are expected to seek enrollment.

"To fulfill the hopes and confidences of the people of Southern Illinois, the University must have adequate facilities to provide the education sought by eager thousands," says Morris. "Not only additional classroom buildings and extensions of others are necessary, but also we shall need funds for student and faculty housing as well as architects' fees."

The University's budget request for 1957-58 includes $29,150,000 for new buildings; $2,963,000 for completion of other buildings; $1,500,000 for site acquisition; $1,143,000 for renovation of old buildings; $283,000 for improvements on the Vocational-Technical Institute campus, and $68,000 for architects' fees.

Subsequent articles in this series will discuss how these funds would be applied to take care of the University's present and future needs.

Field Narrows For 1957 AFROTC Queen's Crown

Lovely Sherry Craig, who now reigns as queen of Southern's AFROTC, will soon relinquish her crown to a new S I U beauty.

Who the new royalty will be will not be revealed until the night of Jan. 26, when Duke Ellington and his orchestra will provide music for the crowning and elaborate sixth annual Military Ball.

The field of candidates for Sherry's crown has been limited to 16 campus co-eds, and five finalists from this group will be selected before the final balloting of the entire AFROTC wing.

The five finalists will be picked by members of Southern's Army Old Air Corps following an informal coffee hour for the candidates Thursday.

The final balloting by all coeds will be Jan. 22.

The popular Ellington, one of the originators of progressive jazz, will present a concert before the ball.

This will mark the first year that the dance has been opened to all S I U students. AFROTC members will wear their uniforms, and other students attending must wear formal dress.

Tickets will be on sale at campus distribution points and are now available by mail. Address for purchasing tickets by mail is: ROTC department 205, Military, University Sales, S I U, Carbondale, Ill.

Advance price for dance tickets is $3.00 per couple, with the door price $3.25 a couple. Advance concert tickets are $1.25 for each individual and $1.50 per person at the door.

Ellington's reputation for a setting style in the musical world was first established when he made such hits as "Black and Tan Fantasy," "Mood Indigo," and "Soaphisticated Lady." He is one of the few modern music men to be at Carnegie Hall, and is a veteran of several European concert tours.

Queen Sherry, accompanied by Major Jack Aldridge, assistant professor in Southern's AFROTC department and member of the AFROTC honor guard, traveled to the state capital in Springfield, Ill. to personally invite Gov. William G. Straton to the Military Ball. Tickets were presented to the Governor during the visit.

"This year's queen will be filling cause this involves a matter of state police and will have to be discussed at the next meeting of the state legislature.

Gov. Straton asks that he may take the appeal for funds under advisement and the group would meet for further discussion later.

The request for additional funds would have to be put before the legislature at the beginning of the next biennium, July 1, 1957, according to Hand.

Whether a special emergency fund could be obtained for continued operation of the school until that time is not known.

If S I U took over the Shurtleff campus, the same instructors who are teaching there at present would have first consideration for the jobs, according to Hand, however, the request for additional applications and be accepted by our board before resuming their positions.

"Some of the present staff would be retained and perhaps some of our but they will have to come up with the money to run the school."

"Many of the staff have already submitted their applications just in case Shurtleff comes under the auspices of S I U."

Hand made it clear that the quality of education received at Shurtleff was not to be on par with that here at Southern.

As of now, according to Hand, the college is not accredited and possibly part of the reason could be attributed to the faculty.

The problem of administration over the extension schools could go to the office of Dean Raymond H. Dey, extension, or to Charles D. Tenney, vice-president for instruction, according to Hand.

"There are several possibilities," said Hand.

Our present extension program has a semester enrollment that varies between eight and fourteen hundred students. The addition of Shurtleff would push the number up two or three hundred more.

According to Dey, about a number of our extension students come from the area of Belleville, East St. Louis, and Alton.

The demand from that area has already prompted S I U to establish a residence center in Belleville, with another office in East St. Louis.

S I U is now in the process of conducting a self-survey report to be submitted to the North Central Association in an effort to qualify for offering the Ph. D. degree.

"The addition of Shurtleff college to our extension program would in no way affect our status with the North Central Association," said Hand.

Dr. Hand, in giving a personal side-light on the situation, said that it would be a great transfer to Shurtleff to be near their families and where expenses would be less, according to Hand.

Hand emphasized that everything was now in the tentative stage and that more would be known at the next meeting of the board of trustees.

stone formerly held by five of the loveliest girls from Southern's campus. In 1951, Jo Rushing was crowned queen of the first Military Ball. Following her came Ida Mae Shellhans in 1952, Marilyn Liebzig in 1953, Pat Brace in 1954, and the present reigning queen, Sherry Craig.

16 Finalists

Marion will send three hopefuls to this week's coffee hour in the person of sophomore's Carole Chambliss, Martha Sue Cooksey, and Martha Debo.

Winter Quarter Library Hours Announced

Beginning January 14 the University Library will extend its hours until 11:30 p.m., Monday through Thursday. This will enable students who do not have adequate study facilities in their rooms, to get in some extra hours at the library.

The new schedule will prevail for the winter and spring quarters. This will bring the total opening hours of the library to 88 1/2 hours, eight hours per week more than last year and considerably more than maintained by most college and university libraries.

The complete schedule of opening hours is as follows:

7:00 a.m. - 11:30 p.m., Monday through Thursday

7:45 a.m. - 10:00 p.m., Friday

9:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m., Saturday

2:00 p.m. - 5:00 p.m., Sunday

Holiday closing and "between-term" hours will be posted on the outside library doors.

Summer Jobs Available Now

Now is the time to start the search for summer employment and not in April or May when all the jobs are spoken for. Mrs. Alice Rexroth of the Student Work Office has announced.

The Student Work Office, located in the temporary administration barracks, has listing of more than 280 jobs for summer work. Mrs. Rexroth said. These include resorts, national parks, and camps and range from jobs in general labor to specialized skills.

"Opportunities in camps offer educational values as well as salary and room and board," Mrs. Rexroth said. "Students with life-saving certificates are in demand in camps and usually get a higher salary for the summer."

Jobs in resorts are listed from Hawaii to Nanuetuck Island, thirty miles east of Massachusetts, and from Alaska to Texas, and even one in London.

Mrs. Rexroth outlined the procedure as follows: students get addresses in the Student Work Office and write personal letters of application. Most students are selected for jobs by March, she said.

One offer, for college juniors to be considered for summer employment as secretaries for the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company is extended to persons under 30 years of age who have a grade average of 85 or better and a major in mathematics. A representative of the company is to be on campus January 10 for interviews.

Harris Symphony Receives Recognition

"Ode to Conscience," a symphonic composition by Roy Harris, distinguished visiting professor of music at S I U, will be performed by the University of Illinois Symphony at the Music Teachers' National Association convention in Chicago next September.

The composition, commissioned by Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, an honorary music society, was premiered Dec. 9 in Champaign by the University of Illinois orchestra, conducted by Bernard Goodman.

New Book Issue System Proves Efficient

An average of five students per minute got their text books during the hours between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m. Wednesday.

This was the first time all students were scheduled to get their books in one day. The new schedule for issuing text books worked "very well," according to Elizabeth O. Stone, assistant director of public stores.

"I believe we could have taken care of everyone if they had come," said Stone. "We believe the issuing is becoming streamlined."

Text books were obtained by 3,509 students. The peak was between 1 and 2 p. m., and only eight came between 9 and 10 p. m.

The average student gets from 7 to 7 books, according to Miss Stone. She said that some need as many as 20 books. Students who take English 355, The Victorian Novel, need 14 books for that subject alone.

"This helped very much," said Stone. "We have seen a number of books which students will keep."

"If students would look at the list of text books which are to be used they would save themselves an extra trip. For instance, they see one book for English 205 and make it, but many courses have more than one book."

Student Council Hears Committee Reports, Approves 3 Organizations

The first Student Council meeting got underway Thursday night with reports from four committees. The committee decided to continue the survey of student living centers to see how many students were affected, asking whether or not the student body would like the Council to ask UNSC help.

Max Malone reported for the committee which is investigating the possibility of the S I U Student Council joining the United States National Student Council. The committee consists of W. H. White, John Baker, and W. H. White.

White reported that Lewis Thresher, who is in charge of the Section Center said that the scheduling has two purposes: to aid the student and to aid the university. Thresher thought that most

Southern May Take Over Shurtleff If State OK's

Southern Is Expecting To Become Proud Parents Within A Week

By Warren Talley

With the infant year 1957 still in its toddling stages, an increase in campus canine population is foreseen for the new future... by way of the stork.

One of Southern's youngest... but most distinguished ladies is "expecting."

The lady is the younger half of Southern's recently acquired mascot, purchased Saluki's, now being cared for by Dr. Robert A. Scott, S I U professor of chemistry.

Burdwyn Datis, the 1 1/4 year-old black and white canine, is expecting a litter of pups within the next few days or at least by the end of the week.

Expected 10th or 12th

"I've never had any experience with Salukis before," remarked Scott. "But my own says that the pup could be four or six puppies, to be born near the 10th or 12th of this month."

The likable chemistry prof keeps the dogs in his kennels that were recently purchased by the University for care of the popular mascot. The kennel has a large exercise pen, and is completely equipped with stokes, heat and hot water.

Gift To Stu

The two rare Saluki's, Ornah Farook and Burdwyn Datis, were given to S I U by alumna W. W. Vandever, president of the Ashland Oil Company in Ohio. The presents were officially presented to President D. W. Morris during the halftime ceremonies at the 1956 homecoming football game.

Before the addition of Datis and Farook, S I U had gone two years without a rare mascot. King Tut, Southern's first and only other Saluki, was killed by an auto while on the streets after they are first born," said the watchful Scott, who has Ornah on a special bone-building diet. Scott has raised dogs all his life, and has one of his own in addition to keeping the Salukis.

The S I U mascot was purchased by Vandever from the Pine Padlocks Kennel, Valley City, Ohio, one of the outstanding kennels of its type in the country.

Under the verbal agreement made at the time of the purchase, Mrs. Esther Bliss Knapp, owner of the kennels, is to receive any of the pups that S I U is not an official mascot. How many the University keeps, of course, will not be decided until Dr. Scott and the stork are finished.

Salukis are the oldest pure-bred dogs in the world, with identifying records as far back as 3600 B. C.

The breed originated in ancient Egypt where, because of their great speed, they were trained for gazelle hunting. They have been clocked at speeds in excess of 40 miles per hour.

The expectant mother, Burdwyn Datis, came from the stork. King Tut of Saudi Arabia, Ornah's dam came from pure-bred Holland stock. Ornah Farook, the soon-to-be proud papa, is a 3-year-old from English stock.

Psychology Department Adds 2 To Staff

Dr. Hobart Osborn has joined the staff of the psychology department as an associate professor specializing in industrial psychology. He comes to Southern from the post of senior research psychologist with the Human Resources Research Office in Washington, D. C. Osborn is married and has two children.

Dr. Richard Melton is another new member of the psychology staff. He will formerly with the Air Force Training Division at Randolph Air Force Base in Texas. While there he worked as a research psychologist. Melton is married and the father of two children.

Alpha Phi Omega To Have Open Meeting

Alpha Phi Omega, Scout service fraternity, will have its second open meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Club Room of the Student Union. All male students who have been affiliated with the Boy Scout Movement may attend. The purpose of the Zeta Nu Chapter is to provide former scouts with an opportunity to continue fellowship with other Scouts and to give service to the university and to the community.

APO is planning its annual Line of Dimes for the week of January 13-18. As in the past, the line will extend from the main gate to Old Main. The proceeds will go to the National March of Dimes campaign.

Goldamond Gets Another Grant

Irvin Goldamond, S I U assistant professor of psychology, has been awarded a $7,200 grant from the Diane Newhall Foundation in recognition of support for his research project in visual perception. The Foundation gave Goldamond $5,900 to begin the experimental project last year.

Discusses Foreign Student Sponsorship

The Council discussed the possibility of sponsoring a foreign student through the International Relations Club. Decision was postponed until the next meeting. The presence of Fahni Dahdad, IRC president, who was scheduled to appear and explain the responsibilities of the Council if the project were undertaken. Dahdad will appear at next week's meeting and discuss how he would be named to Shurtleff to be near their families and where expenses would be less, according to Hand.

Hand emphasized that everything was now in the tentative stage and that more would be known at the next meeting of the board of trustees.

In Your Hands

It's the time again when SIU must ask for funds to operate and expand for the next two years.

Extensive plans have been made for building and improving the campus. A budget totaling better than $60 million has been approved by the Board of Trustees for submission to the Illinois General Assembly.

SIU officials are making a tremendous effort to insure approval by the legislature.

But, all the work by the Board of Trustees and the other officials will be in vain if the students do not unite in a concentrated effort to insure passage.

How is this done?
 It is easier done than one might expect.

Student petitions asking that the legislature approve the budget carry a large influence, especially if nearly all the students sign.

But, an equally effective method is by personal contact with legislators in home towns. By becoming familiar with the problem facing the University because of ever-expanding enrollment, the student can make an intelligent plea to these solons.

By informing parents and friends in their respective home towns, the student thereby increases the possibility that the lawmakers will hear of the problem and become sympathetic.

Therefore, the problem of seeing that the budget request receives approval from the General Assembly lies with the students of SIU.

New Years... Oh! 1957 is here. The year for inaugurations, new speed records, H-bombs, war and the 1957 Military Ball. Elvis Presley is going to get drafted. Yes, girls... drafted. The editor of the Egyptian is a papa as of Christmas Day.

With all these earth shaking events the Egyptian wants to start off the new year right.

No matter where you go, what you do, who you are, nothing is the way you want it exactly. So what's your chance to tell "what's hot"?

Write us and tell us what you think is wrong with the SIU campus, if anything. What improvements would you like to see made?

Also, who do you think is wrong with the Egyptian, if anything? Tell us what you would like to see more of on the pages of your newspaper. Have we overlooked anything? Being the snobs we are, we know we are perfect as does everyone else. However, we leave the door open. Shoot away at us or anything else on campus.

The only requirement is we ask that all letters to the editor be signed.

Waiting to hear from you. You'll hear from us. —jt

Undesirable

The possibility of SIU taking over Shurtleff College in Alton is being discussed and investigated at some length by SIU officials and Governor Straton.

Expansion for the University is fine, but this move would appear to be undesirable in many ways at the present.

The acquisition of the Shurtleff campus for a branch of SIU would involve a great deal of work that is best put to use on the main campus.

An additional budget request would be needed to operate

Chautauqua Game Hunter Makes News

Men are not the only successful game hunters among students and faculty families, living in barracks buildings at Southern Illinois University's Chautauqua Housing Projects.

Placement Service Lists 47 Job Opportunities for Each Graduate

Forty-seven job offers were listed at the SIU Placement Office for every graduate at SIU last year, according to an annual report issued this week by Dr. Roy R. Bryant, director.

A total of 586 students with bachelor's degrees and 202 with master's degrees were graduated at Southern between Oct. 1, 1955, and Sept. 30, 1956. Their employment opportunities in education, business and industry totaled 27,557, representing a 60 per cent increase over the previous year.

"It is not surprising," Dr. Bryant said, "that by Oct. 1 only five of these graduates remained available for employment."

During the year covered by the report, 530 interviewees—100 more than in 1954-55—traveled.

"Who's Who" reads: "Maurine Olson—3 mice."

Vacation Sees Changes Library Moves More In Over Holidays

While most of us had about two weeks off for Christmas vacation, several library workers had only a two-day rest, Christmas Day and New Years Day. It seems that Christmas time is moving time in the library.

Over the holidays the librarians, student assistants and workers from the physical plant moved the social studies library, the central card catalogue and the National and Trade bibliographies collection from the basement to the first floor.

Moving from Wheeler to the new library took during last year's holidays, and according to Ralph McCoy, library director, there will probably be more moving done next Christmas vacation.

The moving of the social studies library left space for about 50,000 books which were in storage. However, the newspaper, map, and government document collections are still in storage.

The newspaper document collection will probably be moved during the next Christmas holidays, according to McCoy. This collection weighs about twenty tons and contains between 40 and 50 thousand volumes.

The library's Tilton - Lincoln collection, given to SIU in 1941 by a Danville attorney, was also moved to the first floor. This collection is housed separately in a section adjacent to the social studies library.

"It may be moving work before the moving is finished because we have to file roughly 50 thousand books among 150 thousand," said McCoy.

The entrance to the new section is already across from the south doors of the library. With the new section open, there is an increase in seating capacity, according to McCoy.

"There is seating for about 550 persons, which is just a little less than what we need," said McCoy.

Students Rate Teachers System To Locate Teachers' Weak Points

Students at SIU have been asked to give their opinions of some of their instructors.

This is an act of the academic deans and was planned last spring, according to Dr. John E. Grinnell, dean of the College of Education. He is chairman of the sub-committee which began last spring to study ways of improving instruction.

"The sub-committee made several recommendations," Dr. Grinnell said, "and this one was chosen. It is to help new instructors get early in the year, an idea of their strengths and weakness in teaching."

The method being used is called the Purdue Rating Scale. It is being applied to instructors who are at SIU for the first time this year. After each student in each of the instructors' classes fills out the sheet of questions, the sheets are scored by machine, and the profile of each class is sent to the dean of the college or department and to the chairman of the department which the instructor is in. The profile is the rating of the teacher which the scale provides by a comparison of the instructor with teachers all over the country.

This plan is not to be used to decide promotions, salary increases, or to criticize the instructor. We hope that this will lead to the chairman's dropping in on instructors' classes from time to time, and in this way establish visitation of classes.

"This plan is not to criticize the instructor, but to help him improve his teaching. This school, like all others, has inexperienced teachers, and the chief objective of this plan is to help them find their strong and weak points."

"Some of the departments have, on their own, decided to have all members of the department subjected to this plan."

"This plan is not to criticize the instructor, but to help him improve his teaching. This school, like all others, has inexperienced teachers, and the chief objective of this plan is to help them find their strong and weak points."

"Some of the departments have, on their own, decided to have all members of the department subjected to this plan."

SIU To Open Own Laundry In Spring

Southern's proposed laundry is expected to be completed sometime in the spring. The laundry is expected to be more than adequate to handle the university's dirty laundry.

The building is to be a Butler type, metal frame, sheetmetal sides and concrete flooring. It will be located directly south of the farm quonset building.

The equipment for use in the laundry has been purchased from the University of Illinois in Carbondale. The University expects to save by running its own laundry.

In the future a dry cleaning building is to be added to the money-saving units operated by SIU.

Fred Sinroll Out On Bail, Grand Jury Opens Jan. 14

By Wayne Ragus
Fred Sinroll, 20 year old sophomore from Strolling spring, Okla., was at his home after being released from Jackson County jail on a $15,000 dollar bond.
Sinroll is charged with murder in the fatal shooting of his roommate Robert Baran on December 12, 1956. Previous attempts for bail for the prisoner were denied by State's Attorney William G. Ridgeway who held that Sinroll was under a charge which wasn't habitable as it could be a capital offense.
Ridgeway Seeks Murder Indictment
The newly elected State's Attorney was said to seek a murder indictment against the SIU student when the Jackson County grand jury opens Jan. 14. The grand jury is to be impaneled on Jan. 16 with the petit jury impaneled on Jan. 17.
Though the shooting occurred just before the start of final exams Sinroll was allowed to take three exams while being held in the jail at Murphysboro.
Sinroll took exams in psychology, history and speech.
Baran, who had been an end on this year's Saluki football team, was buried in Danvers, Mass., his home. John Abramovich, Baran's roommate, and witness to the fatal shooting, is expected to testify for the prosecution. Baran's body to Danvers. He along with Al Kaval, SIU football coach who also accompanied the body to Danvers, were pallbearers at the funeral December 17, 1956.
Abramovich Not In School
Abramovich has not returned to SIU this term but is expected to return in the spring. Abramovich felt that he would probably miss too much school as he and Henry Hillman, freshman from Park Ridge, Ill. and also a witness to the shooting, are both expected to testify before the grand jury.
Following the fatal shooting talk of an appeal for all firearms of SIU students were heard. Plans for such an arsenal are being formulated but as due to the complexity of the situation much time and effort will be needed, according to Dean I. Clark Davis, acting director of the Office of Student Affairs. Hereafter there is a rule that no firearms were allowed in University housing but no rules affected off-campus housing.

Heinz Rudolph Tells Audience How Europe Needs To Unify

By Ruth Anne Reeves
"There are 80 million people who reside the iron curtain who would revolt at any word. Any attempt to aid with arms would result in the third World War; therefore, we in West Germany must try to win them over by showing them how democratic West Germany can function and by lending moral support in efforts to get concessions from Russia," Heinz Rudolph said Friday.
Rudolph, minister of Labor, health and social affairs for Lower Saxony, was introduced to a group of students and faculty members at the University School Auditorium by Dr. Helmut Harwig, SIU associate professor of foreign languages.
Studying U.S. Labor Relations
A member of the West German Federal Council, Rudolph is in the United States as a participant in the Foreign Leaders Program of the International Education Exchange Service of the Department of State.

Ex-POW Here To Teach
German Recalls Experiences In Hitler Regime
By Gary Heaps
With an almost perpetual smile and strong accent, Wilhelm Boldt, graduate assistant in Foreign Languages from Germany, tells of an eventful life from soldier to educator.
This is the ex-German soldier's second trip to the U. S. The only other time he was here he was a prisoner of war.
Herr Boldt was born in Celle, Germany in 1919. He completed his secondary education in 1938 and was inducted into Hitler's army to serve his compulsory military tour of duty.
"I was a veteran of one year when World War II broke out with the invasion of Poland," said Boldt.
In 1941 Boldt was with the German Panzer corps that swept across the Polish plains.
Following the battle of Poland, he was with the invading forces of France in 1940.
In 1941 Boldt was part of Hitler's tragic mistake, the invasion of Russia.
Students of history will recall that the German Army advanced all the way to the suburbs of Moscow before being halted.
The halt was largely due to the cold weather and the fact that the supply line had been extended beyond its capabilities, according to Boldt.
Hitler allowed his army to be caught minus their woollen pants by the terrible cold that invades the Russian steppes during the winter.
"Sometimes the temperature dropped to 30 degrees below zero," said Boldt, "and this terrible cold often kept our armored columns from moving at all."
"Also we didn't have enough clothing and many of the soldiers suffered from frostbite."
Boldt, dressed in a brown suit and speaking with enthusiasm, recalled how the German soldiers built fires under the engines of the vehicles to thaw the motors.
"When the German army retreated," said Boldt, "many of the vehicles were left behind."
In those days some of our equipment was horse-drawn and in the extreme cold the horse proved more efficient than the engine."
The ex-soldier recalls that the cold weather worked to their advantage as far as obtaining food was concerned.
"Everything that died froze immediately," said Boldt, "and many
