Opinion Poll

Too Much Buying On Credit

(ACP)—A favorite subject of cartoonists is the woman who has just charged some new article to her husband's account. In a recent survey conducted by Associated Collegiate Press through the National Office of Student Opinion should show a slightly different light on this time-honored joke. College coeds interviewed feel there is too much credit buying done today. More than fifty per cent of the college men feel the same way, but the coeds have a strong lead over the men.

The most vigorous protest of too much credit buying comes from the junior coeds interviewed. Eighty-nine per cent of them agree with the statement which was put to them, none disagree, and eleven per cent haven't made up their minds. Seniors reacted the greatest number of "agree" answers among the men interviewed. Seventy-one per cent of them think there is too much credit buying, twenty-one per cent would disagree with that statement, and seven per cent haven't made up their minds. Sophomore coeds marveled the greatest number of "disagree" among the college women interviewed, but the lowest percentage of coeds who agree, there is too much women interviewed, has the lowest percentage of coeds who agree there is too much credit buying comes from the seniors. This fact can be explained by noting that a fourth of the seniors are undecided, as opposed to only seven per cent of the sophomores who are still in doubt. Sophomores also accounted for the greatest proportion of the men in any class who do not think there is an excess of credit buying today. Thirty-nine per cent of them disagreed with the statement made in the question, but again, as was the case with the coeds, the greatest number of "disagree" does not mean the smallest number of "agrees." Junior men captured that category, with barely over half of them saying they think there is too much credit buying. Twenty per cent of the juniors are undecided, however, while all the sophomores interviewed expressed an opinion or the other.

Gus Bode Says

Gus says he's going to stop walking on the grass. A policeman took his vehicle and nearly scared Gus to death.

Gus says that if anyone votes for him in the Ugly Man Contest he'll see that their parking license is revoked.

Gus notes that the Governor asked for an interview while here but he was too busy.

Gus noted that the Governor chauffeur had a hard time convincing the campus police that a parking place should be provided. "That's what I like to see," says Gus. "Strict impartiality."

Gus received his six-week grade report and says, "Have E-will see (advisor)."

LIFE SAVING COURSE

Bob Frantz of the Department of Physical Education for Men and Laura Evans of the women's department will collaborate in an interview on May 13 in the University School pool.

The course is open to any persons who have attained the rank of senior lifesaver or who are working toward that goal or who have straining a two-week lifesaving-water safety course which will begin before instructors in lifesaving and water safety.

The course will be conducted from 4 to 7 p. m. on May 13, 15 and 16 for the first week. The second week it will be held at the same time on May 19, 22 and 23.

Dr. Hellmut A. Hartwig, professor of foreign languages, and Dr. Dallas A. Price, associate professor of geography, recently attended a national convention of the American Assn. of University Professors at the Cosmopolitan Hotel in Denver.

RAINCOAT MIXUP

James S. Allen has an Air Force raincoat, but it isn't his. Through some mixup, he exchanged coats with someone else. Allen has a set of car keys and a maroon cap in the pockets of his coat. Anyone who has his coat should return it to the lost-and-found department at the Student Union, where the coat Allen has may be picked up.

Short And Sweet

By Len Baldyga

The coffee line at the cafeteria was as long as ever when I got into one of those (just-to-pass-the-time-away) conversations with a fellow jvrat.

He told me he had been reading about all the problems students had on campus in avoiding various bicycles, scooters, trucks and teachers.

"I had a friend, once," he said, "who solved the problem very easily by learning to walk a tightrope. The guy then trampled across the telephone wires and skipped serially from class to class."

I listened attentively for a possible suggestion for my readers. He continued:

"This guy balanced his books on a long pole while he walked the telephone wires, but one day one of those strong Southern Illinois tornado like winds came along and he lost his balance and slipped. He hung himself on the wire and we buried him the weekend of the Homecoming."

Moral: Don't get hung up between classes.

SIU isn't the only University confronted with the dilemma of too many vehicles. I've noticed that up in the colder, but perhaps, drier regions of the country a student has come up with a "solution" to a similar problem. He has purchased a unicycle.

It seems steering of a unicycle depends on the hip movement. No hands are required and they are free to carry any books the student might want to take to school that day.

The proudest statement of the enterprising student mentioned above is that he claims he hasn't hit anyone "yet."

The application of the unicycle to the SIU campus could be the panacea which this university has searched for so long in order to solve the traffic problem.

GRADUATE APPLICATIONS AT REGISTRAR'S OFFICE

Students expecting to graduate June 15 should get their graduation applications at the Registrar's Office before Saturday, May 24. The graduation fee of $17 is payable at the time of application.

The purpose of the Information Service is not to inform students where various offices are located, but to release information of general interest about activities of the University, its students and faculty to newspapers, to radio and television stations, and to periodicals.

Attention Horticulturalists: The location of the Illinois Horticultural Experiment Station at SIU in 1951 in cooperation with the U. of I. promises much for the fruit and vegetable industry of the area.

clutter hip movement could be tripped through the campus and students would not only keep their balance but would come to class on time.

Courses like "Principles of the Unicycle," "The Unicycle and Traffic," and "How to Ride a Unicycle" could be offered.

But in all probability there is no use getting excited over the unicycle becoming part of the campus life. Like the unicorn, the unicycle may be just another fable.

MORAL: If you see a unicycle on the campus, keep it to yourself.

ON THE GREEN

The little sign with its straight to the heart message is located behind the President's Office. It really proves the old adage that one picture is worth a thousand words.

Southern is fast becoming one of the most beautiful colleges anywhere. And the campus contributes a vital share of this beauty.

Much hard work has gone into the campus lawn. The results are in full evidence this spring.

Only one thing mars the beauty of the campus—the well-trodden dirt paths cutting through the green grass.

Dirt paths are all right in their place but the campus green is not the place.

The campus was not laid out with a view to making a beeline from one building to the next. The only way to do this is to cut across the lawn. And this is just what many students do every day.

It is much easier to take the short way—across the lawn. The temptation is almost too much to resist, especially if one is late for class.

It is much harder to take the long way—to fight the traffic on the sidewalk. Some of the sidewalks appear to approach the desired building by way of China. But this is what students must do if SIU is to have a truly beautiful campus.

The campus police have been catching a culprit trodding the grass. But this shouldn't be necessary.

In the long run it is up to the students to decide if the campus shall be a thing of beauty or a path-scared checkerboard.

Letter To Editor

Boy Borrows Bicycle

Editor:

I would like to share a personal problem with the rest of the students, some of whom have had similar troubles. On Friday night, March 7, between 9:30 and 12:30, someone borrowed my bicycle, taking it from in front of Allyn Building.

This in itself wasn't so bad, even if I did inconvenience myself several hours that night looking over the campus for my bicycle; and I tried to sympathize with the person who needed a vehicle so urgently. No doubt he was just returning from the dance at Anthony Hall with a date who was too proud to be escorted on foot.

Nevertheless, I am trying to economize in every possible way and have been doing my own cooking at my room on S. Oakland. But as long as I am without my bike I cannot return home at lunch or supper time and must either buy these meals or eat a cold, packed lunch. The additional is about $10-$15 per month. Also,

'A Poet, Messiah, Demon' All These... D. H. Lawrence

By Barbara Downum

"D. H. Lawrence was a poet, messiah, demon," said Dr. Henry T. Moore, Fine Arts Festival speaker, last week in the Library Auditorium.

Dr. Moore, lecturer in English at SIU, is a literary critic, reviewer and expert on D. H. Lawrence. Earl Tannenbaum, instructor at the SIU Library, introduced Dr. Moore after telling the audience of the Lawrence exhibit in the Library. Tannenbaum prepared the exhibit and edited the exhibit catalogue.

Dr. Moore, speaking in very expressive tones, discussed the messianic and demonic traits of Lawrence.

"The messianic sometimes blends with the poetic and the messianic is, also, often merely the outburst of the demonic..." (depending in the case of people who knew Lawrence, upon whether they eventually wound up as his friends or enemies)," Moore said as the audience laughed at the subtle humor.

Lawrence, the author of many novels, articles and poems, was somewhat of a prophet who had a significant message for his time, according to Moore.

"Lawrence, like the earlier Freud, who Lawrence thought was too mechanized, also revolted against the 19th century taboos of not mentioning certain subjects," Moore said. "Lawrence often fought violently against the mechanisms of civilization."

"Lawrence had a very fine intellect, although I still wonder sometimes myself," the speaker in the dark suit said with a smile. "His works have been described as magnificent and also as trash. Lawrence's language is vivid, uneven yet at times rhythmical. His

Forestry Dept. Offers Cash Scholarships

"June 15 is the deadline for applications to be accepted for forestry department scholarships," said John F. Honser, assistant professor of plant industries.

"These scholarships consist of a direct cash grant approximately equal to the present tuition and fee costs at SIU; Honser said. Honser stated, "To be eligible to apply for one of the scholarships, an entering freshman must have graduated in the upper one-half of his high school class and have taken at least four units of science and mathematics in high school, and including two units of mathematics."

Interested students should write directly to the Department of Forestry, Southern Illinois University, Honser said. Twenty scholarships will be made each year to eligible candidates for the school years 1958-1959 and 1959-1960, and ten will be made available for the school year 1960-61.

"These awards have been made available to SIU students by the Sahara Coal Company of Chicago, Illinois," encouraged students to study forestry," said Honser.

lishers of London and the Viking Press of New York.

Moore is a fellow of the Royal Society of Literature in London, along with Sir Winston Churchill, Graham Greene and W. Somerset Maugham. He is one of the 15 Americans to be selected to this group.

Gives Education Boost

A Student At SIU

"A student should come to school primarily for an education," is the philosophy of 21-year-old Larry Ross Thompson.

Larry is a sophomore anthropology major from Peoria, and lives at Thompson Point.

"Anthropology is a thing that I have been interested in for a long time," said the tall Larry. "I am not worried about a lot of money, because I like anthropology. It is interesting."

"I think that Thompson Point is a nice place to live but it has its bad faults too. For one thing, they don't enforce the quiet hours out there. It will be a lot nicer when they get the lake finished. I lived at Thompson Point last year."

Larry thinks that the classes held at Thompson Point are good for students that live out there. He says it makes it a lot easier because you don't have to worry about being late for class.

"I think the tuition at SIU is very reasonable," said Larry in a firm manner as the subject changed. "No, I don't think that it is unfair for students to help pay for the new student union building. This is done at most of the universities. After all, these students can always come back and use it."

"Yes, I do think there are too many rules on campus. For example, we are supposed to have quiet hours, but they are not enforced."

"I have one big gripe about campus. I live 250 miles away from here, but the only way that I can get home is by train or bus. If I had a car, I could get home in four-and-one-half hours, but when I go on a bus it takes at least eight hours."

"They are using a lot of land around here uselessly that could be converted to parking places."

Larry says that the participates in campus activities as much as possible but he doesn't believe that there are enough activities.

"When they do have something, they have too much at one time," continued Larry in a serious manner. "They need to spread the activities out more."

"The link the Play Night is a good thing. No, I don't believe so because girls just aren't interested in badminton and things like that."

"Seems to me that we do need a new student government," said Larry as he discussed student government problems at Southern.

Recent Survey Indicates Alumni Like PE Courses

Physical education is not only a legal requirement in college, but also a good foundation for after-college life and activity...

From the traditional activities, 83 per cent learned the sport at SIU by most alumni...

Two Groups

The questionnaires were divided into two groups: traditional activities—basketball, touch football, wrestling, boxing, softball, volleyball, track and field, gymnasiums and tumbling; leisure activities—swimming and life saving, tennis, bowling, social dancing, square dancing, archery, badminton.

Rain! Rain! Rain!

Rain dampened all sports action on the SIU campus last weekend with the exception of the lone baseball game last Friday.

The track meet that was scheduled for Saturday probably will not be rescheduled as well as the double-header that was also scheduled for Saturday.

The Carbondale Relays, also scheduled for last Saturday afternoon and evening are going to be run off this afternoon and evening at 3:30 and 7 p. m.

Thieves Rob Rec Department

Thieves oriented themselves to the new headquarters of the SIU Department of Recreation and Outdoor Education last week. The $1,000 was stolen from the SIU Department.

Everything else, including the kitchen sink in Peihmann's office, was intact and undisturbed.

Women's Softball Begins

SIU women began an intramural softball program yesterday (April 29) with an organization meeting in the women's gym.

Pat McCree, Chester junior majoring in education, is the manager of the league. Miss Charlotte West of the Department of Physical Education for Women is the sponsor of the group.

Twenty-three per cent of the alumni said that they bowled now, and 83 per cent felt that it was a valuable activity to be learned.

"Although 92 per cent is a small percentage of students to be questioned," Dr. Sheu said, "I think that the physical education department benefited from the survey."

Swimming Highest

It came as no surprise to me that swimming is needed highest of all sports, I would guess that if we would ask the faculty of their preferences, the results would be quite similar.

Many of the alumni cited the college physical education program as important to the development of physical activity in later life.

Another alumna said that she considered coordination and physical well-being as two important factors in future life.

Beat IAC Champ

The SIU tennis team went a long way in proving that they are going to be the team to beat when the conference championships come around next month last Thursday afternoon as they beat last year's IAC co-champ, Illinois Normal, 6-0.

Against Normal, who had proved himself Eastern the holder of the other half of last year's title, the Salukis took out the six singles and the number two and three doubles matches.
