'Project Cause' Trainees Hear Sociologist Tonight

95 at SIU in Program to Aid Jobless

An internationally known sociologist who will be a visiting professor at SIU this fall will speak on campus tonight on "The Image of Poverty."

He is Hugh D. Duncan, currently on the faculty at Illinois Institute of Technology in Chicago. His speech, which is open to the public, will be at 7 p.m. in Davis Auditorium in the Wham Education Building.

Duncan's speech primarily is aimed at the 95 young men and women from 14 states who are enrolled in a special training program here which is designed to help them be of assistance to the nation's unemployed youth.

Named "Project Cause," the training program was initiated under contract with the Mercury Hits 105;

Record for August

Carbondale hit three figures on its thermometers Monday.

Officially, the temperature stood at 105 degrees for about an hour before 3 p.m. This official thermometer is located at the city sewage disposal plant and is the one used for U.S. Weather Bureau purposes.

The SIU Climatology Laboratory recorded maximum temperatures of 96 degrees Saturday and Sunday. According to its records, the August record at this station was 99.7 degrees set in 1936.

Previously the Climatology Laboratory had recorded June records of 106 degrees on June 19, 1936, and June 29, 1931. Its records go back to 1910.

The Southern Illinois Airport was also carrying 105 degrees as its maximum Monday afternoon.

According to the U.S. Weather Bureau at Cairo the high temperatures are being caused by a large high pressure area over the Mississippi Delta.

A meteorologist at the Cairo office said hot and humid air from the Gulf of Mexico circulates around the high and comes into the Midwest.

On the way it swings through the Plains states where it really gets heated up, he said. To make matters worse—or hotter—the humidity has been close to 100 per cent.

There appears to be little relief in sight, for the five-day forecast calls for temperatures two to six degrees above the seasonal normals.

The Cairo Weather Bureau office said that means the high temperatures each day will be close to 100 degrees.

However, there is some chance of temporary relief from scattered showers, especially toward the end of the five-day period.

Bureau of Employment Security, U.S. Department of Labor. Similar projects are under way at other selected colleges and universities.

The SIU trainees are among an estimated 2,000 chosen nationwide for specialized training as counselor aids and youth advisers under terms of the U.S. Manpower Development and Training Act.

After completion of the eight-week training program, they will be recommended for posts in state employment offices, particularly in areas of high unemployment among young people.

Robert E. Lee, a member of the SIU Rehabilitation Institute faculty, is on leave from his regular duties to supervise the program.

Duncan, who has taught at Rice University, the University of Chicago and Northwestern University, is the author of two books: "Language and Literature in Society" and "Communications and Social Order." He will have three more published by the end of this year.

He also contributed many articles to journals and books. His article, "The Sociology of Literature," will appear in the International Encyclopedia of the Social Sciences.

Duncan was born in Scotland and is a naturalized citizen of the U.S. He is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa society and received $5,000 Graham Foundation Fellowship for Advanced Studies in the Fine Arts for 1962.

11 Seniors to Get AF Commissions

Eleven graduating seniors are candidates for appointment as second lieutenants in the U.S. Air Force Reserve at SIU's summer commencement exercises here Friday.

Reserve officer appointments are made on completion of advanced training through the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps, which has a 3,000-member wing on the SIU campus. After appointment, the men receive active duty assignments.

Candidates for appointment include:

Ronald L. Baker, Richard E. Brodtkorb, Paul G. Heller, Neil J. Buttimer and Jeffrey L. Casleton;

Also, John W. Cotton, Harry E. Beadle, Edward D. Huber, William O. Ziegler, Rolfe T. Cooper and Timothy C. Kraft.

Average Pay Of Faculty Is $8,909

The average salary for full-time faculty at SIU during the 1963-64 academic year was $8,909, according to the Summer Bulletin of the American Association of University Professors.

At SIU there is no difference between average salary and actual compensation. But at others the difference is noticeable. It accounts for the size of fringe benefits.

These benefits include insurance, pension plans, furnished housing and others.

The University of Illinois has an average full-time faculty salary of $9,663, and their average compensation is $9,930.

Illinois State University at Normal is fairly equal to SIU in salary and compensation figures.

Its average full-time faculty salary for 1963-64 was $8,950, and average compensation $8,950.

The number of full-time faculty members, 792, at SIU during the 1963-64 year was considerably low compared to the University of Illinois, which had 2,420 full-time members.

However, SIU was high when compared to other state schools in Illinois.

Statistics on the number of full-time faculty members at other schools are: Eastern Illinois University, 242; Illinois State University at Normal, 367; Northern Illinois University, 445; and Western Illinois University, 197.

The number of full-time faculty members does not include administrative officers, librarians, athletic coaches, and those whose functions are not primarily academic instruction.

Universities throughout the United States vary considerably. (Continued on Page 7)

For Faster Mailing

New Procedure Announced In Forwarding of Transcripts

For some summer students at SIU, their academic work will mean higher pay in the fall.

But the extended summer term may complicate forwarding of the transcripts on which higher pay may be based at their places of employment, according to R.A. McGrath, registrar.

He has suggested a procedure in requesting their transcripts to be forwarded.

One point involved is whether the student is in the eight-week session or in the full session ending Aug. 28. Students preparing a transcript request form are asked to indicate whether they are in the eight or 12-week session.

"This request is made because it is impossible for the Registrar's Office to check all student records to see what their course situation is before preparing the transcript, and the office does not want either to delay the sending of transcripts or to send them prior to completion of summer work," McGrath said.

His office is notifying Illinois school superintendents and principals of the later-ending date of the full summer quarter, McGrath said.

These schools are being notified that transcripts of students enrolled in the 11-week summer quarter will not be sent until September, but every effort will be made to have them mailed by Sept. 15, McGrath said.

"This should be early enough to meet the first pay period requirement for pay increases. Students who are teaching in other states will have to inform their schools of the late-ending date themselves," he added.

McGrath said the transcript requests can be processed efficiently if the students observe the above procedures.

Are Today's Students Serious?

In the Roaring Twenties, American college students gained an international image as playboys and girls. But through the hungry Thirties, troubled Forties and finally into the serious Fifties, the picture changed.

And until recently almost everyone was saying that American college students were far more serious about their education than the generations that went before.

Comes now a college president—Francis J. Mullin of Shriver College, Mount Carroll, Ill.—who said recently in public that as many students go to college today to "have fun" as did in the Roaring 20s.

Mullin said overcrowding at universities is not caused by lack of space and staff alone but also by enrollment of students who shouldn't be in a university—namely the playboys and girls.

Such frankness is a rare departure and certain to cause college administrators across the land to start choosing up sides. And while Mullin's views may be valid, certain SIU officials have picked their side: They disagree.

Joseph Zaleski, assistant dean in the Office of Student Affairs, says that "today as compared to a few decades ago students are more serious."

A few students come to school specifically to have a good time, Zaleski added, "but these are students who are merely prolonging the good time they had in high school."

Zaleski, a dean who handles many students who have let their good times get them in trouble, couldn't imagine a boy or girl working hard to earn and save money throughout high school and then going to college expressly to have a good time.

CLOTHING WORKSHOP - Students in a special clothing and textiles workshop watch a demonstration by Miss Lucille Mayfield, educational supervisor for the Singer Sewing Machine Co.

MELBA CLENDENIN OPERATES A WEAR TESTING MACHINE AS PART OF THE WORKSHOP TRAINING.

'Gimmicks' Used in Clothing Workshop Include Field Trips, Lectures and Audio-Visual Aids

Field trips to nearby garment companies, lectures by specialists and the use of audio-visual aids are just a few of the "gimmicks" employed by Rose Padgett, chairman of the Clothing and Textiles Department, in her summer workshop.

According to Miss Padgett, the purpose of the class, Clothing and Textiles 528, is to put emphasis on the physical properties of the currently marketed fibers and fabrication and to interpret them for design and clothing.

Field trips have taken the students to the Good Luck Glove Co. and the SIU Laundry where they saw up-to-date dry-cleaning methods.

Some of the specialists who have lectured to the class include Mrs. Hattie Vaught of Carbondale, who discussed millinery. Lucille Mayfield, educational supervisor of the Singer Sewing Machine Co. lectured on "Getting the Most Out of Your Machine" and demonstrated the latest models of sewing machines.

A blank spool of video tape was sent to Ohio State University where a home economist, Esther Meachan, taped a telelesson on "Fabric to Fashion" for closed circuit viewing.

This is the first summer for the workshop. The class is composed of 13 teachers and graduate students who are attending the four-week session which concludes Aug. 7.

Edwardsville Urges Early Registration

Students planning to attend classes at SIU's Edwardsville Campus this fall were advised to register early if they expect to be able to pick and choose their courses.

John H. Schnabel, Edwardsville Campus registrar, said that only those students who take advantage of preregistration periods would have much selection of classes. He added that preregistration for the fall term is already running about double what it was a year ago.

Students who have been accepted for admission to the university may register Monday through Friday between Aug. 3-21 at the registrar's office on the Edwardsville Campus site, or in the SIU centers in Alton and East St. Louis.

Evening students may register Monday through Friday between Aug. 10-21 from 5 to 7 p.m. It is expected that many classes will be closed by Sept. 23, the opening date of the fall quarter.

Applications for admission to the University may be obtained by writing the SIU Admissions Office, Edwardsville. Generally, Illinois students accepted for admission must have placed in the upper two-thirds of their high school graduating class and out-of-state students in the upper 40 per cent.

News Workshop to Discuss Paper's Role in Community

The small-town newspaper and the newspaper's role in community service will be discussed today at the Newspaper in the Classroom Workshop.

The morning session will open with a discussion of the day's news by Charles C. Clayton, professor of journalism. He will be followed by Robert W. Wright, editor of the editorial page of the Commercial News, Danville, Ill. Wright will discuss the "Newspaper in Community Service."

A panel discussion of the small-town newspaper will lead off the afternoon session.

Members of the panel will be Paul Cousley, publisher of the Alton Evening Telegraph, and Howe V. Morgan, publisher of the Sparta News-Plainedealer.

Willis Moore, chairman of the Department of Philosophy, will speak at a dinner for the participants of the workshop at 7 p.m. in the University Center's River Room area.

Monday's program included a discussion of the wire services by Peter Seymour of the Associated Press' Centralia bureau, and Bruce Bakke of the United Press International's Springfield Bureau.

Mrs. C. R. Burt, fifth grade teacher of McKinley School in Alton, discussed "How I Use the Newspaper in the Classroom" Monday afternoon.

The workshop will wind up Wednesday with a discussion of advertising by Ben Madgowitz, advertising manager of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Some 40 elementary and high school teachers are enrolled in the 10-day workshop on how to use the newspaper as a teaching aid.

Dogs Have Their Day In U.S. History Class

Monday was a dog day all around in Room 107 in Old Main.

Hot and humid, the weatherman said. It was indeed.

The door to 107 was open to pick up any breeze that might be forthcoming. Prof. Harold E. Briggs was discussing the role of the pack peddler and early merchant in frontier America, in his course in History of the Trans-Mississippi West.

In-walked a little black dog. She walked between desks in search of a welcoming pat from a student. She sought in vain; a few gave her a cursory inspection for ticks.

After circling the room several times, she paused next to a vacant chair in the back row. This dog was not only visiting; she was looking for something. In the absence of a fire plug or tree, she availed herself of the floor.

She then headed slowly out

Teachers Making Sentence Analysis

Twenty teachers of high school English are spending the summer taking apart sentences that sound right when they are spoken but make little sense when written.

Enrolled in a SIU workshop at East St. Louis, the teachers are analyzing patterns of conversation that get in students' way when they try to write.

According to Gordon R. Wood, SIU English professor in charge of the workshop, this is the first formal study of its kind to determine how cultivated conversation differs from cultivated writing. It is designed, he said, to enable teachers to make an understanding of syntax easier for their own students.

A Princeton University Ph.D., Wood is a member of the advisory board of American Speech and an officer of the American Dialect Society.

Helping him with the workshop is W. Bryce Van Syoc, SIU professor who headed the material preparation team of the University of Michigan's Southeast Asian regional English project from 1959 to 1963.

2 Workshops Set At Mount Carmel

The Division of University Extension has announced the beginning of two workshops to be offered at the Wabash Valley College, Mount Carmel, Ill.

Elementary Education 437, Problems in Reading, will be offered from Aug. 10 through Aug. 25. Meetings will be held in the mornings only. There will be no Saturday meetings.

A workshop dealing with the "new math", Elementary Education 415, Improvement of Instruction in Arithmetic in the Elementary School, will be offered from Aug. 17 through Aug. 29. Meetings will be in mornings only.

Prerequisite for both courses is the consent of the instructor. Registration will be conducted at the first meeting of the class. No one will be permitted to register after the first day according to Raymond H. Dey, director of the Division of University Extension.

Advance registration blanks may be obtained now by contacting the Division of University Extension.

the door, with only one witness to her performance.

She left, but a replacement soon arrived. This about four times the size of the first one, and its arrival was hardly welcomed by the female historians in the class.

This critter, fortunately, showed evidence of a higher degree of training than the first. He left without incident.

With Old Main going to the dogs, Briggs didn't bat an eye or miss a phrase. He continued to fight the battle of the Winning of the West with nary a tumble to the classroom canine confusion. J.M.M.

Two St. Louis Trips Set Next Weekend

The Activities Development Center is offering two excursions to St. Louis next weekend.

Saturday, a bus will leave the University Center at 8 a.m. on an all-day trip to downtown St. Louis. After arriving in the city, students will be free to shop, attend a play or movie or go sight-seeing. Bus transportation costs $2.

Sunday, baseball fans can board a bus in front of the University Center at 10 a.m. to go to the Cardinals game with the Houston Colts. Bus transportation will be $1.50. Admission tickets may be purchased at the Stadium.

Those wishing to go on either excursion should sign up in the Activities Office before noon Friday.

Short-Term Finals Set This Week

Final examinations will be held Wednesday and Thursday for a limited number of students who are enrolled for eight-week summer courses.

Most of the 9,096 students enrolled on both the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses of SIU are registered for a full 12-week quarter extending through Aug. 29. A complete final examination schedule for them will be announced later.

The full-length summer quarter marks the final step in SIU's transition to a year-around schedule, begun two years ago when freshman courses were extended. Eight-week courses offered this summer consist primarily of graduate courses in professional education.

The last program in this series.

7:30 p.m. Summer Concert: "Toni Intravala Dances"—Dancer, teacher, notator and choreographer, Toni Intravala introduces this intriguing adventure into modern dance.

8 p.m. American Memoirs: American satire during the past half century will be analyzed with examples of the humor of Ring Lardner, Will Rogers and James Thurber.

Johnson Tells Navy To Fight Attackers

WASHINGTON -- President Johnson has ordered U. S. naval forces beefed up in the Tonkin Gulf area, off Viet Nam, and has ordered them to destroy any force that attacks them.

He said the orders were issued Sunday in the aftermath of the assault on the U.S. destroyer Maddox by three North Vietnamese patrol torpedo boats.

Johnson said the commanders of combat aircraft and destroyers in the area where Sunday's attack occurred--in international waters--have been told "to attack any force which attacks them in international water and to attack them not only with the objective of driving off the attack force but of destroying them."

As the commander-in-chief, Johnson issued a whole series of instructions to the Navy:

1. To continue the patrols in the Gulf of Tonkin off the coast of North Viet Nam.
2. To double the force by adding an additional destroyer to the one already on patrol.
3. To provide a combat air patrol over the destroyers.
4. To issue the orders to drive off and destroy any force

U.S. to Protest Assault Made On Destroyer

WASHINGTON--The United States is making a formal protest to the Communist North Viet Nam government for an unprovoked attack on the U.S. Navy destroyer Maddox in international waters, the State Department said Monday.

The attack is viewed as a serious incident, State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey said.

McCloskey said the means of delivering the American protest and the channel to be used are still under consideration.

However, authoritative sources said the three-nation International Control Commission, headed by India and including Poland and Canada, will be the means of conveying the protest to Hanoi.

which attacks the U.S. force. Three North Vietnamese patrol boats fired torpedoes and guns at the Maddox without a hit in the Gulf of Tonkin Sunday and were damaged and driven off by Navy gunfire and airborne rockets, the Navy said.

The Maddox, a veteran of World War II and the Korean fighting, continued its patrol and left two wounded PT boats limping in the general direction of North Viet Nam. A third boat was stopped dead, the Navy said.

Adm. U.S. Grant Sharp, U.S. Pacific military commander, confirmed here that the attackers were North Vietnamese after a study of pictures of the boats.

The Maddox was on routine patrol, said a Navy announcement of the attack, when it "underwent an unprovoked attack by three PT boats. Attacking boats launched three torpedoes and used 37mm gunfire."

"The Maddox answered with 5-inch gunfire. Shortly thereafter four Crusader jet fighters from the USS Ticonderoga joined in defense of Maddox, using Zuni rockets and 20 mm strafing attacks.

"The PT boats were driven off with one seen to be badly damaged and not moving. The other two were damaged and retreating slowly. No casualties or damage was sustained by the Maddox or aircraft."

'Firm Steps' Urged

By Premier Khanh

SAIGON, Viet Nam--Premier Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh asserted Monday the United States should take "firm steps" against Communist North Viet Nam in the wake of an attack by three North Vietnamese torpedo boats on a U.S. destroyer.

Khanh has been suggesting extending the war to the Communist North but in a speech last Friday he appeared to temper his ideas. Now, in his conversation with newsmen, he seems to have reverted to his original view because of the North Vietnamese torpedo boat attack on the Maddox.

Police Patrol Negro Section In Jersey City After Rioting

JERSEY CITY, N.J.--Helmets and batons patrolled the glass-littered streets of Jersey City's Negro district Monday where a rioting mob of young Negroes attacked officers, broke windows and looted stores.

Police said 13 Negroes were arrested during Sunday night's outbreak--the first incident of this scale in their northern New Jersey city that faces Manhattan across the Hudson River.

Mayor Thomas J. Whelan, at the scene just south of the Lafayette housing project, said, "It seems to me to be an overflow from the occurrences in New York City and Rochester."

Police said 23 persons, including 10 police officers, were injured during the more than four hours of disturbances. A white woman, her son and their car smashed while driving down Grant Street.

Much of the rioting was random missile-throwing with as many as 500 bystanders watching, by police estimate. But between 11 p.m. and 11:30 p.m., at least 200 Negroes formed in a group and moved down Grant Street.

A car with seven Negroes inside drove toward a force of police on the street, almost running down several officers.

The car's occupants, six adults and one 17-year-old girl, were removed at gunpoint. The girl was held as a juvenile delinquent and the adults were charged with disorderly conduct, police said.

On orders to disperse the crowd, police formed a wedge and advanced, firing shots in the air.

The crowd broke into small pockets and faded into doorways and down side streets.

At 10:45 p.m. John Hudak Jr., 22, his mother, Dorothy, 47, and sister, also Dorothy, 13, were set upon in their car by a group of Negro youths.

Hudak was admitted in satisfactory condition at Jersey City Medical Center. His face was cut severely. The mother and daughter were sent home.

Military Pay Hike Bill Goes to White House

WASHINGTON--The House, without discussion and on a voice vote, swiftly passed Monday a bill that will bring $207 million in pay raises to most American servicemen and service women.

House passage completed congressional action on the bill. It now goes to the White House.

In its report on the bill, the House Armed Services Committee told the House that it had omitted boosts for draftees and newly enlisted men because they are in training status and also because they are assured of three or four pay increases in their first 12 months of service because of swift promotions in the training period.

Morse Opens Fight to Cut Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON--Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., opened a Senate fight Monday to cut over $500 million from President Johnson's $3,466,700,000 foreign aid authorization bill.

He charged that the bill was presented "under false pretenses," and assailed what he called the support of the program as "a slush fund to buy off other countries" and to "prop up bloated military establishments" in others.

In addition to the cuts he proposed, Morse asked the adoption of amendments to force drastic reforms in the program to which he said the Senate Foreign Relations Committee "gives nothing but lip service" in a report recommending a $50-million cut in the $3,516,700,000 the President asked.

Conservatives Fail To Gain Control of California GOP

SACRAMENTO, Calif.--California's Republican leadership passed Monday to a new team of officers with few close ties to Sen. Barry Goldwater's campaign organization.

Incumbent legislators Sunday turned back a pro-Goldwater threat to their traditional control of the Republican State Central Committee.

The established group prevailed, too, in the writing of the Republican state platform. It rebuffed every major proposal by a militant minority of ultraconservatives, especially on civil rights.

Both the new chairman, Dr. Gaylor Parkinson, of El Cajon, and vice chairman, James W. Halley of San Mateo, pledged to work hard for the Goldwater-Miller ticket.

Neither took sides in California's Goldwater-Rockefeller contest in June. That primary gave Goldwater his biggest pre-convention victory.

House Member Rejects Gift

WASHINGTON--A member of the House Banking Committee was offered -- and rejected -- $14,000 worth of bank stock as a gift, committee Chairman Wright Patman said Monday.

Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Tex., later identified himself as the committee member.

Patman mentioned the purported incident in a speech prepared for delivery in the House. Without mentioning any names, he said he was proud of his committee colleague for ordering "the would-be donors" out of his office.

Gonzalez told a reporter an offer of stock was made to him in connection with a proposal that he become director of a bank.

"I didn't regard this as a big lobbying plot, but as an offer from a businessman who apparently thought there might be some advantage to him in the arrangement," he said.

"But I thought it would be highly improper for me, since sooner or later I would have to vote on legislation affecting banks, to accept such a proposal, so I did not even let the conversation run long enough to explain it in full."

Khrushchev Threatens U.N. Walkout

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.--Top sources reported Saturday that Soviet Premier Khrushchev told Secretary-General U Thant the Soviet Union will walk out of the General Assembly and perhaps quit the United Nations altogether if its vote is taken away for nonpayment of bills.

These sources said Thant, deeply worried, will discuss this threatened break-up of the world organization with President Johnson when he flies to Washington for a Thursday appointment.

Thant has just returned from a trip to Moscow where he appealed to the Kremlin not to let the United Nations go broke through failure to pay up. He told newsmen there, after a long talk with Khrushchev, that he saw no change in the Soviet stand.

The United States insists that the Soviet Union lose its vote in the assembly unless it pays some of its back dues before the assembly convenes Nov. 10.

The U.N. Charter says that any country two years behind in U.N. dues "shall have no vote" in the assembly.

The Soviet Union has refused to pay its assessments for Congo and Middle East peacekeeping costs and, if these are counted along with its regular budget assessments, it is two years behind.

SIU's Sparkling 'Fair Lady' Delights Audience

A standing ovation from an enthusiastic audience Saturday night showed the "My Fair Lady" cast how much their performance was enjoyed. And not only at the end of the production, but after each song and especially well-done scene the audience applauded approvingly.

The basic plot of the musical, adapted from George Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion," concerns a bet between Professor Henry Higgins and Colonel Pickering. Higgins maintains he can turn a Covent Garden flowergirl with a Cockney accent into a lady in six months, merely by changing her speech. Pickering promptly proposes to pay the expenses of such an experiment.

Eliza Doolittle, the girl in question, appears in the Higgins household "with her face and hands washed." But Higgins clearly has his work cut out for him.

Mary Jo Smith played the role of Eliza Doolittle. And from the first 'lovely' song she sang, the first swing of a dainty foot, and the first grimace, one knew she could sing, dance, and act.

In a continuously outstanding performance, perhaps Miss Smith's best solo moment came when she almost moved the audience to tears with her because Higgins would not show any affection.

Higgins himself, dextrously portrayed by Robert Meyer, declared "I'm an ordinary man, who will never let a woman in my life." And Higgins did very well at the job until even he had to admit "I've Grown Accustomed To Her Face."

Meyer from the outset captured the bored manner of Higgins. Yet Meyer's acting was never boring. With extremely sensitive facial expression and gestures, he sang and acted an admirable Higgins.

William McHughes, in the role of Colonel Pickering, provided a first-rate foil for Eliza and the Professor. Together, the three of them entertained with many merry moments. "The Rain In Spain" sequence contained ample activity for each as they energetically mimicked a bullfight to go with their lively musical rendering.

Cast in the part of Alfred Doolittle, the father of Eliza, David Davidson proved a suitable roguish man of the Covent Garden world. With his friends Harry and Jamie, buffooned by Richard Boyd and William Lehmann, Doolittle tells anyone who will listen of his philosophy. "With A Little Bit of Luck" he can accomplish all sorts of things without obeying the usual conformities of society.

Davidson and his cronies presented their antics with an agility indicating the good fun they were having on stage. Especially uproarious was "Get Me To The Church On Time."

Adding to the musical unity of the production, the chorus provided buoyant cheerfulness throughout. Notable was the sophisticated "Ascot Gavotte" scene, complete with elegant costumes to match the lilting lyrics.

The "My Fair Lady" musical probably received one of the most enthusiastic responses of many an SIU program. Though the actors themselves did excellent jobs, ample credit should be given to director William Taylor, scenic designer Darwin Payne and dance choreographer Jane Dakak.

Other professional help was given by Paul Hibbs in stage direction, Miriam Gullett in diction, Charles Zoekler in lighting and Davidson in assistant stage direction.

All in all the Music Department's "My Fair Lady" was a 'lovely' production. And most of the audience would have agreed that they could have watched all night. S.F.

The Man, Time and Success

John E. Grinnell, vice president for operations, is retiring. He is a man who has dedicated his life to education. Nine years of his life he has given to SIU, after coming here from Indiana State Teachers College. Now he is leaving the administration although he will be on campus as a teacher for one more term.

How do you measure a man's life's work? Is the measure of its success the renown or fortune it has brought him?

Or is the measure of its success but the knowledge that the man has made valuable contributions to the area of his work and hence has made valuable contributions to all mankind? In the long run, the latter is the more important.

John Grinnell's work has been a success. He has been an asset to education and SIU. During the years of his service, SIU has grown both in size and in reputation. Although the growth has been rapid, it has been smooth.

Part of the credit belongs to John Grinnell.

Parting messages should not be long; this one shall not be. Only to list accolades is all they're good for anyway, and accolades are but expressions of respect, esteem, and affection. These things John Grinnell already has. Be it enough for us to say that John Grinnell is a man we'll all miss now he's gone.

Have Some Vacation Reading

People who want to carry a couple of worthwhile books with them on their vacation will find many to choose from this summer. The political news in the papers takes on new meaning for those who read "Presidential Elections: Strategies of American Electoral Politics" (Scribner, $3.95). Authors A. B. Wildavsky and B. W. Polsby cover the voters, electoral college, nominating process, campaign, ballot, and political system and review the possibilities of reform.

In "Piety Along the Patomac" (Houghton Mifflin, $4). William Lee Miller, Yale professor of social ethics, assembles the rare "notes on politics and morals in the '50s" that he wrote for the Reporter and other magazines. His analysis of "the liking of Ike" helps explain the tremendous change that has overtaken the Republican party.

Sen. Norris' Story

Richard Lowitt's "George W. Norris: The Making of a Progressive, 1861-1912" (Syracuse, $7.95) is the first half of what promises to be an outstanding biography of one of the great American statesmen. This volume tells how the young congressman from Nebraska led Cannoism's overthrow.

For two excellent books on the Supreme court, turn to James E. Clayton's "The Making of Justice" (Dutton, $4.95) and Anthony Lewis' "Gideon's Trumpet" (Random House, $4.95). The former, by the Washington Post's judicial news writer, takes the reader thru a court term, week by week. The latter, by the New York Times' Supreme court expert, tells the fascinating story of the reversal of the old Betts vs. Brady (1942) ruling that ignored the 6th amendment's guarantee of assistance of counsel for the criminally accused. The Gideon of the "trumpet" is Clarence Gideon, Panama City, Fla., whose faulty larceny convictions brought about the overturn after 21 years.

These days it is a short step from the Supreme court to race relations. Elliott M. Rudwick, Southern Illinois university sociologist, has carefully assembled the facts about the tragic "Race Riot at East St. Louis, July 2, 1917" (Southern Illinois, $6). At least 49 people died in the violence, 39 of them Negroes. A half-million dollars damage was done. Much of the trouble was economic and the Negro was largely a pawn.

Life of Jack Johnson

A more cheerful story of race relations is told by Finis Farr in "Black Champion: The Life and Times of Jack Johnson" (Scribner, $4.95). Johnson, first Negro to be world's heavyweight champion, was buried close to sleeping car magnate George M. Pullman, in Graceland cemetery, Chicago.

Good books on education abound. Mary Perkins Ryan, a Roman Catholic parent, raises fundamental questions in "Are Parochial Schools the Answer?" (Holt, Rinehart, Winston, $4). The tremendous achievement of the state universities under the federal land-grant system is recounted in "Open Door to Learning" (Illinois, $5) by Herman R. Allen. Two valuable Harvard Press publications are "The Uses of the University" ($2.95) by University of California President Clark Kerr and "The Age of the Scholar" ($4.50) by Harvard President Nathan M. Pusey.

Pant and Suffer

Every summer, about this time, we experience a phenomenon called "dog days." It is that time of the year when everyone says it can't get any hotter—but it can and does.

"Dog days" originally got their name because the days from early July to early September coincide with the heliacal rising of the Dog Star, Sirius. The conjunction of the rising of Sirius with the rising of the sun was regarded by the ancients as one of the causes of the sultry heat of the summer.

So anyway, it's hot in August. The heat causes dogs to become lazy and too tired to move around. A dog is an animal which has a great deal of excitement and movement in its character. When a dog thinks it is too hot to move, the human inhabitants head for the hills. Those hills usually turn out to be a swimming pool, a ski resort, or a cool air-conditioned room.

"Dog days" is the part of the summer when everyone has already gone swimming and basked in the sun and is now tired of the heat. Then we long for those cold winter months cool enough to wear a coat.

Everyone will have to face the terrible sun-scorched days of August whether he likes it or not, so stock up on the ice cubes and water wings. The desert will be crossed, and you will emerge victorious on the other side in the midst of winter longing for those warm, wonderful "dog days" of August once again.

Letter to the Editor

Mitchell Art Gallery Needs Weekend and Evening Hours

It has been apparent for some time that the philosophy of Southern Illinois University is to provide the people of southern Illinois with educational opportunities and services previously unavailable or too costly for widespread utilization. The purpose of this letter is to ask why this philosophy is not extended in the case of the organization and operation of the Mitchell Art Gallery.

The current practice of the Gallery precludes the viewing by the general public of its fine regularly scheduled exhibits. This is particularly true for any person who belongs to what the Gallery seems to believe is the working minority.

The carpenter, farmer, teacher, university president, or primary and secondary school children are effectively prohibited from attending exhibits. None of these people can easily, or without financial penalty, visit the Gallery. The only individuals who are admitted are a few students or those whose schedules or riches allow time for such a visit.

The Gallery is open from 10 to 4 on week days and not on weekends. Who but those who can enjoy mid-week leisure can attend during these hours?

Isn't it possible that consideration be given to arranging Gallery hours so that those people who work or attend classes on weekdays may visit the Gallery on weekends or evenings without having to join a special group who, under the present Gallery rules, may schedule a visit as a group on weekends?

THE BOUDREAU FAMILY GET THE LATEST NEWS

Father, Mother, Son All Teachers

Three Boudreaus Making a Family Project Out of Newspaper in Classroom Workshop

A family of teachers is attending a workshop at SIU. Father, wife (and mother), and son are represented at the Newspaper in the Classroom Workshop, in the persons of R.A. Boudreau, Clarabelle Boudreau, and their son Dick.

The father teaches French and the mother English at Jacksonville High School in central Illinois. This fall, Dick will start teaching music and ethics at the Barry school system in Pike County.

The head of the family wasn't a teacher until last year. He had been in the frozen-food business, which he sold to join his wife in a teaching career.

"I was kept so busy raising the children that I was unable to go into a teaching job," he said, "but now I can devote my life to teaching."

The Boudreaus, with about 37 other Illinois and Missouri high school teachers, are exploring the use of the daily newspaper as an instructional aid in their classroom work.

"The daily newspaper is a tremendous source of teaching material for classroom work," Mrs. Boudreau declared. "I have been using the magazine for my English class as a supplement to the textbook, but I will also use the newspaper in my class," she said.

The Boudreaus believe the newspaper offers another channel through which students can learn their subject matter.

They are constantly searching for new teaching methods and exploring new concepts of teaching, and they modify and adapt their newly-acquired experiences to their classroom circumstances.

Although the Boudreaus are currently studying the use of newspapers in class, they have no inclination to give up teaching for careers in journalism.

They have attended workshops as a means of broadening their background; last year, Mrs. Boudreau accompanied her husband to a workshop in French. She found the experience so helpful that she decided to attend the newspaper workshop this year.

A workshop, the Boudreaus find, is the best way of spending a summer and learning new things.

The SIU Department of Journalism is conducting the workshop in cooperation with the Division of University Extension. It is designed to give teachers of juniors and seniors ideas on how the daily newspaper can be used as an instructional aid in all subjects.

Edwardsville Students to Join In Friday's Commencement

Students of both the Carbondale and Edwardsville campus will take part in the combined summer commencement exercises in McClelland Stadium Friday night.

A total of 973 degree applications have been received, according to the Registrar's Office.

Commencement speaker will be Ralph A. Micken, chairman of the SIU Speech Department. An outdoor program is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. It will be moved into the new SIU Arena in case of rain.

University officials said graduation applications include 26 for doctoral degrees and two for sixth-year specialist certificates. Another 362 students have applied for master's degrees, 570 for bachelor's degrees and 13 for two-year associate degrees from the SIU Vocational-Technical Institute.

President of Shrimmer College Opposed on Playboy Theory

graduate assistant in history, says that a large majority of the freshman students are extremely sincere and serious about acquiring a good education.

"In the past two years I have taught about 700 freshmen in quiz sections," Cissell explained, "and I can think of only one girl who said she was here only to have a good time."

The question for those concerned is why do young people come to college? But there is more than one answer.

High school graduates come to college for several reasons: College graduates earn more money than high school graduates. Increasing social pressures are being placed on American youth to complete college. And, today, young people are motivated more to go into higher education by guidance counselors, teachers, labor organizations, and even radio and television advertising.

In rebuttal to these fundamental reasons why students go to college are headlines indicating such things as: "Fun - Seekers Jam Colleges;" "Students Riot in Fort Lauderdale;" "Harvard Men Stage Panty Raid;" and "Illini Students Uncontrollable in Three-Hour Water Fight."

Because of headlines like these, many readers gather quick, unfounded impressions that college is just a four-year game. They discount the long, hard hours that are spent in search of advanced learning, new ideas and ideals, knowledge, understanding and wisdom.

Ask yourself this question: Exactly why did I come to college? Ask your friends that same question.

Of course the answers will vary, but generally most students enrolled at SIU are here not merely because their parents made them come, or because they are searching only for fun or an escape from the work-a-day world.

Most come here because they sincerely want to better themselves and gain an insight into the worlds of the educator, businessman, professional, researcher and philosopher.

I. Clark Davis, director of the Office of Student Affairs, believes students are more serious minded than ever before.

"All one has to do is read into the history of education,"

I. CLARK DAVIS

Davis asserted, "and he will easily see how serious students are becoming today."

As for the future students of SIU, Davis said, "I would generalize by saying that students will continue to be more and more serious."

A very obvious evidence of this, Davis explained, "is found in the classrooms where students are questioning more and more the reasons behind facts and theories that are presented."

"And, this indicated deep thought and serious thinking on the part of today's college students," he added.

ably in the number of faculty members and in salary.

Harvard University has an average faculty salary of $14,000 and compensation of $16,600. It has 682 full-time faculty members.

Vassar College is lower than SIU in average full-time faculty salary, $8,813, but their compensation is higher, $10,227. Vassar has a full-time faculty of 158.

Pasadena College in California presents a contrast to SIU and to most schools. It has an average full-time faculty salary of $5,695 with compensations of $6,439. There are 55 full-time faculty members.

Benton to Report on Research At Conference on Ag Education

Ralph A. Benton, associate professor of agricultural industries, will discuss findings in two research projects at the annual Central Region Research Conference in Agricultural Education at the University of Missouri, Columbia, Tuesday through Friday.

Benton's project, entitled "Relation of High School Subjects and Other Factors to Scholastic Achievement in the School of Agriculture at Southern Illinois University," is the result of several years of work.

Its purpose was to verify earlier findings that a student's success in college depends more upon rank in his high school graduation class than upon any other single factor. High school records of agriculture students at SIU during 1955-58 were used in the study. Grades, size of school, courses taken, semesters of work in each subject, and rank in graduating class were the factors used.

The second paper, entitled, "Evaluation of Factors Contributing to Attrition of Students from the School of Agriculture at SIU," was written by Ralph Gann, former SIU graduate student, for his master's thesis under the direction of Benton.

The project considers the grade point average of the first and third terms of the freshman year, and the technical and nontechnical agriculture subjects taken. The aim was to determine the reason for the heavy dropout of freshman agriculture students between 1955-58.

Benton, a farm management specialist, is a graduate of the University of Nebraska. A former vocational agriculture teacher, Benton has been a member of the SIU faculty since 1956.

Public Drawing Set Aug. 15-16 For River Duck Blind Sites

Public drawings for duck blind sites on state-owned lands on the Illinois River and on federal lands on the Mississippi will be held Aug. 15 and 16, according to the Illinois Department of Conservation.

Applicants must register for the drawings between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. and they must be present at the drawings, which will begin at 2 p.m. Anyone registering for the drawings must be at least 16 years old and must have a 1963 or 1964 hunting license in his possession.

The schedule for the Illinois River Areas is as follows: Sanganois - Knapp Island Area--Aug. 15, at the River Landing check station on the west side of the Illinois River, 1 1/2 miles north of Browning, off of Illinois Route 100.

Spring Lake, Tazewell County -- Aug. 15, at Pat's Landing on the county road, crossing Spring Lake.

Woodford County--Aug. 15, at the public hunting and fishing area, off of Illinois Route 87, north of East Peoria and across the Illinois River from Chillicothe.

Marshall County--Aug. 15, at the public hunting and fishing area, north of Woodford County Area and about 10 miles south of Lacon.

Sparland--Aug. 15, at the parking area on the west side of the Illinois River, north of Sparland.

Starved Rock--Aug. 16, at the east shelter house near the east entrance to Starved Rock State Park.

Grundy County--Aug. 16, at Channahon State Park, south of U.S. Route 6, at the edge of Channahon. Blind sites are located on the north side of the Illinois and Des Plaines Rivers above the Dresden Dam.

Will County--Aug. 16, at the Des Plaines Hunting Area, across the road from the Power Station on Blodgett Road, about two miles west of U.S. Route 66 (Interstate 55). The blind sites are located below Smith Bridge and at Milldale on the Des Plaines River.

4 From SIU Face Rugged Test In Seeking Berth at Olympics

A rugged task lies ahead for four SIU athletes.

The four, two gymnasts and two wrestlers, are working hard to prepare themselves for the 1964 Olympic gymnastics and wrestling trials to be held in New York City later this month.

The task at hand is a rugged one because gymnasts Rusty Mitchell and Fred Orlofsky and matmen Terry Finn and Larry Kristoff will be competing against one of the best aggregations of American athletes ever assembled.

The five-day meet, which will open Aug. 25 at the New York World's Fair, will feature the top wrestlers and gymnasts in the nation. Olympic officials expect competition for berths on the Tokyo-bound U. S. Olympic mat and gymnasts squads to be the keenest in many years.

Kristoff, a resident of Carbondale, has recovered from a painful shoulder injury and is currently working at full strength. The burly 225-pound Kristoff wrestles in the heavy-weight division.

Finn, a senior from Oak Lawn, is considered by his coach, Jim Wilkinson, to be a top contender in the lightweight division. Finn, defending NCAA 115-pound champion, finished third in the 1964 national AAU wrestling finals behind two Japanese nationals who are ineligible for U.S. Olympic competition.

But the road will not be an easy one for the scrappy little Saluki matman. Finn will be vying with a number of top-flight wrestlers for a lightweight berth, including Grey Simons, the United States representative in lightweight freestyle events in the 1960 Olympic games.

Gymnasts Mitchell and Orlofsky will be in class company during the Olympic trials. Of the duo, Mitchell has been tabbed by many gymnastics experts as a genuine threat for a spot on the U.S. squad. The SIU senior, who led the Saluki gymnasts to their first national NCAA title last winter, is a tumbling and free exercise specialist.

Orlofsky, a former Saluki gym star who was graduated from Southern in 1962, is a veteran of the 1960 Olympic gymnastics competition.
