Rec, medical fees could rise for fall

By Miguel Alba
Staff Writer

Students could pay more student fees the fall semester if two fee-increase proposals are approved by the Board of Trustees in early March.

The proposals call for increasing the student recreation fee by $6 to $53 per semester and increasing the student medical benefit fee by $5 to $64 a semester with more small increases very likely in 1990 for the 1990-91 school year.

Last year, students were faced with a 20 percent projected increase in the cost of the medical fee, but the actual increase was 14.9 percent. The University combined the savings from last year with the new 13 percent increase to meet the projected 1990 increase.

For 1990, Blue Cross-Blue Shield projects a 20 percent jump in the insurance fee students currently pay. This figure is based on the past year's "actual experience," which refers to the monies the company paid out in claims. Blue Cross-Blue Shield contracts with the University to provide insurance.

Larry Juhlin, assistant to the vice president for student affairs, said the board has opted to go with small increases year after year rather than one large increase in a particular year.

"If prices keep going up, we've got to get the money from somewhere," Juhlin said. "This increase represents about a 4 percent increase in the current fees."

Juhlin said he is concerned that there will not be enough money to cover future expenses at the Recreation Center and the rising medical insurance fees. This will more than likely result in future increases in medical and recreation center fees.

"We're asking for just enough to get by on a year by year basis," he said.

The medical fee is composed of two separate parts: the student health fee, which supports the on-campus health services; and the student medical insurance premium, which covers students' medical expenses in possible off-campus accidents. It is the cost of this premium that is on the rise.

Jake Baggot, assistant to the Student Health Center administrator, said the medical fee increase was in response to an increase in the Blue Cross-Blue Shield premium that is supported by this fee.

"This is just a reflection of the economy," Baggot said, adding that the University was just passing along the increase.

Baggot said any student who is covered by a policy of their own can apply for a medical fee refund at the beginning of each semester.

Juhlin said the proposed student recreation increase will be needed to cover operating costs of the new

An additional 200 students from the University's Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses will qualify to receive Monetary Award Program grants if a supplemental appropriation bill is signed by Gov. James R. Thompson.

However, the bill will wait as Thompson is out of the state attending the Presidential Inauguration. "No action will be taken on this supplemental bill until the end of next week," Susan Mogerman, governor's assistant, said.

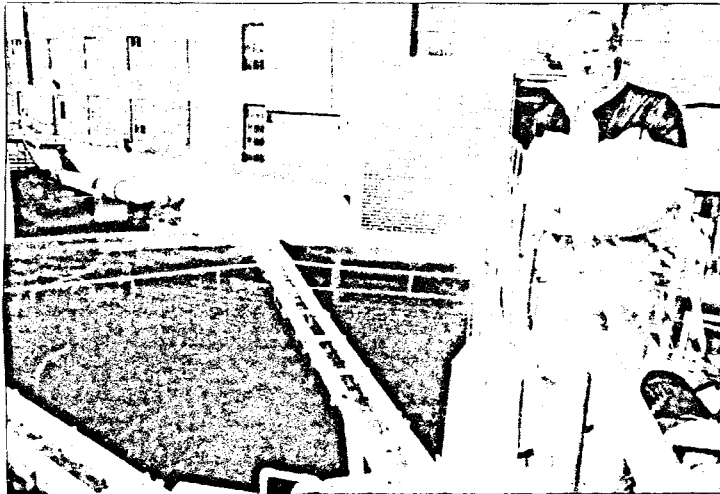

The bill was passed by the Legislature last week and if signed it would provide $5.7 million for Illinois college students who are eligible for the Monetary Award Program.

Students would only be qualified for the Monetary Award Program for the spring semester. This fund will not give aid to those who are applying in fall.

Robert Clements of the Illinois State Scholarship Commission explains that if the bill is passed nearly 7,800 University students would receive this financial aid.

Pamela Britton, SIU-C financial aid director, said the bill would be a boon to both the students and the University. "This bill will be a big help to many students and it will fit in the overall budget."

The Illinois Veterans Grant and the National Guard are subdivisions of the Monetary Award Program and they too would receive the extra aid.

James W. Swayze, superintendent of water operations in Carbondale shows the water treatment plant located on 1001 S. Wall. A feasibility study by the city is taking place, deciding whether the building will be renovated or rebuilt.

Feasibility study to resolve water treatment plant's fate

Possible increase in taxes to update or rebuild building

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

The water treatment plant at 1001 S. Wall has been standing since 1925, but no one can say how much longer it will be able to function.

"We're living on borrowed time," Director of Public Works, Ed Reeder explained.

Superintendent of Water Operations, Jim Swayze, said the average life for equipment is 20 years, but with the proper renovation of the plant and an upgrade of the equipment, it could last for another 20 years.

The estimated cost for renovating the plant is around $4 million dollars with an increase of 11 percent the first year and 23 percent the second year.

A 15.7 percent increase in 1987 was to provide $2 million in renovations for the waste water plant.

The City Council voted Tuesday night to begin a feasibility study for renovation of the plant.

Swayze said any rate increase would "certainly" be on a phased approach over a couple years.

While the water plant presently meets Environmental Protection Act standards, Reeder said he cannot be sure if the plant would meet the new EPA standards.

"We don't know if we wouldn't meet them either," Swayze said.

The new standards might specify the amount of lead and aluminum in the water supply of the consumers' homes, he added.

Swayze said no one knows when the EPA standards, originally scheduled to be set in June 1988, will go into effect.

Although Water Operations is financially limited to renovations, it also is considering a new water plant.

"But when the bucks aren't there, there isn't much we can do," Swayze said.

According to a status report by former city manager William C. Dixon, a new water plant at the existing site would cost over $8 million and water utility rates would need to be raised by 11 percent in 1988 and 41 percent in 1990 to meet the costs.

The cost of a new water plant on a new site is estimated at over $11 million and an 11 percent increase in 1988 and a 53 percent increase in 1990 would be needed to meet the cost.

U.S. shuns call to cut armaments

VIENNA (UPI) — Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, in a dramatic escalation of the disarmament process, announced Thursday that Moscow would remove some tactical nuclear weapons from Eastern Europe in addition to the nearly 250,000 troops it has promised to withdraw.

Shevardnadze, speaking to foreign ministers on the final day of the 35-nation Vienna conference on European security and human rights, also promised the Soviets would announce by the end of the month "data on the numbers of troops and armaments" of the Warsaw Pact.

NATO welcomed the Soviet announcement, but noted the West already had significantly reduced its nuclear arsenal in Europe.

Daily Egyptian suffers setback, papers delayed

Electrical and mechanical problems with the Daily Egyptian's press caused delays in getting the paper on the streets Wednesday.

The DE was printed at the Daily American in West Frankfort, Catherine Hagler, acting business manager, said.

"The people at the Daily American were very generous and helpful and called in their own press crew to help us out," Hagler said.

The first load of papers arrived about 10 a.m. at the Communications Building, where the DE is normally produced.

After DE staff and journalism faculty stuffed advertising inserts into the 27,000 papers, circulation efforts began around noon, Hagler said.

Acting president sworn in after Botha is hospitalized

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — Constitutional Affairs Minister Chris Heunis was sworn in as acting president for an undisclosed period Thursday, a day after President Pieter W. Botha was hospitalized with a stroke. Heunis, Botha's most senior Cabinet lieutenant and leading contender as permanent successor, was sworn in as acting state president at 5 p.m. at Tuynhuis, the presidential office complex adjoining Parliament.

Israeli soldiers kill Arab, wound 38 others

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israeli soldiers killed an Arab and wounded as many as 38 others in the occupied territories Thursday in clashes that broke out as Palestinians observed a general strike to protest the rising number of casualties. Official Israel Radio quoted Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin as saying he supports holding elections in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip after a three-to-six-month period of calm.

Police arrest protestors in fifth day of riots

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (UPI) — Riot police beat and arrested protestors gathered at Wenceslas Square Thursday in a fifth day of demonstrations for more freedom in Czechoslovakia, witnesses said. "Several dozen persons who were most active in the provocative actions were detained," said the official news agency CTK.

Five Central American presidents set summit

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — The five Central American presidents may have finally agreed to hold a long-delayed regional peace summit Feb. 8-9 in El Salvador, Nicaraguan officials said Thursday. A senior foreign ministry official said the summit, postponed four times since August 1988, "is almost a sure thing."

Six Kuwaiti tankers to lose American flags

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon confirmed Thursday that six Kuwaiti tankers in the Persian Gulf will withdraw from U.S. registration, leaving only five others flying the American flag and entitled to military protection. "This will be an orderly process, take place over a period of time," said Pentagon spokesman Dan Howard. "I don't have any sort of target date for when it will actually be completed. The other five tankers that are currently carrying the U.S. flag will continue to do so."

Reagan gives pardon to George Steinbrenner

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan has given a full pardon to New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner, convicted of making an illegal contribution to Richard Nixon's Watergate-scarred 1972 campaign, White House officials said Thursday. Officials said Reagan approved executive clemency for Steinbrenner and nine other men Tuesday and Wednesday, based on recommendations from the Justice Department's pardon attorney.

FBI uncover fraud in Chicago futures trading

WASHINGTON (UPI) — FBI agents posed as commodities traders during a two-year undercover investigation and turned up evidence of massive fraud in futures trading on the Chicago Board of Trade and Chicago Mercantile Exchange, sources familiar with the inquiry said Thursday. The sources, confirming a Chicago Tribune story, said the newest corruption scandal on the nation's financial markets could rival the insider trading probe that shook Wall Street and brought calls for tougher federal regulation of the stock exchanges.

Police: Gunman harbored hate for everybody

STOCKTON, Calif. (UPI) — Police said Thursday the young drifter who killed five Southeast Asian children at his former elementary school harbored "hate for everybody," but a former co-worker said he particularly despised Asians, accusing them of stealing jobs from Americans. Police winding down their investigation of the schoolyard massacre concluded Patrick Purdy, 24, a loner apparently seeking "final revenge" for a troubled life, had no specific targets when he attacked the Cleveland Elementary School, firing as many as 110 rounds from his AK-47 assault rifle.

Area high school papers yet to feel censorship

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

Southern Illinois high school journalists aren't holding protests, sporting black arm-bands, or even commemorating what happened one year ago this month.

In January 1988, the highest court of this land agreed with the Hazelwood East High School principal's right to delete two stories on divorce and teenage pregnancy from the school paper without consulting the newspaper adviser or editors.

But the Supreme Court case the media thought would spark students into action hasn't really affected the Murphysboro, Marion or DuQuoin high school principals, student journalists and their advisers.

In fact, student editors Denni Smith, Gail Craig, Dennis Gulley and Edward Doney haven't heard or read much about the Kuhlmeier vs. Hazelwood School District case, even though the U.S. Supreme Court voted 5-3 to hand over the right to censor their newspapers to high school principals.

"I do believe in freedom of the press, but the person funding the paper has rights too," Doney, student editor at Marion High School, said.

All three high schools publish their school newspapers as a journalism class, with funding for the paper coming from the school.

Craig, co-editor of the Murphysboro Obelisk, said she realizes the principal does have a say in what gets printed.

"We haven't had a problem with Mr. (Principal Robert) Graeff trying to censor us,"

Gulley, the Obelisk co-editor, explained.

Graeff said the decision hasn't really affected his school's newspaper because he has an excellent relationship with the staff.

DuQuoin Principal Tom Bock said the decision has had no affect on the DuQuoin paper because he does not believe in censorship, and he has an adviser, Sarah Doerner, who works with him.

"I understand the reason for the decision because it more or less established the position of the principal," Bock said.

"That in itself is good."

While Bock believes censorship violates the First Amendment rights of the students, Marion Principal LeRoy Anderson does not.

"As long as the Board of Education is paying the expenses, the paper has a right to be censored," Anderson said.

Obelisk adviser Gary Hartlieb said the Hazelwood East administration was "probably justified" in censoring the Hazelwood Spectrum because it was acting as a "voice of reason."

As for the Obelisk, Hartlieb said the principal is alerted if an article is potentially controversial, but the principal doesn't see the story before it is published.

Adviser Barbara Schoen said the Marion Student has not had trouble with censorship and if something does arise, she talks it over with the author.

However, Schoen said the Hazelwood decision was "outrageous" and the principal should have addressed the students and worked out

Censorship, legal cases increasing

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

An increasing number of principals are censoring high school newspapers "simply because they disagree" with the content of the articles, Mark Goodman, the executive director of the Student Press Law Center, said.

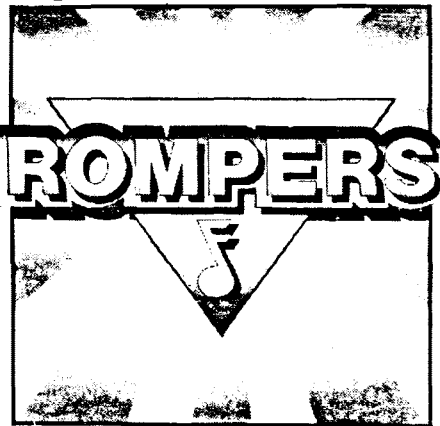

Goodman blamed the increase on the number of high school principals using the broad language of the Kuhlmeier vs. Hazelwood School District case.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled 5-3 in January 1988 to give high school principals the right to censor school newspapers.

Of the 548 requests in 1988, 80 percent were related to actual threats of censorship.

From Sept. 1 to Dec. 31, 246 high school and college journalists requested assistance from the SPLC. This was a 22 percent increase from the same time period in 1987.

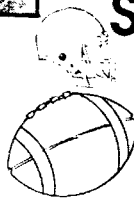

A legal intern "or the SPLC said students shouldn't stop until they get their articles printed in some paper."

Student group woes increased by system

WELCOME TO student government wars. The Undergraduate Student Government and the International Student Council, two of the most influential student organizations on campus, can't seem to get their act together.

The issues are grade point averages and petty bickering. Each organization had an officer who was on academic probation, and each organization went through convulsions trying to eject their respective members.

The question of whether an officer should be allowed to continue to serve has caused much internal arguing and adverse publicity for both the USG and the ISC.

SOME OF THE controversy stems from the fact that the Office of Student Development allows officers in registered student organizations to serve while they are on academic probation if the adviser to the organization requests it.

While this unwritten rule is to be commended for making some allowances for students, it has created near chaos in these two organizations. Nancy Hunter Pei, director of OSD, said the exceptions are made so advisers can work with students whose grades they think will be improved by remaining in office.

BUT THE DECISION to leave these students in place until the organizations decided their fate seems to have contributed to their academic demise. Both Juliana Taylor from the USG and "Robin" Tan from the ISC have left the University.

The advisers in these cases did not have the best interests of the students in mind. Instead of fulfilling their responsibilities to act in the interest of the individual, they threw him or her to the organization, saying in effect: "It's your decision now."

It is not a registered student organization's function to look after the academic interests of the individuals within their group. It is the organization's function to look after the interests of the organization.

BY ALLOWING Tan and Taylor to remain in office, and letting the student organizations work out the problems with their legislative processes, the advisers let GPAs become a political issue.

Supporting a proposed bill in the USG that would avoid impeachment proceedings for USG members that are on academic probation, USG adviser Jean Paratore said, "If someone doesn't meet eligibility requirements they shouldn't have to be impeached." Paratore said she should be allowed to make eligibility checks on all USG members before they are seated, and if someone is ineligible she would ask them to resign. This failing, the member then could be impeached.

THIS STILL LEAVES the academic future of USG members at the mercy of the USG's political decision, as was the case in the ISC when President Ali Firouzi overturned the council's decision not to accept Tan's resignation from his vice presidential post.

Firouzi violated the council's constitution when he did this, but the situation was brought about because Jhareed Dorn, ISC's adviser, put the decision in the hands of the council.

The students, of course, are ultimately responsible for their educations. Taylor fought to remain on the USG and Tan, who knew of his academic status before the fall semester began, did not resign from his office.

But it should not be left for student organizations to decide whether academic probation is grounds for throwing their own officers out of office.

Driving an automobile is a privilege not a right, and the same can be said of being an officer in a student organization. When officers do not meet satisfactory academic standards they have forfeited the privilege.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Board, whose members are the student editor-in-chief, the editorial page editor, the associate editorial page editor, a news staff member, the faculty managing editor and a School of Journalism faculty member.

Letters to the editor may be submitted by mail or directly to the editorial page editor, Room 1247, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten and double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letters of fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters submitted by mail should include the author's address and telephone number. Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

Council president's decision meets with some criticism

Relations suffering

Thank you again (Daily Egyptian) for your unsolicited and biased viewpoint regarding the recent breakdown of our entire international student relations and dismissing it as whining by a few individuals. I implore you to look into this issue in some depth because the international problems that have arisen did not start with the GPA issue, they started at the beginning of the semester and will not simply dissipate by treating them as non-issues.

Agreed, minimum GPA requirements are essential to the academic integrity of this University and each case should be monitored with strict compliance with SIU procedure for the benefit of the student as well as the University, as a whole.

One of the GPA difficulties of our student leaders is that they work too hard for their organizations to the detriment of their grades. Any token effort on your part would reveal that this is the situation with Mr. Tan even though Mr. Ali Firouzi states that, in his "unvettable" opinion, he has shown an unproductive work history. The many achievement awards received by Mr. Tan flies in the face of this truth. The University set up grade requirements so students can learn to regulate and coordinate several diverse and sometimes long-term activities, not to punish them at their first small infraction. This University should do all it can to nurture these ambitious and creative students to become better leaders, not stifle their potential with bureaucracy and superfluous editorials. — Greg Ruggles, senior, mechanical engineering.

Staff not to blame

As an international student I am outraged at the criticism by Mr. Ali Firouzi blaming his staff members for the huge problems of the International Student Council. Mr. Firouzi cites the problem as being caused by a few staff members' lack of English skills. I would like to see some of this leadership that Mr. Firouzi speaks so affectionately of when he is talking about himself. — Chiat On Kong, graduate student, business administration.

ISC a dictatorship

As an SIU alumni and former student senator, I am appalled that one of the most powerful student organizations at SIU is run under a dictatorship rather than a democracy. No other organizational power structure would permit the mandatory dismissal of elected high officials upon the whim of the president in clear opposition to a two thirds majority vote. — Greg Chiver, alumni.

Power abused

I hope that the recent turmoil in the international community regarding the blatant abuse of power by the president of the International Student Council will illustrate to all of the international students the reasoning behind our U.S. Constitution and Bill of Rights which protect us, as U.S. citizens, against such trampling of our basic rights as human beings. — Ronald T. McCarthy, junior, microbiology.

Student urges unity to help fight higher tuition

Governor Thompson says that the State of Illinois should continue to function within its means. By "means," I guess he meant living within what the state allows us. Well, Big Jim, I would like to know if this "living within our means" requires you to do the same, because people are suffering living by your definition of "means."

It is beyond me why people of this state think that these cutbacks will build a strong infrastructure. We are all too optimistic to think that the private sector will be generous enough to donate funds when clearly the stability of our public support is falling apart. The rich are getting richer and the poor are getting poorer.

The legislators are commended for avoiding a tax increase but it is going to take the total destruction of our institutions before they realize that people are too greedy today to make a contribution for the development of other human beings.

Every child that is born reserves a right to an education. It is unfair for us to predict the situation in which a child will be born. No educational system should have to set its prices so high that it restricts entrance to certain social class.

How many Freuds, Einsteins, Mozarts or Kings are there who are born to impoverished families? Are we going to allow them to suffer? I realize people will say that the public should not have to depend on State funding for an education. If a person really wants the opportunities they will find a way to get money. However, this does not work. People do not contribute and it makes it difficult. Not everybody can pull themselves up by their boot straps the same way. Our society has become me-oriented and people do not care about Mr. Jones who just lost his job and is living in a car with his wife and four kids. Thus, if people don't care about Mr. Jones they certainly are not interested in whether his kids can afford an education.

People in our society need to be there for one another. We need to lend each other a helping hand. No one loses when contributions to society are made — we all gain. We need to congregate and fight against another tuition increase. The people of the State of Illinois should want to be proud of their educational system, but it is going to take a lot of loud students to help them see this. — Vicki L. Aponte, junior, psychology.

Stepping to the Woody Hall Shuffle

Bursar bills, closed classes greet students

By Phyllis Coon
Features Editor

Waiting in lines for advisement, registration, financial aid or paying past due accounts is an opportunity that about 1,390 students have taken advantage of during the past two weeks.

"It's all I've done today," Bert Johnson, a pre-major waiting to pay the $179.75 registration fee, said Tuesday at the end of the line at the bursars office. "I've been in Woody Hall since 8 a.m. just waiting around in lines. It's 1:30 and I still haven't registered."

Other students were in line to pick up student loan checks that had disbursement dates beginning Dec. 12, 1988. Daniel Mann, associate director of the financial aid office, said.

The University received 3,000 loan checks before Jan. 17 and 2,500 more are expected to arrive during the semester, he said.

"While the checks are here, only a small percentage of students pick up the checks before the semester starts," Mann said.

The lines began forming Jan. 9 when advanced registrations were cancelled because of past due statement of accounts or because a student was placed on academic suspension, Glenda Kopf, registration supervisor, said.

"At some point we have to confirm a student's intent to attend the University," Kopf said. "A past due account is a good indication that something has happened and the student is not going to attend."

Undergraduate students had the highest number of cancellations — 1,073 she said. Graduate, medical and law students made up the balance.

Students who were waiting for financial aid to arrive at the University and unable to make the minimum payment had an opportunity to get a cancellation waiver, she said.

"If a student doesn't meet cancellation waiver requirements they also have the chance to appeal cancellation through the office of student affairs in Anthony Hall," Kopf said.

Students do not qualify for a cancellation waiver if they have a past due account or if they do not receive enough financial aid to cover the total balance due, Jean Paratore, assistant to the vice president, said.

"The appeal is not a fun thing," Paratore, who will help about 65 students this semester, said. "I would only recommend it in a dire emergency."

The cancellation appeal

includes a payment plan, she said.

"The payment plan is designed for a student to be paid in full to the University by April 21," Paratore said. "If a student can't give me proof they can make the payment, I won't give them a waiver because the downside is that if the contract is not honored a student's registration can be cancelled as late as the end of April."

By going through the re-registration process if students miss a payment their registration will not be cancelled, she said.

"They also don't have me on their backs for payments all semester," Paratore said.

After obtaining a waiver or paying the registration fee, students then head to registration, which is housed in Student Center Ballroom D for a week.

"Registration is moved to the Student Center to handle the increase in traffic," Kopf said. "It's not meant to keep students running all over campus."

But because of closed classes many students do end up running all over campus. Detrice Ward, a senior in psychology, said from her experiences

"This is very annoying," Ward said, searching for an open class at registration. "You get cancelled and you have to start the registration process all over again."

When students get to the

point when they can register, all the classes are closed, Ward said.

After trying to fit a different class into a schedule, many students try to get closed class cards from teachers.

"Closed class cards aren't always easy to get though," Ward said. "You have to go to the teacher who more than likely will tell you to attend the class and then we'll see if we can get you in."

Ward leaves a group of students huddled around the class board to see a teacher in Faner Hall about a closed class card.

"Maybe I will get lucky this time and be able to come back today and register for this class," Ward said. "But that's just another line to stand in."

Long lines are the rule and not the exception when students get back on campus to pick up loan checks or to pay registration fees.

William Buckley Jr. speaks at Shryock as third lecturer

University News Service

Conservative spokesman and political commentator William F. Buckley Jr. will speak at SIU-C on Thursday, Jan. 26 as the third lecturer in the 1988-89 University Honors Lecture series.

Buckley will deliver a free, public lecture on his "Reflections on Current Contentions" at 8 p.m. in Shryock Auditorium. A public reception in the Student Center Gallery Lounge will follow the lecture.

Frederick Williams, director

of the University Honors Program, says he is not sure what Buckley will talk about, but is sure it will be eloquent, witty and worth hearing. "Most people think of him (Buckley) as just being political, but he may talk only about baseball."

Buckley is known for his command of language and his biting wit, and has been described in the New York Times Book Review as one of the wittiest political satirists writing today.

He has published books on academic freedom and a controversial defense of Sen. Joseph McCarthy. His work currently appears in the National Review, his syndicated column, "On the Right," and on his weekly television show, "Firing Line."

Illinois Bell is looking for some prize-winning pictures to help it tell the story of Chicagoland's new area code.

Today the company announced it is sponsoring the "Capture Chicagoland's Growth" Photo Contest to highlight the introduction of area code, 708, on November 11, 1989. Area code 708 will serve the suburbs; the city of Chicago will keep the 312 area code. The introduction of area code 708 will not change rates for calls between the city and suburbs or customer's seven-digit telephone numbers.

The entries, color photos no larger than 8 by 10, can be of anything that helps show this area's growth.

The contest is divided into two categories: adult and student. A grand prize of $708 and a second prize of $312 will be awarded in each category. The phone company also will match each winner's prize with a contribution of that amount to a charity selected by the winner.

Entries must be postmarked no later than February 21, 1989 and should be sent to: "Capture Chicagoland's Growth" Contest, P.O. Box 11172, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Trustees' terms in hands of Thompson

No set date given for reappointment or replacements

By Mark Barnett
Staff Writer

Three SIU trustees' terms ended Monday, but they will continue to serve on the Board of Trustees until the governor reappoints or replaces them.

Carol Kimmel, William R. Norwood and Harris Rowe either will be reappointed by Gov. James R. Thompson or replaced by someone of the governor's choice. However, Barry Hickman, a spokesperson for the governor, said there will be no deadline for Thompson's decision.

"The governor has not acted on the three appointments, and they will continue to serve until the governor reappoints or replaces them," Hickman said.

Hickman could not estimate when the trustees would be notified of their reappointment or replacement. He said the governor makes more than a thousand appointments to various boards throughout the state, and the appointments are not scheduled.

University trustees are appointed by the governor, and serve six year terms. Sharaa Holmes, secretary for the Board, said each of the trustees served continuous terms since they were appointed.

Kimmel was appointed to the Board in 1977, and she resides in Moline.

William R. Norwood

Norwood was appointed to the Board in 1974. Norwood is a pilot for United Airlines, and he lives in Rolling Meadows.

Rowe, chairman of the Board, was appointed in 1971. He is part owner of the stockbrokerage firm, Rowe, Henry, & Deal, Inc., in Jacksonville. Rowe also resides in Jacksonville.

8 students get grants for nursing

The director of the Southern Illinois Collegiate Common Market's Associate Degree Nursing Program, Jeannine Hayduk, has announced that eight area students have received ADN scholarships.

A check for $2,000 was presented to SICCM by Eugene Reister, director of District VII of the Illinois Health Improvement Association. The IHIA is a nonprofit membership association established thirty-two years ago. The association was organized with a primary interest in improving the health care for rural Illinoisans.

The scholarships were made available by the Illinois Health Improvement Association to the Southern Illinois Collegiate Common Market.

Grant given to cinema department

By Nora Bentley
Staff Writer

The SIU cinema department has received a $4,500 grant from the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for the foundation of a fund for scholarships.

"They contacted us. It wasn't anything we applied for or requested," David Gilmore, chairman of the cinema and photography department, said.

Departments that have a strong national reputation are the ones that were chosen, he said, noting that SIU was one of only five universities honored.

"The grant is for one year, but there may be continuing support. 'I think they want to see what the University does with the money,'" Gilmore said.

"It's an award of recognition. I was quite happy to see it," he said. The long term quality of the students that come from SIU is what a reputation is built on, he said.

Writer is off mark in "January Man"

Script as unbelievable as characters

By Scott Smith
Staff Writer

"January Man" tries to combine drama and slapstick. What comes out is a melodrama without tears or a laugh.

Kevin Kline is Nick Starkey, a cop who uses math and astrological skills, even music, to find a murderer. To add to the kookiness of the script, the writer has an artist friend, Ed, who helps Starkey. Ed paints naked women with cats on their laps. His most useful purpose is creating a computer image of New York City, which Starkey uses to solve the crime.

The crime plot is improbable. The characterizations and the way the writer communicates the story are flawed.

Captain Alcoa is played by he usually competent Danny Aiello. Aiello overreacts to some situations, then becomes uncommonly lethargic when he is expected to react to situations.

When Alcoa discovers Nick Starkey will be working for him, he marches into the Mayor's office and screams at the Mayor for an explanation. But once Starkey starts work and demands a different computer system and a city check for Ed, Alcoa gives in without a single obscenity.

Film Review

The worst acting in the film belongs to Rod Steiger as the mayor of New York City. Steiger looks and acts like Archie Bunker with a perm. He rattles off clichés and profanity instead of communicating his emotions.

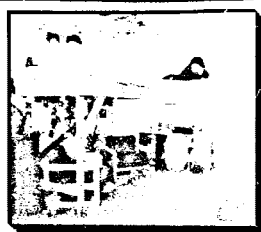

Susan Sarandon's purpose in the film seems to be her name above the title. She plays Mrs. Frank Starkey, and although Frank is Nick's brother, she still loves Nick.

She confesses her love by saying, "I married the wrong man." At the end of the film Nick tells her how he feels, "I loved an idea that looked like you." Prime examples of the film's bad dialogue.

John Patrick Shaley wrote the script. He uses clichéd phrases to express emotions between the characters. The characters lack depth and believability. What kills the film are the jokes, which do not work.

Don't see "January Man" - be happy.

Reagan: Aides kept lips sealed to protect him

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, musing on the worst scandal of his administration in his last full day in the White House, suggested Thursday that aides involved in the Iran-Contra affair kept details secret to protect him.

"Obviously, there had been some things not told to me," the president said in a half-hour Oval Office interview with wire-service reporters.

Reviewing the foreign policy scandal that paralyzed his presidency in 1987, Reagan again insisted that the 1986 U.S. arms sales to Iran were not efforts to buy freedom for Americans held in Lebanon by pro-Iran Moslem extremists.

In addition, the president said he believes his former aides John Poindexter and Oliver North were trying to protect him by apparently keeping from him key information about the weapons deals and the subsequent diversion of arms-sales profits to the Nicaraguan Contra

"Their operating covertly and then not telling some things could have been an effort to protect me."

—Ronald Reagan

rebels

"I HAVE to say this: I think there is a great likelihood that their operating covertly and then not telling some things could have been an effort to protect me," he said, "in other words, to not involve me, not in crime, but in some procedures that they followed."

Reagan's comment was his first suggesting directly that Poindexter and North may have been trying to protect him.

Thursday's interview — another in a series granted in the last two weeks to the nation's major news outlets — was conducted as Reagan and his wife, Nancy, whirled through a frantic final day of farewells. The president, wearing a dark brown suit, appeared tense and a little tired; a few gray strands appeared in his dark auburn hair.

STAFF MEMBERS who have served the Reagans were to leave the executive mansion for good at the close of the day's business to make room for people working for President-elect George Bush.

The president said he has reservations about "giving any advice" to his successor, who takes the oath of office at noon EST Friday.

"I don't think it's proper for me to volunteer such advice," Reagan said.

Reagan ruled out 11th-hour pardons for Poindexter and North although, "I can't believe that either one of these men was guilty of any criminal activity, myself."

"There have been implications of personal gain and so forth. A pardon now before the trial would leave them forever after with that guilt hanging over them," he said. "I say, let the legal process go forward and then determine with regard to a pardon."

POINDEXTER WAS Reagan's national security adviser from December 1985 to Nov. 25, 1986 — when Attorney General Edwin Meese revealed the diversion scheme. At 1987 congressional hearings into the scandal, Poindexter said he never told Reagan of the diversion, adding: "The buck stops with me."

North was an aide in the political-military section of the National Security Council, fired on Nov. 25, 1986. He acknowledged being the "action officer" for the arms deals and the diversion, calling the whole operation "a neat idea."

The two men were indicted March 16 on charges arising from the scandal; North is scheduled to go to trial Jan. 31.

Reagan said Bush attended some of the meetings during which the Iran arms sales were discussed, "but he did not take part in the discussions. ... The decision was mine."

THE PRESIDENT noted a difference between the captives in Lebanon and the 44-day hostage drama that dogged his predecessor, Jimmy Carter, even as Carter handed over the presidency to Reagan in January 1981.

"We know that any overt attempt at rescue, even if we did have a hint of where they were, we would run the risk of their assassination or execution before we could get them out."

Oil companies resume operations with Libya

Reagan relaxes tough sanctions as his term ends

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, in his last full day in office and just 15 days after American warplanes shot down two Libyan jets, eased sanctions against Moammar Gadhafi's government Thursday, telling American oil companies they may resume operations in Libya.

Officials at the State Department and the White House said the Reagan administration's modification of its 1986 economic sanctions against the Libyan government were meant to deprive the Libyans of a financial windfall while allowing U.S. oil companies to protect their investments in Libya.

The oil companies involved are: Conoco, Marathon, Amerasia Hess, Occidental and W.R. Grace.

Under an existing order, that would have expired June 30, the U.S. oil companies were at a standstill — unable to pump oil or sell it. The Libyan government took over oil field operations.

In the modification of that order issued on the last working day of the Reagan administration, the Treasury Department will allow the companies "to resume their operations in Libya, transfer operations to foreign subsidiaries, or sell their assets, if they so desire."

In a statement, the U.S. government said, "The president's decision has been taken to protect U.S. interests. It will eliminate the significant financial windfall which Libya has been receiving by marketing the U.S. oil companies' equity share of oil... It also protects the U.S. oil companies from a potential breach of contract claim" from the Libyan government.

The U.S. statement said, "This decision does not represent a change in the attitude of the U.S. government toward Libya. Our view remains unchanged. Libya still supports terrorism and subversion. It continues to act against the interests of the United States and the West."

The statement continued, "No improvement in U.S. relations can be possible without concrete and durable change in Libya's behavior."

A 23-page report, issued Wednesday by the State Department, contained a long list of terrorist actions supported by the Libyans in Africa, Latin America, the Caribbean and the Middle East.

The U.S. trade embargo against Libya remains in effect, barring the use of American passports to travel to Libya except for special circumstances, such as trips by journalists.

Under the modified order, the U.S. oil companies, through their foreign subsidiaries and using third-country nationals to operate the oil fields, can sell petroleum to other countries. The oil cannot be exported to the United States, however.

Bush cautious to set policies with Soviets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — George Bush, just hours away from the presidency, set a cautious course Thursday for U.S. foreign policy in his administration, but said the Kremlin knows better than to read his prudence as "foot-dragging."

In an interview with wire service reporters, a relaxed Bush indicated his desire for a top-to-bottom foreign policy review is likely to preclude the Feb. 15 scheduled resumption of negotiations on cuts in strategic arsenals.

While negotiations could continue on some technical issues "that don't require new direction or new emphasis," he said that "to really move forward on talks that already have made progress, we have to finish our review."

"I think the Soviets understand that my intention is not to drag my feet, but to simply do a prudent reassessment," Bush said. "And in terms of how long, I don't think we really know yet. I don't feel inclined to adopt a timetable."

On a more immediate issue, Bush expressed concern that a purported threat attributed to Palestine Liberation Organization Chairman Yasser Arafat "does not facilitate improving relations" between the United States and the PLO.

Although the State Department concluded that Arafat appeared to threaten the life of Palestinians who seek to quell the uprisings in the Israeli-occupied territories, Bush said he "would like to review the tape" before drawing any conclusions.

If the remarks constitute a retreat from a renunciation of terrorism, a condition set by the United States formal talks with the PLO, "that could foul the dialogue," Bush said.

"Just from what I've read, I'd say it's a setback to peace rather than an enhancement of peace," he said.

Nonetheless, Bush said the recent decision by President Reagan to hold formal talks with the PLO will not change.

Though his Cabinet and senior advisers are in place, Bush takes office Friday at noon with his political agenda still unclear. His stated desire to "hit the ground running" has been at apparent odds with the time required for his foreign policy review and has collided with stark budget realities.

Leaning back from his desk, Bush signaled no rush to meet with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, insisting progress in U.S.-Soviet relations should not "be measured solely on whether there is a summit meeting."

"What I don't want to do is schedule a meeting just to have it said that we're having a meeting," he said, "because I don't think that does anything but needlessly raise expectations."

Reagan's last full day in D.C. sparks humor of 'tag sale'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan spent his last full day in office Thursday by talking about America's greatness, quipping about a "tag sale" as he readies to depart Washington and awarding honors to two diplomats.

"I hope you stick around a little while afterwards," he told a White House luncheon. "We're having a tag sale upstairs and everything must go."

The line drew gentle laughter from the crowd of congressional leaders and Cabinet members, who at the close of Reagan's final public address as president gave him a prolonged standing ovation.

"Thank you," said Reagan, who ends his eight-year reign Friday as one of the most popular presidents in U.S. history.

Although the luncheon provided a chance for supporters to salute Reagan, it was held so Reagan could present the Presidential Medal of Freedom to Secretary of State George Shultz and Michael Mansfield, who recently stepped down as U.S. ambassador to Japan.

Shultz held four Cabinet posts during his long political career and Mansfield served in Congress for 34 years, including a record 16 as Senate Democratic leader, before being named U.S. ambassador to Japan.

The pair were the 84th and 85th to receive the highest civilian award during the Reagan administration.

Reagan called Shultz and Mansfield "two remarkable men" and said they, along with the previous recipients, represent "the flesh and blood and spirit of what makes America great."

AIDS, street drug use lead to TB boom in prison

Doctor's warn
other institutions
to be on guard

CHICAGO (UPI) — The twin epidemics of AIDS and street drug use have led to a soaring increase in tuberculosis in New York state's prisons, doctors said Thursday, warning other prison systems to be on guard.

Writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, a team of seven researchers said the number of people with tuberculosis more than quadrupled, going from 25 per 100,000 prisoners a decade ago to more than 105 per 100,000 in 1986 in New York prisons.

"There is no doubt that TB transmission within prisons is a real threat," the researchers wrote after finding cases in 25 of New York State Department of Correctional Services' 52 facilities. The system now includes 57 prisons housing 44,000 prisoners, said Dr. Dale Morse, one of the authors of the study, adding that the increase in TB continued through 1988.

While most of the men appear to have become infected with AIDS and TB before they were imprisoned, two of the TB cases found in 1986 may have been contracted behind bars. Three prisoners in close contact with one another all came down with the same unusual strain of the tuberculosis bacterium.

The researchers said the rise in inmates' TB has occurred "in parallel with the AIDS epidemic," with TB taking an increasing toll primarily "among men aged 30 to 49 years from minority groups having a history of previous illegal drug use. Similar features have been noted for the increase in TB cases seen in some areas nationally."

Prisoners with TB were seven to 10 times more likely to have used illegal drugs than were inmates without TB, said Morse, who directs the Bureau of Communicable Disease Control for the New York State Department of Health. Contaminated needles used to inject street drugs can spread the AIDS virus which, in turn, impairs the body's ability to fight off diseases like TB.

Studies in 24 states have shown 4.2 percent of people with AIDS also have TB and the researchers said at least 56 percent, but possibly all of the inmates with TB had signs of AIDS infection.

Morse said normally very few people infected by tuberculosis develop the disease or become infectious to others. But when they are simultaneously infected by the AIDS virus, people's immune systems are unable to keep the TB in check and they develop the contagious disease.

Dr. M. Miles Braun, now an epidemiologist at the Centers for Disease Control, credited prompt treatment of infected prisoners with preventing TB from becoming a more widespread problem in New York.

A NATO spokesman in Brussels said if the Soviet decision "signals that ... the Soviets are now beginning to realize that their potential far exceeds legitimate requirements, we can only find such steps encouraging."

"Let me point out that NATO, at its own initiative, has already unilaterally reduced its own theater nuclear stockpile by some 2,400 warheads over the past several years," the spokesman said.

In Washington, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said U.S. officials would wait to assess the ramifications of the announced withdrawals, but said, "We welcome any move to reduce the Soviet military forces."

Shevardnadze told the conference that the Soviets, in the framework of previously announced troop reductions in East Germany, Czechoslovakia and Hungary, also would withdraw tactical or battlefield nuclear weapons assigned to those troops.

"Pursuing its declared fundamental objective of removing any foreign military presence and bases from the territories of other countries, the Soviet Union will withdraw from central Europe military formations and units with all their organic armaments, including tactical nuclear systems," he said in his speech.

"We proceed from the premise that nuclear weapons are a step backward, not forward," Shevardnadze said.

He said the Soviets were not "engaged in the modernization of tactical nuclear missiles" and implicitly urged the West to adopt a similar stance.

But Ambassador Stephen Ledogar, chief U.S. negotiator for forthcoming Vienna talks on conventional arms reductions, said the U.S. would continue to update its tactical nuclear systems.

"No U.S. president is going to have U.S. forces deployed in Eastern Europe without the most up-to-date equipment we can afford," Ledogar said. He also rejected the possibility of such a freeze while disarmament talks are underway.

Wednesday, Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev announced a 14.2 percent cut in the defense budget and said nearly half the 500,000 troops being demobilized from the armed forces will come from the European area.

In remarks to members of the Trilateral Commission, a non-governmental organization of politicians and businessmen from the United States, Western Europe and Japan, Gorbachev also said production of weapons and military technology would be reduced by 19.5 percent.

The Soviet leader elaborated on a Dec. 7 speech before the United Nations in New York in which he announced that 500,000 troops were being retired from the armed forces.

He said Wednesday that 240,000 of those being demobilized will come from the European part of the country — the forces facing the Western NATO alliance. Another 200,000 will come from the Far East and the remainder, or 60,000, from southern republics, he said.

addition currently being built as well as inflationary costs and salary increases.

The student recreation fee has been increased by $15 in the last two years to fund the construction of the Student Recreation Center's new addition, but no increase has been imposed for the last four years for operating costs.

The Undergraduate Student Government and the Graduate and Professional Student Council will make recommendations to the Student Health Center and the student recreation center advisory boards.

The proposals call for increasing the rec fee by $6 to $53 per semester and medical benefit fee by $5 to $64 a semester.

One USG senator is up in arms about the situation.

Senator Rod Hughes expressed concern over the matter, saying that the increase is not appropriate after the latest tuition increase.

"The administration cannot keep nickle and diming us to death," Hughes said. "They're doing this to us (students) every semester. I'm going to do my best to defeat it (proposal)."

"It doesn't matter what we (USG) recommend," Hughes said. "The Board of Trustees will approve the increase despite what we recommend."

Bill Hall, USG president, said senators will be gathering students' opinions before making recommendations to either advisory board.

Rita Nitz's lawyer requesting continuance to review case

By Richard Nunez
Staff Writer

An attorney for Rita Nitz said he will push for a continuance of her trial on homicide charges because the defense has not received a transcript of the Richard Nitz trial.

Circuit Judge Donald Lowery granted Wednesday a motion to delay the start of Mrs. Nitz's trial until March 20.

But Defense Attorney Robert Drew said that March 20 "isn't a realistic date" because the transcript will have to be read "meticulously" and he expects more pretrial motions to result from the transcript.

Because of publicity generated by the Nitz trial, Drew asked Wednesday that Mrs. Nitz's trial on homicide charges be moved outside of Williamson County.

Drew said that media attention focused on the Nitz trial may prejudice the objectivity of jurors picked from the immediate area.

"The public has heard so much about Richard," Drew said. "The sensational nature of the trial — there's been homosexuality, beheading, Richard is on death row — that it's impacted negatively on Rita."

Richard and Rita Nitz were charged with killing Michael Miley, 23, of Murphysboro. Miley's decapitated body was found April 9 in the trunk of his car, which was parked at Progress Cemetery in Union County.

Nitz, 38, was found guilty of first-degree murder on Oct. 27 and Judge Lowery sentenced him to death by lethal injection.

Before Mrs. Nitz's hearing Wednesday, Public Defender Larry Broeking, attorney for Nitz, asked Judge Lowery to reconsider Nitz's death sentence. Lowery declined and said he believed he no longer had jurisdiction over the Nitz case. Lowery also said he would not hear any further motions to reconsider the death sentence unless the Illinois Supreme Court ruled otherwise.

Mrs. Nitz, 29, is on trial for the first-degree murder of Miley and also is charged with concealing a homicide.

Lowery told Drew to file any further pretrial motions within 14 days, but allowed exceptions for any motions resulting from the transcript.

Drew said he will file a venue change for the trial within the 14-day limit ordered by Lowery.

Mikell Miskell, 45, of 610 S. Division in Carterville, reported a black flatbed trailer was stolen from the back of his truck while it was parked at the First Christian Church, 312 W. Monroe.

Police said the trailer was stolen between 10 a.m., Jan. 10 and 10 a.m., Jan. 11. The trailer was valued at $1,500.

Adam Andrews, 20, of 1608 Schneider Hall, reported his car was scratched and dented while it was parked at 800 S. Washington.

Police said the damage occurred between 7 p.m. and 8 a.m. Jan. 17-18. The damage was valued at $500.

Janet Hartman, 21, of 600 W. Mill, reported someone had stolen a Toshiba stereo-radio cassette recorder from her Stevenson Arms apartment.

Police said the burglary occurred 5 to 5:30 p.m. Dec. 18. The stereo was valued at $230.

Michael Magnussen, 20, of 507 W. Main, reported $914 worth of stereo components stolen from his home.

Police said the burglary occurred between Dec. 17 and Jan. 6.

Bundy trying to postpone his execution

LAKE CITY, Fla. (UPI) — A circuit court judge ruled Thursday there were no grounds for halting convicted serial killer Theodore Robert "Ted" Bundy's execution next week a decision Bundy's attorneys appealed to the state Supreme Court.

Shortly after the lower court decision was announced Thursday, state Supreme Court justices agreed to hear the appeal at 9 a.m. Friday. Bundy is scheduled to die Tuesday at 7 a.m. in Florida's electric chair.

Bundy, suspected in as many as three dozen deaths and disappearances of young women — mostly in the Pacific Northwest — was sentenced to die for the 1978 slaying of Kimberly Leach, 12, of Lake City.

Mystery man visits Poe's grave bearing gifts

Cognac and roses placed on burial of famed writer

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A mysterious black-clad stranger continued an eerie 40-year tradition Thursday by placing a bottle of cognac and a red rose on the tombstone of Edgar Allan Poe in a solemn birthday salute to the famed horror writer.

Jeff Jerome, curator of the Edgar Allan Poe House museum in Baltimore, and a small group of people celebrating Poe's 180th birthday watched from the catacombs of Westminster Hall, which adjoins the cemetery.

At 3:40 a.m., the stranger placed the cognac and roses at the grave where Poe reportedly was buried 139 years ago. Jerome said the stranger's annual pre-dawn appearance "never loses its thrill."

Jerome said the 1989 visitor is likely not the same person who began the tradition in 1949, but the scenario has changed little.

"He wore a black hat, a black cloak and black pants," Jerome said of the pre-dawn visitor. "We think he is elderly because he stumbled three times and was very thin. He placed the cognac and roses on the gravesite, then knelt very slowly, placed his left hand on the tombstone and paused for about 20 seconds as though saying a short prayer.

Then he left."

No one knows the identity of the visitor, who on occasion in the past has dressed in a black top hat and white scarf.

"We have several suspects, but we make absolutely no attempt to identify him," Jerome said. "We want to respect his privacy. We hope just to be witnesses to an annual event. We don't want to ruin it by exposing the stranger."

"I think it's nice to have a mystery, especially connected with Poe. We are curious, but we've been strong so far."

The city of Boston — where Poe was born 180 years ago — staged a benefit performance in honor of his birthday Thursday and unveiled the plaque commemorating the author.

The program, hosted by a committee of scholars and local residents, featured actor Norman George in a one-man show portraying Poe and a slide presentation by Poe scholar Clifford Krainik.

The bronze plaque commemorating Poe's Boston connection will be installed near the Boston Common, in an area where Poe's former home, a boardinghouse, has since been demolished.

The annual gravesite visit is yet another aspect of mystery and controversy that has become the legend of Poe. Even Poe's death, in Baltimore Oct. 7, 1849, is the subject of dispute. Some historians claim the wrong body was placed under the monument that bears Poe's name in Westminster yard.

Poe was born Jan. 19, 1809, in Boston where his mother worked as an actress. After her death three years later, Poe was shunted from family to family until he arrived in Baltimore, where he lived with cousin Virginia Clemm, who he later married.

Among his most widely read poems and stories are "The Raven" and "The Pit and the Pendulum."

Poe scholars speculate his years of poverty and grief in Baltimore, where he wrote his first horror story, "Berenice," led to hallucinations and fevers that haunted his works. He was found semi-conscious on a Baltimore street Oct. 3, 1849, and died four days later.

Disaster relief a welcomed sight in Allendale

ALLENDALE (UPI) — The clang of carpenters' hammers sounded the rebuilding effort in the tornado-stricken town Thursday as government agencies moved in to accept disaster relief applications.

Mayor Jack Loeffler said more than 200 people turned out Wednesday night at a public meeting at a Disaster Application Center set up in the First Christian Church to learn about the tornado relief process.

A twister struck the southeastern Illinois town of 613 almost without warning the evening of Jan. 7, destroying 53 homes and damaging dozens of others as it wiped out a 10-block area.

There were no fatalities but more than 50 people were sent to hospitals. President Reagan last Friday declared four counties, including Wabash in which Allendale is located, disaster areas, qualifying them for federal disaster relief.

Loeffler said government agencies will accept applications on an individual basis from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the First Christian Church. Then representatives of the Small Business Administration are scheduled to start accepting applications for disaster aid at the same location starting Monday.

Work already has begun by some property owners in rebuilding or repairing destroyed or damaged homes.

"I think I have issued 10 or 12 building permits already," said Loeffler. He said debris already has been cleared from the ruins of the town's post office, community center, school, city hall, fire and police stations that were demolished by the twister.

Clean-up work on clearing debris from private property is progressing "real well," said Loeffler. Some debris has been burned while concrete and other materials have been dumped in a cut that once marked the right-of-way for an abandoned railroad that ran through near the center of the community.

"I think we will be back 100 percent within a few months," said Loeffler of the rebuilding effort. "But that doesn't include the trees — it takes them awhile to grow."

Loeffler said scores of trees were downed by the tornado and that the town currently is making a count to see if assistance can be received in replacing them.

Allendale was included in a tornado watch area about 45 minutes before the storm hit, Loeffler said.

State trying to keep original handbill of Lincoln

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — An original handbill which was drafted more than 150 years ago by Abraham Lincoln is for sale and the Illinois State Historical Library is trying to make sure it never leaves its homestate.

Tom Schwartz, curator for the Lincoln collection at the library, said the great emancipator made the handbill in 1837 and it is the earliest known printed material from the late president.

Lincoln was a lawyer at the time and drafted accusations against a colleague who apparently had stolen a widow's estate. Schwartz said the handbill was an effort by Lincoln to help a friend who was running as a Republican for probate judge against the accused lawyer, who was a Democrat.

Accompanying the handbill is another document in which five of Lincoln's friends affirm his authorship of the handbill and testify to the accuracy of the charges.

Schwartz said the documents are owned by an artifacts dealer from Chicago who wants the library to purchase them. But according to Schwartz, the cost is more than $100,000, a figure he said the state library can't afford.

But Gov. James R. Thompson, a Lincoln buff, has stepped in and is trying to raise private funds for the purchase.

Thompson called the handbill a "cheap throw away flier" of significant historical importance and said he would fight to see the state buys it.

Schwartz declined to identify the dealer for fear of increasing the competition for the artifacts. He said the mystery dealer is doing the state a favor by holding on to the documents until the governor can put together the funds for their purchase.

Schwartz said the dealer has not put a deadline on the state's option and is optimistic Thompson will be able to collect enough money.

Archaic ocean fossil studied by scientists

CHAMPAIGN (UPI) — A fossil from the prehistoric Pacific Ocean that mysteriously found its way to a Decatur yard was sent westward again Thursday so a scientist can pinpoint the piece's exact age and identity.

The fossil, believed to be between 70 and 100 million years old, was found by a Decatur woman on the morning of Jan. 13 as she was getting into her car to go to work. Debbie Brill told Illinois State Geological Survey Paleontologist Rodney Norby she noticed the light gray, snail-like fossil near a retaining wall in her yard.

Norby said the fossil is seven inches tall and five inches wide and is shaped into a coiled "C" configuration. He said it appears to be the remains of a "Cretaceous ammonite mollusk." The marine creature is extinct, but most closely resembles the present-day nautilus, a tropical mollusk similar to a squid.

Norby said scientists may never know how the fossil got from the West Coast to Decatur. He theorized, however, the rock may have been used by the builders of the retaining wall in Brill's yard.

"People sometimes put interesting-looking rocks into walls when they build them."

Group seeking legislation to protect homosexuals

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Members of the central Illinois chapter of the Illinois Gay and Lesbian Task Force said Thursday they will push for legislation to protect homosexuals from discrimination in employment, education, housing, credit and public accommodations.

The group supports a bill that bans doctors from performing AIDS tests on patients without their consent.

Tracey Irwin, a co-chair for the group, said the chapter also will push for a law requiring local police to keep track of so-called hate crimes, violent crimes against homosexuals, and will monitor all AIDS legislation introduced this spring.

Irwin said the group supports a bill (H24) that bans doctors from performing AIDS tests on their patients without their consent. The proposal is sponsored by Rep. Ellis Levin, D-Chicago.

Group members said they don't expect overnight changes in public sentiment about homosexuals but look for progress during the next five to 10 years.

the problems instead of making excuses.

The editors agree that the Marion Student and the Murphysboro Obelisk don't usually print controversial articles that might meet rejection by their principals.

But that doesn't mean they wouldn't like to try.

Gulley said he would like to do some "under the table" type of articles but he doesn't know if the principal would let him.

"I'm afraid he (Graeff) wouldn't let us localize the big issues like teenage pregnancy, birth control devices and abortion," Gulley said.

Obelisk Co-Editor Denny Smith said the Obelisk could handle the more controversial issues.

"We just have to dig," Gulley added.

Doney said he would be willing to fight for an article in the Student if he felt he was 100 percent right about it.

"Educators do not offend the First Amendment rights of students by exercising editorial control ..."

—Justice Byron White

Hazelwood East journalists Kathy Kuhlmeier, Leslie Smart and LeeAnn Tippet-West felt strong enough about the Spectrum articles to file suit on the grounds that their First Amendment Rights had been violated.

Gulley said he would be willing to go to the school board if it was necessary, but under the precedent of the Supreme Court decision he would meet the words of Justice Byron White, writing for the majority.

"Educators do not offend the First Amendment rights of students by exercising editorial control over the style and content of student speech," which is "poorly written, inadequately researched, biased or prejudiced, vulgar or profane, or unsuitable for immature audiences," he wrote.

Writing the dissent, Justice William Brennan said the decision violated First Amendment rights of students and punished them for expressing personal views on school grounds.

"The mere fact of school sponsorship does not license such thought control in high school, whether through school suppression of disfavored viewpoints or through official assessment of topic sensitivity," Brennan wrote.

Doney said the decision still doesn't affect the Student because the writers always give two sides and he hasn't had a problem with Anderson censoring.

But because of what happened on Jan. 14, Anderson and the other principals have that right.

Bobbi, played by Karen Stallman, and Barney Cashman, played by Gary Kent, pretend to smoke marijuana Wednesday in John A.

Logan's stage production of Neil Simon's Last of the Red Hot Lovers. Both weekend performances have sold out.

Convincing performance executed in Neil Simon's 'Red Hot Lovers'

By Nora Bentley
Staff Writer

The Paradise Alley Players of the Marion Cultural and Civic Center give a convincing and amusing performance of Neil Simon's "Last of the Red Hot Lovers" at John A. Logan Community College, which runs tonight and Saturday at 8 p.m.

Theater Review

The play tells the story of Barney Cashman, a middle aged man who is looking for an extramarital affair but is unsuccessful in his attempts with three women.

Gary Kent gives a forceful performance as Barney, expressing changing emotions about what he wants from an affair.

In the opening scene, Barney asks Elaine Navazio, a woman who eats at his restaurant, up to his mother's apartment to begin an affair. At this point, he wants something romantic, but Elaine, played by Leah Kent, only wants sex. Mrs. Kent is impelling as Elaine, whose sarcasm and directness about what she wants is amusing.

The second scene opens with Barney and Bobbi Michele, played by Karen Stallman, meeting at his mother's apartment. Barney had met Bobbi in the park the previous afternoon and had given her $20 to hire someone to accompany her for her theater audition. She comes to the apartment to pay him back.

Stallman is a convincing Bobbi who seems to be living in her own world. She wears a black skirt, pink halter top, fishnet hose and gloves, and tells Barney story after story about her far out life. She also convinces Barney to smoke marijuana with her and they end the scene sitting on the couch with Barney saying he is trapped.

In the closing scene, Barney arranges a rendezvous with Jeanette Fisher. Jeanette and her husband Mel are good friends with Barney and his wife, Thelma. Barney by now has become much more aggressive, but Jeanette wants to talk about the affair Mel is having.

Theresa LeVault plays

Jeanette. She enters the apartment wearing a large brimmed hat, head hanging down, setting the mood of her character. LeVault's somber facial expressions in the beginning portray Jeanette's depression over Mel's affair. Her body language is exceptional in showing her rejection of Barney physically. She grips her purse to her chest and sits primly on the couch.

Solidarity may reject conditions

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Solidarity founder Lech Walesa said Thursday his outlawed trade union may reject conditions for its re-legalization set by the Communist Party, and Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski later appeared to soften the government's demands.

Jaruzelski confirmed that he and three other senior government officials had threatened to resign at a key party meeting earlier this week in a successful bid to persuade hard-liners to offer Solidarity at least some type of legal status.

Walesa, responding for the first time to the outcome of a session of the party's 200-member Central Committee, said the Polish leadership failed at the meeting to satisfy the "hopes of society."

At a stormy two-day plenum that ended in the early morning hours of Wednesday, the Central Committee passed a resolution urging phased legalization of Solidarity on the conditions that it support the government's economic reforms, remain loyal to the socialist state and refrain from calling strikes.

Prime Minister Mieczyslaw Rakowski, one of the three officials who joined Jaruzelski in threatening to resign, indicated in an address at the session that Solidarity should be given probationary legal status until May 3, 1991.

But Jaruzelski, during a surprise appearance at a news conference held by the government Thursday to explain the results of the plenum, appeared to leave more room for negotiations over the precise form any re-legalization of Solidarity might take.

Jaruzelski, the party's first secretary who is also head of state as president, said all details on the banned union's future status can be worked out at round-table talks among government officials and representatives of Solidarity and key sectors of society.

Asked whether the re-legalization of Solidarity should include the probationary period suggested by Rakowski, Jaruzelski said: "All that should be decided by the round table. There should be found such solutions that would guarantee on the one hand the aspirations of the working people ... and on the other ... the stability of our state and the development of the economy."

Jaruzelski also said he did not rule out a possible meeting with Walesa.

The Polish leader again signaled the government's eagerness to hold talks with opposition forces, saying: "The most difficult thing is that both partners must want it. We want it."

Walesa, cautioning that he was not speaking officially for Solidarity, said the banned union may not accept the conditions imposed by the party.

"The people should be allowed as quickly as possible to be organized," Walesa said at a news conference in the northern Baltic port of Gdansk. "I am of the opinion that putting Solidarity into operation — strong independent — with limitations — is very indispensable and very timely."

Non-scored meet is training device

Men's track uses 2nd meet ripen talent

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

The Saluki men's indoor track and field team will compete in a non-scored meet at the University of Illinois Saturday.

The men are traveling to Champaign for only their second meet of the young indoor season. Coach Bill Cornell said he was pleased with his team's first performance at the Shearson Lehman Hutton Games in Jonesboro, Ark. Jan. 13.

"Considering it was their first meet after being off for a month, they did a good job," Cornell said. "We still have a long way to go to be as good as I think we can be."

The Salukis will be looking for key performances by juniors

Leonard Vance and Erick Pegues. Vance leaped a career-high 50 feet, 9 1/2 inches in the triple jump at the Arkansas meet. He finished sixth in the event behind world record holder Willie Banks and other top athletes.

Pegues anchored the 4 X 400 relay with a final lap of 47.7 seconds. The relay teamed up for a second-place finish in the event.

In Saturday's competition, the Salukis will run against Big Ten Purdue and Illinois and conference foes Illinois State and Bradley.

The Salukis will be competing without long jumper Brian Bradley, who injured his hamstring during his first jump of the Games. Bradley is the three-time defending Missouri Valley Conference champion in the long jump.

Bradley is scheduled to see a specialist today to determine the seriousness of the injury.

Windy City Invite showcases top-ranked gymnasts, teams

By Tricia Jording
Staff Writer

The Salukis will join four of the nation's top eight men's gymnastics teams at the Windy City Invitational in Chicago Saturday.

The meet, featuring the Big Ten's Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota and Ohio State, will be the second competition for SIUC in four months.

Coach Bill Meade thinks his team has practiced too much. "It will be interesting to see our competitive edge. I really think the guys are ready to compete. They've been practicing too long."

All-arounders Brent Reed and Scott Belanger look to lead the Salukis in the competition. Last year Reed and Belanger were SIUC's top performers.

Reed's best all-around performance totaled 56.00 points and Belanger scored a best of 54.45.

Also expected to score well is newcomer, Jeff Jones.

The meet will be hosted by the University of Chicago and will feature optional compulsorys on Friday with team competition scheduled for Saturday.

Drake set for 2nd matchup with conference contender

By David Gallianetti
Staff Writer

The Drake Bulldogs are reloading to give it another try. This time, they're going for broke.

"If we want to do anything or be in the thick of the league race, we have to win this," said Drake coach Tom Abatemarco about a second matchup with the Salukis. The game will tipoff at 7:35 p.m. Saturday in Des Moines, Ia.

The Bulldogs, 6-9 overall, 1-2 in the Missouri Valley, came up short on their first try, falling to SIU-C 77-70 on Jan. 14 at the Arena.

"The fact that we were able to go there and play tough and hang in is good," Abatemarco said. "(Paul) Weakley played

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS AT DRAKE

Tipoff: Veteran's memorial Auditorium: (11:679). Des Moines, Ia. 7:35 p.m.

Records: Southern Illinois (13-4, 2-1), Drake (6-9, 1-2)

What to watch: The Salukis will try to rebound after a loss at Bradley, which broke SIU-C's nine game win streak. The Bulldogs will be looking to avenge a 75-70 loss at Carbondale on Jan. 14.

Last meeting: Southern Illinois 75, Drake 70, Jan. 14 at Carbondale.

Series: Southern Illinois leads 16-13

On the air: WESQ-FM (99.9), Carbondale.

well and (Eric) Berger played well at times. I think it is a nice situation for us."

Terrell Jackson lead the Bulldogs with 21 points on Drake's trip to Carbondale. Berger added 17 and Weakley 11.

The Salukis were paced by Randy House's 18 points. House picked up the 1,000th point of his career in the game. Freddie McSwain added 16.

Drake has been idle the entire week, a break that Abatemarco said will be put to good use.

"I need to make some adjustments offensively," Abatemarco said. "It (the week) will give us time to put some things in our offense. I don't feel we'll use the same game plan, I kind of like having this off, especially with Freshman Tony Harvey takes a shot in the lane during the Salukis' first meeting with Drake Jan. 14. Harvey is averaging 6.2 points and 5.2 rebounds per game. SIU-C will face Drake for the second time Saturday in Des Moines, Iowa.

Sam's (Roark) injury.

Abatemarco refers to Drake's 6-foot-6 forward Roark, who suffered a shoulder separation against Wichita State Jan. 12. The first-year coach said Roark will not start against the Salukis, but will be available for play.

The Bulldogs filled Veterans Memorial Auditorium for the Shockers, and Abatemarco said he is expecting a big crowd for the Salukis.

transition phase," Saluki coach Cindy Scott said. "But it's funny how ball clubs can respond to adverse situations. It wouldn't surprise me if their team comes together and starts coming after people."

Wichita State has shown that it is not about to end its season yet. Even without Findahl's 14.9-point scoring average the Shockers beat feisty Western Illinois 70-68 in Macomb and lost to Southwest Missouri by only five points, 71-66.

The Salukis' only apparent handicap entering the game is the absence of a video-taped scouting report of Wichita State since the new lineup was inserted.

"We can't get a good look at what they are doing now," Scott said.

Bradley coach Stan Albeck said his team picked up the pace in the middle of the first half and was able to sustain it.

"Once we got control of the game, we nestled right in," Albeck said. "When we came out in the second half, we have the ability to play flat and that happened when they closed the gap to 10."

"As we approached the 5-minute mark, we went for the jugular. They went to a lot of 3's, and basically we played them basket for basket for the last three minutes."

Missouri is 5-10 and 3-3.

On defense, the Salukis did force 18 Southwest Missouri turnovers. SIU-C also made 11 steals and blocked two shots. The Bears could shoot only 37.3 percent from the field.

Those numbers aside, Scott was not pleased. "We weren't very happy in the locker room. We didn't play smart basketball. We don't have an offensive leader."

The SIU-C offense did show some zip early, though.

Judge determines girl eligible for boys' game

SPRINGFIELD, (UPI) — The Williamsville Bee Bees will enter the junior high boys' state basketball tournament with their entire starting lineup — including point guard Angela Sapp — thanks to a federal judge's ruling Thursday allowing her to participate in post-season play.

U.S. District Judge Richard Mills issued an injunction against enforcement of an Illinois Elementary School Association rule that would have made the Bee Bees ineligible to play with a female on the team.

Mills said he could find no rationale for the IESA practice that permits girls to play on boys' basketball teams during the regular season but not during the state tournament.

"It makes no sense to me," Mills said.

The judge's ruling was a pleasant birthday present for Sapp, who turns 14 on Friday.

"I'm glad he ruled in favor for me so I can play," Sapp said.

Sapp said she would play on a girls' team if Williamsville Junior High School had one. But the school of about 225 students does not have that option, nor does the high school.

"She's just always had a natural ability to play and since she was in the third grade she's always been on the boys' teams. It just comes natural," said her mother, Angela.

Wayne Plaza, lawyer for the IESA, said girls are allowed to play for boys' teams during regular season games because many schools do not have girls' teams and the decision to allow them to play is left to the individual schools.

But because the IESA, a voluntary association of elementary schools, sponsors the post-season tournaments for boys and girls at the junior high school level, the group wants to prevent tournament teams from going coed.

Plaza said IESA officials would review Mills' written injunction.

Drake allows Curtis Stuckey to transfer home to Bradley

Peoria native Curtis Stuckey, a 6-foot-1 sophomore guard, has been released by Drake University to play with the Bradley Braves, Bradley Athletics Director Ron Ferguson said.

"Drake University has reconsidered their decision not to allow Curtis to play basketball at Bradley without sitting out two years," he said. "Their administration felt that it would be in the best interest for Curtis to come home and continue his education here (at Bradley). We feel Drake acted in the spirit of intercollegiate athletics."

Stuckey graduated from Peoria-Manual High School in 1987 and played three semesters at Drake before deciding he wanted to transfer. Bradley's head basketball coach Stan Albeck is pleased to add Stuckey to his team.

Missouri Valley notes

"We're thrilled to have him," Albeck said, "because Curtis is my type of player. He can run well, jump well and shoot well. Unfortunately, we arrived on campus (August 1986) too late to recruit him as he was already committed to Drake."

Albeck said he thinks this will have a positive effect on local recruiting.

"I think this will reinforce the trend of local players staying home to play," he said, noting that Bradley signed Manual's Tom Wilson and Bartonville-Limestone's Scott Behrends during the early signing period.

In other Missouri Valley news, the NCAA approved a one-year probationary period for schools that failed to meet minimum sports sponsorship criteria, making Creighton University eligible for post-season play this year. This means Creighton will play in the MVC tournament March 4, 5 and 7.

"I'm most happy for the student-athletes and coaches," Athletics Director Don Leahy said. "I'm also grateful to Doug Elgin, the commissioner of the Missouri Valley, for helping me put the whole package together."

Leahy said of the probationary period, "We are on probation. But there are no sanctions."

Notre Dame player collapses, dies

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Alcohol and drugs were not involved in the death early Thursday of a Notre Dame football player at a Niles, Mich., bar, an autopsy revealed.

However, a preliminary investigation failed to reveal what caused the seizures, and later the cardiac arrest, that killed reserve cornerback Bob Satterfield.

Bradley snaps Salukis' 9-game winning streak

By David Gallianetti
Staff Writer

PEORIA — When it comes to being a host, the Bradley Braves are among the worst as far as Saluki coach Rich Herrin is concerned.

With a 91-77 loss to the Braves Thursday night, the Salukis dropped their 10th straight contest to Bradley, while seeing their own 9-game win streak snapped.

"Bradley played an outstanding game," said Herrin, who has never beaten the Braves in his 4-year SIU-C career. "This is a tough place to play, but there may be a bigger factor. Bradley has always been good since I've been in the league."

The loss also delivers the Salukis their first Missouri Valley setback in three outings. SIU-C is 13-4 overall while Bradley moves to 6-6, 2-2 in the league.

After being outscored 18-5 in the last 5:15 of the first half, the Salukis' scoring drought continued into the second half. The Braves outscored SIU-C 10-3 in the first 4:20, capped off by a Luke Jackson slam dunk. "Their transition game probably beat us," Herrin said. "We did not get our people down the floor. We did not play as good as we are capable of playing."

Senior Kai Nurnberger agreed that the Braves' easy baskets spelled a quick end for the Salukis.

"Their transition game is what we worried about," Nurnberger said. "They would give it to a man up the court a lot of times and we ended up getting beat back. We did not execute on offense."

Fredie McSwain, who led the Salukis with 23 points, answered Jackson's slam with one of his own, and SIU-C went on a 10-2 run to cut the lead to 10 at 6:55 with 14:11 left.

Foul troubles plagued the Salukis throughout the second period. McSwain fouled out with 5:06 left, Jerry Jones fouled at 18:04 and David Busch picked up his fourth with 11:18 remaining.

"I don't think the fouls really hurt us," Herrin said. "What amazed me more than anything was Bradley is not that good of a free throw shooting team and they shot well tonight when they had to."

The Braves were 61 percent from the free throw line coming into the game, and finished with 23-of-37 for 62 percent. The Salukis hit just 10-of-19 for 52 percent.

The Salukis again made a run, cutting the lead to 70-60 with 9:51 left. But the Braves would not let up, as they went on a 10-2 run, putting the lead

Women capture 6th Gateway victory

Wichita St. next game for Salukis

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

When all-time Wichita State standouts Dawna Weber and Crystal Westfield graduated last spring, the Shockers understood that things would be tough in the upcoming women's basketball season.

But after Lori Findahl, the team's leading scorer and rebounder, and forward Ginger Gross left the team for personal reasons after the seventh game of the season, the roof fell in.

WICHITA STATE AT SOUTHERN ILLINOIS

Tipoff: Arena (10,014), Carbondale, 7:35 p.m.
Records: Southern Illinois (8-6, 6-1), Wichita State (3-11, 1-6).

What to watch: The Salukis will try to continue its conference winning streak that now stands at six games. Wichita State is hoping to rebound from the departure of leading scorer Lori Findahl. Junior Jean Bacon has emerged as the team's scoring leader with 6.9 points per game.

Last meeting: Southern Illinois 76, Wichita State 40, Feb. 13 at Carbondale.

Series: Southern Illinois leads 11-2.

On the air: WIDB-FM (104.3), Carbondale.

No matter, SIU-C will not look past 3-10 Wichita State when they meet at 7:35 p.m. Saturday at the Arena for a Gateway Conference clash.

Man-to-man defense keys win

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

The staple of the women's basketball team this season has been defense. It is the team's fail-safe against a sometimes unproductive offense.

While the Saluki coaches and players thought their trademark man-to-man defense was lackluster at times Thursday night, it still did the trick in holding back Southwest Missouri 63-53.

A sparse Arena crowd of 377 watched the Salukis limit the Lady Bears, who average 67.1 points per game, to their second-lowest point total of the year.

"On defense we did an adequate job," said Saluki coach Cindy Scott, whose team leads the Gateway Conference in scoring defense, limiting opponents to 54.1 points per game. "On some nights we just don't play at a consistent level for 40 minutes."

"It's a good thing we had Tonda Seals tonight, she shot with authority."

Seals, a 57 senior guard, picked up the scoring slack in the second half with perimeter shooting. She finished with a game-high 25 points.

"I really needed this game to boost my confidence," Seals said. "This is a good sign."

During one stretch, Seals made four straight from the field, including a drive to the lane with 12:17 left for a 38-36 lead. The goal broke what had been the eighth tie of the game. Southwest Missouri did not regain an advantage the rest of the night.

"You can't overzealously attack just one thing against Southern," said Southwest

Missouri coach Cheryl Burnett, whose Bears led 26-24 at halftime by shutting down the Salukis' inside attack. "If you do, they come back with something else, like Tonda."

Burnett said that after Seals scored, the Southwest Missouri lineup of two freshman, two sophomores and a junior displayed its inexperience. "At about 10 minutes we had a lot of breakdowns," Burnett said. "We showed our youth. We didn't rebound and we didn't score."

Southwest Missouri did get plenty of mileage out of guard Patty Porter, who finished with 19 points and five rebounds.

"Porter got her points," Scott said. "She's a good player and you can't contain her forever."

The Salukis had three other players hit double figures. Dana Fitzpatrick, Amy Rakers and Cathy Kampwerth each had 10 points. Rakers added 18 rebounds and Kampwerth added 12.

Despite their balanced scoring, Fitzpatrick and Rakers were not pleased with their performances.

"We didn't play well tonight," Fitzpatrick said. "We should play our best games at home."

Rakers thought lack of intensity was the cause for 20 Saluki turnovers.

"We were very relaxed," Rakers said. "We were scared to handle the ball. No one wanted to take control."

The victory was the sixth straight for the Salukis, who are 8-6 overall and 6-1 in the conference. Northwest

Miami violence calms down, teams ready to play

MIAMI (UPI) — With the Super Bowl drawing near and the city calming from its upheaval of violence, the Cincinnati Bengals adopted a relaxed and jovial tone Thursday while the San Francisco 49ers retained their image of a cold and calculating group thinking about nothing but football.

"We did want as much of a businesslike atmosphere here as possible," San Francisco Coach B'l Walsh said. "And we're trying to keep it."

Walsh's attempts contrasted with the mood in the Bengals camp, where the emphasis seemed to be on having as good a time as possible before Sunday's Super Bowl meeting with the 49ers.

"I need to do something here," Cincinnati quarterback Boomer Esiason said Thursday as he walked to the podium and faced a ballroom full of media members. With that, he pulled out a camera and began acting like a director.

"All of you smile now," he said. "I want the people on the left side of the room to get a little closer to the middle. Now I really want you to smile because 25 years from now nobody is going to believe this. Ready. Here we go."

With that, he took a flash picture.

"Thank you very much," Esiason said, then put down his camera and went on with his interview.

Esiason's lightheartedness could almost be matched in the offices of City Hall and the Super Bowl Host Committee as a result of a relatively quiet Wednesday night and Thursday morning in the Overtown and Liberty City sections of town.

Although several arrests were made and isolated episodes of rock throwing broke out, the overwhelming violence of the two previous evenings did not repeat itself. The gunfire, arson and looting were touched off by Monday night's shooting of a black motorcyclist by a Miami policeman.

The riots dramatically exposed the city's racial problems in a week Miami had hoped to produce its best face and best behavior for its week in the Super Bowl spotlight.

On the football front, the day's developments included:

— Word from Walsh that wide receiver Jerry Rice, who sprained his ankle Monday, would see his first major practice time Friday, "when we will know for sure how Jerry stands."

NFL Properties, which holds the right to all souvenirs bearing the NFL emblem, announced it would conduct court-approved seizures of counterfeit NFL merchandise sold before and during the Super Bowl.

— Cincinnati Coach Sam Wyche said the Bengals would change hotels the night before the game, which had been his team's plan even before the violence.
