Former Music Director Will Perhaps Visit Here

At the request of students who are now in school that knew Mr. Bainum when he was director of the music department, word has reached here that he will make all possible effort to visit the S. I. N. U. before the close of the spring quarter. Friends here will be glad to know recital and will in June receive his degree of Bachelor of Music with "Final Honors" and "Special Honors" in Theory of Music. Following is a letter received here.

409 W. Oregon St.
Urbana, Illinois.
May 9, 1924.

Mr. Ransom Sherretz,
Carbondale, Ill.
Dear Ransom:

I hope that you will pardon my delay in replying to your kind letter. The enclosed program of my senior recital which came off last night will supply you with my excuse. I have been working day and night finishing up the arrangements.

Your cordial invitation to come down and make you a visit was most sincerely appreciated. I can assure you. And I most certainly shall do so if I can possibly get a day off before your spring term closes. The days from now until after Commencement here are crowded with events and activities in which I have to take part—usually in directing one or another of the University bands. However, if I find my spare time at all

SIXTEEN HUNDRED STUDENTS ENROLLED FOR THIS TERM

The Largest Enrollment Ever Attained At The S. I. N. U.

When the enrollment reached the 1,600 mark the S. I. N. U. surpassed any previous record it had made by nearly 200 students. It is not believed that there is a Normal School in this state with such an enrollment at this time and it is not known of any in the United States that surpass it; then, too, it must be remembered that something like fifty students have been persuaded to wait until the Summer Session. To the most of us, this does not mean so much; we somehow can't make ourselves feel the direct responsibility that we should feel, but to those who are more closely connected with the best possible future of this institution, a tremendous problem presents itself and in the handling of that problem in the most efficient manner a duty devolves upon the student body that cannot be taken care of only by the student body. It is a pleasing thing to note that during this school year there has been such an overwhelming majority of just such individuals as were wont to do the right thing, that any one who may have been disposed to make himself conspicuous soon felt the pull of some irresistible force and the sound of the strong voice from the student body letting him know that it was he who was not in line. Now it is just as pleasing a thing to write of that vast number of students who have registered this term there seems to be that feeling among them that it is best to do that which is for best of the school and they too are doing their part well. It is by just such co-operation as this that we are really able to handle such a difficult situation to the best advantage; this is the sort of co-operation desired; the sort we owe to our school and if the student body fails in seeing that just such co-operation is continued, it is failing in one of its very best chances to render efficient service. Let us see to it that for the remaining part of the year we not only attend this school that we might have our certificates renewed, but that we contribute in no small measure toward the development of a real college in the truest sense of the word.

NEWS FROM THE AGGIES

The Agricultural Club was well attended last Wednesday night. Due perhaps to the beautiful moonlight and the excellent work of the members on the program.

Mr. Gersbacher gave two selections on the piano, which were greatly appreciated by the Club. After this Ernest Garrison gave an interesting talk on the growing of sweet clover and its relation to soil fertility on the clay soils of Southern Illinois.

Lowell Galbreath, editor-in-chief of the Agricultural club Star gave us some juicy bits of news from the columns of his paper. If you have failed to get the Ag. Club Star on your reading list, subscribe at once.

The newly elected officers were installed at this meeting, and they promise us some real programs. If you are not a member come out and join.

NORMAL TAKES

GAME FROM CARTERVILLE

In a somewhat interesting game of baseball staged last Wednesday on Bayless field, the Normal team proved itself to be too strong for the Carterville nine and walked away with a rather easy victory to the tune of 7 to 2.

Hinckley, local twirler, for the Maroons starred on the mound when he let 16 of the opposing team take their seat near the batter's bench without any exertion at making first. Carterville pitcher took Hartley to be easy and tossed him out that resulted in a home run. All together the team is playing good ball and it is the duty of the student body to support the team.

Senator Borah is getting more radical every day. His notion now is that Congress ought to go to work.

S. I. N. U. Wins Southern Ill. Tennis Championship

Lawrence Harper and Ivan Dexter, doubles players for the S. I. N. U. won the Tennis Championship of Southern Illinois at the Tournament held at Shurtleff College, Alton, on May 9th and 10th.

The local boys won out after perhaps the most sensational and hard playing ever witnessed at an Illinois College meet. It was certainly the most ill arranged meet that could possibly have been held. It was necessary for the Normal to play five hard matches or fifteen sets on Saturday. It is understood that every team present is to enter a protest on the management of the meet. In passing we wish to thank a Shurtleffite, Meigs, for his courtesy and the effort that he made for the betterment of the meet. As one example on the poorness of the management it was necessary for Harper to meet a Shurtleff man in the semi-finals of the singles who had not played since the day before while he (Harper) had already played four matches that day.

Results of the Doubles

Carbondale first met Illinois in the doubles. They scored a victory in the first two sets which were 9-7 and 6-0. McKendree were the victims and fell after a hard struggle of three out of five sets. The score being 6-4; 3-6; 6-4; 7-5; McKendree was the hardest opposition that the Normal met. They, however, were fresh while the locals had already played two matches

Blackburn was pitted against Carbondale in the finals but stated that they were too good sportsmen to play the Normal in the condition that they were in and offered to forfeit the championship. This the Normal refused but won the toss and the title.

Carbondale will enter the state meet in doubles which will be held with Bradley at Peoria this week-end.

Results of the Singles

In the first match of the singles Dexter defeated Alexander from Illinois in two sets 6-0; and 6-1. Harper defeated Chen from the same school by a 6-4; and a 6-2 match.

In the second round Dexter vanquished Newcombe of McKendree by 6-0; and 6-2 scores while Harper took

HIGHLAND MARY

In the imposing monument to Robert Burns at Alloway, near Ayr, in Scotland, there may be seen two small volumes, one of the Old Testament and one of the new. On them are written the names "Robert Burns and "Mary Campbell." They are also inscribed by the hand of the poet with these two texts: "Ye shall not swear by my name falsely; I am the Lord;" and "Thou shalt not forswear thyself, but shalt perform unto the Lord thine oaths."

These two volumes with this interesting inscription were given by Burns to Mary Campbell one Sunday in May, 1886, on the Banks of the Ayr, and Mary gave him a Bible in return. Standing on each side of a brook, and holding a Bible between them, they pledged themselves to each other while life should last. They expected to marry and go to the West Indies, but they never saw each other after that day. Mary, whose home was on the Clyde, and who had been working in Burns's neighborhood as a children's maid, left at once for her home to arrange affairs for their proposed "change of life," as Burns says in a letter. In the autumn "she was returning to Glasgow, where she had obtained a place, when, stopping on the road at Greenock to attend a sick brother, she caught fever from him and died. She was buried in the west kirkyard of the town, a spot where all who love the Scottish muse never fail to drop their fervent tear."

A monument, erected by descendants of her family, now marks her grave. On the third anniversary of her death Burns wrote To Mary In Heaven, the last three stanzas of which describe the betrothal incident:

That sacred hour can I forget,
Can I forget the hallowed grove,
Where, by the winding Ayr, we met,
To live one day of parting love!
Eternity can not efface
Those records dear of transports past,
Thy image at our last embrace,
Ah! little thought we 'twas our last!

Ayr, gurgling, kissed his pebbled shore,
O'erhung with wild-woods, thickening green;
The fragrant bush and hawthorne hoar

Twined amorous round the raptured scene;
The flowers sprang wanton to be prest
The birds sang love on every spray;
Till too, too soon the glowing west
Proclaimed the speed of winged day.

Still o'er these scenes my memory wakes,
And fondly broods with misercare;
Time but th' impression stronger makes,
As streams their channels deeper wear.

My Mary! dear departed shade!
Where is thy place of blissful rest?
See'st thou thy lover lowly laid?
Hear'st thou the groans that rend his breast?

Ye banks and braes and streams around
The castle o' Montgomery,
Green by your woods, and fair your flowers,
Your waters never drumlie!
There simmer first-unfauld her robes,
And there the longest tarry;
For there I took the last farewell
O' my sweet Highland Mary.

How sweetly bloom'd the gay green birk,
How rich the hawthorn's blossom,
As underneath their fragrant shade
I clasp'd her to my bosom!
The golden hours on angel wings
Flaw o'er me and my dearie;
For dear to me as light and life
Was my sweet Highland Mary.

Wi' mony a vow and lock'd embrace
Our parting was fu' tender;
And pledging aft to meet again,
We tore ourselves asunder;
But, O! fell Death's untimely frost,
That night my flower sae early!
Now green's the sod, and cauld's the slay,
That wraps my Highland Mary!

O pale, pale now, those ruby lips,
I aft has kiss'd sae fondly!
And closed for aye the sparkling glance
That dwelt on me sae kindly;
And moldering now in silent dust
That heart that lo'ed me dearly!
But still within my bosom's core
Shall live my Highland Mary.

I shall be glad to come. Mrs. Bainum and I have planned to come several times only to have to give it up at the last minute.

You may be interested to know that I have just received notice to the effect that the Council of Administration has approved the recommendation of the Music School faculty that I have conferred on me at graduation in June the degree of Bachelor of Music with "Final Honors," and "Special Honors" in theory of Music.

My plans for the coming year are not settled as yet.

Please give my best regard to my friends among the students and faculty—and again, many thanks for your courtesy and thoughtfulness.

Sincerely yours,

G. C. Bainum

We take the following criticism from the DAILY ILLINI of May 9, 1924:

Original compositions and orchestral arrangements of Glenn Cliffe Bainum featured the senior recital last night in Recital hall. The program was divided into two parts, the first being the original compositions and the second the orchestral arrangements played by the University orchestra, Mr. Bainum conducting.

The first number was a brilliant one of beautiful runs and harmonies, "Etude" for piano in sonata form, played by Mr. MacNeill with his graceful and firm touch. Miss Lucinda Munroe charmed her audience in the interpretation of three numbers for soprano written by Mr. Bainum. "Song," a sweet romantic melody; "Solitaire," a dramatic number of weird harmonies, and "A Little Work, A Little Play," a clever programmatic number were attractively interpreted by Miss Munroe. "Berceuse" for violin and piano a melody with much feeling and imagination was rendered by Marshall Meyer, who is a warm and expressive player.

The second part opened with a beautiful orchestration of "Solemn Prelude" from Gloria Domini by Noble. The selection opens up with a cello solo that is taken up by the brasses and reeds then a French horn solo and finally the full orchestra, which works up by a gradual crescendo to a tremendous climax.

The "Marionette Suite," MacDowell is cleverly arranged with characteristic effects, made through the use of the muted brasses, pizzicato in the bass strings and frequent use of the bassons and English horn. The suite was divided into seven parts that seemed to be the contents of a story all made vivid by the brilliant arrangements of the numbers by Mr. Bainum. The "Prologue" which was the beginning of the story was followed by "Soubrette," "Lover," "Witch," "The Clown," "Villain" and "Epilogue" which went back to the story telling style and finished the suite which took the audience from the start.

"Menuet Sur Le Nom d'Haydn," Ravel was a peculiar number with a peculiar orchestration. The final selection was a brilliant conclusion to a successful program. "Triumphal March," Hollins, a pompous march played in bold style with the attacks on the dot.

Mr. Bainum deserves credit not only as a composer but as a conductor. The baton to him is not a mere stick as to many conductors but is like an instrument. He wields it with ease and grace and every movement means something to the people sitting in front of him. This is the first Senior recital given by students majoring in theory and its success gives promise of more in the future.

S. I. N. U. WINS SOUTHERN ILLINOIS TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

Hardy, Newcombe's partner, by a 6-4; 5-7; and 6-3 sets.

In the semi-finals of the singles Harper met Goodsul, of Shurtleff, and was defeated after a hard struggle. The sets scores being 1-6; 7-5; 6-3; 6-3. Harper gave completely out after the first set having already played four sets while Goodsul had not played since the day before. Dexter met Phipps of Charleston. The score stood 2 sets up; 2 games up when it began to rain to such an extent that play was impossible and Charleston won on the toss. Phipps had played only one match that day, however, we believe that he did not rush Dexter as hard as he would have if Dexter had been rested.

The doubles was what the team was after however, as it would be impossible for two men to get though both the doubles and the singles at the state.

A CHANCE FOR A CHOICE

Within the last two weeks events have been taking place in Southern Illinois that ought to be of vital importance to the S. I. N. U. and more especially to organizations as Beta Epsilon and Sigma Alpha Pi. It is time this institution makes a bid for the best, and it is certainly time for the Sorority and Fraternity to institute some sort of scheme by which only the desirable can come within their fold. The events mentioned heretofore were the track and intellectual meets which have been held in various towns over this part of the state culminating with the grand round-up at Benton the 10th of this month. Those of us who are interested in the future well being of this school and its subordinate organizations know that it is from just such meets that we are able to pick the best that there is to come in from the high schools for another year and if we are able to offer them more inducements to come here than is offered from elsewhere, it seems logical to think that we'll get the best. It is the business of the Sorority and Fraternity to offer this inducement and if they fail to do this, the excuse for their being is rather flimsy. These two organizations ought to be so conducted that when parents of the winners in the Benton contests have decided that the curriculum at the S. I. N. U. offers about all that their girls and boys can get anywhere else, as a matter of reinforcement they can call to their minds that this is the home of Beta Epsilon and Sigma Alpha Pi, and will journey to this city for the express purpose of seeing if their children can get places to live in these organizations. If the Sorority and Fraternity do not offer just such inducement, they are not living up to the best that is within them, they are not living up to what ought to be expected of them; their lives are destined to be short and filled with much unrest; they will soon fall because they fail to accomplish those things that they were established to accomplish. Those of us who are directly concerned with the perpetuity of these organizations ought to awake to the fact that it is foolish to wait until the beginning of another school year and then take just what we are able to get. It is a far better policy to begin now and select than to wait and take.

ASK ME!.. ASK ME'.

Dear Miss Kewpie: Please answer real soon. If two parts of hydrogen and one of oxygen form water, what will chloroform? Berna Miller.

Answer—I am not certain, but it is formaldehyde.

Miss Kewpie: Why do the societies not have inter-society contests and get zip into their meetings? Ellis Crandle.

Answer—You are right; why don't they?

Dear Miss Kewpie—Hurrah! I've hit upon a wonderful invention—how to make a striking recitation in classes, and I think it should be printed so everyone can get wise too. This is it—when one is called on—slowly rise to the feet, move the chewing-gum from one side of the mouth to the other and then very innocently say "I don't know." Isn't this a wonderful plan? Robert B. Buzbee, Esq.

Answer—Since you say you have profited so well by it, I suppose it must be a very remarkable plan. Do you mean to say you invented all by yourself? Really, one wouldn't think it in one so young.

Dear Kewpie—Why aren't there as many marriages in winter as in summer? Bill Welge.

Answer—Well, Bill it must be this—in winter the fellow is liable to get the cold shoulder; whereas in summer she can make it too hot for him to refuse.

Dearest Kewpie—What would this nation be without women? George Sturm.

Answer—Without a doubt, George, it would be a stagnation.

Dear Kewpie—I have been going steady for six months with a barber and last night he ask me to marry him. Shall I? Puzzled.

Answer—Sure. Somebody's got to marry 'em.

My dearest Kewpie: Kindly inform me as to the definition of a "rainbow kiss"? Flora Clark.

Answer—That grand old man, Dan Webster, gives me the info that a rainbow kiss is one that follows a storm. Is he correct?

THE MAN WHO WINS

The man who wins is an average man. Not built on any particular plan. Not blest with any particular luck—Just steady and earnest and full of pluck.

When asked a question, he does not guess, He knows and answers "No" or "Yes";

When set a task the rest can't do, He buckles down 'till he puts it thru. Three things he's learned; that the man who tries

Finds favor in his employers eyes! That it pays to know more than one thing well;

And to hold the tongue when others tell.

So he works and waits 'till one fine day

There's a better job and better pay; For the man who wins is the man who works,

Who neither labor nor trouble shirks, Who uses his head, his hand, his eyes,

The man who wins is the man who tries.

It's the irony of fate that a man never sees so many fine fishing-worms as when he's hard at work digging in his garden.—Nashville Southern Lumberman.

BOOBS WE KNOW

The Gorm who is always first at the table and gathers up all the chow and carries it off to his end of the table.

The Gink who goes to the Sorority to see his girl and wears a white collar and a pair of hob-nail shoes.

The Gazaboo who comes to your room at mid-night and tells you with tears in his eyes that he went broke in some sort of a game and wants to borrow five of your iron men until his allowance comes.

The Yahoo who eats with his knife and when he cuts his tongue blames the cook for sharpening the knives.

The Bloke who comes in at the wee small hours and starts rearranging his dresser and throwing his shoes on the floor, etc.

The Bum who asks you three times a day for a cigarette. He is always just out and can't spare the time to go to Stumble Inn for some.

The Cook that puts two gallons of water to a can of condensed milk.

The Zobzib who thinks he is still at home and says "gimme" instead of please at the table.

The Bloke who dances with a girl at a party and tells her he is a "woman-hater."

The Gollix who "only wants a quarter" because he knows he can afford to forget it and to pay it back.

The Gentleman who reaches across your plate for the bread and mops up half of your gravy with his sleeve.

The Squinch who makes the air blue because his cards failed to win the game.

The Skyscrimble who has never been near it yet insists on knocking your home town.

The Yap who walks on your heels when coming out of chapel.

The Gink who gets sore because his name sometimes appears in The Egyptian (this species is rare).

The person who is always wanting to borrow your best clothes to go to a party or dance.

The Fish who does the loud-mouthed act at the Barth and thinks he is a part of the show.

The Do-funny who always wants you to get his lessons for him.

SCHOOL SPIRIT

School spirit is feeling of loyalty on the part of students and instructors of a school toward the school as an organization. It includes an intense interest in all affairs of the school, and a desire and a willingness on the part of each individual to work for the benefit of the whole school. The term includes loyalty, enthusiasm, unity and co-operation.

School spirit is a composite feeling emanating from the breasts of the members of the school—teachers and students, past and present—which prompts them to support loyally whatever is undertaken by the school in any of its departments for good, and as stoutly condemn any movement unworthy of the school to rejoice in the good fortune of their fellows, and to sympathize with those whom trouble and which leads to a pride in the final accomplishments of the school.

It reacts upon the individual, inspiring him to "play the man" at all times lest by his failure to do so, he bring discredit upon his Alma Mater.

JOHNSON, VANCIL, TAYLOR CO.

Is Kissing Dangerous?

Every once in a while science emerges from the laboratory, removes its spectacles, looks benignly around and says something.

The latest instance is that of Dr. Simon Louis Katzoff, A. M., M. D., physician and psychologist, who in a lecture before the Bridgeport philosophical Society exploded a few thumping gas bombs which carried dismay into the ranks of those who do not believe in kissing.

"Some bacteriologists," said Dr. Katzoff, "would have us carry around a jugful of carbolic acid or other germicide to wash our lips before kissing. They forget that heat is the greatest antiseptic known, and that the heat generated by a kiss destroys the supposed germ.

"Among sweethearts kissing sends forth ethereal and hypnotic waves, traveling with great velocity, electrifying and rejuvenating every cell structure of the body so that next to love itself it becomes the most potent agency for courage, optimism, hope, health and longevity.

"We are suffering from lovelessness. The lack of love paves the way for carelessness, grouchiness and sickness. A great deal of hatred, envy, poverty, war, disease and the like are also due to lack of love."

Science is always most convincing when it utters our profound instincts. In this case the declaration of Dr. Katzoff evokes a hearty amen from the young and enthusiastic army of lovers.

These have always felt that nothing which is so good could possibly be injurious since nature adjusts her instincts always to health.

The doctrine that whatever tastes good is wicked is the theory of a perverted world. In a normal condition of mankind love is a fulfillment of the law. Indeed the "ultimate angel's law," to use a phrase of Browning, is simply the healthy mind following the clean desires of nature.

That kissing is often wrong and considered naughty proves nothing, for the better a thing is the more it is liable to abuse. It is only good money that is counterfeited.

We are pleased also to note that the kind of kissing that may cause harm is the cold kind, including the little pecks which relatives give each other and perfunctory dabs exchanged between women. Such osculation has little excuse, and really is a profanation of a rite almost divine.

Lovers therefore can be assured upon the very highest authority that when the meeting of lips is accompanied by sufficient warmth the microbes are all killed. The wise and prudent of this world and the guardians of property may frown upon the exercise of this ancient and delightful ceremony, but as far as mother science is concerned, all she has to say is "Go to it, my children."

What the World Wants

By EDGAR A. GUEST

The world is waiting for the man
Who'll gladly do the best he can;
It has high salary to pay
To him who is content to stay
Upon the job, and labor on
Until he knows his work is done.

The world is seeking hard to find
The worker with a cheerful mind;
It wants a youth of pluck and skill,
Who'll use his brain, and work until
The finished task at last he sees
Before he wants to be at ease.

The world has high reward to give
To him who does not want to live
As one who merely drifts along,
And fears to breast the current strong;
It wants a youth of sparkling eye,
Who sees a goal and dares to try.

The world pays well for men of brains
And honest toil and taking pains;
'Twill lift above the common lot
Of "didn't think" and "I forgot,"
The man who, in a time of need,
Can well be trusted with the deed.

The world is waiting for the man
Who'll look ahead and think and plan
And feel, no matter what his post,
That he is where he's needed most,
For such a man there's work to do—
And boy, it might as well be you.

PECULIAR CON-

STRUCTION OF MAN

A Texas editor, while glancing over the papers, has discovered a number of cases where many good offensive people have been injured in various parts of the anatomy. Here are a few cases cited: While Miss Kinsmore at East Wind, Ind., was coming down the stairs Tuesday she slipped and bruised herself on the landing. Amos Mittlebe of Woolpose, Kan., while harnessing a fractious horse was kicked just south of the corn crib; he is able to be about again. While Herold Green of Bulah, Miss., was escorting Miss Violet Goof home from a church social Saturday night a savage dog set upon them and bit Miss Goof four times on the public square. Joseph Tutt of Grimmelsburg, Ia., climbed on his house last week to find a leak, and fell, striking on his back porch, causing serious injuries. Isaac Trimmer of Dolberry, Neb., was playing with a cat Friday, when the animal severely scratched him on the veranda.

A Good Place to Rest

ZETETIC SOCIETY CROWNS SEASON WITH BANQUET

An event which will be remembered by many as one of the most enjoyable of their student affairs took place Thursday evening, May 15, when the Zetets and their friends held the annual society banquet. At eight o'clock the strains of music played by the Zetetic orchestra summoned the banqueters to the dining room of the Methodist church, and a jolly time began.

The tables were placed to form a huge Z, and were decorated in the society colors, green and white. Green candles cast their soft glow over the scene and baskets of white flowers added their beauty. The place cards were unique, being in the form of miniature Z's.

After a selection by the orchestra, Tillie Sturm, toastmistress, welcomed the Zetets and guests. This was followed by a toast on "Eats," by Meredith Smith. Caution, or rather advice, was given to "eat, drink, and be merry for tomorrow we may diet." Needless to say, this suggestion was followed out to the letter.

Irvin Yates spoke concerning the coming Spring Play, "Three Wise Fools." He emphasized the importance of "boosting" all activities, both school and community.

The Zetets are fortunate in having a girls' quartette, of which they are justly proud. This quartette is composed of the following: Alice Barrow, Mary Renó, Bessie Bevis and Roberta McCracken. They sang two selections.

Adelia Fehlber produced "Echoes" of the society, showing how the echoes of the society activities "roll on from soul to soul." A toast "To the Socratic Guests" was given by Lulu Owen, following which music was rendered by Ralph Bailey and Co. Lydia Davis read two humorous selections which were thoroughly enjoyed.

The Socratic President, Dorothea Merz, spoke concerning the friendly rivalry between the two societies, and of the benefits of such rivalry.

Dilla Hall then gave a clever toast to "Inspiration." Many interesting facts concerning Dilla's "growing up" period were learned. For instance—he likes watermelons and lima beans. He very aptly told us what inspiration is by telling what it is not.

A toast to the underclassmen was given by John Hunsaker, in which he showed the broadening influences of the Zetetic Society upon students.

Miss Steagall, Miss Burkett and Mr. Lentz each gave short talks concerning their appreciation of society work and influence.

Much gaiety prevailed throughout the evening, and many pleasant incidents occurred which will be remembered long afterward.

The menu consisted of:

Fruit Cocktail
Chicken and Veal Croquettes
New Peas New Potatoes
Pineapple Fritters
Thousand Island Salad

Cream Cake Coffee

The toasts of the evening had been arranged so that the opening letters of their titles made the acrostic "Zetetic." After a final selection by the orchestra, the signal for dismissal was given, and the Zetetic Banquet of 1924 passed into history—the history of happy memory.

SOCRATIC SOCIETY GIVES MOTHER'S DAY PROGRAM

Friday night, May 9, the Socratic Society presented a mother's day program, which was greeted by an appreciative audience. Every number was thoroughly enjoyed as was shown by the generous applause.

The quartette rendered several selections in keeping with Mother's day and they were so well received they were compelled to respond to the encore.

The humorous reading by Miss Harris gave evidence of her histrionic ability and the house demanded more. Miss Clark and Miss Miller each gave a beautiful solo appropriate to the occasion and touched the hearts of the crowd by the sweetness of their tones.

Miss White's rendition of the book "Mother" by Kathleen Norris was handled in a very capable manner and proved that Miss White will be very much at home on the stage and fill creditably her part in "The Boomerang."

Mr. Buford paid fitting tribute to mothers in his talk. The beautiful sentiments expressed by him concerning mothers if voiced by all the other young men who are away from home will give to that mother evidence that her boy still cherishes her.

Overhead Expense

A farmer, after having married a widow worth ten thousand dollars, was being congratulated. "Well, Seth," remarked the neighbor, "I heard you are ten thousand dollars to the good." "Not quite that," replied the farmer modestly; "not quite that. You see it cost two dollars to get the license."—Square Deal.
