Are You A Joiner?

Southern is a school with many extra curricular activities. There are 61 organi zations and 20 organized houses on cam pus at the present time. Naturally, with so many possibilities for extra-curricular work, students can get into more than one group. Such a situation is not bad in itself but there seems to be too many students who go to extremes. Some joined so many organizations that they cannot give a fair amount of time to any one of them without slighting the others or their classes.

What is the reason behind this malady of over-joining? Is it the desire for social prestige or scholastic power? Or is it the satisfaction one gets from seeing his name print of hearists it on the tongues of fellow students? This latter reason seems to have some basis, for in some cases students have quit organizations when their the student body. For example, students have joined the staff of the Egyptian, then after a short while have quit because their names did not appear in the masthead.

Another factor which does nothing to help an already precarious situation is the fact that several organized houses require their members to join a specified number of other organizations. Thus, too many join because of this requirement with no particular interest in the club which they

In many cases the joiner seems to be letting his grades suffer for his extra-cur-ricular activities. Whatever the cause, it doesn't seem fair to the student himself, or to the organizations of which he is a Seen by the deep swimming few. member to "swamp" himself with too many activities.-F. S.

Santa, old boy, we've heard plenty about you. Next to the sponsor of the Miss Hush contest, you're probably about the most generous person we happen to know of. You, Sir, may help us. We only need several hundred dollars, better grades, (Attention, Professors Bach, Baxter, Fligor, and Steffes), and possibly an old beat up Buick.

As for you, Elsie, our beautiful bovine, e understand that your Borden benefactors are offering twenty-five thousand dollars in cash prizes for naming your little Borden bull. Elsie, we couldn't afford to enter your contest, but we would appreciate it no end if you would inform the Borden people that for about half of this amount of legal tender we will personally wear daisy chains, ride cattle cars, and bawl the praises of good old Borden's milk top.
Thanking you both,

Nothing suits me like a CAMEL. I've smoked them for years .

And here's another great record —

More people are smoking CAMELS than ever before!
