Residents enjoy Independence Day

Students cite similarities in celebrations

By Micki Delhaute McGowan
Staff Writer

Celebrations, much like America's Fourth of July, take place all over the world.

International University students expressed pleasure in the Independence Day festivities, and cited similarities that occur in their own countries.

Kum Chong Lau, an electrical engineering student from Singapore, went to St. Louis last year to see the fireworks and said that Singapore celebrates its day of independence on "National Day."

"The fireworks were great. I had never seen anything like it before," Lau said. Lau also said he enjoys the Fourth of electrical engineering student from India, said that India celebrates its day of independence and Republican

People were scarce on the streets, but Old Glory was seen waving proudly all over Carbondale.

Independence Day was more than just a day off to those celebrating in Carbondale, as families and friends gathered in parks and picnic areas.

"Remembering Independence Day is important," Jia-Yuan Han, instructor of electrical engineering, said. "I came here from China so I enjoy Democracy and freedom here. You know what happened in China...it's a good, good day."

Cartersville legislator claims days are same, arena varies

By John Welblay
Staff Writer

Rep. Larry Woolard, in his first term as a state legislator, claims the arena was different, but the long working hours in the Illinois House weren't.

"I've been a 16-hour-a-day person my whole life," Woolard said. "It's no different now."

The freshman legislator from Cartersville finished his first session in Springfield last week describing the last week of the session "frantic and intense."

Woolard named assault rifle legislation and Michael Madigan's two-year income tax increase proposal among the most important proposals acted on during the session.

The rural health care bills, which are on their way to Gov. James R. Thompson, were spearheaded by Sen. Jim Rea, D-Christopher, with whom Woolard and Rep. David Phelps, D-Eldorado, worked to get the bills passed.

"All three of us worked very closely to get the bills passed,"

Woolard said. "Of course we were disappointed when the one (bill) didn't pass."

Six of seven bills related to health care passed in the General Assembly Friday.

The bills, if approved by Thompson, would create ambulance services, incentives for physicians and nurses and health care centers for the underserved areas of Illinois.

"Stable ambulance services is one of the key needs of rural Illinois," Woolard said. "The long distances and dispersed populations of Southern Illinois make the ambulance business expensive and hard to operate with a profit."

Woolard stressed the importance of his role in protecting educational concerns of Illinois.

"Funding for education was one of my top priorities when I came to Springfield," Woolard said. "Quite honestly, when I went to Springfield, hopes for a tax plan like the Madigan-Rock plan were not high."

Woolard said the funds from this tax plan will be statutorily directed to those needs, without going through the state government.

Now that the legislative session is over, Woolard says he plans to address the area and the people he represents.

"I'm going to be at the task of getting to meet some of the constituents in the areas I serve," Woolard said. "I need to get to know what they're about and what they think I should be about."

Abortion ruling sparks mixed reactions in area

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

The Supreme Court has given the states a tighter grip on circumstances surrounding the issue of abortion, and University students and local citizens are speaking out.

In a 5-4 vote, the Supreme Court ruled that the state has a right to limit funding for abortion and make abortion illegal after the first trimester of pregnancy.

Although many pro-life groups see the ruling as a step in the right direction, the pro-choice groups are calling the decision a war against women.

Cass Var Der Meer, president of the Shawnee National Organization for Women, said the decision indeed "declared a war against women."

She said if Illinois passes a law making abortion illegal after the first trimester, the abortion process will be "slowed down and expenses will increase a great deal."

Debbie Jo Greathouse, director of Birthright, said her organization will continue to offer an alternative to abortion.

Greathouse said making abortion illegal after the first trimester would be one small step towards life for many unborn children.

Susan Morton, director of the Hope Clinic for Women, said she felt "very strongly that taking away a woman's right to privacy is a very dangerous issue. Each woman should be aware of all the options and then make her own decision."

The Wellness Center, in Keshar Hall, provides pregnant students with counselors willing to discuss such options.

"We don't encourage or discourage abortion," Jamie Shaw, a graduate assistant in sexuality services, said. "We discuss all the options openly with

Minorities program a trade off of work, study

By Tim Crosby
Staff Writer

While studies project a large turnover in University faculty by the year 2000, two state programs under the direction of SIU-C's Irene H. Johnson are building a pool of minority faculty to take their place.

The programs are available to black, hispanic and Asian Americans, as well as American Indians and Alaskan natives who have been accepted to a post-graduate program at an Illinois public or private institution of higher education.

They provide up to $10,000 per year for up to four years, which the recipient agrees to pay back by serving at an Illinois institution in a teaching or non-teaching capacity for the same number of years as they received funding.

"It avoids having to take out another loan," explained Johnson, who has been the administrator of the program since March. "Students usually have had enough of that by the time they've graduated anyway."

Although the programs target minority students,

Johnson said everyone benefits from its results.

"There are many caucasian students who have never had the opportunity to have a professor who is a minority member," Johnson said. "This type of learning experience is what higher education is all about."

Statewide, there are 74 students enrolled in the two programs, including 12 at SIU-C.

Johnson said there has been sufficient funding so far, though the Illinois Board of Higher Education will soon present them with the exact dollar amount for the new fiscal year.

"The new tax increase should help us some. We'll have to wait and see what the board gives us to be sure," Johnson said, adding that she would like to see 150 students enrolled as a long-term goal.

Amia Rife, a graduate student working toward a doctorate in journalism, said she decided to be a teacher after seeing a need for better trained students while working

Soviet jet bomber crashes; pilot bails out over Poland

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — A Soviet fighter-bomber whose pilot reportedly ejected over Poland flew more than 500 miles without a crew over Western Europe Tuesday before crashing into a house in Belgium, killing one person. The unmanned MiG-23 warplane was tailed by two U.S. fighters from West Germany until it apparently ran out of fuel and crashed near the city of Courtrai, 50 miles west of Brussels near the French border, Belgian and NATO officials said. Belgium is headquarters of the NATO alliance.

Vatican: Court has not solved abortion issue

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano said Tuesday the Supreme Court decision giving states broad rights to restrict abortion "has not resolved the kernel of the problem." L'Osservatore Romano gave the first Vatican judgment on Monday's Washington court ruling in a page 2 commentary titled, "The problem of the suppression of conceived life remains."

China arrests reporter for harboring fugitive

BEIJING (JPI) — Chinese security officials confirmed Tuesday that a Taiwan newspaper reporter is under arrest for allegedly harboring and aiding a fugitive student leader at the top of the government's wanted list. Taiwan journalists said. The incident presented a delicate political problem for Taipei, which has no formal relations with Beijing, and was seen as a new warning to citizens of Taiwan, Hong Kong and Macao that they are treated on the mainland as Chinese.

North spends 4th of July awaiting sentencing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ex-White House aide Oliver North spent Independence Day awaiting the prospect of a jail term for his conviction on three crimes arising from the Iran-Contra scandal. North, 45, who played an instrumental role in the worst political scandal of the Reagan administration, faced sentencing Wednesday before U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell.

Man loses fingers in firecracker explosion

ROSCOE, N.Y. (UPI) — A bizarre Fourth of July weekend firecracker accident tore three fingers from the hand of a camper and embedded one of them in his right eye, police said Tuesday. ### Investigator calls office building a 'fire trap'

ATLANTA (UPI) — Atlanta's fire chief said an investigator seven years ago reported safety problems at an office building that erupted in flames last week, killing five people and injuring at least 20 more. JOLIET, Ill. # Student documentary films to be featured on television

By Carrie Pomeroy
Staff Writer

In the past twelve years, the short documentary films of students in the University's Cinema and Photography Department have been shown at film festivals around the globe and have garnered major awards such as the National Student Academy Award, the Nissan Student Film Award, and the Gold Medal Belgium.

Carbondale film-lovers will get a chance to view some of these honored student films this summer when WSU-TV8, in conjunction with the Cinema and Photography Department, presents "Documentary Showcase," a series of half-hour television programs featuring student documentaries.

"Documentary Showcase" airs Tuesdays at 8:30 p.m. beginning July 18. The first films featured are Pat Kay's "Voicks," a depiction of the ritual of fox hunting in Southern Illinois and Missouri, and John Behnke's "Norma Jean," which shows the effect of a circus elephant's death on Illinois townspeople. Behnke's film won the National Student Academy Award in 1988.

Other films planned for July include Michelle Madison's "Glass Blower" on July 25, which documents the craft of an Illinois glass blower. "Sophisticated Baby," a film about a children's beauty pageant by Nedra Coleman, also shown July 25.

The remaining films, which include "September/December," "Steve and Rosie," "Manifest," and "Crossing Borders," will be shown in August and September. According to cinema and photography professor Mike Covell, who initiated and helped create the series, seven programs are ready to be shown, and three more need to be worked on to resolve problems with running time.

The quality of the films and the number of awards received by the University's film students is a testimony to the students' persistence and drive, Covell said.

Filmmakers here receive less funding and material support than students at famous film schools such as the University of Southern California, yet they compete successfully with these schools, Covell noted. At the last Midwest Regional Student Academy Awards, three out of the six films screened were made by students of the University's cinema and photography department.

"Documentary Showcase" was produced primarily to share this honored student work with the University community, Covell said. Since many of the films are at least a decade old and many of the films' directors have gone on to careers in the film industry, the series was not made to benefit the films' creators.

"(The series) is a chance for people in the community to see something they don't normally get to see," said cinema and photography chairperson Dave Gilmore.

Fireworks offenders face fine, six months in jail

By Richard Goldstein
Staff Writer

Most people know that fireworks are illegal in Illinois, but what most people probably don't know is that the maximum penalty for exploding them is a $500 fine and six months in jail.

Just for lighting a firecracker.

John Richter, operations officer for Illinois State Police District 13, said "We will encounter some and we will arrest some" people using fireworks.

But, Richter said "what we're concerned with more than the enforcement side of it (is people getting hurt), particularly young people who it seems are usually the victims of fireworks accidents."

According to newspaper reports, thousands of people, mostly teenage and younger, are injured each year by accidents involving fireworks.

Injuries involving fireworks often are to the eyes and the result can be blindness.

But the SIU-C students at 506 S. Forest St. seemed unconcerned with either injury or incarceration Tuesday.

John Harkaway, a 25-year-old senior in electrical engineering technology, said a Carbondale police officer warned him and his friends to stop lighting the fireworks and confiscated some the night before.

But, he said, they still plan to ignite all four grocery bags of their Missouri-bought contraband.

"We got away with about 1,000 bottle rockets before the cops came by," Harkaway said, as a bottle rocket zinged out of his hand and skipped down the street

Hart's stadium goal
a calling for support

UNIVERSITY Athletic Director Jim Hart and the athletic department are working toward a goal that has been attempted many times but never accomplished.

The 17,324 seats at McAndrew Stadium have never been fully occupied so Hart has started a "Stadium Sellout Day" promotion scheduled for Sept. 9.

The Saluki football team, under first-year coach Bob Smith, will play its first home game against the defending Gateway Conference Champion Leathernecks of Western Illinois under the promotion.

The Saluki's have not beaten the Leathernecks since 1983, the year the Saluki's won the NCAA Division I-AA title.

HART HAS his work cut out for him. Even in the championship season of '83 McAndrew failed to reach capacity.

We have all heard the rhetoric coming out of the athletic department concerning a full stadium in the past but this year the rhetoric may prove to be true.

This year the words seem to be followed by action. Hart has been out rallying local municipalities in an effort to drum up support for football in Southern Illinois.

His formation of population based "Big Ten" and "Elite Eight" communities in the area to sell tickets for the promotion are reasonable steps toward the goal of a full stadium.

BIG TEN communities, including Carterville, Herrin and Benton, are given a goal of 100 tickets to sell while Elite Eight communities, including Sparta, Chester and Johnston City are given a goal of 50.

Carbondale has a goal of 750 tickets while Marion and Murphysboro each are asked to sell 200.

When students return from their summer vacation the plan is to bombard them with the promotion in an effort to get greater campus support for the football team. The starting time of the game will also be moved later in the afternoon to allow for a cooler atmosphere.

AS OF LATE any conversation, article or commentary revolving around Saluki football inevitably reverts back to the financial controversy that ensued after Anthropology Professor Jerome Handler raised questions about the financial stability of the football program.

Whether Hart's attempts at a full stadium are in response to the controversy or not remains to be seen but in any event we support his efforts to promote Saluki football and SIUC.

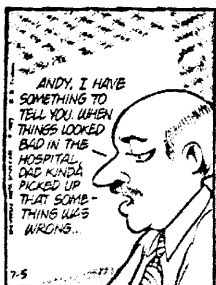

Smith and his players are faced with a difficult challenge. A first year coach, players that have had three different coaches in as many years and the financial troubles facing the program are tough hurdles for the team to surmount and they need the help of all of Southern Illinois.

If Hart can get the turnstiles at the stadium moving as fast as the revolving door at the head coach's office and Southern Illinois does its part, we'll all be looking for a seat come opening day.

HOW TO SUBMIT A LETTER TO THE EDITOR:

AT WHAT POINT DID YOU DECIDE TO RETIRE TO THIS REMOTE LITTLE ISLAND IN ORDER TO GET AWAY FROM AMERICANS?

WHEN THEY BECAME MORE CONCERNED ABOUT BURNING THE FLAG THAN BURNING TEENAGERS OR THE MENTALLY RETARDED.

Letters

America founded on a religious ideal
'under God' embraces shared belief

I am concerned with the beliefs expressed by Andrew Hendricks in his June 28th letter about religion. Mr. Hendricks states that the phrase "...under God" denotes a state religion, which is rendered unconstitutional by the First Amendment.

What Andrew has forgotten is that America was founded on a religious ideal. The Declaration of Independence refers to a deity a number of times using the terms "creator" and "judge of the world" among others. The word "used" doesn't really matter, it's the ideal behind it. The belief that there is but one true religion became outdated in modern times. Now more than ever people are embracing the idea of a divine presence, given different names by different people.

The American word for this presence is God; hence it is used in the Pledge of Allegiance.

The word God can, thus, be interpreted as such by the individual. The First Amendment gives the freedom to choose religion, not freedom from religion. I believe a rigid, literal interpretation of the Constitution would result in a society devoid of any religious belief, tradition, or morals. The day this country becomes like that is the day I want to die. God Bless America! — Chris Medlin, sophomore in anthropology.

Texans in trucks are not necessarily 'rednecks'

This letter is in reference to the comments made by Jane Johnson in the June 29th edition of the Daily Egyptian. Miss Johnson stated, "most people in Texas are rude and bigoted and drive pick-up trucks." I can't help but wonder if Miss Johnson is a native Texan or was just held prisoner there against her will.

Texas is a large state covering a large portion of the Southwestern United States. Needless to say, people differ from one region of the state to the other. It is obvious that Miss Johnson's Texas is limited to the malls and country clubs of either Houston or Dallas.

I'm proud to say that I'm a Texan, and yes I drive a pick-up; so what? It seems to me from Miss Johnson's comments that she is a bigot. When you start judging people by what they drive, you not only show your ignorance but also your bigotry. Perhaps Miss Johnson, you should take a hard look at yourself before commenting on all the other Texans who are inferior to you and your pompous sophistication.

The time that I have spent here in Southern Illinois has been pleasant and enjoyable. The people here have been friendly and have made me feel welcome. Upon graduation I plan to return to Texas, not because I'm a "redneck," but because I'm a Texan. — Paul Panepinto, senior in aviation management.

Supreme Court term enacts many goals of Reagan years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 1988-89 Supreme Court term marked the true beginning of the Rehnquist court and the year the Reagan revolution reached the judicial branch of government.

Chief Justice William Rehnquist, working for the first time with a solid five-member conservative majority, began enacting many of the goals of the Reagan administration. Abortion rights were restricted, affirmative action was scaled back, the death penalty advanced and drug testing approved.

In case after case, Rehnquist, a 17-year high court veteran named chief justice by President Reagan in 1986, led the court in not only undoing what many conservatives viewed as the excesses of the court's liberals but in making their own law in such emerging areas as drug testing.

"In terms of the court as an institution, it was a very important term," said A.E. Dick Howard, a University of Virginia law professor and former Supreme Court clerk.

"In some respects, it's as important a term as we've had in 25 years. Not since the mid-1960s have we seen the emergence of a predictable working majority. That's what we've seen this term ... a conservative working majority."

In only two notable cases can it be said that Ronald Reagan's agenda of restoring pride in America and reasserting family values failed to carry the day — flag burning and dial-a-porn.

In the flag case, Justice William Brennan wrote that flag burning as part of a political protest was constitutionally protected by the First Amendment guarantee of freedom of speech. The 5-4 majority included two defectors from the Rehnquist camp — Justices Antonin Scalia and Anthony Kennedy, both Reagan appointees.

our clients and the decision is up to them."

William Tucker, a junior in education, said a abortion should be legal under any circumstance and the state should have the right to delegate funds.

"Women should have the right to get an abortion any time during their pregnancy," Tucker said. "I believe life begins at birth, not at conception."

As long as abortion is not illegal, the state should have the right to support abortion clinics or not support them, Tucker said. As long as abortion is legal, some clinics will survive.

John Shaw, a continuing student in history, shares the same opinion.

"I am definitely against making abortion illegal," Shaw said. "What about the women who were raped or their lives are in danger because of the pregnancy? What would happen if they couldn't have an abortion?"

Jaime Ramig, a sophomore in business, said a woman should have the right to choose whether or not she wants an abortion.

"Nobody has the right to tell a woman what she can or can't do with her body," Ramig said. "I strongly support the right to choose. I also think the state should provide appropriate funding to abortion clinics. If abortion is legal then the state should make the clinics available to women wishing to have an abortion."

much like Americans celebrate their Independence Day.

India has a fireworks display and also lights up buildings on its two days of celebration, Katira said.

Alireza Ashtiani-Babasha, a business finance major from Iran, said that celebrating the Fourth of July is a good custom with the idea of families being together and having a good time on the independence holiday.

In Iran "they do fireworks to start a fresh beginning for a new year," he said.

Saïde Mohamed, Ashtiani-Babasha's cousin, said he likes the idea of people having the day off to celebrate their independence. "It's great that everyone can get together and have a good time," Mohamed said.

Wai Kin Leong, a business major from Malaysia, said that Malaysia celebrates its independence on August 31.

"It's about the same thing as the Fourth of July," Leong said.

Another Malaysian student at SIU-C, Tian Sing Lee, said that Malaysians celebrate independence day with fireworks and parades.

Abdullah Ahmed, originally from Jordan, became an American citizen in 1988. He said that "people should enjoy and celebrate their independence."

It is good for Americans to have the day off from work, Ahmed said, to "have their mind free to think about this country and how to keep it this way."

"Americans should remember the founders of the country," he said.

as a television producer for NBC.

"It would be very difficult to continue my education without this program," Rife said. "This is the first time I haven't had to work while going to school. It's great."

Rife, who received notice of her acceptance into the Illinois Consortium Educational Opportunity Program a few weeks ago, said she plans to use the award two or three years, meaning she will have to teach in Illinois for the same number of years.

"I'm looking forward to it," she said. "It's my goal."

Joseph Watkins, a graduate student in psychology, plans to use the non-teaching approach to repay his debt to the state.

"I'm geared more towards research and the academic end," Watkins explained.

Watkins is enrolled in the Illinois Minority Graduate Incentive Program which is aimed at increasing minority representation in areas where their presence is highly lacking, specifically in the life and physical sciences and engineering fields.

"It's an excellent opportunity," Watkins said. "The program is one of the best on campus for minority students. The money covers the basic necessities. It'll get the job done."

Johnson said she would like to see the IMGIP program enroll 50 students a year. "That would be a realistic goal for IMGIP. The pool of minority teachers in these areas is shrinking, so we need to act now," she said.

"Between 6th and 8th grade, students start to conceptualize what they see themselves doing as adults," Johnson continued. "Many times, minority students don't get a positive image of teaching as a career during that period. We have to give it a more positive image, and make them aware of the difference in teaching at a post-secondary institution," she said.

Johnson said it is difficult to compete with the high paying positions offered to students by industry. "There are some students who are genuinely interested in teaching at this level," she explained. "But how do you compete with a $30,000 salary offered to a bachelor's degree when they are probably burned out on school by then anyway?"

Johnson said a continued thorough screening process, is essential to the program's success.

HOLIDAY, from Page 1

Han said he, his wife and his son were going to spend the day relaxing and picnicking.

Han's attitude was shared by many of the picnickers at Evergreen Park spending the day with their families.

The hazy weather attracted only a few boaters at Crab Orchard Lake, but those who made it, enjoyed the privacy, Barbara Isaacs, of Carbondale, who rented a pontoon boat for her family, said.

A few picnicking families were enjoying the shade by the lake, while their children played on the beach.

"Excitement is me out here in my bathing suit," Tom Thornton, of Elkhart, said.

For those who had to work, Carbondale police officer Marvin Voss said, there is little time to feel patriotic. "But," he said, "when I get off work, I will celebrate with my family and friends like most people."

Americans protest on Fourth in answer to Court decisions

By United Press International

Amid fireworks and other Fourth of July celebrations, Americans took advantage of their right to protest Tuesday by venting their anger at Supreme Court decisions on flag-burning and abortion and by honoring Chinese students who died for democracy last month.

More than 200 abortion-rights advocates held an Independence Day rally in Annapolis, Md., a day after a Supreme Court ruling allowing states to restrict abortions. A handful of anti-abortion activists also attended.

Several hundred people attended a similar rally in Indianapolis, Ind., with other rallies scheduled around the country to condemn or praise the decision.

The flag issue, sparked last week when the Supreme Court said flag-burning can be a legitimate form of dissent, showed no signs of going away.

The main street of Nokesville, Va., was draped with 50 to 55 flags, as it is every July 4th, but this year they were upside down in an internationally recognized signal of distress. The Veterans of Foreign Wars post said it was "distressed" by the Supreme Court decision that flag-burning can be a legitimate political dissent.

Post commander Fred Fees said, "This is our way of registering our own dissent, but respectfully and properly, not by desecrating the flag we hold so dear."

On the other hand, actor E.G. Marshall, host of the annual Fourth of July celebration in the nation's capital, accused politicians and others of exploiting the issue. "I was astonished to find distinguished journalists and politicians and lawyers were taking umbrage.... Politicians are making a lot of brouhaha about it and it will just end there."

A half dozen students in Barrington, R.I., held an all-night vigil at their high school in support of Chinese students killed or arrested last month in pro-democracy demonstrations in Beijing. The teenagers flashed peace signs to passing motorists and solicited contributions for the students.

In Boston, a "Goddess of Liberty" statue was erected on the site of the 1770 Boston Massacre by the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Co., founded in 1638 as a colonial militia. The statue is a replica of the one modeled after the Statue of Liberty that was crushed by Chinese tanks in Tiananmen Square.

College radio broadcasters around the country planned a moment of silence at 3:20 p.m. EDT, which corresponds to 4:20 a.m., when the first Chinese student was shot. The commemoration was initiated by Gary Toyn, station manager of KWCR-FM at Weber State College in Ogden, Utah.

Simon greets man returning from Russia after 58 years

CHICAGO (UPI) — Some say you can't go home again. But after spending 58 years behind the iron curtain, sweet home Chicago is exactly where Abe Stolar wants to be.

Stolar returns to Chicago Tuesday — Independence Day — for a week-long visit to the home town he hasn't seen since he was 19 years old.

A welcome wagon including a delegation from the Chicago Action for Soviet Jewry and Senator Paul Simon, D-Ill., are scheduled to meet Stolar when he arrives at O'Hare Airport.

Stolar and his family were granted permission to leave Moscow in March and have settled in Israel.

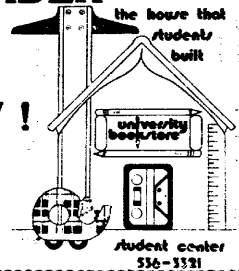

The Chicago Action for Soviet Jewry and Simon have been instrumental in Stolar's release by applying pressure to the Soviet government. In 1988 former President Ronald Reagan took up Stolar's case with Mikhail Gorbachev during the Moscow summit.

Abe Stolar came to the Soviet Union in 1931 with his parents, his sister and her husband.

China limits written dissent, stops foreign TV reception

BELJING (UPI) — China widened its political crackdown on dissent Tuesday, banning publication of books and journals by liberal intellectuals, pulling the plug on foreign television reception and attacking non-communist economic theory as anti-government.

The actions, disclosed in state-run media and by Chinese sources, were the latest in a government campaign against "bourgeois liberalization," a code phrase for Western political concepts like democracy used by hard-line leaders to justify the restrictions.

The moves broadened a crackdown on dissent that followed the army's violent suppression of the democracy movement June 3, when soldiers moved into Beijing to enforce martial law declared May 20.

TROOPS AND tanks cleared central Tiananmen Square of students who had led anti-government protests there, igniting a citywide uprising in which hundreds and possibly thousands died.

Chinese journalism and publishing industry sources said new restrictions on publications were contained in a circular issued by the government Press and Publications Administration to at least some of China's approximately 400 publishing houses.

The circular ordered the recall or halt of "all publications in printing or editing process which have strong bourgeois liberalization tendencies" and banned works by authors who are "labeled or wanted" in a dragnet for dissident intellectuals.

A spokesman for the administration's Books Bureau, contacted by telephone, denied such an order had been issued, but claimed that "existing principle" held that no books spreading bourgeois liberalization could be published.

IN A harshly worded commentary, Tuesday's Beijing Evening News, a government daily, called for the banning of "reactionary" books on Western political and cultural topics, warning they have "polluted the Beijing streets."

At the same time, reception of foreign television news and sports broadcasts by satellite has been cut off at all five major foreign-managed tourist hotels in Beijing that receive them, spokesmen said. Some hotels have been on line for more than a year.

Officials at two hotels said they received direct orders from Chinese government agencies to shut down their satellite dish antennae. The hotels receive and show on in-house systems programs of the U.S. Armed Forces network and the Cable News Network.

"Why they're doing it now, we don't know," one hotel executive said. Few Chinese see the broadcasts, but the government has been trying to ensure only the official line is heard in China.

THE GOVERNMENT has undertaken a sometimes vicious smear campaign against foreign news organizations for reporting on the crackdown on the democracy movement.

The assault on dissenting thought also extended to liberal economic theory in a sharply worded commentary in the Guangming Daily, the leading Communist Party newspaper for intellectuals.

Zhou Longbin, a philosophy researcher at the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences, denounced what he called "propaganda" advocating more private ownership in the Chinese economy and called it "a result of the spread of bourgeois liberalization."

'Great Balls of Fire' records inside look at Lewis' career

By Theresa Livingston
Entertainment Editor

"Great Balls of Fire" is an inside look at rock 'n' roll legend Jerry Lee Lewis. The film traces the two turbulent years in Lewis' life which saw him rocket to international fame and, just as quickly, fall to disfavor because of his unconventional personal life.

Lewis, a cocky, charismatic backwoods piano player from Ferriday, La., shot to the top of the pop charts in the summer of 1957 with his version of young Lewis coaxes the young Swaggart to sneak off to the black quarter of town to peer in a raunchy smoky roadhouse where the rhythm and blues is going full-swing.

Dennis Quaid as Jerry Lee Lewis in "Great Balls of Fire." In his prime, Lewis used keyboards as dance floors and pianos as kindling. He fell out of favor with fans when he married his third of six wives, 13-year-old cousin Myra Gail Brown.

Swaggart pleads to leave and says, "It's the Devil's music, Jerry Lee, I can feel it."

Lewis shoots him a wicked grin. "I know," he says and stays to watch.

So goes the rest of the film, with the unrepenting Lewis flaunting convention and Swaggart praying for his soul, while the adoring Myra looks on.

Legend has it that Myra, played by Winona Ryder, still believed in Santa Claus on her wedding night and carried her trousseau in a dollhouse. If that's the case, then Ryder pulled off her part beautifully, successfully combining the star-crossed innocence, confusion and blind worship of the seventh grader who became the third of Lewis' six wives as she follows the zenith of her husband's career into his darkest moments.

Dennis Quaid gives a convincing performance as the dynamic hell-raiser of early rock 'n' roll. Ranging from charming to horrific, the gum-chomping Quaid twangs his lines with the sincerity of a born showman.

Although Texas-born Quaid fits naturally into the acting of the part, the lip-synching was a bit off of the soundtrack at times, because even though Quaid does play the piano in the movie, the soundtrack is bona-fide Lewis remakes and even a few heretofore unreleased songs.

The account, based on the book of the same name by Myra (now divorced and remarried to an Atlanta real-estate developer), was seven years in the making, largely because almost everyone involved is still living and had their own versions of the truth which had to be reconciled with the script. While it is an unflattering portrayal of Lewis at times, this celluloid reenactment establishes him into a three-dimensional character.

While not a film classic, the film is entertaining and fast moving, with big chunks of the music that made it all happen featured prominently.

Film Review

"Whole Lotta Shakin' Goin' On" and had follow-up hits such as "Breathless" and "Great Balls of Fire," which played a pivotal part in the rise of rock 'n' roll.

Claiming he had a "furious, God-given talent," Lewis' own combination of gospel and barrelhouse rhythm and blues and a nonstop, frenzied stage show garnered him a legion of devoted fans and hit records as well as getting him condemned by parents and religious leaders across the country as a purveyor of "the Devil's music."

Fans couldn't get enough of Lewis, first cousin of megatelevangelist Jimmy Swaggart and former divinity student himself, when he banged out bass chords with his feet, kicked piano benches out from underneath himself to dance on the keyboard and set fire to pianos to the delight of his swarming fans.

However, the public opinion turned against him when the scandal attached to the instant attraction, burgeoning romance and subsequent marriage to his 13-year-old second cousin, Myra Gail Brown, all but killed the "Killer's" career.

The tone of the movie is set in the opening scene. The

Dutchman wins fourth stage in Tour

WASQUEHAL, France (UPI) — Dutchman Jelle Nidjam sprinted out of the pack in the final half-mile Tuesday to win the fourth stage of the 76th Tour de France, a 158-mile journey from Liege, Belgium, to Wasquehal.

Acacio Da Silva of Portugal, who remained in the pack five seconds behind, kept his lead in the overall standings.

Nidjam, 25, who rides for Superconfex, won by several lengths in the long, flat stage punctuated by 5.25 miles of cobblestones. He won the 1945 Tour of Luxembourg and the 1988 Amstel Gold race.

From the starting point in Liege, three Dutchman — lead, John Talian, Gerrit Solleveld and Peter Pieters — broke out in the lead but were later overtaken by countryman Eddy Schurer.

On the 76th mile, Switzerland's Thomas Wegmuller opened a lead that he held for nearly 40 miles. He faded, however, shortly before the course entered France.

Nidjam's winning time was 6 hours, 13 minutes and 58 seconds. Jesper Skibby of Denmark was second.

Among the race favorites, Laurent Fignon of France was still 2:37 behind the leader in fourth place and Eric Breukink of The Netherlands eighth, at 3:03. Sean Kelly of Ireland moved into 13th place, 3:27 off the pace, with American Greg Lemond in 14th place, one second slower.

Pedro Delgado of Spain, last year's winner who flubbed his starting appearance Saturday, was in 134th place among 195, could be suspended for a year if it is determined he bet on baseball, or for life if it is found he bet on the Reds. He claims one of his chief accusers acted on his own and used Rose's name to place bets.

Rose was referring to Paul Janszen, a friend who told baseball's special investigator, John Dowd, he placed baseball bets for Rose with bookmakers.

Dowd's report contains one section in which Janszen says bookmakers were after Rose to pay debts, but Rose told the bookies Janszen was placing bets for himself under Rose's name.

The Dayton Daily News reported Monday that Dowd, baseball security chief Kevin Hallinan and private detectives spent 12 weeks gathering testimony and evidence on Rose's alleged gambling.

Dowd's report includes telephone records of more than 90 calls allegedly proving Janszen was calling Rose and bookmakers to make bets for Rose.

"When some of those calls were made, Janszen was not in my company," Rose said. "Some of the calls listed were from my home at times when I was at the ballpark or at times when I couldn't have made them."

The newspaper said Rose did not address the fact Janszen and his girlfriend, Danita

Marcum, had access to his house.

Rose said three of the nine witnesses in Dowd's report who claim Rose bet on baseball "already have said they will not stand behind their testimony." He did not name the three.

He said two other accusers, Janszen and Ronald Peters of Franklin, are convicted felons whose "favorite wardrobe is stripes."

"We knew how much garbage was in Dowd's report. Legal people won't be impressed," Rose said. "They know he is trying to crucify and cremate me."

McEnroe vs. Wilander: A fire and ice matchup

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — John McEnroe, bidding for his first Wimbledon semifinal in five years, Wednesday meets Mats Wilander, who is trying to break his quarterfinal jinx at The All England Club.

The 30-year-old New Yorker, who won Wimbledon in 1980, '81 and '83, survived a stormy, fourth-round four-setter against Australia's John Fitzgerald, and says he wants to be in control against the always-in-control Swede.

"I'd like to play a great mental match," said McEnroe, the No. 5 seed. "It's a big match for Mats; it's a big match for me. I think we both like our chances and the opportunity to play."

Wilander, the No. 4 seed, will be looking to get past the quarterfinals for the first time in eight appearances. His methodical, detached on-court persona offers the perfect foil to McEnroe's intensity. The two have split their dozen matches.

Wilander won three of the four Grand Slam tournaments last year and ended the year as the world's No. 1 player. But 1989 has been bleak. He is 19-10, the poorest record of his career.

Top seed Ivan Lendl, seeking the Wimbledon title that has always eluded him, faces Dan Goldie, one of two unseeded Americans in the last eight. Goldie, ranked 47th in the world, is playing in his first Grand Slam quarterfinals. He lost to Lendl in the fourth round of the Australian Open in 1987.

"I feel pretty ready," Goldie said after his fourth-round victory over Yugoslavia's Slobodan Zivonjovic. "I feel pretty confident. I think definitely this is (Lendl's) weakest surface."

Nevertheless, Lendl is 3-0 against Goldie and 46-3 on the year. After winning the Australian Open he was eliminated from the French Open by eventual champion Michael Chang. But the 29-year-old Czechoslovakian has said his aim this year is to capture Wimbledon.

The other quarterfinals feature proven grass courtiers — defending champion Stefan Edberg of Sweden and two-time winner Boris Becker of West Germany.

Edberg takes on No. 8 Tim Mayotte while Becker faces newcomer Paul Chamberlin.

Edberg, seeded No. 2, said the pressure of holding the title diminished as the tournament progressed.

"I think you feel the pressure more in the beginning than you do when you win your matches," he said. "Once I get on the court I try to concentrate very hard. That is the No. 1 thing I feel here. I don't try to think about winning last year. I try to win the match which I am playing on court."

Becker, the only man yet to drop a set in the tournament, has never played Chamberlin, who is unlikely to derail the No. 3 seed from his path to the semis.

which included seven service breaks.

The Spaniard fed on Graf's power to counter with blistering two-fisted backhands. She let the titleholder off the hook when serving for the opening set at 5-4. After going a set up, the West German began raking forehands through the Spaniard's defense.

"I am playing normal right now," Graf said. "I just didn't play well enough at the French Open," she said.

Graf was dissatisfied with the way she played in the opening set.

"My tactics were much better in the second," she said. "I was more patient, just waited a little bit longer for the right shot. I should have come into the net more right from the beginning."

Said Sanchez-Vario: "She really played very good and I couldn't do anything. She played much better here than at the French Open."

Navratilova saved four break points in the fifth game of her match against Magers, but was never seriously challenged.

"Once I worked out my serve, I knew she wouldn't give me much of a headache," Navratilova said.

"I had an edge on Centre Court. Experience should count for something. I could concentrate on the task at hand, while maybe she was still taking it all in."

Lindqvist needed 92 minutes to beat Fairbank, who ousted No. 3 Gabriela Sabatini in the second round. It was a predominantly baseline match, in which the Swede's top-spin backhand provided the decisive weapon.

The men's quarterfinalists play Wednesday with No. 5 John McEnroe, a three-time champion, opening on Centre Court against No. 4 Mats Wilander, the Swede who won three Grand Slam titles last year. They are followed by defending champion Stefan Edberg against No. 8 Tim Mayotte.

Rose case may move to federal court

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — A U.S. District Court judge in Columbus could decide Wednesday whether the case involving Cincinnati Reds Manager Pete Rose should be heard in federal court.

On Monday, two federal judges in Cincinnati sided with lawyers for baseball Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti who said the Rose case has national implications and should be removed from state court.

The case was assigned to U.S. District Court Judge John Holschuh after Judges Carl Rubin and Herman Weber moved the case to Columbus.

Holschuh will decide who has jurisdiction, a decision that will affect Thursday's hearing in Hamilton County Common Pleas Court. Holschuh has not confirmed a hearing date.

"I am aware that a petition for removal has been filed and that the matter has been transferred and is before me," Holschuh said late Monday. "I have not seen the order of transfer and at this time I don't have a hearing scheduled Wednesday."

Rose, facing allegations of gambling on baseball and on the Reds, had won a temporary restraining order postponing his June 26 hearing before Giamatti. Judge Norbert Nadel of the Hamilton County Common Pleas is to hold a hearing Thursday on a request for a permanent injunction.

If Holschuh sends the case back to Hamilton County Common Pleas Court, the hearing will be held as scheduled. But if Holschuh says the case has federal implications, Thursday's hearing is off.

Baseball lawyers sought to move the case to the federal level because they said the case suit mentions New York City and the National League.

Rose had been scheduled to appear before Giamatti in late May, but won an extension when he filed suit, claiming the commissioner is prejudiced. He has sought to have the case heard before a jury.

Wrestling Club keeps memories alive for coach

By Greg Scott
Staff Writer

The wrestling program became extinct at SIU-C in 1983, however one man's devotion to the sport never ceased.

Lynn Long, the coach of the wrestling program from 1968 to 1982, developed a year-round wrestling club for athletes interested in the sport. The club is composed mostly of college and high school students from from the area Long said.

"We have an agreement with the Arena to use the east concourse," said Long. "We break down around the middle of July and start again in the fall semester. There is not much emphasis on it until Thanksgiving and Spring Break."

SIU-C's wrestling program expanded from 1950 to 1982. It became extinct because of budget reasons.

Long says the club is a way of keeping himself involved with a sport he loves.

"Wrestling is an activity that youngsters can use to mature as people," said Long. "It's a good activity to maintain fitness and make yourself feel better about life. I just try to make sure they have a place to train."

Long says he is always willing to help out those youngsters that are serious about competing in the sport and eager to learn.

"The kids that are serious about wrestling, I may recommend or suggest some things about their conditioning or something," said Long. "If they begin to pick up, I will give them more suggestions. If the wrestlers get involved in some competition, I try to find a way to watch them and later make some suggestions to improve their performance."

Curtis Brown, 18 and Andrew Seibert, 14, both from Carbondale, take part in Wrestling Club practice at the Arena. The student club is an off-shoot of an intercollegiate sport, which existed at the University until 1983. Lynn Long, the coach of the sport until 1982, is the adviser for the club.

Members of the club use the East concourse at the SIU-C Arena. The wrestlers workout from 3 to 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday. Long says the number of wrestlers present at the workouts varies.

"One day we may have around 13 working out," said Long. "Other days we may have five or ten. We just go with whoever shows up."

Long said he believes that youngsters should start wrestling at an early age.

"One of the wrestlers I had in this club went on to coach the sport at Carbondale High School," said Long. "He wanted to build a good wrestling program so I pushed him to get 12-year olds started and have the Carbondale Park District sponsor the Youth Program in wrestling."

"Years ago, people locally did not believe wrestling would become competitive at the high school-local educational level. The program here at SIU-C was dropped a year or two before the kids started to become productive."

When Long's student quit at Carbondale, his wife Darlene also became involved in the program. The Long's son became interested in wrestling.

Dennis Ragan, the present Carbondale wrestling coach who helps out with the club, kept perpetuating the youth program in wrestling when he took over.

"I have been working with Coach Ragan since fifth or sixth grade in Park District," said Andrew Seibert who will be a freshman at Carbondale High School this fall. "He has taught me everything and recommended this club to me. The club gives me a chance to wrestle with kids better than me and eventually makes me tougher."

Most of the wrestlers are in high school or college and compete all over. Long's club has turned out some quality performers in the sport. In the last four years, five of the youngsters that took part in Long's camp placed in state competition. This includes a state champ from Carbondale and Herrin.

"I workout each day with the club to stay in shape and there is good competition from a number of towns," said Scott Coracy, a junior at Carbondale High School. Coracy placed fifth in freestyle competition at they state level and qualified for the Junior National Camp.

"Coach Ragan thought this club along with the summer camps could help me for high school competition next year," said Coracy.

"I am disappointed over what happened," said Long speaking of the distinction of the SIU-C wrestling program. "But I really don't think I want to put up with all that happened again."

Champaign woman wins Peachtree wheelchair race

ATLANTA (UPI) — Sharon Hedrick of Champaign won the women's wheelchair division in the Peachtree Road Race Tuesday with an unofficial time of 27:05.

The fastest runner in the race was Ibrahim Hussein of Kenya, who edged out Mark Nenow of Lexington, Ky., in the final 20 yards of the 6.2-mile run.

Hussein, who won the Boston Marathon in 1988 and the 1987 New York Marathon, ran neck-and-neck with Nenow down Atlanta's most famous avenue under gray skies in the race that has become a Fourth of July tradition.

Hussein's unofficial time was 28:13, 17 seconds off the 27:56 course record set by John Doherty in 1986.

Top women seed Jidi St.

Hilaire of Higham, Mass., crossed the finish line first with an unofficial time of 32:05.

"I really did jump the gun," Hilaire said. "I decided right from the start I would go for it."

Hilaire was four seconds off the women's race record of 32:01, set in 1983 by Grete Waitz of Norway. Waitz, who won the race with 32:10 in 1988, did not run this year because of injuries.

Cathy O'Brien, 21, of Boston, finished second among women with an unofficial time of 32:08. Barbara Moore, of Boulder, Colo., was third.

Craig Blanchette, 22, of Springfield, Ore., took the wheelchair division first-place prize with 21:52, an unofficial world record.

Evert goes to Wimbledon semis

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Chris Evert, in one of the tournament's most stirring recoveries, outlasted Laura Golarsa of Italy in three sets Tuesday to reach the Wimbledon semifinals for the 17th time in 18 years.

The 34-year-old tennis great trailed 5-2 in the deciding set against an opponent ranked 82nd in the world. But with the packed No. 1 Court crowd willing her on, she swept the next five games to win 6-3, 2-6, 7-5.

"It wasn't the way I wanted to go out of the tournament in my last year, what this probably will be," said Evert, a three-time Wimbledon champion.

The gallant fight back by the No. 4 seed brought a standing ovation and a semifinal match against Steffi Graf of West Germany, the defending champion.

Graf, the world's top female player, maintained her record of not dropping a set by defeating No. 7 seed Arantxa

McEnroe vs. Wilander:
A fire and ice match

Sanchez-Vicario of Spain 7-5, 6-1 to avenge her defeat in last month's French Open final.

In the other women's semifinal, No. 2 Martina Navratilova, bidding for a record ninth Wimbledon singles crown, will play Catarina Lindqvist of Sweden.

Navratilova, whose run of six successive titles was ended by Graf in last year's final, downed American compatriot Gretchen Magers 6-1, 6-2. Lindqvist edged South Africa's Ros Fairbank 7-5, 7-5 to become the first Swedish woman to make the semifinals.

Evert won the opening set convincingly. But Golarsa racked up seven straight games to take the second set and lead 3-0 in the third.

Golarsa, the first Italian woman to reach the quarterfinals since Lucia Valerio in 1933, finessed her way to 5-2 lead before Evert's Wimbledon experience began to show. She scored a key break for 4-5 as Golarsa's forehead at the net went wide while serving for the match.

Evert held to make it 5-5 and squeaked through on first match point in the 11th game when Golarsa's forehead volley was off target.

"I was never confident in the third set, she played so well," Evert said. "I didn't know what to do. She hit a lot of really delicate angled volleys. I certainly never thought I would win the match. I let her in at 2-1 in the second set. Up until then I had been in control. I let it slip away. I was lucky to win."

Evert will need luck Thursday against Graf, who finished swiftly against Sanchez-Vicario.

The 21-year-old defending champion was stretched during a 43-minute first set.
