THIS WORLD OF MUSIC

By BEETHOVEN

The ban on pleasure driving in the East has been in existence now for more than a week, and apparently it has had little effect on concert-going.

One of the first concerts affected apparently confirmed their calculations. It was Paul Robeson's appearance in Mountain Lakes, N. J., the first day of the ban.

Attendance at the Metropolitan Opera has not been affected. One woman arrived in an electric motor, and some enterprising ladies came in horse-drawn carriages.

It is generally thought that the "spread-out" cities and the small communities will be most affected by the ban, for in these places the auditoriums are hard to reach except by car.

Bohuslav Martinu, Czechoslovak composer, has completed a concerto for two pianos and orchestra, written especially for Pierre Lohse and Gonia Nemenov, the two pianists, who will present the work next season for the first time.

Raymond Knudsen, now on leave of absence from the Music Department of Dartmouth in order to give full time to his post as USO music coordinator, reports that the experiment of sending out music advisers by car has worked out so well that the program will be expanded and placed on a permanent basis.

The chief function of the five men who have been in the field since last October has been to serve as song leader trainers. They have worked both in campus and in nearby communities, developing song leaders in each place.

The five advisers have been George Briffance and John R. Judge, song leaders in the last year; Stanley Hassell of the New England Conservatory of Music; Owen Brown, who has led community choruses in Boston; and Wendell Talbert, a Negro song leader, who has worked among troops of his own race.

These men have covered all but the Far West, spending from one to two months in each town; they will shortly be joined by four or five other advisers, one of whom will be administered, wherein they would be concerned and judgments decreed in wisdom and in justice; wherein government, executed in righteousness, would be eminently useful to the people.

The world he would win would be one wherein harmony would be preserved, human happiness promoted, knowledge increased, and equal liberty perpetuated.

To him is entrusted the winning of the world's security, the victory of peace over war. He is prepared to die that what he would live for may be preserved invaluable. Yet he was not even captain of his college team; he is "private first class" now.

He never established a national record for the high hurdles, but he is surmounting international rivalry today. He will not be graduated this spring with his college class, for his personal ambition has been defeated to support his country under arms.

He may not become president of the United States, but he is fighting to keep the fact of the presidency a reality. He is ready to give his life as the price for peace if his own youth's ambition may be fulfilled by others in the security he shall win. He could take defeat, but he is "all out for victory" in the defense of freedom—He is the known soldier.

ARTISTS REPRESENTED IN 'LITTLE GALLERY' SHOW MODERN TREND

WORKS HAVE INFLUENCE OF PAST SCHOOLS OF ART

By JAMES GRAVES

The second Little Gallery exhibit presented last Sunday, January 17, was a surprise for exhibiting local art lovers. This is perhaps the best collection to be exhibited here and by far the most comprehensive.

This show which was chosen from the Carnegie exhibit by Forbes Watson is called "Directions in American Painting." The first show, presented last month, was merely a collection of paintings which the school owned or had access to.

We are at a loss to explain the reasons behind his selection of these paintings. Admittedly the taste of the average American (and he is the one to whom these paintings are directed) is not too far advanced; but we feel that in avoiding all examples of non-objectivity and abstraction, Mr. Watson is overlooking a fine field in the modern American painting and underestimating the critical ability of the masses, for whom these pictures are intended.

Truly Representative? Being a representative show, its purpose is to present as clearly as possible the directions in which the creative abilities of our artists are being directed.

Many Striking Works There are many striking pictures in the exhibit which deserve mention. Definitely the best among them are those by Martinu, the prize-winning painter by Torres, Jean Watson's "Cape Ann Quarry" and Robert Altier's "Meditation."

The "Black" one of Martinu's works, the faultless design and reminds us very much of something by Cezanne. Martinu's other picture in the show, "Silverwood Street," is a masterpiece in the handling of light effects.

It can only be hoped that it will be possible to have shows of this caliber in the future. Students are urged to take advantage of the opportunity of seeing on this campus the best of modern American art.

Piatogorsky Concert Is An Exciting One For Concert Goers Last Night

Gregor Piatogorsky, acclaimed by many as the world's greatest cellist, gave one of the most exciting concerts ever to be presented in the Cooperative series to a large and appreciative audience in Shryock Auditorium last night.

Lancel Hampton likes electrical instruments. In his orchestra which appears Thursday night on "The Victory Parade of Spotlight Bands" at 9:30, E.W.T. via the Life Network, he has an electric vibraphone and two violins that are electrically amplified.

By LORRAINE DITZLER

This week the Medical Corps receives the spotlight, with letters from Captain C. M. Brooks and First Lieutenant William T. Felts in the upper files of your columnist's correspondence culled from the Faculty Gift Club.

Dr. Felts gives a fairly complete picture of his life in the army since leaving town last September 24. When he wrote, he was preparing to leave the air base at Bainbridge, Georgia, for Johns Hopkins Hospital at Baltimore, Maryland, for more training, stating that four of his first six months in service would be spent in school.

When we moved in... there was one vacant house—nine rooms! A captain, his wife and little boy and an infant rented it.

KAPPA DELTA ALPHA
 New committees and chairmen were recently appointed by Charles Hamilton, president of Kappa Delta Alpha, to perform the various parts of the itinerary for the remainder of the year. Those appointed to serve as chairmen were: Bob White, chairman of the Social committee; Julius Joquet, chairman of the House committee; Charles Hampton, chairman of the Publicity committee; and Earl Neal, chairman of the Financial committee. Plans are being made for a winter sweater-swing the last of this month.

INTER CO-OP COUNCIL
 At a meeting of the Inter-Coop Council held here last Tuesday, Johnson's plan to have the Skirt 'n' Sweater Swing to be held Friday, February 5, in the Little Theatre. All members of the cooperative-houses, along with their dates, are invited to attend. John Percovich, chairman of the Executive Committee, and Earl Neal, chairman of the dance committee, and Paul Margolis of the Y. M. C. A. are chairman of the refreshments committee. Tentative plans were announced for a placid party and tournament to be held sometime in a report for members. It was announced that a dance was made of the standing in the ping-pong tournament now in progress. The next meeting of the Inter-Coop will be held at Harmony Hall, 309 Harvard avenue, Tuesday, February 2, at 6:30 p. m. All of the co-op houses are urged to send representatives to this meeting.

COLLEGE RADIO NEWS
DATA ON NEW CBS SHOWS

What Well Dressed Co-ed Wears Is Shown By Gimpax at Southern

Schlaparelli, lead an early Campus kids all over the country are getting a new high in styles. And—they're cooking with gas!
 College girls choose skirts and slippy tops and clinging for classroom wear. On cold days they keep warm in stacks or dungarees and plaid skirts. Mary, Muriel, and Mable will always thank Dame Fashion for dicker—those little collars and shirt fronts which serve as blouses under sweaters and jackets.
 Saddle oxford with plaid shoe strings look positively snaky, and they're all the rage, took for boys as well as girls.
 For coats, the girls pick reversible, camel's hair, and tweeds; while the boys look dinky in Dugartigan jobs of corduroy or what have you. Babushkas cover many a head; Joe College likes Jeep hats.
 And for that extra touch, there are ankle bracelets, fuzzy mittens, hair bows and flowers, and unlimited kinds of costume jewelry.

Pulliam Guest Speaker at Public School Rally
 Mr. Roscoe Pulliam, president of Southern Illinois Normal University, has been invited to participate as guest speaker before the public school rally to be held under the auspices of the Parent-Teachers' Association of the Roosevelt school in River Forest, Illinois, at 8 p. m. on Wednesday, January 27.
 Invited by Mr. Virgil M. Rogers, superintendent of schools, Mr. Pulliam is going to speak on the effect of war on the schools and the responsibilities of the schools in connection with the war. He will also accented that the main job of the schools is to transmit civilization from one generation to another, and that many principles of education must be adhered to in spite of national crises.

C.P.T. Boys Conclude Primary Course Here
 Nine Navy V's men completed the primary course in civilian pilot training offered on the campus, and are now preparing to take a secondary course.
 James Carter, Harold Eichenstein, Eugene Keiper, Edward Losseler, Oscar Telford, and Henry Lutz score well to leave City for a secondary course. David Hopkins is taking his secondary course at Salem. Two men, Shirley Love and Chris Gibbs, have not as yet been assigned.
 The next group of men to take the primary course here will be from the Army Air Force Reserve. They are expected to arrive in a few days.

White House Guests
 Johnny Long and his orchestra who appear on "The Victory Parade of Spotlight Bands" this night at 9:30, EWT, via the Blue Network, enjoy a distinction not usually accorded to musical groups. When they played for the President's Birthday Ball at Washington last year President and Mrs. Roosevelt entertained them at a White House luncheon.
Sings Opera Too
 Joe Sanders, who appears Wednesday night at 9:30, EWT, on "The Victory Parade of Spotlight Bands" via the Blue Network, once sang with the Kansas City Opera company.

"My Home Town" Is Hampton City
 Name practically any city in the country and Lionel Hampton claims it as his home town. What's more, the talented musical ace, who visits Camp Edwards, Mass., Thursday night on "The Victory Parade of Spotlight Bands" means it.
 He was born at Louisville, Ky. Then he was taken to Birmingham, Ala. Then to Chicago and finally he landed at Los Angeles, where he studied at the University of Southern California. Since becoming a professional musician he has visited practically every city in the nation. He likes each place so well that "it's my home town" has become his slogan.

Washington Banquet at Wheaton
 On Friday, February 19, Wheaton College will hold their annual Washington banquet. A special chapel program will be held honoring the father of our country, after which classes will be dismissed for the rest of the day. In the evening a banquet will be held, followed by a patriotic program with outside and student talent given in Pierce Memorial Chapel.

Normal's Men
 The Vidette, school paper at Normal, recently published a character sketch of the few men left on their campus. With no exceptions he's a well—complete with wall and tactics. He can nonchalantly meander into the library at 8:55 p. m. and at nine bells strut out with not one but two or three gals hanging blissfully on his muscular arm. His greatest feat is the cake date. For one time time he is capable of turning a drab evening into a dazzling affair. Even the most frigid of them all succumb to his engaging charms. He can discuss intelligently the latest novel jokes and is always ready with a ten minute dissertation on how he studied. He's absolutely the only male on God's green earth who can wait until one hour before a dance to call a girl and still be sure of a date. Or he can sit home nine evenings out of ten and have some nuptial telephone calls every night from his adoring mate. All in all, his is the life of Riley.
 Might he be so you "college joes", but remember, it may be all that attention "is just for the duration".

Faculty Publications
 The abstract of Mr. Vincent Di Giovanni's doctor's dissertation entitled, "The Relation of Selected Structural and Functional Measures to Success in College Athletics," has been issued by New York University in a printed pamphlet. Copies of it are now available in the College Library.
 Mr. Jackson T. Laddis, of the Sociology department, has an article in the current number of a periodical entitled "SOCIAL STUDIES: The Illinois High Schools." It is a reprint by request of an article which appeared originally in the December, 1941, issue of ILLINOIS EDUCATION.
 Grashed with Deolittle
 When Lieut.-Gen. Jimmy Doolittle, hero of the bombing of Tokyo, suffered his first crash, Art Kassel, the orchestra leader, was a passenger. Kassel, who brings his orchestra to "The Victory Parade of Spotlight Bands" every night at 9:30, EWT, suffered a broken shoulder.

A former infantryman will salute the Army Air Corps on "The Victory Parade of Spotlight Bands" via 143 stations of the Blue Network Tuesday night at 9:30, EWT, when Art Kassel takes his orchestra to Bear Field, Fort Wayne, Ind. As a member of the 131st Infantry during World War I, Kassel saw plenty of action in France after convincing his superiors that he could fire a trench mortar with the zest that marked his clarinet playing in the regimental band. Following the Armistice, Kassel headed a division which toured A. E. F. camps in Europe. Now he's on another camp tour with "The Victory Parade of Spotlight Bands."

Indian Tom-Tom Started Sanders

Famous Pianist Gained Knowledge of Drums From Schoolmates Joe Sanders, whose famous orchestra joins "The Victory Parade of Spotlight Bands" Wednesday night at 9:30, EWT, over 143 stations of the Blue Network, is a pianist, but his first musical experiences was beaten out on an Indian tom-tom. "The 'Ole Lot, Hauser," as he is known in the orchestra world, was born at Thayer, Kan., but as a youth his family removed to the Oklahoma Indian country at Centralia, Reserved Indian Lad. He attended school with the four other white children in the settlement and the scores of Little Redskins from the surrounding territory. From them he picked up a few ideas of tom-tom playing. As a reward for rescuing an Indian youth from drowning, Joe received a hand-made tom-tom and was accepted into the new-tribe's tribe. There he acquired the pulsating rhythm of the drums that he still puts into his piano playing.
