Broken Main Shuts Off Water

By Wade Roop

Students and Carbondale residents in what City Manager C. William Norman described as the southwest quadrant of the city were cut off from city water Tuesday morning for about two hours following the break of an eight-inch feeder water main.

Tremendous pressure in an elbow of the feeder line forced the section to blow apart, the city manager said. Recent construction in the area and rains have softened the ground around the line, reducing pressure from the outside, he explained.

Location of the break was outside of the city's filtering plant near the corner of Wall and Park Streets.

The temporary lack of water can result in major problems on campus, said George D. Shepherd, Physical Plant Engineer in charge of the boiler plant.

"Problems become immediate whenever the water is shut off," Shepherd said. One problem area is in providing makeup water for the boiler, he said.

Makeup water, used to replace condensation lost by evaporation, must come from somewhere or the boiler cannot operate, he said.

"What we usually do is tap storage tanks in various campus buildings and drain water directly into the condensation lines," he said.

If necessary water can be used from the University Pool, he added. Water stored on

Chancellor Post Rejected by Board

Cheating Discussed By Faculty

A University-wide disciplinary policy on cheating, or whatever comes under the heading of academic dishonesty, is under discussion by the Faculty Council.

The council heard recommendations from its committee on Student Activities at a meeting Tuesday afternoon on the Edwardsville campus. The recommendations, prepared by an ad hoc committee on academic honesty, were referred back to the committee.

"It's a very complicated and important matter," Council Chairman Robert G. Layer said, "and we felt it shouldn't be submitted without its being fully discussed by the committee."

It is complicated, he said, because there is involved not only the question of academic but legal discipline. When a student is expelled for cheating, for example, it takes on the force of both academic and legal penalty.

Layer said faculty deliberations thus involved not only the degree of penalty but also the kind of penalty to be applied in various cases.

The council also discussed the question of grades and credits for students leaving the University in the middle of a term to enter the military service. No action was taken.

The council did not get to discuss the proposal for a sweeping change in grading policy which has been on the agenda for two consecutive meetings.

It is proposed that a student taking courses outside his field of concentration be given grades of P or E, instead of finer gradations, up to 15 hours.

This, the recommendation says, is necessitated by the "current procedures of American higher education and of industrial and governmental employers" which "place a high premium on rank in class and grade point average."

"This results in a very substantial pressure against the possibility of a student who might be interested in sampling upper division courses outside of his own field," it continues. "In fact, by doing so he finds himself at a very severe disadvantage in competition with the students who have a great deal more background in the field than he..."

WHERE MAIN BROKE—The water supply to campus was disrupted Tuesday morning by a break in the main near the city filtration plant at Wall and Park streets. Here two workmen are in the repair area where the unwelcome water added to the rain-generated mud.

Budget Requests Vote Set Jan. 11

The Illinois Board of Higher Education has eliminated the proposed office of chancellor of higher education systems by altering Phase II of the Master Plan for higher education.

Under the original plan, SIU would have had a chancellor as the chief executive officer over the whole system, including the Carbondale campus and the Edwardsville campus. A president would serve each campus, which would be autonomous and would not share staff. The move changing the plan came Monday.

On Tuesday the Board heard representatives from all state-supported universities present budget requests for the schools for the 1967-69 biennium and discussed the proposals.

Southern requested $110,032,211, an increase of 36.6 per cent over the current operating budget.

Recommendations of the Board's staff will be presented on Jan. 11 and the Board will vote on the budget requests then.

Systems besides SIU affected by the elimination of chancellors are the University of Illinois system, the Regency Universities system, the State Colleges and Universities system and the Illinois Junior College system.

SIU president Delyte W. Morris told a meeting of the University faculty Saturday that he hoped the Board would give SIU and its faculty a chance to voice an opinion on the Master Plan.

Trailer Courts Being Inspected

Reapplication or Move Faces Students Holding Housing Approval for Fall Only

Students who received approved housing for the fall quarter only will either have to move to an accepted living center or make reapplication, according to the Student Affairs Office.

Joseph F. Zaleski, an assistant dean in the office, said that only in extraordinary cases will students who make the reapplication be permitted to continue living in unaccepted living centers.

"Each reapplication that is made will be reviewed on an individual basis," Zaleski said, "and the student's situation will be considered in making a decision."

Trailer courts are being considered as accepted living centers, according to Zaleski.

"We are making the inspections of the courts at the request of the owners," he said.

"They will have to meet various standards set up by the Housing Office," he added.

These standards include a common entrance, adequate facilities, and other requirements.

When the inspections are made, Zaleski continued, each court is considered a "building" and will have to meet the same requirements that a dormitory would have to meet.

When trailers are involved in such a situation, each trailer is considered a "room" in the building, he explained.

"If one trailer does not fulfill the requirements of the housing standards," Zaleski said, "then that situation must be remedied before the court could be approved as an accepted living center."

Zimmerman Lists Geochemistry As Key to Future Explorations

By Holim Kim

"Modern geochemistry will be a key tool in the future exploration for petroleum," an SIU expert told a group of geologists meeting at Owensboro, Ky., Tuesday night.

"Modern geochemistry is not an art. It brings together an interdisciplinary thinking of physicists, geologists and bio-organic chemists," John R. Zimmerman, chairman of the Physics Department, said in an address before the Indiana - Kentucky Geological Society.

Zimmerman came to SIU last summer with a rich back-

"We don't contend that we are authorities in sanitation and general living conditions," Zaleski added, "so we consult the city to see if the place being inspected would pass an inspection based on city health codes."

All places, according to Zaleski, will have to meet the codes established by the city or the county, and also state requirements.

ground in geological research. He last held the post of head of chemical physics and geochemistry research at Mobil Oil Corp.

A frequent speaker before oilmen's meetings, Zimmerman attempts to bridge the gap between the world of research and practice.

"Basic scientific information (discovered through research) allows the geochemist to upgrade the present geological and geophysical methods for discovering new oil reservoirs," he told the geologists.

BUSINESS COMMITTEE MEMBERS—Discussing their role as School of Business Student Council representatives on faculty committees are (from left) Gene Hess, Dennis Layne, Roger Sunnquist and Robert Hansen. They are the first student representatives on the School of Business faculty committees.

Business Department Aided

Students Assist Top Committees

By Mimi Sandifer

Improved student-faculty relations is being sought through student representation on many important committees in the School of Business.

It's done through the School of Business Student Council. Elected members of the council keeps students with in the school's operations, according to Donald Bateman, assistant dean.

"Students gain an insight into policy decisions at all levels within the school," Bateman said.

Gene Hess serves on the Committee to plan a School of Business bulletin. Serving on the radio series committee is Bill Haas.

Jim Wilson is the student representative on the School of Business lecture series committee, and Dennis Layne is serving on the social committee.

The library committee representative is Roger Sunnquist. Robert Hansen serves as the council representative to the superior student (honors) program committee.

"With the coming of the new dean on Jan. 1, our committee is holding off any new programs," said Edward J. Schmidlein, chairman of the superior student (honors) program committee. "But we're hoping Mr. Hansen will not only get the students' ideas to us, but get the faculty ideas back to the students."

The School of Business has 1,400 undergraduates enrolled in the various programs of the school. With the large enrollment, the contributions of the student committee members through fresh outlooks from the student viewpoint are proving beneficial to both students and faculty, Bateman said.

The School of Business Student Council consists of representatives of each student organization within the school. Members are elected at large.

Serving on the faculty committees is only one aspect of the council's duties. Members also contribute to Business School projects and coordinate student activities.

WEEKLY!

A Modest Proposal

Whilst driving down Poplar Street a week ago, I observed a temporary asphalt sidewalk. Upon seeing this inexpensive work of functional improvement, I recalled the "cycle" roads at the University of Illinois.

Drawing upon these two observations and a modest awareness of the traffic problems in Carbondale, I took upon myself the task of devising what may be a partial solution to our most pressing dilemma.

While considering the proposal I will soon put forth, one would do well to remember that the City of Carbondale is spending close to one and one-half million dollars on street improvements—the aim being to alleviate the present traffic congestion and safety crisis.

Since one of the primary difficulties in the present situation is the increasing number of both motorcycles and bicycles, an attempt to improve the situation should be aimed directly at them.

For safety, convenience, and economy, special cycle paths on certain streets should be established. This could be done either by widening certain main thoroughfares and using that extra space for this purpose—or by using them as a special asphalt cycle path.

The latter method would not only be less expensive, but it would have the asset of being a temporary structure that could be altered with very little effort and expense.

These "paths" would not have to be on every street to serve their purpose. If they were aimed towards several centers—such as downtown, the university, and the more populous student living centers, they would not only help alleviate the traffic problem, but would also increase the safety of cyclists and auto drivers alike.

A "Real" Happening

The student body has again witnessed what has become a familiar "happening" at SIU—a campaign and election.

In this "happening," as in past ones, nothing was accomplished. The students did not run on issues—rather they campaigned on a popularity basis. From one point of view this isn't too bad—after all, it's a cute thing to have in your resume when you apply for a job.

The cruelty of this method however is that it becomes a two-edged hoax that splices into the accomplishments of those who are sincerely trying to raise student government from its present abyss of game playing.

In the first place, these would-be student senators occasionally use a number of righteous phrases in their campaign that only serve to prove their ignorance and impotency. This is clearly seen by the vast majority of students who simply refuse to vote—not out of apathy, but because of their realization of the futility that such campaign platforms necessarily demonstrate. (This election witnessed one fairly honest senator, though—she didn't have a platform.)

The second part of this hoax—and by far the most destructive—is what these students do once they are elected. They proceed in their ignorance to sit on their collective duffs, letting four or five other senators do the work. After all their promises they see fit to come to one Senate meeting a week and complain if they are asked to contribute any more time than those two hours. By doing this they are ridiculing the efforts of serious student leaders.

During the next quarter, we at KA hope to be able to bring our readers a profile on a few of the do-nothing senators that are "representing" the students. We are sure it will be a real "Happening."

LSID

by Mike Harris

down the way where the nights are gay and the dancing girls sway to and fro . . . I took a quip on a carrotine ship and when I reached S.I.U. I made a stop LSD stands for Little Southern Dill.

And now my story. From a friend of mine I bought a dill, (a plant of the carrot family with aromatic seeds used to flavor pickles). I had heard a great deal about this localized and controversial carrot. So I simply had to try it. I had read about it in Newsweek and Time magazines. So I was an authority. LSD, I understood, would send the person who took it on a marvelous "quip"—a soul-searching voyage into the sublime, introspective reaches of hilarity. I love my Mother, but oh you ID sort of thing.

I wasn't foolish about taking LSD. An anti-Establishment member in the Department of Psychology assisted me in taking LSD under cautious clinical supervision. He was a "quipmaster," as he had taken five "quips" already.

On Saturday morning I "popped a carrot," as the saying among carrot heads goes. My friend, who shall remain nameless because he is working on his Masters here at SIU, turned on his portable tape-recorder. Nothing significant happened for about 30 minutes.

I was talking to my friend about Skinner boxes, controlled variables, Pavlov, and behavior principles because I was deeply interested in psychology. Even though I had flunked GSB 201c.

Then stringent awareness hit. My mind expanded. My consciousness was like a tranquil ocean. Everything I saw and heard sent visions and sound waves into that ocean—the ripples were delicious.

I saw strange things on my "quip."

President Morris riding a Norton with his wife on the back, her arms wrapped tightly around her husband's waist—the rocks on campus were mystical blocks, transparent, as if they weren't there at all—I was suddenly reading a copy of the student newspaper and enjoying every letter of every word, every line, the editorial page made my laughter seem funny—Carbondale landlords were walking, talking, singing, no-vacancy smiles lighting their off-campus faces in extraterrestrial glow.

I was completely turned on—at the zenith of my "quip."

Colors seemed to ooze from every cubic centimeter of atomic space. The Merry Christmas billboard on Rt. #51 seemed to tickle my very soul like a Yuletide feather—my heart seemed to shatter into fragments of mirth when I saw students without stickers on their automobiles—I walked into the University Center and ate lunch, munching in elation as every bite of food exploded like ecstasy on my taste buds, a kaleidoscope of pleasure swirled like an evanescent eddy as the coffee coated my inner contentment.

For hours on endless, heavenly, superb, the sights, sounds supreme, salient smells—my senses seemed to scintillate into virginal voice patterns carressing the hymen of the taperecorder my friend was carrying.

I walked through leaves of equality—saw faculty members conversing with students as if they were both seeking knowledge—Negroes and whites danced by magic fountains of rainbow water—demonstrators burned their signs as there was nothing to hate—tunnels of joy opened up before me into vast stretches of sensible reality.

Placards of kindness and warmth emblazoned storefronts in downtown Carbondale—proprietors smiled with sincere sugar of life smiles—taverns and cocktail lounges permitted nineteen-year-old Congressional Medal of Honor winners to drink a glass of beer—Venus syllables volunteered rolled of the tongues of coeds discussing sex in a rational and not a rapish vernacular—my mind heard and my ears saw the sights and sounds of indifference inverted—clowns laughed on the heads—harpies were now happy—and all was right with the Carbondale-SIU universe, now fused into a harlequin dance of harmony.

My "quip" lasted a full twelve hours. I came down gently. Slept like a kitten. And woke up Sunday morning feeling no after-effects at all.

I learned Monday that I wouldn't ever get a chance to take LSD again. No more days of "popping a carrot" or turning in and on to the articulation of life.

My friend has been indicted for selling LSD. A full 18-carrot indictment I might add. And he was the only person I knew who sold LSD in this area.

So that's that. But not quite. By hoc or by crook the University found out about LSD. They confiscated my tape recording; took away my psychology grad student's teaching certificate and put me on every type of probations known—even some I'd never heard of.

Oh, by the way, I said LSD offered no ill-effects. Only partially true. When I saw what was going on (after I had seen what should be going on while under LSD) I looked at SIU again and had headaches, nausea, convulsions, and vomiting too.

Freedom & War

I would like to register a protest (or, more correctly, four protests) over the article "All Our Battles Soon Forgotten" in last week's KA.

1) The author confessed to "Recently pass (ing) through (a period of idealism) wherein (I foolishly thought the military) was hardly the proper way to introduce our idea of freedom to the Asians." Meaning: he evidently now feels that Asian freedom is best served by the minions of the Viet Cong—whose idea of pleasant sport is to lob mortars into Hue, blow up school busses, and lop off the recalcitrant heads of village chiefs. (Aha! But we are no better. After all, we bomb and kill non-combatants, also. Aha? Since when are the two acts equitable? The Nazis maintained death camps, and the Allies bombed Paris and Bonn. The two acts are synonymous?)

2) "I should know now," he says sarcastically, "that it is war, not peace, which should determine the future of peoples." Perhaps war shouldn't, but it frequently must. The problem boils down to this: there are certain occasions when a nation must fight or switch. So the nation's leaders haul out their chart of values, and say, "OK (you-all), which is more important—principle and honor, or personal safety?" If they decide the latter, they quail and quake and submit to those leaders who have decided the former. In a word, the question is: are there things in this world worth fighting for? (And the answer is: Yes.)

3) "And (I know) that it is the bomb (and not Bertrand Russell's philosophy) . . . which should hold the key to tomorrow's progress." I wonder if it has ever occurred to him that for the past 25 years it has been the American possession of dat ol' deblil bomb which has permitted Russell to philosophize? (If it hasn't occurred to him it has, at least, occurred to Russell, who wrote to Dr. Walter Marselle of Trinity College: "(The West must consider war with the Soviet Union) . . . Atomic bombs, if used, will have to be dropped on W. Europe, since Russia will be out of reach . . . (but) . . . even at such a price, I think it would be worthwhile. Communism must be wiped out and a world government created." And that, mind you, is the man who now wishes to try Lyndon Johnson for crimes against humanity. (For the text of Russell's letter, see the Saturday Review, Oct. 16, 1954.)

4) And finally, the article contained the traditional escalated conclusion that if free people are willing to fight to stay free, nuclear rubble will be the only result. And we must admit: this is possible. What is involved is the hierarchy of values again. Fight or switch? If we fight, we could possibly end up in a world ". . . without people." If we switch—we must necessarily end up in a world without freedom, a world of Proles and double-thinking humanoids—who are hardly people anyway. Programmed protoplasm doth not a people make.

Administrators Invited to Respond

Notable for their absence from the pages of KA are articles from administrative officials, and not because the editors have failed to print any—they haven't received any.

We feel there is a need for administrative responses to questions raised in print by students, but these responses have been few and far between and often not in written form.

Although KA is a student opinion page, it does not seem out of line with that function to print articles by administrators answering queries or resolving mass confusion (i.e., housing regulation enforcement).

The editors of KA would like to extend an open invitation to all administrators to submit responses to questions raised on the pages of KA.

In addition, the editors wish to announce a new feature, KaQueries, similar to other papers' "Action Line." Any student may submit a question to KA; the most interesting and most important will be published, with answers, as soon as possible after being received. Such questions should be short and to the point, and should be worded so as to prompt a short reply. For instance, a question such as, "What are the motorcycle regulations at SIU?" would not be used by KA. We would sympathize with your confusion (we don't know ourselves), but an answer would take up quite a bit of room.

Ultimately (and soon, we hope), KA will have the staff and the funds to answer all questions which may be submitted. Until then, we believe this new feature will be of benefit to all students.

A Brief Interview with Paul Mann

Mr. Mann, distinguished Broadway and Hollywood actor, was featured as visiting artist in the world premiere of Mordecai Gorelik's RAINBOW TERRACE courtesy of The Repertory Theatre of Lincoln Centre, New York City.

How would you compare your recent experience in a university production to your work in the professional theatre?

MANN: First of all, I do not feel that there was adequate rehearsal time. It had less than two weeks to prepare my role. The fact that someone will say that this is typical does not help to improve the situation. By comparison, the football, baseball, and track teams undertake a much more strenuous training program than the theatre team. I have been in educational theatre all my life; a poorly rehearsed production does not constitute educational theatre.

The student cannot learn the art of acting simply by memorizing lines and walking across the stage. The words of a play are an organic part of that play. They can only become an organic part of the actor's character through careful rehearsal. The lines are an expression of the actions, i.e., the inner, psychological drives whose objective is the fulfillment of one's desires. Speech is merely an extension of doing. And the actor's "organic" conditioning to new words and actions is a gradual process.

It is not a question of contrasting the terms "educational" and "professional." In a university, the effort of preparing actors should be no less than that expended in training doctors. Practice in band-aid drills is not considered sufficient preparation for a career in medicine. In other words, one is either training people for the theatre or one must boldly acknowledge that he is involved in an amateur, dilettante activity. You have a fine, new theatre which provides an opportunity for an excellent program. Certainly, the performances should live up to the building.

While the play was imperfect and the situation was imperfect, I am glad to have been part of this production, because I hope that my struggle will influence a change in the present circumstances.

What suggestions would you make regarding an adequate training program for actors?

MANN: A student wishing to become an actor should have between 1500 and 2000 hours of acting experience in four years of study. During this period, he should also take the following subjects: speech; voice (singing); dance (folk and ballet); fencing; American and world literature, history, and music; anthropology; psychology; philosophy; sociology; and two foreign languages, plus the study of various American and European dialects. What am I advocating? Simply, that our actors should be cultured Americans who are intimately aware of their heritage. We should be preparing actors who will be proficient in interpreting our own playwrights before attempting any others. The more national one is in character the more deeply international one can become. Thus, at certain points in his development, the student will gradually attack those roles which will help him grow as an actor. In this way, it is hoped that a "professional" attitude will permeate the "educational" quality of the university theatre.

KA Editors to Enroll in YMCA Novice Swimming Instruction Class

Editor's Note: Last Wednesday, KA printed an article titled "All Our Battles Soon Forgotten" the article was authored by none other than S.I.U.'s Student Emeritus — L.E.J. But for strange and mysterious reasons, Mr. Johnson's byline was omitted. Promptly following that regrettable occurrence the letter printed below arrived at the KA World Headquarters.

Gentleman: Since my arrival at Southern Illinois University, I have been an interested observer of the fight(s) between you of KA and they of the administration. It has always seemed to me that they of the administration have been in error when questioning the competence of you of KA. That was the case until last Wednesday when I read an extremely well written article in your pages titled "All Our Battles Soon Forgotten" — an article of such outstanding merit that any aspiring young writer would have been pleased to have his byline attached to it.

What can I say of this shining example of gross incompetence?

And of no little concern without a name on that excellent anti-war article how can Phil Weber, S.I.U.'s War Hawk in Residence, properly address his rebuttle.

In conclusion let it be known that if such flagrant transgressions of literary propriety continue, I will be forced to align myself with the administrative forces and "lead a movement" to pull a Lovejoy on the KA World Headquarters. Complete with dumping the Editors into the foamy brine of Campus Lake.

Respectfully yours,

Performance Set Of Aladdin's Lamp Thursday, Friday

"Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp" will be presented at 3 p.m. today, Thursday and Friday in the theater of the Communications Building.

The play is the story of a curious boy who discovers a magic lamp in a secluded glen. Upon rubbing it, a genie appears to grant the boy's every wish.

Aladdin falls in love with the princess Adora and must prove himself to her over-protective father, the Sultan.

A mad African magician, who wants to use the powers of the lamp for the perpetration of evil, complicates the efforts of young Aladdin.

The play is being presented by the SIU chapter of the American Association of University Women in cooperation with the Department of Theater.

"Aladdin" was presented as part of the Department of Theater's 1966 tour in Southern Illinois and adjacent states.

No more tickets are available for any performance, according to John Perry of the Department of Theater.

Raizis Not Poet

An article Saturday in the Daily Egyptian stated that Marios B. Raizis, assistant professor of English, was one of the best contemporary Greek poets.

The reference should have been to his subject, George Seferis. Raizis is not a poet, but he spoke on Seferis, who is a noted Greek poet.

Raizis, in his talk on Seferis and the Greek Poetic Tradition, compared the modern Greek poet with selected ancient Greek poets.

NO SIDEWALKS—Students walking to campus via Wall Street find the going muddy in weather like that of this week. Because there are no sidewalks, many are forced to the roadway in order to avoid the muddy shoulders. One student was hit and seriously injured in a hit and run accident in this area.

campus would keep the boiler in operation for about three days, but only the boiler, he emphasized.

Shepherd estimated that the boiler used from 10,000 to 25,000 gallons of water each day. He added that the heating system has never been shut down because of a water shortage, although emergency preparation has been necessary several times.

In the event the plant shut down it would take up to four hours before steam could be recirculated throughout the campus. In cold weather a serious problem of freezing pipes might result, he said.

In addition to the boiler plant, the campus has many other areas that are drastically affected by a water shutdown. Dormitories are affected by a lack of sanitary facilities and cafeteria facilities are handicapped both in preparing food and cleaning dishes.

Shepherd said he notified cafeteria personnel Tuesday that they may have to use paper plates if the water was not turned on.

"It starts to affect everything," he continued. SIU uses on the average a little under one million gallons of water a day on a yearly average.

During the summer months one air conditioning tower will consume as much as 25,000 gallons a day and during the winter months Shepherd estimated the largest water user to be the University laundry.

Fire protection, Shepherd said, would be quite a problem. "No pressure in mains would be the biggest problem," he said. Fire fighting equipment would have to rely on pumps and probably would not be able to produce much pressure.

During the two hours that the water feeder was broken well over 300,000 gallons of water escaped. Norman said a storage tank in the filtering plant contained that amount of water and that it was completely drained.

The break was isolated and shut off within a half an hour after the break was detected, the city manager said.

3,300 Donuts Ready for Fete

Imagine a stack of donuts twice as high as Neely Hall, or a line of donuts that would reach around the base of Neely one and a half times.

If you think that's a lot of donuts, you're right.

The people in charge of President Morris' Donut Hour, to be held from 9 to 11 a.m. Thursday in the Arena, hope it will be enough.

Approximately 4,000 to 6,000 persons are expected to attend the event.

To serve this many people, 3,300 donuts, 84 gallons of cider, and approximately 20 gallons of coffee have been ordered.

The food service in the University Center will have 4,000 cups on hand to serve the beverages.

Also needed, according to the food service, will be two gallons of cream and nearly 10 pounds of sugar.

To help serve everyone, the Sigma Sigma Sigma pledge class is donating its time.

Nine pledges an hour will work at the three tables to be set up in the Arena with three pledges at each table.

Kramer, Husted to Head Up Annual Theta Xi Show

Vern Kramer and Dave Husted have been elected co-chairmen of the 20th annual Theta Xi Variety Show to be held March 3 and 4 in Shryock Auditorium.

Entries are divided into three categories according to the number of participants in each act. Sigma Kappa and Phi Sigma Kappa won first place in the group division last year, Moody and Company won the intermediate division and the B. Carol Randle Trio took first place in the individual category.

For the first time since 1963 tryouts will be held to try and find a student emcee for the show. Applications for emcee tryouts and act tryouts will be available at the University Center information desk on Jan. 9.

The variety show was started in 1947 by Kappa Delta Alpha, a local fraternity which later became Theta Xi. Begun as an outlet for student talent, the show has become a two-night event.

Husted is a sophomore in math. He has served on the Greek Week Steering Committee, Homecoming Steering Committee, the University Center Programming Board, is a member of Phi Eta Sigma, and is presently serving as Scholarship Chairman and Inter-Fraternity Council representative for the fraternity.

Kramer is a junior majoring in design. He is presently serving as rush chairman for the fraternity and has held the office of house manager.

Audubon Film on Northwest Slated

"The Untamed Olympics," a film produced by the National Audubon Society, will be shown at 8 p.m. today in Furr Auditorium in University School.

Undergraduate participants in the program may earn six quarter hours credit in social studies, and graduate students may earn four quarter hours credit.

Costs for the seminar will be about $1,220 per student and include transportation, lodging, admission fees and meals.

Students interested in the program must apply as soon as possible. Information and application forms may be picked up in Room 113 of Anthony Hall.

Berkeley Boycott Falters

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—The Student Senate and the campus newspaper Tuesday withdrew their support of the student strike on the University of California's Berkeley campus.

These actions, significantly weakening the strike protest against administration rule enforcement, came after the faculty's Academic Senate overwhelmingly voted its confidence Monday night in Chancellor Roger W. Heyns.

The faculty resolution pledged support and cooperation to Heyns and called for an immediate end of the classroom boycott.

The strike was called to protest police action last Wednesday breaking up a demonstration against a Navy recruiting team in the Student Union. Ten persons were arrested, including six non-students.

Heyns will report to a special session of the Board of Regents today on his progress in dealing with the student unrest.

The Student Senate, policy body of the Associated Students of the University of California, voted 13 to 7 to withdraw its strike support.

Spokesmen for the AFL-CIO Federation of Teachers teaching assistants unit urged that strike support should be continued.

Russians Told U.S. Citizen Badly Treated

MOSCOW (AP)—The U.S. Embassy delivered a strong protest to the Foreign Ministry Tuesday and demanded the release of an American citizen held in Czechoslovakia on spy charges.

A spokesman said the embassy protested the "impermissible treatment" of Vladimir Kazan-Komarek, who was taken off a Soviet Aeroflot airliner Oct. 31 during an unscheduled stop in Prague.

Davis E. Boster, acting deputy chief of mission of the embassy here, delivered the protest to V.I. Oberemko, deputy chief of the American section of the Soviet Foreign Ministry.

The spokesman said Boster told Oberemko that the U.S. government "called on the Soviet government, in view of the direct responsibility of Aeroflot in the matter, to exert efforts to obtain Kazan's release."

Oberemko repeated the Soviet position that the plane had made an emergency landing in Prague. He agreed to submit the U.S. protest to his superiors.

The Daily Californian, which last week backed the classroom boycott, said in a special edition today that the faculty vote "buttresses Heyns' position so much that the strike cannot win."

"It must end today," the paper declared.

Heyns met late Monday night with student strike committee members. Their talk produced no immediate progress.

Strike committee spokesmen said a decision on the course of the strike would be announced at a rally.

Kosygin States Russia-U. S. Relations Depend on Vietnam

LYON, France (AP)—Premier Alexei N. Kosygin of the Soviet Union said Tuesday night "we want a relaxation of tension, we want an understanding with the United States."

He told The Associated Press relations would certainly improve if the war in Viet Nam were ended.

Kosygin interviewed at an official reception in the Lyon City Hall, was asked if he believed there is a community of interest between the United States and the Soviet Union.

"There is a community of interest," he said. "We must seek peace. But at this time the United States is bombing the peaceful population of Viet Nam."

"And if there were no war in Viet Nam?"

"If the war were ended relations would certainly improve. But there is no sign that the United States is ready to end the war. If it were ended, then we would see. We want a detente. We want peace. We want a better understanding with the United States."

Asked about the new government in West Germany and the stated intention of the new chancellor, Kurt Georg Kiesinger, to improve relations with Moscow, the premier said, "It is up to Mr. Kiesinger to take the first step."

$9-$10 Billion More Asked for Viet War

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson disclosed Tuesday that he expects to ask Congress for $9 billion to $10 billion in additional funds for fighting the war in Viet Nam through next June 30.

This additional amount to be asked of Congress would raise the total defense spending for the current fiscal year to $67 billion or $68 billion.

The announcement followed discussions on military spending with Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and the chiefs of all the armed forces.

Afterward Johnson saw reporters in his office in the federal building here. With McNamara standing by, he said that "we made substantial progress today."

But there was no inkling of what the new budget that goes to Congress next month will carry in total defense funds or whether the figure would be higher or lower than the $67 or $68 billion now expected for the present year.

Nor was there any word on whether there may be a tax increase next year or how big it might be if there is one.

Earlier in the day, President Johnson had presented the 10th Medal of Honor for valor

Men's Mini Skirts Shown in Germany

MUNICH, Germany (AP)—A Munich men's shop came up Tuesday with an answer to women who wear trousers: Men who wear mini-skirts.

Hairy-legged male models, dressed in tight-high skirts, looked like men with bath towels wrapped around their middles.

The men's fashion house prescribed high-laced boots to be worn with the skirt—to give the outfit something of a Roman legionnaire character.

While some of the fashion show audience approved, a street test showed most of the public wasn't quite ready for his sort of thing. Passersby laughed and shook their heads.

in Viet Nam. He said the American people are facing the war with patience and fortitude that far outweighs the complaints of the dissenters.

Johnson clasped the pale blue ribbon of the nation's highest decoration around the neck of a 23-year-old Marine sergeant, Robert Emmett O'Malley, who was wounded three times in a 1965 engagement that saw him kill at least eight Communist Viet Cong guerrillas.

At a colorful outdoor ceremony here, Johnson said the Viet Nam war "deserves not only the bravery of our soldiers but the patience and the fortitude of all of our citizens."

Germany Grounds Starfighter Jets

BONN, Germany (AP)—Lt. Gen. Johannes Steinhoff, the West German air force chief, Tuesday ordered all F104G Starfighter jets grounded until further notice.

The order followed a crash on Nov. 28 in which the air force lost its 65th Starfighter. The pilot was killed in that crash.

The American - designed plane has come under repeated criticism because of the repeated accidents. The air force has about 700 of them. All are built in Germany under license.

Pearl Harbor Hit 25 Years Ago

By The Associated Press

It was Dec. 7, 1941 — one-quarter of a century ago.

A senator named Harry S. Truman was sound asleep in a small hotel in Columbia, Mo. Dwight D. Eisenhower, just promoted to brigadier general, was catching a nap in his quarters at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.

Brig. Gen. Omar N. Bradley was admiring the flowers in the yard of his home at Ft. Benning, Ga.

A scrawny, 17-year-old farm hand, Audie L. Murphy, was trudging down a muddy road near Floyd, Tex.

Lt. Col. Mark Clark of the U.S. Army was taking an after-dinner stroll through a woods in Virginia.

In East St. Louis, Ill., muscular Hank Bauer, 19, was brooding over whether he would ever make it to the big leagues.

At the Defense Department in Washington a young captain of military intelligence, Dean Rusk, was poring over papers in his office.

Another young Army officer, William C. Westmoreland, was in his car between Ft. Bragg, N.C., and Greensboro, N.C.

All were about to hear that the Japanese had attacked

Pearl Harbor, plunging the United States into World War II.

And where was Lyndon B. Johnson, then a congressman from Texas; now the President of the United States?

Says Bill D. Moyers, White House press secretary: "He doesn't have any special recollection of that day, including where he was."

Adlai III May Have to Reverse Stand on Income Tax Proposal

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—State Treasurer-elect Adlai Stevenson III said Tuesday, "I may have to be for" the income tax proposal which he opposed during his election campaign.

"I don't know of enough economies to pay increased bills for universities, highways and common schools," Stevenson said at a news conference.

He said graduated and flat rate state income taxes were possible choices for additional revenue. He also listed general service taxes, or a corporation franchise tax based on income.

Increased federal aid is another possibility, he said, including the sharing of federal income taxes with states.

Stevenson said he reconciled his opposition to a state income tax with his participating sponsorship of an income tax and other bills in the 1965 General Assembly.

"I wasn't for all of them. I thought the way to face up to reality was to prepare alternatives. I don't see how we can face up to reality if somebody doesn't stick his neck out. That's what I was doing."

Stevenson, a Democrat, who held the new conference with State Treasurer William J. Scott, a Republican, forecast

New Site Named For Ruby's Trial

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Jack Ruby will be tried a second time for the murder of Lee Harvey Oswald, Judge Louis Holland announced today.

Ground Fire Downs Plane; Crew Rescued

SAIGON (AP)—Three U.S. helicopters teamed up over North Viet Nam Tuesday and rescued the two crewmen of a downed RF4C jet, plus two medics who went to their aid. This broke a spell in which the United States had lost 15 fliers since Friday.

Mass defection of 63 Viet Cong guerrillas in the South coincided with a suggestion of U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge that the war "just might fade out," like Communist uprisings in the Philippines and Malaysia, with no formal end.

U.S. B52 jets from Guam hit at three Viet Cong base camps on a 300-mile arc. A spokesman said Vietnamese irregulars who followed up one of three saturation bombings—near the Cambodian frontier in Tay Ninh Province—seized 30,000 Communist uniforms.

Scattered ground skirmishes flared in each of South Viet Nam's four corps areas. A U.S. spokesman said, however, all were reported to be of a minor nature. Marines said they killed 14 of the enemy Monday in patrol actions near Da Nang. Vietnamese troops reported they killed 14 others in three scattered engagements.

The RF4C, a Phantom specially designed for photo reconnaissance work, was felled by ground fire in the area of Dien Bien Phu, near the Laotian border 180 miles west of Hanoi.

Draft Issue Undecided

CHICAGO (AP)—Anthropologist Margaret Mead proposed Tuesday universal national service for all including women—as a military draft conference argued its way through a third day of examining the Selective Service System and its alternatives.

"Universal national service," she said in a paper presented to the conference, "in addition to solving the problem of fairness for those who are asked to serve in the military in contrast to those who are not, is above all a new institution for creating responsible citizens alert to the problems and responsibilities of nationhood in a rapidly changing world."

Long an advocate of equal rights for women, Miss Mead said "the inclusion of woman on the same basis as men is absolutely essential."

"National service for men only," she said, "would be so handicapped that it might be wiser to retain the present system of Selective Service with its numerically few minor activities like the Peace Corps and Job Corps."

Her comments came as more than 100 scholars, government specialists and students at the conference debated the merits of an all-volunteer professional army as a realistic substitute for the draft.

Earlier, Milton Friedman, University of Chicago economist, and Walter Y. Oi of the University of Washington proposed that it would be financially feasible for the nation to organize a professional army and do away with the draft.

Their proposal was sharply attacked by Harold Wool, director of procurement policy for the Defense Department, who warned that there is no way now "to judge what millions of young Americans might do with their lives."

Conference officials, aware that many ideas being discussed are not new, believe the conferees will agree on some new compromise solutions to the draft problem by the close of the meeting Wednesday night.

These will be recommended to the National Commission on Selective Service, a 20-member panel set up by President Johnson last summer in the aftermath of student protests stemming from the growing U.S. involvement in Viet Nam.

"Let's unplug the computer, boys! Start thinking!"

A lot of people believe that someday computers will do all their thinking for them.

Well, a funny thing is going to happen on the way to the future:

You're going to have to think harder and longer than ever.

Computers can't dream up things like Picturephone service, Telstar® satellite, and some of the other advances in communications we have made. Of course, we depended on computers to solve some of the problems connected with their development. But computers need absolutely clear and thorough instructions, which means a new and tougher discipline on the human intelligence.

And it will take more than a computer to create a pocket phone the size of a matchbook, let's say... or find a practical way to lock a door or turn off an oven by remote telephone control, or to make possible some of the other things we'll have someday.

It takes individuals... perhaps you could be one... launching new ideas, proposing innovations and dreaming dreams.

And someday, we're going to have to find a way to dial locations in space.

Makes you think.

Joint City-SIU Warning Plan Heard by Carbondale Council

A proposal from SIU concerning a joint city-university Civil Defense disaster warning system was heard by the Carbondale City Council at its meeting Monday at City Hall.

Frank A. Bridges, director of the SIU Civil Defense program, issued the proposal which requested that a joint effort be used to finance an $18,000-$20,000 siren warning system. Three of the sirens would be located in Carbondale and one on the campus.

The council, under direction of Mayor Pro-tem William Eaton, deferred the matter to Mayor D. Blaney Miller for further action. Miller was absent from the meeting.

In other action, the Council adopted a resolution calling for a study of street lighting in Carbondale. The proposal, presented by City Manager C. William Norman, called for a complete study of the conditions of the facilities and for the revamping of the facilities. Norman said that the plan is to be ready by April 1, 1967.

The council also passed an ordinance which forbids parking on the west side of Marion Street from Main Street to Walnut Street. Another ordinance passed called for the construction of a four-way stop at the intersection of Illinois Avenue and Oak Street.

National Record Matched

Fraternity Men Hit Books, Edge Undergrad Grade Mark

By Roland Gill

The common conception or probable misconception most persons have of the "real fraternity man" is that he is a clean-cut collegiate who has his nose either dipping into a mug or jeering through a sorority house door.

But at one time or another, as statistics show, the nose on that fraternity man has been pointed toward the pages of books and notes.

Reports show that these "real fraternity men" receive grades that average above those of all other men's grades on the campus, both at SIU and throughout most of the nation.

Figures reported by the SIU Inter-Fraternity Council show that members of the nine fraternities pulled enough all-nighters to tally an overall average of 3.23 for the last year. The undergraduate men's average was 3.17 or .06 lower than the fraternities' overall.

That fraternity nose is thrust into a book quite frequently throughout the nation is shown by an analysis by the National Interfraternity Conference.

Fraternity scholastic averages in almost two-thirds of the nation's colleges and universities where chapters are located topped the respective all-men's averages, according to the analysis.

Of the 3,159 fraternity chapters which were involved in the analysis, 62 per cent nabbed grade reports higher than the all-men's averages.

This nation-wide figure is slightly higher than the averages reported for the two previous years. Slightly over 59 per cent of the groups tallied above the all-men's averages in the years 63-64 and 64-65.

Unconventional Play Structures Making Critic's Job Difficult

By Dianne Anderson

Drama critics recognize their responsibility to and influence upon the public, but the public is getting away from depending upon only the reviewers' opinions, according to a noted drama reviewer speaking here.

Henry Hewes, drama critic for the Saturday Review, related his thoughts on criticism of the contemporary theater to a group of about 40 on Friday afternoon in the University Theatre, Communications Building.

"There just aren't any jobs as drama critics. There are only 18 of us in the New York circle and you'll have to wait 'til one of us dies," he quipped.

Play critiquing is becoming more difficult, according to Hewes. "In 1950 it was quite easy. All plays had the same structure — character and problem, character faces problem and character resolves to solve problem."

"But plays no longer follow conventional structures. We are faced with shapeless plays. The question is, are they more truthful than those which try to follow convention," he said.

Giving numerous examples from Broadway plays and criticisms of them, Hewes listed some qualities of good critics, predispositions a critic has before seeing a play and elements that a critic looks for in a play.

A critic needs humility, enthusiasm, relaxation, a sense of humor, a willingness to be cruel and also to be kind, a willingness to work, a concern for the theater and a "sense of theater," according to Hewes. He shouldn't have to sit through an entire performance before deciding if the production is of high quality, he said.

A play's title, its author, and what he has written previously, and the cast influence a critic even before he sees a new play.

Questions a critic asks himself include whether or not he was held by the play and if he should have been. One can be held by tricks to no purpose, but sometimes even boredom has a purpose, he explained.

Other questions: is the artist's concern for the topic evident; has the playwright related the people in his play to other people and the play's society to society; has the playwright caught the essence of his times; or has the playwright been universal, standing outside society looking at it?

Further, is the play didactic, has the play rested on conventional morality, and does the playwright have originality?

"To us, almost nothing is original," confessed Hewes, "We've seen or heard something similar before." But memorability is important as is the question of whether or not the author is developing or degenerating.

A critic, Hewes said, should not be so creative in his review that he finds things that the audience will be unable to find. He must also find the focus in which the play works.

Hewes quoted Walter Kerr, drama critic for the New York Times, as saying, "I would like to think that my ideas agree with the majority of my readers."

But he added that Brooks Atchison, retired Times critic, said, "I don't think ignorance should be encouraged under any circumstances."

Seminar Set Friday

Paul Watkins, a graduate student in microbiology, will present a seminar at 10 a.m. Friday in Room G-16 of the Life Science Building.

Gymnasts Seeking No. 51 Tonight Against Hawkeyes

Hoping to win its 51st consecutive dual meet, Coach Bill Meade's gymnastics team, the defending NCAA champions, will face the University of Iowa tonight in Iowa City.

The Hawkeyes will present a major hurdle to the Salukis, Meade said. Iowa's Hawkeyes are rated with the Michigan State Spartans as the co-favorites to win the Big Ten conference.

In the Midwest Open, the Hawkeyes were second to the Salukis in number of men sent to the finals. Iowa sent nine men to the finals as did Iowa State and Michigan State.

The Salukis sent 13 men into the finals with 12 finishing in the top six. Meade used a total of 21 men in this meet because he wanted to have more people work to get a better indication of who to use against Iowa.

The strength of the Iowa team rests in the side horse and in the rings. Fred Dennis provides SIU's strength in the rings. He won the Individual championship at the Open with a winning score of 9.6. Two Hawkeyes were in the rings finals.

"The outcome of the meet will hinge a lot on what our side horse men do," said Meade.

Regardless of Iowa's overall strength, Meade believes in his team and says that the Salukis will open the season with a close win over the Hawkeyes. This would increase the Saluki winning streak to 51 dual meet victories in a row.

Last season the Salukis opened with a tight match against Iowa State. The Salukis won 188-187.7. After that meet, the Salukis caught fire and walked through the remainder of the season culminating in the NCAA championships.

SALUKI TURNS POINTER—Saluki mascot John Rush proved Monday he'd make a pretty good bloodhound as he joined the search for Ralph Johnson's contact lens and came up with the lost eyepiece. Here he points out his find to some disbelieving players.

Saluki Swim Team Preparing For Big Eight Invitational Meet

Following their 59-45 dual meet victory over Iowa State, the Saluki swimmers are preparing for a weekend in Lawrence, Kan., for the Big Eight Invitational swim meet.

All the teams in the Big Eight will be represented ex-

Notre Dame Football Team Comes to SIU for An Idea

Notre Dame has been crowned number one in football, but Southern may take the top spot for ingenuity and inventiveness.

Southern Illinois University's 1965-66 basketball team, recipient of UPI's National Championship College Division award as determined by a 35-member board of coaches.

Last year the Salukis were named the nation's outstanding college division basketball team by the United Press. The UPI presented the team with a large gold trophy for its efforts, but you can't split a trophy up so the athletic department felt it should find a means of acknowledging the players individually.

The certificates were sent to the district UPI sports editor, Ed Sainsbury, for his approval. Sainsbury was impressed with the idea and wondered why UPI hadn't thought of it.

With the help of the SIU Printing Service the department drew up a certificate of achievement which was presented to each player. The certificate contained the UPI seal and read, "This is to recognize . . . as a member of Southern Illinois University's 1965-66 basketball team, recipient of UPI's National Championship College Division award as determined by a 35-member board of coaches."

cept the University of Colorado. The meet is scheduled Friday and Saturday.

"This invitational will give us a chance to look at the teams we will meet through the remainder of the year, especially the University of Oklahoma and the University of Nebraska," said Coach Ray Essick.

Essick also pointed out that this meet will also show the overall depth of each team.

Iowa State, one of the teams in the invitational, proved to be no big problem to the Salukis. SIU took eight first places out of 12 against the Cyclones but Essick wasn't overly excited about his team's showing.

The Saluki swimmers don't have any dual meets remaining for the fall term. After the Big Eight Invitational the Salukis will head for Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to participate in the Collegiate Swim Clinic Dec. 27-30.

The next dual meet for the Salukis will be with the Sooners of Oklahoma University Jan. 7 in Norman, Okla.

CONFUSION REIGNS—A missing contact lense in Monday night's basketball game produced a search that involved players, referees, coaches and a dog (John Rush, Saluki mascot). The search lasted several minutes and produced a humorous scene for the onlookers.

Freshman Game Precedes Varsity Tilt

Tough Test Early for Salukis, Face St. Louis Bills Tonight

By Tom Wood

Southern's scrappy man-to-man defense, which overpowered State College of Iowa Monday night will be given the acid test early this year when the Salukis face St. Louis University tonight and the much publicized Billiken contribution to the seven-foot club, center Rich Niemann,

When questioned about the player he would choose to guard Niemann, Coach Jack Hartman replied, "I may ask for volunteers."

Niemann paced St. Louis to an opening 101-56 victory over Quincy, scoring 26 points and snaring 20 rebounds. He hit for 17 points in the Bills' 80-78 loss to Dayton Saturday. He also combined with 6-7 forward Eugene Moore for 29 rebounds in that game.

However, this pair was seldom on the floor together in the Dayton game due to foul trouble early. Moore fouled out with almost nine minutes play and he and Niemann played together for only 12 minutes and 15 seconds, during which time the Bills outscored Dayton 30-15.

St. Louis Coach Joe Brehmer felt the key to the loss was the fact that the Flyers outrebounded St. Louis. He added that he hadn't expected this to happen and this is understandable since Dayton's big man Don May, 6-6 forward who has been rated All-America material by many, was only the third tallest man on the court, May grabbed 27 rebounds though.

St. Louis held a 15-point lead at one point in the game but could not hold it, a point Brehmer attributes to inexperience.

The potency of the Niemann-Moore combination would seem to pose two alternatives for Hartman — either break them up or find some way to stop them when they are together, both assignments sounding highly difficult.

The Salukis must also contend with forward Bob Cole, who scored 16 points against Quincy and 26 against Dayton, and guards John Kilo and Barry Ohms.

However, Brehmer has admitted that the difference between a good team and a national contender in the Billikens' case will rest upon the shoulders of Niemann.

A question which will figure big in the outcome will be whether the Salukis can pull down their share of rebounds against the Bills. The Southern defense controlled the boards against State College of Iowa and forced the Panthers into 20 turnovers and several bad shots.

The leading Saluki rebounder was guard Walt Frazier. He pulled down a dozen stray shots. After him the rebounding was spread out pretty evenly with sophomore Dick Garrett getting eight and Clarence Smith, Ralph Johnson and Chuck Benson gathering in seven each.

Hartman will probably start Frazier and Roger Bechtold at guards, Johnson at center and Smith and Garrett at forwards again. He alternated Johnson and Benson throughout the initial game.

Tonight's game will be played at Kiel Auditorium in St. Louis and will start at 8:30 p.m. The varsity clash is preceded by a freshman game at 6:15. This game is the curtain raiser for the Saluki frosh.
