The Library Situation

No doubt you have, at one time or another, heard some passerby exclaim, "Isn't that a beautiful old building?" The object of their exclamation is our library. It is an impressive, eye-catching, antique structure, and antique beauty is to be treasured. But not when that beauty is so antiquated that its crumbling walls endanger those individuals who enter its sagging doorways.

Its moss-covered, ivy-streaked walls, whid viewed from a distance, do give the building somewhat of a distinguished appearance. Upon closer examination, however, one's eyes cannot help but notice the huge cracks that hide behind the strands of ivy. These cracks, first in the walls are the result of two elements, first is the age of the structure, and second, the great number of books on its crowded shelves.

Many years ago, when the library was still in the planning board stage, the architects were busy working on its design, were told to draw plans for a library large enough to accommodate enough books to service 500 students. This "huge" figure was thought to be sufficient, but with the passing of time, the student population increased to 35 times that number. Naturally, additional books were needed, and as the library was the only building in which book lending could be successfully conducted, those books were stacked upon its shelves.

The passing of time, and the increased tonnage so weakened the walls and supports of the building that, recently, the library was condemned. As if this were not enough, an order was given to lighten the load on the floors of the library or the whole building would collapse. Because its aged floors could no longer bear the weight of over 103,614 books it was necessary to move some 60,000 of them into the cool, damp basement of Old Science.

The mind of a genius is not needed to calculate the extent of damage that these books might incur if they are allowed to remain in their present location. Already, paper-eating mold and the typography on the pages, and because of dampness, the glue has lost some of its adhesion; thus, causing the binding to weaken. The irony of this situation is that some of these books are irreplaceable, and if they are destroyed by their sojourn in the basement of Old Science, some education-seeking student will have to look elsewhere to do his research.

Southern, in its proposed building program, has asked for $5,023,768 with which to build a new library. Not until this building is built can the many hundreds of books be removed from their present "grave." The mea of the state legislature must be informed of this serious situation. They must be informed, and, if possible, shown how we here at Southern are forced to carry on mass destruction of valuable literature because of inadequate facilities. This can be done by means of letters of invitation, and information written by us, the students of Southern.—R. R.

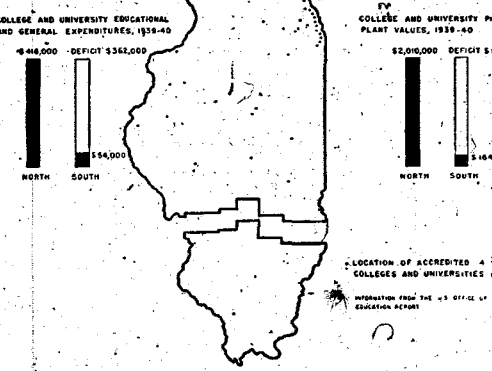

It requires 66 muscles to frown and 47 to smile; save the difference, if God intended that we should talk more than hear, He would have given us two mouths and one ear.

1st Student: "Did you take a bath this morning?"
2nd Student: "No. Is there one missing?"

Classic—A book people talk about, hear about, and read about, but never read.

HIGHER EDUCATION IN NORTHERN ILLINOIS AND IN SOUTHERN ILLINOIS

COMPARISON OF COLLEGE AND UNIVERSITY EDUCATIONAL AND GENERAL EXPENDITURES AND PHYSICAL PLANT VALUES FOR 1939-40 IN SOUTHERN ILLINOIS (31 COUNTIES) AND NORTHERN ILLINOIS (71 COUNTIES) ON THE BASIS OF EACH 100,000 POPULATION

Southern Illinois is "in the red" as far as higher education accounts go in Illinois, declares a Southern Illinois University faculty-student legislative committee. The group points to the above graph, based on figures published by the U. S. Office of Education, which shows an enormous deficit in the amount of money expended for operating purposes and for buildings in Southern Illinois and in Northern Illinois higher educational institutions. There were 35 accredited colleges and universities serving the northern 71 counties of Illinois in 1939-40. There was only one Northern school. Physical plants at Northern Illinois were valued at $2,010,000 per 100,000 population; in Southern Illinois at $1,846,000. "It is not surprising," declares Dr. Orville Alexander, chairman of the Southern Illinois University committee, "that fewer people in Southern Illinois have a college education. "It is to help overcome these long-standing deficits that Southern Illinois University is asking the legislature for a $2,601,533 operating budget and $36,555,170 for new buildings."

Your Friend Lucy

As a part of the program for the Diamond Jubilee celebration, Mrs. Mae Trevillion Smith, a member of the committee, has written a series of imaginary letters that might have been written by a coed of the 1880's. The letters are only a method of furnishing students with a history of the school. Although the letters are fictitious, all facts are authentic, having been taken from old records, Obelisks, newspapers, and minutes of the Normal Board from their first meeting back in 1874. One letter each week will appear with interesting stories of 1874 when S. I. U. was S. I. N. U.—stories of social life and student activities—written in a picturesque and colorful style.

Carbondale, Illinois, Nov. 15, 1880

Dear Sam: My days are so full that I am falling behind in my correspondence. After spending all day out at Normal, I am rather tired. Then after supper I start studying, and before I know it, the clock says nine o'clock—bed time! And again no letters written.

In my last letter I promised to tell you about my studies, so I'll concentrate on that phase of my life here. Of course, I am still frightened and wonder whether I shall ever stop quaking when I am called on in class. I enrolled in Mr. Brownlee's "Reading, Elocution and Phonics" class and I suffer agonies when I stand up before that class to give my readings. Do you remember the dialogues that you and I engaged in on Friday afternoons at school? Well, I guess we were not very good, because college elocution is so different.

"Be sure you rehearse your pieces before the mirror to get the correct gestures," our teacher tells us. There is a large mirror on the second floor which we are urged to use in "suiting the apron to the word" as Shakespeare said. Almost any hour in the day one of Mr. Brownlee's students can be seen rehearsing his lesson in elocution before the full-length mirror. One day when I passed through the hallway, I glanced into the room on the second floor and saw a boy from my elocution class waving and flourishing his arms in mid air, looking for all the world like an animated Dutch windmill. Since it is strictly against the rules to loiter in the halls, I had to rush on, but I heard afterwards that he was practicing his next lesson which was "The Boy Stood on the Burning Deck." At the rate he was fighting the flames, the fire must have been entirely extinguished by the end of the hour's rehearsal. I have chosen Tennyson's poem, "The Lady of Shalott" for my next recitation. It will be less strenuous and more lady-like than the "Burning Deck" selection.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Sir: On the January 27th edition of the Egyptian, an editorial—or should I say a criticism appeared and written by a certain H. R.

Since I am not in the habit of taking criticism from an uninformed and bigoted person I am writing this letter in defense of the Student Council, my associates on that committee, and myself. I don't know what served as the incentive for Mr. M.H. to write this article; maybe it was the fact that the members of the Student Council did not think much of an idea he had in mind about writing some sort of a student handbook. Or maybe Mr. H. R. had ulterior motives. Are you, sir, trying to become a "whoo"? Well anyway, it seems that Mr. H. R. is of the opinion that the Egyptian is almost wholly a student publication and doesn't need improvements. He does not know the meaning of the meaning of the policies that control the Egyptian before the Student Council advocated a change. Ask any student on the campus what they think of the Egyptian on the whole and they will probably say something like, "It's bad," or more probably, "It's not as good as my old high school paper." I don't see how Mr. H. R. feels qualified to criticize, after all, he has only been on the campus for two terms. I wonder why some freshmen feel, upon entering into college, that it's their duty to see that certain operations on the campus, that don't conform to their opinions, are changed.

There was also a paragraph that gave the false impression that the Student Council, as a whole, felt it should and was qualified to choose editors of the Student Publications. The Student Council cannot be blamed for the opinion of one or two members. If Mr. H. R. looks up the changes advocated by the Council for the Student Publications, he will find there is nothing to the effect of his accusations, made by the Council in the proposed changes. The Egyptian is not as good a publication, as it could be; this is not necessarily the fault of the editors or the journalism department. However, changes must be made in order to bring the Egyptian up to a higher position in the ranks of journalism.

Why don't you, Mr. H. R. get on your little microphone at the campus gate and ask the students what they honestly think of the Egyptian. It might be a profitable venture. Sincerely, Signed: Robert Lupella, Student Council

February 7, 1949

To the members of the student council: In view of the fact that the council still seems to be unfamiliar with the operations of the Egyptian, I should like to present the following information. Included also are several reasons why the Egyptian has brought forth a criticism of the council.

When the council first informed me of their move to find just how the Egyptian was operated, I was very much interested in the idea of something that some students did not know the set-up and having nothing more to hide than a typographical error every once in awhile, I figured that the results would answer any question in the minds of the interested persons.

However, it seems that the council, or should I say some members of the council, had formed certain opinions and constructed certain plans previous to the investigation. Regardless of any reports or findings brought to their attention since then, it is evident that the council has proceeded if they had originally planned.

To illustrate, I should like to mention the charge made that the council received no cooperation from the Egyptian in the early stages of the investigation. The main part of this charge is that the editor, was never approached by any representative of your body. I would have welcomed the opportunity to cooperate at that time and would have even volunteered information had I known such an investigation was being conducted. I am sure that if it was all about you and I and other Egyptian members were called to the first meeting. The council at that time referred to a four point plan of operation, two of the points which they didn't remember and the other two they remembered only vaguely. In addition, it seems that the council were given a few anonymous and doubtless uninformed students.

At the meeting I, and other staff members, explained the whole newspaper set-up, and answered all questions. To the credit of the Egyptian, we never ran democratically! We pointed out that the paper was run entirely to the interests of the students who pay for it, and that no censorship whatever was exercised regarding the policies of the paper. I am sure that if you had been present, it appears that our explanations were ignored and the council went on with their charges and accusations.

One of your members, in a letter to me, makes the statement in defense of the council's recent actions: "The council should not be blamed for the opinion of one or two members." I have before thought that the council received at least a majority vote before it took action on a matter. It is unfortunate that the whole council does not blame, and that two or three misbegotten members can act on their own opinions and attribute them to those of the council.

To the members of the council who make such statements as, "The Egyptian is not as good a publication as it could be," and to those who create probabilities as motivation for what you are doing the autumn leaves looked as they came fluttering down, and just then he took a cigar out of his vest pocket, struck a match and actually smoked it—right in my presence. I never did get a man like that before in my whole life. What is this world coming to? I don't know. Know whether to accept an invitation to walk with him again or not.

Love, Your friend, Lucy

Southern Exposure

Communication gains in speed; Its arts are widely known; And still, observers must concede, The grapevine holds its own. —Florence Johnson

The grapevine was almost overtaken last Friday as word passed around that the budgetary commission was on its way to Southern, and classes were to be dismissed for the day. No one seems to be able to trace the rumor to its origin, but it was good while it lasted.

They said a bell was to be rung on the gala occasion. We can see the bell over the entrance to the auditorium, but it evidently hasn't been rung yet. Would it be possible to arrange a trial demonstration sometime soon?

Definition—"Suicide blonde." She lived by her own hand.

A deep bow to the winners of the student service award Monday night. And another to the KDA's for providing for recognition of those students who have been of outstanding service to the University.

Congratulations are in order to the Delta Chi's who are going national Sunday.

Comments were received from several girls at Anthony Hall this week concerning the proposed 10 p.m. curfew. It appears the girls at the hall fear that people are getting the impression that all the members of that institution do is stand on the front porch and smooch. It's impossible—there are 120 girls in the hall, and the porch wouldn't hold over 50 couples.

Also, the girls complain that all attention from this column has been focused on Anthony Hall, and the girls at the other houses also stand on their front porches and smooch at night. The reason the other houses haven't been mentioned is that most of them are not bright at 10 p.m. as they are at noon on a sunny day.

A note to the public: The campaign for an arbor at the site of Anthony Hall to combat the crowded conditions on the front porch in the merciful glare of the two streetlights on the steps is not intended to defame the character of the girls living there—it is only to give them the same opportunity other girls have, a semi-dark front porch at night.

Word has been received here that Margaret Truman, who visited the campus last September, is now studying under Conrad V. Bos, accompanist for Helen Traubel when she presented a concert here in October.

Famous last words—"What this campus needs is more street lights."

I would like to say this. I realize that the Egyptian is not as good a newspaper as it could be. We who put out the paper are student journalists who have a limited amount of time to devote to it. Yet, I am making no excuses or apologies for the paper because I want to say that I have been at the University I have never known the paper to have a more hard working and cooperative staff of reporters.

In contrast to a four page paper of past years that was furnishing enough material and features to make a six page paper and a special pictorial page. I am very proud, as editor, to have such hard working staff who are doing their best to turn out the finest in journalistic material. We always welcome suggestions from any members—no matter how better the Egyptian because that is our job. I would like to ask the council to present specific suggestions rather than all of those general statements which in the past they have not been able to back up. This whole matter has now reached a point of ridiculousness. First my mind has been bogged down by the student council has been handling the Egyptian "investigation." In the past I have been enough of an idealist to believe that the student council was a group of students representing the opinions and interests of the student body, and elected because of their outstanding leadership. I would still like to believe that way. However, if the council persists in handling matters in such a slovenly way as they have the Egyptian, I feel it only fair to warn them that they will be subject to continued editorial attack.

I agree that the student council should be the most powerful organization on the campus. I want to see it become that because they are supposed to be representing the opinions and thinking out for the welfare of the students. I would like to assist in every way I can to further this plan, yet I will not recognize a council who handles its affairs as it is doing at the present time. Bill Plater, Editor, The Egyptian

Laying The Dimes On The Line

Laying a dime on the board is Ledford Eischof, assistant dean of men. This was in the march of dimes campaign held last week on the campus. Looking on, from left to right are: Bettilo Rodenbush, Delores Sharp, and a member of Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, who sponsored the campaign.

March of Dimes Drive on Campus Hits New High

March of Dimes campaign on campus reached a new peak last Friday by collecting slightly more than $337. This is the combination of the funds received from the "Line of Dimes" and the Dance of Dimes.

The "Line of Dimes" conducted by Alpha Phi Omega collected approximately $287, and the Dance of Dimes, sponsored by Weekend Social Committee, contributed slightly more than $50. This was a total of more than $75 more than was collected on campus in last year's campaign.

COUNCIL CORNER

The proceeds of the recent KDA variety show have been allocated to the Student Legislative committee for use in the campaign to secure adequate appropriations for Southern. Profits of the show are donated over to the student council for the uses that the council feels are for the betterment of the school.

At this week's meeting of the group, the student council voted upon, and accepted a recommendation by the KDA fraternity that the money be given to the committee. The Student Legislative committee, which was formed by the student council, is directing the student drive to obtain money that Southern must have if it is to adequately serve Southern Illinois.

Last week, the student council acted to contribute $200 to the Scarab, Southern literary magazine. Paul Marzelli, editor of the publication, had stated that the drive for voluntary contributions to the magazine would probably not obtain enough money to publish the 1949 issue.

The Scarab had suspended publication of the present issue was not organized in time to secure a portion of the activity fund.

Soon to be published in the Egyptian is a copy of the Student Council Charter. The All-Hellenic Council recently requested that the student council ask the Southern newspaper to publish the charter.

How rhythmic can a rhythm song be?

You'll know when you hear Blue Barron's new waxing for MGH Records - "Powder Your Face With Sunshine"

The Barron has a foot-tapping arrangement here—a combo of Dixie, shuffle and 2-4 time. It's sure-fire styling for a danceable hit name. And on the flip, Blue puts "Cruising Down the River" into fast waltz time. Blue Barron likes to mix his rhythms—but in smoking, he sticks to one brand - Camels. Here at the right, Blue is telling his vocalists, Betty Clarke, about Camels.

How MILD can a cigarette be?

I KNOW HOW MILD A CIGARETTE CAN BE! I'VE SMOKED CAMELS FOR YEARS!

THE 30-DAY MILDNESS TEST CONVINCED ME. CAMELS ARE SO MILD—AND TASTE SO GOOD!

Yes, make the 30-day Camel Mildness Test. See for yourself how mild Camels are. In a recent test of hundreds of people who smoked only Camels for 30 days, noted throat specialists, after making weekly examinations, reported

TWO DEPARTMENTS TO BE GUESTS AT FRIENDLY HOUR

Wednesday afternoons from 4 to 5 p. m. the Student Christian foundation is a center of activity when the doors open to The Friendly Hour. This program was started four weeks ago in an effort to provide opportunity for the faculty and students to meet informally in a friendly atmosphere. Each week a different department or group of faculty members is asked to be the special guest at the informal social hour, at which coffee and tea and homemade cookies are served. Mrs. Walter B. Welch and Miss Marian Thrall will have been serving as hostesses.

Last week the chemistry department was a guest of the foundation, and cookies were furnished by Mrs. K. A. Van Lente, Mrs. R. H. Seitz, Mrs. T. W. Abbott, Mrs. Hal Stone, and Mrs. J. W. Neckers. This week the music department was the special guest, and cookies were brought by Mrs. David S. McIntosh, Mrs. Floyd U. Wakeland, Mrs. John S. Wharton, and Mrs. Donald Schwuchow of the First Methodist church.

Geography and Government

Next week two departments are invited to be guests at the Friendly Hour; they are government and geography and geology. Students and faculty of these departments are especially invited, but everyone is welcome to drop in for a few minutes to enjoy the fellowship and light refreshments.

The Foundation has just been presented with a new tabiceloh from the Carbondale church. These helping to make this gift possible were the First Methodist, First Baptist, Grace Methodist, First Christian, and Presbyterian.

We would like to thank all those who had a part in presenting it. Tonight, Thursday, is the Valentine party at the Foundation. Beginning at 7:30, it will continue until 10 p. m. An interesting and varied program is planned. Every one is welcome—the admission ticket is a valentine, either comic or cute.
