Discrimination suit affects hiring

By John Baldwin
Staff Writer

The University will change its hiring policies in the wake of a successful discrimination suit against the Board of Trustees, administrators say.

A state appellate court in Mount Vernon ruled in December that the Board of Trustees unfairly denied James Knight a position on the SIU-Edwardsville police department. The board based its decision on information in a police report stating that Knight was in a fight and tried to shoot another person.

The court found the board's decision unfair because Knight was found guilty only of carrying a gun in East St. Louis and was not charged with anything else.

"We have mechanisms in place now to prevent this type of thing from happening in the future," Thomas Britton, vice chancellor for administration, said.

Benjamin Quillian, vice president for administration at Edwardsville, said: "I honestly don't believe there will be a significant impact. It is not our policy under normal conditions to use arrest records."

Britton said administrators from both campuses have met to discuss hiring policies to ensure that similar suits don't come up in the future.

He said a policy is being set up to determine what information can be used when determining whether or not to hire somebody. He said Knight was hired as an SIU-E police officer as a result of the decision and a monetary settlement is being worked on.

The figure will be "in the ballpark of $125,000," he said.

13 counts on Reiman dismissed

By John Mohler
Staff Writer

A judge dismissed 13 counts of kidnapping and sex-related charges Thursday against Physical Plant assistant director Dale Reiman.

The charges were dismissed on motions by Reiman's attorney, Richard W. White. White said there were too many charges filed for each offense.

The excessive number of charges were "a violation of due process," White said, and compared them to double jeopardy, or the illegal trial of a person more than once for the same offense.

But Jackson County State's Attorney John Clemons argued, "Multiple acts were committed, and we can apply various theories for each act."

Judge David W. Watt also granted the defense Bills of Particular that require the state's attorneys office to clarify three other charges considered too vague.

Watt will rule later on motions to dismiss two counts of aggravated sexual assault and sexual abuse.

The hearing lasted almost two hours, as both lawyers argued the original 34 counts one-by-one before the judge. Reiman sat quietly, occasionally rocking back and forth in his chair.

Clemons said he will review records before considering an appeal of Watt's rulings.

"Mr. Reiman is still in considerable trouble,"

Bible-teaching controversy heats up meeting

By Dana DeBeaumont
Staff Writer

Tensions were high as more than 400 people gathered Thursday night to hear both sides of a dispute over a Bible-quoting substitute teacher who angered the atheist parent of a student.

Neither the teacher, SIU-C graduate student Curtis Caldwell, nor the parent, John Stivers, spoke at the District 95 Board of Education meeting, held in the Parrish School Auditorium. But there were plenty of others willing to step in and take their places.

Robert Sherman, spokesman for American Atheists, told the board there has been a break down of American values, with bigotry, hostility and discrimination prevailing.

"George Bush, the vice president of the United States, told me a few weeks ago that atheists should not be regarded as citizens in this country because we're 'One nation under God,'" Sherman said.

Before he could finish his statements, many members of the audience applauded and raised their hands in the air, shouting "Amen" and "Praise the Lord."

"We're one nation under a constitution, not under God," Sherman rejoined.

James Patrick of Carterville told the crowd, "The atheists and the homosexuals have grouped together. The problems and what comes from homosexuality are chains that bind the students from Christianity.

"We have condemned a national religion and accepted atheism. Jesus Christ, almighty God, has been eliminated from the classroom."

Gene Taylor of Carterville said: "We have religion in our classrooms every day. The teacher tells a psychology class that they are

McFarlane feeling heat of Iran probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Robert McFarlane, alerted that he may be indicted in the Iran-Contra investigation, is negotiating with independent prosecutor Lawrence Walsh to avoid charges in exchange for his cooperation in the sweeping probe, sources said Thursday.

Leonard Garment, the lawyer for the former national security adviser, has been meeting with Walsh's staff in a bid to prevent his client's indictment on criminal charges, the sources said.

Garment told United Press International he has been trying to persuade investigators "that it is in their best interest not to indict McFarlane."

Garment also said no plea agreement was being discussed.

Earlier Thursday, Garment confirmed to UPI that the negotiations to have his client cooperate with Walsh's investigators were intended to avert any indictment. Later, however, he issued a statement terming UPI's story "false or confusing in every significant respect."

"Neither Mr. McFarlane nor I have engaged in an effort to 'make a deal' of any kind with the independent counsel," his statement said. "Mr. McFarlane has never and will never 'plea bargain.' He is guilty of no crime for any action taken in the Iran-Contra matter."

Sources close to Walsh's 14-month-old investigation said Garment has received word that in the next month or so, McFarlane likely will be indicted by the federal grand jury hearing the evidence from Walsh's probe.

McFarlane, President Reagan's national security adviser from October 1983 to December 1985, has testified

Rival candidates' backers kill 2, hurt 20 in Bangladesh

DHAKA, Bangladesh (UPI) — Supporters of rival candidates in next week's local elections clashed across the country Thursday, killing two people and injuring 20, as officials discussed postponing the voting. One candidate also died from injuries sustained in a bomb attack last month. Students, protesting the deaths by police gunfire of at least nine anti-government protesters, leaving 50 people injured, including five officers, officials said.

Philippine forces capture communist rebels

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Government forces captured 20 ranking members of the Communist Party and dismantled the outlawed organization's communications center, officials said Thursday. The armed forces chief, Gen. Renato de Villa, said at a news conference the rebels — including key intelligence personnel — were apprehended in seven separate raids over 36 hours and that "operations are still ongoing."

U.S. interviews Amerasians on immigration

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — A six-member U.S. team Thursday went to Vietnam to interview more than 2,000 Vietnamese, many of them children fathered by Americans, who want to go to the United States, a U.S. Embassy Spokesman Ross Petzing said. Other officials were awaiting Vietnamese agreement to begin talks on plans to airlift about 30,000 Amerasians and their relatives to the United States within two years, Petzing said.

W. Germany, Italy want chemical weapon ban

GENEVA (UPI) — The foreign ministers of West Germany and Italy called Thursday for a ban on chemical weapons as a fitting global sequel to U.S.-Soviet elimination of intermediate range nuclear missiles. Hans-Dietrich Genscher of West Germany said the treaty between the United States and the Soviet Union signed in December scrapping ground-launched medium and shorter-range missiles was a step of historic importance. Giulio Andreotti of Italy told the conference the INF treaty marks the reversal of a trend (and) for the first time balance has been restored at a lower level.

U.S. had 1986 arms plan to frame Nicaragua

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House set up a secret operation in 1986 that called for Panama to arrange an East bloc arms shipment that could be captured in El Salvador and falsely linked to Nicaragua, The New York Times reported Thursday. Jose Blandon, a former close advisor to Panamanian strongman Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, told the Times the deal was struck with Lt. Col. Oliver North, the former White House aide fired in the Iran-Contra scandal.

Amtrak train runs red light, injures fourteen

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — A California-to-Chicago Amtrak train carrying 250 people Thursday ran a red light and collided with a freight train near a bridge over the Missouri River, slightly injuring 14 people, officials said. The California Zephyr, Amtrak train No. 6, had headed southbound out of the Omaha station when it collided with the northbound Burlington Northern freight, nipping the 46th car of the 52-car train, authorities said.

Angry Californians say no to off-shore oil rig

FORT BRAGG, Calif. (UPI) — Hundreds of angry foes, including a woman smeared with black paint, jammed the final hearing Thursday on a controversial Interior Department plan to put oil drilling platforms off scenic northern California. For the fourth day, a five-member board of federal hearing officers listened to environmentalists, residents and politicians lambast the proposal by Interior Secretary Donald Hodel, who insists drilling is virtually inevitable.

Shuttle crew named for post-Challenger flight

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Veteran shuttle skipper Brewster Shaw and four other astronauts were named Thursday as the crew of the third post-Challenger shuttle mission, a classified military flight now planned for late this year. Shaw, an Air Force colonel, was named to the flight aboard the shuttle Columbia along with co-pilot Richard Richards, a Navy commander. Also named to the crew were Navy Cmdr. David Leestma, Lt. Col. James C. Adamson and Maj. Mark N. Brown, both of the Air Force.

Special Collections transcend library limits

By Edward Rahe
Staff Writer

Have you ever wondered how optometry was performed in 16th century Germany?

The answer is squirreled away in the original edition of a German medical book published in 1558 that currently resides in the Special Collections Room on the second floor of Morris Library.

The Special Collections Room is a bibliophile's dream, containing everything from an ancient shopping list chiseled into a clay tablet to the papers of the late SIU President Deleyte Morris.

Sixty thousand volumes, with an estimated value reaching into millions of dollars, comprise the Special Collection. The collection includes rare first-edition books, historical and philosophical manuscripts, and the SIU archives.

It's hard to put a value on the whole collection, said David Koch, curator of Special Collections since 1980.

"Many of our books and manuscripts have appreciated in value tremendously since we've obtained them," said Koch.

The collection is used mainly by graduate students and faculty for research. Occasionally an undergrad will wander into the Special Collections Room in hopes of finding the answers to burning questions like, "What is a Saluki?" or "What was the name of the tranquil body of water now covered over by the Anthony Hall parking lot?"

But not everything in the room is esoteric. "We like to emphasize that Special Collections has materials that aren't rare," Koch said. "We have every edition of Irish novelist James Joyce's 'Ulysses,' beginning with the first edition published

"Depending on the subject, various libraries have different strengths. We specialize in documents on press freedoms, Expatriate literature and American philosophy."

in 1922 and up to the most recent paperback edition," he said.

Much of the accumulated collection has come in the form of gifts and donations. "Many people (who donate material) like to know their collections will be preserved and used for research," Koch said. "Consequently people are generous in their contributions."

The Special Collections department at Morris Library came into prominence in the late 1950's when Du Quoin optometrist Harley Croessmann donated his collection of works by Joyce. By acquiring the Joyce collection, the library was able to establish a direction for collecting literature from the Expatriate movement, which began after World War I.

The Expatriates were a group of authors and artists from the British Isles and America who were disillusioned with traditional values. They gathered in Paris to work. The movement gave birth to such literary luminaries as Gertrude Stein, F. Scott Fitzgerald, Ernest Hemingway, and many others. "Depending on the subject, various libraries have different strengths. We specialize in documents on press freedoms, Expatriate literature and American philosophy," says Koch.

An endowment by Friends of Morris Library allows the library to maintain the Ralph E. McCoy Freedom of the Press Collection. Compiled over a 25-year period by Ralph E. McCoy, dean emeritus of Library Affairs and an authority on First Amendment literature, the McCoy Collection is a 9,500-volume gathering of literature documenting the history of First Amendment freedoms.

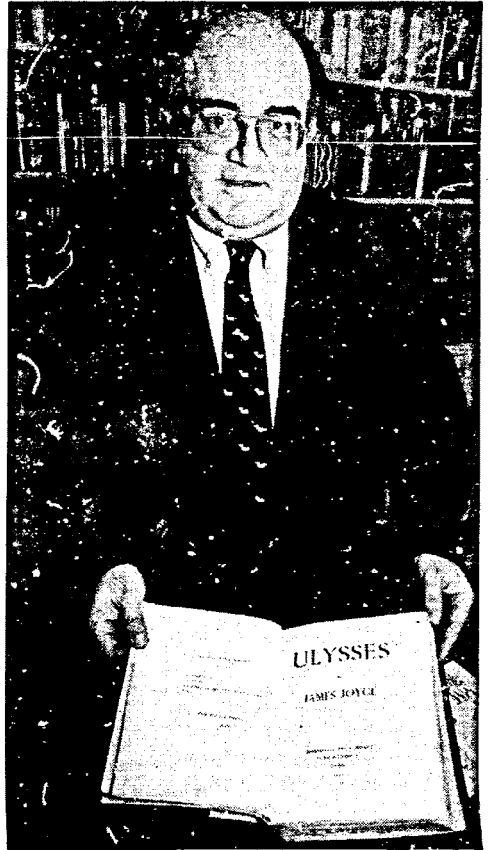

What qualifies as a special collection is not up to Koch alone. "We get help and advice in choosing material from faculty members who are doing research," says Koch.

When the Ulysses S. Grant Association made SIU-C its headquarters in 1964, Grant Association Executive Director John Y. Simon led library officials to many works that are now a part of the large collection of Grant papers, Koch said.

Costs for bringing new pieces into the collection run as high as $100,000. The Special Collections Room receives 4 to 5 percent of Morris Library's budget. The state supplies an extra $25,000 each year for acquisitions. Money from state and federal grants provide additional cash for purchases.

In addition, a grant from the Illinois Humanities Council is being used by the Special Collections staff to research the history of the Mississippi and Ohio rivers as a workplace in Southern Illinois.

As a result of the Mississippi and Ohio river research project, Koch says, he and his staff are finding more local history collections.

Ending Contra aid is only a beginning

THE U.S. HOUSE of Representatives voted down continued aid to the Nicaraguan freedom fighters Wednesday. In the process, they may have unwittingly voted against keeping on the pressure that led to recent concessions by the communist Sandinista regime.

The House has taken an important first step by expressing the United States desire to see "peace break out" — a phrase coined by Speaker of the House Jim Wright. However, they have overlooked the necessity of having readily available funds to fall back on should the peace plan of Costa Rica's President Oscar Arias fail to bring about its prescribed democratic reforms.

This could easily be remedied by introducing a bill to establish an escrow account for supporting the democratization of Nicaragua. In this way, Democrats, Republicans and the majority of American body politic could stand united against the Sandinistas in the event the Arias plan fails.

PRESIDENT REAGAN HAS in the past indicated he would support such an account, and given his defeat Wednesday, he should welcome just such a package delivered to the Oval Office with bipartisan support from both houses.

It is historically imperative to note that wherever communists have been allowed to consolidate power, from the obvious example of Russia to the more subtle methods used in Southeast Asia and Cuba, violence and bloodshed eventually resulted.

This is all the more reason to give the Arias plan a chance, and all the more reason to have a contingency plan.

WHILE NICARAGUAN PRESIDENT Daniel Ortega repeatedly promises to initiate many of the steps set out in the plan, America must not be duped into forgetting the shrewd williness characteristic of so many communist puppet dictators, such as Moammar Gadhafi of Libya and Fidel Castro of Cuba.

Figures released by the State Department last week illustrate how entrenched Soviet influence is in Nicaragua. The Soviet Union reportedly spent more than $450 million in military aid to the Sandinistas in fiscal year 1987. This would make it extra embarrassing for the Soviets if the United States doesn't have to spend another dime in order to secure democracy — another reason for cautious support of the Arias plan.

ANY CONTINGENCY PLAN also should take into account that blind support for the Contras may not be the only way to bring democracy to Nicaragua. By polarizing the issue into a good guys vs. bad guys scenario, many important aspects of both a right-wing and leftist government are pushed out of the picture.

We cannot proclaim, if the Contras win, everything will be hunky-dory. This is just as naive as saying we can believe Ortega will initiate reform without the threat of retaliation hanging over his head if he breaks his promises.

The situation in Nicaragua has reached a crossroad, and at this juncture, it appears that the United States has taken the correct step in refusing to continue to finance a war no one wants.

Before the House pats itself on the back too long, however, it should remember that freedom is not won by a vote, but by intelligent planning that follows the most viable path to establishing a lasting peace.

Chancellor calls for united front in support of education tax hike

Your readers are bound to be confused by Wednesday's story in which I am said to find the governor's proposed education budget positive. Obviously, I am not ecstatic about another retrenchment. I did express some reasons for detecting a silver lining, however, but those statements were not included in the story.

For example, the governor pledged to fight for increased revenue for education, expressed eloquently the role of education as the wellspring for all other advancement in the state, and issued a call to action to all of us in education to work on behalf of an income tax increase.

The governor, however, is not predicating next year's budget on the assumption of a tax increase, and has shown starkly what we can expect in the absence of new tax revenue. Moreover, we can infer that he is not going to be out front (with the risk of precious few troops behind him again) this time in a tax increase campaign, but expects us to work for what we need.

It is up to all of us to create the political conditions for a tax increase. Legislators do not vote for taxes unless they think they can get away with it. We must let them know that we will not punish them — in fact, we will reward them — if they do what is necessary to invest in the future of the state.

Statewide we have put together a broad coalition in this effort. It includes education at all levels. The four university systems are working together in an unprecedented way, as are the alumni associations of all 12 public universities.

We are going to need the help of all faculty, students, staff, parents and friends of this and the state's other universities. The fact that we have been able to coalesce to the extent that we have is another reason to be positive. But there is a tough fight ahead, and complicity would be our greatest enemy at this time. — Lawrence K. Pettit, Chancellor

Atheists should shrug off prayer

Mr. Stivers: I find your response to Mr. Caldwell very humorous. Who are you to tell one man what he can and cannot say? God... Well, apparently not so in this case. Did your daughters, Athena and Theody (interesting names, by the way — did you know that Athena was the goddess of wisdom?) really feel threatened by his quoting the Bible in a math class?

When I was in junior high I didn't come crying home to mommy when the school system shoved evolution down my throat. All I did was shrug it off, saying "I don't believe this", and patiently waited for class to end. No one in the school system cuts down the Christian Science believers when they don't accept medication. No one calls the police when a Mormon comes knocking.

Why, then, do you insist on raising a commotion when someone mentions his religious belief? Does this mean I could press charges against you for standing outside the Student Center voicing your problems?

Do you use U.S. currency? I was just wondering how you cope with "In God We Trust." If this makes you feel uneasy, my friends and I would be happy to take any U.S. currency that is killing you.

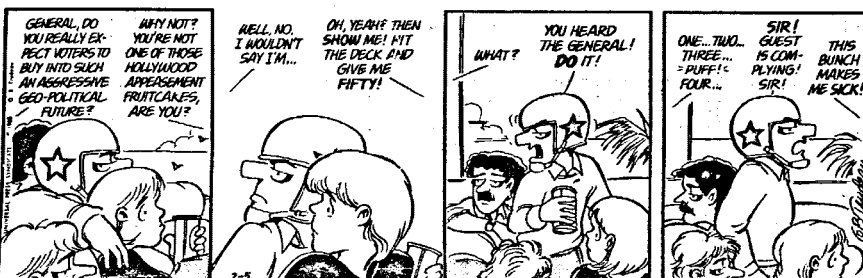

Furthermore, do your daughters start trembling when they recite the Pledge of Allegiance and the part about "...one nation under God..." comes up? If they do, I suggest moving to a nice cottage somewhere around Moscow or Kiev where your daughters would feel more comfortable.

One last thing: Do you really think you are going to benefit from all this? If you do, I suggest you try looking at court and lawyer fees when the school board rules in favor of Mr. Caldwell. Well, all this talk of atheism is upsetting my stomach, so I think I'll just take some Pepto-Bismol, lay down for a while and call mommy in the morning.

By the way, if all the excitement gives you an idea of suing me, I think the Constitution says something about the freedom of the press (or is that speech — I always get confused). — Ken Walker, freshman, aviation maintenance technology, and Scott Adams, sophomore, political science

Assessment Center keeps eye on health

By Jacke Hampton
Staff Writer

It's not like a trip to the doctor.

There are no antiseptic smells, tables covered with stainless steel instruments or white-frocted nurses to greet visitors at the Student Health Assessment Center, the most visible offshoot of the Health Service's Wellness Center.

Instead, students who walk into the center off the main hallway of the Student Center are greeted by another college student. Those who want to check their weight or blood pressure simply use the instruments there for that purpose. If they have a problem, there is a student worker there to listen to it. If professional advice is needed, there is a registered nurse nearby. Students who need a physician are directed to the Health Service office on Greek Row.

The Assessment Center also provides health and fitness displays, minor first aid, diet and exercise counseling and performs throat cultures.

It is just one of the ways the Health Service is attempting to hold down medical costs by curtailing unnecessary trips to the doctor, Sam McVay, Health Service director, said.

The Health Service's preventative medicine package is concentrated in the Wellness Center. Since the center began in 1978, outpatient clinic visits have been declining, from 68,000 to between 38,500 and 40,000, McVay said.

There is evidence that it is holding down medical costs on campus. A study by the Health Service showed SIU-C has the lowest medical fee among state universities. Its closest competitor gets 20 percent of its funding from state sources compared to 4 percent for SIU-C.

HEALTH SERVICE FEES have increased from $4.15 per semester in 1972 to $88.50 per semester now, McVay said, but in 1972, the Service received over $500,000 in state funding and didn't offer off-campus insurance, dental care and the activities of the Wellness Center. All those benefits are funded by the Health Service fee, he said.

Other factors that may have contributed to the decline in the number of people who visit the outpatient clinic are shorter clinic hours, a $5 front-door fee for each visit and the clinic is now closed on Saturdays.

"The motivation to me on the whole matter came in 1972," McVay said. "I heard the president of the state medical society say that if half of the people who were sitting in doctors' offices got up and went home they'd be at least as healthy as if they stayed and saw the doctor."

McVay said there are several ways the Health Service tries to determine whether a student needs to see a doctor at its out-patient clinic before an appointment is scheduled.

"We talk to each person who calls to see the doctor," he said. "We have found that many of these people simply wanted medical information that could be supplied by a nurse without an office visit.

"The bottom line is that if they still feel they need to see the doctor, we'll schedule them an appointment. We just supply the information, the decision is ultimately up to them."

MCVAY CALLS THAT system the appointment triage, a method of screening people who don't really want to see a physician and can be helped in other ways.

Many of those who come to the Assessment Center suffering from minor ailments say they would have scheduled a doctor's appointment had the center not been there, a student worker in the center said.

"This time of year we see a lot of people with minor colds," Peg Gudgeon, a senior in exercise

University, found that 94 percent of the students who used the Assessment Center were satisfied with the treatment they received. The same survey found 83 percent of the students using the outpatient clinic were satisfied.

The Illinois Health Care Cost Containment Council recommended that the state's health plan be refocused toward public health and disease prevention concerns as a means of holding down the cost of health care, according to a report to Gov. James R. Thompson.

A CENTRAL TENET of the Illinois State Health Plan for the next four years is the promotion of healthy behavior that can attack the top killers in the state — cancer, heart disease and stroke.

In 1976, Dr. John McCamy, author of "Human Lifestyles," who promotes health through preventative medicine, was recruited to devise a system to promote health and wellness on the campus. The result was the Wellness Center.

The Assessment Center is just one aspect of the Wellness Center's approach to preventative medicine. Others are the sports medicine office in the Student Recreation Center, the Health Advocates, a massive media campaign and the Wellness Center office across the street from the outpatient clinic.

Thousands of students used services provided by the Wellness Center during the past school year, Marc Cohen, director of the center, said.

The professional staff held 43 workshops attended by 13,046 students and the Health Advocates presented 194 programs attended by 1,262 students and 69 classroom presentations attended by 2,148 students. There also were 12 special events and promotional tables that reached 1,136 students and 21 program presented outside the University that were attended by 641 residents of the community.

Health advocates counseled 2,103 students on an individual basis and 3,824 in the outreach offices in each dormitory complex. Another 16,000 visited the Assessment Center and 892 sought the advice of the nurse there.

"ALL THESE NUMBERS say is that we are seeing an awful lot of people, a few more each year as word gets around," Cohen said. "We do evaluations with the participants, however, that show we have an overwhelmingly high rate of approval."

science, said. "Whenever we have a consultation for a problem like that we ask them to fill out a short form. One of the questions asks, 'If there wasn't an Assessment Center, would you have seen a doctor?' An overwhelming number of them said they would have gone to the doctor's office if we weren't here."

McVay said the Assessment Center already has saved Health Service money.

"It paid for itself twice," he said. "It cost half as much to deliver the services there that we had been delivering at the outpatient clinic and the students, in their own opinion, got what they needed."

Expert: Local children with AIDS inevitable

By Curtis Winston
Staff Writer

It is only a matter of time before a case is reported of a child with AIDS in Southern Illinois, an AIDS expert said at a workshop held Thursday at SIU-C's Touch of Nature.

About 16 people attended the workshop, sponsored by the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services.

The workshop was one of 36 training sessions held around the state to provide child care professionals with important facts about AIDS. About 2,700 people are expected to be trained in the workshops.

Jack Doherty, AIDS lecturer and educator, said AIDS education is vital to provide resources for the care of children with the AIDS virus.

"Some people have asked if these workshops are held in the rural areas 'just in case' an AIDS child is reported. It's not a matter of just in case, it's a matter of when," Doherty said.

"Fighting the AIDS crisis demands social action, not just medical action," Gene Ruehmorkoff, region administrator for DCFCS, said.

Twenty-three children have tested positive for the AIDS virus in Illinois. However, Southern Illinois has no reported cases of AIDS children, Ruehmorkoff said. Illinois ranks sixth among reported AIDS cases in children.

This number is underestimated because the symptoms of AIDS are hard to spot in children, Doherty said.

Most AIDS children are under four years of age and have been born to intravenous drug users, Ruehmorkoff said. He added that children don't come to his agency because they have AIDS, but are referred to DCFCS because they have been abused or neglected and need a foster home.

Most children with AIDS in Illinois are living in foster homes, Doherty said. "In most cases the children's real parents are too sick to care for them," he said.

Florence Senizaiz, coordinator of specialized medical services for DCFCS, said AIDS education is the way to "dispel the myths and rumors about the disease."

When foster parents volunteer to take children with the virus into their home, they have a lot of fears about the disease, but after being educated about AIDS, they are "very supportive," Senizaiz said.

The AIDS virus is transmitted through contact with blood, semen or saliva.

Basic guidelines for AIDS prevention are good hygiene and nutrition. "Good nutrition helps them fight the disease," Senizaiz said. Examples of good hygiene include daily bathing, frequent hand washing and using facial tissue when sneezing, she said.

If a child is bleeding, parents should use sterile plastic gloves when bandaging the wound, Senizaiz said. If any blood drips on to the floor or other surface, a bleach and water solution should be used to clean it up.

Senizaiz, a pediatric nurse, said AIDS, which breaks down the body's immune system, is difficult to spot in children because their immune system isn't fully developed.

Children are most often in the HIV stage of the disease, a stage in which a person can have the AIDS antibody in their blood but aren't showing the symptoms, Senizaiz said.

AIDS symptoms show up in the ARC (AIDS Related Complex) stage. Common AIDS symptoms are swelling of the lymph nodes, unexplained diarrhea, weight loss and fatigue.

"The longer children with AIDS can lead normal lives, the longer they'll live," Senizaiz said. "Babies need love, even if they have AIDS," she said.

that students like having a choice of health care services.

"We've learned two things from these programs," McVay said. "One, it is a better use of our staff's time and more convenient for the students to use appointments.

"Two, if there are other health-related services available that are more appropriate and less costly than the clinic setting," he continued, "well-informed consumers may elect either self-help methods or keep themselves healthy."

Programs at the Wellness Center are added to reflect the needs of the students.

"They asked for help with test anxiety and we gave it to them," Cohen said. "Since AIDS has surfaced, we believe we have been really responsive. I think one of the reasons we are able to do so well is that we get input and we listen to it."

The professional and student staffs compliment each other and make the program well-rounded. In some instances, students are able to counsel their peers in ways that wouldn't be as effective if the advice came from an older person, Cohen said. In other areas, student appreciate professional input, he said.

"One without the other isn't enough," he said.

Counseling topics include responsible drinking, eating habits, sexuality, drugs, date rape, birth control, stress, assertiveness training and fitness.

Half of the student advocates work in outreach centers at Trueblood, Grinnell and Lentz halls. They provide one-on-one counseling and programs in dormitories. The other half of the advocates form a traveling speaker's bureau that bring programs on health matters to student organizations and meetings.

The Wellness Center media office supplies informational pamphlets to students, publicizes Health Advocate and professional programs and writes a column for the Daily Egyptian.

Students can receive health information through the dial-a-nurse program that gives them access to professional advice over the phone. McVay said the program gets thousands of calls each year. Health Service is studying the impact the program has on reducing the number of outpatient clinic visits.

"It is not just the Health Service that has tried to improve," McVay said. "Students have a better attitude today toward keeping healthy than they had in the past. They are more health conscious. We just provide the information and service they need to maintain their health. We're more economical because of it, so everybody wins."

'Moonstruck' combines adventure, falling in love

By Laura Millbrath
Staff Writer

"Moonstruck," starring Cher and Nicolas Cage, is an elegant, romantic comedy that combines the stories of a young widow falling in love again with the adventures of her Italian-American family living in New York.

Interwoven throughout the film are glimpses of a huge, full moon, giving an alluring feeling to its mystery that seemingly casts a spell over lovers.

"The moon brings the woman to the man," we are told by the grandfather in the film, who is played by Feodor Chalapin. Some of the film's most emotional scenes have the characters bathed in moonbeams as they reveal their true feelings.

Cher plays Loretta Castorini, a widow in her 30s living with her parents, her zany grandfather and his pack of dogs in Brooklyn.

At the beginning of the film, Loretta becomes engaged to the bumbling Johnny Cammareri, played by Danny Aiello. Loretta, unhappy because her first marriage took place at city hall, desires a traditional courtship and wedding.

In one of the film's funniest moments, Johnny nervously tries to propose as he and Loretta dine in a restaurant. Loretta demands that Johnny follow her romantic ideal and kneel before her while the other diners watch with interest and amusement.

Immediately after the

engagement, Johnny flies to Sicily to be with his dying mother. He asks Loretta to invite his brother, Ronny, a baker played by Nicolas Cage, to their wedding.

The brothers have not spoken in five years, after an accident with a bread slicer left Ronny with a wooden hand. Because Johnny was the customer who ordered the bread that caused the tragedy, Ronny blames him for the accident and makes no effort to hide his visible fury towards his brother.

Problems arise when Loretta and Ronny fall in love and must deal with their feelings for each other while hanging over them is the shadow of Johnny in Sicily, beside his mother's deathbed.

Cher gives Loretta an often self-assured nature, but lets her simple desire to be loved shine through her guilt in allowing herself to have such feelings for her fiance's brother.

Cher is able to convey Loretta's hidden excitement about her new love despite its confusing circumstances. We see evidence of Loretta's nervous desire to change her appearance when she gets a new dress and hairstyle for an evening at the opera with Ronny.

Cage also is supert, as the angry and passionate Ronny pleads with her to let their relationship continue.

"We are here to ruin ourselves and to break our hearts and love the wrong people," he says of humanity as Loretta stands in the moonlight, hesitating to spend another night with him.

Other fine performances are delivered by Vincent Gardenia and Olympia Dukakis, as Loretta's parents who deal with their own problems of love, including unfaithfulness.

"Moonstruck," directed by Norman Jewison, whose other films include "Fiddler on the Roof" and "Agnes of God," is a wonderful mixture of real life emotions strung together with laughter and a bit of fantasy about falling in love in the light of the moon.

Hotel owner to bolt doors

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — A hotel owner who is bolting the doors to room balconies to discourage balcony-jumping by frolicking guests during the annual spring invasion of college students is violating state fire laws, officials said.

Chuck Penrod has been locking the balcony doors during spring break at the Clarendon Plaza since he bought it more than two years ago. A woman who fell from the hotel's top floor was one of three students to die during 1985's student invasion.

"I don't want that to happen again," said Penrod, the only Daytona Beach hotel operator taking advantage of a city-approved variance in building regulations allowing doors to be bolted during spring break, which begins in a few weeks.

responsible for their actions. That is preaching humanism. That is religion."

At one point during the meeting, a man held up a sign reading "Pray" and many in the crowd started praying and waving their hands in the air.

Peggy Malone, board president, had to warn the crowd that if it didn't be quiet and give everyone a chance to talk, the open meeting would be ended.

Caldwell and Stivers addressed the board when it went into executive session. The board is expected to decide at its next meeting whether Caldwell should be allowed to teach at Lincoln Junior High School.

The controversy erupted after Stivers — a graduate student in higher education — complained that Caldwell violated the constitutional separation of church and state and students' civil rights when he lectured students on religion. Stivers is the father of two Lincoln students. Caldwell, a graduate student in linguistics, claims his civil rights were violated when he was asked not to quote the Bible while substitute teaching at the school on Jan. 22 and 25.

Caldwell says he will sue the board if it votes to dismiss him. Stivers said he will sue the board no matter what it decides on grounds that Caldwell's comments did "irreparable damage" to his daughters Athena and Theody.

Caldwell said he often quoted Biblical verses during his classes. Caldwell said that one day he wrote, "What word, if neglected, will bring poverty?" on the chalk board. At the end of the day, he told the students the answer: "The word of God."

Caldwell led a prayer outside the Brush Administrative Center before the board meeting. The meeting was moved to the Parish School when the crowd became too large.

several times to the grand jury.

A Walsh spokesman declined comment Thursday. It was unclear whether the independent prosecutor had offered or would consider such an arrangement with McFarlane, who would be an important witness in the criminal cases likely to be brought against others linked to the affair.

The sources stressed Thursday that no final decisions have been made in regard to any indictments.

but would not be more specific. "To be more specific could compromise the Board of Trustees' situation or it could compromise Mr. Knight's position, so I don't think it would be appropriate to try to be more specific," Britton said.

The money for the settlement will come from a self-insurance reserve each SIU campus donates in case of a lawsuit against the system. "This will not have a direct effect on the operation of the chancellor's office or the Board of Trustees," he said.

Quillian said: "The University accepts the finding of the appellate court. We certainly hope James Knight will have a positive employment experience with the University."

Clemons said. Reiman's next trial date has not been determined, Clemons and White said.

Reiman faces 21 charges, including:

- seven counts of aggravated sexual assault;
- three counts of sexual assault;
- three counts of kidnapping;
- three counts of sexual abuse;
- one count of aggravated sexual abuse;
- two counts of unlawful restraint;
- one count of aggravated battery;
- one count of battery.

Reiman is charged with the alleged kidnapping and sexual assault of a male student worker in December, 1986. The student was allegedly chained to a bed in Reiman's house and forced to perform sexual acts over a four-day period.

A Jackson County grand jury brought 34 counts of kidnapping and sex-related charges against Reiman on Aug. 5, 1987.

Reiman will face solicitation-to-commit-murder charges in Johnson County on March 28 in Vienna. The charges allege Reiman attempted hiring David Polk, a Shawnee Correctional Center inmate, to murder the student worker.

Reiman, 36, is on accrued leave of absence from his University job.

He obtained a bachelor's degree from SIU-C in 1972, and has worked at the University since 1977.

Blood drive nears goal

The two-day campus blood drive collected a total of 890 pints.

The drive, which moves to the Carbondale Community Center today, is just 35 pints short of its goal, Red Cross coordinator Vivian Ugent said.

The community center is located at 607 E. College St., across from city hall. Donations will be taken from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Dominoes Pizza will provide free pizza and coupon books and Popeye's fried chicken will offer free chicken nuggets. "Chicken is for eating, not for being," Ugent said.

The drive is sponsored by the Annuitants Association, a group of retired University faculty and staff.

Poll: Iowa's presidential primaries tighten up

BOSTON (UPI) — The Iowa Democratic presidential chase has become a virtual three-way tie for the top, with one-quarter of likely participants undecided less than a week before the caucuses, a poll released Thursday shows.

The Republican race also tightened sharply, with Vice President George Bush closing the gap on Kansas Sen. Robert Dole in a survey by Cambridge Reports for WNEV-TV.

Missouri Rep. Richard Gephardt won support from 18 percent of the 300 Democrats and independents likely to attend the Feb. 8 caucuses. Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis placed second with 16 percent, followed by Illinois Sen. Paul Simon at 15 percent in the telephone survey conducted between Jan. 29 and Feb. 2.

The survey, which has a 5.5 percent margin of error, found 25 percent of those responding had not made up their minds.

Bunched in a second tier are former Colorado Sen. Gary Hart at 10 percent, Jesse Jackson at 9 percent, former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt at 6 percent and Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore at 1 percent.

On the Republican side, Dole won backing from 28 percent of the 300 Republicans and independents likely to attend the GOP caucuses. Bush placed second at 23 percent, followed by former television evangelist Pat Robertson at 17 percent.

Rounding out the field were New York Rep. Jack Kemp at 8 percent, former Delaware Gov. Pete du Pont at 4 percent and former Secretary of State Alexander Haig at 1 percent.

A total of 19 percent of likely GOP caucus-goers were undecided in the survey, which also had a 5.5 percent margin of error.

The Democratic results reflect a highly volatile political climate in which Gephardt and Simon changed places at the top of the pack in recent weeks.

A survey released Monday by KRC Research, conducted by WBZ-TV and The Boston Herald, found Gephardt with support from 28 percent of the 401 likely caucus-goers. That was up 19 percent from a similar poll two weeks earlier. Dukakis placed second at 18 percent and Simon followed at 14 percent with 13 percent undecided.

A poll by the Gallup Organization for WCVB-TV, WEEI-AM and The Boston Globe, released Tuesday, found Gephardt at 32 percent in a survey of 577 Democrats. Dukakis placed second at 19 percent, followed by Simon at 15 percent.

Dole confronts Bush in Senate, objects to his campaign strategy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The bitter and personal campaign for the Republican presidential nomination hit the Senate chamber Thursday when Robert Dole confronted George Bush "man to man" about charges made by the vice president's campaign.

The brief exchange, which lasted only a few minutes during a procedural vote in the Senate on Contra aid, came when a visibly angry Dole trapped Bush in the presiding officer's seat.

Dole's comments and Bush's response could not be heard in the galleries, nor did any other senators pay attention to what passed between the two contenders for the presidency.

Dole, after talking with several Republican senators who back him, strode to Bush's desk, carrying with him a copy of a statement by George Wittgraf, Bush's Iowa campaign chief. Wittgraf's statement accused Dole of "cronyism and mean-spiritedness" and said Dole "virtually brought down" the 1976 GOP ticket when the Kansas was the vice presidential candidate.

The Senate Republican leader repeatedly jabbed at the written statement and appeared to be lecturing Bush. Finally, he dropped the Wittgraf statement on Bush's desk, wheeled around and walked away.

Dole told reporters later, the Wittgraf news release was "one of the nastiest things I've seen in politics." He said he decided to confront Bush about it. "I wanted the vice president to tell me man to man."

Dole said Bush acknowledged that he authorized the release, but had not read it.

"We don't need that kind of person in the White House," Dole said. "What else is he going to authorize without reading it."

"I can't believe you said that in a press release," Dole said he told Bush.

Hawaii's Republicans to caucus

HONOLULU (UPI) — Hawaii's tiny Republican party, battered by a furor over last month's postponement of state caucuses and a deluge of new members, is set to hold the caucuses and a presidential straw poll Thursday night.

Party members will cluster at homes, meeting rooms and schools to choose state convention delegates and take a non-binding presidential straw poll considered one of the first tests in the nation for GOP presidential hopefuls.

Leaders of candidate Pat Robertson's campaign, which has brought thousands of new members into the party recently, said they were optimistic about their chances for victory in the poll.

Sen. Robert Dole earlier appeared to be the candidate to beat until the Robertson camp's dramatic last-minute surge. Dole began his bid in the state a year ago and gained the support of many Hawaii GOP leaders.

Party members will cluster in homes, meeting rooms and schools to choose state convention delegates and take a non-binding presidential straw poll considered one of the first tests in the nation for GOP presidential hopefuls.

The campaign of Vice President George Bush also started organizing in the islands recently, but the effort apparently slowed after Robertson moved to the forefront and the caucuses were postponed.

The GOP caucuses and straw poll were to have been held Jan. 27, but the party executive committee decided after a closed meeting to postpone them. Members cited confusion about caucus instructions and doubt about the validity of membership lists.

Supporters of Robertson, a former television evangelist, charged the vote was called off to deny their candidate a victory. The Robertson camp said it had registered 5,000 new members in the formerly 10,000-member Hawaii Republican party.

Party officials who pushed for the postponement had ties to the campaigns of rival GOP candidates Dole and Bush, but they said they were acting as longtime local Republicans.

Robertson's Hawaii co-chair, state Rep. Hal Jones, indicated he thought the action also was partly due to those in power in the party fearing they would lose control as their supporters were swamped by the thousands of new members.

Reagan warns Nicaragua not to stop reform

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan warned Nicaragua Thursday against interpreting the House vote against new aid to the Contras as a license to renege on commitments to democratic reforms and vowed not to break faith with the rebels.

House Speaker Jim Wright refused to gloat over the Democrats' victory in defeating Reagan's $36.25 million request, and as the Senate moved to a symbolic vote on the aid, he called on Republicans to help fashion a package providing the Contras only with humanitarian assistance.

Vice President George Bush cut short his presidential campaigning in Iowa to be on hand for the Senate vote. Senate Republican leader Robert Dole also flew back to Washington from the Iowa campaign trail, but acknowledged the House vote means aid to the Contras "is finished."

Reagan, through spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, expressed deep disappointment with the 219-211 House vote, which he had billed Tuesday in a televised address as virtually a ballot on the future of U.S. national security.

As Wright called for bipartisanship in fashioning a new package, the president acknowledged the House vote reflected opposition to the use of further military force to pressure Nicaragua's Marxist-led Sandinista government.

"Our commitment to peace and democracy is undiminished," Reagan said, assuring "those struggling in Nicaragua for the values we hold so dear of his personal support."

"We have a fundamental difference of opinion," the president said. "Whatever the case, the Sandinista regime in Nicaragua should not interpret the House's action as a signal permitting a reversal in steps taken toward fulfillment of commitments made under the Guatemala accords."

Reagan displayed a more conciliatory attitude in defeat. His continued hope of seeing "measurable and timely progress" toward democratic reforms contrasted to his suggestion Tuesday that ending military aid would give the Sandinistas a reason to back out of their promises.

Anticipating the congressional defeat, CIA officials overseeing the Contras in Nicaragua set aside caches of automatic rifles, grenade launchers, anti-aircraft missiles and ammunition for the rebels — purchased with portions of the $100 million Congress approved in 1986.

Contras have stockpiled weapons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite the House vote to end Contra aid, the U.S.-backed rebels have enough weapons stockpiled to fight on for four to six months while the administration reviews its Nicaragua policy, officials said this week.

Several U.S. officials said President Reagan and his aides remain divided over Nicaragua policy and beyond supporting the Contras, lack a coherent strategy for dealing with the Marxist-led Sandinista government.

Anticipating a congressional defeat, CIA officials overseeing the Contra guerrilla war in Nicaragua set aside large caches of automatic rifles, grenade launchers, anti-aircraft missiles and ammunition so the rebels could prolong their fighting, administration sources said.

They said the military hardware was purchased with portions of the $100 million in mostly military aid that Congress approved in late 1986.

Several rebel and U.S. officials said the congressional vote may prompt the Contras to withdraw some units from the field and to consolidate operations so they can stretch their supplies for up to a year.

Contra leader Adolfo Calero told United Press International that the House defeat would "make our struggle more difficult," but vowed to continue the guerrilla campaign against the Nicaraguan government.

"It will mean more sacrifice and more time," he said.

Calero declined to comment directly on how the vote might affect military operations, but said that because of the stockpiling of arms, the congressional action would have "no immediate effect" on the war.

"We have one month of food left, and perhaps two months of ammunition," Calero said, declining comment on other stockpiled aid.

Administration officials said they expected continued airdrops of the stockpiled munitions to rebel units in Nicaragua, but said they were unclear whether CIA personnel would be restricted from directing the resupply flights.

House decision to test Nicaraguan intent

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — The defeat of the Reagan administration's Contra aid package will test the Nicaraguan government's commitment to making democratic reforms, opposition leaders said Thursday.

President Daniel Ortega scheduled a midday news conference to give the government's official reaction to Wednesday night's 219-211 vote in the House of Representatives against a $36.3 million aid package for the rebels.

The House vote was a major foreign policy defeat for Reagan in his last year in office.

Nicaraguan opposition leaders said the end of U.S. aid to the Contras committed the Sandinistas to fulfilling their obligations under a Central American peace accord signed last year.

"The Sandinistas will not have any more excuses for not complying" with the peace accord, said Enrique Bolanos, president of a conservative businessmen's association.

Nicaragua's two official radio stations greeted news of the vote with sirens and other special sound effects. A small group of anti-Contra demonstrators outside the U.S. Embassy in Managua, burst into song and dance Wednesday night when the news came over the radio.

"Today is a day of celebration for all of us," Maria Zuniga, one of a group of mostly American demonstrators, said at another rally outside the embassy Thursday morning after an all-night vigil.

Zuniga, a 46-year-old native of Minneapolis who has lived in Central America for 20 years, said, "The U.S. government has suffered a great defeat, but just because the vote went

Gorbachev offers deal to Reagan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A White House spokesman labels as "ludicrous" an offer by Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev to cut off most arms shipments to Nicaragua if the U.S. abandons all military aid to Central American nations.

Gorbachev made the proposal when the administration asked him to elaborate on a comment he made to Reagan in the last moments of the summit meeting last December. The Soviet leader said he would supply only small police arms to the Sandinista government in exchange for a halt in U.S. aid to the Nicaraguan rebels, known as the Contras.

Officials did not pursue Gorbachev's remarks at the time. They decided to make Gorbachev's offer public Wednesday as the House debated Reagan's Contra aid package, which was defeated 219-211 Wednesday night.

against Contra aid doesn't mean Reagan's obsession with the Contras has ended."

The peace accord calls for a cease-fire in the government's 6-year-old war against the Contras, an end to outside aid to guerrilla forces and sweeping democratic reforms inside each of the five Central American nations that signed it.

Film maker utilizes poetry, diary modes

By Richard Nunez
Entertainment Editor

Tom Chomont is a film maker who believes that beauty is only skin deep.

"I try to transcend physical matter and illustrate the need to look beyond physical appearances," Chomont said of his film making.

Chomont is a guest film maker and judge of the Big Muddy Film Festival.

Chomont's films are highly personal and usually involve intense psychological and emotional experiences. He describes his films as a combination of poetry and the diary mode of film making.

"The filming would be more diary and the editing, I guess, you could consider the poetic part," Chomont said. "The way I think about editing is much the same way one might think about music."

Chomont said that when he edits a movie he tends to think in terms of musical structures, in which one scene may be rhythmic while another scene is more upbeat.

"Editing is a personal choice," Chomont said. He added that it is a careful process in which the film maker must be aware of where to edit the film without going too far in either direction.

Most of Chomont's films are silent and vary in themes and subject. In his films, he commonly juxtaposes human figures with other objects.

"I'm trying to suggest the mental process," Chomont said.

In "Phases of the Moon," Chomont juxtaposes color with black and white footage, and positive footage with negative footage.

"Phases of the Moon" has been described as a small film poem that looks into the film maker's and the character's senses of isolation and loneliness.

"I was trying to illustrate mechanical movement, things that are repeated. Like turning on the tap, looking through a peephole, opening a curtain," Chomont said.

Dealing with personal subjects is very difficult, Chomont said, because if a film is too personal it risks invading someone else's privacy. He has gone as far as throwing a film away because it was not up to his standards.

"I threw one away because I was very depressed at the time," Chomont said. "The film was self-indulgent in a negative way. It was too masochistic and depressing."

As he was growing up, Chomont said he felt a sense of childhood loss because his family was moving around constantly.

"The passing of time meant a lot to me and I think that reflects in my wanting to preserve things through photography and film," Chomont said.

'Boss' set to boogie across U.S.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bruce Springsteen will take an augmented version of his E Street Band on the road for his first U.S. tour in nearly 2 1/2 years beginning in late February, Columbia Records announced Thursday.

Springsteen's "Tunnel of Love Express Tour" will begin in Worcester, Mass., on Feb. 25 at the Centrum auditorium.

After two more Worcester dates, the tour moves to Chapel Hill, N.C., Philadelphia, Cleveland, Chicago, and Atlanta before finishing with dates in the New York and Washington, D.C. areas.

"Tunnel of Love," Springsteen's ninth album, has been certified by the Recording Industry Association of America as double platinum in the United States, and has sold 5 million copies worldwide since its October release.

The album reached No. 1 on the Billboard charts, making Springsteen the only artist in the past 10 years to have placed four albums at the top of the pop charts.

"One Step Up," the third single from "Tunnel of Love," will be released on Feb. 16 to coincide with the tour. The song is backed by a non-LP B-side, "Roulette." The first two singles, "Brilliant Disguise" and "Tunnel of Love," both included tracks not on the album, "Lucky Man" and "Two for the Road."

Springsteen's tour announcement ends speculation he was considering a solo tour without the E Street Band. The group — Roy Bittan, Clarence Clemons, Danny Federici, Nils Lofgren, Patti Scialfa, Gary Tallent and Max Weinberg — will be joined onstage by a five-piece horn section featuring Mario Cruz, Edward Manion, Mark Pender, Richard Rosenberg and Mike Spengler.

Sources inside the Springsteen camp indicate the tour will span Springsteen's career and will include some surprises. So far the tour is concentrating on arenas with seating capacity of around 20,000, and additional dates, including Los Angeles and other New York dates, will be announced later.

"Tunnel of Love Express Tour" (first leg): March 16-17, Rosemont Horizon, Chicago; March 26, Rupp Arena, Lexington, Ky.

Dig uncovers artifacts

PENSACOLA, Fla. (UPI) — Construction workers excavating a downtown building site have unearthed bottles, plates, wash basins, teapots, wine bottles and buttons dating back to Florida's Spanish settlers of the 18th century, an archaeologist said Thursday.

"It's an absolute treasure trove of information," said Judy Bense, an archaeologist with the University of West Florida. "We're talking about the personal things that these people actually used."

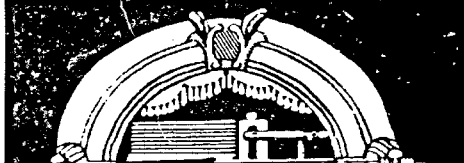

The artifacts were found 5 feet below the surface in a dig on Palafox and Main streets, where the city is renovating the street and installing underground utilities in a downtown revitalization project.

"We've got their teapots, their wine bottles that were hand-blown in Europe and Mexico, food bones, and we have parts of their clothing in terms of buttons," Bense said.

The artifacts, which also included plates and dishes, were glazed earthenware. Some had green, red and black flower designs. Bense said the largest item was a portion of a wash basin.

She said the artifacts could have been tossed away by the Spaniards.

Drive-ins, dwarfs featured in documentaries

By Laura Milbrath
Staff Writer

Jan Krawitz does not make documentaries to try to change people or motivate them into taking action. Instead she hopes to make them take action in their minds and think about experiences in new ways.

"I like the audience to have the experiences I had," Krawitz, a guest filmmaker, and judge at the Big Muddy Film Festival, said. "I ask questions about the things we take for granted. I like to take the obvious and go beyond it." Krawitz, an associate professor in the Department of Radio-Television-Film at the University of Texas at Austin, said that she often chooses topics for her documentaries that many people overlook in their daily lives.

The documentary "Little People," which Krawitz produced with Thomas Ott, received an Emmy Award nomination in 1965.

The film is one of two Krawitz documentaries to be shown beginning at 7 p.m.

tonight in the Student Center Auditorium. It examines the lives of dwarves and the problems they face in a world that often seems built only for people of average height.

"I spent about three years of my life meeting and talking to dwarves," Krawitz said. "They are very much ostracized in our society based on something incredibly superficial, such as height. The dwarf experience was a paradigm for discrimination in this country."

Krawitz explained that members of the dwarf population are visible in all levels of society with a wide variety of lifestyles.

The film has come to represent more than dwarves facing prejudice, Krawitz said.

The second Krawitz documentary being shown is titled "Drive-In Blues." The film sent Krawitz on a quest for old drive-in movie theaters to explore what she calls "a testament to an earlier era."

Krawitz said many of the scenes were filmed in Texas because drive-ins there often are left to stand when they go out of business.

"When we would come upon an abandoned drive-in, it was almost like being an urban archeologist," Krawitz said. "I felt like an explorer."

Because there was some difficulty in filming the drive-ins after dark, Krawitz chose to base her film "more on the institution rather than what happens in it. My hope was that people would see the film and it would re-create their own experiences in the drive-in."

Deborah Shaffer, guest film maker and judge of the festival, will present her films "Witness to War" and "Fire from the Mountain" at 7 p.m. Saturday in the Student Center Auditorium. Admission is $2.

Film maker to lecture

An Academy Award winner will be one of three judges in the Big Muddy Film Festival.

Deborah Shaffer, independent film maker, will lecture and present "Fire from the Mountain" and her Oscar winning "Witness to War: Doctor Charlie Clements" 7 p.m. Saturday in the Student Center Auditorium.

"Witness to War" is a documentary which focused on Charlie Clements, a vietnam veteran and doctor involved in the war of El Salvador.

According to Shaffer, "Witness to War" is one person's story. It's not a film about Vietnam and El Salvador, it's a film about the U.S. role there and one person's responsibility in relation to that."

Clements came from a military family and graduated from the Air Force Academy at the top of his class. He was a bomber pilot in Vietnam, but was expelled when he refused to fly missions.

Clements then dedicated his life to non-violence and medicine. When the war in El Salvador escalated, he left home to practice medicine in the rebel-controlled zones of Guzapa for more than a year.

In making the film, Shaffer retrieved archival footage of the bombing of Vietnam and set it against the background of the El Salvador story.

Most of Shaffer's films are political and she attributes this to her involvement in the feminist movements of the '60s, as well as the larger political upheavals of the time.

Shaffer's films usually deal with Central and Latin American issues and with individuals of strong personal commitments.

"Fire from the Mountain" is another political documentary that chronicles the life of Nicaraguan writer and guerilla fighter Omar Cabezas.

Shaffer combines interviews with Cabezas and archival footage of his military training in the mountains, leading raids to liberate towns and finally as he celebrates victory in Managua.

Shaffer's next project, a documentary of the student movements of the late '60s, will again be political, but more personal.

Fire department responds to marijuana 'fire' alarm

OLD BRIDGE, N.J. (UPI) — High technology backfired on a man who installed a sophisticated smoke detector that summoned firefighters and police to his home — when he was smoking marijuana, authorities said Thursday.

The home of Joseph Romano, 40, was filled with smoke when police responded to the alarm turned in Wednesday afternoon by the security company that monitors Romano's automated smoke detector and fire alarm, police Sgt. Gary F. Ruzsalla said.

"The fire company's about to clear up and the daughter's saying she inadvertently hit the alarm and she's sorry, but the marijuana smell wants to knock our cop right over," Ruzsalla said.

"On top of the refrigerator is a homemade bong and that's where the smoke's coming from," the sergeant said.

City wastewater treatment plant qualifies for low-interest loan

By Dana DeBeaumont
Staff Writer

Carbondale could be eligible for a low interest federal revolving loan to pay for improvements on its Southeast Wastewater Treatment Plant, Mike Bowers, an Illinois Environmental Protection Agency project manager, said.

Congress is proposing the loan system for water and sewer projects nationwide. Under the revolving loan system, the money would be loaned out again as soon as it is repaid, said Bryan Marx of the IEPA.

Bill Dixon, city manager, said Carbondale will look into the loan program.

"We're going ahead with the improvements, but we're communicating with Sen. (Ralph) Dunn about the situation," he said.

The City Council voted Tuesday to spend more than $2 million to upgrade the plant.

Last spring Carbondale officials applied for a federal grant to make improvements on the plant so that it would comply with IEPA standards,

"We're going ahead with the improvements, but we're communicating with Sen. (Ralph) Dunn about the situation."

—Bill Dixon

Dixon said.

But the problems and violations the southeast plant suffers from weren't severe enough to place it as a priority for a grant, Bowers said.

State and federal governments have ranked all proposed water and sewer projects on a priority basis, and Carbondale's southeast plant has just been given outside priority status, he said.

"Time and money has run out so it doesn't appear that Carbondale will get a grant," Bowers said. "Last year, there was a possibility of Build Illinois money, but that was never appropriated."

Lack of oxygen in wastes flowing from the Southeast Wastewater Treatment plant to Crab Orchard Creek could kill plants and animals living in the creek, he said.

As the waste decomposes in the creek, it takes oxygen from the water, thereby reducing the amount of oxygen available for other organisms in the creek, Bowers said.

The Southeast Wastewater Treatment Plant received several violations in 1987, he added.

The city will issue general obligation bonds to pay for the improvements, which include two new clarifiers to remove impurities in dry solid waste and 16 drying beds. The bonds will be repaid with money generated by an 8.9 percent water and sewer fee increase that could go into effect after May 1.

The increase, which the council is expected to approve at its Feb. 16 meeting, would raise combined water and sewer fees from $3.34 to $3.64 for every 1,000 gallons used.

Mecham denies charges

PHOENIX (UPI) — Gov. Evan Mecham insisted Thursday that he did not try to hide a $350,000 campaign loan and objected bitterly when a member of a House impeachment committee questioned whether his practices theoretically could result in concealment of loans from criminals.

The governor, who has been indicted on felony charges for allegedly concealing the loan, said he was not a criminal and asked that the question be withdrawn because he was insulted.

"You were insinuating that I'm some kind of a criminal which I am not," Mecham said during a heated exchange with Republican Rep. John King, an attorney.

King, initially refusing to back off, said he was trying to show that by lumping loans without listing the lender, as Mecham did on his campaign contribution reports, people with "bad reputations" could lend money to candidates and no one would know.

Impeachment would require 31 votes in the 60-member House, which is controlled by Republicans. If Mecham is impeached, trial would be conducted in the GOP-controlled Senate, where 20 of 30 members would have to vote to convict.

Prosecutor seeks crucial memo in Meese's dealing with pipeline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Independent prosecutor James McKay said Thursday the Reagan administration is reviewing the possibility of declassifying a secret memo at the heart of Attorney General Edwin Meese's brush with a $1 billion Iraqi pipeline deal.

Sources close to the investigation said Wednesday that the memo told of a Swiss oilman's contributions to the Israeli Labor Party. The payments were meant to secure guarantees from the Israelis that they would not interfere with the oil pipeline that was to be built close to Israeli territory, according to published reports.

It is understood that Meese's criminal defense team maintains that any such contributions would be legal.

Meese attorney Nathan Lewin declined to comment on the content of the 1985 memo from Meese's longtime friend and associate, E. Robert Wallach, because it is classified. But he disclosed the document was first temporarily classified by the Justice Department's security officer before being turned over to McKay.

McKay's office said in a statement Thursday that "upon learning that an unauthorized publication of certain information was appearing in the media, Mr. McKay provided a brief summary of sensitive matters related to this investigation to the president's chief of staff, Howard H. Baker."

"At that meeting, Mr. McKay received assurances that every effort would be made to minimize any encumbrances imposed on his investigation by virtue of the classified nature of pertinent information," McKay's statement said.

"Pursuant to that commitment, last night the counsel to the president, Arthur B. Culvahouse Jr., advised Mr. McKay that an interagency task force is being formed to review and reassess declassification of any information related to this investigation," the statement said.

Wallach, under indictment in New York for attempting to influence Meese in the award of a $2 billion no-bid Army contract to the scandal-torn Wedtech Corp., was representing the wealthy Swiss oilman, Bruce Rappaport, in the 1985 negotiations on the pipeline.

The Iraqi pipeline was to run close to the Israeli border carrying oil to the Red Sea port of Aqaba, Jordan, but was never built.

Dukakis a threat to Simon in S. Illinois, Poshard says

By Dana DeBeaumont
Staff Writer

Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis is more of a threat to Sen. Paul Simon in Southern Illinois than Simon supporters believe, state Sen. Glenn Poshard said Thursday.

"State employees see their jobs threatened by Simon's balanced budget proposal," Poshard, who is Simon's Southern Illinois campaign manager, said. "We're (Simon backers) organized to put up a fight."

The Dukakis campaign is well organized in Southern Illinois, and some of Dukakis' delegate candidates are members of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, Poshard said.

Poshard, D-Carterville, said that although the union hasn't endorsed Dukakis, Simon and his campaign coordinators aren't taking anything for granted.

David Phillips, president of the local chapter of AFSCME, said the union's endorsement still is "up in the air." The union will decide Saturday in Springfield whom to endorse for the Democratic nomination.

Simon needs to finish at least second in the Monday's Iowa caucuses, second in the New Hampshire primary Feb. 16 and third in the March 8 southern primaries to be considered a legitimate

Poshard to set new look

By Dana DeBeaumont
Staff Writer

A little bit of Paul Simon seems to have rubbed off on state Sen. Glenn Poshard.

The Democratic Party recently told Poshard he needs the help of media consultants in his campaign for the 22nd District House seat, but Poshard told a journalism class Thursday that he's going to create his own image.

Poshard is Simon's campaign manager in Southern Illinois. Simon has disdained the use of "flashy" political consultants who would have him exchange his boy-in-the-bowtie image for a more mainstream modern look.

Poshard said that when the party sent him a media consultant, he refused to follow the consultant's advice and sent the consultant back to Washington.

"I know who I am and I think I know the people of Southern Illinois pretty well," Poshard said. "They (consultants) want to make a candidate, create who you are and decide what you say."

"I'm going to make my own image and decide what commercials I'll run. If not, I'll get out."

Party officials don't seem too upset with Poshard's decision. On Saturday, Poshard was elected to the party's platform committee, which decides the party's stand on major issues.

candidate, Poshard said.

"We've got 300 people going to Iowa this week," he said. "It's a long haul."

Poshard said the Des Moines Register's endorsement of Simon for the Democratic candidacy will help Simon.

Poshard, who is seeking U.S. Rep. Ken Gray's 22nd District seat in Congress, said his congressional campaign is on hold until after "Super Tuesday" on March 15.

Contest to design flag out of jail

The contest to design a Jackson County flag began in the Jackson County jail, but the contest is out of jail now, and is open to anyone who has an idea for a distinctive county symbol.

The Rev. James Duke, an advisor to the Jackson County Inmate Advocacy Group, said the flag design contest started as a rehabilitation activity for the inmates.

"I'm always trying to think of ways the inmates can improve themselves," Duke said. Duke said he has approached the School of Art and area elementary and high schools about the project.

David Frost, of the Jackson County Sheriff's department, said the flag's design should draw on the uniqueness of Jackson County.

The University and recreational areas such as Giant City State Park and Shawnee National Forest, make Jackson County unique, Frost said.

The design also could draw on the mining or orchard industry in Jackson County, he said. "We are on of the most trendsetting counties in Southern Illinois," Frost said.

No prizes have been determined for the flag contest, he said. "I had hoped this contest would appeal to the artistic, volunteer side of people. Someone should want to do this for the people of Jackson County."

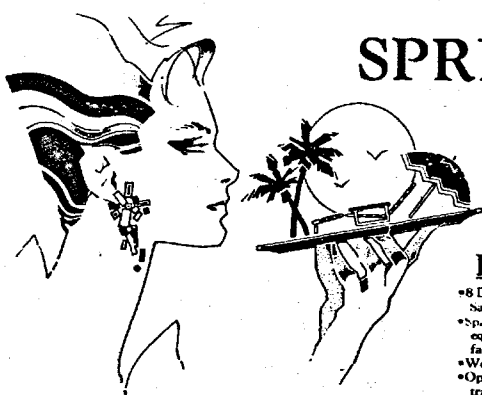

For details call Frost at the Jackson County Sheriff's office, 684-2177.

Nine-month sentence for local woman

MURPHYSBORO (UPI) — A 62-year-old, former DeSoto woman has been sentenced to nine months in the Jackson County Jail at Murphysboro on her plea of guilty last October to robbing the Landmark Bank in Carbondale.

Judge Robert Howerton, taking note of the defendant's age in imposing a jail instead of prison sentence, also placed Eula Mae Brown on four-years' probation and ordered her to perform 700 hours of community service work.

Authorities said about $1,300 was taken in the robbery last July. Authorities, alerted by a silent alarm sounded at the bank, arrested Brown at her home about 30 minutes after the robbery and recovered the money.

Programs begin to stem AIDS among addicts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In localities with a high incidence of AIDS, health authorities across the country are launching bold and frequently controversial new programs to stem the spread of the disease among drug addicts.

Measures include passing out free hypodermic needles and the bleach to sterilize them — actions previously forsworn because law enforcement and health authorities feared such actions would promote illegal intravenous drug use, rather than stop the spread of AIDS.

Last Sunday, New York City officials were given permission by the state health department to launch an experimental program, believed to be the nation's first, that would give clean needles to drug addicts.

THE TRIAL program, to start in March or April, would provide 200 to 400 participating addicts with a medically supervised exchange where they could trade old needles for new ones uncontaminated with the virus that causes AIDS.

New York is believed to have the nation's worst problem with AIDS transmission by intravenous drug users. The city health commissioner, Dr. Stephen Joseph, said there are at least 250,000 intravenous drug users in the area with more than half of them already infected by HIV, the human immunodeficiency virus that causes AIDS. He estimated the number of infected addicts is increasing by 8 percent per year.

HIV can be spread through sex, or from an infected mother to her unborn child. Intravenous drug users have an additional risk: contracting the virus by sharing a needle contaminated with the blood of a person who has it.

JOSEPH SAID needle exchange programs in England and Amsterdam had resulted in a decrease in the sharing of needles, and had not resulted in an increase in the number of drug addicts. But he said the proof of the programs would be whether they resulted in a decrease in HIV transmission.

Joseph believes the New York experiment will improve the hygiene of people who would use drugs anyway, and said these people are "the cornerstone to the epidemic" because they may spread the virus to the general population through sex with uninfected people who do not use drugs.

Neighboring New Jersey health officials said they would watch the New York program closely, but had no plans to copy it.

A NEW Jersey Department of Health spokeswoman, Marilyn Riley, noted that giving addicts one clean needle each would not stop them from sharing their needles once they are used.

"Drug addicts often share needles because of the urgency they feel from their addiction," she said.

A Boston Health and Hospitals Department epidemiologist, Dr. George Lamb, traveled to Europe last month to investigate the possibility of implementing a clean needle program in Boston.

But Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, a Democratic presidential candidate, is strongly opposed, saying public officials should be encouraging addiction treatment rather than swapping needles in Massachusetts, where possession of syringes and hypodermic needles is against the law.

DR. REED Tuckson, District of Columbia health commissioner, said he opposes a needle exchange, but on Tuesday announced that the city would pass out vials of bleach to drug addicts with instructions on how to use it safely to flush out syringes and kill the AIDS virus.

The bleach and instructions will be dispensed by outreach workers who approach addicts on the street and in so-called shooting galleries.

Currently about 15 percent of the city's people with AIDS contracted it through intravenous drug use, but authorities expect the percentage to increase dramatically as infected users come down with the disease.

IN SEATTLE and surrounding King County, health authorities adopted a bleach distribution program last month after becoming alarmed that the percentage of drug users infected by HIV is doubling every six months with recent figures showing 15 percent of the estimated 12,000 HIV drug users are now infected.

AIDS linked to artificial insemination

ATLANTA (UPI) — Citing instances of AIDS transmission through artificial insemination, the National Centers for Disease Control Thursday urged testing of sperm and ova donors and frozen storage of donated semen for six months.

While incidents of AIDS transmission through organ, tissue or sperm donations are rare, the role of these factors in the spread of the disease has been confirmed by the Public Health Service.

Between 1985 and 1987, transmissions of AIDS and hepatitis B were confirmed through artificial insemination. In April 1987, a skin graft was implicated in the transmission of the AIDS virus, and a month later a cadaveric organ donor tested positive for the virus.

In its Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report, the CDC said the use of fresh sperm in artificial insemination may still be appropriate if obtained from a donor in a "mutually monogamous marriage-relationship."

"However, it is now considered prudent to freeze samples from all other donors and store them in that state for a minimum of six months," the report said.

Before the semen is used for artificial insemination, the report said donors' blood samples taken at the time of donation and a minimum of six months later should be tested for the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) antibody to prevent transmission of acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

The CDC said medical personnel should ensure blood tests are taken from the same donor on each occasion and that the donor's identity is verified. Frozen sperm from donors who test positive should not be used in artificial insemination.

In addition, the CDC said sperm should not be accepted from donors in high risk groups for HIV infection, and donors should be examined by qualified physicians for obvious signs of AIDS.

The CDC also noted instances of AIDS transmission by tissue and organ transplants and urged testing of blood, tissue and organ donors, living and dead.

In hospitalized donors still living, the report recom-

Cornea donor shortage reported by association

CHICAGO (UPI) — Cornea transplants restore sight to more than 30,000 Americans every year, but the demand for donors far outstrips supply and the shortage is likely to become worse, the American Medical Association warned Thursday.

The AMA's Council on Scientific Affairs said despite advances in procuring and preserving donor corneas in the United States, between 3,500 and 5,000 people awaiting transplants in 1985 did not receive them. The group called for renewed efforts to recruit donors and make the public aware of the procedure's benefits.

"This is the most common and successful transplant operation done in the United States, and it could be more so if only we had the donors," said Dr. George Bohigian, chairman of the AMA's Council on Scientific Affairs.

"In many ways, this is no different than any other donor organ, to the extent that there is a shortage in almost every area," he said.

mended testing prior to any medical procedure requiring transfusions to avoid loss of antibody in the process of multiple transfusions. Organs from donors testing positive for HIV infection should not be used "except when the transplantation of an indispensable organ is necessary to save a patient's life." The CDC recommendations were prepared by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and were endorsed by the American Association of Tissue Banks, the American Fertility Society and the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists.

Indiana OKs amended draft bill

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — A bill that would have required college students to sign up for the draft before receiving financial aid was stripped of most of its content Thursday before receiving the approval of a legislative committee.

The bill, as amended Thursday, calls for Indiana to adopt a state policy that all eligible males, 18 years of age or older, should register under the Military Selective Service Act.

The measure provides no penalties for not signing up for the draft.

The House Education Committee agreed to take out language in the bill requiring college students to sign up for the draft before receiving financial aid after several lawmakers and a college student said it was discriminatory.

The original bill would have required students who received state financial aid to repay the money as a loan if they failed to sign up for the draft as required by federal law.

"If the state chooses to monitor, they should monitor everybody," said Katie Watson of the Indiana University Students Association. "Under the bill, we would only be monitoring those students who go to post-secondary institutions and receive financial aid."

"You have the duty to not single out one segment of the population," she told committee members. "This is really not the way the state government should approach this problem if they want to approach it."

Watson estimated the original bill would have only affected 340 students at IU in Bloomington. Those students would have been required to present evidence they had signed up for the draft if they wanted to receive financial aid.

The sponsor of the bill, Sen. Virginia Blankenkaker, R-Indianapolis, said the measure is "good public policy." She said students receiving state funds to go to college should be responsible by signing up for the draft.

Officials estimate about 20 percent of eligible males in Indiana do not sign up for the draft at the age of 18.

"People feel that with monetary funds should come responsibility," Blankenkaker told the committee.

Rep. Stan Jones, D-West Lafayette, said he did not see the purpose of the bill because no evidence had been presented that a college student received a state scholarship without registering for the draft.

Scratch 'n' sniffs lead to good meals

NEW YORK (UPI) — Scratch 'n' sniff stickers, featuring Mickey Mouse and other Disney characters plus tempting aromas, are leading kids — by the nose — to nutritious meals in more than 10,000 schools nationwide.

The scents range from banana and strawberry to apple, root beer, orange, waffles, pancakes, hamburger and such.

alone, 30,000 more kids a day fell in line for school breakfasts as a result of the mouth-watering scents in stickers promoting school meals last November and December.

That pushed average daily attendance for the breakfasts to 143,000 — around 14 percent of nearly 1 million kids in New York City schools. Uncle Sam subsidizes the meals for kids from low income or poverty row families.

The scenarios vary across the country but here's the basic plan in the unusual scented sticker nutrition education program:

Posters starring Donald Duck, Minnie and Mickey, Goofy and others from the Disney bunch invite kids to join a school meal club. When they do, they are given scratch 'n' sniff meal club collector's book.

Educational help offered to minorities

NEW YORK (UPI) — From the sandbox to graduate schools, extra educational help is needed by blacks, Mexican-Americans and other minorities, officials said Thursday in launching a $12 million "Quality Education for Minorities" project.

Other minorities to benefit from QEM would be American Indian, Alaskan Native and Puerto Ricans, from grade school kids to college youths.

The venture between the philanthropic Carnegie Corp. of New York and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, Mass., aims to reverse shrinking access by minorities to quality education, Shirley McBay, project director, said.

"Our mission is to increase the flow of minority students through the education pipeline from pre-school to post-graduate levels, and to improve the quality of the education they receive, MIT's dean of affairs said.

We want to build upon what works, and to help others duplicate those successes."

A priority will be to steer minority youths into math, science and engineering professions critical to the nation's future and ones in which minority involvement is poor, she said.

Ray Marshall, former U.S. secretary of labor and chairman of the project's Action Council for Minority Education, said QEM is "the most important ad venture in minority education."

From this beginning will come a plan of action to alleviate the shocking lack of educational opportunities available to minorities," he said.

"By the year 2000, minorities will constitute about 34 percent of our population, in contrast to just 17 percent in 1985.

NBA's 'All-Star Saturday' as good as game

CHICAGO (UPI) — The NBA's version of a three-ring circus comes to Chicago Stadium Saturday on the eve of the league's 38th All-Star game.

The Chicago Stadium, which has been host to more than its share of circuses in the past, will be host to the "Legends Classic," "Slam Dunk Championship" and "Long Distance Shootout" Saturday.

The NBA bills it as "All-Star Saturday" but the events' rise in popularity the past three years has put it nearly on a plain with the All-Star showcase the following day.

The "Slam Dunk" competition has drawn the most notoriety and share of instant replays throughout the season. Local favorite Michael Jordan of the Chicago Bulls will defend the title he won last year at Seattle against two former champions, Atlanta's 5-foot-7 Spud Webb and his 6-foot-7 teammate, Dominique Wilkins.

"I'm looking forward to defending my title," Jordan, who will star for the East in Sunday's All-Star game, said. "There's not much to say about dunking. It's really a creative thing with me. Last

It's no sweat for Abdul-Jabbar

By Mike Barnes
UPI Sports Writer

CHICAGO — Appearing in the most glamorous of all NBA exhibition games is really no big deal to Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. After all, he plays in what amounts to 82 exhibitions during the regular season as his team parades to the playoffs.

Coach Pat Riley realizes as early as summer that the Los Angeles Lakers need a fresh Abdul-Jabbar for the playoffs. The only thing worse than having a 40-year-old center during the postseason is having one that's winded.

So Riley takes it easy on the Captain during the regular season. He's sure to do the same when he guides Abdul-Jabbar and the rest of the West during Sunday's 38th annual All-Star Game at Chicago Stadium.

"The great part about Kareem is he's a money player," Bulls Coach Doug Collins said. "He does it in crunch time. Kareem is so aware of what he means to the team. He has to be fresh, so he and Riley pick and choose his time."

Abdul Jabbar, who is signed through the 1988-89 season, gets even more bench time since his record 787 regular-season game streak of double-figure scoring came to a halt Dec. 4 at Milwaukee.

With no worry about perpetuating the string, Abdul-Jabbar has scored fewer than 10 points in a game six times. But does this sudden lack of production bother him?

Nah. "Kareem's loving this," Riley said. "He doesn't have to carry the team all the time. The early offense is off his shoulders. And when the game's on the line, there isn't any side in his game at all."

year, the one dunk I practiced on beforehand turned out to be the very dunk I missed."

But with Wilkins also in the competition — he was hurt one year ago — the competition should soar to new heights.

Others in the competition include San Antonio's Greg Anderson, the only rookie in the eight player field; Clyde Drexler of Portland; Ron Harper of Cleveland; Jerome Kersey of Portland, and Otis Smith of Golden State. First place is worth $12,500.

While Jordan is defending his title, another superstar will be back to gun for a second straight three-point title. Boston's Larry Bird, who will start alongside Jordan Sunday, will vie for prize money of up to $12,500.

Bird won the title last year in a dazzling display of long-range shooting. Others in the field include Bird's Celtic teammate Danny Ainge; Dale Ellis of Seattle; Craig Hodges of Milwaukee; Mark Price of Cleveland; Detlef Schrempf of Dallas; Byron Scott of the Los Angeles Lakers, and Trent Tucker of the New York Knicks.

The Old-Timers' Game will kick off the activities at 2 p.m. EST with current Bulls' coach Doug Collins and WTBS color commentator Rick Barry leading the West. The East will be led by a trio of former Celtic greats — John Havlicek, Tom Sanders and Dave Cowens. Former Celtic great Bob Cousy will coach the East.

"We'll have a pretty good team," West coach and Bulls color commentator Johnny Kerr said. "Especially our backcourt. But Collins is going to be a headache all night. I got to figure out a way to get him some hoops so he won't be hollering at me."

Collins, at 36, is the youngest competitor on the squads.

"It will give my players a chance to see how it's done or whether to boo me," Collins said.

league says the draft, right of first refusal and salary cap must be part of negotiations. The union says they must not.

Grantham said the players will be asked today to consider at least three options, including setting a timetable for a strike that few from either side want.

"One (option) is setting a date for a work stoppage," Grantham said. "Another is to continue with the lawsuit and the other is de-certification of the union."

If the union were to de-certify and no longer act as the bargaining agent for the players, the athletes would be left to negotiate separately with teams. In addition, Grantham claims, de-certification would remove the league's antitrust exemption, making the draft, right of first refusal and salary cap illegal.

"The reasoning is that if the league has a labor exemption (from antitrust laws) because the owners and players have a collective bargaining agreement then the union will de-certify to remove the restrictions of salary cap, right of first refusal and draft and have players negotiate individually," Grantham said.

Whatever decisions are made at the meeting will most likely be brought to the players by their representatives for a full vote after the All-Star break.

"I assume that there will be some agreement on what procedures we will take," Grantham said. "I think our position will be to get back to the players and review the various options and go from there."

The owners are scheduled to meet Saturday morning and league vice-president Russell Granik, said the stalled negotiations are on the agenda.

"I expect it to be an open-ended discussion as the owners have not gotten together in the last two or three months," said Granik.

Granik, who is heading the management side of the negotiations, said he expects to meet only with the owners during the All-Star break.

"They (the union) have an open invitation, but they are not prepared to talk with us," he said.

Players see Pro Bowl as serious, but simple

HONOLULU (UPI) — NFL All-Stars catch the waves at the beach as often as they do scrimmage passes during the days before the Pro Bowl.

"It's nice to look forward to this every year, but, of course, it's not that easy to get here," San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana said of Sunday's all-star game at Aloha Stadium. "It's nice when it's over because then it's (the season) all over."

"It's a vacation for the family. Mine has constantly been at the beach. I'm going to hit the beach a lot myself. I just want to get on one of those long surfboards, the only one I can stand on."

The contrast between Super Bowl week and Pro Bowl week is as great as Montana's preferred board. There is no talk of workout spying as there was in San Diego during Super Bowl week, and the idea of changing jerseys is silly because those present are familiar to all.

Still, Montana, who will start for the NFC, said the game is more than an exhibition.

"You have to take it seriously," he said, "because there are so many great players running around banging into each other."

The last time Montana was on the field during a game, the 49ers were being knocked out of the playoffs by the Minnesota Vikings. There has since been speculation that Montana, who was replaced during that contest by Steve Young, has lost his No. 1 spot with San Francisco.

"I'm not worried about it," he told reporters at Picture Day. "That's for you guys to worry about."

The NFC has won 10 of the 17 games between the NFL conferences.

Starling out to step over Ozaki

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Marlon Starling admits his first World Boxing Association welterweight title defense against Fujio Ozaki tonight is merely a stepping stone to a rematch against Mark Breland.

Starling will make the first defense of the championship he won from Breland to highlight a pay-per-view triple-header at Convention Hall. Breland meets Juan Alonso Villa, and Starling and Breland expect to fight a rematch in April if they both win.

The third bout matches former three-time champion Roberto Duran against Continental Americas middleweight champion Ricky Stackhouse in a 12-rounder.

Starling said, despite watching films of Ozaki, he knows little about the challenger.

"What do I know about him? He's Japanese, how about that?" Starling said. "He has a fair jab, a decent right hand and he's going to get beat."

"He said he wants to come back to the United States to fight Mark Breland and I told him he has a one-way ticket when he leaves. I'm the best welterweight on this planet. I hate to look past Ozaki, but I'm going to prove I'm the best against Breland again."

"I'm the best welterweight on this planet. I hate to look past Ozaki, but I'm going to prove I'm the best against (Mark) Breland again."

—Marlon Starling

Neither man was satisfied with Starling's stunning 11th-round knockout over Breland Aug. 22 that dethroned the 1984 Olympic champion in his first title defense.

"Breland fought the best fight of his life. I fought my worst and I still knocked him out," Starling said.

Breland, despite falling or being pushed to the canvas eight times in the first 10 rounds, led Starling on all judges' cards entering the 11th round. Starling dropped Breland with a left hook and finished him off with a flurry that Breland took standing up.

"There were a lot of nasty things said after the fight (by Starling)," Breland said. "I really do dislike Marlon. I just want to fight him again."

Mantle: Willie Mays was better

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mickey Mantle settled an old sports argument Thursday.

Standing in his new bar and restaurant, the famed Yankee switch-hitter grinned at a question that used to fill hundreds of watering holes — Who was better, Mantle or Mays?

"At times, I was," Mantle said. "But you gotta' look at the bottom line, when it's all over with. And I'm not even close. Willie played 24 (actually 22) years, almost injury free, he hit more than 600 home runs, he was a great baserunner, great outfielder, had a good arm. If you just put both our records down, there's no comparison."

Poor Mickey. He played only 18 years, hit only 536 homers. He only won three MVP Awards, in 1956, '57 and '62. It's a wonder he can even walk the streets without embarrassment, much less open a restaurant across the street from Central Park, complete with waiters and waitresses wearing his old number 7.

Mays, on the other hand, played in 2,992 games, with 660 homers and a .302 lifetime average, four points higher than Mantle. But there's the days, when both played center field in New York, hitting homers and running down flies in huge outfields. Let's not forget a third chap, a man by the name of Edwin Snider, also known as Duke, who played center for the Brooklyn Dodgers.

In those days, you could argue who was best, Mays, Mantle or Snider. But there's no doubt who emerged as the most sacred name of them all. Twenty years after his retirement, Mantle sees long lines at autograph sessions.

"You should come up and sit where I'm at, and listen to some," Mantle said. "You'll look up and there'll be a farmer. He'll say, 'You give me inspiration.' The next guy will come up and have a suit and tie on and he's the president of a corporation and he'll have the same story.

"Some of them have tears in their eyes. You shake hands. Somebody said one time, 'Don't you get tired of that?' I said, 'How the hell can you get tired of that?' I haven't played since 1968. I can be walking down the street and somebody will say, 'Hi Mick, how ya' doing?' It makes me feel great."

Mantle reached the majors in 1951 and played in 12 World Series, setting Series records for homers, runs, RBI, walks and strikeouts.

Ripken Sr. arrested on DWI charges

CARNEY, Md. (UPI) — Baltimore Orioles Manager Cal Ripken Sr. was arrested Thursday on drunken driving charges.

A police spokesman said Ripken's car was stopped after police radar clocked his car going 44 mph in a 30 mph speed zone. Ripken was taken to Central Traffic station in Towson, Md., where he failed a Breathalyzer test.

Police spokesman Brian Uppercue said the test was ordered after an officer noticed Ripken "was having trouble standing and was leaning on the car for support."

Ripken's blood-alcohol level registered 0.22 percent, police said. Under Maryland law, a minimum of 0.13 percent is considered legally intoxicated.

The police spokesman said Ripken failed a field sobriety test.

Ripken, who was charged with driving while intoxicated, speeding and following too close to another vehicle, was released on his own recognizance. A trial date has not been scheduled.

Swim team to defend title at Gateway Championship

By Steven Welsh
Staff Writer

The women's swim team is not favored to win this weekend in Macomb as it defends its Gateway title.

"Illinois State has to be considered the favorite," assistant coach Rick Walker said. "They have a strong team and have already beaten us once this year."

The sixth annual Gateway Conference Championship will be held today through Sunday at host Western Illinois University's Brophy Hall pool. Illinois State, Eastern Illinois and Northern Iowa also will compete.

SIU-C, Gateway champs four of the last five years, captured the title in impressive fashion last year, winning all 18 swimming events and setting eight Championship records.

"It's a hard meet to judge," Walker said. "Some of the girls are tired and some feel pretty strong. We're really not sure what to expect."

The team has been training rigorously to prepare for the NCAA and regional championships.

However, Walker said the team should get an emotional boost because it is defending its championship. Seniors Karen McIntyre, Suella Miller, Lori Rea and Iris von Jouanne also will be defending individual championships.

"The girls have a realistic view of the meet," Walker said. "They'd like to win another championship, but they realize that if they don't, it won't be the end of the season for them."

"We're just going to go out and have fun and swim as best as we can," he said.

Gymnastics team back in swing

Marcus Mulholland

By Stephanie Wood
Staff Writer

The men's gymnastics team will take a healthy squad into competition at Western Michigan Saturday and Northern Illinois Sunday in its first action in two weeks.

"We're probably as healthy as we've been since the beginning of the season," Coach Bill Meade said.

Sophomore Marcus Mulholland has recovered from an ankle injury and will return to the lineup as an all-around competitor. Mulholland did not compete in the floor exercise and vault while injured.

In Saturday's meet, the Salukis will face Western Michigan and Michigan State in separate dual meets in Kalamazoo, Mich. MSU defeated SIU-C in the Windy City Invitational Jan. 16 while Western Michigan finished last.

"Since we haven't been above 262.30, we will have our work cut out for us," Meade said.

The team will face Northern Illinois in Dekalb on Sunday. NIU finished fifth in the Windy City with 271.55.

"To win the meet, Northern would have to help us," Meade said.

Meade said his goal for the weekend is a team score of 267.

Men's tennis team wanders to Indiana

By Jeff Griesser
Staff Writer

The men's tennis team is going back to Indiana this weekend, this time to Bloomington where it will compete against three teams.

The Salukis will take on the Miami (of Ohio) Redskins Saturday morning, and then will battle the Indiana Hoosiers that afternoon. On Sunday, the Salukis will face the Vanderbilt Commodores of the Southeastern Conference.

Last weekend the Salukis played in South Bend, Ind., where the team beat Northern Illinois and lost to Notre Dame.

Coach Dick LeFevre said he was impressed with his team's play in the season opener, but said the road ahead will be a tough one.

"It's not going to get any easier," LeFevre said. "Indiana and Vanderbilt beat us last year and they've both improved."

The Salukis will be trying to reverse the trend of a year ago, when they lost to Miami (of Ohio), 5-4, to Vanderbilt, 6-3, and again to the Hoosiers, 7-2.

The lineup will remain virtually the same, with a possible exception at the No. 2 spot.

"We're alternating (Mickey) Maule and (Fabiano) Ramos at the Nos. 2 and 3 positions," LeFevre said.

Women defeat Northern Iowa in OT

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

Salukis' guard Tonda Seals, who led all scorers with 17 points, nailed a 17-foot jump shot at 22 seconds to give the women's basketball team a 60-58 overtime win over Northern Iowa in Cedar Falls Thursday night.

Northern Iowa, last in the Gateway Conference, almost forced SIU-C from its perch in first by playing a solid zone defense.

"We're lucky to escape with a win," Coach Cindy Scott said. "This is a hard place to play. We'll take the win."

The Salukis, 14-6 overall and 10-2 in the conference, take on Drake at 2 p.m. Saturday in Des Moines. Drake knocked Eastern Illinois out of first with a 67-66 upset. Indiana State remained tied for first with a 73-65 win over Wichita State. Northern Iowa dropped to 5-14, 1-11.

"Our players played hard, but our post players didn't get the job done," Scott said. "Northern Iowa shot exceptionally well in the second half."

Northern Iowa shot 52.4 percent from the field in the second half while the Salukis struggled at 32.4 percent.

Deanna Sanders had 12 points and seven assists while Mary Berghuis added 10 points and seven rebounds for the Salukis. Kris Huffman led Northern Iowa with 17 points and Diane Roberts had 16.

Northern Iowa's Roberts, who had three three-point goals in the second half, missed a last-second three-pointer to send the game into overtime.

In the overtime, Sanders had a three-point goal at 2:17 that put the Salukis ahead 56-53.

At 42 seconds Roberts tied the score at 58 with a three-point goal. It was the 10th time the score was tied.

Following Seals' game-winner, Northern Iowa's Loretha Mosley threw the ball away at eight seconds.

In the first half, Northern Iowa led by as much as five points and had a 13-12 lead at 11:30.

Berghuis' layup at 3:50 remaining in the first half put the Salukis up 21-20, their first lead since the 2-0 advantage at the start.

The Salukis mounted a 12-5 run to lead 29-25 at halftime.

Men's, women's track teams enter Indiana Invitational

By Stephanie Wood
Staff Writer

The men's track team, coming off outstanding performances last weekend at Missouri and Eastern Illinois, will combine with an injury-plagued women's team today and Saturday at the Indiana Invitational in Bloomington, Ind.

The meet, which is not scored, will feature Big Ten powers Indiana and Purdue, as well as Mississippi and Murray State.

Men's coach Bill Cornell said he is looking for continued improvement after last week's performance.

"About 30 percent of the people are not pulling their weight and they know who they are," he said.

All-American Andy Pettigrew, who has been suffering from mononucleosis, is getting a little better every week, but is not ready to qualify for nationals, Cornell said.

Senior Bret Garrett will have a chance to qualify in the 800-meter run with the caliber of the runners at Indiana, Cornell said.

All-American Ron Harrer will compete at Eastern Illinois again this weekend and try to qualify for the national indoor championships in the 35-pound weight.

"We want Ron Harrer to have every opportunity in the world to qualify," Cornell said.

The women will take a partial team into the competition, with Angie Nunn and Rosanne Vincent still out because of injuries.

"I don't think Nunn will return this indoor season," women's coach Don DeNoon said. Nunn probably will redshirt the indoor season and retain a year of eligibility.

DeNoon said he hopes injured freshman Michelle Sciano will return to the lineup to add strength to the 3,200-meter relay team. Sciano is suffering from a muscle strain.

Key performances are expected from Vivian Sinou and Lisa Judiseak in the 3,000-meter run and Dora Kyriacou in the 400-meter run.

"We're not running toward a team score but for individual victories or placing in certain events," DeNoon said.

Herrin: Tulsa is ready to explode

By Dave Miller
Staff Writer

The Salukis will try to run in and out of Oklahoma without lighting a fire under the defending Missouri Valley champs at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

"Tulsa is like a keg of dynamite ready to explode," Coach Rich Herrin said. "They're a very deep basketball team. They play about nine players. The big thing is they have good talent but they haven't put it together. I'm Tulsa, before Thursday night's game against Creighton, was 5-13 overall and 1-4 in the Valley. Picked to finish fourth in the coaches preseason poll, the Hurricanes are in seventh place. Tulsa is in danger of not being invited to college basketball's prom, the NCAA tournament, for the first time in four years.

The highlight for J.D. Barnett's club has been senior guard Tracey Moore. He is scoring 20.0 points per game and trails only Steve Harris on Tulsa's career scoring list with 1,587 points. Harris, who played from 1981 to 1985, has 2,272 points.

"We have to stop Tracey Moore but the guy who hurts us is (forward-center Donald) Royster," Herrin said. "He's the guy who beat us last year in the Valley tournament."

In the second round of last year's MVC tournament, the Hurricanes beat the Salukis, 61-56. Moore scored 16 and Royster had 15.

Before Tulsa's 72-57 loss to Brigham Young on

"They're a deep basketball team.

... The big thing is they have good talent but they haven't put it together. I'm concerned about them."

—Coach Rich Herrin

Tuesday, Royster averaged 7.8 ppg and 4.6 rebounds per game. Center Ray Wingard, who was in the Army for three years, averaged 8.8 ppg and 7.4 rpg.

Guard Rod Parker (6.3 ppg, 2.1 rpg), Jamal West (4.2 ppg, 1.7 rpg) and Brian Loyd (3.8 ppg, 2.2 rpg), forwards Wade Jenkins (6.4 ppg, 5.1 rpg), Jeff Sadowski (4.6 ppg, 3.4 rpg) and Michael Scott (3.6 ppg, 3.2 rpg) all have started throughout the season.

Tulsa leads the Valley in defense, holding their opponents to 63.2 points in conference contests. By contrast, the Salukis top the conference in offense at 90.5 points per game in Valley games.

"They're a good defensive team but the tempo they play helps their statistics," Herrin said. "They run 35 seconds off the clock and then they score."

The Salukis will try to break a 15-game losing streak against Tulsa. The Salukis last win came in a 59-58 game in 1980 at the Arena. The Salukis haven't won at Tulsa since 1979.

NBA Players Association reps to consider strike date

CHICAGO (UPI) — Representatives of the NBA Players Association will meet today and consider setting a strike date to revive stalled negotiations with management on a new collective bargaining agreement.

Among topics of discussion between union officials and player representatives from the 23 NBA teams is the lack of progress in the talks, said union vice-president Charles Grantham. The two sides have not met since the union filed an antitrust lawsuit last November and have no plans to meet despite both being in Chicago for the All-Star weekend. The meetings and festivities culminate with the All-Star Game Sunday.

The collective bargaining agreement expired at the end of last season and the union has said it wants to remove the college draft, right of first refusal and the salary cap from any future agreement. The NBPA went so far as to file a suit in federal court in New Jersey claiming the three items violated antitrust legislation.

That suit could take years to settle and in the meantime both sides are entrenched in their positions, making another sports strike an unhappy possibility. The
