Locai senator's vote causes income tax increase to pass

By John Walblay Staff Writer

The two-year, 20 percent income tax increase passed Monday by Gov. James R. Thompson came to the governor's desk with the help of a swing vote cast by Sen. Ralph Dunn, R-Du Quoin.

Dunn, the only Republican to vote for the proposal, said he had made it clear throughout the week that he wanted to see the proposal pass in the Senate.

'There were half of a dozen others in my position with universities in their area who wanted to see it pass, but didn't want to put their vote on it," Dunn said.

Dunn said Thompson, who had criticized the previous Madigan-Rock plan, didn't show any ill feelings towards Dunn's vote.

the income tax increase was "not the best," but it served its purpose for schools, including purpose for schools, measured SIU-C, and local governments.

He also said the expanded property tax break for homeowners made the bill more acceptable to some legislators who opposed the plan.

"It helps and it's a step in the right direction," Dunn said. "Hopefully, we'll get some more (breaks) down the road."

The bill signed by Thompson raises the state income tax from 2.5 percent to 3.0 percent. Corporate tax would go from 4 percent to 4.8 percent. Tax revenue from the first year would amount to $783 million and $903 million the second and $903 million the second

Opinion & Commentary

Moral decisions not government's place

CAPITOL HILL was the platform for abortion activists Monday as the Supreme Ccurt handed down its long-awaited ruling on the constitutionality of the restrictive provisions of Missouri's anti-abortion law.

In the case, Webster vs. Reproductive Health Services the court ruled 5-4 that states may pass laws that would require, in some circumstances, that doctors make a determination of viability of a fetus before performing an abortion. Viability refers to the ability of a fetus to function outside the mother's uterus. States can also ban the use of public employees and facilities for the performance of abortions

The 1973 Roe vs. Wade ruling made abortion legal in all states. Monday's decision, in essence, moves the responsibility from the federal to state level for battle.

FOR THE ACTIVISTS on the steps of the Supreme

FOR THE ACTIVISTS on the steps of the Supreme Court, the decision was seen as a pro-life victory. Randall Terry, head of anti-abortion Operation Rescue said: "The writing is on the wall. Roe is going to go down—there's no question about it."

Molly Yard, head of the National Organization for Women, saw the ruling in the same light. "It's a black day for women's rights to control their lives."

for women's rights to control their lives

Justice Harry Blackmun, author of the 1973 Roe ruling, one of the four in minority, wrote a harsh dissent warning that millions of American women could suffer if the court continues its "very ominous" move toward restricting abortion rights.

AS THE POLITICAL warfare moves to the Illinois Legislature, Sen. Ralph Dunn, R-Du Quoin, predicts that a bill requiring doctors to examine the pregnant woman before an abortion is performed to determine its viability be brought before the illinois General Assembly during the next legislative session.

Dunn also predicts that the bill would pass.

The state's new ability to ban the use of public employees and facilities for the performance of abortions should be examined carefully.

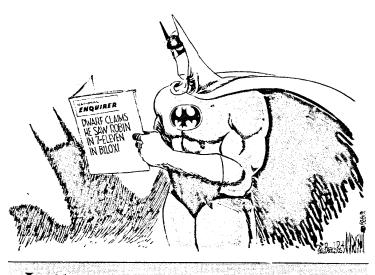

While we object to publicly funded abortions when the health of the mother is not threatened, we feel that public hospitals should equip themselves with the technology to perform abortions should the health of a pregnant woman. perform abortions should the health of a pregnant woman require it.

AS LONG AS abortions are legal, government should refrain from restricting privately funded abortion services in all phases from pre to post counseling.

We feel that all abortion counseling, public or private, should be protected. The withholding of information violates the First Amendment right to free speech and protects no one.

A woman's right to make a personal, moral decision regarding her pregnancy should remain her right, but should not be funded by taxpayers who find it morally

American views of rights, hypocritical

the Supreme Court's ruling on the Supreme Court's ruling on the issue of flag burning, I felt compelled to express a few of my views on the subject. I want to say right up front that I wholeheartedly, or should I say "wholemindedly," support Mr. Johnson's right to burn the flag as a form of political that many realize I realize that many Americans, perhaps even most Americans, think otherwise. They feel that the flag is a symbol of the ideals of this country, like freedom, democracy, etc., and that Mr. Johnson should be punished for desecrating that symbol. I would like to brilly address these onings.

The most basic reason why The most basic reason why people should be allowed to destroy a flag of their own property, as a form of political protest, is because the First Amendment of the Constitution protects that right. I can understand how the burning of the flag can offend many people, but that is not the issue here. The issue is: Does everyone have the right to freely and openly express their opinion, however untheir opinion, however un-popular, without fear of punishment? If one is going to be true to the Constitution, the nswer is, of course yes.

Not so long ago we were all so appalled with the Ayatollah Khomeini calling for the death of Salman Rushdie for his supposed sacreligious account the Islamic religion in his book "The Satanic Verses. We argued that Rushdie had fundamental human right of freedom of expression. How is this issue different? If we do not want to be hypocritical, we must allow for this type of expression, even the destruction of that symbol, must be protected by that Constitution. To allow this is to respect the ideals that the flag represents.

Another reason why I think it is absurd to establish a law to protect a symbol like the flag from desecration, is that the flag has meant different things flag has meant different things to different people. For many people inside the United States as well as abroad the flag, in many respects, has become an empty symbol. It makes very little difference what a symbol is "supposed" to represent. But it makes all the difference in the world what kind of ac tions are associated with that symbol.
Symbols have power

because people a sociate them with past and present actions, not with some ideal to which only lip service has been paid. I do not doubt for a minute that I do not doubt for a minute that the flag is a very powerful positive symbol for many people, nor do I doubt that many people have made great sacrifices in the name of that symbol. But it must be un-derstood that for many other neonle the flag stirs un very people the flag stirs up very negative emotions.

The flag will mean what it means to people regardless of what it was intended to mean. What we need to do as a nation is to examine why the flag has is to examine why the flag has become a negative symbol to so many people and make the greatest effort to live up to and promote those ideals that it ought to represent. The flag can only be a symbol of freedom and democracy if, and only if, the United States is an active model of freedom an active model of freedom and democracy.

So, I say let people burn the So, I say let people burn the flag if they like, for they are burning their own symbol not yours. What I ask is that you take a basic step toward living up to that symbol by allowing this type of protest.— Matthew T. Sronkoski, graduate student is philesolike.

By Theresa Livingston and Curtis Winston Staff Writers

The Men They Couldn't Hang, "Silver Town" (RCA Records)

At first glance, this five member group looks like a cross between The Clash and The Pogues, and that initial assumption isn't too far off base. The group has the base. The group has the leather jacket and defiant look down pat, but the underlying music is positively steeped in traditional Irish themes and melodies.

Traditional Celtic struments are used to augment the basic guitar and drum sound, while lyrically the voices blend into strong armonies usually found in the likes of "Danny Boy."

Songs such as "Rosettes" and "Homefires" are a and "Homefires" are a reminder of the country's centuries-long history of religious and political turmoil as they once again raise the ancient, tattered flag of rebellion. Featuring lyrics such as "We declared a war, and fought a draw-all for the glory of the rose," this band seems ready to march out to seems ready to march out to meet the English face on.

Like their compatriots The Pogues, the group also has almost a country and western flavor at times, but not to the point of distraction. Songs about lives of hardship and backbreaking work set among bleak landscapes also are present, while "Blackfriar's bleak tanuscapes the present, while "Blackfriar's Bridge" represents a sort of introspective cultural overview from a narrator observing from the bridge. Strangely enough, in the midst of all this Celtic angst is a tribute to Frances Farmer, the late radical American the late radical American actress who some say was wrongly institutionalized in the late 1930s. Although musically fitting, the subject matter does seem to stray from the premise of the album.

Although the subject matter is a bit cliched and overblown at times, this spirited celtpunk offering shows promise. (TL)

The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, "Will the Circle be Unbroken, Volume II," (Universal Volume Records)

The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band was getting ready to record a song with John Denver when a studio musician asked, "This is practice right?"

Denver replied: "It's all practice," just before he sang what would be the final version of "And So It Goes (With Everything But Love)," which is a single from the latest Dirt Band project, "Will the Circle Be Unbroken, Volume II."

The album is a follow up to the 1971 three-disc opus that serves as an effective aural history of bluegrass and country music. On chat album the Dirt Band, a bunch of longhairs from Colorado, was joined with such bluegrass and country stalwarts as Mother Maybella Carter Dec Watson country stalwarts as Mother Maybelle Carter, Doc Watson and Lester Flatt and Earl

That 1971 session, while having the spontaneous atmosphere evident in the recent recording of the Denver's song, was wrought with dif-ficulties of two musical generations getting together. The sessions were mostly the older boys showing the younger boys how to play. But since recording "Circle I," the Dirt Band has gained the respect of the country music establishment, and its artists have wanted to help the band do a second volume. The band do a second volume. The end result is a star-studded lineup which includes such artists as Roy Acuff, Johnny Cash and the Carter Family Singers, New Grass Revival, Emmylou Harris and Ricky

Volume II follows pretty much the same formula as Volume I — lots of energetic instrumentals and lots of singing the somber, traditional formula.

But Volume II covers a of lot new ground with new songs about old ways. It also digs into the roots of rock and folk Roger McGuinn and Chris Hillman of the Byrds do an inspired performance of Bob Dylan's "You Ain't Going Nowhere."

The Band's Levon Helm sings on one of albums strongest cuts, the heart-tugging "When I Get My Rewards."

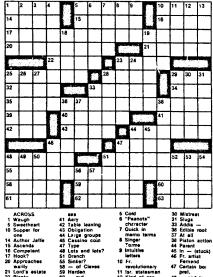

The whole album, digitally recorded but still using traditional acoustic instrumentation, is strong from star to finish. But the different factions of the music-loving community will have problems with it.

Country music fans will have no problems until they hear the no problems until they hear the Byrds talking about Bob Dylan's motorcycle accident.

Rock and tolk fans who will buy the album to hear the Byrds could have some problems initially, but if they listen to the songs, they'll understand.

The purpose of the "Circle" projects is to bring different worlds together. "Circle I" brought togetner different generations. "Circle II" goes one better by bringing together different worlds. (CW)

Evert takes easy route to quarterfinals

WIMBLEDON. (UPI) — Chris Evert has made it to the Wimbledon quar-terfinals without even trying, the 34-year-old veteran said Monday after winning easily

The No.4 seed, eager to claim her fourth title in perhaps her final appearance at the All-England Tennis Club, easily bested another American, Patty Fendick, 6-2, 6-2. Her fourth-round victory set up a contest against unseeded Laura Golarsa of Italy, the upset winner over 10th-seeded

Czechoskiovak Jana Novatna. "I haven't really played my best tennis yet, but I haven't needed to," said Evert, who has beaten a host of unseeded players. "I think the first week I just let them lose the matches I just let them lose the maximum and really didn't win any," said Evert, who notched straight-sets wins over compatriots Peanut Louis straight-sets wins over compatriots Peanut Louie-Harper, Hu Na, and Britain's Anne Hobbs.

"Today I was focusing on how I was playing instead of how my opponent was playing.
"I played a little bit better and I think I can play better than I have been," continued than I have been," continued Evert, who had only two grass court matches the week before at Eastbourne before pulling with a mysterious ear problem

Evert benefitted from the sub-par play of Fendick, who was returning from a shoulder injury suffered in March.

Evert took the opening set by reeling off the final four games. Fendick helped, dropping her serve twice, and double-faulted the sixth and eight games away.

"Patty is the kind of person that just wants to get to the net and her strenghth is-volleying," added Evert, who ran her career record to 3-0 against Fendick, ranked No. 22

"When I had her at me baseline," said Evert, "I felt like I could win every point because I felt her forehand would break down even-tually."

Chang loses at Wimbledon

French Open champ says he's thinking about the 'next time'

WIMBLEDON (SHNS) — im Mayotte snuffed out Tim Mayotte snurred out Michael Chang's winning flame Monday, but not the burning desire of the California teen to really set the tennis world on fire.

"As far as my tennis is, I want to win everything," said Chang after losing 6-3, 6-1, 6-3 in Wimbledon's fourth round.

"I want to be number one, I want to be the best and that simply says it.

Last month, Chang, 17, turned the established tennis order to ashes by winning the French Open at the expense of world No. 1 Ivan Lendl and reigning Wimbledon champion Stefan Edberg to become the youngest man to win a grand slam single crown.

LAST WEEK, the Placentia, Calif. teen turned his sights on sacred Wimbledon and while coming up short, it remains high on his future want list. "Hopefully, not a tournament will elude me and if it does, I will ende me and it it does, i don't know what I would do," said Chang, ninth seed here. The standard bearers of the game didn't know what to do after Chang's French Open win.

"If Michael Chang wins this tournament, I'll drop my pants in Center Court," announced three-time Wimbledon champ John McEnroe.

Well, McEnroe breathed a loud sigh of relief Monday, but the loss did nothing to diminish what Chang had already accomplished.

"YOU CAN'T TAKE the luster off the French Open trophy, that speaks for itself," said eighth-seeded Mayotte, a Wimbledon quarterfinalist for the sixth time the sixth time statement about Chang's au-around playing abilities.

Andre Agassi, 19, who was expected to be the next great American star, chooses to play on Paris clay but not chance his game on Wimbledon grass.

"This is a good result for "This is a good result for me," said Chang, who lost in the second round last year. "The first goal of mine when I play a tournament is to get past where I got last year. I think it's quite good, reaching the round of 16."

WHAT MAYOTTE'S lop-sided victory highlighted was Chang's obvious physical limitations. At 6-3, Mayotte has the perfect body type to play grass-court serve and volley. Chang is listed at a generous 5-8 and 135, less than ideal to play an aggressive net rushing game. Instead, Chang is the prototype baseline counterpuncher.

with Mayotte constantly boring in on the net, Chang lasted one hour and 42 minutes and never had time to set up and never had time to set up his wide variety of passing shots and lob winners.

"Today it seemed that most of my passing shots were just missing. I was always laie," lamented Chang.

Mayotte was at the net whenever Chang looked up. He was there behind his own serves. Chang was able to break serve just once, in the fourth game, with the help of Mayotte's seccad double fault coming on break point. Otherwise, Mayotte's serve was impenetrable. Over his last 10 service games, Mayotte lost a mere 13 points and fought off just two break

WHEN CHANG SERVED, it seemed that the advantage went to Mayotte. Anytime Chang missed a first serve, and he was off for most of the match, Mayotte jumped all over the second and returned it th punishing shots.
'With that second serve it sits up quite a bit," said Mayotte, who broke serve seven times. "It gave me a real chance to whack the ball real chance to whatch the ban and start him at a defensive position in the rally. There are not many people who can win from the backcourt when they are hitting the first ground-strokes on the run."

Mayotte was all too aware of Chang's fighting spirit.

"When a guy is playing that kind of tennis, winning from impossible situations, you don't want him to have the chance to come up and breat:e," said Mayotte, 28.

CHANG WENT AWAY thinking next time, about adding offensive weapons, about strengthening his serve, about rounding out his game.
"I'm now at a stage where I need to improve the other parts of my game to keep my opponent always guessing so he dosen't have a straight strategy," said Chang.

"I don't care who you put me against, I don't like to lose. You could say in a way I'm sort of a perfectionist."

Harrisburg pitching star undecided about college

Bryan Bebout, Harrisburg High School pitching standout, will have to wait another week before making his college decision his father, Charles Bebout, said Monday.

Bebout, who led the Bulldogs to the class AA state championship and finished the year with a 13-0 record, has been heavily recruited by SIU-C and the University of Illinois.

"I am lucky to have a son that values my opinion," Charles said. "He did not want to make a decision like this meeting. I am fortunate that Bryan has confidence in me and I think he is really something else."

Bebout said his occupation as a truck driver kept him on the road until after midnight Friday and that the family would probably meet with SIU-C baseball Coach Itchy Jones and staff this Saturday.

"We talked to Coach Jone concerning a date to reschedule the meeting at our home," said Bebout. "Coach Jones is going to call up my wife on Wednesday to set up a time and make it so I can be present as well."

Bebout gave no indication on which school his son was leaning toward, but he did say there is no chance of the talented pitcher signing with another school before meeting with Jones.

"I wouldn't dare say (which school) right now," said Bebout. "I know he is taking a long, hard look at everything.

We aren't just looking at sports right now, but academics as well. Education is something that can't be taken away from you once you get it."

Bebout said he believes that SIU-C, Illinois, or any of the other schools that have contacted his son are very good wise. academic

NCAA probing Illini recruiting

Basketball subject of new inquiry

CHAMPAIGN (UPI) - The University of Illinois announced Monday the National Collegiate Athletic Association plans to begin a preliminary investigation into the school's basketball program. Chancellor Morton Weir said the NCAA inquiry will focus on the recruitment of one current student athlete. The name of the athlete was not disclosed

The university on July 1 finished a probationary period for recruiting violations in the football program while Mike White was head football coach That probation, however, has not yet been officially lifted by the NCAA.

Rose: 'Janszen used my name to place bets'

CINCINNATI (UPI) - Pete Rose says one of the chief accusers regarding allegations he gambled on baseball was acting on his own and used Rose's name to place bets.

"(Paul) Janszen used my name to make his bets," the Cincinnati manager told The Dayton Daily News during the weekend "He introduced himself to bookmakers and said he was betting for me. That's not true.'

Janszen, a former bodybuilding friend, told baseball special investigator John Dowd that he placed bets for Rose with bookmakers, including bets on baseball and
