Payne announces, others considering City Council race

Only one person has announced plans to file for city councilman in the April 15 general election but petitions are being circulated for several other persons.

Monday is the first day for filing petitions of candidates and Frank Payne, a radio engineer for the Illinois Central Railroad, is the only person who says he will run.

Payne, 1713 Colonial Dr., said he did not wish to say anything except, "I'll be filing." He said he will talk later about why he has decided to run.

Two council posts will be vacated by councilmen Randall Nelson and Frank Kirk whose two-year terms expire May 1. Neither incumbents has said whether he will seek re-election. But another city official said Nelson has made up his mind to run.

James Brigham, president of Diagraph and Bradley Industry Inc., said a petition is circulating for his candidacy, but he has not made a decision yet whether he will run.

Brigham, 909 W. Chautauqua Dr., said he is "very interested" in the position, but not sure whether he would be able to devote the necessary amount of time.

David Lurie, 207 S. Rod Lane, director and sales manager for Good Luck Glove Co., said he is aware there are several petitions circulating for his candidacy, but has not made up his mind whether he will enter the race.

The final day for filing petitions is Jan. 21. Each prospective candidate must sign and submit a petition with 28 signatures to City Clerk Elizabeth Leighty.

Mrs. Leighty said if more than four persons file a primary election will be held Feb. 25.

Construction closes portions of Center

Unfinished sections of the second floor of University Center, once used as a study lounge and registration area, have been closed, according to Clarence Dougherty, director of the Center.

The construction blockade was erected over the Christmas break and returning students accustomed to using the area were greeted by the sound of workmen's hammers this week.

Dougherty explained that the area is part of the University Center expansion project and will be used for construction purposes.

The area will remain closed until the expansion project is completed.

Campus clocks run wild

"What time is it?" was asked frequently on campus Thursday and Friday because clocks in the University buildings did not synchronize with one another or with the correct time in many cases.

But they should be in proper working condition soon, probably today.

Herman Summers, supervisor of crafts at the SIU physical plant, said a representative of the Simplex Time Corp., St. Louis, is on campus to correct the situation. The firm operates the time system by contract with SIU.

Kennedy wins Senate post; McCarthy votes against him

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy turned aside pleas from liberals who supported his presidential bid and refused to back Sen. Edward M. Kennedy for assistant Democratic leader of the Senate.

The youngest and the last of the Kennedy brothers wrested the leadership post from Louisiana's Russell B. Long at a caucus of Democratic senators Friday by a 31-26 vote.

Neither McCarthy from

Minnesota nor Kennedy from Massachusetts would comment after the caucus, but the record indicates that some old political resentments may have been stronger than the men's common views on many political issues.

McCarthy called Kennedy Thursday afternoon and asked him to come to his office. When Kennedy arrived, the Minnesota liberal told him that he was going to stick with Long for party whip, or assistant leader.

Sources in a position to know said McCarthy contended that Kennedy's election would only give a semblance of party reform and the effect therefore would be to retard actual reforms.

Kennedy told newsmen they would have to ask McCarthy about his reasons for supporting Long.

McCarthy declined to give any detailed explanation. He said it would not be correct to say that Long's chairmanship of the Senate Finance Committee, on which McCarthy serves, was a guiding reason.

The ballot was secret, but three Democrats on the Finance Committee—Senators Albert Gore of Tennessee, Fred Harris of Oklahoma, and Abraham A. Ribicoff of Connecticut — announced their support for Kennedy before the vote.

Many friends who backed McCarthy for the presidential nomination last year reportedly called and wired him Thursday with pleas to vote for Kennedy.

Five rifles, ammunition stolen from SIU rifle range

Thieves snatched five rifles valued at almost $700, an estimated 2,263 rounds of ammunition, a small amount of cash, four gun cases and a transistor radio from the SIU rifle range sometime during Christmas break.

The break-in, which occurred on the third floor of Old Main, was discovered by SIU Security Police Thursday night.

The thieves had apparently pried open the doors into the rifle range and the doors on the gun rack, police said.

Three .22 caliber target rifles with scopes, valued at $200 each, and two .22 caliber single-shot rifles, valued at $40 each, were stolen.

The rifle range is not rifleless, however. Nineteen guns were left by the thieves.

Management Center serves area's needs during 1968

The concern of SIU for helping to solve area problems was well illustrated in activities during 1968 of the SIU Center for Management Development.

The Center, a service arm of the School of Business, had as one of its major projects during the year an extensive survey aimed at determining the feasibility of use of electronic computer services by Southern Illinois small businesses.

Climaxed by a three-day seminar on "Computer Applications in Management and

International week set for Jan. 11-18

Residents of Southern Illinois are invited to a week-long International Festival to be held at SIU Jan. 11-18.

The week will start with the traditional International nights, featuring exhibits and variety shows, Jan. 11-12. Sunday evening's program will be preceded by an International buffet dinner.

The Jan. 13 program will feature a talk by Willi Unsoeld entitled "Outward Bound on the West Ridge."

Unsoeld was a member of the first American party to climb Mount Everest and is currently the executive vice-president of Outward Bound, Inc. His talk, to include narration of a film on the climb, will begin at 8 p.m. in the University Center Ballrooms.

The International Relations Club will sponsor a talk by Herbert Marshall, visiting professor in theater from Great Britain, Jan. 14. Marshall was in Bratislava when the Warsaw Pact troops marched into Czechoslovakia last summer. His talk will deal with his observations and impressions of the event.

The SIU Women's Ensemble and International guest artists will perform music of various countries in the evening of Jan. 15.

The Convocation Series on Jan. 16 afternoon will present Albert Hibbs of Caltech's Jet Propulsion Laboratory, speaking on "Life in Other Worlds," and the international political effects of the race for space superiority.

Highlights during the rest of the week will include a film series to be presented by the University Museum. "The Kinetic Art," a collection of 26 creative films from eight nations, contains animated experimental, popular, documentary and dramatic material.

In addition, international dishes will be offered in the serving lines in the University Center cafeterias during the week.

Engineering Systems Analysis," the survey was conducted over a three-month period beginning in June. Teams of specialists were sent out to analyze in detail the management and engineering systems of 26 companies in the area.

The teams were made up of management specialists from the SIU School of Business and engineering experts from the School of Technology.

In sessions with company executives and managers, the SIU teams probed to find better ways for those businesses to use computers. According to Center Director R. Ralph Bedwell, the SIU experts were able in a number of cases to point out practical and economical applications of computers which the businessmen didn't realize were functions of the electronic marvels which are more often associated with sending men into space.

Another major project of the Center during 1968 was playing host in May to the annual regional conference of the National Council of Physical Distribution Management. In association with the SIU Transportation Institute, the Center staff's management knowhow was combined with that of specialists in other fields to explore the problems of inventory control and distribution.

Also in the spring, the Center joined forces with hospital management authorities to present a seminar on hospital administration. In cooperation with insurance executives from throughout Illinois a sales congress for life insurance underwriters was held. During the same period, the Center led the way in bringing together business leaders in the vicinity of Carbondale for a series of exploratory talks dealing with the role of the businessman in social crises.

On seven Thursday evenings from September to early November the Center sponsored a seminar on public relations tailored especially to the needs of smaller banks. The seminars were attended by representatives of financial institutions in Southern Illinois and nearby towns in Missouri and Kentucky.

Bedwell said the Center will be able to broaden the scope of its services to the Southern Illinois business community even further through the addition of two new staff members. Jack Leggett, formerly director of marketing for Maritz, Inc., and Charles O'Neal, on three-year leave from General Electric Co., both are applying their extensive business experience to Center operations while studying for doctoral degrees at SIU.

Chairmanship now open for 1969 Homecoming

Application blanks are available for students wishing to seek the chairmanship of the 1969 Homecoming steering committee. Applications must be submitted to the Student Activities Office by 5 p.m., Jan. 24.

Formerly, application deadline was spring quarter. The date was changed to allow more time for planning.

Cold weather may soon bring ice for skating at SIU lake

With near zero temperatures predicted for the area, sufficient freezing might occur soon on the Lake-on-the-Campus to permit ice skating.

The area which will be available for this activity is the cove directly north and west of the Campus Lake Boat House (east of Lentz Hall at Thompson Point and west of Picnic Area No. 6). The

Paul Schlipp to speak about moral challenge

Paul Arthur Schlipp, distinguished professor of philosophy at SIU, will address the regular Sunday morning service at 10:30 a.m. at the Meeting House of the Unitarian Fellowship, University and Elm.

His topic will be "A Challenge to Moral Courage," Schlipp, author of many books, is one of the two consultants in the United States to the Encyclopaedia Britannica and former President of the American Philosophical Association.

Two repertory dance performances cancelled

The Southern Repertory Dance Company performances scheduled today and Sunday have been cancelled, said Yvonne Walsh, director of publicity for the dance group.

The scheduled performances were "Hoff" and "Brupt As In A."

safe boundary will be marked by painted barrels on the lake.

The facility will be open for ice skating when the ice is at least three inches thick. Skating will be permitted only when the white safety flag is flying at the boat house and between 1 p.m. and dusk.

Skating is not permitted under four conditions: When the ice is melting, cracked or has holes; outside the specified area; when the snow covering is too thick; and when the ice is not at least three inches thick.

Throughout the winter months notices will be made on the ice conditions for skating.

SIU's Erickson helps with group publication

The discussion, "A Colloquium for Curriculum Leaders," will include school superintendents, principals and other school personnel involved in curriculum development.

John H. Erickson, professor in SIU's School of Technology, was a member of the committee which prepared a new guide for the American Vocational Association.

"The program will be focused on ways and means of creating a climate for changing educational practices to be more consistent with research findings and to help curriculum leaders become more enthusiastic about the possibilities of improving the quality factor in educational programs," Fishback said.

The booklet, "A Guide to Improving Instruction in Industrial Arts," is the result of five years of study and evaluation by leaders in the field. Erickson says the booklet contains many ideas in industrial arts education which have developed since the last edition of the booklet in 1953.

Besides his leadership in preparation and editing of 24 curriculum publications for teachers and administrators in Illinois, Fishback has written numerous articles and has conducted several nationally

Erickson says the booklet should help bring industrial arts education more in line with contemporary technology.

Rare music concert Monday

A unique concert of Medieval, Renaissance and Modern music will be presented by the SIU Collegium Musicum at 8 p.m. Monday in the Lutheran Center chapel. Secular and sacred sheet music, largely from the 14th to the 16th centuries, will be included. There is no admission charge. The program will feature works by Josquin des Pres, Antoine de Fevin, Pierre de la Rue, Johannes Ciconia, Andre Gabriel, Adam de la Halle, Guillaume de Machaut, and a modern piece by Paul Hindemith. Several works will include music for the recorder and the gamba bass, ancient instruments which historically preceded the flute and violin. Other selections will be voice presentations, mostly a cappella. Under the direction of Wesley K. Morgan, associate professor of musicology, the Collegium is studying ancient and rarely performed music. With the Harvard Anthology of Music as its source, the group is recording these rarely heard pieces under the Pleiades label. Many of the works on Monday's program will be included in the next recording.

Pledges clean up playground

The gardener's life—which Sigma Pi's pledge class has been play acting the past two weeks—has resulted in the reconstruction on one of Murphysboro's playgrounds. The playground, which was little more than an accident-prone junk yard, has been cleared of broken bottles, rocks, glass, old cars and debris and turned into a usable recreation site. Located in a low-income section of Murphysboro, the playground was selected as the pledge class community project "to get rid of the bad taste in people's mouths when they hear the word fraternity." Tom Scherschel, pledge class president, said. The first weekend the 15 pledges removed rubbish in the rain and repaired and arranged the playground equipment, Scherschel said. The second weekend the equipment was sanded and refinished in bright colors. The project was accomplished in cooperation with the local VISTA chapter.

Library gets Carus family manuscripts

Delicate art

This is one of several pieces to be exhibited in a one-man show by Bill H. Boyesen, SIU glassmaker, at the Craft Alliance in St. Louis Sunday through Jan. 31. This piece also will be shown in February at the Bibb Gallery in Peoria.

African art exhibit to open Wednesday

An exhibit of African art, a special reception and a lecture will be presented Wednesday in the Home Economics Building.

The exhibit will be open in Mitchell Gallery from 7 to 10 p.m. with a public reception to be held in the gallery at that time. Music will be presented by student musicians and refreshments will be served.

An illustrated lecture will be presented at 8 p.m. by Roy Sieber, chairman of the Department of Art at Indiana University. His lecture is entitled "The Royal Arts of Ghana" and will be given in Room 140B of the Home Economics Building.

The largest collection of manuscripts as yet acquired by the Morris Library has been deposited in the University archives by the Carus family of LaSalle, Ill.

The collection of approximately 60,000 letters and manuscript pages represents the archives of Paul Carus, philosopher and editor, and the Open Court Publishing Company at LaSalle, which he made "the most important publishing center for philosophy in America for more than 30 years," according to Ralph E. McCoy, director of libraries.

The greater part of the unpublished manuscripts in the Carus collection consists of Carus' correspondence in the period from 1887 to 1913.

Files of manuscripts in various stages of preparation for publication, galley proofs, and original art work for book illustrations also are in the collection.

The Carus papers, under an agreement with the Carus family, are to be available to qualified scholars without regard to University affiliation, McCoy said.

"Dr. Carus and his associates conducted a voluminous correspondence with philosophers, scientists and men of letters throughout the world, so that the archives offer a major source for the historical study of philosophy from 1888 to 1920," McCoy said.

Carus, born in Ilsenburg, Germany, in 1852, was brought to the United States in 1887 by Edward C. Hegeler, Chicago zinc manufacturer, to edit the Open Court, a new journal which he had established at LaSalle, to be devoted to the establishment of religion and ethics on a scientific basis.

Carus is the author of more than 1,000 works, more than 50 of them books, including "Fundamental Problems," "The Soul of Man," "Buddhism and Its Christian Critics," "Kant and Spencer: a Study of the Fallacies of Agnosticism," "Chinese Thought," and "Truth on Trial."

One of the Open Court's major series is the "Library of Living Philosophers," edited by Prof. Paul A. Schilpp, SIU professor of philosophy.

Arrangements for the deposit of the papers were made by Lewis H. Han, research professor of philosophy, Kenneth W. Duckett, University archivist, and McCoy. Duckett is in charge of organizing the papers and making them available for use. They are now being microfilmed so that the Carus family will have a film record.

Six musical events announced

The Department of Music is sponsoring six events during the week of January 12.

The Algeid Brass Quintet will perform at 4 p.m. Sunday at Shryock Auditorium.

Jean Anne McRoy and Peggy Parkinson will be featured in a student recital at 8 p.m. Monday in Davis Auditorium of the Wham Education Building.

A visiting artist recital, featuring Dale Moore and Ernst Wolf, will be presented at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Shryock and Herbert Levinson and Dwight Peltzer will give a faculty recital Thursday.

Howard Brown will conduct the University of Chicago Musicum at 8 p.m. Friday in Room 140E of the Home Economics Building. The Male Glee Club, conducted by Robert Kingsbury, will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday at Shryock.

Sideburns popular

By John Durbin

Nearly every male has considered growing them. Some grow them long, while others like them short. Still others discover they can't grow them at all.

Businessmen and college students alike have rejuvenated the age-old sideburns craze. Many men with sideburns apparently believe they look virile and attractive to the opposite sex.

Growing sideburns is certainly nothing new. Herman Entsminger Jr., a Carbondale barber said "It is just another period like those which have come and gone in the past."

"It is a fad in which men feel they look better. I think they look nice on persons who have a full head of hair provided they are grown to about the bottom of the ear."

Entsminger, who noticed sideburns came back into style about a year ago, said there is no question that many customers "are a little leary of letting us touch them. They feel their sideburns are a part of them."

More than half of the students and Carbondale businessmen have sideburns, according to Entsminger. But he said only 25-30 per-cent of them have sideburns extending below the ear lobe.

Entsminger constantly is asked by his customers whether their sideburns are developing properly. He said a number of customers without sideburns have asked him for his advice on how they would look with them.

"Men are becoming more conscious today of their appearance and seem to be more interested in taking care of their hair," Entsminger said.

It is not unusual for a young man to come into his shop and ask for "instant sideburns," he said.

There are two ways to get "instant sideburns," according to Entsminger. "We can either trim their hair and make their sideburns look darker or else they can buy fake sideburns we can get from the barber supply house," he said.

James T. Mullane, a senior majoring in radio and television from East St. Louis, claims to be one of the first persons to grow sideburns before the current fad begun.

"I did not do it to conform to what everyone else was doing," he said, "I wanted to grow them to see if they looked good. They did. And so I kept them."

Mullane, who has sideburns to about a quarter of an inch above the bottom of his ear, says he does not like thick, bushy "burns" that extend as far as the cheekbone.

Although Mullane prides himself in keeping his sideburns neat and trim, he readily admits that if an employer demanded he shave them before he could be hired "I would cut them off."

Joel Williamson, a senior majoring in accounting from Springfield, says he grew his sideburns, which are even with the bottom of his ear lobes, for two reasons:

"I think persons with them are more attractive than those without them, and I wanted to be different."

He admits now that the fad has caught fire he no longer is different. But he says he likes sideburns and doesn't plan to cut them off.

Williamson believes the college campus atmosphere gives many students an opportunity to experiment in growing sideburns. He says they may not wish to experiment if they're working rather than going to school.

A sophomore from Chicago says he had a specific reason for growing sideburns.

"My sideburns, which are almost to the bottom of my ear lobes, do not make my nose look so big," says Roger Harris, who is majoring in psychology.

Harris says he did not grow his sideburns to attract girls but to enhance his general appearance.

Although some employers object to their employees wearing sideburns, few college coeds express opposition.

"I like them when they are grown about even to the bottom of your ear lobes," says Nancy Kifer, a freshman majoring in elementary education from Wheaton.

Miss Kifer said, however, she does not think men with kinky hair should grow sideburns because they look bushy and unkempt.

Another coed, Gwen Martin a sophomore majoring in business management from Crete, casts her vote for sideburns:

"I like a fellow with sideburns who has a good head of hair. I don't go for the military-type of crewcuts."

But Miss Martin may have another reason for being partisan towards sideburns. Her husband sports dark sideburns and a "good" head of hair.

Manpower program aids hundreds

More than 2,000 Southern Illinoisans have found new jobs and higher pay, thanks to the Manpower Training Centers operated by SIU.

Manpower Training is a project of the federal government to teach new skills to the unemployed or underemployed. The SIU Division of Technical and Adult Education is the operator and centers are located at the Ordill-Crab Orchard area, near Marion and in East St. Louis.

William E. Nagel, associate dean and head of the University's Manpower Training program, estimates 475 persons will be graduated from the courses at Ordill during this fiscal year, while 363 are receiving training at the East St. Louis Center.

Courses include drafting, welding, TV repair, auto service, auto body repair, practical nursing, machine operations and clerical skills.

SIU's efforts in job training for the disadvantaged began in 1962 under the Area Redevelopment Act, Nagel said, and have continued under the Manpower program. He estimated that 4,000 to 4,500 people have received job training at the two centers.

"About 70 to 75 per cent of the trainees graduate from their courses," Nagel said. "Of these, about 82 per cent are placed. Thus, about 65 per cent of those who enroll in our program eventually graduate and find jobs in the field for which they were trained."

Training received at the two SIU-operated centers does make a difference.

Nagel cited an example of eight men who, before their training, were receiving unemployment compensation. All graduated from the welding course at Ordill and now are making $4.18 per hour in the trade.

Every graduate of the practical nursing course who applied for a license has successfully passed the state examination, Nagel said, while only one student has failed the state cosmetology examination.

"Placement for practical nurses and draftsmen has been 100 per cent and nearly as good in several of the other fields," Nagel said.

Training courses range in length from 18 weeks for auto service to 52 weeks for practical nursing. The average is 24 to 30 weeks.

For those who are not educationally equipped to begin in one of the occupational programs, the Manpower program offers a 24-week "Orientation and Adjustment" course. In this course, Nagel said, four hours are spent each day on reading, spelling, and arithmetic, without which the trainee could not succeed in the vocational programs. For the other four hours, there are classes in home making for women and home repairs for men.

This basic education, Nagel said, is continued during the vocational training, when two hours each day are spent on skills which relate to the specialization.

Trainees are referred to the program by the Illinois State Employment Service, partners with the University in the Manpower program.

If qualified, each trainee receives a basic allowance of $46 per week plus $5 per week per dependent up to six. Each also receives a mileage allowance if his home is too distant to commute.

Developing proper attitudes toward work is one of the most important functions of the Manpower program, Nagel said. "Skills are easy to teach, but motivation is what comes hard."

"We try to instill motivation through close relationships between instructors and counselors and the trainees."

Unique Lusk wildlife refuge in danger of being flooded

One of the most unique wildlife refuges in Illinois is in danger of being flooded, according to Roger B. Anderson, assistant professor of botany at SIU.

The U.S. Forest Service has proposed to build a dam near Golconda that would turn the Lusk Creek area in Pope County into a lake, said Anderson. Because of its unusual terrain and many different types of wild life, it is unique, he continued, and should be set aside and preserved. "This," he said, "is the way it is most valuable."

Anderson's efforts to preserve the Lusk Creek Area include letters to district representatives in Washington, the publishing of a brochure with information on why Lusk Creek should be preserved and the circulation of a petition among interested conservationists. The signatures on the petition include fifty-seven SIU staff members from various departments, and ten members of the Forest Service.

The dam and lake proposed by the Forest Service would be purely for recreational purposes, according to Anderson, and would be of no flood control or irrigation value.

Several artificial lakes have been proposed for Pope County to attract vacationers. The elimination of this one would probably not hurt the economic development of the county, he said, since Lusk Creek is a good recreation area as it is.

Construction on the proposed dam is not scheduled to begin for about four years.

Stiff competition

Saluki cagers to play tonight, Monday

The SIU cagers will be up against stiff competition tonight and again Monday night as they take on, first, Abilene Christian and then play Kentucky Wesleyan.

SIU will attempt to extend its record to 7-2 when they meet Abilene Christian at 8:05 tonight in the Arena.

Although the Wildcats have only three wins in ten starts, they have looked impressive in two of those losses, 65-62 to Memphis State and 108-97 at the hands of Oklahoma City.

"They always have one of the finest college division teams, and now they are in the university division," commented Saluki Coach Jack Hartman. Abilene Christian is a member of the Southland Conference which was organized in 1963.

"You may remember that two years ago they (Abilene) had a 10 point lead at the half against us, and we had to fight for our lives to win," continued Coach Hartman.

The Wildcats' big gun is 6-6 cornerman Marion Lewis who carries a 20.2 average into the SIU game. Last season he led the Southland Conference with a .833 free throw mark.

But Lewis isn't the only scoring threat Abilene has because two other starters are hitting in double figures.

Ronnie Hearne, a 6-3 sophomore guard, "is a torrid shooter with a great variety of shots. He has a lot of court savvy," said Abilene Coach Dew Nutt. Hearne is clipping the nets at a 15.6 average.

With a 12.7 average, Ronnie Nicholas, a 6-3 guard and forward, is a team leader and an excellent floor man.

A 6-7 center, Keth Johnson "is a strong, aggressive individual with good jumping ability and quickness," stated Coach Nutt.

Abilene's lineup is rounded out by 6-0 guard Harry Cannon who gives them a good outside scoring punch although he is averaging just 9.9 points a game.

Then on Monday night the number one college division team in the nation, defending NCAA college division basketball champs, and the winner of 29 straight, Kentucky Wesleyan, invades the SIU Arena at 8:05 p.m.

"We have the two biggest games of the season coming up," Panther Coach Bob Daniels said. "Evansville and SIU are out two biggest rivals."

Wesleyan will carry an all-time record into its Saturday game with Evansville. The Panthers have won 13 consecutive road games, bettering the old high of 11. Evansville was the last team to beat the Panthers on the road last year, 71-64.

But the last team to beat Kentucky Wesleyan was none other than the Salukis in a 63-62 white knuckler last season in Owensboro.

"We know that when we come to Southern that win or lose we'll have played a tough game," Daniels added. "Last season all we had to try to do was to bottle up Dick Garrett, but this season it looks like they'll all be hitting the mark."

The Panthers come packed with potential shooting power with George Tinsley, a 6-4 All-American, pacing KWC in both scoring and rebounding. Tinsley is averaging 22.3 points per game and 14.1 rebounds.

Tinsley has been a double figure scorer in 39 consecutive games and has scored in double figures in 80 of his 98 games as a starter for the Panthers.

The other double figure scorers for Wesleyan are sophomore Gene Smith with a 15.5 average and Joel Bolden at 10.6.

Man for man, SIU boasts a one of two inches height advantage. The Panthers center in only 6-6 compared to Bruce Butchko's 6-7 or Chuck Benson's 6-4. In the guard position Dick Garrett 6-3, Willie Griffin 6-3, Rex Barker 6-1, or Roger Westbrook, 6-0 have a slight edge on Tom Hobgood, 6-1 and Steve Deskins, 6-0.

Both teams go with a 1-3-1 offensive pattern and man-to-man defense.

Garrett, Barker, Westbrook, Tom McBride and Juarez Rosborough have had sore throats all week but are expected to play in both today's and Monday's games.

All-American George Tinsley aims for the basket. Tinsley and crew will invade the Arena Monday night as Kentucky Wesleyan, top-ranked college division team meets the Salukis.

Wrestlers to meet Morehead State after vacation layoff

"We let the boys rest over vacation," Coach Linn Long, SIU wrestling coach said. "If you work them too hard, too early, they can get too tired of the sport and become disinterested."

After a long vacation rest and a pre-holiday 23-9 victory over Bloomsburg State College, the SIU wrestlers are preparing for their next meet Jan. 11 at Morehead State College, Morehead, Minn.

The Bloomsburg meet was the first dual meet for the former Colorado coach and his grapplers, who dominated the Illinois Invitational in their initial outing.

Four Saluki wrestlers, Jan Gitcho, Terry Magoon, Rich Casey, and Ben Cooper kept their personal unbeaten marks in the no-pin match that found Cooper winning by forfeit.

Bob Underwood, a 167-pound wrestler, will be lost to the team for the quarter because of grade ineligibility.

Results of the Bloomsburg meet:

115-Gitcho (S) decisioned Keth Taylor (B), 13-4

123-Wayne Heim (B) decisioned Rich Bledsoe (S), 11-5

130-Magoon (S) decisioned Wayne Smyth (B), 14-1

137-Ron Russo (B) decisioned Jim Cook (S), 10-5

145-Russ Schuener (B) decisioned Denny Kraft (S) 7-4

152-Rich Casey (S) decisioned Jim Owen (B), 13-5

160-Tom Duke (S) decisioned Arnold Thompson (B), 8-2

167-Bob Underwood (S) decisioned Jim Wallace (B), 6-0

177-Ben Cooper (S) won by forfeit

HWT-Bob Roop (S) decisioned Jim McCue (B).

Starrick comes to SIU

By Gary Coll

"It's an ill wind that blows no good."

The ill wind blew in Lexington Thursday as Coach Adolph Rupp of the University of Kentucky basketball team announced that 6-2 170-pound potential All-American Greg Starrick, former Marion High School star had quit the team.

A substantially less ill wind blew early Friday in Carbondale as Greg Starrick, still a potential All-American, completed registration for the winner quarter 1969 at SIU.

When asked about his reasons for quitting at Kentucky, Starrick replied "I wanted to play ball. It's no disgrace to be the sixth man for third-ranked (nationally) Kentucky, but I wanted to play ball."

Although Starrick will not be eligible to play for Southern until Jan., 1970, he stated that he will try out for the team at that time. According to Donald Boydston, SIU athletic director, Starrick could become eligible to compete intercollegiate in basketball Jan. 3, 1970, could be able to compete during the entire 1970-71 campaign and until Jan. 3, 1972.

However, when contacted at about 4:30 p.m. Friday, Boydston stated that at that time he knew nothing about Starrick's enrollment at Southern.

"I feel that SIU has as much to offer as Kentucky did. They have winning basketball teams and they will continue to have them," Starrick said.

"SIU is closer to home, also, and I would be happier playing ball in Southern Illinois than I was in Kentucky." He stated that he had already talked with SIU coach Jack Hartman but said nothing of that conversation. Hartman said that Starrick could not be reached for comment.

However, Dick Jones, coach of Marion High School, Marion, Ill. said "I don't believe that Starrick will have any difficulty fitting into the SIU basketball program; in fact, he would be a great addition to anyone's program."

"He was the best high school guard that I had ever seen. He is an above average defensive player, and a real team man, although his scoring doesn't indicate this."

Starrick averaged 16.5 points per game as a sophomore at Marion, 30.3 as a junior and 33.5 as a senior. His career high was a 70-point effort as a senior against West Frankfort. He contributed 1975 points during his high school career.

Honors accumulated by Starrick in connection with his high school basketball efforts include: First Team All-American—Parade Magazine; and all-state awards from Chicago's American, Chicago Daily News, Rockford News, Champaign News-Gazette, Evansville Sunday Courier.

He was also elected to the first Team All-American by Basketball Yearbook, and was the 1966 Carbondale Holiday Tournament Most Valuable Player.

At Kentucky, he was the second highest scorer for the freshman team and as a sophomore hit at the foul line for a 90-per cent effort.

As the sixth man on the Wildcats this season, however, he played only 77-minutes in seven of Kentucky's eight games, scored 37-points and pulled down nine rebounds.

Starrick may be counted a double-threat in that he was also a short-stop on the Kentucky baseball team. He will be eligible to play three years of baseball at SIU.

Parachutists place in meet

The SIU Parachute Club team garnered third place in the 7th Annual National Collegiate Parachute Championships, held during Christmas break at Zephyr Hills, Fla.

"SIU defeated more than 50 colleges and universities in the nation, bowing only to the Air Force Academy and to the Army team," said Randy Kidd, president of the club.

"The 12-member team was the best ever to represent SIU at a meet of this caliber."

Gymnasts to host fighting Illini

At 2 p.m. today the SIU gymnasts host their second Big Ten foe in as many days when Illinois visits the Arena.

Last year the Salukis began their dual meet activity with a victory over the Illini on the way to an 11-1 mark.

However, Illini Coach Charles Pond is optimistic about his team's chances on avenging this 189,15-182,90 loss to Southern a year ago at Champaign, Pond believes his squad is improved and that Southern may not be quite as strong this year.

Kidd continued.

Paul Wolfram led the team with a third in the overall individual category, fourth in the individual accuracy event, fourth in advanced accuracy and fifth in style.

Others placing in the meet were Carmen Romeo, second in novice accuracy, and Gale Beachum, fourth in that event.

Tony Kollier took second in intermediate accuracy; Bill Becker, sixth; and Dennis Waryas tenth.

Other team members were Gary Edwards, Dan Martin, Jim Owen and Bob Zlech.

Frosh to play two

The SIU freshmen basketball team will try to add two victories to its record within the next three days.

SIU's yearlings, idle for almost a month, host Belleville Junior College at 5:45 tonight in the Arena, and host Wabash Valley Junior College at 5:45 p.m. Monday in the Arena.

Both of these junior college squads are members of the Southern Illinois College Conference.
