Psychic aids search team

By John Mohler
Staff Writer

After attempts using helicopters, divers and drag lines failed, searchers have turned to a psychic for help in locating a University student missing in the Big Muddy River since Jan. 23.

"At this point we're ready to check out anything," Kendall Glodo, Murphysboro assistant police chief, said. "It's a real needle-in-a-haystack situation."

The psychic contacted Murphysboro police last week from her residence near Peoria to assist in the search for Ricky Johnson, freshman in forestry. Police said Johnson's parents hired the psychic, whose identity was not revealed.

The psychic described various river sites to police over the telephone and suggested search areas, Glodo said.

"We feel her landmarks were accurate — changes in the river, that type of thing," Glodo said.

"As to whether we believe in psychics or not, that's up to everyone's own appeal," Glodo said. "We'll try anything we can."

The two-week search has been complicated by bad weather, rising and falling water levels and river debris. The searchers believe Johnson's body has not floated south of the Murphysboro area.

Johnson has been missing since a University-owned canoe capsized on the Big Muddy River between Route 13 and old Route 13 in Murphysboro.

Simon faces test in Iowa caucuses

By Dana DeBeaumont
Staff Writer

Sen. Paul Simon's legitimacy as a candidate for the presidential Democratic nomination will be tested today in the Iowa caucuses, Simon supporters say.

"The Iowa caucuses are long, complicated, challenging and very determining," Barbara Brown, an Illinois

Simon delegate candidate and professor of political science, said. "Really die-hard supporters go to meetings and fight out who the delegates will be. It takes the entire evening to get the delegates through the caucuses."

John Jackson, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, said each precinct has a separate meeting for Democrats and Republicans where voters debate and make speeches about the candidates.

"A primary is just like an election before an election, but a caucus starts at the precincts and consists of separate meetings for all Democrats and Republicans that are interested in going," he said.

Brown added that very few voters attend the caucuses because it's a drawn out process. "People have to really feel strongly about a candidate to go to a caucus," Brown said.

At the caucuses, voters divide into groups for the candidate they support.

Death toll in occupied territories rises to 47

BEIT UMMAR, Israeli-occupied West Bank (UPI) — Israeli troops Sunday shot and killed three Palestinians, and a 15-year-old boy allegedly beaten by soldiers died of his wounds in the worst day of anti-Israeli violence since late December.

A 10-year-old boy hit by shrapnel last week, died Saturday night, the army reported Sunday. The five deaths brought to at least 47 the number of Palestinians killed since anti-Israeli violence began Dec. 9.

An army spokesman said an Arab woman, originally reported killed Saturday night by army gunfire, was killed by a "shrapnel object" hurled from a protester's slingshot in the Arub refugee camp near Hebron, 20 miles south of Jerusalem.

The Arab-run Palestine Press Service said at least 26 West Bank residents were wounded by gunfire Sunday. The army said it had reports of three people wounded by gunfire in addition to the three Palestinians killed.

It was the worst day of violence in the occupied territories since five protesters were fatally shot by soldiers and 15 were wounded Dec. 22. Military curfews kept about 170,000 people in the West Bank confined to their homes. No curfews were reported on the Gaza Strip.

"This is the worst day I have witnessed in my three-year stay in this hospital and colleagues who have been here longer say it is the worst in 20 years," Dr. Hani Abdeen of Muqassad Hospital in Jerusalem said.

Abdeen said at least 37 wounded people were admitted Sunday to Muqassad Hospital, including 12 with "quite serious" gunshot wounds and 11 who had been severely beaten.

In addition, Rami Aklug, 15, of the Deir el-balah refugee camp in the Gaza Strip, died at Muqassad Hospital of a brain hemorrhage about 30 minutes after he was transferred from a Gaza Strip hospital, Abdeen said.

The boy's father told doctors his son was beaten by soldiers Saturday, Abdeen said, adding the victim's injuries were "consistent with a beating."

Aklug was believed to be the first beating fatality since Israel announced the army would use physical force, including beatings, to quell disturbances in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, seized from Jordan and Egypt during the 1967 Six-Day War.

An army spokesman denied the youth was beaten by

Panamanian general implicates Poindexter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Panamanian strongman Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, indicted on U.S. charges that he sold his country to drug smugglers, said Sunday in a television interview that he met with U.S. officials in 1985 to discuss plans for an invasion of Nicaragua.

A Noriega aide also interviewed on the CBS "60 Minutes" program said national security adviser John Poindexter urged Noriega at the December 1985 meeting to find a pretext to invade Nicaragua so the United States could join Panamanian forces in the assault.

"They were going to hit Nicaragua," Noriega told "60 Minutes" through a translator during an interview in Panama City. "They were going to invade Nicaragua, and the only reason they hadn't done it was because Panama was in the way, and that all they wanted was Panama to get out of the way and allow them to continue with their plan."

Capt. Moises Cortizo, a Panamanian military officer and 1980 West Point graduate who Noriega said was at the Poindexter meeting, said Poindexter wanted Panamanian forces to attack Nicaragua first, followed by U.S. troops.

"They wanted Panama forces to go in with American forces, but we'd go in first," Cortizo told "60 Minutes" through the translator. "Then we'd get support from the American troops that would be taking part in the invasion."

Noriega said he turned down the U.S. proposal for an invasion. Asked why the U.S. wanted to invade Nicaragua,

Afghan resistance leaders meet with U.N. mediator

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI) — U.N. mediator Diego Cordovez, his mission broadened by his first meeting with Afghan resistance leaders, met Sunday in Kabul with Afghanistan's communist rulers on a possible Soviet troop withdrawal. Cordovez has been leading "proximity talks" in Geneva between Afghan and Pakistani officials on a timetable for a withdrawal of 115,000 Soviet troops from Afghanistan.

PLO rejects U.S. peace proposals in Israel

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (UPI) — The Palestine Liberation Organization Sunday rejected current U.S. peace moves in the Middle East as "aggressive designs" by Washington to abort a 2-month-old uprising in the Israeli-occupied territories. A PLO executive committee statement said the violent protests against 20 years of Israeli rule would continue until Palestinian rights for self-determination and statehood are recognized.

Inauguration held for Haiti's elected president

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (UPI) — Leslie Manigat was inaugurated Sunday as Haiti's first elected president in 30 years and said his victory in army-run elections — condemned by many as rigged — ensured "the chances of a true democracy" in the impoverished Caribbean nation. During a 45-minute inaugural address Manigat, a civilian, said he was ready to meet with political opponents, vowed to act against drug smugglers and defended his victory in widely condemned Jan. 17 polls.

Vietnam to give political prisoners amnesty.

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Vietnam said Sunday officials of the fallen South Vietnam government will be released from political re-education camps this month as part of a lunar New Year amnesty. The prisoners, held since 1975, are expected to be eligible for emigration and have been placed by U.S. immigration authorities atop a priority list for Vietnamese wishing to leave their homeland.

Boy infected with AIDS troubled by solitude

LAKE CITY, Tenn. (UPI) — A 12-year-old boy is forced to attend a special school with no classmates because he is infected with the AIDS virus and his only teacher, Angela Gee, said the youngster is having trouble coping with his solitude. Dwayne, a hemophiliac who was exposed to the human immunodeficiency virus — or HIV — from a blood transfusion, does not have AIDS and may never contract the fatal disease, but demonstrations by parents and threats on the boy's life forced his parents to remove him from school.

Police arrest gays outside famous cathedral

NEW YORK (UPI) — Police arrested 23 gay Catholics kneeling outside St. Patrick's Cathedral Sunday following an outdoor mass held as an alternative to standing silently inside, a gesture recently banned by court order. About 100 gay men and women braved bitter cold temperatures to attend a Catholic service held within police barricades across Fifth Avenue from the famous cathedral where Cardinal John O'Connor was saying mass. Police later arrested 23 of the gay worshippers for disorderly conduct.

Low-level radioactive leak called harmless

SURRY, Va. (UPI) — A small amount of low-level radioactive rubidium gas leaked from turbine valves at Virginia Power Company's Surry nuclear power plant but there were no injuries or evacuations and the public was not in danger, a plant spokesman said Sunday. Jim McDonald, a Virginia Power spokesman, said the leak occurred at 3:30 p.m. Saturday during a routine test. The plant continued to operate normally, he said.

Radical Hoffman warns gathering of students

PISCATAWAY, N.J. (UPI) — Despite warnings from veteran radical Abbie Hoffman, students at a nationwide gathering of campus leftists faced a potentially divisive split Sunday over the issue of regional versus national leadership. The students, representing more than 100 campuses nationwide, said that they appeared to have reached liberal consensus on a range of political and social issues during their conference at Rutgers University, but several of the delegates said organizational problems cited by Hoffman and others as ruining groups in the late 1960s and early 1970s already appear to be plaguing them.

Iowans prepare to pass judgment

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Iowa voters prepared Sunday to pass the first real judgment of the 1988 presidential campaign amid a new round of bickering between George Bush and Bob Dole and a murkier-than-ever Democratic race.

When an estimated 250,000 Iowa voters turn out at 7 p.m. Monday night for both parties' 2,487 precinct caucuses in church basements, schools and living rooms across the state, they will be in a position to make or break 13 would-be presidents.

Eleven candidates were stomping the breadth of this farm state and the television and radio airwaves were saturated with last-minute appeals to undecided voters. Computer-driven organizations were revving up to identify supporters and get them to the caucuses.

Four of the seven Democrats seeking a share of the 57 national convention delegates attended a pancake breakfast in Cedar Rapids and former GOP Delaware Gov. Pete du Pont putted in the annual indoor miniature golf tournament in the Des Moines skywalks.

Dole, the veteran Kansas senator, held a comfortable lead for the 37 Republican delegates in the latest public opinion polls over Bush, the vice president running on the Reagan administration's record. The two men have been conducting a bitter personal feud that continued on the eve of the caucuses.

Bush eagerly answered questions about the Iran-Contra affair in a network television interview, attempting to mute the impression left from his combative interview with CBS anchorman Dan Rather two weeks ago that he was avoiding the subject.

Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri, who has spent more time campaigning here during the past two years — 144 days — than any other candidate, led the seven-man Democratic field, but there were indications Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois was on the ascendancy.

The Iowa Poll published by The Des Moines Register Sunday showed Dole with 37 percent support among likely Republican caucus attendees to 23 percent for Bush and 13 percent for former television evangelist Pat Robertson. But among a smaller group of voters who said they definitely would attend, Robertson was virtually even with the vice president.

The leading candidates tried to keep expectations low, knowing the army of journalists that has invaded this state of 2.8 million people are girded to pounce on the returns late Monday night to write political obituaries or launch candidacies.

The Iowa caucuses, which became an early presidential test in 1972, have had their major impact by returning surprise verdicts.

Police Blotter

A University student was injured after he was hit by a car driven by another student at East Freeman and South Logan streets Sunday morning.

John Buczkiewicz, of 105 Allen III Hall, was taken to Memorial Hospital of Carbondale and later to St. Louis University Hospital after the 12:41 a.m. accident.

According to a St. Louis University Hospital representative, Buczkiewicz is listed in critical condition. Neither hospital would disclose the extent of Buczkiewicz's injuries.

Peter C. Elvart, of 320 E. Walnut, was driving east on East Freeman when he hit Buczkiewicz at the South Logan intersection, Carbondale police said.

Police said Buczkiewicz stepped in front of the car.

Tire marks were found at the scene of the accident on the westbound lane of East

Freeman at least 10 yards west of the South Logan intersection.

The tire marks straddled the curb 15 feet before the intersection and at the corner. Large blood stains were found at the intersection, with traces of blood found at least 90 feet west of the intersection.

Carbondale police declined to give out further information pending an investigation.

Planning needed for transit system

THE PROPOSED CITYWIDE transit system could be the best thing to happen to SIU-C students in years, if it is well thought out.

The system would provide off-campus students with inexpensive transportation to and from campus and around town, which also would ease the parking shortage. It would be well worth the proposed $15 fee per semester to have such a service. But the system will be useless if it is not meticulously planned to correspond to students' needs.

The mass transit committee, which is in charge of researching students' attitudes toward the plan, must be very careful in surveying where students live, where they want to go and at what times buses are needed.

IN ORDER TO accurately gauge these factors, more research must be done than a simple telephone survey, which is the committee's present plan. A professional feasibility study should be conducted. It would be a terrible shame if a mass transit system failed because of poor planning.

The committee, which is part of the Student Welfare Commission, should seek support from the city and from local merchants in developing the system. Merchants, particularly those located further than walking distance from campus, such as in the University Mall, stand to gain if their businesses become more readily accessible to students. They should recognize this and be willing to cooperate with the committee in researching the plan and in developing a feasible proposal to present to the Board of Trustees.

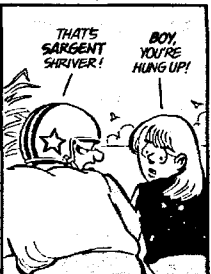

THE CITY ALSO stands to gain from the system in that it would ease the city's traffic flow and encourage students to frequent developing business districts, such as the area east of town surrounding the University Mall.

By the same token, the system would put additional pressure on the city and its merchants to improve Carbondale's downtown area. Many students are forced to shop downtown because they lack transportation. But if they were given convenient access to other parts of town, the merchants on and around South Illinois Avenue would be forced to become more competitive.

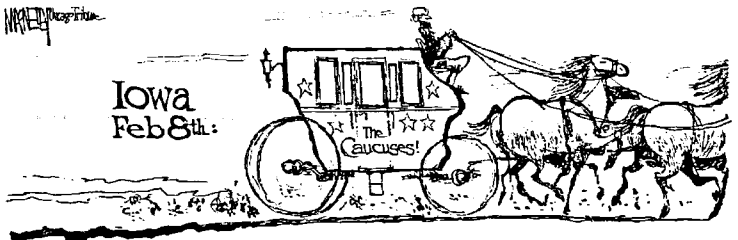

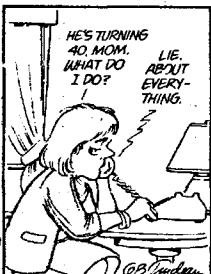

This added pressure on the downtown area may be a blessing in disguise in that it may force the city and its businesspeople to stop the decay of the downtown district. Any pressure to reverse this decay would be positive.

The University, the city and local merchants must work together to develop a bus system that could be a great boon to Carbondale and SIU-C.

President may be able to cut pork

By Arnold Sawislak

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Presidents are supposed to be more powerful than governors, but when he moved into the White House Ronald Reagan quickly noted one area where he had less clout in Washington than he had in Sacramento.

As governor of California, Reagan had the "item veto" — the authority to reject specific items of spending within larger appropriations bills. This power exists in differing forms in 43 states, but it is denied to the president of the United States.

The purpose of the item veto is to give chief executives a way to keep legislatures from loading down money bills with "pork barrel" spending proposals.

A governor with the item veto can strike out individual items from a big appropriations bill. But a president, without it, can only veto an entire bill even when it has only a few items he does not like.

Reagan had this choice when Congress sent him a massive catch-all appropriations bill festooned with spending programs he opposed just before Christmas last year.

News Analysis

Had he vetoed the bill, it would have cut off operating funds for the entire federal government, a situation members of Congress felt he would not dare invoke.

Reagan has asked for line item veto authority in nearly every State of the Union address. But Congress, even when the Republicans controlled the Senate and had a working arrangement with conservative Democrats to work their will in the House, did not move to oblige the president.

The simple fact is that Congress will not give up the power to wrap legislation it knows the president dislikes in a larger bill he wants or must sign.

But now comes Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., with word that he thinks the Constitution already provides a partial item veto. Campaigning for the Republican presidential nomination in Nashua, N.H., Dole cited Article 1, Section 7, Clause 3 of the Constitution that empowers the president to veto any "order, resolution or vote" approved by the House and Senate.

As Dole sees it, that may mean a president may veto a section of a spending bill that was added by an amendment to the original measure and approved by both houses of Congress.

That certainly would not cover every item a president might want to veto, but it might knock a few ornaments off some of the appropriations Christmas trees that Congress passes.

In any case, Dole said if he wins the presidency, "I want every member to know I mean business. And if it means testing the use of this section of the Constitution when I get a bill larded with fat, I will do it. Then, we'll let the courts decide."

Actually, it might not be necessary to wait for Dole to move into the White House. Reagan still has most of a year remaining on his lease, and it ought to be possible between now and next Jan. 20 to find a bill on which he could test the item veto theory.

Then it would be interesting to watch the reaction of the congressional elders, especially the leader of the Senate Republicans, Mr. Dole of Kansas.

Atheism makes no sense

Where is your logic? Are you really open-minded?

If you would not believe that Jesus is the son of God, then would you believe that Jesus was just another common man (like Shakespeare was another common man)?

If you would not believe that the Bible is the word of God, then, would you believe that the Bible is just another book (like "The Origin of Species" is just another common book)?

If you would feel comfortable when someone was mentioning Shakespeare or using quotations from "The Origin of Species," then why would your soul become so troubled when you heard the name of Jesus or quotations from the Bible?

If you would not believe that there is a God, then why should you try to oppose him? How can you fight against something that is non-existent in your mind?

If you would not believe that the word of God has power, then why should you be afraid that someone will be converted?

Would it be possible that deep in your heart you know that God's invisible qualities, both his eternal power and his divine nature have been clearly seen on earth, but you just don't want to recognize his presence? — Fan H. Kung, professor of forestry.

Bush, Dole can't stop feud

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Vice President George Bush and Senate Republican leader Robert Dole tried to put their feud behind them Sunday but kept pounding away at each other on the eve of the Iowa presidential caucuses.

"As far as I'm concerned it (the dispute) is over," Dole said on NBC's "Meet the Press." He then raised questions about the vice president's staff and Bush's role in the Iran-Contra affair.

"I don't like charge and countercharge," Bush told ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley." "Let's talk about some issues."

But when asked if he would apologize to Dole, Bush said "no way" and accused the Dole campaign of running negative ads against him in New Hampshire.

The appearances on national television of the two leaders in the polls kicked off the next-to-last day of campaigning before Iowa's caucuses, which will be the first step in selecting 37 delegates to the Republican National Convention in August.

A Des Moines Register Iowa poll published Sunday showed Dole leading the race with 37 percent of likely caucus-goers to Bush's 23 percent.

But the poll also showed that evangelist Pat Robertson, third with 13 percent, was in a virtual tie with Bush among Iowans who said they definitely planned to attend a caucus Monday night.

In his television appearance, Dole said Iowa voters wanted him and Bush to talk about the issues. "If you can find something wrong with my record, or he can, let's talk about my record," he said.

But the five-day feud kept coming up as did the role of former Dole aide David Owen in getting an unsecured loan from the Small Business Administration.

"Once I found about it, Dave Owen was gone," Dole said and then took a swipe at Bush's staff. "There have been a lot of accusations about Don Gregg but he's still on George Bush's staff."

Gregg is a chief adviser to Bush and, because of his close connections with the Contra rebels, he has become a central figure in the controversy over Bush's role or knowledge of the Iran-Contra affair.

Dole said Democrats are "rubbing their hands with glee" saying "we hope it's going to be George Bush" because of the Iran-Contra thing. "That issue is out there. It's on the table. The Democrats are not going to forget it."

Bush in his appearance repeated that he believed the United States was dealing with Iranian moderates who might help free American hostages being held in Lebanon.

He also said he still could not recall whether he was at a key Jan. 7, 1986, White House meeting.

soldiers.

"A post-mortem was done. There are no signs on the body of either shots or blows. Therefore, we are saying, yes, the person died, but not by us," the spokesman said.

Most of Sunday's violence occurred in small West Bank villages and Arab neighborhoods of Jerusalem.

The worst unrest occurred in Beit Ummar, 12 miles south of Jerusalem, where dozens of villagers, encouraged by instructions read over a mosque's loudspeakers, blocked the Hebron-Jerusalem road, state-run Israel Radio and the army reported.

After rubber bullets and tear gas failed to disperse the crowd, the soldiers used live ammunition to force back the Palestinians, killing three, the radio and army said.

Tensions between Arabs and Jews from the West Bank have been running high following several rock and Molotov cocktail attacks on Jewish-owned cars.

In Hebron, dozens of Arab cars were vandalized Saturday night. An anonymous caller told Israel Radio the damage was done by Jewish settlers.

in different rooms. The groups then rejoin and debate at least twice. People have the opportunity to change groups if they wish, Jackson said. Each precinct's meeting takes six to seven hours, he added.

If a group doesn't have at least 15 percent of the delegates present, the group is broken up and the delegates can either go home or join another candidate's group, Jackson said.

In a Des Moines Register poll of likely caucus participants released Saturday, Richard Gephardt led the pack with 25 percent, Simon followed with 19 percent, Michael Dukakis had 15 percent, Bruce Babbitt and Jesse Jackson had 9 percent each, followed by Gary Hart with 7 percent and Albert Gore Jr. with 1 percent.

But, the poll revealed that 15 percent of likely caucus delegates were undecided.

Simon and his campaign coordinators have said Simon needs to come in at least second in the Iowa caucuses to have enough support and name recognition to stay in the race across the country.

Gephardt, Simon and Dukakis may be so closely packed at the top that who wins won't be the issue, but that the issue will be how wide a margin separates the top three.

"Iowa is the first indicator of how well these multiple candidates will do with real voters," he said. "That's the only reason Iowa is so important, because it makes no sense to let Iowa get this kind of incredible exposure."

Today Simon will be walking the streets and canvassing in the cities of Davenport, Cedar Rapids, Des Moines, Council Bluffs, Sioux City and Mason City, John Talariko, a Simon coordinator in Des Moines, said.

University voter drive ends today

Today is the deadline to register to vote in the March 15 Illinois primary through campus organizations.

The Undergraduate Student Organization and the Graduate and Professional Student Council are registering people to vote from noon to 3 p.m. at a table at the south end of the Student Center, John Attard, a USO spokesman said.

Students also may register to vote at Carbondale City Hall, 609 E. College St., and the Jackson County Courthouse in Murphysboro through Feb. 15.

Cortizo said, "I don't know. That wasn't our business. That was Mr. Poindexter's problem."

Noriega said earlier in the interview that Poindexter also threatened Panama with economic and political retaliation if it did not help train the Contra rebels fighting Nicaragua's Sandinista government.

"He said Panama and Mexico were acting against U.S. policy in Central America because we were speaking of peacefully solving the Nicaraguan crisis, and that was not good for the Reagan administration plans," Noriega said.

"The only thing that would save us from being hit both politically and economically by the U.S. would be if we allowed the Contras to be trained in Panama in their fight against Nicaragua."

National Security Council officials declined to comment on Noriega's charges, "60 Minutes" reported.

Noriega also said the indictments were part of a U.S. scheme to renege on the Panama Canal Treaty and keep the waterway rather than hand it over in the year 2,000 as mandated by the pact. He vowed he would "show due process of law in the U.S. has been violated in this case."

"We will show it in U.S. court and we will show it legally," he said.

Asked if he would come to the United States to fight the charges, Noriega said only, "We will show that this is a political scheme, period."

Noriega, 50, was indicted Thursday by federal grand juries in Tampa and Miami. The Miami indictment charged him with taking millions in bribes from drug smugglers, turning Panama into a haven for drug traffickers and allowing them to use the country as a shipping point.

The Tampa indictment charges Noriega with arranging to smuggle nearly 1 million pounds of marijuana into the United States over a two-year period.

Noriega, who faces mounting opposition at home, has been the de facto ruler of Panama since 1983 as the head of the Panama Defense Forces.

He is the subject of congressional hearings into his alleged involvement in drug trafficking.

U.S. Air Force band to perform at Shryock

The U.S. Air Force Military Airlift Command Band, considered one of the best military bands in the world, will give a free performance 8 p.m. Monday in Shryock Auditorium.

Headquartered at Scott Air Force Base near Belleville and formerly known as the Air Force Band of Mid-America, the 35-member group travels the Midwest performing Broadway show tunes, jazz, country and western, top-40 numbers and military marches.

Band Commander and conductor Maj. H. Bruce Gilkes is a former commander and conductor of the Air Force Band of the East and Air Force Band of New England and conductor of the Singing Sergeants, official chorus of the Air Force.

Vocalists are Chief Master Sgt. Bob Ellison, who has performed in theatrical productions and as guest soloist with the St. Louis Symphony Pops Orchestra and Pittsburgh Pops Orchestra, and Sgt. Debi Mahoney.

The program includes: "American Overture," by Joseph Wilcox Jenkins. "King Cotton," by John Philip Sousa.

"Sweet Inspiration — Where You Lead," arranged by Bruce Penticoff.

"Gershwin," arr. by Barker. "Just Friends," arr. by W. King.

"When Sunny Gets Blue," arr. by Penticoff.

"My Prince," arr. by M. Hansen.

"Tiger of San Pedro," by John LaBarbera.

"Every Day I Have the Blues," arr. by Penticoff.

"Barnum and Bailey's Favorite," by K.L. King.

"The Way We Were," by Marvin Hamlisch.

"The Sky's the Limit," by Leon Patillo.

"An American Celebration," arr. by Higgins and Penticoff.

Although the concert is free, tickets are required and may be obtained at the School of Music in Altgeld Hall.

Headaches differ in causes, remedies, professor says

By Edward Rahe
Staff Writer

It's late at night. You've been up for hours studying for an exam you must pass. Then it hits you, that unmistakable throbbing pair of a headache brought on by stress.

Before you reach for a bottle of aspirin, consider what Roger Poppen, associate professor at the University's Behavior Analysis & Therapy Program, has to say about headaches.

Poppen recently spent his sabbatical leave at the Center for Stress and Anxiety Disorders at the State University of New York at Albany assisting in an ongoing study of 100 headache sufferers.

"HEADACHES ARE a generally accepted phenomenon," said Poppen. According to a recent survey of college students, 14 percent of all men and 28 percent of all women reported having at least one headache over a one-week period.

The patients in Poppen's study were mostly those for whom drug treatment was ineffective.

"The levels of medicine people take for a headache is amazing," Poppen said. "For some, drugs are inefficient."

One study estimated that Americans spend an average of $500 a year on headache remedies.

POPPEL SAID, "T.V. ads suggest a very lucrative business."

In order to determine the best treatment for headaches, patients at the Center for Stress and Anxiety Disorders are thoroughly analyzed to determine what stress factors cause the headache. After a complete analysis, patients suffering from tension headaches are taught methods of relaxation training.

The training teaches people to tense and relax muscles in 16 zones of the body and to differentiate between the feelings of tense and relaxed muscles. Stress management and coping strategies also are part of training.

Migraine sufferers are treated through relaxation techniques and a method of biorhythm therapy which teaches patients how to control body temperature in order to prevent migraines.

HEADACHES CAN be categorized into four main types, ranging in source from brain tumor to eyestrain, Poppen said.

Migraine headaches, usually hereditary, are caused when blood vessels in the brain constrict. A lack of oxygen in the brain causes the heart to pump extra blood into the constricted vessels resulting in excruciating pain.

Migraine headaches commonly occur in hyperactive people. Such people often suffer from chronic migraines and need to learn to relax, Poppen said.

A person who suffers from classic migraines may encounter a number of symptoms before the onset of the headache. These symptoms include gastro-intestinal pain, visual sensitivity to light, nausea and in some cases, paralysis.

COMMON MIGRAINE sufferers usually don't experience symptoms prior to the onset of the headache, Poppen said.

In a very small number of people, migraines can be caused by foods like cheese, red wine and chocolate. These foods contain a chemical, tyramine, that is shown to cause migraine headaches.

A third type of migraine, the cluster headache, is the rarest type of migraine and the most debilitating. Cluster headaches are characterized by extreme head pain which lasts about an hour. The pain can occur daily for several weeks or months and then disappear for several months.

THE SECOND category of headaches is the more common tension headache caused by an imbalance in physical organ systems brought on by stress. Muscles in the head, neck and shoulders become tense and cause a dull throb in the head.

The third category includes mixed headaches, a combination of migraine and tension headaches. The fourth category, psychogenic headaches, are suffered by people who cannot be categorized as suffering from either a migraine or tension headache. Most often psychogenic headaches are a product of the patient's psychiatric delusions, Poppen said.

Blood drive surpasses pint goal

The three-day blood drive netted 925 pints of blood, 14 pints more than the goal, Vivian Ugent, Southern Illinois Red Cross coordinator, said.

More than 1,000 people volunteered to give blood, but 72 were ineligible, Ugent said.

Sixty-five of the donors were first-time givers.

"The overwhelming majority of the donors were students," Ugent said. "That speaks very well of the support we get from the University."

The next campus blood drive is scheduled for April 4 and will be a week-long effort, Ugent said. Those interested in volunteering to work at the drive should contact Ugent at 457-5285 or Mary Jo Hall at the Office of Student Development, 453-5714.

Lennon's murderer inspired to kill by novel

LONDON (UPI) — Mark David Chapman says his murder of ex-Beatle John Lennon was inspired by the novel "Catcher in the Rye," and the violent death of the rock superstar drove "the last nail in the coffin of the '60s," a television documentary reported last week.

The documentary, a joint British-American production, features actual tapes in which Chapman, 33, recounts to police and psychiatrists why he killed Lennon as Lennon left his luxury Manhattan apartment on Dec. 8, 1980.

The documentary, "The Man Who Shot John Lennon," was scheduled for its first showing Feb. 2 in Britain. It will be shown locally at 8 p.m. Tuesday on WSIU, channel 8.

The documentary offers a chilling view into the confused world of the one-time drug user and rock fan, who also was once a YACA camp leader.

It also details his fascination with the novel, "The Catcher in the Rye," J.D. Salinger's best-selling novel about an adolescent who rejected the hypocrisy of the adult world in favor of the innocence of childhood.

Chapman, who pleaded guilty to murder and is serving 20 years to life in New York state's high security Attica prison, said he drew inspiration from the Salinger novel, which Chapman described as a "crusade against phoniness."

"What a fake he was, what a phony," he says of the former Beatle. "I knew I was going to kill him."

But another time he recounted, "I don't know why I chose him. I was just fed up with the world. The self-destruction was kind of like a blessing."

Chapman — who was raised near Atlanta, moved to Hawaii in 1977, failed in a suicide attempt and later married — seemed to express pride in the killing that shocked the world.

"Something really extraordinary happened," he said. "The Beatles were the cultural movement of the '60s and early '70s. They changed the world as we know it. And I changed them ... It's the last nail in the coffin of the '60s ... I am indeed 'The Catcher in the Rye' of this generation."

At other times, Chapman expressed horror at what he had done, saying he sacrificed his life in Hawaii to set off on his murderous quest.

"I don't know what happened," he said. "I was just depressed, quit my job, got a gun, came over here (to New York) and killed someone. That I guess is what happened. From heaven to hell in a month."

He said even as he set off to kill Lennon, "I just kept saying to myself: 'Go back to the hotel and go home now, don't do it. Get the doorman to order you a cab. Do it right now.' But I stayed."

In a calm voice he described shooting Lennon five times with a handgun outside the rock star's Dakota apartment building near Central Park as the ex-Beatle's wife, Yoko Ono, screamed.

"There was no anger, just dead silence in my brain," he said. "He looked at me. I tell you the man was going to be dead in less than five minutes and he looked at me."

"My head started saying, 'do it, do it, do it,' over and over again. I don't remember taking aim, although I must have. I just pulled the trigger steadily five times. I thought he would just fall down dead. The guy had five bullets in him. Big hunks came out of him, they had to ... It was like I was in a movie."

Reagan remains neutral in presidential race

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan maintained his neutrality Sunday in the GOP battle for the 1988 presidential nomination, declining to support any of the Republican candidates bitterly fighting in the Iowa caucuses.

Although some of Reagan's key policies are in contention in the presidential race, White House officials have said the president will stay out of the political fray until the new standard bearer is picked at this summer's Republican national convention in New Orleans.

But insiders say Reagan privately supports Vice President George Bush who has been a team player for the past seven years and who has come under fire for his role in the Iran-Contra scandal that severely wounded the administration last year.

The president also has his own agenda to pursue: to support the Nicaraguan rebels despite a cutoff in military funds at the end of February and to seek ratification of his new arms agreement with the Soviet Union.

In his weekly radio address Saturday, Reagan said drug users share the blame when police and shop owners are killed in drug related incidents in American cities.

Reagan planned to fly to Durham, N.C., on Monday to speak at a Duke University seminar on drugs in the workplace.

The president, who suffered a setback last week in his drive for a new $36 million Contra aid package, including $3.6 million for arms, has promised to work with the Democrats "to develop an alternative assistance package."

"What I still do not accept, however, is an assistance package that is little more than a disguise for surrender and abandonment," he told the radio audience.

Intro. to The Short Story

When Carla told me that my date was a little short, I thought she was talking dollars and cents, not feet and inches. So there I was at the door, in my spiked heels, staring at the top of my date's head.

All I could think was, how do I get myself out of this? I could imagine how my legs would ache if I had to walk around with my knees bent all evening.

So to stall for time, while figuring out how to fake malaria, I made us some Double Dutch Chocolate.

When I brought it into the living room, I discovered that Gary was a chocolate lover too. Ahh, a man after my own heart. Okay, I decided I'd give him a chance. So we sat down and saw each other face-to-face for the first time. He had a nice smile.

After some small talk—I mean conversation—I discovered that we both love Updike, hate the winter weather, and both have miniature schnauzers. So, we made a date to introduce Shadow and Scharzi next week.

Wichita State up next for Salukis

By Dave Miller
Staff Writer

The Salukis will try to recover from Saturday's 19-point whipping tonight against the Valley's first-place team at 7:35 in Wichita, Kan.

Wichita State, 13-7 overall and 6-2 in the conference, has a half-game lead over Bradley and Creighton. Both are 5-2.

"They may be the team to beat in the Valley," Coach Rich Herrin said. "They have a better schedule left than Bradley."

The Shockers are almost unbeatable on their home floor. Since Coach Eddie Fogler took over last season, Wichita State has collected a 27-2 record at Levitt Arena, which includes the current 10-game winning streak.

However, the Salukis did beat Wichita State at Levitt Arena three years ago during in Herrin's first season.

The Shockers are led by junior center Sasha Radunovich, who Herrin calls the best big man in the conference. Radunovich has been bothered by an elbow injury but still has managed to score 14.1 points and 6.8 rebounds per game.

Forwards Dwayne Praylow (10.2 ppg, 4.0 rpg) and Lew Hill (12.8 ppg, 4.2 rpg) help the Shockers rebound opponents by an average of four per game.

Point guard Joe Griffin (6.6 ppg, 6.5 assists per game) set a Wichita State record for most assists in a game, recording 16 against Oral Roberts this season. Dwight Praylow (10.2 ppg, 2.2 apg) starts at the other guard spot.

Forward Steve Grayer (13.5 ppg, 5.9 rpg) comes off the bench.

Wichita State is shooting 51.3 percent from the field while holding opponents to 44.9 percent.

Hawkins scores 32 in victory over Drake

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Hersey Hawkins, the leading collegiate scorer in the country, had 32 points and Greg Jones added 19 as 16th-ranked Bradley Braves downed the Drake Bulldogs 85-67 in Missouri Valley action during the weekend.

Drake grabbed an 8-6 lead and came back to go ahead 10-9 with 13:45 left in the first half of the Saturday game, but the Braves went on a 22-6 run, led by three Hawkins' three-point shots, to lead 31-16 with 7:09 left in the half.

Bradley went into the locker room with 44-24 lead and never was challenged by Drake in the second half, leading by as many as 29 points.

"This was a very crucial game for us," Bradley coach Stan Albeck said. "I wondered how we would react after the loss at Wichita State Thursday, but this team has rebounded great all year. I thought that our defense tonight was just superb."

The inside play of Jones sparked the Braves in the first half. He scored 15 of his points in the first half after starting for only the sixth time all year.

"We got beat by a very good basketball team tonight," Drake coach Gary Garner, said. "Hersey Hawkins is a great player, but they have so much more than just him. When they're playing like they did tonight there aren't too many teams that could beat them."

Drake was led by Eric Berger with 26 points.

Jordan electrifies All-Star crowd

CHICAGO (UPI) — Michael Jordan capped a glittering weekend in front of his hometown fans Sunday, scoring 40 points and earning MVP honors in leading the East to a 138-133 triumph over the West in the NBA All-Star Game.

Jordan, who retained his title as the Slam Dunk Champion on Saturday, scored all of his 16 fourth-quarter points in the final 5:50. Only Wilt Chamberlin, who had 42 in 1962, had more points in All-Star competition.

Jordan, who converted 17 of 23 shots from the floor, was a unanimous choice for the MVP. He became the second straight player from the host team to win the MVP. Last year Tom Chambers claimed the honor in Seattle.

Jordan was backed by Dominique Wilkins of the East with 29 points and 15 assists from Isiah Thomas. Karl Malone scored 22 points to lead the West and Akeem Olajuwon added 21. Magic Johnson collected 19 assists for the West.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, at 40 the oldest player ever to participate in the All-Star Game, became the all-time leading scorer in All-Star competition when he sank a basket with 44 seconds to play. Abdul-Jabbar, who finished with 10 points, has 247 points, surpassing Oscar Robertson's 246.

Jordan sat out the final 6:43 of the third period when he was called for his fourth foul, but returned in the fourth quarter to ensure the East's triumph. Jordan scored eight straight points for the East, giving his team a 122-108 lead with 4:31 left. The East coasted to its seventh triumph in the last nine All-Star contests.

Wilkins took charge in the third quarter as the East extended a 60-54 halftime lead to 99-89 to end the period. Jordan left with 6:43 left in the quarter with his fourth foul, and Wilkins scored 6 points in an 8-2 run that gave the East an 86-77 advantage. Wilkins finished with 12 points in the period.

Johnson turned from passer to scorer for the West and had 10 points in the period, including a pair of 3-point plays. Abdul-Jabbar nearly set the record to end the period. His missed shot at the buzzer was ruled a basket at first, but taken away when officials ruled offensive goaltending.

The second quarter belonged to Jordan, who delighted the hometown crowd with two electrifying dunks and 10 points. The Bulls guard had 6 points in a 13-4 spree that started the period and turned a 32-27 deficit into a 40-32 advantage. Jordan capped the surge by driving the baseline and spinning a lay-off the glass.

Men's squad wants no Moore of Tulsa

By Dave Miller
Staff Writer

The keg of dynamite Coach Rich Herrin was worried about blew up in the Salukis' face.

Tulsa, averaging 62 points a game, scored at will to rack up a 56-39 halftime lead. The Hurricanes then rolled to a 93-74 win Saturday in Tulsa, Okla.

"We caught them on a very hot night," Herrin said. "They just shot the eyes out of the basket. We could have been a little tougher defensively but we hit a very explosive basketball team."

Tulsa guard Tracey Moore scored 25 points in the first half en route to a career-high 41 points. Moore hit his first nine field-goal attempts and made 12 of 13 for the game. He made 12 of 13 free-throw attempts.

The Salukis shot 62 percent in the first half but paled in comparison to Tulsa's 75 percent.

Tulsa surprised the Salukis with its outside shooting. Tulsa, which entered the game shooting 42 percent, tore apart the Salukis' zone defense, hitting eight of nine three-point attempts.

"The players did what we asked them to do," Herrin said. "We played zone and gave them the perimeter shot. They just had a great shooting night."

For the game, Tulsa shot 65 percent. The Hurricanes dominated the Salukis on the boards, 36-16.

The victory gave Tulsa its second win in their last 11 games. The Hurricanes, 6-14 overall and 2-5 in the Valley, remain in seventh place. The sixth-place Salukis fell to 8-12 overall and 3-5 in the conference.

In the second half, Tulsa extended the lead to 70-49 after a three-point play by center Ray Wurnard. A three-pointer by Kai Nurnberger pulled the Salukis to within 10 points with 10 minutes left. But it was as close as the Salukis could come.

"I'll give our players credit because we didn't quit," Herrin said.

Steve Middleton led the Salukis with 24 points. Randy House had 18 and Rick Shipley finished with

Drake slides by Saluki women for OT victory

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

The women's basketball team found out firsthand how the Drake Bulldogs became the giant-killers of the Gateway Conference.

Drake, which already knocked Illinois State and Eastern Illinois out of first, forced the Salukis from the top spot in the standings with a 57-52 overtime victory Saturday in Des Moines, Iowa.

The Salukis, tied for second with Illinois State and Eastern Illinois, fell to 14-7 overall and 10-3 in the conference. Drake (11-10, 8-5) remains in fourth.

Indiana State (18-3, 11-2), once the most unlikely of four teams tied for first, is the No. 1 contender for the conference crown by virtue of a 77-75 overtime win against Southwest Missouri.

"The loss will certainly hurt us, we haven't helped ourselves," SIUC Coach Cindy Scott said. "We don't have a playoff slot sewn-up yet, and that's a scary thing."

Drake, which made seven of eight free throws down the stretch, outscored the Salukis 9-4 in overtime.

SIUC, which trailed by 10 points with 14 minutes remaining, had an opportunity to win the game with 30 seconds left in regulation.

Trailing 48-47, Dana Fitzpatrick was fouled trying to convert the offensive rebound off a Mary Berghuis miss.

Fitzpatrick made her first free throw to tie, but missed her second. Saluki reserve-forward Amy Rakers rebounded the miss.

The Salukis called timeout to set up a final play. After working the clock down to :10,
