The board of directors is composed of 12 members, including the president of the university and representatives from various state agencies. The board meets four times per year to discuss the university's plans and make decisions.

The meeting adjourned at 2 p.m., and the next meeting is scheduled for February 15, 1956.
Religion Can Be Found

In the expression of the individual, religion is the end to which the individual directs his activities. In the expression of the institution, religion is the organization of the individual activities so as to produce an over-all end. The individual and the institution are two sides of one coin, and the institution is but the sum of the individual's actions. Religion, therefore, is the expression of the individual, the institution being its embodiment.
