Plant subject of foul odor complaints

By John Walby
Staff Writer

Something smells on Carbondale's north side and complaints from area residents allege that the source is Koppers Co., which is a treatment plant for injecting creosote into railroad ties.

Creosote is an oily liquid with a foul odor used to preserve wood.

Charles Hayduk, an Illinois Environmental Protection Agency engineer from the Marion office, said the plant has been the source of numerous complaints over the past several months.

"The (creosote) odor complaints go back a long way," Hayduk said. "I've been here a little more than three years and I'd say we (IEPA) get between five and 10 complaints per year."

Most recently, the plant was cited twice by the IEPA, according to Hayduk.

In April, the plant was given a citation for operation of a wood fire boiler and a creosote treatment system without a permit.

In June, the plant was cited for creosote odor problems and operation of the creosote treatment system without a permit for a second time, according to Hayduk.

Thomas Hornshaw, of the Office of Chemical Safety in Springfield, said there is proof of cancer of the lungs and skin when workers experience close contact with the material and for an extended period of time.

He said he doubts the creosote odor could cause such a condition unless the concentration of the material is high, but said the odor could definitely cause irritation to the eyes, nose, throat and skin.

In an inspection on June 1 by the IEPA the plant's boiler system passed specifications and Hayduk said the plant is in the process of applying for a permit for the creosote treatment system.

Hayduk said prior to the June 1 approval for the boiler system, the plant was operating without permits for the previous two years.

The IEPA has scheduled a meeting between the agency and the plant for Aug. 8 in Collinsville.

Hayduk said he has received approximately 12 complaints since March of this year. He said, in the complaints, half of the residents complained of irritation to the eyes and

IBHE: Tax increase to boost education

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

The enactment of increases in the state income and cigarette taxes signals new hope in the financing of Illinois higher education, Richard D. Wagner, executive director of the Illinois Board of Higher Education, said.

Although the tax increase is for only two years, Wagner said it is a "step in the right direction."

Revenue from these taxes, when coupled with normal revenue growth, will provide in excess of $250 million for higher education.

"After a stormy year, the IBHE's budget will finally be met," Wagner said. "Things looked pretty hopeless when the Senate shot down the Madigan-Rock plan, but it all worked out in the end."

Wagner said the money would be invested in "job training and retraining, undergraduate education, minority student achievement and more student financial aid."

Because of the money, the Illinois State Scholarship Commission will be able to restore their Merit Recognition Scholarship Program.

"We thought the scholarship program might be lost for good, but now it's back and the amount of the scholarship will be increased," Larry E. Matejka, executive director of the ISSC, said.

According to a report released from the IBHE, the scholarship now will provide $1,000 to students in the top 10 percent of their high school graduating class, which is a

University to install new lots

By Micki Delhaute McGowan
Staff Writer

SIU-C's parking problem will be improved with two new parking lots to be installed in the fall and spring semesters.

Both parking lots have been in the works for quite some time, and the final decision came from the Parking and Traffic Committee. The committee consists of nine voting members representing the various constituency groups on campus, Merilyn Hogan, campus parking manager, said.

Tim Hildebrand, Undergraduate Student Government president, said that one parking lot will be located behind Wham Education Building. The other will be at the Recreation Center.

At the Wham Building, lot 29 will be expanded, Hildebrand said.

The new parking lot will take up half of Stehr Field, the baseball field behind Wham. Hildebrand said that the other half of the field would be left for physical education classes.

There will be 200 new red parking spots, and 88 blue spots, he said.

Hildebrand said the parking lot may be completed in the fall, but might not be finished until spring.

He said, "I think the Communications (Building) parking lot will ease up a little bit" with the construction of the new parking lot.

Completion of building awaits board approval

If the Board of Trustees approves a proposed capital project at its meeting in Edwardsville today, the University will be one step closer to receiving $1.5 million to complete the second floor of the Communications Building, which has remained unfinished since it opened in 1966.

That is, one step closer again.

The project has been approved twice during the last two years by the Illinois Board of Higher Education and the board. Both times, the state legislature failed to release funds for the project.

"We thought we had a good chance for it to go through in the past," David Grobe, director of facilities planning for the University, said. "Perhaps the tax increase will help our chances."

The money would go to construct finished walls and ceilings, as well as place floor coverings in an area of 12,000 gross square feet, or 8,600 net square feet, to be used by the College of Communications and Fine Arts.

"This is not a simple matter of appearance," James Van Oosting, acting chairman of the Department of Speech Communications, said. "The facilities, as they now exist, negatively impact the educational ability of our department."

Van Oosting said completion of the Calipre Stage, located on the north side of the second floor, would be a sure improvement in the department's capabilities.

"It's all make-shift and improvised now," Van Oosting explained. "There is plumbing for dressing rooms that have never been built, no permanent seating, and just a concrete floor. So there are certain things we can't do."

Van Oosting said he hopes the new state tax increase will provide funds.

County Board denies judiciary request for space

By Richard Goldstein
Staff Writer

Minutes after a Jackson County judge pleaded with the County Board to begin improving courthouse facilities the board passed a measure denying space requested by the judiciary and moved to put its own office there instead.

Judge David Watt, liaison to the County Board from the judiciary, reminded the board that Illinois Supreme Court regulations require courthouses to meet "minimum standards" of security and provide adequate facilities for jurors.

Watt implied that the board is falling down in its obligation to meet those standards.

"I'm here to talk to you about leading this court into the 21st century with our eyes open, not closed," Watt said.

Watt mentioned several fees that can be levied against litigants to help pay for courthouse facilities and complained that some of that money had been diverted to the state's attorney's office.

"When budget time comes," Watt said, "I want that money" for court facility improvement.

After Watt left, the board — against the advice of Natalie Trimble, building and grounds committee chairwoman — approved transfer of its headquarters from one side of the first floor of the courthouse to the other.

Trimble said the judges had asked for the room, formerly the Jackson County Sheriff's dispatchers' office, and suggested the County Board be moved to the third floor instead.

In an 11-2 vote the board rejected Trimble's request.

Prison authorities release Nelson Mandela statement

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Nelson Mandela, in a rare comment sanctioned by prison authorities, said in a statement Wednesday the government must negotiate with the African National Congress in order to bring "peace to our country." Mandela, in a statement distributed by the Prisons Service Wednesday evening, also pledged to "gladly assist to create a climate which will promote peace in South Africa" and said the question of his release from prison was not an issue at this stage.

Siberian coalminers strike, present demands

MOSCOW (UPI) — Coal miners in a southern Siberian town have gone on strike, presenting 30 demands including better food supplies and an immediate ecological cleanup of their city, the labor newspaper Trud said Wednesday. The newspaper said Coal Minister Mikhail Shchadov rushed to Mezhdurechensk, where the strike entered its third day in the city of 101,000 that produces 30 million tons of high quality coal annually.

NATO conventional force cuts proposal ready

BUDAPEST, Hungary (UPI) — Secretary of State James Baker announced Wednesday the NATO allies will present the specifics of President Bush's conventional force reduction proposals, including combat aircraft and helicopters, to the Soviet Union Thursday. Baker said the broadened proposal will specify that each side have no more than 5,700 combat aircraft and 1,900 combat helicopters.

Stealth bomber hits wall of money complaints

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Air Force officials pitching the exotic and expensive B-2 stealth bomber to Congress Wednesday hit a wall of financial skepticism but said that despite the "sticker shock" there is no cheaper way to do the job. House Armed Services Committee Chairman Les Aspin, D-Wis., told the officials their request for up to $8 billion a year in the early 1990s was politically impossible, and spending any less than that will drive the cost of the plane to as high as $1 billion a copy.

U.S. flights approved to remote Soviet areas

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — U.S. and Soviet authorities have approved plans for a small Alaskan airline to operate charter flights between the two superpowers across the Bering Strait, the Federal Aviation Administration said Wednesday. Jim Rowe, owner of Bering Air, said his small, regional airline based in Nome becomes the first and only airline granted permission to offer passenger flights between the west coast of Alaska and the extreme northeast coast of the Soviet Union.

Watchdog group protests violent television programs

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — A television watchdog group Wednesday called for a boycott of two syndicated programs it called extremely brutal. The National Coalition on Television Violence, with the help of church and peace groups, urged the public not to watch "Friday the 13th" and "Freddy's Nightmares." The coalition is putting pressure on companies to pull their advertising and are encouraging viewers to boycott all programming on stations that run either show.

University instructor leaves to pursue freelance career

Teacher admired for tasks performed above call of duty

By Tim Crosby
Staff Writer

A cinema and photography instructor is taking a one-year leave of absence to resume a career as a freelance advertising photographer.

Duane Powell, a 12-year veteran of the University, is operating a 3,000-square-foot photography studio out of a building located in downtown St. Louis.

For him, it is a return to the past.

"I did this before I started teaching," Powell said. "I love to work and I love to teach, but the money here is much better."

Powell said the University doesn't pay enough attention to the cinema and photography department, although it ranks as one of the top in the world.

"We're one of the top three in the country, and our country is tops in the world," he said. "But the University doesn't do the things it should."

Powell, who did his graduate work at the University of Illinois, said his wife and seven children will be joining him shortly in St. Louis.

George Mavigliano, associate dean of the College of Communications and Fine Arts, said such a leave was not the norm at SJJC.

"Most professors are willing to wait for the sabbatical every seven years," Mavigliano said. "Even the length of one year is unusual."

Mavigliano admitted that the Cinema and Photography Department was not given a high priority at the University in matters of funding.

"I think that's true of many departments in our college," Mavigliano said. "Many times it's the squeaky wheel that gets the oil because funding is always short. We're doing the best job possible with the resources available."

"I think it was a personal decision on his part to leave," Mavigliano continued. "For many professors, teaching and living in a university environment is worth what they sacrifice in wages."

Georgia Wessel, an advisor for the department, said the position left vacant by Powell has been temporarily filled.

Joe Ziolkowski, who received his undergraduate training at SIU-C and an MSA from the Art Institute of Chicago, will be teaching Powell's applied sequence classes and photography classes this fall.

"He knows the commercial end inside and out," Wessel said. "We're very pleased with him."

Scott Jolliff, a senior in cinema and photography, said Powell really cared about his students.

"With a lot of teachers, when class is over the teaching's over. He was always willing to stay after and answer any questions," Jolliff said.

Jolliff said Powell helped students gain experience by hiring them to shoot commercial photography.

Jolliff said he assisted Powell on several such occasions.

"He was really sticking his own neck out because if a student messed up, it would fall back on his shoulders," Jolliff said.

Powell said he wasn't sure if he would be returning to teaching, though he says he would like to.

"I love teaching. This work I'm doing now will help my classroom instruction if I go back to it," Powell said. "You can't keep teaching when you haven't been out there in 12 or 30 years, though."

Wessel said if Powell decided against coming back, the department would search for someone to fill the position on a permanent basis.

Among Powell's list of clients are Anheuser-Busch, Emerson Electric and Jewish Hospital.

Powell's leave of absence becomes effective Aug. 16.

Area representatives attain goals in session

MOST OF the state legislators from Southern Illinois would agree that the major issue faced by the General Assembly during the past session revolved around the passage of an increase in the state's income tax.

The increase was something we supported and we appreciate the effort our representatives made in voting for the measure.

But the increase was not the only service our representatives lobbied for or brought to Southern Illinois.

STATE SEN. Ralph Dunn, R-Du Quoin, made positive strides toward obtaining a prison work camp for the Du Quoin State Fair. Dunn also cast the deciding vote against party affiliation for the income tax increase largely supported by Democrats.

Sen. Jim Rea, D-Christopher, felt that during his first term as senator the passage of the majority of his Rx for Illinois plan, which is an attempt to improve rural health care in the state, was a highlight to the session.

Rea said the surprise of the session was Democratic House Speaker Michael Madigan's proposal of the tax increase which Rea said changed the course of the session.

FIRST YEAR Rep. Larry Woolard, D-Carterville, and Rep. David Phelps, D-Eldorado, were also pleased with the rural health care plan which they worked on with Rea.

But Woolard cited the tax increase to fund education and local governments as priorities of the session.

The highlight of the session for Phelps was a $13 million project for school consolidation in Gallatin County. He too was pleased with the income tax increase saying that downstate schools were in desperate need of money and needed assistance.

REP. BRUCE Richmond, D-Murphysboro, was happy with the income tax increase but feared the increase in the state's tax on gasoline and cigarettes would drive Illinois residents over state lines to make their purchases.

One highlight for Richmond was the release of over $3 million by the state Capital Development Board for a veterans center in Anna.

OVERALL WE think the Southern Illinois delegation to the General Assembly did a good job of representing the needs of their constituents.

Political gambles were taken and some may resurface come election time. But chances need to be taken and many times gambles are unpopular at the offset, but given time opinion changes.

Our representatives have made some popular decisions and brought some popular programs to the area. They have also made some unpopular decisions. Let us commend them on the good they have done and give the unpopular choices a chance.

DE neglects rights of non-Christians

The DE editorial on religious displays, "Court neglects past U.S. religious history" should have been entitled "DE neglects rights on non-Christian citizens."

The editorial states that "the ACLU and those who feel these displays are not acceptable have the right to feel that way but religion is strong in this country and those who desire to have religious symbols displayed in their communities should have that right."

Well, they have the right to display them on their own property and that right should never be taken away. But an American who is an atheist or a member of a less popular religion has the right to be represented by a government which is free of religious bias. Being greeted by a re-enactment of the birth of Jesus Christ at the county courthouse does not give that impression. These people have more than "a right to feel that way" about these displays, they have the right to enter a public building without feeling alienated by their own government.

It is very scary to hear someone say just because something is "strong in this country" it gives us the green light to ignore the constitutional rights of others and go on doing it anyway. It's even scarier to read it in a news editorial. — Mark Ingham, senior in English.

Prejudice makes it hard to keep an 'open mind'

To begin, I feel compelled to ask Michael Pryor why he is in the United States if he feels so strongly "oppressed." I am aware that Afrikan people were brought to this country against their will and forced into slavery, but what is holding Michael here now? This country is having problems with immigration because so many people want to live here, so perhaps Michael could make room for a person who could more fully appreciate what this country stands for.

Next, I would like to address the fact that last Tuesday was the day the nation celebrated its independence. To all the veterans of every war this country has ever been involved, I thank you. Without these people our entire country had the possibility of becoming truly "oppressed." The group of people that this country is represented by varies incredibly. Whites, Afrikan Americans and others form very different ethnic and religious backgrounds fought side-by-side to defend the ideal of freedom and independence that is this country, again I thank them all.

Thirdly, I think that Mr. Pryor did bring up a good point when he addressed the "Sat-nic Verses" issue. The book, however, was a bad example of what Mr. Pryor was trying to express because the book was not written by a United States' citizen and the book was not representative of the entire nation's feelings toward the Islamic faith. Using this as a comparison with capitol punishment for flag burning was totally off base. Although some people may talk of this type of punishment, it has not been put into effect. However, shooting and killing has occurred over what the flag represents—WWI and WWII, for example.

Finally, I would like to express my thanks to Mr. Pryor for raising my awareness of the fact that there are many people with prejudices in this world. I am from a small town and was sheltered from the prejudice that some Afrikan Americans feel toward whites. I now find myself at a university and I am attempting to keep an open mind toward everyone...Mr. Pryor makes it hard. — Stacey Sikora, sophomore in pre-med.

Nice, intelligent women plentiful but hard to find

I am female, I too am in my late 20s, a "non-trad" as they call us here. I take serious offense at you labeling the women of SIU-C as unfriendly, for that is exactly the way I see the men of SIU-C. I agree with the part that for the few friendly people on campus there are a dozen more that are unfriendly, but that Mr. Beaubien goes for both sexes.

In the past two years on this campus I have made two friends that I keep in touch with. It's not that I am "stuck up" it's just that I am shy and was raised, it seems, in a different world; for when I was in high school the boys asked the girls out, the opposite never happened. I admit to having trouble changing my ways but I think I kind of like the old ways anyhow. Now unless you expect every woman to be a perfect "10" there are plenty of nice, intelligent, women on this campus. You might have to look a little harder for us due to the facts in the above paragraph, but we are here Mr. Beaubien, we are here. — Jane Parker, senior in secondary education.

Bush: Democratic upsurge apparent in Eastern Europe

Scraps Howard News Service

BUDAPEST, Hungary — President Bush leaves Eastern Europe convinced it soon will be democratic, a change symbolized by a piece of barbed wire that he received as a gift from Hungary's leaders.

The barbed wire, from the Iron Curtain dismantled on the Hungarian-Austrian border, was Bush's most treasured souvenir from the trip.

A plaque with the wire is inscribed: "We (Hungarians) believe that the artificial, physical and spiritual walls still existing in the world someday shall collapse everywhere."

Looking emotionally at the gift, Bush said, "That's just beautiful. That's a marvelous symbol of this whole visit."

Asked Wednesday if the White House was surprised at anything about the foray into territory that months ago was considered enemy, Marlin Fitzwater, Bush's spokesman, replied: "The fervor of the people and their leaders for reform."

Fitzwater, walking around the city and smoking a cigar, continued: "Remember, they're all communist leaders. But you tend to forget that when you sit down and they talk like Lincoln Day Republicans."

Bush himself, admitting he was "very emotional" about the trip, said, "Democracy is on the move. And that means to young people they have more chance to, as we say in our country, do their own thing, to express themselves."

While jogging — to the delight of giggling Hungarians — the president tossed his sweaty gray-and-white warm-up jacket to a Hungarian who had given him a jersey. "I don't want to show them my body," Bush joked, putting on the jersey.

He also autographed a shoe a young boy handed him.

More formally, Bush said he is sending the Peace Corps to teach Hungarians English (which he called "the lingua franca" of commerce), giving Hungary $30 million in private enterprise and environmental aid and donating videotapes and published materials to a Budapest library.

Bush announced his gifts at Karl Marx University for Economics. He noted the irony of being the first U.S. president to visit Hungary and speaking there. But he said it was OK because Marx's "Das Kapital" is no longer required reading at the college.

Seeking to compliment everything Hungarian that he could think of, Bush meant to salute Rubik's cube, a mind-bending puzzle invented by Hungarian architect Erno Rubik. But he misspoke and called it "Rubik's cone," causing puzzled looks.

Asked by Imre Pozsgay, a leading reform-minded communist leader in Hungary's Politburo, how his speech went, Bush answered, "People stayed awake. That's pretty good for a university."

But wherever Bush went, Hungarians began chanting or clapping in unison to show approval.

Several state officials said Bush's visit was of "outstanding importance" to Hungary. Echoing Polish officials, they said economic and political reform must go together and East and West must be friends.

White House chief of staff John Sununu said the Hungarians "complimented him (Bush) on the fact that he has a feel for Europe."

With his message that a free market economy works best, Bush found vestiges of it everywhere.

While at a local open-air farmers' market, Bush paid for a bag of peaches with forints, the local currency.

throat and half complained of the odor of creosote.

"I've smelled it myself at my home and I'm about three miles away from it ('plant)," Hayduk said.

He said one complaint of the odor came from a resident who lives seven miles from the plant.

Koppers Co. is located beyond the city limits where North Marion Street ends.

Hayduk said that in April a tank containing "contaminated water" was punctured at the plant. He said Koppers Co. decided to use steam to boil off the water in the tank below the puncture point in order to repair the tank.

He said the water was used in the railroad tie treatment process, where creosote is injected into the ties.

Hayduk said it was estimated by the IEPA that the plant had evaporated 2,000 gallons of water into the atmosphere per day for a period of a month during the evening hours of April and May.

Hayduk described the process of boiling off the water as "not normally done and not a good procedure."

He said the plant discontinued the procedure in mid-May.

Plant Manager Clark Mitchell said that during the period of the month, the evaporating process was used only "five or six times." He also said the water that was in the tank was not contaminated since it doesn't come into contact with the creosote.

Mitchell said the creosote is injected into the railroad ties in a process where water is run through tubing and the pressure within the system forces the creosote into the ties.

"I think you're going to have to talk about alleged odor complaints before talking about odor complaints," Mitchell said.

"I don't see a problem," Mitchell said. "If we're doing something wrong, obviously, we're going to correct it."

"They (Koppers) are willing to correct the problem," Hayduk said. "Management is unsure of exactly which source is causing the problem."

Pauline Nelson, a resident who lives within one mile of the plant, said she has lived at her Rural Route 2 home for 35 years and said she always noticed the creosote smell, but said that it has seemed to have gotten worse within the last year.

Jessie Harrell, a resident of 1308 N. Barnes St., which is south of the plant, said that although she notices the smell, it doesn't bother her.

$500 increase. The program was underfunded by 40 percent during the 1988 fiscal year and was eliminated during the 1989 fiscal year.

In addition to funding the scholarship, the General Assembly also "appropriated over $17 million for new capital improvements projects, including the amounts necessary to fund the first year of Gov. James R. Thompson's three-year $360 million program to upgrade and expand science and technology facilities at Illinois universities," Wagner said.

This would mean the University would get some money for the expansion of the physical plant and possibly a new biological sciences building.

The physical plant addition would include a $25 million coal-fired, fluidized bed combustion system that would remove a large amount of sulfur.

The Chamber Board would reduce the acid precipitation fund. John Mead, director of the local research center, said

Dean of the College of Science Russel Dutcher said no plans have yet to be made concerning the biological sciences building.

The IBHE has not yet decided on how much money the University will get for these projects, but a decision should be made very soon, Wagner said.

"For this new era to continue beyond two years requires that the temporary income tax increase be made permanent," Wagner said. "We accept the challenge of investing these resources wisely and welcome the opportunity to demonstrate to the citizens of the state that we will continue to make qualitative and service improvements in Illinois higher education," Wagner said.

PARKING,

The addition of the Recreation Center will be a first, but students will be able to use it in September, Hildner said.

There will be 200 new parking spaces in the new Recreation Center parking lot and he said it will relieve the parking "tension."

Hogan said, "We do have empty parking places everyday, but they are two or three blocks away." She said that students do not want to walk that far.

"We're always considering building another multi-level parking garage, but right now we don't have the money," Hogan said.

China Update allows discussion of recent crisis

By Jackie Lay
Staff Writer

An exchange of opinions about the recent China crisis describes what occurs at the weekly China Updates at the Interfaith Center.

Jim Murphy, associate professor of history, spoke this week and gave his opinion on how he felt the crisis in China started and then left it open for discussion.

Murphy said the December 1988 crisis in Nanjing between African students, police and Chinese people and the March 1989 incident in Tibet were connected with the Beijing event.

He said neither had anything to do with democracy or reform but had something to do with accidental changes by the movement toward modernization.

Murphy blamed the development of the 1979 government-mandated reform program as the beginning of the crisis.

"In pursuit of modernization of China, the government promoted a change of attitudes, self-interestedness, individualism, pragmatism and materialism," he said.

"By relaxing their controls the government unknowingly promoted rising expectations

"By relaxing their controls, the government unknowingly promoted rising expectations of the Chinese people."

of the Chinese people."

He said the new rights given the people consisted of allowing the Tibetians to practice their religion, allowing the Chinese people to operate a free market instead of a controlled market, introducing many foreigners into the country, allowing the Chinese students to study in other countries and encouraging individual initiative.

Murphy said the Chinese people began to want more and more individualism, satisfaction, material goods and freedom. Then the government perceived this momentum on behalf of the Chinese to be a loss of government control.

Chen Jian, a doctoral candidate in history, explained that the Africans who came into China received special treatment, usually because they were the sons of the elite and they interacted with the Chinese women, which in turn is not liked by many of the Chinese men.

When Maggie Flanagan, coordinator of adult education in Carbondale, asked what the vehicle would be to change the situation in China, Murphy replied, "I can't imagine that there will be much liberalization as long as these people live (the older men that lead the country), but they won't live forever."

Father of murdered 7-year-old girl commits suicide at her grave side

SANTA CLARITA, Calif. (UPI) — The grieving father of a 7-year-old girl who was sexually molested and murdered went to her grave and committed suicide, authorities said.

The body of Wallace S. Mann, 36, of Ojai was found shortly before 8 a.m. Tuesday over his daughter's grave in the Eternal Valley Memorial Park in Newhall.

The man had shot himself in the head, sheriff's Deputy Pat Hunter said.

The body of Mann's daughter, Sara Nan Hodges, was found March 26 in a neighbor's home in Santa Clarita. She had been reported missing three days earlier.

The girl had been sexually molested and strangled.

At the time of Sara's slaying, Mann had been separated from his wife, Linda Hodges, for more than three years.

Authorities and friends of the family said the girl's death and the breakup of his marriage had made Mann despondent and emotionally distraught.

He apparently spent most of Monday at the girl's grave in an all-day vigil, sitting near the grave and painting in red the petals of the roses carved on the tombstone with the inscription "Sarie's magic is everlasting as is our love. Mom & Dad."

A cemetery worker the next morning saw the body slumped across the grave. There was a note next to the body expressing his love for his daughter.

"It was just a little note that said, 'I love you' and other things," coroner's investigator Dean Sebree said. "It's a little bit rambling but there's nothing that says, 'I am going to commit suicide,' and it didn't name the girl. It says he cared deeply for her, words to that effect."

Mann lived with a sister and brother-in-law in Ojai.

Family faces criminal charges after prostitution ring is broken

CHICAGO (UPI) — A high class prostitution ring that catered to rich businessmen who paid $200 for sex was a family operated business headed by a 54-year-old woman, prosecutors said Wednesday.

A spokesman for Cook County State's Attorney Cecil Partee identified the alleged madam as Rose Laws, who operated the ring from posh Near North Side apartments.

"People had to be referred from other clients or okayed by top lieutenants in the ring so it served a certain limited group of clientele," said Dan McCullough, Partee's spokesman. "It wasn't an off-the-street type of operation."

Coroner says alcohol factor in fatal crash

The accident that left two University students dead last week was "alcohol related," the Cape Girardeau County coroner reported Wednesday. Although Coroner John Carpenter wouldn't release the specific blood alcohol level of driver Kevin Ellis, he did say that the level was found to be above the .1 percent legal limit.

"Alcohol was a contributing factor to the accident," Carpenter said.

Ellis, 26, and passenger Kelly Ann Wilcox, 21, suffered fatal injuries Friday morning, police said, when the Ford Bronco Ellis was driving left Chautauqua Street, traveled for 350 feet then overturned, throwing both riders from the vehicle.

Ellis and Wilcox were later flown to Cape Girardeau's Saint Francis Hospital where Ellis was pronounced dead at 6 a.m. Friday and Wilcox was pronounced dead at 3 p.m.

Retarded heart patient wins stay of execution

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Georgia Supreme Court granted a stay of execution Wednesday for mentally retarded heart patient Son Fleming, five hours before he was to die in the electric chair for the 1976 murder of a south Georgia police chief.

Butts County Superior Court Judge William Craig refused to overturn Fleming's death sentence Tuesday, prompting the appeal to the state's high court.

Defense attorneys Ken

Shapiro and Mark Olive say Fleming should be spared the electric chair because of his limited mental capacity. The high court voted 4-3 to put off the execution until the matter can be reviewed.

The stay came shortly after the state Board of Pardons and Paroles refused to commute Fleming's death sentence to life in prison.

Fleming, 59, who has suffered two heart attacks while on death row, has been scheduled to die in the electric chair at the Georgia Diagnostic and Classification Center at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Parole Board Chairman Wayne Snow acknowledged Fleming's mental limitations, but he said the panel decided they were not severe enough to commute the sentence.

"We have to look at the deliberate action on the part of a person and we have to look out their understanding of good and evil and their consequences to it," he said.

Snow said the evidence showed that the day after the murder, Fleming said he was not at the scene and knew nothing about it, but a day later he admitted being there and tried to blame the shooting on a co-defendant.

"Was he so retarded that he didn't know what he was doing?" Snow said. "He knew enough to blame it on someone else."

The Georgia Legislature banned executions of mentally retarded people in 1988 but did not apply the law retroactively.

In 1967, Fleming scored 64 on an IQ test administered by the Social Security Administration when he applied for disability payments. He made a 72 on a similar test given Monday at the request of the state attorney general's office. Officials say a score of 70 usually means a person is mentally retarded and slightly higher scores are accepted when the subject has led an impoverished life.

Texas high court OKs lawsuit against cigarette companies

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — The state Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that an East Texas man may proceed with his lawsuit against six cigarette makers and two tobacco trade associations for the lung cancer death of his wife.

The high court revived a lawsuit filed by I.D. Rogers by affirming a decision by the 9th Court of Appeals in Beaumont, which reversed a trial court's summary judgment in favor of the tobacco companies.

The defendants in the cases include R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Philip Morris Inc., Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp., Lorillard Inc., Liggett & Meyers Tobacco Co., the Liggett Group and two trade associations — the Tobacco Institute and the Council for Tobacco Research U.S.A.

Rogers and his two children claimed in their suit that cigarette smoking caused Marjorie Helen Rogers to contract lung cancer and that cigarette makers and tobacco trade groups conspired to withhold information on the link between smoking and disease.

According to testimony, Marjorie Rogers began smoking regularly at age 16 and smoked at least one and a half packs of cigarettes a day from the early 1950s until November 1982, when she was diagnosed with lung cancer. She died of the disease Dec. 17, 1983, at age 58.

Tobacco companies, forced by federal legislation, began placing warning labels on cigarette packs beginning in 1966. I.D. Rogers testified that his wife took some comfort in the fact that the labels said only that tobacco "may" be dangerous to one's health.

He also testified that he recalled his wife saying she had read several articles prior to 1966 that said cigarette smoking could be beneficial. Rogers claimed his wife would have quit smoking earlier, thus avoiding the disease, if she had all the facts on cigarette smoking.

The original suit filed by the Rogers family named American Tobacco as a defendant, saying it was the actual manufacturer of the cigarettes that Marjorie Rogers smoked. However, the trial court severed American Tobacco from the suit.

In an amended petition, the suit named the six other makers and the two trade associations, alleging they engaged in civil conspiracy by trying to "suppress and conceal certain scientific and medical information relating to cigarette smoking and resulting disease."

The suit said the "big six" manufacturers "were able to take and project a unified and uniform position on the question of cigarette smoking's relationship to disease."

U.S. coffee consumers not likely to get quick fix from lower prices

NEW YORK (UPI) — American java drinkers are not likely to benefit immediately from the recent plunge in coffee prices on world commodity markets, analysts said Wednesday.

The price of America's favorite eye-opener has fallen to its lowest level in more than 8 and a half years on the Coffee, Sugar and Cocoa Exchange. But commodity analysts agree it may be several months before any price changes are seen on the nation's supermarket shelves.

The United States is the world's largest coffee-consuming nation.

Richard Thompson, vice president of commodities for Hills Bros. Coffee Inc., a subsidiary of Nestle Holdings Inc. in San Francisco, said "an immediate change in prices is not expected as roasters must work down inventories purchased at higher prices."

In Purchase, N.Y., Barbara Campbell, spokeswoman for the Nestle Foods Corp., which markets Taster's Choice and Nescafe, said, "It's really too early to all whether prices will move lower ... we will just have to wait and see."

Speculators in the hotly traded commodity have "split the bean," analysts noted, driving the price of a futures contract from a high of $1.5525 a pound on Jan. 3 to a current low of around 86 cents a pound.

The average speculator in the robust coffee pits who purchased one futures contract in January for $58,218 has suffered a paper loss of almost 44 percent, or slightly more than $25,970 per contract.

Analysts say the sharp drop is the direct result of the International Coffee Organization's July 3 decision to suspend all export limits.

'Batman,' 'Dead Poets Society' get mixed reviews

The rating system for the film list is: (XXXX) excellent; (XXX½) very good; (XXX) good; (XX½) pretty good; (XX) fair; (X½) poor; and (X) extremely bad.

BATMAN (XX½) This film doesn't live up to the hype, and judged purely on its own terms, "Batman" still doesn't quite make it. It comes with spectacular sets, tons of brooding atmosphere and a badly undernourished script. Despite its dark brilliance, "Batman" is neither beast nor beauty. Michael Keaton plays it super-straight, but still seems miscast as Batman. As the Joker, Jack Nicholson goes too far over the top. Too often, nothing but the atmosphere — a film noir nightmare — seems fully and corrosively alive. In avoiding the campy approach of the Batman TV series of the '60s, director Tim Burton may have taken Batman too seriously. PG-13: Violence and darkness.

DEAD POETS SOCIETY (XXX) It's about preppies, poetry and passion, subjects that don't usually set box-office records. But this stirring offering could be the exception. Robin Williams plays an unconventional English teacher who plies his trade at a Vermont prep school. Set in 1959, the movie becomes an impassioned cry against conformity. Williams plays it low-key, leaving it to a fine cast of young actors to carry the day. Director Peter Weir gives us moments that swell with emotion, but the movie's ending is much too manipulative. PG.

DO THE RIGHT THING (XXX½) Director Spike Lee has made the most provocative movie of the year. "Do the Right Thing," which relates a day in the life of a block in the Bedford-Stuyvesant area of Brooklyn, draws equally on the vitality and rage that boil inside America's ghettos. This is at once a bold assertion of style and a stinging expression of anger, straight-ahead anger over race. And for once it's the black people who become most angry. Lee shows us the tensions that come to a head on a hot summer day. "Do the Right Thing" is fractious, entertaining and more than a little sad. R: Profanity and violence.

diamond in a cornfield. He's then visited by ghosts from baseball's past, including Shoeless Joe Jackson (Ray Liotta). If you can tolerate Robinson's mixture of fantasy and reality, you'll find a film that's wistful and deeply nostalgic. PG.

FOR QUEEN AND COUNTRY (XX½) This darkly hued ramble through London's slum culture stars Denzel Washington ("Cry Freedom"), who gives a smart, wary performance as an ex-paratrooper trying to come to terms with a society that doesn't recognize him as a full-fledged citizen.

FIELD OF DREAMS (XXX½) Director Phil Alden Robinson bolsters a light-hearted fantasy with a story about second chances and the longing for reconciliation. Kevin Costner plays an Iowa man who hears a voice telling him to build a baseball

Hank Williams' illegitimate daughter finally gets her family inheritance

By Rheta Grimley Johnson
Scrpps Howard News Service

The judge finally saw the light and said Hank Williams' daughter could inherit the same as his son.

The first time I talked to Cathy Deupree Adkinson — whose stage name is Jett Williams — she was just plain Cathy, the former foster child of a couple who lived in rural Alabama near my parents.

My mother told me she had heard from somebody who had heard at the beauty shop that this Cathy was the illegitimate daughter of Hank Williams. Cathy had visited her former foster parents, and the community was abuzz with the news.

Sounded like a story to me, so I called her and said so. "Do you think anybody would really be interested in all that?" asked Cathy, who seemed extremely shy.

"Oh, yes," I said. Cathy said she'd have to think about it. She had considered going public, but had mixed emotions about it all. Maybe she would sell her story.

I telephoned once or twice after that, but the interview never took place. I forgot about it.

But soon enough, Cathy found herself a lawyer and a career as a country singer. Next thing I knew, she was in all the newspapers.

After she filed a lawsuit in 1985, an Alabama judge declared she was indeed the daughter of the famous Hank

Williams and the late Bobbie Jett, a Nashville secretary who lived with the singer in 1952.

Williams plucked his last guitar string on Jan. 1, 1953. Cathy was born five days later.

The same judge who made it official that Williams was her father also said she wasn't entitled to any of his songwriting royalties. Those royalties keep flowing in from songs that are the cornerstone of pure country. The income is estimated at more than $500,000 annually.

Hank Williams Jr. — never shy about trading on his father's name — fought his half-sister at every turn.

Junior's actions were not all that surprising, coming from a man who sings "I like to have women I never had."

Zsa Zsa Gabor pleads innocent to battery of Beverly Hills officer

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — Actress Zsa Zsa Gabor pleaded innocent Wednesday to slapping a motorcycle officer who stopped her Rolls Royce for having expired tags.

The Hungarian-born actress appeared in Municipal Court and denied one count each of battery on a police officer, disobeying a police officer and having an expired driver's license.

Gabor, who lists her age as 66, also pleaded innocent to two infractions: having an open container of alcohol in a vehicle and having an expired vehicle registration.

Municipal Judge Charles Rubin allowed Gabor to remain free without having to post bail and scheduled a pre-trial hearing for Aug. 2.

If convicted of the battery charge, Gabor could be sentenced to a year in County Jail and fined $2,000. The other misdemeanor charges carry maximum six-month jail terms and $1,000 fines.

The infractions are punishable by $100 fines.

Gabor was stopped on La Cienega Boulevard June 14 by Beverly Hills police officer Paul Kramer for having expired tags on her Rolls Royce.

While the officer was checking her license by radio, Gabor suddenly drove off, police said.

Kramer gave chase, stopped her car a short distance away and ordered her out, police said. Gabor complied, but slapped the officer in the face, according to the police report on the incident.

Senate works on legislating immigration ceiling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate moved toward passage Wednesday of legislation setting a first-ever annual ceiling of 600,000 immigrants, blending the traditional goal of reuniting families with a policy of attracting skilled and educated newcomers.

Although the bill would set a limit of 600,000 immigrants for each of the next three years, the number is 106,000 more than entered America to take up permanent residence in 1988.

The bill is a follow-on to 1986 legislation that dealt with illegal aliens. Refugees and those seeking asylum are covered in other bills.

The bill under consideration is the first major rewrite of immigration law in 28 years, and is very similar to legislation adopted by the Senate 88-4 last year but never passed by the House.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., a major sponsor, said, "Our bill preserves the immigration rights of those who have close family connections in this country, while stimulating immigration from the earlier sources of immigration to our country that have contributed so much to America in the past.

"From the earliest days of our history, America has been a beacon of hope and opportunity to peoples in other lands," Kennedy said. "We are proud of our immigrant heritage, and we must do all we can to preserve that heritage, to build upon it, and to strengthen it for the future."

A major amendment, adopted Tuesday evening, would give about 40,000 Chinese students — who were in the United States when China crushed the pro-democracy protests in Beijing June 5 — the right to remain for up to three years.

The Senate also adopted an amendment Wednesday that would create a task force to determine the needs of Chinese in the United States on a non-immigrant status.

The bill would create two immigrant visa preference systems — one for family members, with a maximum of 480,000, and one for independent newcomers to the United States, with a maximum of 120,000.

At present about 90 percent of immigrants are joining family members in the United States and only 10 percent are "new seed" independent immigrants.

The unrestricted admission of the immediate family of a U.S. citizen would remain in effect. About 220,000 entered the country last year.

Visiting American experts claim Soviet psychiatric abuses exist

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American experts who inspected Soviet psychiatric hospitals said Wednesday that previous widespread abuses have been reduced, but mental institutions are still being used by some Soviet authorities to punish political dissidents.

A Soviet response to the U.S. report conceded that some shortcomings may still exist, but suggested that the American team erred by accepting, at face-value, statements made by every Soviet mental patient who was interviewed.

The 26-member American team was led by Robert Farrand, deputy assistant secretary of state for human rights, and Loren Roth, professor of psychiatry at the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine.

The American team included 14 psychiatrists, one psychologist, two lawyers, two specialists in human rights and six interpreters.

They were allowed to visit a series of Soviet psychiatric hospitals from Feb. 26 to March 12, interviewing 15 patients and 12 former patients who had recently been released by Soviet authorities. Of the 12 who had been released, the American team found that 11 had been confined for reasons that were essentially political, including the distribution of literature banned by Soviet authorities.

The American team concluded: "There are some signs of movement to bring legal and psychiatric practices closer to those found in the West. Yet, there are also many signs that the transition is far from complete."

The Americans said, "Practices continue that, even allowing for considerable differences in political and economic philosophy, and in legal, social and psychiatric systems, lend credence to continuing concerns about psychiatric abuse."

Peace Corps to send 60 to Hungary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In what was called a "historic day," the Peace Corps said Wednesday it would send 60 American volunteers to Hungary as English teachers — the first time volunteers are being assigned to a Communist nation.

It also will be the first time that volunteers are sent to Europe.

President Bush announced the Peace Corps decision during a speech Wednesday in Budapest, where he also announced other measures — such as giving Hungary Most Favored Nation tariff treatment.

Paul Coverdell, director of the Peace Corps, said, "This is a historic day and the threshold of a new era for the U.S. Peace Corps."

Coverdell said, "It shows that our mission, our desire for peace, knows no political or geographical boundaries."

He said the program will involve about 60 American volunteers teaching English in all of Hungary's 19 counties and the federal district of Budapest. The training of the American volunteers — including language proficiency in Hungarian — will begin this year and the contingent will be sent to Hungary early next year, he said.

China had agreed to take a small contingent of Peace Corps volunteers, but the Chinese government recently asked that the group's arrival be postponed indefinitely. The Chinese request for a postponement came during the political upheavals and the strain in U.S. relations that followed the brutal suppression and killing of pro-democracy demonstrators in Tiananmen Square on June 4.

Mitterrand ignores criticism of bicentennial celebrations

PARIS (UPI) — President Francois Mitterrand dismissed criticism Wednesday that celebrations of the 200th anniversary of the French Revolution are too grandiose, saying he had nothing to gain personally from the extravaganza.

"What have I to attain?" Mitterrand, 72, said in an interview with L'Express magazine. "I will not be a candidate for anything again."

The Socialist president, who began his second seven-year term of office last year, said, "I am a free man. I do not need to justify myself to anyone. I am trying to do my best by remaining faithful to my convictions."

Some critics of the government have accused the president of showing monarchical tendencies in organizing the bicentennial celebrations that will cost an estimated $310 million.

Others have accused Mitterrand of betraying the revolution's principles by presiding over a "summit of the rich" with the leaders of the other six major industrialized democracies instead of concentrating more on Third World problems such as indebtedness and apartheid.

Officials said Mitterrand plans to make a gesture of humility Friday during the climax of the July 14 celebrations — a 2 and a half hour outdoor theatrical procession in honor of the Marseillaise, the French national anthem.

The veteran politician whose followers affectionately call him "Tonton" (Uncle) will climb down from the presidential rostrum during the Hollywood-style 7,000-person procession and mingle with ordinary people in the crowd, said Christian Dupavillon, an official at the Culture Ministry.

"He has been placed in a spot with easy access among people like you and me," Dupavillon said.

Director Jean-Paul Goude held a rehearsal of the July 14 Champs Elysees parade on location in the early hours Wednesday. American opera singer Jessye Norman sang the Marseillaise wrapped in a blue-white-and-red Tricolor flag. One hundred Guinean drummers beat out a wild rhythm.

Mitterrand also replied Wednesday to remarks by British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, who told French television Tuesday that she did not think the world had learned anything new from the 1789 uprising.

Thatcher told the Antenne 2 network she saw no universal message in the French Revolution and recalled the victims of the wave of terror at the height of the upheaval.

"There was the Terror and then Napoleon, who wanted to unify Europe by force," said Thatcher, whose forebears fought a bitter war to thwart Napoleon's dreams of empire.

In the interview with L'Express, Mitterrand conceded, "We cannot present as exemplary men who let themselves go in useless violence."

"But we also have to understand the logic of situations and think that the French Revolution changed the face of the world," Mitterrand said.

Army camps in Paris a reminder of Nazi occupation of World War II

PARIS (UPI) — This city of light has become an armed camp to protect 30 heads of state who will attend the 200th anniversary of the French Revolution and a seven-nation economic summit.

With the bicentennial bash to begin Friday and the summit to start Saturday, hundreds of sharpshooters have been assigned to rooftops, the army has installed anti-aircraft cannon along the streets and security boats patrol the Seine River.

In addition, law enforcement teams have swept thousands of apartments that line motorcade routes, miles of fences have been erected and the Paris skyline now includes a state-of-the-art surveillance blimp.

These sights and sounds may be reminiscent of the bitter Nazi occupation of World War II, but all the peacetime security is unprecedented and some Parisians contend it may also be a bit unwarranted.

"If you listened to them (White House security, President) Bush should visit Paris in a giant glass bubble," wrote the French news magazine L'Express.

The publication ridiculed the U.S. insistence that Bush use a side service door to enter the new Bastille opera house instead of climbing the main stairway with leaders of six other industrialized nations — host France and Britain, Canada, Italy, Japan and West Germany.

President Francois Mitterrand arranged an early-bird dinner Wednesday — with plenty of ceremony and security — for 17 Asian, African and Latin American leaders who already had arrived for the bicentennial celebration.

Interior Minister Pierre Joxe tried to reassure Parisians that most of the $13 million spent on bolstered security will become part of the city's permanent system, but much of the money has gone to mobilize a security force of 30,000 — described by Joxe as the largest ever seen in peacetime Paris.

Costs include $3.5 million in overtime pay for national police and other security agents and $634,000 to lodge and feed reinforcements brought in from the French provinces.

An estimated $1.2 million has been spent on no-parking signs and on 12 miles of metal security fencing to block off streets.

A bullet-proof glass casing will protect the foreign leaders when they view the July 14 Bastille Day celebration, an outdoor event.

Tremors in Japan may be caused by eruption of undersea volcano

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan placed its army, navy and air force on alert Wednesday amid fears that a recent flurry of earthquakes may have been caused by the formation of an undersea volcano that could erupt near Tokyo.

Following a two-hour emergency meeting of Japan's Volcanic Eruption Prediction Liaison Council, Chairman Daisuke Shimozuru said the tremors may have been caused by molten rock rising from the Pacific seabed some 12 miles from the coast.

"We haven't found any direct signs of volcanic activity but we have to continue our surveillance," he said.

The area is off the Izu Peninsula, a mountainous strip of land studded with more than 100 hot spring resorts, about 80 miles southwest of Tokyo.

Since June 30, the peninsula has been hit by more than 22,000 earthquakes, including 477 that could be felt by people. Sunday, a pair of strong quakes measuring 5.5 on the Richter Scale struck the region, injuring 21 people and damaging homes and roads in the peninsular city of Ito.

Fears that the tremors signalled Japan's next great earthquake quickly switched Tuesday night to concern over a volcanic eruption when seismic activity changed.

Instead of sharp jolts, single tremors Tuesday night and Wednesday morning lasted up to an hour with diminished intensity.

In Ito, residents reported hearing repeated booming sounds without feeling the ground shake.

Seismologists said the new activity indicated that the tremors were being caused by magma, or molten rock, pushing up from the ocean bottom.

The Japan Self Defense Force, the nation's military, announced Wednesday it had placed the army, navy and air force on alert "to prepare for any eventuality." It said 42 planes, 15 ships and 1,400 personnel were being readied to respond if a volcanic eruption occurred.

Wednesday, government agencies and university experts conducted tests in the Pacific near the epicenter of the tremors, but failed to find any hard evidence of volcanic activity. More studies, including the use of satellites to chart irregularities in the earth's crust, were planned Thursday.

The Japanese island chain was created by volcanos, 67 of which are still active.

Otis and the Elevators to play 'roots conscious' rock 'n' roll

By Theresa Livingston
Entertainment Editor

Otis and the Elevators, a crowd favorite of central Illinois audiences, will be featured at this week's Sunset Concert at Shryock Auditorium.

Although critics and fans have described the band as anything from rock-blues to pop to a party band, lead singer Jay Rosenstein said he hesitates to classify the Elevators' sound.

"We're very traditional, but not rockably or anything like that. We're more roots-conscious than roots-rock, integrating traditional rock into everything else we do," he said.

Rosenstein further elaborated with an analogy. "Our sound is sort of Bob Dylan meets Stevie Ray Vaughn, with a little reggae thrown in, but we definitely do our own thing," he said.

Based in Champaign-Urbana, The Elevators formed about four years ago. Operating under the motto, "We don't have fans, we have friends," the four-member group consistently sold out Mabel's in Champaign and played in Chicago (with Carbondale's own Modern Day Saints) and Wisconsin, as well as other spots in Illinois.

"We've even played in Carbondale before. We opened for the Saints and had a lot of fun," Rosenstein said.

The band plays original music from their two independent label LPs and the occasional cover or two tops up in the stage show from time to time.

The first, 1985's "Some Career," sold out after two pressings and was the Champaign-Urbana area's fifth top selling album for 1986.

The second, the recently released "Cross the Bridge," went to the No. 1 spot on the Champaign-Urbana charts and radio request lines, including major label releases, and has been sent to alternative, independent and college radio stations and publications.

The Elevators also released a live compilation tape, "Live From The Other Side," in 1987, as a response to "all the bootlegs floating around town," which sold more than 500 copies in two months.

Still, all in all, Rosenstein said while he is excited with the band's success, he has adopted a wait and see attitude about the future of Otis and the Elevators.

Etiquette book rude, but funny

Scripps Howard News Service

A book on manners by P.J. O'Rourke, king of the rude boys and the international affairs desk chief at Rolling Stone, is like a handbook on diplomacy by Manuel Noriega.

O'Rourke is one of the funniest guys working now, and his ability to zero in on stupidity and pretensions and the failures of contemporary life reminds one of Jonathan Swift and Mark Twain.

On public behavior: "If you throw a drink in the face of a congressman, it will be regarded as a political statement, or as a moral judgment, or as an envious thing others had been doing to do. But if you did not know he was a congressman, it will be regarded as felonious assault."

On learning foreign languages: "... no one learns real French anymore because Americans already have a language they can't understand and don't speak well — English."

Unfortunately, the truly sidesplitting parts of "Modern Manners" can't be printed here, but the excerpts above give an indication of O'Rourke's caustic nature.

Roberto Duran longs for rematch with Sugar Ray

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — When he's alone and away from his adoring fans, WBC middleweight champion Roberto Duran says he thinks of only one thing — his loss to Sugar Ray Leonard.

The defeat has become a living nightmare for Duran, who will fight a series of exhibitions over the next few months on the West Coast. Every time he enters the ring he thinks of the loss and feels the pain deep inside.

It was Duran who hung the only blemish on Leonard's record only to have Leonard come back and defeat him in the rematch. That loss has turned Duran into an obsessed man. He wants one more chance against Leonard and he knows that at the age of 38 time is beginning to run out.

"My intentions with all these exhibitions is to be ready for Sugar Ray," Duran said through an interpreter. "Every night I pray that Sugar Ray Leonard will decide to fight me."

On Friday, Duran will take on unknown Irish Pat Lawlor, of San Francisco, in an exhibition match. It is one of a series of bouts against would-be "Rockys."

"Whatever happens, happens," Lawlor said. "They can take me out on a stretcher, but when I wake up I can still say I've been in the ring with Roberto Duran."

However, such damage will likely not happen since both fighters will wear 16-ounce gloves.

"I have to fight exhibitions," Duran said. "The intention of the exhibitions is to stay in shape for Leonard. I want to show I can stay in shape."

The four-time world champion may soon get his wish, Mike Trainer, Leonard's attorney, said Tuesday that there was a possibility of a third fight between Duran and Leonard.

"My marching orders are to talk to the two of them (Duran and Thomas Hearns) and see what happens," Trainer was quoted as saying in the San Francisco Examiner.

Duran said: "My people have been in contact with Leonard's people. We hope to have an answer by Monday when, and if, we'll fight."

While awaiting word from Leonard, Duran has busied himself with the lengthy exhibition schedule.

Dutchman wins Tour stage; Fignon holding lead

BLAGNAC, France (UPI) — Dutchman Mathieu Hermans sprinted out of the pack to win the 96-mile Luchon-Blagnac stage of the 76th Tour de France Wednesday after pacesetter Rudy Dhaenens of Belgium spun and fell on a turn 600 meters from the finish.

Laurent Fignon of France, wearing the yellow jersey, maintained his seven-second lead over American Greg LeMond in the overall standings.

"This stage wasn't at all easy," said Fignon. "You had to be constantly alert because there were a lot of breaks in the road. In those conditions, the solution is to stay well-placed."

The pack of some 90 riders, including the top 10 overall, finished in the same time as Hermans overall, three hours, 37 minutes, 47 seconds.

The overall leaders remained unchanged after the stage, which descended from the Pyrenees peaks climbed earlier in the week. Frenchman Charles Mottet held third, 57 seconds back, with Spain's Pedro Delgado fourth, at 2:53.

American Andrew Hampsten, having made little impact during the tour, held fifth place, 5:18.

Of the 198 starters, the field has dwindled to 165. Dropping out Wednesday was Fabio Parra of Colombia, a pre-race favorite. After Parra's withdrawal, the last member of his Kelme team, Jose Ronancio of Spain, also pulled out.

Browns wanting Mack back

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Cleveland Browns are planning on having two-time Pro Bowl running back Kevin Mack in training camp Tuesday when the rest of the team reports, despite his pending drug trafficking charges.

Mack, 26, was jailed overnight June 28 after being arrested in the heart of a notorious drug district and was indicted Monday by a Cuyahoga County grand jury.

If convicted on all charges — possession of cocaine, sale or resale of cocaine, aggravated drug trafficking and possession of criminal tools — he could be sentenced to 20 years in prison.

Mack has been free on $2,500 bond and staying at the Cleveland Clinic Hospital for what has been described as "extensive evaluation" since June 29.

He is to be arraigned July 24 or 25, but the Browns plan on having Mack in training camp before his court appearance.

"I can't tell you what's going to happen in the legal quarter," Browns Vice President Ernie Accorsi said, "but that's (Mack attending camp) what we're expecting and hoping. From a football standpoint, we're proceeding the same way."

John Pyle, Mack's attorney, said Mack's physician will have to clear Mack for practice.

"Number one, Dr. (Gregory) Collins is treating him," Pyle said. "Before any decisions are made Dr. Collins will have a lot to say."

Illini won't get Bebout; SIU-C might

By Curtis Winston
Staff Writer

The Illini is out of the picture for pitcher Bryan Bebout. No matter what school the Harrisburg Bulldogs' ace hurler chooses, he will stay in Southern Illinois.

Bebout said he is leaning toward SIU-C and is waiting to find out how much financial aid he would receive from the University. But he hasn't ruled out the possibility of staying in Harrisburg and going to Southeastern Illinois College, which is a junior college. "It all just boils down to the money ... Southeastern is giving me everything."

"It depends on the amount of money I can get from the Pell Grant," Bebout said. "If I can get the money, I'm going to go to SIU. If not, I'll go to Southeastern."

Bebout has signed a letter of intent to play with Southeastern, but is binding only in the Great Rivers Athletic Conference, a JUCO league. The letter was signed with the agreement that he could go to another school if a better offer surfaced.

The southpaw pitcher for the State Champion Bulldogs says he has ruled out the University of Illinois because it "was too expensive for my family." Bebout had been heavily recruited by Illini as well the Salukis.

Bebout said he expects to make a decision today, depending on if he receives a reply from the University.

"I'd like to get my decision out of the way so I won't have to worry about it anymore," he said. The saga of Bebout's college decision has seemed never-ending, with postponed meetings and rumors flying about where he might play collegiate ball.

But the young pitcher is taking all the attention from the schools and local media in stride. "It's kind of fun," he said.

Voted the State Tournament's MVP, Bebout finished his senior year as a Bulldog with a 13-0 record.

Lady cross country striving to improve

Judiscak, Brown among list of returners

By Greg Scott
Staff Writer

Saluki women's cross country coach, Don DeNoon is hoping that a fine mixture of experienced returners and upcoming youth lead to a successful cross country season.

"We should have much improved cross country team performance this season," DeNoon said. "With the caliber of athletes we have returning along with our recruits, I have every reason to feel optimistic."

Two of DeNoon's top returners include seniors Lisa Judiscak and Cathy Brown.

Judiscak, listed fourth on the SIU-C women's all-time cross country list, missed the balance of the 1988 season due to injury. DeNoon said he doesn't believe the team ever recovered from her loss.

"We should have a team in contrast this season," DeNoon said. "Last year we lost Lisa (Judiscak) for the entire season and the team never really gained any leadership until mid-season when Jane Schumacher emerged. But we never caught fire or became one of the top teams."

DeNoon believes Judiscak's health and leadership could be keys to the season. Brown is listed 18th on the all-time cross country list. DeNoon has five returning to the team that have ran the 5,000 meter run under 19 minutes.

Along with Judiscak and Brown, Dona Griffin, Tracy Guerin and Amie Padgett are returning. Griffin is a junior. Guerin and Padgett are sophomores.

"We are really depending on these five this season because they can get the job done," DeNoon said. "I am expecting exciting things out of Amie Padgett. She has all the tools to really become successful. Sometimes it comes down to what's inside an athlete."

Michelle Sciano and Rosanne Vincent, both juniors, also could help out according to DeNoon.

DeNoon said he believes the cross country team has added depth with the recruits it picked up. Dawn Barefoot and Leann Conway could make an instant impact according to DeNoon.

"We have really picked up some top quality kids," DeNoon said. "I think that Barefoot and Conway could make it into the top 20 list immediately."

DeNoon is also said he is pleased with the addition of frosh runners Laura Batsie and Christine Gabler.

Rose case dominating baseball

United Press International

Major league baseball, overshadowed by the distraction of the Pete Rose investigation during the first half of the season, moves into its second half today with four close divisional races and sluggers Kevin Mitchell and Bo Jackson in the spotlight.

Orioles, Mitchell's Roger Maris-like first half and Jackson's prowess in his "hobby." However, their performances have taken a backseat to Commissioner Bart Giamatti's investigation of Rose.

Mitchell has 31 home runs at the break and is on a pace to hit 58, which would break Hack Wilson's NL record of 56 set in 1930. If the streaky Mitchell, who also boasts 81 RBI, can match his first-half numbers, he would even threaten Roger Cowboys' QB retires ...

Danny White ends career after 13 years in NFL

DALLAS (UPI) — Dallas Cowboys quarterback Danny White retired Wednesday, ending a 13-year career in which he took the Cowboys to the brink of the Super Bowl three times but could never escape the shadow of his Hall of Fame predecessor, Roger Staubach.

The emotional White, who was 67-35 as a starter for Dallas, said at a news conference he decided to retire when new Cowboys Coach Jimmy Johnson told him Wednesday morning he would not play a key role in the team's 1989 plans.

"The direction they wanted to take was to get as much work for the young guys as possible," White said. "If I wanted to play the role that I wanted to play, I had to get as much work as possible. That opportunity was not going to be provided."

White's voice quivered and he made an obvious effort to keep tears from streaming down his cheeks as he said he would end his 13-year NFL career.

"I'm grateful to the Cowboys for the opportunity they've given me to play football," he said. "But more than that, for the opportunity to have an effect on people's lives. That's the thing I will remember the most. I thank the fans and the league and all my coaches and teammates."

"I wish the Cowboys all the luck in the world. They've got a talented young group of players, and if Coach Johnson doesn't screw up along the line, they will have an impact very quickly," White added, drawing laughter from Johnson.

White's departure leaves the Cowboys with rookies Troy Aikman and Steve Walsh, little-used Scott Secules and veteran Babe Laufenberg as their only quarterbacks in camp. Veteran Steve Pelluer, who replaced White as the Cowboys' starter in 1988, has been offered a $600,000-a-year contract but has not reported for workouts.

But Johnson, who replaced Tom Landry as the Cowboys' coach in March, said he was comfortable going into training camp with Aikman or Walsh as probable starters.

"I feel because of the unique situation we're in, that the young players know more about our offense than the veterans," Johnson said.

Ron Guidry finishes up pitching in minor league

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ron Guidry, fourth on the all-time victory list for the New York Yankees, Wednesday retired after more than 13 seasons with the team he anchored through its most recent championship era.

"I have given them everything I could possibly have given," the 1978 Cy Young Award winner said at a Yankee Stadium news conference. "This is not a sad moment. We all laugh at the stories when I first got here: I was too small (5-foot-11, 160 pounds at best), I didn't have the guts... I did the best job I thought I could do. Now I think the best thing I could do is step aside."

Guidry, who posted a 170-91 lifetime record and 3.29 ERA, was on world championship teams in 1977 and 1978 and won more than 20 games in a season three times. Since his 22-6 performance in 1985, however, Guidry has failed to have a winning season, going 16-23.

The left-hander who turns 39 Aug. 28 did not make an appearance with New York during the 1989 season and spent several weeks with the Columbus Clippers, the Yankees' Triple-A affiliate in the International League where he played in 1976. After undergoing elbow surgery March 17, Guidry compiled a 1-5 record in seven starts with a 4.18 ERA.

"The organization has given me a chance to go out gracefully," he said at the conference team owner George Steinbrenner was unable to attend. "I might come back and lose — I can say I won my last game last year and I can take that to the hot stove league."

The last pitcher in two decades to be drafted, developed and kept by the Yankees organization, Guidry denied bitterness at ending his career in the minor leagues.

"I thought it was fitting that I should end my career where I started," he said. "The book closed even."

Hardly. Guidry's winning percentage of .651 is tied for eighth on the Yankees' all-time list and his 1,778 strikeouts are second to Whitey Ford's 1,956 in team history.

"I was going to retire after this year anyway," said the Lafayette, La., native known as "Louisiana Lightning" and "Gator."
