Prayer to be optional at commencements

By Amy Gaubatz

Schools and colleges will be allowed to decide for themselves whether to include prayer in their commencement ceremonies, President John C. Guyon said Wednesday.

However, non-denominational and ecumenical prayers will be used at the beginning and end of the grand exercises, which involve graduate schools, Guyon said.

Janet Belcove-Shalin, who advocated that colleges and schools use universal prayers in commencement ceremonies, was disappointed with Guyon's decision. "It sounds like the administration has decided to maintain the status quo," she said.

A universal prayer would address God, but would not refer to any particular religion.

Belcove-Shalin, director of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation, wrote letters to key administrators and faculty members before the start of the fall semester urging them to institute universal prayers at each college's graduation ceremony.

Belcove-Shalin's request was considered by the University's commencement committee, which recommended that a period of silent meditation be observed at commencement ceremonies in place of a prayer, William Eaton, chairman of the committee, said.

The committee sent its recommendation to Benjamin Shepherd, acting vice president for Academic Affairs. Shepherd said the silent prayer would "allow anyone to have any prayer or lack of prayer, silently."

But he endorsed Guyon's decision, saying, "I think it's a grand idea. I concur with it fully. I think the colleges, as they decide on which way they go, will be sensitive to constituents that they serve.

Eaton was more guarded in his assessment of Guyon's decision. "I assume there will be some further concerns expressed," he said. "It would be impossible to please everyone."

Shepherd said the decision would go into effect during the spring ceremonies.

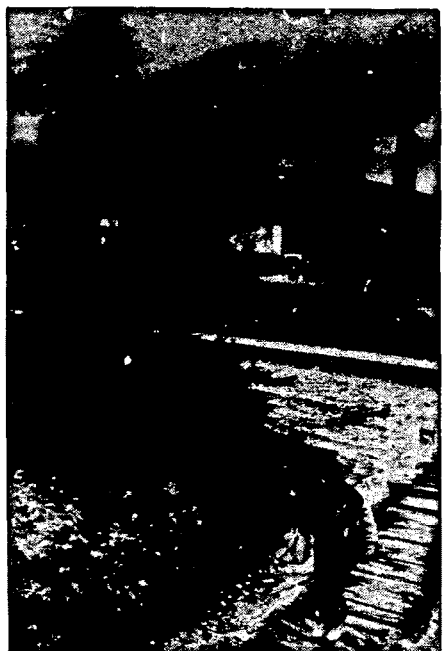

The College of Liberal Arts Council voted in December to discontinue prayer at its graduation ceremonies. However, the council did include an amendment to its graduation policy stating that the council will not preclude religious groups from holding their own baccalaureate with prayer.

A baccalaureate is a religious address or a sermon made to a graduating class.

Drugs linked to man's death

By John Mohler
Staff Writer

A coroner's inquest found the death of a Carbondale restaurant owner on Dec. 31 accidental, resulting from cardiac arrhythmia, a possible cocaine overdose and injuries from a hit and run collision he fled minutes before he died.

The inquest into the death of Lawrence D. Hays, 27, of Carbondale, was conducted Wednesday by County Coroner James R. Wilson at the Williamson County Courthouse.

Detective Alan Ozment, of the Marion Police Department, testified that there was "no sign of foul play on (Hays) part or by anyone else."

Hays, the owner of the Thai Restaurant, was found in a bathtub at the Red Lion Inn in Marion with his head slumped forward and blood on his forehead, according to a Marion police report. Hays had no vital signs when police arrived at the scene.

Hays had received cuts and bruises on the forehead and scalp in a car collision. The crash took place at the intersection of North Russell and West DeYoung streets in Marion. Hays was driving east on North Russell when he ran a red light and hit a car driven by Sue E. Robey, 23, of Benton. Hays drove west on North Russell to the motel.

Hays then forced his way into the room of David G. Porter, telling Porter he had a gun and instructing him to call the police. Porter fled the room and flagged down police instead.

Five minutes passed between the car accident and the time police found Hays' body in the motel, said Marion police.

Wilson's autopsy report indicated that cardiac arrhythmia, or an irregularity of heartbeat, may have been caused by a cocaine overdose.

Marion police said a pound of marijuana was found in the trunk of Hays' car parked at the motel.

Robey, injured in the collision, was released from Marion Memorial Hospital Jan. 2.

Halloween panel planning ahead

By Dana DeBeaumont
Staff Writer

The Halloween Core Committee chose subcommittees Wednesday with hopes of having the 1988 Halloween festivities planned by the end of spring semester.

Chairmen and their subcommittees include Ed Buerger, associate director of university relations, safety; Jeff Doherty, assistant city manager, city administration; Gary Gibula, WCIL-FM, entertainment; Doug Diggie, owner of Old Town Liquors, special activities, and Jim Prowell, president of the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce, finance.

When Buerger volunteered to head the safety subcommittee, Sam McVay, core committee chairman, said, "you've just accepted the universe" and chuckled.

The safety subcommittee will oversee the safety campaign, first aid and an effort to eliminate some of the problems posed by high school students taking part in Halloween festivities. The committee plans to send speakers to local high schools to tell students about problems such as underage drinking, Prowell said.

Carbondale and University police arrested 173 people for underage possession and consumption of alcohol at the 1987 Halloween celebration. The committee is trying to determine which area high

Colorado air crash death toll rises

DURANGO, Colo. (UPI) — The death toll rose to nine Wednesday in a commuter airliner crash on a ridge during a snowstorm in southwest Colorado, and one survivor who hiked out through waist-deep snow said he thought the pilot was flying too low.

Pilot Steve Silver, 36, copilot Ralph Harvey, 42, and seven passengers were killed when he Continental Express Metro III turboprop plane crashed about five miles east of the La Plata County Airport Tuesday night. Eight other passengers survived, including seven who waded 1 1/2 miles through the snow to get help.

One passenger, Lee Vollmer, 25, of Longmont, Colo., who survived the initial crash, died of injuries Wednesday at Mercy Medical Center.

Robert Johnson of the National Transportation Safety Board said seven investigators were at the scene Wednesday. He said one possible cause to be studied was weather conditions at the time, with 1-mile visibility in light snow and fog. There was no wind, he said.

The plane had been cleared for landing at about 7:30 p.m. when it was about 15 miles east of the airport, according to FAA spokesman Dick Meyer, who said there was no further contact between the controllers and pilot.

One of the survivors, Phil Brevik, 36, of Durango, said the first he knew something was wrong was when the pilot abruptly tried to pull the nose of the plane up.

"The pilot pulled the plane up, then it came down, spun three or four times to the right," said Brevik, who was treated for minor injuries and released from the hospital. "Both wings were dislodged

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israeli soldiers killed a three-man Arab guerrilla death squad that slipped across Israel's heavily defended frontier with Lebanon Wednesday bent on an attack apparently aimed at refueling bloody Palestinian rioting in the occupied areas, officials said. One soldier was wounded seriously in the brief clash with the guerrillas, identified as members of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Moslem militia ends refugee camp blockade

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Shiite Moslem militiamen and their army allies ended a 15-month blockade Wednesday of two Palestinian refugee camps in south Beirut, police and Palestinian sources said. The Amal militiamen and the army 6th Brigade pulled out from the fringes of Burj Al Barajneh camp only two hours after lifting a similar blockade around the adjacent shantytown of Shatila.

France vows to protect merchant ships in gulf

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — France has expanded the role of its naval forces in the troubled Persian Gulf, warning Wednesday that French warships will fire on any Iranian gunboat ignoring an order to break off its attack on a merchant vessel. France is the only Western power maintaining forces in the region to come close to granting protection to all merchant vessels in the waterway.

Vietnam to let war babies leave, officials say

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Vietnam has agreed in principle to allow an airlift of an estimated 30,000 Amerasian children and their relatives to the United States within the next year or two, two U.S. congressmen said Wednesday. The agreement would affect 8,000 to 12,000 children, fathered by Americans during the Vietnam War and their relatives, bringing the total number of prospective immigrants to about 30,000.

Reagan says U.S., Soviet space race ongoing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan told Congress Wednesday the Soviet Union still has "expansionist aspirations" and warned it is also challenging U.S. leadership in civilian space programs. Reagan was giving the annual report on National Security Strategy required by law. Reagan also noted that he recently approved a new national space policy, which sets goals of expanding the human presence and activity beyond Earth orbit into the solar system.

Minister denies he turned government snitch

NEW YORK (UPI) — A black minister who has been prominent in a series of protests against racial violence was videotaped setting up a cocaine deal and secretly turned into a government informant on mobsters and black activists, a published report said Wednesday. The Rev. Al Sharpton, who has emerged as a leader of protests stemming from the racially motivated killing of a black man in Howard Beach more than a year ago, denied the allegations contained in a front page story in New York Newsday, which cited unnamed government sources.

College of business receives $3,500

By Antoinette Hayes
Staff Writer

The College of Business and Administration has received a $3,500 grant for an international student workshop.

Uma Sekaran, co-sponsor of the workshop and chairwoman of the department of management, said the workshop is aimed at making international students aware of cultural differences between the operation of businesses and organizations in the United States and their home countries.

Sekaran said the workshop also will "enhance students from developing countries during their stay in the U.S. by identifying their career needs and opportunities." This is necessary because business customs in other countries differ markedly from those in the United States, she added.

The grant was awarded in December by the United States Agency for International Development and the National Association for Foreign Student Affairs.

"This is the first time for this type of workshop at SIU-C and probably anywhere in the country," Sekaran said.

Workshop co-sponsor Fred Leong, psychology instructor, said the workshop is divided into three sessions, including an introductory workshop in Lawson Hall at 6 p.m., Feb. 29, and two follow-up sessions scheduled in April.

Leong said students will be given a test and handouts during the first session to help them evaluate their career goals. The other sessions will be devoted to an explanation of the test results and a career assessment.

He said the workshop will be different from other business workshops because it will examine cross-cultural differences and interactions with international businesses, topics not offered in general business courses.

The workshop is open to international students in the College of Business and Administration from India, Malaysia, Singapore, Korea, Taiwan, Pakistan, South Africa and Honduras.

Both Sekaran and Leong are from developing countries, India and Malaysia, respectively. Sekaran has published extensively in his field and Leong has done research and counseling in business as well as career counseling throughout the United States.

Strip to get new pool hall, March opening scheduled

By Dana DeBeaumont

A new bar, Stix Bar and Billiards, will open sometime in March on the Strip and house 12 pool tables and a small dance floor, owner John Budslick said.

The Liquor Commission, which consists of members of the Carbondale City Council, issued Budslick a Class A liquor license for Stix Bar and Billiards at 517 S. Illinois Ave., the former location of Das Fass.

In addition to awarding Budslick a liquor license, the Liquor Commission voted not to raise the current maximum liquor license fee from $1,500 to $2,500.

but didn't find it justified. The board said the cost of liquor licensing and regulation were already being covered.

However, board member Keith Tuxthorn, who disagreed with the commission's decision, thought the increase was needed to be fair and to "make sure (the city's) revenue stays high enough without overrunning."

The commission also approved transfers of liquor licenses:

University cattle herd upgraded Breeders donate beef embryo

By Steven Starke
Staff Writer

The College of Agriculture will get the opportunity to upgrade its beef cattle herd thanks to donations of frozen embryos from several of the top cattle breeders in the nation.

"Three of the top breeders in the country have confirmed that they will donate frozen embryos to help support our operations," H.D. Woody, associate professor of animal science, food and nutrition, said. "We hope to get confirmations from additional breeders within the next few weeks."

This is the first time beef cattle researchers at the University have worked with frozen embryos. However the procedure is established nationally and has been done commercially for the past three to five years, Louis E. Strack, staff veterinarian who will perform the implantations, said.

The procedure is expensive, but it will allow the embryos from one strong cow to produce several offspring and the embryos can be stored indefinitely, Strack said.

When grown, the herd will be used for further breeding, teaching purposes, merchandising and for beef evaluations, Woody said.

"We are not only upgrading our herd, we are upgrading our teaching and research capabilities for the following semesters as well," he said.

The sponsors of the program were chosen because they were among the top Angus cattle farms in the country, Woody said. They include Englebrecht Angus Farms of Henry, Ill., Northcote Farms of Forest, Va., and R.J. Ranch of Briggs, Texas.

Cultural ignorance hinders America

NO MAN IS an island, nor is any nation. John Donne's idea that all people are interdependent has slipped the minds of most Americans, who refuse to learn about other cultures and languages.

The nation known as the "melting pot" of ethnic cultures has grown so arrogant and insensitive that it has become the land of missed opportunities.

Even as the world shrinks through improved communication and transportation, the chasm between America and the rest of the world grows.

Americans' cultural ignorance makes them unable to understand the causes of world events, contributes to the nation's trade deficit and hinders scientific research.

MANY AMERICANS CANNOT form intelligent opinions of world events because they lack basic geographical or cultural knowledge. An understanding of such things as the importance of religion in the Middle East, which differs greatly from its role in America, is necessary to understand the region's stormy political climate.

Without such knowledge one cannot adequately decide, for example, which Presidential candidate's foreign policy ideas are the most reasonable.

AMERICAN EXPORTERS THAT send executives abroad who do not speak the language and who have little or no knowledge of the country's culture have helped create America's huge trade deficit.

In contrast, Japanese, German and Scandinavian corporations send executives to the United States who speak flawless English and who have studied American culture. In short, foreign corporations come to the U.S. market much better prepared than American firms entering foreign markets.

AMERICA'S SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH also suffers because of a dire lack of bilingual scientists to translate new research from foreign countries. In some cases, it takes up to two years for research to be translated into English.

The misguided notion that the United States is so important and powerful that it is not necessary to learn about other nations and languages is both a result and a cause of the nation's xenophobia.

The solution, while obvious, is not simple. Foreign languages must be taught extensively in grade school and high school. A minimum of six years of a foreign language must be required. Geography, world history and culture also must be taught in depth.

AS FOREIGN LANGUAGE programs are improved at the high school level, colleges once again must require a foreign language for admission.

In addition, students should be encouraged to study abroad and foreign language majors should be required to study abroad, as in the British university system.

In the meantime, students should take the initiative and voluntarily enroll in foreign language and related courses. College is meant to be a process of edification and enlightenment, not one of acquiring a limited, narrow-minded view of the world.

Residents of the melting pot must stop rejecting their various cultural heritages and open their eyes to the rest of the world.

Quotable Quotes

"You wouldn't rebuild your house while the San Francisco earthquake was still going on, would you?" — H. Ross Perot, advising investors to stay out of the stock market.

"Well, if Gary Hart can do it, why can't I?...Notice you didn't get a flat no." — Walter Cronkite, asked by Robert MacNeil if his criticism of U.S. foreign policy meant he would throw his hat in the presidential ring.

High school principal Clark rules with iron fist, hard head, no heart

You know the country is going downhill when Joe Clark becomes "a national folk hero." That's what Education Secretary William Bennett called him the other day.

Clark, in case you're behind in your contemporary folklore, is the Paterson, N.J., high school principal whom the school board there wants to can and whom the Reagan administration wants to canonize. Like so many heroes of the Reagan years he is a blustering bully, fond of intimidation, and a little wacko.

A black man, he strides the halls of his ghetto school armed with a baseball bat and a bullhorn. "I want them to know that I'm around," he tells reporters. He has been known to lock fire doors at the school to keep out the friendly neighborhood drug dealers. And he throws out kids; he throws out a lot of kids, hundreds of them. "Hooigans, parasites, miscreants, leeches and mutants," he calls them.

That's what has got him in trouble with the school board, mainly. The board thinks it should have final say on who's a miscreant and who isn't, to say nothing of mutants. Clark doesn't think the board should have a say on anything.

"I refuse to let a bunch of obdurate, rebellious, unappreciative board members run me out of this town that I've worked in so assiduously for 27 years. ... Anyone who encourages welfare, handouts, leechism, goldbrickers and hangers-on is worthy of the guillotine."

Sounds like Pat Buchanan is his speech writer, doesn't he? Yet even his critics admit that he has made things better. When Clark took over the Paterson school in 1982, the teachers taught their classes behind locked doors and literally were afraid to go out into the halls. To that situation he has brought order and with it higher test scores and a measure of school pride, so mean accomplishments.

Having said that, however, you have to say this: You don't have to be Emperor Jones to run a high school, even a tough one. The head of the Paterson Education Association says of Clark's school: "If Eastside were a Third-World country, Amnesty International would be in there investigating human rights violations."

A couple of years ago Clark sent a memo to a group of dissident teachers, inviting them "to purge yourselves of the demons that make you so dangerous to the very institutions and ideologies to which you should be dedicating your professional lives or to purge the Paterson school system by leaving it." He has been known to call some teachers "gutless, spineless, racist bastards." That is bad education.

replace him with something better. Clark doesn't think that's possible.

"When I leave this school," he says, "if it didn't plummet to the depths of despair, if it didn't become violence-ridden, if drugs and stabbings, all the things that I inherited, did not reappear, I would be chagrined."

It is the challenge of the Paterson school board to see to it that he is chagrined. If it can't guarantee that, then it's better off keeping him and letting him do his thing. This is his rap against the way the system works in urban areas like his.

"Black and Hispanic kids are not learning anything of any consequence. They're inferior academically — not because of innate inferiority, but because of a system that made them inferior by giving them things they should work for, such as a diploma.

"A diploma that black and Hispanic kids get is basically worthless, because they have no skills. They become unproductive in society. What the system is saying is, 'All right, go to school and just stay there and we'll give you a diploma. If you can't read and write, we'll give you welfare and rent subsidies and food stamps.

"That's what's wrong with liberals. They've undermined the foundations of this country by giving, giving, giving. You have to make people work."

You can disagree with some of that, and I do, but we liberals can't merely refute it by getting rid of the Joe Clarks of the world. We have to offer a more humane alternative that works.

But for God's sake, don't make the man a folk hero. It's bad enough we have Rambo.

But you can't just fire him and think you've done something good, for he has succeeded where other, presumably more humane, administrators have failed. If you replace him, you have to

New Soviet space shuttle set for blast off, says official

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Soviet space shuttle will be ready for blastoff in the "nearest future," a top official said Wednesday, raising the possibility of a test flight that could upstage NASA's first post-Challenger mission.

Alexander Dunayev, director of Glavkosmos, the Soviet agency set up in late 1985 to oversee the country's commercial space program, said the Soviets must conduct some final experiments, but expect to launch a shuttle in the near future, barring major failures.

Dunayev did not say whether the plans call for a manned or unmanned spacecraft, although a space expert in the West said such a flight probably would be unmanned.

Dunayev appeared at a news conference with cosmonaut Yuri Romanenko, who spoke to reporters about his recordshattering 326-day stay aboard the Mir space station for the first time since the epic voyage ended Dec. 29.

The successful test launching last May of the Soviet Union's first super booster, called Energia, was a key step toward a shuttle launch because the multi-role rocket's 110-ton lift capability is required to get the orbiter into space.

"Concerning a space shuttle, we are close to the finishing line on such a ship," Dunayev said. "As soon as we are ready for a launch of the shuttle system, we will inform as we did for the Energia booster. I hope we will witness this event in the nearest future."

In the view of some Western diplomats who follow the Soviet space program closely, the Soviets are eager to launch their shuttle this year before the United States can resume its program, which has been grounded since the Challenger disaster Jan. 28, 1986, in which seven astronauts died.

The next U.S. shuttle flight is expected to blast-off in late summer with a crew of five, but Soviet space expert James Oberg said in a telephone interview from Houston the initial flights of the Russian shuttle probably will not be manned.

"One of the next tests of the Energia will probably carry a boiler-plate shuttle just to test launch aerodynamics," Oberg said. "That could occur this year. But a boiler plate is a long way from a piloted version."

"They're clearly serious about such a spacecraft, but I would be surprised to see a manned orbital flight in this decade," Oberg said.

from the plane, which made a hole that we could get out of. Seven of us got out and walked to the road."

The first survivor out was Peter Schauer, 39, of Boonville, Mo., who trudged 1 1/2 miles through snowdrifts up to 5-feet deep, making a path for the others to follow. One of the survivors carried a 23-month-old child, Nicole Trujillo.

Schauer got to the farmhouse of Thelma Tate, 79, whose home is on U.S. 160, and called authorities. Tate said Schauer, who was hospitalized with bruises, told her he thought pilot error caused the crash.

"The pilot tipped the wings and caught a tree and that flipped him around," Tate quoted Schauer as saying. "He said simply the pilot was just flying too low. He said as far as he could tell there was nothing wrong with the plane."

Schauer, who was in good condition, was not accepting telephone calls from his hospital room.

Sheriff's Sgt. Bill Barrow said Durango Police Sgt. John Ball was the first rescuer on the scene. Ball walked into the area by following Schauer's curving trail through the snow.

The wreckage was near the top of a pinon-pine and scrub oak covered ridge. The right wing had been torn off the fuselage and the left wing was bent back. The nose of the plane was demolished.

"We tried to get snowmobiles in, but the snow was too soft," Barrow said. "People on snowshoes and skis had the best luck."

Keith Rauch of the La Plata County Search and Rescue Team, who used cross-country skis to reach the wreckage, said two passengers died while rescuers pulled them from the wreckage. It took more than two hours to get the survivors out, he said.

Most of the survivors had been seated in the rear of the plane, he said.

FAA officials continue investigation of crash

By Edward Rahe and John Mohler
Staff Writers

Officials from the Federal Aviation Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board continued their investigation Wednesday into the Monday night plane crash at Southern Illinois Airport that killed three SIU-C students.

Tapes containing information about the crash were to be reviewed Wednesday morning, according to Edward J. McAvoy, an investigator from the NTSB's Chicago office.

Bernadette Bauer, manager of the FAA office in Springfield, said Wednesday afternoon no new information on the crash was available. Such investigations usually take at least six months to a year to conclude, she said.

Bauer said a preliminary report may be issued as early as Friday.

City to upgrade treatment plant

Carbondale will spend more than $2 million on its southeast wastewater treatment plant to comply with Illinois Environmental Protection Agency standards.

The plant was in violation of pure water standards in September, October and November of 1987. Suspended solids and bacteria measurements for October were nine times higher than the standard.

Frank norn, manager of the plant, said the system to be installed will be "a definite improvement" over the present system. The plant is at peak volume when most students are in town, but volume falls considerably during break.

The improvements have been approved by the City Council and the IEPA. The city will issue general obligation bonds to raise money for the

The plane, Continental Express Flight 2206, was on a delayed flight from Denver. Continental Express leased the plane from TransColorado Airlines, an airline spokesman said.

A safety campaign proposal for the 1988 Halloween program will be presented by the Public Relation Student Society of America at the core committee's Feb. 24 meeting. The PRSSA planned and implemented last year's safety campaign.

In the meantime, the committee is searching for one representative each from the west and east sides of the city to sit on the core committee as voting members.

The improvements are supposed to be implemented by July 1, but Mayor Neil Dillard said the IEPA is allowing the city to miss the deadline as long as it is working to alleviate the problem.

Helms intensifies efforts to cripple INF treaty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., escalated a conservative campaign to defeat or cripple the nuclear missile treaty with the Soviet Union by warning Wednesday the pact must be amended to fix serious threats to U.S. security.

As part of what conservatives on and off Capitol Hill call a strategy to develop "killer amendments" to the treaty that will be politically risky for senators to oppose, Helms said he finds it "astounding" no nuclear warheads will be destroyed under the agreement. "It is the nuclear warheads that kill you, not the missiles," said Helms, the ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. "Unless this problem is corrected," he said, "the Soviets can merely rebolt their enormous inventory of warheads onto the thousands of other missiles in their inventory, many of which can hit the United States."

The committee is scheduled to begin hearings Monday on the Intermediate Nuclear Forces Treaty, which was signed Dec. 8 by President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

The treaty would eliminate superpower land-based missiles with ranges of 300 to 3,400 miles, most of which are deployed in Europe, but allows the warheads for those missiles to be returned to national stockpiles.

Amendments by the Senate would mean the negotiations with the Soviet Union would have to be reopened, an action that could well sink the treaty. Amendments require a majority vote for passage, while the treaty itself needs a two-thirds vote — or 67 votes if all 100 senators are present — for approval.

As Helms was attacking the treaty, conservative groups said they are fighting it with various strategies ranging from traditional lobbying of senators, to mass mailings, to hard-hitting advertisements and distribution of taped messages to politically active Republicans.

Helms, in a statement, said a reduction in American nuclear missiles would require the United States to spend "billions we do not have" for a major expansion of conventional forces in Western Europe, and mean the primary U.S. nuclear deterrent would be U.S.-based intercontinental missiles.

Prosecution's evidence barred in trial of ex-presidential aide

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge in the trial of Lyn Nofziger barred the government Wednesday from presenting evidence beyond 1982, the year the ex-presidential aide is accused of cashing in on his White House connections.

Prosecutors had wanted to introduce evidence from 1983 and 1984 to show how lobbying contacts Nofziger made with former White House colleagues in 1982 affected the outcome of matters under discussion.

Nofziger, the first person to be prosecuted for violating the 1978 Ethics in Government Act, is accused of illegally using his influence to win millions of dollars in business for two defense contractors and a maritime union.

U.S. District Judge Thomas Flannery told the prosecution it must prove Nofziger violated the law by contacting officials who had a "direct and substantial interest" in the matter back in 1982.

"I have a problem letting this evidence in," Flannery told prosecutor Lovida Coleman, a member of independent counsel James McKay's team. "I'm not going to change my mind."

Former Navy Secretary John Lehman, called by the government as a witness, dealt the prosecution another blow when he extolled the virtues of Nofziger during cross-examination.

"I always had an open door to Nofziger because I found him to be a very honest, blunt individual whose word was very reliable," he said when questioned by Nofziger's lawyer, E. Lawrence Barcella.

Lehman also minimized the role Nofziger and one of his lobbying clients — the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association — played in an issue under consideration involving staffing some Navy ships with civilian crews.

"Civilian manning was not contentious. Everybody was for it," he said. "It did not in '81 and '82 appear on my radarscope as a major, contentious issue."

Lehman was the last witness to testify Wednesday. The trial was to resume Thursday morning.

Earlier in the day, the government made some inroads during its questioning of Craig Fuller, one of President Reagan's aides who now runs Vice President George Bush's staff.

Fuller said the White House held a couple of 1982 meetings on staffing Navy ships with civilian crews, an area of concern to the maritime union Nofziger represented.

Reagan asks Congress for Contra aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan warned Congress Wednesday "it's time we got serious" about thwarting a Soviet advance on the southern border of the United States and give more aid to the Nicaraguan rebels.

In a 20-minute speech to a group of supporters, Reagan laid out a "history of deceit" by the Sandinista regime as a reason for continuing U.S. support of the Contra rebels, even as the Nicaraguan government has made moves toward loosening its totalitarian hold.

Congress votes in two weeks under rules that would make later reconsideration virtually impossible. Reagan said the majority of his aid request will be for "non-lethal" supplies, but he did not give a figure. Estimates have ranged from between $120 million and $270 million.

Earlier, Reagan's usually mild-mannered spokesman, Marlin Fitzwater, charged that Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., and other Democrats are opposing aid because "they want surrender. They think surrender is the best way to advance peace."

Dodd replied: "These smear tactics are only further evidence of how desperate the people in the White House are to keep their failed policy alive." He said it was "typical Reagan administration politics — when you can't win on the merits, attack somebody."

Arts in Celebration wants artists, donors

Proposals are being accepted from artists, craft-people and performers interested in participating in Arts in Celebration, a festival to be held in Carbondale's Lenus Turley Park in October.

Coordinators of the event, which is designed to focus regional attention on the variety of arts available in the region, are hoping to attract a broad spectrum of artists to participate in the festival.

"We're very concerned that we don't miss some budding artist who is out there that we've never heard of or seen," Bonnie Moreno, festival co-ordinator, said.

Arts projects are being considered now so proposals can be matched to contributors of materials and money. Arts in Celebration hopes to pay participants.

Those interested in participating also should send an example of their work. For instance, musicians should send a tape, visual artists a slide or a photograph. Documentations need not be slick or expensively done, but simply provide the committee an idea of what the person does, Moreno said.

The festival will feature 40 booths, and artists are encouraged to provide demonstrations. There also will be a children's stage and a main performance stage. Traveling artists, such as jugglers, mimes and clowns are expected to be part of the event.

Moreno said organizers also hope artists will want to build something at the park during the weekend — some kind of "larger than life" work such as a painting or sculpture that adults and children could help create.

Private and public sponsorships are being sought by the festival finance committee. Those wanting to donate money or material should call finance chairwoman Kassy Simonds at 457-8191 or Moreno at 549-0652.

Proposal forms are available from Arts in Celebration, Carbondale Community Arts Inc., 213 S. Illinois Ave., Carbondale, Ill. 62901, or by calling program chairwoman Kris Sisulak at 457-8191 or co-coordinator Kathleen Sanjabi at 549-4486.

Peace Corps to schedule interviews, discuss benefits

Peace Corps representatives from Chicago and SIU-C will present information about the program at various campus locations Feb. 2 and 3.

Interviews will be held at the University Placement Center in Woody Hall on Feb. 11 and 12.

The recruiters are interested in juniors and seniors looking for jobs in international development whose studies range from agriculture and liberal arts to health and engineering.

An information booth will be set up in the Student Center and talks will be given to clubs and classes.

A film about the benefits and difficulties of Peace Corps work will be shown in Student Center activities rooms A and B at noon and 7 p.m. Feb. 3. The film features volunteers in Niger, Nepal and Columbia speaking about life in the program.

Peace Corps pays as much as 70 percent of recruits' National Student Loans. The program also offers language training, a monthly paycheck to cover living expenses, free medical and dental coverage, 48 days of paid vacation and a $4,800 readjustment allowance upon completion.

About 5,500 Peace Corps volunteers currently are working to help those faced with inadequate health care and education systems, malnutrition and deforestation in Africa, Asia, Latin and South America, the Pacific and the Caribbean. The program operates in 62 developing nations.

For more information and an interview appointment, contact John Eaton at the Office of International Agriculture, Room 117, Agriculture Building, or call 536-7727.

Conservationists offer job skills

For more than 30 years, the Student Conservation Association has been offering college students, recent graduates and other adults the opportunity to develop job skills, gain work experience and cultivate professional contacts in the resource management field.

Through the association's resource assistant program, volunteers work independently or assist conservation professionals with tasks including wildlife surveys, natural history interpretation, backcountry or river patrols, and biological or archeological research.

The association is accepting applications for more than 500 positions that will be offered during the 1988 summer and fall seasons in places including Gates of the Arctic National Park, Alaska; San Francisco Bay National Wildlife Refuge, California; Phoenix District, Bureau of Land Management, Arizona; and Mt. Baker-Snoqualmie National Forest, Washington.

Anyone interested in participating or learning more about Student Conservation Association internships should contact the association at 603-826-5206 or 826-5741 or PO Box 550C, Charlestown, N.H. 03603.

Blood test could diagnose potential alcoholics

BOSTON (UPI) — Government scientists have developed a simple blood test to diagnose alcoholism that may also offer a way to screen people to see if they have inherited a risk for becoming an alcoholic, it was reported Wednesday.

The test, which measures two enzymes in the blood, also could help researchers understand what makes some people prone to becoming dependent on alcohol and possibly lead to improved treatment, researchers said.

"It provides guideposts as to what we should study," said Boris Tabakoff, scientific director of the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism in Bethesda, Md.

Dr. Theodore Reich of the Jewish Hospital of St. Louis said the test holds "great promise for the development of convenient specific laboratory measures of alcohol abuse and dependence."

He added that "it is intriguing to speculate that the abnormalities (detected by the test) are measures of the underlying genetic susceptibility to alcoholism."

"The discovery of a direct measure of susceptibility to alcoholism would be a major breakthrough in our efforts to prevent the disorder and to understand its pathophysiology," said Reich in an editorial accompanying a report on the test in The New England Journal of Medicine.

But Colleen O'Connor, a spokeswoman for the American Civil Liberties Union, said the existence of such a test raises concerns that it could be abused, especially by employers who might use it to discriminate against employees.

"The ACLU would be suspicious of a test because of the implication of its use in

Embezzled cookie dough makes profit

GLOUCESTER, Va. (UPI) — A lawyer wrote a $1,000 check to a Brownie Scout troop to cover the loss of their embezzled cookie funds, which they had set aside for a Christmas trip.

"I felt sorry for them having to miss a trip at Christmas time," said Joseph Smith of Newport News.

A Gloucester grand jury has indicted the troop's former leader, Julia Ford, on embezzlement charges, and her husband, Stanley Ford, on grand larceny charges.

Julia Ford, who led the troop from September 1986 until April, is scheduled to be tried March 25. No trial date has been set for Stanley Ford.

Cathy Goodman, who now heads the troop, said the girls, 6 to 8 years old, had to give up one trip and had expected to cut back on handicraft materials because of the embezzlement of $857 in cookie money.

The Brownies' story also prompted Marlys Cunningham, a Silver Spring, Md., mother of a Brownie Scout, to send a check for $15, Goodman said.

Goodman said the money will enable Troop 1049 to take several outings and perform community services.

"We can work on merit badges now, go swimming at the fitness center, bowling and spring activities," she said.

screening out employees unfairly," O'Connor said.

Tabakoff and his colleagues tested the blood of 96 alcoholics and 33 non-alcoholics.

Although more research is needed to confirm the findings, the researchers calculated that testing the enzymes could be used to correctly identify up to 75 percent of alcoholics.

In addition, since the enzyme abnormality persisted in the alcoholics for up to four years after they stopped drinking, the researchers speculated the abnormality may have been present before they started drinking.

Although there are other possible explanations for the persistence of the abnormality, one possible explanation is that it may be a marker for an inherited susceptibility for alcoholism or may actually represent the biological basis of alcoholism, Tabakoff said.

It may be inherent or inherited," Tabakoff said. "That leads us to believe these enzymes may be useful for finding those who may be predisposed before they start drinking."

More research is needed to confirm that theory, and those studies are currently under way, he said.

'60s rock acts dominate Rock and Roll Hall of Fame

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bob Dylan, The Beatles, The Supremes, The Drifters and The Beach Boys joined the pantheon of legendary performers in the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame Wednesday.

Woody Guthrie, Leadbelly and Les Paul were among others honored as early influences on rock 'n' roll, while Motown Records Berry Gordy Jr. joined the Hall's list of music business giants.

The performers were being honored at the third annual black-tie dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Presenters included Mick Jagger, Keith Richards, Bruce Springsteen, Little Richard, Joan Baez, Chet Atkins, Billy Joel and Elton John.

After the dinner, an all-star jam session featuring inductees, presenters, and guests was planned.

Last year's session saw Springsteen, Richards, John Fogerty and Sting joining Hall of famers Chuck Berry, Bo Diddley, Smokey Robinson, B.B. King, Carl Perkins and Roy Orbison play classics like "Blue Suede Shoes," "Roll Over Beethoven," "Going to a Go-Go," and "O, Pretty Woman."

Potential inductees to the hall are not eligible until 25 years after the release of their first record, making the selections a tribute to lasting musical value more than timeliness.

Dylan's protest songs were a cornerstone of the '60s political activism, but he went on to produce a rich and varied body of work ranging from hard rock to country music.

His most famous songs include, "Blowin' in the Wind," "All I Really Want to Do," "It Ain't Me Babe," "Mr. Tambourine Man," "Like a Rolling Stone," "Lay Lady Lay," and "Knockin' on Heaven's Door." Like Dylan, the Beatles were inducted in the first year of eligibility. The British quartet exercised as profound an influence over 20th century popular music as any other group or individual.

In only a few years, they produced a monumental recorded output that is still winning over new fans today.

The Supremes, a vocal trio led by Diana Ross, virtually defined the Motown sound with a string of hits including "Where Did Our Love Go," "Baby Love," "Stop in the Name of Love," "Nothing but Heartaches," "You Keep Me Hanging On," "My World Is Empty without You," and "You Can't Hurry Love."

Penn dresses down prowling suspect

MALIBU, Calif. (UPI) — Sean Penn, who plays a cop in his next movie, took the law into his hands Wednesday for the second time this month when he hit a suspected prowler in the head with a bottle of salad dressing, sheriff's deputies said.

The hot-tempered actor, who has had his share of problems with police, was confronted by five suspected prowlers shortly after midnight, sheriff's deputies said.

While Penn, 27, talked to the suspects, Madonna telephoned authorities.

"Penn told the deputies that as he attempted to detain the prowlers, suspect Richard Barcelo, 20, of Chino Hills, tried to punch him," Los defend himself, grabbed the handiest item and struck Barcelo with a bottle of salad dressing."

Barcelo suffered a superficial wound near his right ear, then waited quietly for deputies to arrive, Dinsmoor said.

Angeles County sheriff's Deputy Richard Dinsmoor said.

"Penn, in an attempt to

When deputies arrived, they found the actor and Madonna's brother detaining the five young men.

Poll indicates Americans support right to abortion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A strong majority of Americans, including some usually considered anti-abortion, support the Supreme Court's 15-year-old decision, Roe v. Wade, legalizing most abortions, the National Abortion Rights Action League said Wednesday.

The poll of registered voters, described by NARAL officials as the most comprehensive survey on the emotional and bitterly divisive issue, showed that 56 percent to 37 percent of those surveyed support "keeping it legal for women to be able to have abortions when they decide to have one."

An even larger group — 63 percent — said they oppose passage of a constitutional amendment that would again make abortions illegal. A constitutional amendment, the key plank in the platform of those opposing the Jan. 22, 1973, Supreme Court ruling, was backed by 31 percent of those polled.

The poll was released as both sides in the bitter controversy geared up for a variety of events to mark Friday's anniversary of the court decision.

Roman Catholic Cardinal Joseph L. Bernardin of Chicago, chairman of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops' Committee for Pro-Life Activities, called the 1973 ruling an error and urged the mobilization of public opinion against abortion "in a year of political choices."

"Study and reflection by legal scholars have helped confirm that the court's action was a misplaced legal interpretation that has opened the door to other problematic areas, rather than a legitimate application of constitutional issues," Bernardin said.

According to the NARAL poll of 1,200 registered voters, conducted by Hickman-Maslin Research, while many of those who favor keeping abortion legal also believe it should be made available only "under certain circumstances," but only 10 percent said it "should not be allowed under any circumstances."

The opposition to a constitutional amendment is strong in the very constituencies the anti-abortion movement has traditionally tapped, including conservatives, Southerners, self-identified Republican voters, Roman Catholics and Protestant fundamentalists who believe the Bible is the literal word of God.

In addition, 47 percent of the voters questioned said too much attention is paid to abortion.

Nuns face dismissal from order for their opinions on abortion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Roman Catholic Church issued a "canonical warning" that could lead to the expulsion of two nuns from their religious order for their views on abortion, it was announced Wednesday.

Sisters Barbara Ferraro and Patricia Hussey, who work with the homeless in Charleston, W. Va., have been under fire from the Vatican and leaders of their religious order, the Sisters of Notre Dame de Namur.

The two nuns joined nearly 100 other Catholics in signing an abortion-related advertisement during the 1984 presidential campaign.

In a statement released in Washington, the nuns said they received the first canonical warning of their dismissal in a letter from the order's general moderator, Sister Catherine Hughes.

"As many of you know, our leadership was directed to seek our dismissal in December 1984 by the Vatican Congregation for Religious and Secular Institutes if we refused to retract our support for the 'Catholic Statement on Pluralism and Abortion' which appeared in The New York Times Oct. 7, 1984," the nuns said.

Ferraro has been in the order for 25 years and Hussey for 20 years.

The letter from Hughes demanded the two "refrain from making any further public statements which do not fully convey your position so that the possibility of such statements being interpreted as pro-abortion will be minimized," and that they "refrain from using language which is abusive or disrespectful of persons." They were also instructed to consult with the order "before making further public statements on the subject of abortion" until the order "has developed a policy regarding dissent."

Ferraro and Hussey have refused to comply with the demands.

"We believe the leadership's use of the vow of obedience to regulate a community member's public response on controversial issues will have a negative effect on the burden of conscience and moral agency (action) of all members of the community," the two sisters said.

Under the order's disciplinary procedures, the two nuns will have a chance to respond to this first warning and the order leadership can issue a second notification followed by dismissal.

Cardinals' McGee signs 3-year contract for $4.1 million

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Center fielder Willie McGee, the National League's MVP in 1985, said he has signed a three-year contract with the St. Louis Cardinals reportedly worth $4.1 million.

The agreement makes McGee the fifth member of the Cardinals to earn $1 million or more a year.

Shortstop Ozzie Smith, catcher Tony Pena, pitcher John Tudor and infielder Bob Horner already have contracts calling for them to earn $1 million this year, although Horner needs to play in 125 games to reach that figure.

"This is a great feeling," McGee said Tuesday. "I haven't said much over the past, but I really wanted to be there (St. Louis) for as many years as I can, and hopefully finish up there."

McGee, 29, played for $750,000 during the 1987 season, when he drove in 105 runs and batted .285 for the National League champions.

The contract reportedly calls for McGee, who would have been eligible for free agency after this season, to earn $1.2 million in base salary in 1988, $1.4 million in 1989 and $1.5 million in 1990.

The deal was worked out in Los Angeles between Lou Susman, a member of the team's executive committee, and Tom Reich, McGee's agent. Reich also represents Jack Clark, who earlier this month turned down Susman's last-minute offer to keep the slugger with the Cardinals.

McGee signed a three-year contract for $1.2 million after the 1983 season. He earned league MVP honors in 1985, when he batted .353 with 82 RBI to lead the Cardinals to the National League pennant.

really made up my mind to stay," Hawkins said. "Everybody wanted to stick together."

Albeck quickly installed an NBA-type running offense to put the fun back for the players in the game that was taken away by the probation. At first, the team struggled with the new system but began to click by the end of the season.

Hawkins finished fifth in the country in scoring with 27.2 ppg while leading Bradley to a 17-12 record.

"We really didn't know how to play the running game," Hawkins said. "So we made a lot of turnovers and a lot of dumb mistakes. But after a while we calmed down and got on a roll by the end of the year. I think it's carried over to this year."

This season, Hawkins' nation-leading 37.4 scoring average is almost eight points more than Lehigh's Daren Queenan (30.4 ppg), who is second. Hawkins' 52-percent field-goal percentage makes his scoring average even more impressive.

Hawkins needs 10 points against SIU-C tonight to break Mitchell Anderson's Bradley career-scoring mark of 2,341 and become the fourth highest scorer in Missouri Valley history. Oscar Robertson tops the list at 2,973, followed by Larry Bird, 2,650, and John Sherman Williams, 2,374.

Hawkins gives Albeck credit for improving his play.

"He's helped me a lot," Hawkins said. "Just having him telling me makes a lot of difference ... because he's been to the NBA. You know what he's saying is true."

Hawkins' favorite team is the Boston Celtics. While he probably won't be drafted by the Celtics, chances are he will play in the Boston Garden next season.

Jerry Thomas (8.5 ppg, 3.3 rpg) and Trevor Trimpe (6.8 ppg, 4.5 rpg) start for the Braves. Donald Powell (9.8 ppg, 5.7 rpg) plays both forward and center.

Saluki forward Randy House (12.5 ppg, 5.1 rpg) has regained his shooting touch after suffering a slump during break. Forward Rick Shipley (8.7 ppg, 7.6 rpg) is fourth in the Valley in rebounding. Dave Busch, who scored eight points against Indiana State, will see playing time behind center Tim Richardson (6.5 ppg, 5.3 rpg).

Erik Griffin will miss the second game in a row for the Salukis because of a sore wrist.

After Bradley, the Salukis will travel to Normal to play Illinois State. The Redbirds, in Peoria, handed Bradley their lone Valley loss, 85-74.

"When you go on the road in the Valley, you hope to split," Middleton said. "I figure if we come back with a split on the road, then we'll really be in good shape."

But Salukis' coach Cindy Scott is not about to rely on the so-called home-court edge because she said Illinois State has too many weapons.

"They play so well as a unit," Scott said. "All their people can hurt you."

The Redbirds start 5-foot-10 senior forward Susan Wellman, who is averaging 17.3 points per game, and LuAnn Robinson, a 5-foot-9 freshman guard scoring 12.4 ppg.

The rest of the Illinois State lineup is 5-foot-7 junior guard Pam Tanner, 6-foot-2 sophomore center Leslie Ferrell, and 5-foot-9 senior forward Amber Lindbeck.

Char Govan, a 5-foot-10 junior forward averaging 11.9 ppg, and Cindy Kaufmann, a 6-foot-0 freshman and Illinois' Ms. Basketball in 1987, are the top reserves.

"They have great perimeter shooters," Scott said of the Illinois State guards. "We've got to play very intelligently against them because if you make mistakes against this ball club, they'll beat you."

The Salukis' game plan is to establish an inside attack, taking advantage of an edge in height, Scott said.

Mary Berghuis, a 6-foot-2 senior center averaging 11.7 ppg and 5-foot-11 senior forward Bridgett Bonds are the focus of the offense.

The guards are 5-foot-7 junior Tonda Seals and 5-foot-8 sophomore Eileen Richardson. Dana Fitzpatrick, a 5-foot-8 junior, starts at forward after recovering from a knee sprain. One player the Salukis are looking to make a larger contribution is 5-foot-8 junior guard Deanna Sanders, a transfer from John A. Logan College.

"Sanders is starting to play with the ability and confidence that we thought she was capable of," Scott said. "It has just taken time for her to get into the system we use. She feels better about her role, more familiar with the options in our offense."

Sanders averages 4.7 ppg. She is 10-of-33 for 33.3 percent from three-point field-goal range.

In other Gateway action tonight, it's Indiana State at Eastern Illinois, Southwest Missouri at Western Illinois and Wichita State at Bradley.

Intramurals enacts new game plan

By Greg Huber
Staff Writer

Recreation Center officials have made a change in intramural policy to cut down on the number of forfeited games.

Intramural coordinator Buddy Goldammer said the new policy calls for a four-game schedule, instead of five, and teams not forfeiting a match qualify for the playoffs, regardless of records.

Under the old rule, teams with 500 or better advanced to the playoffs, regardless of forfeits.

Any team forfeiting a game must pay a $5 fee to finish the season but can not advance to the playoffs, regardless of its record.

"We don't want to discourage participation but we also don't want forfeits," Goldammer said. The new rules are intended to teach team members responsibility and respect toward other players, he said.

The Intramural Sports Advisory Committee recommended the change.

If a team knows it will be unable to participate, it should contact the intramurals office by 3 p.m. on the day of the match, Goldammer said. There will be a $5 fee. However, he said, the team will not receive a penalty for the first default if notification is received in time.

A team member must notify the intramural office in person, not by phone, Goldammer said.

A second default will count as one forfeit and disqualify the team from the playoffs, he said.

U of I football team saved from NCAA 'death penalty'

CHAMPAIGN (UPI) — While the University of Illinois football team has lost its head coach and is again in the NCAA doghouse, things could be worse.

David Berst, the association's director of enforcement, said recruiting violations by the football program could have led to the NCAA's "death penalty" if the infractions had occurred nine months later.

The so-called "death penalty" enacted Sept. 1, 1985, shut down the Southern Methodist University football program last year. But the Illinois infractions, the most serious being that a former assistant coach allegedly paid the hotel accommodations of a prospective athlete, came in January 1985.

The so-called "death penalty," enacted Sept. 1, 1985, shut down the Southern Methodist University football program...

"If that act had occurred after Sept. 1, 1985, it would have had a substantial bearing," Berst told the Chicago Sun-Times.

On Monday, Head Coach Mike White submitted his resignation to Athletic Director Neale R. Stoner after a university investigation unearthed five recruiting violations.

Four of the misdeeds involved the recruiting of Texas prep Hart Lee Dykes. A fifth involved a visitation violation by White to the home of Chicagoan Paul Glonek after Notre Dame released Glonek for academic reasons.

The more severe infractions involving Dykes charge that former assistant coach Rick George, who now is recruiting coordinator at Colorado, paid Dykes' hotel bill.

The new wave of violations occurred while Illinois was in a two-year probationary period after being sanctioned by the NCAA in the early 1980s.

"Our infractions occurred during our probationary period," Stoner said. "And any violation while you're on probation is serious. You have to be more sensitive."

A maple floor, depending on the thickness and quality of wood, lasts seven to 10 years before it needs resurfacing, University Architect Allen Haake said. The floor's life expectancy is about 25 years if it is consistently maintained and annually resealed, he said.

However, the present center floor was damaged by floodwaters immediately after it was first installed in 1977 and needed resanding before students used it, Haake said.

"It (the flood) caused the floor to lose eight to 10 years in a hurry," he said.

The floor has lasted about 10 years with normal maintenance. It was scheduled to be resealed again this summer and resanded in about two years, Dunn said. The floor was sanded for the first time when it was installed.

But even with the latest flood damage, if everything goes well with the resurfacing work, the floor could still last to within five years of its original life expectancy, Haake said.

The Physical Plant is coordinating with contractors in the fitness center addition project to determine how to deal with future flooding.

"We are trying to do something with the new addition to alleviate problems," Haake said. Installing another 20- to 24-inch storm line might help, he said, but even that is not the answer because water backs up where it discharges into Carbondale city lines.

Haake said building a dike to protect the low-lying area at the northwest side of the center doesn't seem feasible because of the amount of floodwaters.

Assistant center coordinator Brian Lukes has his answer for the flooding problems. "I've got my sandbags ready," he said.

Herrin to Bradley: Gimme a break

By Dave Miller
Staff Writer

The men's basketball team will go toe-to-toe against the Bradley Braves at 7:35 tonight at Peoria's Carver Arena.

The Braves average 97 points per game and boast both the nation's top scorer and top assist man.

"We're going to take the break when we have it," Saluki coach Rich Herrin said. "The problem is we're going to have to control their break."

Bradley is 10-2 overall and 2-1 in the Missouri Valley. Coach Stan Albeck has molded the Braves' offense into an NBA-style scoring machine that fastbreaks at every opportunity with the intent of wearing opponents down.

"They're close to a Top 20 team," Herrin said. "They have a lot of talent. They can score. They're definitely a Top Bradley guard Hersey Hawkins could just as easily be leading the nation in scoring as a member of the Villanova Wildcats.

Flash back to two years ago. Former coach Dick Versace left Bradley's 32-3 team when the NCAA placed the school on probation for rules violations. The Braves were banned from the NCAA tournament for one year.

Former NBA coach and Bradley alumnus Stan Albeck was hired to regain the program's respect. Although Albeck had impressive credentials, the players were getting ready to transfer to another school.

"Hawkins was gone," Albeck said. "He was going to Villanova. I was asked by the administration to talk to him and I did. Trevor Trimpe was going to Marquette. They were pretty much splintering all over the country."

After meeting Albeck, Hawkins and the rest of the players decided to stay.

"Knowing that he's been in the NBA and knowing what he could do for our program and for each player personally, that's what 20 team if they improve their defense."

The game will feature a showdown of the best pair of guards in the Valley. Bradley's Hersey Hawkins leads the nation in scoring with 37.4 ppg. Point guard Anthony Manuel is leading the country with 11.7 assists per game while scoring 16.7 ppg. Together they account for 56 percent of Bradley's points. The Braves could become the first NCAA team ever to have both the scoring and assist leaders in the same season.

Herrin said a variety of Salukis will try to stop Hawkins.

"We'll play different people in different situations, but we'll probably start in a zone," Herrin said.

The Salukis' "Dynamic Duo," Steve Middleton and Kai Nurnberger, will match up against Hawkins and Manuel. Middleton's 23.5 ppg average is second in the Valley. Nurnberger, who was named co-Player of the Week in the Valley, has the fifth best average at 17.1 ppg. The backcourt combination has scored 50 percent of the Salukis' points.

Bradley is out-rebounding their opponents by three each game while the Salukis are getting out-rebounded by two a game.

Women to face Redbirds

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

Illinois State and SIU-C each have won two Gateway Conference championships in women's basketball, and at 7:35 tonight at the Arena, they meet again in a fight for the top spot.

Nearing the halfway mark of the Gateway season, Illinois State, SIU-C, Eastern Illinois and Indiana State are tied for first with identical 6-1 league records.

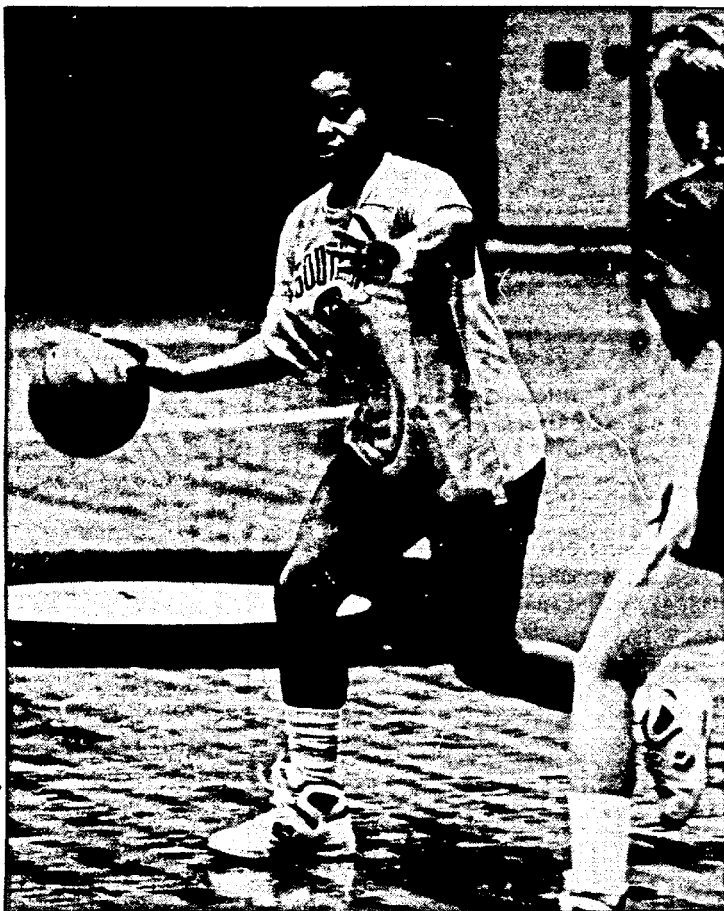

"By the end of the weekend we hope to have a clear idea of who will be contending and who won't be," Illinois State coach Jill Hutchinson said.

The Redbirds, which captured Gateway titles in 1983 and 1984, are 10-4 overall, while the Salukis, winners in 1986 and 1987, are 10-5.

When it comes to showdowns between the two, Illinois State has a 26-15 series advantage since 1962. The Redbirds have won 12 of the last 19, despite dropping four straight to the Salukis.

Hutchinson expects a battle, pointing out the importance home-court advantage has played this season. "I think it's very difficult to win on the road in the Gateway right now," Hutchinson said.

The Salukis are 5-1 at the Arena this season and have only one home-court loss in 32 games. They defeated Illinois State 69-61 at Davies Gymnasium last year.

Saluki guard Dana Fitzpatrick practices Wednesday afternoon at the Arena. She will start as forward tonight against the Illinois State Redbirds. Game time is 7:35 p.m.

Rec Center decides to fix gym floor

By Greg Huber
Staff Writer

Optimistic officials at the Recreation Center have shelved plans to replace the center's main basketball floor and will wait until after spring semester to sand and resurface the damaged floor.

Center Director J. Michael

Dunn said the view now is to "wait and see" if the floor can withstand the sanding needed to restore it.

The floor, damaged during a flood last June 12, was partially repaired but still has minor "hoops and cups," which are warped areas and curled edges.

A month after the June flood, parts of the floor still contained 16-percent moisture.

Initial reports said the floor could not be salvaged; however, three subsequent appraisals by different firms indicate the floor can be repaired, Dunn said. A bid is out for the job and work is expected to begin in May, he added.

Sanding and resurfacing the maple floor, plus repainting the lines, is expected to cost about $40,000, Dunn said. He said replacing the floor would cost roughly $120,000.

Raiders' coach resigns

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Tom Flores, who guided the Raiders to two Super Bowl titles, retired as Los Angeles' coach Wednesday amid reports maverick team owner Al Davis is considering hiring a black to fill the position.

Reports circulated before an afternoon news conference that Dennis Green, wide receivers coach for the San Francisco 49ers, would replace Flores and become the first black head coach in modern NFL history. Green was head coach of Northwestern from 1981-85.

U of I spared NCAA 'death penalty'

The Raiders said no replacement would be named Wednesday.

"I would hope the Raiders would have a new head coach by the league meetings in Phoenix in March," Davis said. "Other than that, I have not given it much thought and I'm not ready to discuss it."

Others being mentioned for the position include Willie Brown, defensive backfield coach of the Raiders, and Art Shell, who coaches the offensive line. Both are black and used to be star players with the Raiders.

Davis has hired three coaches in his tenure as owner — John Rauch, John Madden and Flores — each coming from within the organization.

Flores, 51, will remain a consultant with the team. The club's 5-10 mark in 1987 marked the second straight year the Raiders failed to go above .500, the first time that has happened since 1961-62.

"Obviously, if we were in the (playoff) hunt, I wouldn't be here," Flores said. "You have to take the good with the bad."

"The timing is right for me to go about some other challenges in life."
