Pettit opposes checkoff plan

By Richard Goldstein
Staff Writer

The Chancellor's office will recommend at July's Board of Trustees meeting that the proposed Illinois Public Interest Research group should not be paid for by a "negative checkoff" system.

But Student Trustee Bill Hall said Wednesday that the new policy proposal from Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit should be submitted to student constituency groups for a formal vote before the Board of Trustees takes action.

The proposal advocates that new student fees supporting programs outside of the student activity fund must be paid for by a "positive checkoff" system. Positive checkoff requires that students mark an area on their bursar bill indicating they wish to pay the fee.

Exempted from the policy is the student activity fee and a student-to-student grant. While the student activity fee is required from all students, the student-to-student grant uses the negative checkoff system, in which students must mark the bursar bill or are charged the $2.25 fee.

Although the debate over a negative checkoff system was precipitated by IPIRG supporters, Pettit said the new policy is not aimed specifically at IPIRG and hopes that IPIRG could survive without a negative checkoff.

"They (IPIRG supporters) earnestly believe that the only way the IPIRG will work is with (a negative checkoff)," Pettit said. "I hope they're wrong."

Public interest research groups are student-governed, professionally-staffed research and advocacy organizations which work with consumer and environmental issues.

Hall, who has supported a negative checkoff system for IPIRG at past board meetings, said the proposal should go

Residence halls to be renovated

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

Construction has been approved for six Thompson Point residence halls to accommodate students who are physically disabled.

The SIU Board of Trustees approved initial plans in February, but final approval is still required by the board at its July meeting.

Don Ballestro, assistant director of business for University housing, said the showers would be enlarged and the sinks would be lowered to accommodate a wheelchair.

"The entranceway will be reconstructed and automatic doors will be installed on the exterior of the building, as well as in the student's room," Ballestro said.

Each of the six residence halls will have two entranceways, Ballestro said. One will be the regular locked door and the other will be the automatic door. "A garage-

Elementary school teachers brush up on teaching skills

By Irene Oplow
Staff Writer

Southern Illinois elementary school teachers are brushing up on their teaching skills so they can offer students a more balanced curriculum, Dean Stuck, director of the University's Renewal Institute for Practicing Teachers, said.

Maintaining a curricular balance is becoming more important to elementary school teachers because of stricter state testing, Stuck said.

State tests, which covered math and reading last year, in the next few years will include physical science, social science and other areas that have not been taught extensively to students in lower grades, Stuck said.

"Some elementary school teachers have not taken more than one science course in college, and they end up learning the material along with the kids," Stuck said. "The new testing has teachers worried."

Some Southern Illinois teachers have taken the initiative to expand their teaching skills through the University's Renewal Institute, and others through a summer science program funded by the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

"Renewal Institute is appropriately named because, after many years of teaching, it gave me a new burst of enthusiasm for the material," Jacque Gluss, a fourth grade teacher from a school outside Chicago, said.

Renewal Institute is a program designed to keep practicing teachers up to date in individual subject areas and in the latest teaching methods.

There is no tuition fee for the program and teachers receive graduate level course credit.

"Now I know what my students feel like in their frustrations and accomplishments," Sue Lynn Johnson, a second grade teacher from Murphysboro, said. "I never used a word processor before, and now I feel comfortable with the computer."

Gluss said she enrolled in the course to become familiar with computers and pick up graduate level hours.

The program will expand to new locations this year, where it will reach Southern Illinois school teachers who are unable to commute to the University. Classes will be offered in Sparta, Nashville, Centralia, Salem, Fairfield, and Vienna.

"We've been very successful and have almost exhausted our capacity in nearby school districts," Stuck said. "Approximately 480 teachers from

Robert Cundiff, a graduate assistant who works in the finance department, and his wife, Kirsten, a graduate assistant who works in the English department, had no idea they would return from Chicago as heroes.

They were coming back to Carbondale from a wedding in Maine when they missed their connecting flight to St. Louis from Chicago.

They were forced to spend the night in Chicago.

They managed to find a room in a "less than adequate motel" outside of the city, Cundiff said.

"The driver of the motel's van that took us from the airport to the motel had a flask of whiskey in his pocket. That's how bad it was," he said.

The next day, the couple decided to see the sights in Chicago.

Lewis to quit academic affairs after 12 years

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

After spending 12 years in the University's administration, Ernest Lewis said he's ready to go back to teaching.

Lewis, the current associate vice president for academic affairs and research, will be vacating the position Aug. 31.

Lewis first arrived at the University in 1965 as a graduate student. He became a faculty member in 1970 and taught educational psychology. He later became the chairman of the department. In 1982, he was promoted to associate vice president.

"I'm just ready to go back into teaching," Lewis said.

Lewis said he will remain at the University and return to teaching educational psychology.

A search is being conducted to find a replacement for Lewis.

Benjamin Shepherd, vice president of academic affairs, has put together a screening committee to find a suitable replacement.

"The screening committee will carefully review all nominations and applications, and recommend the best qualified applicant," Shepherd said.

According to a report released from Shepherd's office, the associate vice president will assist the vice president in the following matters:

- Manage the academic affairs and research budget;
- do research for faculty on appointments, tenure, promotions and related issues;
- serve as liaison for faculty grievances and affirmative action;

■ monitor the University's cost recovery program;

■ review administrative, professional and civil service appointments in all academic units;

■ prepare reports related to academic affairs required for internal planning.

Shepherd said those who apply for the position should be "established scholars and hold rank of full or associate professor and be tenured in an academic department or school."

China rejects U.S. protest, calls it 'sheer fabrication'

BEIJING (UPI) — China rejected Thursday as "sheer fabrication" a U.S. protest that its soldiers deliberately shot at foreign diplomats' apartments last month during the crushing of the democracy movement protests. The ruling body of the nominal parliament, meanwhile, adopted a resolution saying it was "greatly indignant" over last week's vote by the U.S. House of Representatives approving new economic sanctions against China.

Former Hungarian leader Kadar dead at 77

BUDAPEST, Hungary (UPI) — Former Hungarian leader János Kadar, installed by the Soviet Union after the ill-fated 1956 uprising and ousted from power last year, died Thursday after a long illness, the official Hungarian news agency said. He was 77. In a twist of fate, his death came on the same day that the Hungarian government legally rehabilitated Imre Nagy, the reluctant leader of the uprising, executed for treason under Kadar's rule.

Gorbachev offer 'falls short' of requirements

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department said Thursday that an offer by Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev to reduce Soviet short-range nuclear missiles in Europe "falls short" of what is required. At a news conference, President Bush also was unimpressed by Gorbachev's bid, saying the United States intends to "go forward with the agenda" outlined by NATO leaders — agreement on reducing conventional forces in Europe before the West talks about further battlefield nuclear weapons cuts.

Bush 'pleased' North wasn't sentenced to jail

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Bush said Thursday he is pleased Oliver North was not sentenced to jail for Iran-Contra crimes but he refused to comment on a possible pardon pending the former White House aide's legal appeals. Bush brushed aside a question about whether he has considered a pardon for the retired Marine lieutenant colonel, who received a suspended three-year jail term and $150,000 fine Wednesday.

Government imposes decisive asbestos ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government imposed a ban on asbestos Thursday that will be phased in over seven years on almost everything containing the cancer-causing material, including automobile brakes. Environmental Protection Agency Administrator William Reilly, calling asbestos a "potent human carcinogen," said widespread use of the material in industry and construction has created "a legacy of death."

BENTON, Ill. (UPI) — Civil War Gen. John A. Logan deserves his own postage stamp for establishing the Memorial Day observance, a committee of hometown boosters said Thursday. Logan, who was instrumental in the taking of Vicksburg, commanding soldiers conscripted from Illinois coal mines, issued a general order in 1868 calling for the first Memorial Day observance.

J-School instructor to attend workshop for teaching skills

By Tim Crosby
Staff Writer

An SIU-C journalism instructor has been selected to attend a workshop at Indiana University designed to give new teachers better skills and insights in managing classes.

Thomas J. Johnson, in his in his third semester at SIU-C, will attend the Association for Education in Journalism and Mass Communication's Teaching Workshop July 23-29.

"Teaching has a lot of the same rewards as reporting," Johnson said, referring to his choice to remain in the academic field. "That is, it promotes some greater good in society."

Johnson, who began his career in journalism in the 6th grade at his hometown newspaper in California, said the workshop would help his classroom techniques in many ways.

"I'm hoping it will give me a big boost," Johnson, who recently received his doctorate at SIU-C, said. "The most important job any professor has is to communicate information and to make students think. This should give me new ideas."

Walter Jaehng, director of the school of journalism, said participants are selected to attend the workshop on the basis of their promise as future instructors.

"We're all proud to have a member of our faculty attending this workshop," Jaehng said. "They bring in the finest journalism instructors from around the country to teach the sessions."

Jaehng said the fact that many of the University's journalism instructors are relatively new to teaching makes Johnson's participation even more vital.

"Many of our teachers are in their first two or three years," Jaehng explained. "We're hoping Tom will bring back some good ideas to share."

The workshop will pay most of Johnson's expenses, with the $100 registrar fee paid for through the University.

Though Johnson is teaching a journalism class this summer, Jaehng said the department will cover for him so that he may attend.

Number of people needing mental health care down at state facilities

By Christine Broda
Staff Writer

The number of patients receiving care at state mental health facilities declined by 46.5 percent in the last decade, reported Roland Burris, Illinois comptroller.

In his monthly report on state finances, Burris examined the Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities. He stated the number of patients receiving care at state facilities declined from 20,296 in fiscal year 1979 to 10,850 in fiscal year 1988.

Burris said the decline is further evidence of the de-emphasis of direct state facility care of mental health patients and an increased reliance on community care.

David Blanchette, spokesperson for the Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities said he attributes the decline to "community health care being more cost efficient and patients making better progress in community facilities."

Blanchette said the department had a total of 10,281 beds existing in their 21 residential facilities statewide in 1979. As of fiscal year 1989, the number of beds had decreased to 8,195.

"There will always be a need for state mental health care for those who have a severe need, but the advantage the community health care provides is a chance for the individual to become independent," said Blanchette.

Topographic map to be made of Crab Orchard Lake bottom

By Micki Delhaute McGowan
Staff Writer

SIU-C civil engineering technology students are compiling information for the first section of a new topographic map of the Crab Orchard Lake bottom.

The only existing map is 50 years old, and was made from surveys just before the construction of Crab Orchard Lake. The bottom of the lake has changed because of shore line erosion and sedimentation.

Work on the map project will be done during summer months. The map is expected to be completed by 1996.

The 10 students working on the map this summer are from two classes in the department of technology, field survey problems and field project planning in computations.

Roy Frank, a University instructor, is supervising the project.

Four feet of water will be drained from the lake in September in order to strengthen the dam. In December, the dam will be allowed to begin refilling.

Ed Wagner, outdoor recreation planner, said a topographic map will be beneficial to the community.

"It will be beneficial to all boaters so that they won't be speeding around in shallow areas," Wagner said.

The map also will benefit outdoor sportsmen.

Wagner said the map's short term benefit is to "give us a better idea of how to better manage the flock of geese."

At least 10,000 geese move into Crab Orchard Lake every winter, Wagner said.

Summer enrollment up 26 students

Summer session enrollment at SIU-C is 11,349 students, an increase of 26 students from last year.

The University's Office of Admissions and Records reports a drop of 153 students on the Carbondale campus itself — to 8,178 — and a rise in the number of students enrolled in off-campus programs at 3,171.

As usual, undergraduate seniors and master's degree level students make up the largest segment of the summertime student body, with slightly more than 4,900 this year.

The report shows 183 students enrolled in the School of Medicine and 103 in the School of Law.

Total undergraduate enrollment is 8,230.

The all-time high summer enrollment at the University came in 1987, when 11,856 students attended on- and off-campus classes.

The College of Education reported the highest enrollment by college at 1,560.

Dunn's tax decision a necessary gamble

THE ILLINOIS General Assembly finally saw fit to pass a temporary increase in the state's income tax to benefit education, local government and human services late last Friday, and it was about time. The tax package included a 6-cent increase in the gasoline tax.

The passage of the package came after a two-year battle between Democratic House Speaker Michael Madigan and Republican Gov. James R. Thompson over details of a state income tax increase. It seems, at least for now, that the power struggle between the two has subsided.

When Thompson signed the bill Monday he put into effect a two-year, 20 percent temporary increase in state taxes, raising the personal tax rate from 2.5 percent to 3 percent and the corporate rate from 4 percent to 4.8 percent.

THE INCREASE began Saturday and will continue through June 30, 1991 unless the General Assembly votes to extend the tax prior to that date.

We appreciate the passage of the increase and are especially grateful to Sen. Ralph Dunn, R-Du Quoin, for his vote that was necessary for the legislation to pass.

We would also like to thank Sen. Jim Rea, D-Christopher; Rep. Bruce Richmond, D-Murphysboro; Rep. Larry Woolard, D-Carterville; and Rep. David Phelps, D-Eldorado, for their support of the increase.

Dunn voted for the legislation, which was almost entirely supported by Democrats, against party lines and the wishes of some party leaders.

He was not the only Republican in favor of the legislation but the only one to stick his neck out for legislation needed for a university in his district.

"There were half of a dozen others in my position with universities in their area who wanted to see it pass, but didn't want to put their vote on it," Dunn said.

HE ALSO said the tax increase was "not the best," but it served its purpose for schools, including SIU-C, and local governments. We agree with Dunn and are impressed with his political gamble.

Republicans may have mixed feelings over Dunn's vote but Thompson thanked him and others in similar situations welcomed the vote.

We think Dunn should be commended for his action for it exemplifies the duty of an elected official. He voted for the needs of his constituents and with his conscience: He did his job.

Taxes are a tool often used to discredit candidates in political elections and Dunn's vote, as well as those of the others in favor of the increase, will come up again. When that happens, let's hope people will not forget the gamble Dunn took for what he felt was the right thing to do.

Letters

SIU-C's female population 'unfriendly'

I'd like to express a sentiment that I believe is shared by the majority of the men on campus. Although SIU-C may not be competitive academically or athletically, there is a category in which it ranks in the top percentages nationally.

Yes, SIU-C is home to one of the unfriendliest female populations the U.S. has to offer. Initially, I thought the responses I was receiving were because I'm in my late 20s and college girls prefer college guys their own age. Now, after numerous conversations with younger male students, I discovered that they get treated the same way!

The big question surrounding this undesirable female behavior has to be: Why? I've analyzed this question into the ground, and come up with some possibilities. It's a sign of the times, they're mostly from the Chicago and St. Louis suburbs, they're basically afraid of men's motives, etc. The most discouraging aspect of the situation is that there are so few women who are exceptions to the rule. For every friendly female on this campus, there are a dozen unfriendly ones to tip the scales.

I'd like to point out that there is no common factor among the men I've talked to that would adequately explain this phenomenon (all bald, all out of shape, all foreigners, etc.). Therefore the problem has to be with the attitudes of the women in general.

I welcome replies from both sides in this matter, and I'm certain that the DE will not have a short supply from which to choose. — Mark Beaubien, graduate student in mechanical engineering.

Court's decision not most 'outrageous' in history

"Homey," you've got to be joking? Why is this decision on flag burning "one of the most outrageous ever handed down by any court in history?"

First of all, it is not even in the ballpark with the outrageous decisions in the cases of Emmet Tille and Dred Scott (look it up!).

Second of all, your white upperclass male slavemaster founding fathers intended to annihilate the Native Americans or batter them into submission. Whichever came first. They intended to keep the Afrikan (this is the proper spelling) enslaved to build this great country so that they would not have to do any real work. Where was your "Bill of Rights" then?

Third of all, you "illusioned" to the phrase "American Flag." A common misnomer in this arrogant country. It is the flag of the United States "of" America, not America. This flag does not fly for the country of Brazil. Is that not part of America? Don't worry, it will hit you on the way home, be happy!

Fourth of all, some people wanted to shoot and/or kill flag burners, a flag, a material object. Something of this world that represents this country. But, when the author of "Satanic Verses" was sentenced to death for his slander against the Islamic faith, his accusers were condemned for their stance. Now Islam is a faith. It is transcendental. There is no separation of church and state in Islamic countries, typically. When you insult Islam, you insult the very spirit of the people as well as the government in Islamic countries. Make the connection?

Fifth of all, I hope you have fun celebrating your independence on the 4th. However, since my people, Afrikans, as well as other peoples of colour, are still oppressed by the country that this flag represents, my people have no reason to celebrate or respect your wretched flag. But, I think I will barbecue to celebrate freedom — whenever it happens to come. I wonder what I will use to light the charcoal? "Kicking Science, On the Strength!" — Michael Pryor, senior in ATS.

'Big shot' flag burning symbolizes more than political protesting

I can feel the same visceral reaction that President Bush has with respect to flag burning. Such an act is much more than a protest to most of us. Anglo Democracy is a game, but it is also the main ingredient of our very humanness. To burn the flag is like spitting in the face of societal existence, without which we would be a bunch of zombies, some with automatic weapons. The person who burns the flag is a cowardly egocentric ingrate who seems to be saying: "I'm a big shot, to hell with the community that gave me my humanness." He should be kicked off the team. To burn our flag is much more than a protest. — Lincoln Canfield, SIU Emeritus College

Pacific nations warn against isolating China for crackdown

BANDAR SERI BEGAWAN, Brunei (UPI) — The Pacific Rim's major industrialized nations warned Thursday against isolating China for its deadly crackdown on pro-democracy protests and pushed a plan for a giant Asia-Pacific trade group.

Australian Foreign Minister Gareth Evans said the massacre of students and civilians in Tiananmen Square June 3 and 4 and Beijing's subsequent reign of repression "raises fundamental foreign policy and economic questions for the world."

But he warned a gathering of foreign ministers from the Association of Southeast Asian Nations and their major trading partners against invoking stiff economic sanctions against China, saying China must not become isolated.

"The Chinese need to be encouraged to pursue a pragmatic and constructive foreign policy, and we should be trying to find ways of assisting that process," he said.

Evans also advocated China's eventual participation in a massive Asia-Pacific economic forum, which he has championed at the ASEAN meeting with the support of the United States, Japan, Canada and New Zealand.

"We believe there is a need to keep the lines of access and communication with China open," Evans said. "The Chinese need to be encouraged to pursue the processes of economic reform and liberalization."

Secretary of State James Baker also cited China in advocating a new economic partnership in the giant geographic region, which supporters hope also would include ASEAN's non-communist membership — Singapore, the Philippines, Thailand, Malaysia, Indonesia and Brunei.

"To stand in the way of necessary, historic change, as we have seen to our revulsion and sorrow in China, is to turn one's back on the future," he said.

"Asia — like Europe — is in the midst of transformations propelling the world toward a promising new era," Baker said. "And the going will not always be smooth — as events in China have proven."

"There will be setbacks, disappointments and risks."

The Bush administration cut off military sales and high-level political contacts with Beijing, but an official traveling with Baker said the administration is not considering any new sanctions against China.

Australia has proposed organizing a 10-nation Asian economic grouping fashioned after the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, which comprises the top 24 industrial and trading countries.

Baker and Evans urged ASEAN's reluctant foreign ministers to consider the proposal, which is backed by Japanese Foreign Minister Hiroshi Mitsuoka, Canadian Secretary of State Joe Clark and Russel Marshall, New Zealand's minister of foreign affairs.

"Pacific Rim economic cooperation is an idea whose time has come," said Baker, noting that trans-Pacific trade totaled $271 billion last year and intra-Asian trade amounted to $200 billion.

But the ASEAN leaders have voiced fear their economies would be overshadowed by the economic giants under such an arrangement.

Baker did not come armed with an American blueprint, but said he is seeking accord on the principles and structure.

before the Undergraduate Student Government and the Graduate and Professional Student Council for advisory votes, because Pettit has changed the policy recommended at the May 31 board meeting.

The change in the wording of the proposed policy explicitly calls for the use of a positive checkoff system for future fees used for "special student interests and activities" outside of those provided for by the student activity fee.

The previous wording seemed to take the decision of whether to levy student fees out of the hands of campus presidents and make it the exclusive decision of the board, Hall said.

Trudy Hale, GPCSP president and a member of the campus IPIRG organizing committee, said petition signatures collected by the organization shows that IPIRG has broad support on campus.

She said the administration is ignoring the wishes of students who have suggested the use of a negative checkoff system to provide stable funding for the proposed campus IPIRG.

This will be the fourth time the board's finance committee has discussed the policy clarification since April.

Pettit said that despite the allowance of a negative checkoff system to pay for a short-lived IPIRG on the SIUE campus in 1979, the board never made it clear as to what its opinion was on the issue.

The exit they got off on was two levels underground and they had to take escalators to get to the ground level.

One of the attackers had the businessman on his knees.

"I tried to pry one of the attackers away from the businessman while my wife jumped on the attackers back," he said.

After moments of struggle, the frightened attackers ran off leaving behind a trail of money.

"We helped the businessman pick up the piles of money, he was very grateful," Cundiff said.

Cundiff said it wasn't until after the whole incident that he panicked.

"Although I didn't see any, they could have had weapons," he said.

Both he and his wife came out of the fight unscathed and lunched in a park afterwards.

door-opener-like device" will serve as a key for the automatic doors.

Lentz Hall, the Thompson Point cafeteria, also will have automatic doors and other facilities to accommodate those who are physically disabled.

Reconstruction of the residence halls was deemed necessary because of "students with greater needs are wanting to live in University housing," Ballestro said.

The project should be completed Aug. 4 in Pierce, Kellogg, Warren, Smith, Abbott and Baldwin residence halls and the Lentz Hall cafeteria.

The cost of the entire project is $274,065. Funding will come from student housing fees.

If the board approves, $130,625 will be awarded to Steffe's Construction Co. in Carterville for general construction of the project. The Highway Electric Co. in Anna will receive $75,000 for the electrical work. Weller's Inc. in Carbondale will receive $51,400 for mechanical work.

The Board of Trustees meeting will be held Thursday, July 13 at SIU in Edwardsville.

The summer science program is offered cooperatively through the University and local school districts, according to Ralph Litherland, assistant superintendent to Carbondale elementary school district 95.

Improving instruction in science and math is the goal of the board of education and of teachers who participate in the program, Litherland said.

Illinois Power will request 29 percent electric rate hike

DECATUR, Ill. (UPI) — A spokesman for Illinois Power Thursday said the utility will ask the Illinois Commerce Commission next week for a 29 percent rate increase in electric rates to help pay for the construction of the company's nuclear power plant in Clinton.

Company spokesman Rodney Smith said the rate request, which includes both residential and industrial customers, would be a one-time rate boost of $265 million. Smith said IP will not ask for another increase for three years if the ICC grants next week's request.

On March 30 the ICC rejected the utility's last request — a $400 million hike which would have included a $92 million increase in the first year of an 11-year phase-in plan — and granted a one-time, 7 percent rate increase of $60.5 million.

The ruling led to elimination of 600 jobs by the company in a move to cut operating costs by $30 million annually. The rate increase is being challenged in court by Illinois Power and consumer groups.

That decision, which some IP officials said was disastrous for the company, showed the utility the long-term phased in proposals are not as likely to be granted by the ICC.

"The commission rejected the phase-in," Smith said, "and this time we wanted to take a more traditional approach. The phase-in plan was really a unique piece of ratemaking. The approach we're taking now is more traditional and we think it will allow the commission more flexibility."

Gary Shannahan, IP's Director of Pricing, said an average family, using about 1,000 kilowatts a month, will see its monthly electric bill go from $81.56 to $105.15 if the increase is granted.

Smith said IP attorneys, who had planned on filing the ICC request Friday, needed more time to study the case's paperwork and will file in the middle of next week.

Illinois Power has invested $3.8 billion in the $4.2 billion nuclear plant at Clinton. About $1.5 billion was added to the company's rate base during the construction of the plant. During the last rate case, the ICC determined that $665.8 million in imprudent construction be borne by Illinois Power and not passed on to the utility's 485,000 customers.

Man charged with slayings of two Belleville residents

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — A 19-year-old man was charged Thursday with two counts of first-degree murder in the slayings of a brother and sister whose bodies were found at the trailer they shared with their grandparents.

Anthony Mitchell of Washington Park, Ill., about 5 miles northwest of Belleville, was charged in warrants signed by a St. Clair County circuit judge, said Detective Mark Prosser of the St. Louis Metropolitan Major Case Squad, which assembled a team of 14 detectives to investigate the case.

Mitchell, who was held on $500,000 bond, was scheduled to be arraigned Thursday afternoon, said Prosser, who normally works for the O'Fallon

Police Department. O'Fallon is about 3 miles northeast of Belleville.

Mitchell was charged in the killings Tuesday night of David Lienecke, 19, and his 13-year-old sister, Dawn.

The grandparents of the victims told police they found the bodies when they returned home about 10:45 p.m. Tuesday to the trailer they all shared in the Symonds Trailer Park in St. Clair County, just north of Belleville. The scene is about 15 miles east of St. Louis.

Investigators said they believed the victims were killed at the trailer between 9:30 p.m. and 10:45 p.m. Tuesday. Dawn Lienecke was found holding a telephone in her hand and apparently had tried to call for help before she died.

Batmania remains infectious, nets $197 million

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Propelled by "Batman," the nation's motion-picture box offices exploded over the Fourth of July weekend, with a sizzling haul of $197 million.

With "Honey, I Shrank The Kids" and "The Karate Kid III," in line behind the adventures of the Caped Crusader, Hollywood set an all-time Fourth of July weekend record as all but one of the top 10 films in release grossed at least $2 million.

The top 10 alone accounted for $88 million of the take, as "Batman" became the first movie ever to hit the $100-million mark in just 10 days.

"Batman" grossed $30 million during its second weekend in 2,201 theaters, giving it a whopping per-screen average of $13,664.

"Honey, I Shrank The Kids," Disney's summer sleeper and No. 2 in the rankings, scooped up $13.1 million on 1,431 screens for a two-week tally of $38 million.

Despite mostly crushing returns, "The Karate Kid Part III," landed in the No. 3 spot with a gross of $10.4 million in its opening weekend in 1,560 theaters.

Among the top 10, "Ghostbusters II" suffered the biggest swoon — 35 percent — but still managed to post $9 million in 2,410 screens. In three weeks, it has slimmed its way to $74 million and is now

No. 4. Still the box-office champion for the season so far was No. 5 "Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade" with a six-week total of $147.3 million, grossing a healthy $7 million in 2,103 theaters over the holiday weekend.

The No. 6 slot was filled by one of the few quality adult films showing this summer, "Dead Poets Society," which grossed $6.7 million in its fifth week for a total of $46.3 million.

Biggest disappointment of the dazzling financial week was the opening of "Great Balls of Fire," the Jerry Lee Lewis film starring Dennis Quaid. It registered an anemic

$3.8 million at 1,417 theaters. The failure of "Great Balls of Fire" was offset by the surprise showing of Spike Lee's racial drama "Do The Right Thing" which picked off $3.5 million in only 353 theaters in its debut weekend.

The week's $197 million bonanza in North America's 23,000 theaters dramatically topped the 1988 record for the same week, $125.4 million.

So far this year domestic theaters have reaped $2.2 billion as compared with $2 billion for the same time frame in 1988.

The top 10, last year's gross, total gross, weeks in release:

1. "Batman," $30 million, $100 million, 2 weeks.

2. "Honey, I Shrank The Kids," $13.1 million, $38 million, 2 weeks.

3. "The Karate Kid Part III," $10.4 million, 1 week.

4. "Ghostbusters II," $9 million, $37 million, 3 weeks.

5. "Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade," $7 million, $147.3 million, 6 weeks.

6. "Dead Poets Society," $6.7 million, $46.3 million, 5 weeks.

7. "Great Balls of Fire," $3.8 million, 1 week.

8. "Do The Right Thing," $3.5 million, 1 week.

9. "Star Trek V," $2.4 million, $42.4 million, 4 weeks.

10. "Field of Dreams," $1.8 million, $50.6 million, 11 weeks.

Report estimates Onassis wealth at $200 million

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy Onassis, who turned 60 on July 28, has a fortune of $200 million, an active but very private life and a man at her side who makes her "no longer an unfinished woman," a profile published Thursday said.

This summing up of the former first lady as she enters the third act of her life is made by a longtime acquaintance, Edward Klein, in an article in the August issue of Vanity Fair magazine. Klein, former editor of The New York Times Magazine, interviewed 60 Onassis friends to get a "different" portrait of Jackie Onassis.

Since image is important to Onassis, the knocks she has taken from the media makes her ambivalent toward journalists, Klein says, adding that he has heard her describe journalists as "the most interesting people in the whole world" while considering them her "chief nemesis."

Compared to the latest of 22 Onassis biographies, C. David Heymann's best-selling "A Woman Named Jackie," Klein has given Onassis a break, picturing her as "a woman who has managed to develop into an ever more appealing, self-confident personality."

He quotes a friend as saying: "Hers were the only Kennedy kids who didn't spend their summers in Hyannis Port. Jackie kept her kids away from that scene. Her kids didn't get into all that competitiveness; they didn't get involved in drugs. Her kids were spared."

With son John Jr. and daughter Caroline safely launched into adult life, Onassis is concentrating on her own life just at the time she is "really rich" for the first time, Klein reports.

Starting with the $25 million settlement from the estate of the late Aristotle Onassis and with expert financial advice, his widow has been able to increase her fortune to almost $200 million, not counting her jewels, art, antiques and her $45,000 annual salary as an editor at Doubleday books, Klein says.

One of her financial advisers has been Maurice Tempelmann, a player in the international diamond market whom Onassis has known since her White House years. Klein describes him as "Jackie's significant other" for at least 10 years.

Onassis' daily routine includes yoga and meditation, exercise, work at her Doubleday office three days a week, and occasional public forays such as lunch with a writer, a book party for a friend and an event for a charitable cause in which she is interested.

She is extremely careful of her appearance and her diet.

Gorbachev agrees to bargaining plan with NATO

STRASBOURG, France (UPI) — Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, concluding a lackluster trip to France, said Thursday Moscow would unilaterally reduce its short-range missiles in Europe if NATO agrees to negotiations on the tactical nuclear weapons.

"If it becomes clear that NATO countries are ready to join us in negotiations on tactical nuclear weapons, we could, naturally after consulting our allies, carry out without delay further unilateral reductions in our tactical nuclear missiles in Europe," Gorbachev said in a speech to the 23-nation Council of Europe at Strasbourg, eastern France.

The 45-minute address on Gorbachev's theme of "a common European house" marked the first time a communist head of state had addressed the Council, a body set up in 1949 to safeguard ideals of common heritage and to promote economic and social development in the region.

In Washington, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the proposal by Gorbachev was the same one U.S. officials expected after the NATO summit in late May, when the Western alliance made cuts in conventional forces a condition for talks on short-range nuclear weapons.

"Our position remains the same that was in our proposal — that we do the conventional force reductions first," Fitzwater said.

No sooner had Gorbachev left Strasbourg for a Warsaw Pact summit in Bucharest, Romania, than French commentators judged Gorbachev's three-day visit to France a disappointment.

"Monsieur Gorbachev's image was not particularly reinforced by his passage through Paris," the influential Le Monde newspaper said.

"To speak frankly, Monsieur Gorbachev disappointed many people who only wanted to be comforted in their admiration for him," Le Monde said.

Political experts said Gorbachev appeared overly distracted by ethnic tensions at home and setbacks of communist officialdom in Hungary and Poland.

"He is like a chauffeur who is driving on a slippery route," French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas told Europe 1 Radio. "He cannot take the curves as if he were driving on a dry road. An enormous pressure," weighs on his shoulders."

In his speech to the Council, Gorbachev said the Soviet positions on disarmament "were the result of the new thinking (in the Soviet Union). They were laid down on behalf of our entire people in the resolution of the Congress of the People's deputies in the U.S.S.R."

"We see the elimination of nuclear weapons as a stage-by-stage process, with the U.S.S.R. remaining faithful to its non-nuclear ideals and the West to the concept of 'minimum deterrence,'" Gorbachev said.

The Soviet Union's calls for early negotiations on short-range nuclear missiles have divided the NATO alliance. Britain and the United States oppose them and West Germany supports them, hoping to eliminate the weapons from Europe.

NATO leaders meeting in Brussels, Belgium, in May urged the Soviets to unilaterally reduce short-range missile systems to the current levels of the NATO arsenals before completing the Vienna negotiations on conventional arms.

Gorbachev sought to eliminate doubts in Western Europe about Soviet intentions in the region.

"The realities of today and the prospects for the foreseeable future are obvious — the Soviet Union and the United States are a natural part of the European international and political structure," he said.

14 killed as Arab passenger steers bus into ravine

TELSHE STONE, Israel (UPI) — An Arab passenger, shouting "God is great," grabbed the steering wheel of an Israeli bus Thursday and sent it plunging into a ravine along the Jerusalem-Tel Aviv highway, killing at least 14 people.

Twenty-seven passengers, including seven Americans and one Canadian, were injured, seven seriously, police said. Two passengers were missing.

Police detained one person who was not on the bus for questioning but said the Arab suspect acted alone on the bus. He suffered moderate injuries.

Although the motive was not clear, the accident was the single bloodiest incident with political overtones since the start of the nearly 19-month-old Palestinian uprising. Before Thursday's accident, at least 519 Palestinians and 20 Israelis had been killed.

Police Inspector-General David Krauss called for Israelis to remain calm. In an apparent revenge attack, two Arabs were beaten in Jerusalem's Jewish market area.

The Egged company bus No. 405 had left Tel Aviv for Jerusalem at 11:15 a.m. and was moving at 50 mph when it left the road about 11:45 a.m., plunged 50 to 70 yards down the rocky ravine and landed on its roof.

"Suddenly I found myself 70 yards from the bus," passenger Chaim Ra'avad told Israel Radio. "The bus burst into flames. I heard people saying 'Help us, help us,' but there was no one to come help. They were burned alive."

A similar incident occurred Sept. 14, 1983, on the same line, but the driver kept control of the bus and avoided an accident.

Rescue teams worked with a crane through the afternoon to right the overturned, gutted Mercedes and used electric saws to reach victims as soldiers carried bodies to waiting helicopters.

Students from a nearby Telshe Stone religious academy, their shirts covered with blood, helped carry the injured up the steep sides of the ravine to ambulances.

Krauss told Israel Radio 14 people were killed, 27 wounded and two were missing in the accident near Telshe Stone, 5 miles west of Jerusalem, on the Jerusalem-Tel Aviv highway.

At least seven Americans were injured but it was not known whether any Americans were killed, said David Good, a spokesman for the U.S. Consulate in Jerusalem. Good had no details on the injured.

"We can say for sure that the suspect is the one who carried out the action," Krauss said. "We know at this stage his identity."

Krauss confirmed that threatening telephone calls had been made to the hospital where the suspect was under guard and being treated for moderate injuries.

Bus driver Moshe Elul told Israel Radio he first thought the young Arab wanted to ask a question.

"He jumped on the wheel and yelled 'God is great' and pulled the wheel to the right with all his might," he said. "I fought to pull the wheel left with all my strength. He simply crouched down to get a firm hold and plunged us below."

Soviet pilot told to exit failing craft

MOSCOW (UPI) — The pilot who ejected from a MiG-23 that cruised pilotless 500 miles before crashing in Belgium said Thursday he was told by controllers to bail out and turned the fighter-bomber to the sea before he left the plane.

Col. Nikolai Skurigin, 42, told a press conference he was deeply sorry that his plane killed an 18-year-old Belgian when it crashed in Courtrai. He said if he had known a death might occur he would have stayed with the plane.

"I have sent a letter to the family of that youth," Skurigin said. "But I would like to express once again through press representatives condolences on my personal behalf and on behalf of my family and my two children."

Contest blunder to cost Kraft more than $3 million

GLENVIEW, Ill. (UPI) — A printing blunder that made nearly every coupon in the Kraft "Ready to Roll" contest a winner will end up costing the foodmaker more than $3 million, a Kraft spokeswoman said Thursday.

About 10,000 people have turned in winning coupons for Dodge Caravans, more than 5,200 have sent in coupons for Roadmaster bicycles, more than 4,000 for Leap Frog skateboards and about 2,100 for 12-ounce packages of Kraft singles.

The confusion began June 11 when Kraft placed insert ads in newspapers in the Chicago and Houston areas. The ads had a picture of half a van, half a bicycle, half a skateboard and half a package of cheese. There were supposed to be only a limited number of winners — only one for the van — but through a printing error nearly every coupon in specially marked packages of Kraft cheese turned out to be a winner. Kraft declared the game null and void.

Kraft then offered alternative prizes — $250 to people with van coupons, $50 for bicycle winners, $25 for skateboard winners and $5 for cheese winners. The company also said it would hold a drawing July 14 for four vans, 400 bicycles, 2,000 skateboards and 32,000 packages of cheese.

In all, the company received about 21,000 game pieces — 9,667 for the van. If the original prizes were awarded, the contest would have cost Kraft $165 million.

"Just under 50 percent of the entries were the van match pieces, about a quarter were bicycle game pieces, a little under a fifth skateboards, and under a tenth were the cheese game pieces," said Kathy Knuth, a Kraft spokeswoman. Knuth said most of the checks were mailed to winners and consumers have been thanking the giant foodmaker.

"We have been getting phone calls and letters from people thanking us for the checks and it's very reassuring for us to know that consumers are pleased with what they've received," Knuth said.

"We have gotten a number of very positive letters from consumers saying they believe what Kraft has done is very fair."

About 600 people, however, decided against sending in their coupons and opted instead to join a class action suit, which is scheduled for a hearing Tuesday in Cook County Circuit Court.

Quadriplegic looking for doctor to remove life-support equipment

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — David Rivlin is looking for a doctor — not to save his life, but to end it.

The 38-year-old quadriplegic — bedridden and unable to move much more than his head — won an important right-to-die case when a judge ruled there is nothing to stop him from having his life-support equipment disconnected.

Rivlin's lawyer, David I. Rosin, said Thursday the next step is to find a doctor who will agree to carry out Rivlin's desire to die. Rivlin's doctors have said he could live another 20 years.

"We're trying to find leads into private doctors interested in this particular problem," Rosin said. "We may have an answer soon; we may not."

Rivlin's parents are dead and his aunt, Marion Gornbein of Palm Harbor, Fla., has come to Michigan to help him in his quest to die with dignity, Rosin said.

"She's trying to make contact with various people who might be in a position, who might bring this to the conclusion he wishes," he said.

Rivlin's spine was severed in a surfing accident in California 18 years ago, when he was a 20-year-old college student. His physical condition gradually has worsened and he has required a respirator since undergoing a spinal operation two years ago.

For the past three years, Rivlin has been living at the Oak Hill Care Center in Farmington Hills. The federal government pays the $230-a-day cost of his care.

Rivlin's personal physician "has been very understanding, but he has said he would not do it at the nursing home. So even if we find a doctor willing to do it, we still have to find a place," Rosin said.

"I can't see living like this for 20 more years," Rivlin said at the time he filed his right-to-die suit. "It could turn a person bitter toward life and toward people and I don't want that to happen to me."

His case posed new ethical dilemmas for the court and for doctors because he is competent and could be sustained on life-support systems indefinitely.

On Wednesday, Oakland County Circuit Judge Hilda Gage ruled there was no valid reason for judicial intervention because there was no legal opposition to Rivlin's request.

"This is a matter between the patient and his physician," Gage said in her ruling. "I don't have jurisdiction in this case."

The judge added: "The law seems to be very clear that a competent patient has the right to decline or refuse medical treatment. And it is undisputed that Mr. Rivlin is competent."

Rivlin said he felt vindicated by Gage's decision.

"If you can lead an independent life, then go ahead and do it. Keep fighting," he said. "If you're in a situation where you have no freedom, then you have to make a change, and my change is death."

Nine states reach settlement of $90,000 with Nestle's Co.

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Nine states including Illinois have reached a $90,000 settlement with Nestle's Carnation Co. over charges it advertised an infant formula in a deceptive and misleading manner, Wisconsin Attorney General Don Hanaway said Thursday.

Hanaway said the Los Angeles-based company entered into an Assurance of Discontinuance that mandates the company to stop its unwarranted claims for the product, Good Start H.A., and to pay each participating state $10,000 in costs.

The other states involved in the settlement are Texas, New York, Missouri, Minnesota, Massachusetts, Iowa, Illinois and California.

Hanaway said the investigation focused on Carnation's claims that Good Start is a "new hypoallergenic" infant formula that "effectively resolves symptoms in infants suffering from formula intolerance or milk allergy" and that "cannot cause an allergic reaction."

Carnation also distributed information to health professionals citing studies claiming "no allergy symptoms" in infants receiving Good Start, Hanaway said.

The Attorneys General were alerted to possible problems with the formula after hearing medical reports that some infants had allergic reactions to Good Start. Hanaway said the reactions varied but included shock.

"In fact, no infant formula is completely nonallergenic. Any formula is capable of producing an allergic reaction in some infants," Hanaway said.

Hanaway said the Attorneys General found that many people do not understand the precise meaning of hypoallergenicity and might mistakenly assume it means non-allergenic or incapable of producing a reaction.

The agreement contains several prohibitions for Carnation, including using the word "hypoallergenic" in connection with any infant formula if such use would give consumers the impression that the product is incapable of causing an allergic reaction.

Last of Pershing I-A missiles destroyed as Soviets look on KARNACK, Texas (UPI) — A missile crew burned off the fuel and then destroyed the last of the Army's Pershing I-A missiles Thursday while a team of Soviet inspectors verified the explosion to meet nuclear treaty obligations.

The firing of two Pershing motors at the Longhorn Army Ammunition Plant in East Texas was part of the agreement under the Intermediate Nuclear Forces treaty signed by both superpowers last year.

"The destruction of the Pershing I-A system is proof positive that we have moved forward in our relationship with the Soviet Union," said Maj. Gen. Marvin Brailsford, commander of the U.S. Army Armament, Munitions, and Chemical Command. "This also indicates a giant step toward reducing the risk of war."

THE TWO rockets fired for 40 seconds each, vibrating the ground and shooting huge flames out of the back. When the motor had consumed the rocket's propellant, Thiokol Corp. workers crushed and destroyed the motors.

A 10-member Soviet inspection team watched the firing from a nearby bunker to verify the destruction of the missile and its contents.

"This is an important step in the direction of the implementation of the treaty, and this is also an important step in the direction of future peace," said Soviet Gen. Maj. Vladimir Medved'ev, the director of the Soviet Risk Reduction Center.

THE UNITED States and the Soviet Union entered into the INF treaty on June 1, 1988, when President Ronald Reagan and Soviet General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev exchanged agreements at the Moscow Summit. The treaty calls for the elimination of all U.S. and Soviet ground-launched, intermediate-range missile systems in the next three years.

Under the terms, the United States and the Soviets may destroy the missiles only by either "static" firing, open burning or launching for destruction.

So far, all of the U.S. Army's 139 Pershing I-A rockets have been destroyed, most of them with static firing. Army officials said 18 of the 400 larger Pershing IIs have also already been eliminated.

BOTH THE Americans and the Soviets have already destroyed about half of the missiles designated under the treaty in only the first 13 months, said Army spokesman Dave Harris.

"Pershing I-A helped keep the peace," said Brig. Gen. Larry Capps, deputy commander of the U.S. Army Missile Command. "We hope now that its passing will help preserve peace."

The Longhorn plant was the site of the first elimination of Pershing I-A's and Pershing II missiles last September, attended by then Vice President Bush and Army Secretary John O. Marsh.

The Soviet inspection team arrived before the initial elimination. The Soviet government has rotated their inspectors, but the occupations of team members has remained classified, Army officials said.

WHILE IN Texas, all of the Russians have lived in a motel and have been treated to Thanksgiving Day dinners, barrel racing lessons, high school football games and trips to churches.

"We have come to understand Texas much better," Medved'ev said.

Longhorn was chosen for the firing because of its location and environmental safety record after more than 550 missile firings in the past. Extensive environmental studies have shown damage caused by the firing at other locations.

LONGHORN spokesman Dorothy Grant said the facility has not had a safety or environmental problem since the firings began. Officials from Thiokol, the maker of the Pershings, said the firings can only be performed on an average of 200 days of the year, when the weather is dry with few clouds.

Pro-abortionists rally in Missouri, vow to unseat elected officials

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Members of three groups advocating legalized abortion conducted a noisy rally Thursday at Missouri's Capitol, vowing to unseat elected officials who support tougher state laws on abortion.

Several hundred people crowded into the Capitol rotunda to hear speeches by leaders of the Missouri affiliate of the National Abortion Rights Action League, Missouri Alliance for Choice and Planned Parenthood Affiliates of Missouri. They chanted slogans heard throughout the four floors of the Capitol, which covers three acres.

The speakers' remarks were critical of the U.S. Supreme Court ruling last week upholding Missouri's restrictive law on abortion, as well as against Gov. John Ashcroft, Attorney General William Webster and lawmakers who believe the state should limit abortions even more.

Ashcroft is appointing a committee to recommend a new measure that would restrict or even ban abortions in the state. The proposal is expected to be introduced in the 1990 session of the General Assembly, which begins in January.

"Our initial outrage and anger are fueling the fires of our political activity," said Maria Turner, president of the Missouri affiliate of the National Abortion Rights Action League. "We are here to put legislators on notice — take away our rights, risk your jobs."

"We will fight to protect our rights, our freedom and our lives. The voters will decide as this battle shifts from the courts to the ballot boxes.

"We will take this issue to the Legislature, the governor, and to the polls in 1990 and beyond," she said.

Mary Bryant, spokeswoman for the Planned Parenthood Affiliates of Missouri, said strong efforts should be made to prevent state lawmakers from attempting to pass a bill that overturns Roe vs. Wade.

"Governor Ashcroft has stripped away any pretense of protecting the constitutional right to privacy in intimate decisions," Bryant said. "He ignores freedom of religion by giving notice that he intends to improve his personal religious beliefs on all the citizens of this state."

Drug store shreds tobacco stock; owner refuses to sell cigarettes

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — A Spokane drug store owner who had Boy Scouts destroy his remaining inventory of cigarettes said he can do without the profit because tobacco kills.

"You have to make a statement," said Russ Helgeson, owner of Shade Park Pharmacy.

Helgeson recently stopped ordering cigarettes from distributors, and Wednesday the scouts used a paper shredder to destroy the last 80 to 100 packs.

"It smells like death," said scout Ryan Rigger, 13.

"It doesn't make sense to continue selling cigarettes when you think about all the health problems it causes. After all, I'm in the health business," said Helgeson, who said he quit the "dumb habit" 30 years ago.

Helgeson chose Wednesday to clear the store of tobacco because it was National Non-Dependency Day.

The shredded packs could have been sold for about $120, and Yvonne Bucklin of the American Lung Association said the timing was good considering the nation's Independence Day celebration the day before.

"It's the perfect opportunity to celebrate your independence from cigarettes," she said. "I think it's a sign of the times that stores are beginning to refuse to sell tobacco."

Helgeson said he used to carry an inventory of about $1,500 in cigarettes, which yielded sales of $600 to $800 a month.

Helgeson is the second pharmacist in Spokane to quit selling cigarettes. Last year the Esmeralda Pharmacy burned its remaining tobacco products, but Helgeson opted for the shredder to prevent air pollution.

Best U.S. gymnasts ready for national championship

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — The men's division of the 1989 U.S. Gymnastics Championships will be up for grabs this weekend but the women's all-around title is expected to be Brandy Johnson's to win or lose.

"I think it's wide open," said Lance Ringnald, a 1988 Olympian from Albuquerque, N.M. "There could be some surprises; but it all boils down to the person with the least mistakes wins."

"Once you're at a meet, that's all that matters. You have to be able to take one event at a time. If you fit, fine; if you miss, you have to be able to go on."

The nation's best gymnasts got in last-minute work-outs Thursday in preparation for the three-day meet that starts Friday at the Met Center. Forty-eight male gymnasts are scheduled to compete, including Ringnald and fellow 1988 Olympians Kevin Davis and Wes Suter, as well as NCAA national champ on Patrick Kirksey. Davis, Suter and Kirksey are all from the University of Nebraska.

In the women's competition, Johnson, a 16-year-old who trains in Altamonte Spring, Fla., heads the list of 37 gymnasts. Johnson, who finished 10th in the 1988 Olympics, will be challenged by fellow Olympian Chelle Stack, Juliet Bangertner, and Wendy Bruce.

The top 12 men and top 20 women finishers will be members of the national gymnastics squads.

Johnson became the favorite when Olympic medalist Phoebe Mills of Northfield, Ill., retired last month. Johnson said her new role will not put more pressure on her.

"I'm concerned about hitting my routines," she said. "I'm going about this as if I were in last place. I'm taking one event at a time. That's how I approach each meet."

Johnson is the best gymnast in the United States, said Stormy Eaton, who trains Bangertner and Sandy Woolsey in Scottsdale, Ariz.

"Nobody's going to beat her," Eaton said.

Johnson is the favorite comes for two primary reasons, Eaton said.

"She has tremendous international experience," he said. "The second thing is that she's so darn strong that it's hard to keep up with her."

But Eaton has high hopes for his charges.

"We want to be among the top three or four in this meet," Eaton said.

whose two-fisted backhand wilted under the pressure. The Floridian also imposed self-inflicted wounds by serving five double faults, three of them on break points.

It is the second straight year Graf has reached the final without dropping a set and she has yielded only 20 points in her six matches.

Although Graf now has won her last eight meetings against Evert after dropping the first six, she did not expect an easy match.

"I knew I had to watch out and I didn't expect to get anything from her," the champion said. "Chris is a very competitive player. I was unlucky in the first six meetings we had. She had more experience and knew how to win the big games. Today, I could play better because I have her strengths."

Navratilova took five minutes less than Graf to clinch her 10th appearance in the final. Ranked No. 2, Navratilova was matched stroke by Lindqvist in a 41-minute opening set in which the Swede stretched Navratilova with her formidable backhand top-spin.

There was only one break apiece in the set and Navratilova's experience in tight situations saw her through the tie-breaker.

The turning point in the match came when Navratilova broke for 3-2 in the second set.

"I decided to go for it and hit some really good returns," said Navratilova, who reeled off the last five games.

Looking ahead to the title match, Navratilova said: "I'm now just one step away from what my goal was that I set myself in the beginning of this year and then again about six weeks ago when I really started practicing with the intent of winning this tournament."

"I want it badly; Steffi wants it badly. It should be a great match. I'm really looking forward to it. This is what you live for."

Navratilova did not want to dwell on the past, especially last year's final.

"I don't think it makes any difference what happened last year, two years ago or 10 years ago," she said.

Strategy doesn't count for Davis in Jamie Farr Classic

SYLVANIA, Ohio (UPI) — Laura Davies, defending champion of the Jamie Farr Toledo Classic, says strategy doesn't count for much on the LPGA Tour.

"You just aim at the flag and hit it pretty hard," she said.

Davies once drove a ball "down hill and down wind" 340 yards in Hawaii. Her drives average about 255 yards.

The Englishwoman dazzled galleries as a rookie at last year's tournament with monster drives and pinpoint approach shots. The $275,000 tournament, which begins Friday, has been switched to Highland Meadows Golf Club after four years at Glengarry Country Club.

"You just have to go in there and take it as another tournament," Davies said. "You can't just think of last year, even though you're the winner."

Sponsors of the Jamie Farr have signed a three-year contract with Highland Meadows, citing construction of a new clubhouse at Glengarry, where the old one burned two years ago, as well as housing development around the course.

Promoters were heartened last month with the last-minute commitment to play by Nancy Lopez. She had said she might not participate because of her schedule, but changed her mind when she missed several events because of her mother's illness.

In the year before Collins took charge in Chicago, the Bulls posted a mediocre 30-52. The following season, 1986-87, the Bulls improved to 40-42. During the 1987-88 season the team climbed to 50-32.

Collins played for eight years with the Philadelphia 76ers. He averaged 17.9 points a game and made All-Star team four times.

A native of Benton, Ill., Collins played high school ball under current SIU-C head coach Rich Herrin. He starred at Illinois State, where he became the Redbirds' career scoring leader and was a No. 1 draft pick. He started on the 1972 U.S. Olympic team that lost the controversial gold-medal game to the Soviet Union.

Collins worked as assistant coach under Bob Weinbauer at Pennsylvania in 1981. He rejoined Weinbauer at Arizona State for two years before coming to the Bulls in 1986.

Collins made a brief appearance at the Multiplex in Deerfield, the Bulls' practice facility. A receptionist said he said goodbye to the staff and told workers "he would come around and work out every now and then."

University Museum features painting, sculpture exhibits

By Carrie Pomeroy
Staff Writer

The Master of Fine Arts exhibitions of painter Mark Barone and sculptor Daniel Hunt will be shown at the University Museum through Tuesday. A public reception for the exhibits will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. today.

Barone, who comes from Green Bay, Wis., depicts building interiors as a significant background for the figures and actions in his paintings. He said his interest in the structures and forms of buildings may have come in part from his father, who is an architect.

"The building interiors are set up as stage settings for the narratives in my work," Barone commented.

Narrative storytelling through art is important to Barone. Using common human themes such as relationships, sexuality, death and loneliness, Barone tries to tell stories to which each viewer can relate.

Barone creates a narrative effect in several ways. First, he often uses multiple panels. An example from the exhibit is "The Ring," a 10-panel work which was originally intended to be 12 panels. The work was shortened because one panel is being displayed in another exhibit, and the other panel was not completed in time for this exhibit.

Barone feels that the painting still conveys the message he intended to represent, despite the missing panels.

Barone emphasizes his storytelling effects by working with the size and shape of his paintings and their placement and positioning on the wall.

Barone's exhibit also includes some prints. The artist became involved in print-making during the last year and a half when renovation at the Glove Factory forced him out of his studio. Prints were a convenient alternative to painting because they could be worked on in his home.

Barone, who has exhibited his work nationally, has received awards including "Best of Show" at a Scottsbluff, Neb., exhibit and the "1988 Purchase Award" from the Evansville (Ind.) Museum of Arts and Sciences.

Sculptor Daniel Hunt has also shown his work nationally, with displays in California, Illinois and Michigan. The recipient of a graduate fellowship from the University's School of Art and Design, Hunt has been casting in aluminum and bronze since 1983.

Hunt gravitates towards metals because of their permanence and because he enjoys the process of casting. "It's really physical," he said.

Hunt's influences are atypical, ranging from customized automobiles to billboards to television cartoons. He cites the simultaneous complexity and simplicity of these mediums as noteworthy. He says that he has often used the image of a billboard "as a kind of Twilight Zone window."

Highway imagery figures prominently in Hunt's sculpture. Cars, garages, towers, billboards, and clouds as viewed from a car window are frequently represented.

Hunt feels that the idea of motion and travel should be implied in sculpture to keep the work from appearing stagnant. He uses unusual techniques to convey motion. One technique is his sculptural adaptation of "chopping." "Chopping" is a process in which auto customizers cut parts out of a car roof to give the vehicle a more streamlined, close-to-the-ground appearance.

Hunt feels that his father and his instructors influenced his work greatly.

"They've helped me realize the importance of what you have to say and how you are going to say it," Barone said, explaining his opinion that art is a form of communication.

Both artists' work will be on display at the University Museum at Phaner Hall through Tuesday. Hours are 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays and 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Sunday. Admission is free.

Best U.S. gymnasts ready for national championship

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — The men's division of the 1989 U.S. Gymnastics Championships will be up for grabs this weekend but the women's all-around title is expected to be Brandy Johnson's to win or lose.

"I think it's wide open," said Lance Ringnald, a 1988 Olympian from Albuquerque, N.M. "There could be some surprises; but it all boils down to the person with the least mistakes wins."

"Once you're at a meet, that's all that matters. You have to be able to take one event at a time. If you fit, fine; if you miss, you have to be able to go on."

The nation's best gymnasts got in last-minute work-outs Thursday in preparation for the three-day meet that starts Friday at the Met Center. Forty-eight male gymnasts are scheduled to compete, including Ringnald and fellow 1988 Olympians Kevin Davis and Wes Suter, as well as NCAA national champ on Patrick Kirksey. Davis, Suter and Kirksey are all from the University of Nebraska.

In the women's competition, Johnson, a 16-year-old who trains in Altamonte Spring, Fla., heads the list of 37 gymnasts. Johnson, who finished 10th in the 1988 Olympics, will be challenged by fellow Olympian Chelle Slack, Juliet Bangarter, and Wendy Bruce.

The top 12 men and top 20 women finishers will be members of the national gymnastics squads.

Johnson became the favorite when Olympic medalist Phoebe Mills of Northfield, Ill., retired last month. Johnson said her new role will not put more pressure on her.

"I'm concerned about hitting my routines," she said. "I'm going about this as if I were in last place. I'm taking one event at a time. That's how I approach each meet."

Johnson is the best gymnast in the United States, said Stormy Eaton, who trains Bangarter and Sandy Woolsey in Scottsdale, Ariz.

"Nobody's going to beat her," Eaton said.

Johnson is the favorite because of two primary reasons, Eaton said.

"She has tremendous international experience," he said. "The second thing is that she's so darn strong that it's hard to keep up with her."

But Eaton has high hopes for his charges.

"We want to be among the top three or four in this meet," Eaton said.

whose two-fisted backhand wilted under the pressure. The Floridian also imposed self-inflicted wounds by serving five double faults, three of the them on break points.

It is the second straight year Graf has reached the final without dropping a set and she has yielded only 20 points in her six matches.

Although Graf now has won her last eight meetings against Evert after dropping the first six, she did not expect an easy match.

"I knew I had to watch out and I didn't expect to get anything from her," the champion said. "Chris is a very competitive player. I was unlucky in the first six meetings we had. She had more experience and knew how to win the big games. Today, I could play better tennis because I have her strengths."

Navratilova took five minutes less than Graf to clinch her 10th appearance in the final. Ranked No. 2, Navratilova was matched stroke for stroke by Lindqvist in a 41-minute opening set in which the Swede stretched Navratilova with her formidable backhand top-spin.

There was only one break apiece in the set and Navratilova's experience in tight situations saw her through the tie-breaker.

The turning point in the match came when Navratilova broke for 3-2 in the second set.

"I decided to go for it and hit some really good returns,"

said Navratilova, who reeled off the last five games.

Looking ahead to the title match, Navratilova said: "I'm now just one step away from what my goal was that I set myself in the beginning of this year and then again about six weeks ago when I really started practicing with the intent of winning this tournament."

"I want it badly; Steffi wants it badly. It should be a great match. I'm really looking forward to it. This is what you live for."

Navratilova did not want to dwell on the past, especially last year's final.

"I don't think it makes any difference what happened last year, two years ago or 10 years ago," she said.

Strategy doesn't count for Davis in Jamie Farr Classic

SYLVANIA, Ohio (UPI) — Laura Davies, defending champion of the Jamie Farr Toledo Classic, says strategy doesn't count for much on the LPGA Tour.

"You just aim at the flag and hit it pretty hard," she said.

Davies once drove a ball "down hill and down wind" 340 yards in Hawaii. Her drives average about 255 yards.

The Englishwoman dazzled galleries as a rookie at last year's tournament with monster drives and pinpoint approach shots. The $275,000 tournament, which begins Friday, has been switched to Highland Meadows Golf Club after four years at Glengarry Country Club.

"You just have to go in there and take it as another tournament," Davies said. "You can't just think of last year, even though you're the winner."

Sponsors of the Jamie Farr have signed a three-year contract with Highland Meadows, citing construction of a new clubhouse at Glengarry, where the old one burned two years ago, as well as housing development around the course.

Promoters were heartened last month with the last-minute commitment to play by Nancy Lopez. She had said she might not participate because of her schedule, but changed her mind when she missed several events because of her mother's illness.

In the year before Collins took charge in Chicago, the Bulls posted a mediocre 30-52. The following season, 1986-87, the Bulls improved to 40-42. During the 1987-88 season the team climbed to 50-32.

Collins played for eight years with the Philadelphia 76ers. He averaged 17.9 points a game and made All-Star team four times.

A native of Benton, Ill., Collins played high school ball under current SIU-C head coach Rich Herrin. He starred at Illinois State, where he became the Redbirds' career scoring leader and was a No. 1 draft pick. He started on the 1972 U.S. Olympic team that lost the controversial gold-medal game to the Soviet Union.

Collins worked as assistant coach under Bob Weinbauer at Pennsylvania in 1981. He rejoined Weinbauer at Arizona State for two years before coming to the Bulls in 1986.

Collins made a brief appearance at the Multiplex in Deerfield, the Bulls' practice facility. A receptionist said he said goodbye to the staff and told workers "he would come around and work out every now and then."

Ryan, Reuschel highlight list of All-Star players

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pitchers Nolan Ryan of Texas and Rick Reuschel of San Francisco, proving baseball life does not end at 40, Thursday highlighted the reserves and pitcher named to the rosters for next week's All-Star Game.

American League Manager Tony La Russa of Oakland and AL President Bobby Brown picked Ryan, 42, for Tuesday night's game in Anaheim Calif.

Named as AL reserves were catcher Mickey Tettleton of Baltimore, shortstop Tony Fernandez and third baseman Kelly Gruber of Toronto, third baseman Gary Gaetti of Minnesota, first baseman Don Mattingly and second baseman Steve Sax of New York and outfielders Ruben Sierra of Texas, Mike Greenwell of Boston, Harold Baines of Chicago, Jeffrey Leonard of Seattle and Devon White of California.

The AL starting team, selected by the fans, includes catcher Terry Steinbach and first baseman Mark McGwire of Oakland, second baseman Julio Franco of Texas, shortstop Cal Ripken Jr. of Baltimore, third baseman Wade Boggs of Boston and outfielders Bo Jackson of Kansas City, Kirby Puckett of Minnesota and Jose Canseco of Oakland.

National League Manager Tom Lasorda and league president Bill White chose Reuschel, who turned 40 last May, along with Tim Burke of Montreal, Mark Davis of San Diego, John Franco of Cincinnati, Orel Hershiser and Jay Howell of Los Angeles, Mike Scott of Houston, John Smoltz of Atlanta and Mitch Williams of Chicago.

Selected as NL reserves were catchers Tony Pena of St. Louis and Mike Scioscia of Los Angeles, first basemen Glenn Davis of Houston and Pedro Guerrero of St. Louis, second baseman Willie Randolph of Los Angeles, third basemen Bobby Bonilla of Pittsburgh, Howard Johnson of New York and Tim Wallach of Montreal, shortstop Barry Larkin of Cincinnati and outfielders Vince Coleman of St. Louis, Eric Davis of Cincinnati, Andre Dawson of Chicago and Von Hayes of Philadelphia.

Voted to, the starting NL team were catcher Benito Santiago of San Diego, first baseman Will Clark of San Francisco, second baseman Ryne Sandberg of Chicago, shortstop Ozzie Smith of St. Louis, third baseman Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia and outfielders Kevin Mitchell of San Francisco, Darryl Strawberry of New York and Tony Gwynn of San Diego.

Schmidt and Strawberry will be replaced. Schmidt retired in May and Strawberry has been sidelined with a fractured toe. Lasorda will announce his replacements Monday.

well, what the heck. All's fair in love and Cubs-Cards war right?

The Cubs have not participated in a World Series since 1945, the year they lost to the Detroit Tigers. Then came the disaster in 1969. Chicago had the division title in the bag; however, the famous "Amazing" Mets from New York came out of nowhere to steal the title.

Then there was the most recent fiasco in 1984. Chicago won its first divisional title in '84 and faced the San Diego Padres in a best-of-five National League Championship Series. The Cubs won the first two games in Wrigley Field. However, this team is not one to break tradition.

The Cubbies fell flat on their faces going 0-for-3 in San Diego. The Cubbies lost the series three games to two and lost a chance to play in the World Series as well, leaving the hometown faithful disappointed one more time.

Yet Cub fans fill Wrigley Field and back these chokers. You would think that many of them would switch over to root for the nearby rival, St. Louis Cardinals. It makes sense if you think about it. There is enough adversity in life. Why compound it by rooting for the Cubs?

Let's look on the flip side of the coin. The Cardinals have participated in three World Series in this decade alone. They have one of the richest traditions in the sport. The team logo is a symbol of excellence.

Yet, I have Cub fans coming up to me at this time of year saying: "If the Cardinals are the best team, why are the Cubs ahead of them in the standings?"

Well for one thing, pennants are not decided in July. If they were, the Cubs would be repeat champions.

This season the Cubs-Cards rivalry has reached a new high. Four games separate the top four teams in the division (Montreal, Chicago, New York, and St. Louis). The Cubs and Cards are both right in the middle of the pack.

But remember Cubbie fans, this is not the first time your team has been in the middle of a pennant race in early July. Once again, they are notorious for their fast starts; however, the initials of their nickname is symbolic of what they are all about: C.U.B.S. (Cubs Useless By September).

On the contrary, it is an odd-numbered year and Cardinal fans know what that means. Another flag for the Redbirds.

As for now, bear with these Cubbie fans that believe they are the Beast of the East. In the end, the Cubs will find a way to lose and the Cards will find a way to win.

Chester Kessel, a Murphysboro native who is the self-proclaimed No. 1 Cub fan, admits: "Everyone is talking about how good the Cubs are doing, but they'll mess it up. They'll mess it up."

When the next Cub fan boasts about the team, just think about what Cubbie broadcaster Harry Caray will be saying repeatedly in September at the end of telecasts: "Holy Cow, Cubs lose, Cubs lose." On the contrary, Cardinal fans will be hearing the sweet tone of Cardinal broadcaster Jack Buck saying: "That's a Winner."

Then Cub fans can come up with their favorite quote: "Wait til next year."

Double headers may decide American League East

BOSTON (UPI) — The American League East race, with five teams bunched behind the leading Baltimore Orioles, may hinge on a bevy of upcoming double-headers stemming from spring rainouts.

"This is a lot for us," said Boston Red Sox General Manager Lou Gorman, whose team faces six double-headers. "It's the most we've had in the six years I've been here."

"The double-headers put on a little more burden because we're operating with 11 pitchers, which takes one extra position player off the club," Gorman said.

The Orioles have four double-headers upcoming, including one with the second-place New York Yankees and two with Boston.

The Red Sox will play five double-headers from July 28 through Aug. 31, four against AL East clubs, plus a sixth against Milwaukee in the season's final series because of Wednesday night's washout at Fenway Park.

The Yankees have three double-headers between July 14 and Aug. 24, plus a single makeup game against California Sept. 4, previously a day off before an eight-game West Coast trip.

Milwaukee faces three double-headers, all in the AL East.

"You may do some juggling, like have a guy who can go eight or nine (innings) just go six and bring him back on three days rest," Brewers Manager Tom Trebelhorn said.

Sandberg, Dawson homers help Cubs win

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ryne Sandberg and Andre Dawson each homered and the Chicago Cubs scored the tiebreaking run on consecutive errors by shortstop Bip Roberts Thursday, sweeping a three-game series from San Diego with a 7-3 victory over the Padres.

Greg Maddux, 8-7, gave up seven hits, walked five and struck out four in six innings to post his seventh victory in his last nine starts. He escaped bases-loaded, two-out jams in the third and sixth innings. Steve Wilson and Calvin Schiraldi bailed Maddux out of trouble in the seventh inning. Mitch Williams hurled two scoreless innings for his 21st save.

The Cubs overturned a 1-0 deficit in the second inning when they pa-layed a single, two walks and Roberts' errors into three runs.

With one out, Damon Berryhill and Vance Law drew consecutive walks off Walt Terrell, 4-12. Shawn Dunston singled home Berryhill and, one out later, Roberts booted Jerome Walton's grounder to load the bases. Roberts then threw Sandberg's routine grounder past second baseman Roberto Alomar as Law and Dunston scored.

Dawson singled and scored on Dwight Smith's double in the fourth inning to push Chicago's advantage to 4-1.

Philosophy splits Bulls, Doug Collins

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Bulls, coming off a surprisingly strong run through the playoffs, Thursday fired Coach Doug Collins, citing "philosophical differences."

"We know this will be an unpopular decision, but we truly believe this will be in the best interest of all parties," Bulls Chairman Jerry Reinsdorf and Vice President of Basketball Operations Jerry Krause said. "We appreciate the effort Doug has given over the past three years."

"However, through the years philosophical differences between management and Doug over the direction the club was going grew to a point where the move was required. We wish Doug well in all his future endeavors."

Collins had one year left on his contract. He did not allude to any differences, but said "words will not describe the void I will feel not being a part of the Chicago Stadium and this great team."

"When hired three years ago, I willingly accepted the challenge of leading the Bulls back to the type of team this city richly deserves."

Collins led the Bulls to the Eastern Conference finals but the team was defeated by eventual NBA champion Detroit Pistons.

The Bulls, led by the electrifying play of Michael Jordan, finished the regular season with a 47-35 record — good for fourth place in the Central Division. They upset Cleveland in the playoffs and beat New York before losing in six games to the Pistons.

Reinsdorf and Krause said they hope to "offer the job to our first choice in the near future."

Collins became the Bulls' ninth coach when he took over May 23, 1986, at age 36 — the league's second youngest coach at the time. He went on to compile a 137-109 regular-season record.

Cubbies baffle this Cards' fan

At the midway point of the Major League Baseball season St. Louis Cardinal fans are confronted with the same old problem: The Chicago Cubs are off to another fast start. Cubbie fans are thinking that this is the season that those years of frustration will be put to rest.

Cubs win!

Cub fans continue tormenting Cardinal fans for yet another season and they have reached their peak in obnoxiousness so far. The little bears held the top spot in the National League Eastern Division for the first half before falling into second place behind the Montreal Expos.

One thing I have to give the Cubbie fans credit for is their devotion to the team. I would have given up on them long before now.

I hate to remind Cub fans of their past disappointment. Oh

SIU Rugby team heading for Milwaukee

Summer club to play in sevens tourney

By Sean Hannigan
Staff Writer

The SIU-C Rugby team is gearing up for its first tournament this weekend in Milwaukee by having its first scrimmage of the summer this week.

"Man did it feel good to pop someone," said rugger Tim Ary, after the first practice of the summer that featured tackling.

Tom Kostka, who is learning a new position, hooker (hooking is like hiking the ball with feet), admitted that he would be feeling the punishment he took in the morning practice session. "This was our first test to see how we will do at sevens."

Sevens, according to coach Steve Montez, is basically the same as the game as conceived by the English in 1823 at Rugby Boy's School, except it is played with seven ruggers on a side instead of 15.

"Most of the game is sprinting because there are fewer guys," said Montez explaining that the team still has to cover the same 110-yard by 75-yard goal area as in regular rugby football.

One result is that the halves are reduced from 40 minutes to seven, with a two minute break in the middle. Ary has never played the game before but said he feels it would be a wide open game.

"It's going to be more one on one competition. Once you've beat your man it should be a score."

Montez, who claims that one of the reasons he is coach is: "I'm the guy with the most credible checking account," said he thinks the team will do well in Milwaukee.

"We have guys that stick together more than a lot of college teams, we've got a real good core unit," he said adding that if the team keeps winning it could play up to seven games in one day.

Although the it is called SIU Rugby, the team is receiving no University funds for the summer, Montez said. "The guys pay their own dues and buy their own jerseys. We find our own rides and the guys will probably stay at players' homes around Chicago."

Kostka said the summer league is more than just practice for the fall season. "I think staying in shape for the regular season is an afterthought. We want to win Saturday," he said.

Montez said he thinks that it's a little of both. "It teaches them a new game and keeps them sharp for the fall season."

Montez said he does not stress the party atmosphere of rugby. Rather, he wants the team to concentrate on winning. "Teams that win — the good times naturally follow."

"They'll have a get together after the game and we will exchange drinks, but really our guys want to win this tournament and we have a good chance."

LeMond takes yellow jersey in Tour De France trials

RENNES, France (UPI) — Greg LeMond, the 1986 Tour de France winner beset by injuries, Thursday took the race's overall lead with a rain-soaked victory in the 45-mile time trial from Dinard to Rennes.

"It was a surprise for me," he said. "I'm happy now, even if I don't win anything else in the race."

The 28-year-old Californian claimed the yellow leader's jersey from Acacio da Silva of Portugal, who fell to seventh. LeMond was clocked in 1 hour, 32 minutes, 12 seconds in the fifthstage and leads with a total time of 18 hours, 58 minutes, 17 seconds.

Laurent Fignon finished third in the time trial (56 seconds behind) and holds second place overall only five seconds off the pace. Defending champion Pedro Delgado of Spain placed second on the day at 24 seconds behind.

LeMond showed he was back in shape after two years of misfortune, including a near-fatal hunting accident, appendicitis and other injuries.

"It will be very hard to keep the yellow jersey," he said. "But after all I've been through in the last couple of years, this shows some good fortune for me."

LeMond's victory was all the more impressive because of the foul weather. Delgado, an early rider, established the time to beat before the rains came. LeMond, among the last to ride, beat him by 24 seconds.

Graf, Navratilova in Wimbledon final

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Steffi Graf, showing little regard for sentiment, blasted Chris Evert out of the Wimbledon Championships Thursday for possibly the last time, setting up her third consecutive title match against Martina Navratilova.

Evert, making her 17th semifinal appearance in 18 years, gave a last, lingering look at the Royal Box from Wimbledon's famous Centre Court following her 6-2, 6-1 loss to Graf. It may have been her final goodbye.

Following her dismal performance against the world's No. 1 women's player, Evert announced she was almost certain this was her Wimbledon swansong.

"I'm 90 percent sure I won't play here again," the 34-year-old Evert said. "This will probably be my last one. I've worked hard this year and can't see myself improving. The girls are only going to get better. I'd be really shocked if I came back next year — unless I have a transplant."

Navratilova, shooting for a record ninth crown, remains to carry the flag for the generation of past champions. The 32-year-old left-hander scored a 7-6 (7-5), 6-2 victory over unseeded Swede Catarina Lindqvist to reach the Wimbledon final for the eighth consecutive year, and for the 10th time since 1978.

Navratilova defeated Graf in the 1987 final, with Graf prevailing last year.

Three-time Wimbledon champion John McEnroe plays defending champion Stefan Edberg in the men's semifinals Friday. In the other semi, Ivan Lendl, winner of seven Grand Slams but still chasing his first Wimbledon title, faces two-time titlist Boris Becker.

Evert, who won the first of her three Wimbledon crowns in 1974 when Graf was only five years old, could not counter the firepower of the 20-year-old West German in their 68-minute duel in the sun. The temperature on court reached 100 degrees, and the long baseline rallies took their toll on the No. 4 seed.

"After a couple of those rallies I thought, 'Boy, if only I was 10 years younger,'" Evert conceded.

Asked what her thoughts were when walking off court, Evert replied: "I was thinking this could be my last time on Centre Court. That Centre Court is the greatest court in the whole world. I'll always remember it."

Graf, who ended Navratilova's run of six consecutive Wimbledon championships in last year's final, showed why she is favored in the betting to carry off the $263,340 winner's check Saturday. She advanced to her 10th consecutive Grand Slam final in remorseless fashion, with two service breaks in the first set and three in the next.

Graf's booming forehand piled on the agony for Evert,
