Pettit: IBHE budget needs tax hike

By Mark Barnett
Staff Writer

The state could fail to give higher education a bigger piece of the budget pie despite budget recommendations released by the Illinois Board of Higher Education, Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit said.

Pettit said it is possible that funding for higher education will be just as low as last year. "Without a tax increase, I don't see the General Assembly fully meeting the IBHE recommendation," Pettit said.

IBHE released budget recommendations Jan. 5 for the 12 four-year institutions and 36 community colleges supported by state funds.

During fiscal year 1990 and beyond, IBHE recommended "re-establishing education as a state-funded priority." Fiscal year 1990 will begin July 1, 1989 and end June 30, 1990.

"Education is the state's primary investment in people and the major foundation for improving the competitiveness of the state's economy," Richard D. Wagner, executive director of IBHE, said.

The Board of Trustees requested $173 million for SIU-C, yet IBHE recommended $168 million. Included in IBHE's recommendations for SIU-C are increases of $10 million for faculty and staff salaries and more than $5 million for new programs and the expansion of existing programs.

Within the operating budget, SIU-C requested a 15 percent increase in funding for Morris Library during fiscal year 1990. The increase of $447,000 was requested for library material costs. IBHE recommended an increase of $304,000, a nine percent increase.

Kenneth Peterson, dean of library affairs, said he was grateful for the recommendation.

"I am grateful they are going as far as nine percent,"

Peterson said. "It's a move in the right direction."

Peterson said increased funding would help cover rising costs for journals, books and other materials.

With regard to the entire SIU System, including SIU-C, SIU-E, the School of Medicine and the Dental School, IBHE recommended the system receive $237 million for operations and grants in fiscal year 1990. The Board of Trustees requested $247 million.

Requests for SIU-E were $70 million. IBHE recommended $67 million for the Edwardsville campus.

For fiscal year 1989, the system received $209 million from the state. Of that amount, the Carbondale campus received $148 million and the Edwardsville campus received $59 million.

Although IBHE's recommendations are just below SIU's request, appropriations granted to the University for fiscal year 1989 increased only 4.1 percent more than fiscal year 1988.

Last year, Gov. James R. Thompson pushed for an income tax increase to cover higher education costs. Thompson proposed raising income taxes from 2.5 percent

University uncertain about review

By Megan Hauck
Staff Writer

A North Central Association accrediting team is scheduled to review the University February 12 to 15, and the committee head on campus isn't exactly sure what to expect.

Marvin Kleinau, chairman of the department of speech communications, led a committee to prepare a self-study report for the North Central Association, an accrediting team, which reviews most Midwest colleges and universities.

"Their task is to determine if we live up to the standards of the North Central Association for a doctoral-granting institution," Kleinau said. "I don't know what all they're going to do to determine that."

The last time the University was reviewed for accreditation, in 1979, the accrediting team confirmed many of the strengths and weaknesses already outlined in the self-study report — something the team will likely do again this year, Benjamin Shepherd, vice president for academic affairs, said.

"I'd like to wait and see what the accrediting team says," Shepherd said. "I don't want to put ideas into their heads."

A self-study report is prepared every 10 years to give accrediting teams insight about the workings of the University. It includes statistics and facts pertaining

On Monday, SIU-C celebrated the birthday and the memory of legendary civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. with honorary banquets, and a mass specially tributed to him.

The day began with the 6th annual memorial breakfast in Grinnell Hall sponsored by the Carbondale chapter of the NAACP.

special mass at 12:15 p.m. as a special tribute to King.

The congregation participated by helping read some of his works. The rest of the mass was a reminder of what a great civil rights leader and humanitarian King was.

CCFA loses its dean to another university

By Megan Hauck
Staff Writer

Benjamin Shepherd, vice president for academic affairs, is in the process of choosing members for a search committee for dean of the College of Communications and Fine Arts.

Shepherd said he hopes to obtain information from a group within the College for a search committee before the end of January.

"I hope to place an ad for candidates in early February," he said. "I anticipate this will be a national search."

Keith R. Sanders, dean of CCFA, is confident the search will secure a dean capable of filling his shoes.

"I think there are several people on the inside who could do a good job," Sanders said, "as well as some very good candidates outside the University."

University searching for source of bad jokes

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

University officials still are searching for the source of racially offensive jokes on a computer printout.

The printout was discovered by a parent of a Carbondale kindergarten student when it was brought home from school.

Nathaniel Felder, president of the Carbondale chapter of the NAACP and director of planning and computing for the SIU system, said the printout contained a long list of very directed jokes which were ethnically offensive to African-Americans.

"It was a deplorable and regrettable incident and we intend to punish the offender if caught," John C. Guyot, president of SIU-C, said.

Lawrence Hengehold, director of computing affairs, said there was not enough information on the printout to single anyone out but they are still searching for possible ID numbers.

Hengehold also ruled out the possibility of the program being a "virus," which means the program did not originate within itself and it will not multiply.

Felder also explained that SIU-C donates its old computer printouts to local kindergartens to use as scrap paper and the material most likely came from SIU-C.

Jack Dyer, executive director of University relations, stressed that the University does not condone such activity and that it is being treated very seriously.

"This University will not tolerate such activity," Dyer said. "If either a student or a staff member is responsible, appropriate action will be taken."

Baker confirmation hearings begin Tuesday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee will open hearings Tuesday on James Baker's nomination to become secretary of state, with swift confirmation likely for the seasoned political pragmatist and Cabinet veteran. The public hearings — the first exercise of the Senate's advise and consent power for the George Bush administration — will begin three days before Bush officially nominates his old Houston friend and 1988 campaign chairman to the No. 1 Cabinet job. That formal action will come Friday, shortly after the vice president is sworn in as the next chief executive.

Ten people died Monday in fires that swept through a Michigan boarding house, an apartment complex in Tucson and a four-story building in New York City. Five people died at Niles, Mich.; four were killed in Richardson, Texas, a Dallas suburb, and an elderly man died in the apartment house fire in Manhattan. Investigators said careless smoking was the probable cause of the Michigan fire. They were still trying to determine the causes of the other blazes, although the New York fire was termed suspicious.

Prof to give philosophy instruction

By Scott Smith
Staff Writer

A series of lectures on the philosophy of creativity through creative communication will begin at 3:35 p.m. today at the Communications Building.

Keith R. Sanders, dean of the College of Communications and Fine Arts, will introduce the lecture series and the speaker, Adjunct Professor William S. Minor.

Minor's lecture will explain creative communication and contrast the traditional metaphysics (the philosophy that seeks to explain the nature of being) to the new creative metaphysics.

"(Creative communication) is the discipline which emerges from the philosophy of creativity," Minor said. "The course is designed as basic for all education."

The second lecture will explain the three-fold logic of creative communication: formal logic, logic of description and logic of prescription.

Minor is the founder and former executive director of the Foundation for Philosophy of Creativity, a research foundation dedicated to releasing creativity in persons and institutions.

King's dream hasn't reached mountaintop

THE HOLIDAY we enjoyed recently commemorated the birthday of a man who changed the world. But like all remembrances of people who have changed the world as did Martin Luther King Jr., it really is the commemoration of an idea, and of a movement. The idea is equality for all people and the movement is for civil rights.

Whether King's legacy can be gauged by the "progress" that blacks and other groups subject to prejudice have made in denting the monopoly of a white male American society is uncertain. While many of the overt manifestations of racism against blacks have been eliminated, the covert remains.

THE LAW OF the land may be desegregation but the fact is inner cities are crowded with blacks and Hispanics and the more affluent suburbs filled with whites. While Gov. George Wallace attempted to bar the way of the first black student from entering the University of Alabama in 1963, in 1988 city councilmembers from Yonkers, N.Y. attempted to block a court order that would partially desegregate their city.

MARTHA FARRIS, a sister-in-law of King who works on campus, offered what she considered to be his greatest accomplishment, "America was forced to be embarrassed."

King brought to light the gross injustices that were being perpetrated on blacks in the United States, especially in the South. He made America look at itself and it didn't like what it saw.

Affirmative action alleviates discrimination, not prejudice

A PROGRAM that has grown from Martin Luther King's struggle for civil rights is affirmative action. Designed to oversee implementation of the various anti-discriminatory laws passed in the 60s and 70s, the program has become a bone of contention between those who insist that minorities, women and the disabled should be represented more fully in the work force and in educational institutions through hiring and enrollment quotas, and those who think that these quotas amount to reverse discrimination.

THE CONFLICTING attitudes underscore the dangers inherent in programs like affirmative action that single out groups for seemingly preferential treatment — groups that have in the past and still are being discriminated against for jobs and education.

As Seymour Byson, affirmative action head at the University, notes, being a black or a woman at the University leaves you a target for labeling as an affirmative action candidate.

THUS A LEGISLATIVELY spawned prejudice has been added to the one based on appearance, disability or sex that existed before.

Though an affirmative action program has been in place at the University since 1975, there are fewer black and Hispanic faculty now than before the program's inception, and no women deans or vice presidents.

AFFIRMATIVE ACTION is a necessity as long as we live in a world where people discriminate against others. But the root of discrimination — prejudice — can only be combated by educating the children, teaching them that to prejudice condemns only themselves.

Quotable Quotes

"The fact remains it's almost like you being on death row. Everybody's outside the jail, they're in sympathy, but you're still waiting to be electrocuted." — Georgetown basketball coach John Thompson commenting on the NCAA's adoption of Proposition 42 after he walked out of a Saturday night game in protest of it.

"Contestants, judges, participants and/or spectators are permitted or required to touch, fondle, caress the genitals or breasts of themselves or another." — Newton County (Indiana) Circuit Court forbidding a nudist colony to hold contests allowing these actions.

Field hockey, gymnastics cuts generate heated responses

Cuts require guts

Living in the Chicago area, one doesn't hear much about SIU, but lately the news has been good. Not too long after Jim Hart, a tuition hike, and another great football season, the university has decided to scrap women's field hockey and men's gymnastics. This action portrays a proper image of a large progressive university to the rest of the state as one that has decided not to waste anymore money on such silly endeavors. It demonstrated that a few years ago when women's gymnastics was dropped, but has taken a few years to act again. So bravo to Mr. Hart and SIU for their courage. It takes guts to make college more expensive while providing less variety. — Daniel R. Kerrigan, graduate, psychology.

Decision is wrong

It seems fairly obvious to me that the wrong decision has been made, as Jim Hart fears. Mr. Hart feels that we will benefit in areas other than gymnastics and field hockey and that the sacrifice will be worthwhile. Narrowing SIU-C's diversity, I believe, will not be worthwhile.

It cannot be denied that athletics helps personal growth. Even Plato stressed the value of "music and gymnastic." For hundreds of years the value of the mind and body working together to help a person grow has been recognized by educators.

What kind of message are we sending out to the younger people just getting interested in field hockey and gymnastics. I have seen the demise of these sports at Indiana State University while involved with the gymnastics program there. I was involved with gymnastics for twelve years, six of those teaching recreational gymnastics and coaching teams. Gymnastics has helped me grow immensely and it hurts me to see programs go under.

If your argument is that dropping these sports will help the other sports, then are we supposed to raise our children to be homogenous? Narrowing diversity would do just that. One thing that makes our lives worthwhile is that we don't all have to be the same.

If the argument is that we can't afford it, then take a look at the defense budget! I am obviously blowing the argument out of proportion, but take a look at what we spend money on and think about what is important to people in this world.

If you haven't in the past, please take the opportunity to see some of the best gymnastics in the nation during SIU-C's last season. To Coach Meade and the team, best of luck this final year and thanks for the dedication to a wonderful sport. — Will Marble, Outdoor Program Leader, Touch of Nature.

Shattered dreams

On December 13, hockey players, gymnasts and a few concerned students walked into Anthony Hall for the IAAC (Intercollegiate Athletic Advisory Committee) meeting, which would determine the fate of the women's field hockey and men's gymnastics teams.

I was quite impressed with the athlete's presentations. They shared many good points and arguments and stood up for the most important thing in their lives right now. So much effort, yet so little power.

The committee, on the other hand, taught me a lot about life. When a problem arises, forget about it, ignore it, or in this case, drop it.

They said that the $180,000 saved by cutting the teams will help raise the status of our basketball team by giving the coach more money for scholarships, recruitment, trips, etc. They also said that eventually the team will bring money in for the athletic department. Well maybe, but by the time that happens — after all the tuition hikes and budget cuts — how many people do they expect to be left at this school?

I wish the best of luck to those gymnasts who have dedicated their time to this school and now have to decide if it is worth going through the shuffle of changing schools to continue in their sport, and to the new freshmen who have to look for a new school to start all over. Also, to Coach Meade, Coach Illner, and the women's field hockey team. You all contributed so much to your sport with all of your enthusiasm and dedication. I hope you will always continue to fight for your dreams. — Carolyn Hansen, freshman, therapeutic recreation.

Cuts are drastic

I am writing this letter in response to the recent cutting of the women's field hockey team. This will hurt a lot of athletes. I was in an oral communications class with Laura Duffy and Cathy Dahlquist, members of the field hockey team and they both gave speeches about their love for field hockey. The recent cuts may cause students to transfer, because of their love for the sport, in order to continue playing a game that gives them a feeling of loyalty to their university.

Athletics Director Jim Hart should have considered the feelings of the players before he made this drastic cut in the athletic program. — Cris Peacock, freshman, political science.

Motorcyclist shot by officers; Miami mobilizes all its police

MIAMI (UPI) — Gunfire broke out, cars were set ablaze and rocks and bottles were thrown at police Monday night after officers shot a motorcyclist in a largely black Overtown section. The entire Miami police force was mobilized.

A sniper pinned down police officers for a time in the fourth violent civil disturbance to wrack the city in this decade, police spokesman Sgt. Michael Mazur said, but that situation was resolved with no injuries.

Mazur said there were unconfirmed reports that there was one death and one critical injury, but it was unclear if they were caused by gunshots or by vehicular accident. One of the casualties was believed to be an innocent bystander, Mazur said.

"It's a major incident with rocks and bottles being shot at officers," Mazur said. "We're currently in a full mobilization, which means we're calling in all the officers in the Miami police department." He said the department has about 1,640 officers.

Mayor Xavier Suarez and city Commissioner Miller Dawkins, whose back, arrived on the scene but were unable to quiet the crowd, which was estimated by police at between 75 and 100.

Police blocked off about 17 blocks in the area.

across in Overtown, near the Miami Arena, home of the Miami Heat of the National Basketball Association.

Downtown Miami was deserted. Exits near Overtown from Interstate 95 were closed, and firefighters were forbidden to enter the area, where at least two cars, one belonging to a television news station, were burning. Police helicopters buzzed overhead.

Mazur said the incident began about 5:45 p.m. when a policeman chased a motorcyclist. "There was shot that was fired (by the officer) and there was an accident," he said. He said he could not confirm whether the motorcyclist was injured or had died.

Mazur said he was unsure whether the man died from his wounds. It also was not known if the shooting victim was black.

Jennifer Rehm, a reporter from WCIX-TV, said she saw a black male, at least 6 feet, 200 pounds, lying in the street beside a car and a motorcycle and that the vehicles evidently had collided with each other. The man was covered with a white sheet and blood soaked the fabric near his head.

As he lay in the street, a woman who was identified by police as the victim's mother, started screaming, then apparently fainted.

Rehm said a group of six men tried to pull a WCIX employee, Lourdes Ruiz-Toledo, from her car. She was hit by a flying rock. Police then escorted other reporters from the area. "The rocks and bottles started to fly. I heard shots, two or three," Rehm said.

Several officers were injured with rocks and bottles, but none seriously, he said. Police were checking reports that rock and bottle throwing spread to Coconut Grove, just a few miles south of Overtown.

Police officers with shotguns and riot shields were sent to try to restore order in the largely black neighborhood, and rocks and bottles were strewn on the streets.

Joe Robbie Stadium, site of Sunday's Super Bowl game between the Cincinnati Bengals and the San Francisco 49ers, is about 11 miles north of the scene of disturbances. The Bengals were staying at the Omni Hotel, about a half-mile from the center of the disturbance. The San Francisco players were staying at a hotel near the airport, several miles away.

Miami was rocked by America's worst racial rioting in more than a decade from May 17-19, 1980, leaving at least 18 people dead, more than 300 injured, more than 1,000 arrested.

to different colleges, schools and departments at the University.

Shepherd summarized the process, saying the review is a status report of what the University stands.

"I'm confident we are a great University — not that it can't be improved," he said. "I just don't think there'll be any bombshells."

Shepherd noted some exceptions that won't be looked on favorably by the accreditation team. These include: space and equipment limitations, deferred maintenance, the General Education curriculum and course evaluations.

Jack Cody, a self-study committee member in charge of curriculum, said the accrediting team probably will be more concerned with the differing ideas within the faculty about where to redistribute money, than problems with the University's curriculum.

When the University first began to make budget cutbacks two years ago in order to maintain programs, the maintenance budget was among one of the first sought for additional funds.

chancellor at the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point, said he expects his new position to reflect his work here.

"Being a dean here is like being president of a small college within a large university," Sanders said. "The deans here function with a lot of freedom given to them from higher administration. I expect I'll have some of the same kind of freedom here."

Sanders, a native of Benton, received his bachelor's and master's degree at SIU-C and has been a member of the faculty since 1967.

He and his family have mixed feelings about his new position, he said, having made Southern Illinois home for 26 of the past 31 years.

"In the past, every time I felt I needed a change in my career, there was always something available for me here," Sanders said. "We have excellent people in all of the positions here for which I might be considered — so, for the first time since I joined the faculty in 1967, I seriously allowed my name to be considered at other universities."

Kenneth Smith, a former University chancellor from 1979 to 1985 who is president of UW-SP, chose Sanders from a final field of five candidates. Sanders said he and Shaw were close associates during Shaw's six-year reign.

"President Shaw definitely would not have recommended me to the Board of Regents as a candidate for chancellor had I not been recommended to him by a seven-member subcommittee of the Board of Regents," he said.

Sanders explained that Shaw could have recommended him, but to do that would have been chancing political suicide.

"If he had recommended someone who didn't work well with other UW-SP administrators, he would have been in a very bad situation," Sanders said. "The finger would have pointed at him."

Among what Sanders considers his more notable are the College's rejuvenated system of shared governance and several increases in funding, including a $4 million increase in endowment funds.

"Modesty prevents me from saying how much a part I played in that," Sanders said.

Sanders said he hopes to return to Southern Illinois and the University eventually because he considers it home.

"It's a wonderful place," he said. "Besides, the fishing is almost as good here as it is in Wisconsin."

Sanders directed a campaign in Springfield to enact a tax increase for higher education from February through July 1988. Although the tax increase failed, $200 million from state agencies was reallocated into the budgets of elementary, secondary and higher education as a result of his lobbying.

to 3 percent.

Since the General Assembly did not raise taxes, Thompson's budget for higher education included no increases.

Last year, supporters of increased funding for higher education engaged in an informational campaign to raise education's priority among legislators. Pettit said the move moved higher education up on the state's list of priorities with legislators," Pettit said.

Pettit said those involved in higher education want to keep the entrance and the rest up among local organizations that helped the informational campaign effort. Chamber of commerce and other organizations throughout the state were among the groups that helped in the campaign, Pettit said.

Public wary of S&L industry's financial situation

Taxpayers to bear cost of companies' financial rescue

By Stephen C. Fehr
Kansas City Times

WASHINGTON — In cities across the country, anxious customers have been calling their savings and loan associations and asking the same question: "Is my money safe?"

They are asking because America's S&L industry is in the midst of what industry officials say is one of the worst financial crises facing the country since the Depression.

"Right now, people are nervous, and you can see it," said Robert Carroll, president of the Missouri League of Savings Institutions. "Until the problem is solved nationally, our people are going to have problems."

THE CRISIS took on a new dimension recently when the Council of Economic Advisers, in President Reagan's final economic report, recommended that the $100,000 ceiling on federal insurance for depositors' accounts be reduced by an unspecified amount to "restore much-needed discipline to the system."

The report also said American taxpayers would have to cough up most of the estimated $50 billion to $100 billion needed to rescue the S&L industry. Reagan's final budget called for the federal government to spend $64 billion on the S&L problem over the next four years.

Although the S&L emergency largely was ignored by politicians in the fall campaign, it is likely to be the most urgent issue facing George Bush and members of Congress when they get down to business later this month.

ALREADY STUCK with a $150 billion federal budget deficit, Bush, as the new president, and Congress will have another tough spending decision to make with the S&L mess, which may accelerate the call for a tax increase.

"I think Congress is going to step up and do what it must. But it won't be easy because of the deficit problem," said Joe Morris, a past chairman of the U.S. League of Savings Institutions.

The most recent figures collected by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which regulates the 3,024 federally insured thrifts, indicated that nationally, the industry lost $1.6 billion in the July-to-September quarter.

After Bush and Congress address the crisis, they will face the broader policy question of how to restructure the thrift industry and the federal deposit insurance system.

IN SHORT, industry and federal officials say, 1989 will determine whether the S&L industry survives.

"As long as housing is a priority in this country, there's a definite need for our business," said Morris.

The roots of the turmoil can be traced back about 10 years, when interest rates began soaring and many depositors shifted their money from S&Ls and banks to money market mutual funds, which offered higher yields and instant withdrawals.

In 1980 the government lifted interest rate caps on deposits to S&Ls, but high interest rates crippled the industry's earnings. For instance, in 1981, thrifts paid an average of 11.7 percent interest on deposits while collecting 9.9 percent on old, 30-year mortgages.

IN RESPONSE to the industry's lobbying — the S&Ls are large campaign contributors to federal and state officeholders — Congress in 1981 and 1982 allowed the thrifts to offer adjustable rate mortgages, expand their loans to commercial and real estate ventures and begin checking accounts for customers.

But many of the institutions already were losing money. To stay afloat, many thrifts, particularly in Texas, California, Colorado and Florida, began wooing depositors by offering even higher interest rates. Incompetent thrift managers in turn put the money into risky investments, such as fast-food restaurants and real estate.

NO ONE seemed to be watching what the managers were doing, industry officials say, because the Reagan administration was so committed to deregulating the industry that it failed to provide enough money to the regulatory bank board for it to increase its examination staff.

Finally, when the drop in oil prices caused a corresponding drop in real estate values, several savings institutions suffered billions of dollars in losses.

AS THE THRIFTS went belly up, so did the 54-year-old federal deposit insurance system for S&Ls, called the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. or FSLIC. Federal deposit insurance protects depositors' money up to $100,000 per person when an institution fails.

Books aim to help students find work

Two recently published books are designed to help enterprising students obtain practical work experience before graduation.

The 1989 Internships offers detailed information on domestic and international internship opportunities. Organized geographically, the book lists 38,000 internship positions in 23 different fields.

Several directors of intern programs as well as institutions and professional organizations describe the positions available in detail, including such information as pay and benefits, training offered, availability of college credit, housing and opportunities for future full-time employment.

The volume also contains advice and articles by industry professionals in each career section, quotes from former interns, career overviews and effective interview skills.

Written in much the same style, The 1989 Summer

Employment Directory of the United States caters to high school and college students seeking short-term summer employment.

The 38th edition of the employment index features job openings from coast to coast in a wide variety of careers and settings.

Each listing includes a brief job description, the number of jobs available, names and addresses of contacts and the length of employment.

In addition to job listings, the book provides tips on writing a resume, cover letter and successful interviewing techniques as well as information for foreign students wishing to apply for summer employment in the United States.

Both books may be purchased in bookstores or ordered directly from the publisher, Writer's Digest Books, 1507 Dana Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio, 45207.

Bush understands importance of King's dream

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President-elect George Bush marked a "great and patriotic holiday" Monday by pledging commitment to the dream of Martin Luther King Jr., telling a black audience: "We must not fail him. We must not fail ourselves."

The vice president, a leader of the administration that opposed making King's birthday a national holiday, assured a prayer breakfast sponsored by the American Bicentennial Presidential Inaugural Afro-American Committee that he personally understands the need to "remember Martin Luther King's example."

Bush hailed the slain civil rights leader as "a great gift" from God — the same words used in a speech Sunday night by Jesse Jackson, one of his former Democratic rivals for the presidency.

"He lived a hero's life; he dreamed a hero's dreams," Bush said. "And he left a hero's indelible mark on the mind and imagination of a great nation. So today we remember the man; we pay tribute to his achievements."

And we pledge once more our nation's sacred honor in continuing pursuit of his dreams."

Bush said Americans must "learn Reverend King's lessons, study them well and live them for ourselves, now today and always in the future."

"What becomes of Martin Luther King's dreams is up to us," he said. "We must not fail him. We must not fail ourselves. And we must not fail the nation he loved so much and gave his life for."

"I understand that, five days before becoming president of the United States of America. This must be our mission together. It will, I promise, be my mission as president."

President Reagan, who never was enthusiastic about a holiday for King, took no part in any formal observance Monday. Bush, whose record as vice president was ambiguous on racial issues, clearly sought to embrace the event, however, telling his breakfast audience: "It is indeed a pleasure to be here, in prayer and celebration, on the occasion of this great and patriotic holiday."

Since his election Nov. 8, Bush has made a point of reaching out to the black community, including a well-publicized meeting with Jackson. He and his wife, Barbara, went to a black Baptist church in Washington Christmas Day, and Mrs. Bush has selected Anna Perez as the first black spokeswoman for a first lady.

Bush urged Americans Monday to remember the moral stain of segregation, the lives it cost and the anguish it inflicted.

Jackson honors King's birth, challenges Bush

ATLANTA (UPI) — Blacks and whites packed the Ebenezer Baptist Church Monday to hear Jesse Jackson criticize President Reagan's record and challenge George Bush to "restore social justice, civil rights and economic opportunity."

At an ecumenical service in the downtown Atlanta church where slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. was pastor with his father, religious and political leaders gathered to pray, sing and remember King on the fourth federal holiday honoring his birth.

"Each anniversary of his birth unfolds another dimension that the promise and hope of his legacy represents to us and the whole world," Jackson said, recalling that King spent his last birthday with his family, in church and organizing a poor people's march on Washington.

"Every birthday was a milestone in God's allotted time," Jackson said. "He spent it planning to fight for justice."

Jackson, a 1984 and 1988 presidential aspirant, marched with King — who would have turned 60 Sunday — during the turbulent days of the civil rights movement in the 1960s and was with him at a Memphis motel where he was assassinated on April 4, 1968.

"Dr. King was not an idealist," Jackson said. "He was a realist with high ideals and there is a difference. He was not killed for dreaming but for living it out, for disturbing the status quo. The manner in which he spent his own last birthday provides us with an itinerary of how his birthday should be commemorated."

Jackson used the occasion to criticize Reagan's civil rights record and the outgoing president's comments Sunday that some black leaders are keeping racism alive because they head up organizations whose livelihood depend on racist actions.

Jackson spared Bush from any criticism and urged the vice president to take a more sympathetic approach to civil rights than Reagan.

Black leaders persuade youth to follow dream

CHICAGO (UPI) — Black leaders worried Monday over whether young people really understand the legacy of Martin Luther King or what would have happened had he not led the civil rights movement.

Celebrations were held throughout Illinois to commemorate the slain civil rights leader's 60th birthday.

Black leaders in Kankakee, about 55 miles south of Chicago, said King would be dismayed by today's youth.

"How can we live out the dream if we are asleep ourselves?" asked Katie Spearman, director of the Key-24 youth program that aids disadvantaged youth. "Blacks need to look at themselves first. They need to ask, 'What can I do about my situation today?' It is time for us to stop reaching out, let's reach down instead."

Kankakee Alderman Ben Adams called King "a personal ray of hope and confidence for me."

"Today would be a troubled time for him," Adams said. "We need to get to the youth. Unless changes are made with our youth, it will be a sad day tomorrow."

The Rev. William Copeland of Kankakee said had it not been for King, "I think the nation would have been in a blood bath. Prior to him, this country knew of only violent ways of solving problems. He said something different."

In Chicago, 46 public school students met with Mayor Eugene Sawyer to celebrate winning the "I have a dream, a vision for 1989" essay contest.

"Dr. King would want you to be pure in spirit and pure in mind," Sawyer told the youngsters.

King kept in prayers on holiday

United Press International

Americans joined in prayer and protest Monday to keep Martin Luther King's dream of justice and brotherhood alive with holiday ceremonies commemorating the 60th birthday of the slain civil rights leader whose non-violent movement transformed the nation.

In Philadelphia, NAACP Executive Director Benjamin Hooks and Wilson Goode, the city's first black mayor, tapped the glass-enclosed Liberty Bell in a symbolic ringing ceremony at noon.

The historic, cracked bell could not be struck but another bell nearby sounded. The ringing was echoed by bells across the nation in keeping with King's theme of "Let Freedom Ring."

King would have turned 60 Sunday. His assassin, James Earl Ray, was sentenced to life in prison. Monday's federal holiday also is recognized by every state except Arizona, Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, South Dakota and New Hampshire.

In Memphis, 300 people marched 2 miles from a park to the Lorraine Motel, where King was killed by an assassin's bullet. They sang hymns and listened to speeches honoring the slain leader. The motel later became a museum.

COLA dean: Congressional pay raise necessary

By Daniel Wallenberg
Staff Writer

A proposed pay increase for members of Congress will help reduce the influence interest groups have on Congress, John Jackson, a political science professor, said.

Kim Tilley, a legislative assistant for Sen. Paul Simon, said Democratic Speaker of the House, Jim Wright, will probably not allow the bill to come up for a vote, making the increase effective after the Feb. 8 deadline. By holding the bill the increase will automatically go into effect, she said.

Currently, members of Congress earn an annual salary of $89,500. The proposal, made by the Commission on Executive, Legislative and Judicial Salaries, recommends a raise of $45,500, making the annual salary $135,000.

The commission has suggested the pay raise take effect only if Congress curb earnings from honoraria and speaking fees.

Jackson said the raise would curb outside income and that the raise is needed when the costs of living in Washington are considered.

The fees earned by members of Congress for speaking engagements are bogus, Jackson said, and the pay raise could eliminate these fees.

Wright is expected to introduce a bill banning Congress from receiving money from these fees when the pay increase becomes effective.

Jackson said the expense of maintaining two residences and the high cost of living in Washington made it necessary to seek additional income. Interest groups used the opportunity to influence Congress by offering large fees for speaking engagements.

Sen. Paul Simon said he would vote against the pay raise.

"I don't think it's justified, and I will oppose it," Simon said.

Glenn Poshard, in his first term as a U.S. Representative, will also oppose the increase, according to a staff person in Poshard's Washington office. Opposing the increase would be a symbolic move in attempting to reduce government spending and reducing the deficit.

Sen. Alan Dixon also is not in favor of the increase.

"I intend to oppose the pay increase to $135,000, which I feel is excessive," Dixon said.

Jackson said that even though Congress votes for their own raises it is not their fault.

"Ours is the only system in the world where people (in Congress) have to decide on their own pay increases," Jackson said. It is required by the Constitution.

Congress committing 'burglary on Capitol Hill'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American taxpayers are the victims in a daylight burglary in progress on Capitol Hill.

Not only are the folks they sent to Congress in on the heist, the lawmakers look like a cinch to get away with it.

The caper is a salary grab by members of the House and Senate. They are plotting to pad their pay, boosting it from $89,500 to $135,000 a year.

The inside job would trench these public servants among the privileged 1 percent who earn more than all other Americans. Top bureaucrats would share the loot.

The lame-duck Reagan administration of self-called conservatives masterminded the greedy grab, while steadfastly rebuffing even a modest boost in the $3.35-an-hour minimum wage for the most truly needy among America's working poor.

The departing president's split of the spoils is a 56 percent increase in his pension.

Plotters plan to perpetrate the burglary early on the watch of President-elect Bush, who has promised a "kinder, gentler nation."

Their argument is that more money will buy better public servants, but that old dog won't hunt.

Top federal pay grades need to be raised only to lure fat cats. There are plenty of competent candidates for the 2,700 jobs in question among the 99 percent of Americans who earn less than the proposed ceiling.

The simple strategy to carry out the burglary promises to be disgustingly successful.

Senators are to vote on the pay hikes so they can be seen by their constituents to reject them. But the House leadership of both parties intends to bottle up the bill. So, barring resurrection of the collective conscience of Congress, the raises will take effect automatically early in February.

If the raises were honestly won after fair debate in full view of the taxpayers who must pay for them, they still would fuel inflation by unleashing an avalanche of other salary increases throughout the bureaucracy.

Democrat in running for record

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One of the last of the old Southern barons, Jamie Whitten of Mississippi, is closing in on one of those congressional records that most believed never would be broken.

The venerable congressman, who was first elected a month before Pearl Harbor, is now one more election and pocket change from breaking the House longevity record of Rep. Carl Vinson of Georgia, which stands at 50 years and two months.

Seemingly in good physical health and politically solid as only an old-time Southern Democrat can be, there is every likelihood that Whitten will ask the voters of northern Mississippi to give him another round trip, or more, to the nation's capital.

Without question, Whitten, by virtue of his seniority and his chairmanship of the House Appropriations Committee, is one of the power players in Congress, although some of his feudal ways were banked by the reforms of the mid-'70s.

Now 78, Whitten, once a pious segregationist and rock-solid conservative, has become more of a mainstream Democrat, partly to prevent more attacks on him — such as the challenge to his assumption of the committee chairmanship in 1979 — and partly because Mississippi blacks are now allowed to vote.

Despite his lengthy tenure — he has out-served nine presidents and been the bone of numerous agriculture secretaries — Whitten is little known outside the Capitol and Mississippi's 1st Congressional District.

The old-time Southerners, by choice, never cottoned to national exposure and attempts to decipher his pronouncements for just one decent quotation have eluded generations of reporters. Whitten probably could not care less.

New judge takes oath in Marion

By Richard Nunez
Staff Writer

As assorted Southern Illinois attorneys, judges and city mayors were seated in the jury box and in the audience, Paul Murphy was sworn in Saturday as a judge in the 1st Judicial Circuit.

Murphy, a former city attorney of Herrin, was appointed by the Illinois Supreme Court and sworn in by Justice Horace Calvo.

Murphy accepted the appointment, effective today, at the Williamson County Courthouse in Marion.

City attorney James Bleyer, in an opening statement, recited a joke in which God sometimes has "delusions of grandeur" and pretends to be a circuit court judge. Bleyer later explained that Murphy has no delusions of grandeur and was appointed because he is a hard working, but "humble," man.

Paul Murphy

In his acceptance speech, Murphy thanked friends and family and told the various attorneys and judges in attendance that if he were to refer to the court as "my court," that someone would have the good sense to stand up and say, "Sir, this is my court, also."

Murphy will succeed Judge Robert Howerton, who was elected in November to the 5th District Appellate Court.

Murphy, 41, is a 1972 graduate of the Boston College of Law and served in the U.S. Army as an attorney with the Judge Advocate General's Corps before entering private practice in Herrin in 1976.

Jury selection starts in trial of Jackson's half brother

GREENVILLE, S.C. (UPI) — Jury selection began under unusually tight security Monday in the trial of Noah Robinson, the half brother of 1988 presidential candidate Jesse Jackson charged with hiring members of a Chicago street gang to commit murder.

Robinson, 46, a millionaire businessman, faces a possible death sentence if convicted in the January 1986 slaying of Leroy "Hambone" Barber, who was shot to death outside a downtown Greenville building owned by Robinson.

Associates of both men described them as lifelong friends, but the two apparently had a falling out about a month before the killing. Barber, a paroled armed robber, once worked at one of Robinson's fast food franchises in Chicago, and his son was Robinson's godchild.

Early court action Monday centered on preliminary legal matters and elimination of unqualified jurors from a pool of more than 100.

Robinson's attorneys, citing extensive publicity about the case, asked that the trial be moved.

Activist tapes police during his arrest

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — A black activist policeman who had his own arrest videotaped in an attempt to prove police abuse of minorities said Monday his actions were prompted by reports of officers lying in wait for blacks.

NBC News cameras recorded the incident from hidden positions.

Don Jackson, a Hawthorne police sergeant on stress-disability leave, said Monday he was suffering severe back and neck pain, numbness in his shoulder and a loss of feeling in his right hand from overly tight handcuffs from his arrest by Long Beach police Saturday night.

Police said the 30-year-old Jackson — a passenger in a car driven by prison guard Jeffrey Hill, who also is black — was belligerent, jumped out of the car and confronted Officer Mark Dickey after the car was stopped for allegedly straddling traffic lanes.

Jackson said that when he got out of the car to ask why he and the driver were being stopped, he was cursed, manhandled and beaten by Dickey, who allegedly shoved his head through a store window and then onto the hood of a squad car.

The videotape, shown Monday on NBC's "Today" program, showed Jackson up against a store window with his hands clasped behind his head. In the tape, it appeared that the officer shoved Jackson into the window, which broke and showered the sidewalk with glass shards.

It was unclear on the tape, however, whether it was Jackson's head that broke the window, as he claims, or his elbow, as police claimed. Jackson was not cut in the incident.

Prof resigns after child pornography conviction

By Richard Nunez
Staff Writer

SIU-C professor David F. Duncan has submitted a letter of resignation to University officials after being sentenced to two years in federal prison on a child pornography conviction.

University officials already have taken steps to dismiss Duncan.

Despite claims he received pornographic material in the mail by mistake, Duncan was sentenced Jan. 9 in U.S.

District Court in Benton by Judge James Foreman.

Duncan, a health education professor, was found guilty in November of receiving sexually explicit pictures of minors.

Duncan has claimed he requested materials from a mail-order firm in Canada for his research of European sexual behavior but received the illegal photographs instead.

Duncan maintained he was "entrapped" by a government task force, which sent him an advertisement in the mail. The task force was investigating child pornography.

"I responded to the ad," Duncan said. "I did not expect it to be child pornography."

Duncan said it was "a matter of minutes" after he received the illegal material when authorities arrived and searched his home. Authorities found the material in his bathroom garbage.

Duncan was indicted in April and said he was "shocked" that the case went as far as it did.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Joel Merkel recommended a six-year prison term, citing the incident involved serious exploitation of minors.

Foreman said the recommended six-year term was excessive and sentenced Duncan to two years.

Defense attorney Richard White asked that Duncan be given a grace period to settle some business and personal matters. Foreman granted White's request and gave Duncan permission to surrender voluntarily to prison officials.

Duncan said he has submitted his letter of resignation to University officials, who already are taking steps to dismiss Duncan.

Duncan has been a member of the University faculty since 1978. He received an Outstanding Faculty Member award from the College of Education in 1986 and is the Illinois vice president of the American Federation of Police, and educational program related to law enforcement.

Reagan likely to act on Libya sanctions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan is likely to act this week on a proposal to lift some sanctions against American oil companies doing business in Libya to keep Moammar Gadhafi from "getting a windfall," an administration official confirmed Monday.

The official, who asked to remain anonymous, said the easing of prohibitions on the U.S. companies would be designed to prevent them from losing assets in Gadhafi's North African nation. A delicate agreement between the Libyan leader and the companies expires Jan. 30, and he then might seize their assets.

Any Reagan action would be limited and would not apply to the comprehensive economic sanctions in trade and in other areas that have been in effect since 1986, the administration official stressed. The president recently signed an executive order renewing the restrictions for a year.

"This is to prevent Gadhafi from getting a windfall," the official said of the oil proposal. "It's not that we're getting soft on Gadhafi."

Under the plan, the corporations would be allowed to sell their lucrative holdings or to resume operations through subsidiaries or third parties. Their installations currently are operated by Libya.

Mayor expects new city manager to be appointed by middle of week

Although a decision on the selection of a new Carbondale city manager was expected by Sunday, the City Council remains behind closed doors at the Holiday Inn.

City Council members began conducting interviews for the job Jan. 13. Thirteen Carbondale residents, representing various interests in the community, sat in on the interviews.

Representing the University at the interviews were faculty member, Doc Dougherty, and Undergraduate Student Government representative, Rod Hughes.

Two in-house candidates were among the six interviewed. Interim city manager, Jeff Doherty, and director of economic development, Franklyn Moreno, applied for the position.

The council voted Oct. 20 to allow the City's department and division heads to apply for the position of city manager.

Former city manager Bill Dixon resigned in October.

Change — it's all in the mind

Ending bad habits begins by making yes, no decisions

By Barb Filjolek
Wellness Center

A new year often signals an opportunity for new beginnings, a time for a fresh start, a chance to make some changes. Yet, changing what we do, think or feel can require more persistent, consistent effort than expected.

To Your Health

It is only human to set goals and then fall back into old patterns of behavior. We don't want to be uncomfortable. Change, however, takes more than just doing what we are willing to do. Real changes involve our willingness to do what it takes.

Every change means a "yes" to something new and a "no" to some old piece of your life. For instance, if you choose to start eating more vegetables, you are probably saying no to eating more meat or desserts. If you are saying yes to more exercise, you may be saying no to time on the sofa watching television. If you say yes to buckling up each time

Change Survey

Interested in how many other students are involved in trying to make changes in their lives? Answer the following survey and the results will appear in a future column.

1. I am working on changing some of my habit. YES or NO
2. I would like to make changes in my life but can't seem to do so. YES or NO
3. The change areas I'm working on or most interested in are about:

(A) Eating and weight	(F) Relationships
(B) Exercise and getting in shape	(G) Health habits
(C) Appearance	(H) Stress and relaxation
(D) Self-esteem	(I) Other
(E) Academics and career
4. I am happy with myself the way I am. YES or NO
5. What is helping in your efforts to change areas of your life?

you get in a car, you are saying no to forgetfulness, risk-taking, or low self-evaluation. If you say yes to becoming more honest in your relationships, you say no to hiding.

When you make a decision to practice changes in your life, it is helpful to put together a program to help keep you on course. A program could include asking for help from friends, family or a professional.

Getting support from a group of people who are working on similar issues is helpful in a program of changes. Existing support groups include exercise, eating habits, assertiveness, Adult Children of Alcoholics, chemical abusers, women, and more.

A change program could include daily reading of encouraging books and daily writing in a journal on your progress. Ask yourself what you are afraid to do and how you want to handle that. Most of all, remind yourself that change is possible and that every small step will count.

Sleep disorder rate increased by alcohol

Scripps Howard News Service

The time-honored custom of enjoying an alcoholic nightcap or two just before bedtime disrupts the breathing of men who snore and could even be life-threatening, researchers at Scripps Clinic have concluded.

For up to two hours after consuming two shots of vodka, healthy but snoring test subjects doubled their usual number of sleep apneas — events in which breathing stops for at least 10 seconds.

Scientists have known for some time that inebriation contributes to sleep apnea, a disorder common in snoring men that can cause severe oxygen deprivation. Sleep disorder centers, in fact, sometimes offer their patients a stiff drink to exaggerate their sleep apnea for study purposes. The disorder is rare among women.

The researchers at Scripps Clinic, in La Jolla, Calif., were surprised at how little alcohol could disrupt the breathing of snoring test subjects and how long the effect lasted.

"We gave them what amounted to a good social drink, not enough to get them drunk," said Merrill Mitler, director of the clinic's sleep disorder center and principal study author.

"I suspect many men drink this much before going to bed. But these snorers were transformed from normal to abnormal breathers. The effect was very pronounced," Mitler said.

The finding may be significant because sleep apnea is a suspected sudden deaths that often are attributed to seizure or heart failure for lack of better explanations. Researchers studying death rates have reported that deaths among males reach their peak in the early morning hours, for reasons that aren't clear.

Mitler believes sleep apnea could indirectly cause heart attacks because lack of oxygen in the blood causes chemical changes that can increase clotting. If after a few hours a blood clot gets stuck in a coronary artery, a heart attack results. Apneas could also play a role in epileptic seizures, he added.

Theoretically, then, alcohol consumed at bedtime could be at least one contributing factor to what some call "adult sudden death syndrome" among men who snore.

"I've changed my own habits," Mitler said. "I've stopped having a glass of wine before bed, at least if it's within two hours of bed. I snore."

Study: Gum fights cavities

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Researchers at the Indiana University school of dentistry have concluded chewing gum isn't all that bad, especially after a meal.

While brushing is still considered the most appropriate task for proper dental hygiene, studies by the school showed that chewing gum after eating will reduce cavity-causing bacteria in the mouth.

"The sooner the better," said Bruce R. Schemehorn, a researcher who studied the effects of chewing gum.

The study concluded there wasn't much difference between sugarless gum and gum containing sugar because the sugar was washed away within two minutes. Still, the researchers said, sugarless gum is preferred because there is no sugar present in the first place.

For best results, gum chewing should begin within five minutes after eating and last at least 15 minutes.

Salivation, caused by the chewing, is the key.

"If you stimulate salivary flow, you neutralize the acid and repair any (immediate) damage," said Dr. George K. Stookey, director of the school's Oral Health Research Institute. "An Oreo cookie or a Twinkie can cause damage, but salivation negates it."

Colored ink a hazard when burned

Scripps Howard News Service

When crumpling newspaper to fuel a fire on the family hearth, it's a good idea to set aside any pages in which color is used, particularly if there are young children in the house.

Colored newspaper ink contains small amounts of lead. Even in very small quantities in the bloodstream the heavy metal can impair the neurological development of children and cause high blood pressure in adult males.

The lead in colored newspaper ink normally stays on the page, but it can be liberated into living room air when the page is burned to start wood fires, according to experts at the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

Group fights for pre-employment drug testing

TAYLORVILLE (UPI) — People looking for work with private businesses in this village will be asked to take a drug test if a group of concerned local citizens is successful in its war on drugs.

The organization is called FACE IT, and its founder says the group is gearing up to promote a series of drug education and awareness programs.

The programs, including pre-employment drug testing, will highlight the problems associated with drug and alcohol abuse in the Christian County seat of 12,000 residents located about 25 miles southeast of Springfield.

One part of the FACE IT program will encourage every private employer in the community to write formal policies for dealing with drug use by employees and to administer drug tests to job applicants.

"The intent of FACE IT is for all concerned citizens to become aware of the drug problem and its role in the deterioration of economic and social values," Bill Hopper, founder of FACE IT, said

Monday. "It is not the intent of FACE IT to force drug testing on anyone, but we will encourage each employer to write a drug policy appropriate to their business and to consider available and legal testing after consulting with their legal counsel."

About 50 citizens have signed onto the FACE IT governing committee, including area business, medical, education and government officials, said Hopper, who works at the First Trust Bank and Savings. The group's programs currently are being fine tuned and

March 9 has been scheduled as a community awareness day to conduct meetings and seminars on the programs.

"If we want to solve this problem, we've got to get tough with this problem and quit approaching it with this 'I hope it goes away' attitude," Hopper said. "It goes without saying this is not intended to be punitive. We're going to heavily emphasize rehabilitation programs."

A Springfield man has helped organize a group known as OPPOSE to battle the implementation of pre-employment drug screening. Tim Buccì, co-founder of the group, said OPPOSE members will meet with business and community leaders in Taylorville to discourage the drug testing program.

"On the surface, it sounds like a good thing that they're doing," Buccì said. "But when you look below the surface, there is an infringement of individual rights that haven't been tested in court concerning the right to privacy and the whole principle applied here of guilty until proven innocent."

Reagan invited to hometown for his 78th birthday party

TAMPICO (UPI) — Townspeople are planning a bang-up celebration for Ronald Reagan's birthday but Mayor Roy Siegel said Monday there is no word on whether the birthday boy plans to attend his hometown bash.

"We've invited him for his birthday Feb. 6, 6:30 p.m. at our grade school gymnasium," Siegel said. "We haven't heard yet but it's no wonder with him leaving office and all, and the inaugural and the few problems he has with Colonel (Oliver) North. We sincerely hope he can make it."

Reagan was born in this village of 990 people in northwest Illinois on Feb. 6, 1911. Villagers thought his election in 1980 would turn the town into a tourist mecca but that failed to materialize.

In fact, Reagan, who still has 22 relatives in the area, has not been back to Tampico since 1976.

"One of his boyhood friends grabbed Nancy and kissed her when they were here for the primaries," Siegel said. "Maybe that's why he hasn't come back."

"You feel a certain amount of pride when you see a car from Nebraska or California or New York drive through," Siegel said. "When I see people up around his birthplace, see them taking pictures, I go up and offer to shoot the pictures for them — and I don't even steal the camera and run away."

Daley not overconfident in polls

CHICAGO (UPI) — State's Attorney Richard M. Daley said Monday polls showing him far ahead in his race for mayor will not make him overconfident and urged attention to campaign issues other than the race.

A poll done for the Chicago Sun-Times and WLS-TV found Daley with 51 percent support, Acting Mayor Eugene Sawyer with 27 percent, Alderman Lawrence Bloom with 10 percent and Alderman Juan Soliz with 2 percent. Ten percent of those responding were undecided.

The poll also found either Daley or Sawyer leading Alderman Timothy Evans, who is running as an independent in the April 4 general election.

A poll conducted for Crain's Chicago Business showed Daley with 44.2 percent, Sawyer with 28.8 percent, Bloom 11.7 percent and Soliz 1.9 percent.

"Anyone would be pleased if you're ahead," Daley said, while polls show him with a comfortable lead over Sawyer and other Democratic primary contenders. But, he added, "You can't put all your credence in one poll."

Under questioning about racial issues, Daley said as mayor he would handle racial issues differently than his late father, Mayor Richard J. Daley.

"My dad died in 1976," Daley said. "It's 1989 now."

Daley said he has been received warmly in the black community.

"Some are not going to endorse me and I can understand that," he said. "But the feelings are not there — the harshness."

He said the campaign should concentrate on issues other than black versus white or Hispanic.

The primary is Feb. 28.

Lottery sales growing at rapid clip

CHICAGO (UPI) — Illinois Lottery sales are booming, up nearly $2 million in the second quarter of fiscal 1989, ending Dec. 31, over the preceding year, Director Sharon Sharp said Monday.

Also Monday, lottery officials boosted the grand prize for Saturday's Lotto drawing to $25 million.

Sharp said lottery sales grew $81.7 million, up 12.3 percent, in the second quarter and the total for the first two quarters of 1989 stood at $745,091,549.

"Since re-aligning our game product mix late in fiscal '88, we have experienced upward sales performance and are pleased to report that sales for all of the Lottery games are showing significant increases over last year at this time," Sharp said.

"And since the second half of the fiscal year is traditionally the strongest, we are projecting a very profitable 1989."

The increased sales mean more money is going to the Common School Fund. Sharp said as of Jan. 10, revenue transferred to the fund was up $22.2 million or 9 percent compared with last year.

Midler, Hershey clash in 'Beaches'

By Wayne Wallace
Entertainment Editor

Film Review

Bette Midler and Barbara Hershey star as lifelong friends in "Beaches," a Touchstone film directed by "Happy Days" producer Garry Marshall.

Fans of the Divine Miss M will enjoy this showcase of her immense talents, both comedic and musical. But rarely does "Beaches" succeed as more than a Midler vehicle.

The film aspires to be a comedy-drama, dealing with the turbulent friendship between two vastly different women. However, Midler's portrayal of the outrageous Broadway singer C.C. Bloom is given more attention and often overshadows the performance of co-star Hershey.

Only in the film's quieter moments does Hillary Whitney, Hershey's character, manage to equal C.C.'s dominating presence. Hillary is a rich lawyer who wages an on-going inner-struggle between her liberal values and her WASPish upbringing.

The film's most memorable vignettes occur in its more serene reflections of friendship, in which Hershey and a wonderfully subdued Midler bring warmth to their characterizations.

As roommates in the Bronx, Hillary and C.C. sing Christmas carols to each other at night before they fall to sleep. Hillary gives names to the freckles on her daughter's face.

These glimpses of comedy flowing naturally from the human spirit are sadly few and far between.

Adapted from the novel "Beaches," by Iris Rainer Dart, Mary Agnes Donoghue's screenplay seems to follow the book too literally, bringing to life too many of the book's episodes.

Keeping track of a character's various career and romantic developments throughout a novel sounds like fun reading. In film, too many plot twists and extraneous episodes only serve to clutter up the narrative flow.

For example, characters such as John, C.C.'s first husband, are reintroduced into the story for little or no reason long after they have fulfilled their purpose and (supposedly) have exited.

Midler and Hershey can barely cut their way through the schmaltz of Hillary's illness, which Donoghue and Marshall often treat like a TV Movie disease of the week.

Part of the media hype for "Beaches" has surrounded the scene-stealing performance of Mayin Bialik, who portrays C.C. as an 11-year-old. Bialik, a dead ringer for the young Bette, gives a tour de force as the wisecracking child star who hilariously proclaims to her mother after losing an audition, "Leona, you're ruining my career!"

Not surprisingly, Midler's is the best performance in the film.

Ingram's team ranked 13th in country

By Tricia Jording
Staff Writer

After two weeks of rigorous training in Boca Raton, Fla., SIU-C swimmers traveled to Ohio to compete in a dual meet against Cincinnati University.

Defeating Cincinnati 59-53 Jan. 15, the men's team, ranked 13th in the nation, won nine events, the most wins by an Ingram-coached SIU-C team. The 400 medley relay team of Scott Roberts, Mark Canterbury, Chris Gally, and Jeff Goetz won the event in 3 minutes, 27.43 seconds. Eric Bradac won the 1,000-meter freestyle in 9:29.21.

The 200 freestyle was won by Roberts in 1:40.92. Bruce Brockschmidt came in first in the 200 individual medley with a time of 1:54.18. Just behind him was Harri Garmendia with a time of 1:55.12.

Gally won the 200 butterfly with a time of 1:51.77. Garmendia came seconds later with 1:52.66. The 2.0 backstroke was won by Brockschmidt in 1:55.01 and Tim Kelly placed third with a time of 2:00.95. Bradac won the 500 freestyle in 4:37.82.

With a time of 2:05.20, Alex Yokochi won the 200 breaststroke relay. Canterbury came in with a time of 2:05.95 to place second.

"We didn't swim great, but we swam well enough," Ingram said. "Bruce Brockschmidt had two wins and two real fine times. Tim Kelly's third place in the 200 backstroke was important. Chris Gally, Scott Roberts and Harri Garmendia were solid like they have been all year."

The women's team was defeated 66-47 by Cincinnati. Tonia Mahaira, who is unbeaten in the 200 freestyle in dual meets came in first place with a time of 1:52.67. Mahaira also placed first in the 100 freestyle with a time of 53.11 seconds. Mahaira became eligible to compete at the end of the fall semester.

In the 500 freestyle, Deirdre Lien came in first place with a time of 5:19.65. Lien also had a second-place finish in the 1,000 freestyle with a time of 10:51.02. Laine Owen placed first in 3-meter diving. The score was not available, but it did qualify her for the NCAA zone diving championships.

"We swam like we had been training hard and traveling a lot," Ingram commented. "Tonia Mahaira and Melissa Steinbach (third in the 100 freestyle relay in 55.14 seconds) had good swims as did Janel Patrick (second in the 200 backstroke and 200 individual medley)."

The Salukis swam against Auburn University Jan. 3. The women opened the meet with a win in the 400 medley relay, 4:05.71. The relay team consisted of freshmen Nancy Schmidkofer, Debbie Gutierrez, Julie Hosier, and Maharia. Maharia swam in her first dual meet as a Saluki and won the 200 freestyle with the season's best time of 1:53.55. Maharia, Schmidkofer, Melissa Steinbach, and Cindy Owens teamed up to win the 400 freestyle with a time of 3:38.17. That race left SIU defeated 73-40.

SIU-C defeated Auburn 60-53. The men's team left Auburn with eight wins. Gally was a double winner in the 200 freestyle, 1:43.17, and 200 butterfly, 1:53.26.

Roberts had two individual wins in the 50 freestyle, 21.29 and 200 backstroke, 1:53.61. Bradac won the 1,000 freestyle, 9:35.86. Brockschmidt won the 200 individual medley, 1:55.01, and Goetz won the 100 freestyle, 47.02.

Jan. 7, the Salukis found themselves in Miami in a dual meet against Miami University and Illinois Benedictine. The men defeated Miami 61-52 and also defeated Illinois Benedictine 51-35. A relay including Roberts, Canterbury, Garmendia, and Goetz won with an opening time of 3:28.93.

Other Saluki wins were Gally with times of 1:42.25 in the 200 freestyle and 1:50.17 in the 200 butterfly, Roberts in the 50 freestyle, 21.15 and 200 backstroke, 1:53.87, Garmendia with a time of 1:54.81 in the 200 individual medley, and Canterbury 2:04.63 in the 200 breaststroke.

"I think this is a good solid win over Miami," said Ingram. "I'm real pleased with their effort."

Considering the intense training they had been under, they were defeated by Miami 58-55 and they defeated Illinois Benedictine 48-33.

Patrick and Owens had key wins to keep SIU in the meet almost to the final relay against Miami. Patrick won the 400 freestyle in 2:16.61 and Owens won the 200 backstroke in 2:22.35.

Valley," McSwain said. "We feel good about the position we are in."

The junior transfer said a goal of winning the conference is not too lofty.

"Right now I think we have the confidence to win the Valley," McSwain said. "But we also don't feel that we can't be beat."

"I felt our success would come later; not this early. It could become an overconfident thing, but I don't feel enough of us would do that."

Senior Kai Nurnberger said the Salukis' record has not caused any extra pressure.

"We are more relaxed, and even though we work hard it is more fun because we know we are accomplishing our goals," Nurnberger said. "What we do in practice shows up in games."

Nurnberger said any predictions regarding postseason play have to be put on hold.

Win streak reaches 9 over break

By David Gallanetti
Staff Writer

SIU-C, now 13-3 overall, compiled an 8-0 Christmas break record, including a current nine game winning streak.

The Salukis claimed wins over conference foes Wichita State and Drake to stake an early 2-0 Missouri Valley record, won the championship of the Wyoming Cowboy Shootout.

A game-by-game recap of the Salukis' break schedule follows:

SIU-C 80, Chicago State 65

Junior Freddie McSwain scored 24 points and senior Kai Nurnberger added 19 as the Salukis cruised past the Cougars. Freshman Tony Harvey pulled down nine rebounds for SIU-C.

SIU-C 97, Northern Illinois 81

McSwain led the Salukis with 27 points in an emotional thriller in Dekalb. The Salukis outscored the Huskies 41-19 in the game's final 13 minutes to erase a 72-58 deficit. Nurnberger added 23 for SIU-C.

SIU-C 72, Southwest Missouri 64

The Salukis picked up their fourth win in a row and handed the Bears only their second loss at home in 19 contests. McSwain tallied 33 for SIU-C, 21 coming in the second half. Sophomore Sterling Mahan added 17 off the bench.

SIU-C 80, Penn State 74 (OT)

The Salukis entered the championship game of the Wyoming Cowboy Shootout behind McSwain's 31 point performance. The junior, who was named to the all-tournament team, hit a 25-foot three-pointer to send the game into overtime.

SIU-C 85, Wyoming 80

Nurnberger, who finished with 27 points, carried the Salukis to the Cowboy Shootout title, hitting six free throws late in the game. The tournament win is the first for SIU-C since 1983-84 when the Salukis won their own Shootout.

SIU-C 97, Northeast Missouri 81

Nurnberger became the 20th Saluki to score 1,000 points in his career, and SIU-C won its seventh straight, the longest winning streak since 1976-77. McSwain led a balanced attack with 19 to push the Salukis to 11-3, their best start since 1973-74.

SIU-C 79, Wichita State 75

Nurnberger pumped in 21 points as the Salukis picked up their first conference win in front of 7,855 fans at the Arena. The win hands the Shockers, preseason Missouri Valley favorites, their first league defeat.

SIU-C 75, Drake 70

Randy House became the 21st Saluki to score 1,000 points in his career, while pacing SIU-C with 18 over the Bulldogs.

He's not bashful and has a lot of courage."

As a junior, Nurnberger was named to the Valley's second team all-conference, and was a first team pick at the league meeting before the current season's start.

This season, Nurnberger has struggled some, managing only a 39 percent shooting mark from the floor. The senior leads the Salukis in free throw percentage with 90.4 percent.

Among Nurnberger's accomplishments this season was the scoring of his 1,000th point on Jan. 3 against Northeast Missouri. Nurnberger is the 20th Saluki to achieve the mark, which he said adds to his personal value.

"How many people have played here over the years, and I am only one of 20 to get it," Nurnberger said. "You've got to feel good about that."

Nurnberger said he is very pleased with his SIU-C career, and considers himself very lucky.

"Not everyone can come back to a Division I program after leaving and then start two years straight," Nurnberger said.

The relatively soft-spoken Nurnberger said all the media and fans' attention he receives is nice, out has to be taken in stride.

"It's nice to get all the attention, but you have to keep everything in focus," Nurnberger said. "Wins are not going to come because of all the attention."

"People come up and say 'How many are you going to score tonight?', but you just can't say. I'm not the kind of player who can just take over a game and take people one-on-one. You just have to go out and see what happens."

Nurnberger said he will graduate in May with a business management degree, and head back to West Germany for more basketball. The senior said his career is somewhat of a question mark.

"I don't exactly know what I am going to do yet," Nurnberger said. "I may go to college in Germany and get my master's. I may look for a job in one of the American companies based in Germany."

seven straight games, and Rakers, who has averaged 10.5 points per game since break.

However, 6-4 senior center Cathy Kampwerth has joined the scoring parade after a dismal first half of the season. Kampwerth warmed up by scoring 14 points against Northern Iowa and then erupted for career-high scoring and rebounding totals against Bradley.

Kampwerth ruled the defensive boards against Bradley, pulling in 11 of her 15 rebounds on that end.

Kampwerth hit 9 of 11 shots on her way to a 23 point performance.

"I'm concentrating more on my shots and I know I'm playing with more confidence," Kampwerth said.

"It's been different for me this season. I was feeling pressure having to fill a primary starting role. But I'm finally starting to feel like it's my responsibility to play to win. I'm more comfortable."

Comfort is a condition two players are not experiencing at this juncture of their "back on track" season. Though, Deanna Sanders, 5-8 senior guard, and Grace Johnson, 5-11 freshman forward, are ill with the chicken pox. Johnson's absence is not crucial. She had played in only three games and went scoreless in each. But Sanders, the team's 3-point threat, will be missed.

Sanders had played sparingly before the Drake game, but against the Bulldogs she hit a school record 6 of 12 shots from 3-point range. Sanders, who finished with a career-high 30 points, is shooting 40.4 percent on all field goals and 44.5 percent on 3-point shots.

The following is a game by game recap of the women's break schedule:

Long Beach State 61, SIU-C 53

The Salukis held Long Beach State to an all-time low field goal percentage (.296) and its lowest point total since a loss to Auburn in last season's NCAA final four semi-finals. Amy Rakers led the team in scoring with 15 points.

SIU-C 62, Memphis State 48

Memphis State committed 23 turnovers and the Salukis had 15 steals to key the rout. Dana Fitzpatrick scored 15 points.

Illinois State 76, SIU-C 53

Illinois State took a 40-22 halftime lead and rolled from there in the Gateway Conference opener for both teams. Pam Tanner had 17 points for Illinois State.

SIU-C 83, Indiana State 62

The Salukis avenged a loss suffered here last season, even though they had to come from a 32-26 halftime deficit to do it.

SIU-C 63, Drake 45

The Salukis snapped Drake's five-game win streak.

SIU-C 56, Northern Iowa 43

The Salukis outscored Northern Iowa 37-23 in the second half. Kampwerth scored 14 points.

SIU-C 74, Bradley 63

The Salukis extended their unbeaten streak against Bradley to 13 games. Kampwerth had a career-high 23 points and 15 rebounds.

SIU-C 47, Western Illinois 37

Both teams played exceptional man-to-man defense. Western Illinois, coming off an upset victory over Eastern Illinois, held the Saluki inside game in check in the first half. Kampwerth had 17 points.

Track team has good break as Cornell happy with team

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

Men's track coach Bill Cornell's questions about how his runners would perform after their four-week layoff were answered at the Shearson Lehman Hutton Games in Jonesboro, Arkansas.

The Salukis had 14 athletes place in the top six of their respective events during Friday's games.

"Considering the exceptional field, I believe we competed well," Cornell said.

"I haven't seen any of them since late December," he said. "It's their personal responsibility to keep in shape over break."

The host school, Arkansas State, made the Salukis' first test tougher by inviting eight 1988 Olympians to compete in the invitational.

The meet consisted of NCAA events which allowed any of the invited team members to participate. The invitational events included only runners with world class times in their event.

One performance that made Cornell smile was the NCAA 200-meters, won by junior sprinter Billie King in 22.65 seconds.

"Billie looked very good for such an early point of the season," said Cornell.

Triple jumper Leonard Vance finished sixth in the invitational to Olympian Willie Banks and other world class competitors. Vance's jump of 50 feet and one quarter inch was better than his best leap last season.

Two-time Missouri Valley Conference champion Erick Pegues took second place in the invitational 400 with a time of 50.19 seconds.

The relay team of John Stinson, Kevin Steele, Donell Williams, and Pegues placed second in the invitational 4 X 400 relay.

Women's team rolling through Gateway season

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

MACOMB — After taking its jumps in the first half of the season, the women's basketball team has started dishing out its own brand of punishment with the advent of the conference schedule.

Since the holiday break began, the Salukis have won six of their last eight, including a 47-37 victory over Western Illinois Saturday.

The resurgence, keyed in part by the Salukis' greater emphasis on defensive rebounding and inside scoring, has put the team's overall record past the .500 mark for the first time this season at 7-6.

Since losing the Gateway Conference opener 76-53 to Illinois State Jan. 2 in Normal and escaping Indiana State 63-62 on a Cyd Mitchell lay-in with nine seconds remaining Jan. 4 in Terre Haute the Salukis have relied entirely on a man-to-man defense to shut down four straight opponents.

By sweeping past Drake 63-45, Northern Iowa 56-43,

Bradley 74-63 and Western Illinois, Cindy Scott's Salukis are 5-1 in the Gateway and showing hints of the form that captured conference titles in '86 and '87.

"Our defense has been very, very good," Scott said. "It can take us a long way, but we still have to be a better offensive team if we have any hopes of winning the conference."

Scott has been steadfastly dedicated to her man-to-man defense. Against Western, the Salukis had its best defensive effort of the season. "That was an incredible defensive effort on SIU's part," three-year Westernwind coach Kelly Hill said.

The Salukis played 40 minutes of man-to-man defense against Bradley. It limited the Lady Braves to four field goals in the first half and caused 12 turnovers.

"We're going into each game wanting to play better defense," said 6-2 sophomore forward Amy Rakers, who made the Seattle Times Huskie Classic all-tourney team after SIU-C blitzed Memphis State 62-48 and held then-No. 7 Long Beach State to an all-time low shooting percentage of 29.6 in a 61-53 defeat.

"Sure, it's very tiring, having to play (man-to-man) in two games in three days," Rakers said. "But we feel we can fight for the conference, so we have to go out there and do it."

The offensive burden has fallen primarily with senior guard Dana Fitzpatrick, who has scored in double figures in

Kai eyeing plans after year's end

By David Gallianetti
Staff Writer

It seems only right that senior Kai Nurnberger would finish up a dream career in the midst of a dream season.

But if fate had dealt the Salukis' program a different hand, the West German's dream might have evolved into a nightmare.

After a disappointing fall as a freshman with the Salukis and then-coach Allen Van Winkle, the Benton High School graduate returned to his native Wollenbuttel in the spring of 1985.

"I didn't get along with the coach," Nurnberger said. "I didn't like the way he handled things. When I came I thought since there were so many seniors I could learn from them and step in somewhere."

"As the season progressed, I felt he never gave me much of a chance."

But when Nurnberger received word from his Benton family that Van Winkle had left and Rich Herrin was going to be the Salukis' head coach, the dream took on a new meaning.

"He (Herrin) told me if I wanted to come back I would have to pay my own way the first year, and that is what I did," Nurnberger said. "He said if I helped the team I would get my scholarship back."

"I guess he thought I earned it," said the senior with a smile.

After sitting out the 1985-86 season to regain his eligibility, Nurnberger proceeded to start the next two seasons.

Nurnberger came to the United States in 1983 as part of a Rotary foreign exchange program. The West German played one year at Benton under Herrin before enrolling at SIU-C.

"They were the only Division I school that offered me anything, and I wanted to play Division I," Nurnberger said. "It was a dream to come over and experience what it was like."

Herrin said he admires Nurnberger's desire to fulfill his desire to come to America.

"When he first came here someone asked his why and he said to play basketball," Herrin said. "I really believe that. He has not only been a good scorer but a good leader."

National volleyball post lures Hunter

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

Debbie Hunter will retire her coaching whistle in exchange for a desk and a telephone when she becomes an administrator with the United States National Volleyball program later this month.

Hunter will officially retire as SIU-C's head volleyball coach Jan. 31 to assume the new position as a director of educational programs and services for USA Volleyball, the national governing body for the sport.

"I have a natural affinity for the national scope of volleyball," Hunter said. "I'm enthused and energized about my new job."

Hunter, who has a 14-year career record at SIU-C of 294 wins, 233 losses and nine ties, will be responsible for starting a certification program for the development of volleyball coaches throughout the United States.

"My assignment is to present a progressive structure format in which coaches at all levels and all parts of the country receive the most recent information available on volleyball," said Hunter, who will base her operations at either the U.S. Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, Colo. or the national team training site in San Diego, Calif.

Hunter has led the Salukis to nine 20-plus win campaigns and six appearances in the Gateway Conference post-season tournament.

"I'm grateful for the professional opportunities I've had at SIU," the 37-year-old Hunter said. "I'm leaving behind a number of people who have meant so much to me throughout the years."

Included in that list of people are Sonya Locke, a 1981 All-American and fifth year assistant coach who has already applied for Hunter's vacancy, and Charlotte West, associate athletics director who hired Hunter in 1975.

Picked to finish seventh in the Missouri Valley Conference by league coaches, the Salukis' 13-3 start has raised more than a few eyebrows.

As a result, conference coaches are beginning to pay their respects to the Valley's biggest surprise, whose 2-0 Valley mark leads the league.

"At the Valley press conference I said this would be the year SIU was ready to compete in the league's upper division," said Illinois State coach Bob Donewald. "This is the best team they have had since I've been at Illinois State (10 years)."

Donewald said a combination of factors has led to the Salukis' early success.

"As I evaluated them last year I felt in the final analysis they were a more cohesive unit," Donewald said. "Their experience is starting to pay dividends, and they have young, good players who continue to get better."

Wichita State coach Eddie Fogler said the Saluki bench depth is an important part of their success.

"They're very deep," Fogler said. "(Tony) Harvey is a much better shot blocker than (last season's center Tim) Richardson, and (Sterling) Mahan is awfully athletically talented."

"(Freddie) McSwain gives them better chemistry than (Steve) Middleton in that he does not dominate the ball. I know what he can do."

Drake coach Tom Abatemarco said the Salukis are more than capable of a Valley championship.

"Right now they are the best team in the league," said Abatemarco after his Bulldogs fell 75-70 at the Arena. "I thought we did everything we needed to do to beat them."

"You've got to get back on defense and rebound. At times, we let some of those things get away."

But despite all the attention, centered mostly on the Salukis' nine game win streak, coach Rich Herrin said he doesn't feel his team is under that much pressure.

"I don't feel the streak has put any extra pressure on us," Herrin said. "This team wants to win. We've just got to work for consistency. I don't think we have any major strong points or weaknesses, we're just a good basketball team."

McSwain said the players are very pleased with their success, and are more than happy to prove the Valley coaches wrong.

"We were very disappointed with that and wanted to prove we were a better team than where we were picked in the
