Bicycle Code Issued at TP

Thompson Point residents have been issued a bicycle code as the result of the campus-wide concern for the increasing safety hazard which has arisen from the operation of such vehicles.

The code concerns bicycles, motorized bikes and scooters. It was drawn up by Thompson Point Area Head, Harold L. Hakes, and approved by the Executive Council.

The main points of the code are listed below. Students wishing to obtain a copy of the code, along with a map of legal parking areas, should check at the Thompson Point office, at Lentz Hall.

1. All motorized bikes and/or scooters must be registered by the traffic section in line with university policy.
2. All motor scooters belonging to students living in the old halls must be parked on the cement patios in the back of the halls.
3. Motorized vehicles can be parked in only one space at Lentz Hall; at the southwest corner of the building, in the parking space.
4. Operators must walk vehicles with the motor turned off, in going to and from the parking areas.
5. The operator will be required to find another legal parking space, should the designated space be filled.
6. Violators will be referred to the judicial board.

BICYCLES

1. All bicycles must be parked in the bicycle areas and may not be placed in covered areas by the hall.
2. At Lentz Hall, all bicycles must be parked within the north side rack areas and may not be placed in covered areas by the hall.
3. No bicycles may be stored in the halls, except over long vacations.
4. All bicycles found in violation of these regulations will be impounded and the owner will face judicial board action.

Southern Tops Southwest Missouri 99-65 for 12th Victory of Season

By Alan Goldfarb

Southern's basketball team played its last game in the Men's Gym last night and scored an easy 99-65 victory over Southwest Missouri State.

The Salukis, who move into the new Arena next year, play their last home game of the year in Bowen Gym on Feb. 24 against Kentucky Wesleyan.

Joe Ramsey and Eldon Bigham, who played his finest game of the year against the Bears, led the scoring barrage with 18 points apiece.

Three more Salukis chipped in with double figures to give SIU a 12-8 season record and to snap a two game losing streak.

The Salukis got fat on their shooting percentages against the Bears as SIU hit a torrid .529 percentage on 46 baskets out of just 87 attempts.

James Teegarden, who kept the Bears in the game in the early going with four straight buckets, paced the Bears with 19 points, 15 of which came in the first stanza.

The Salukis never trailed in the ball game but did not pull away from the Bears until about midway through the first half when they put the handcuffs on Teegarden.

Teegarden and the Bears tied SIU at 13 but it was all Southern from then on as SIU ran on the Bears the rest of the night. The Bears were obviously tired as they played their second game in as many nights.

Coach Jack Hartman, just out of the hospital yesterday afternoon after a bout with a kidney ailment, was at the helm to substitute his club freely against the outmanned Bears.

Last night's encounter was the first in the last four outings in which the Saluki starting unit had a breather. Randy Goin gave Ramsey and Duane Warning a well needed rest as the sophomore came off the bench to pump through 14 points.

Dave Lee, who collected 16 points in another fine showing, spelled Paul Henry who made his first start in three games. Henry, who was favoring his well tapped left ankle saw only limited action as he sat out the second half. Hartman started little Eddie Blythe after the intermission in place of Henry.

Stephenson to Speak at 10 a.m.

William Stephenson kicks off today's activities during SIU Advertising Recognition Week with a 10 a.m. speech on "Research in Advertising" in the Morris Library Auditorium.

The well-known psychologist now on the University of Missouri School of Journalism staff is a consultant for the D'Arcy Advertising Co. of St. Louis.

Following his address, two informal coffee hours will follow, one immediately after his talk and the other at 2 p.m. in the library lounge.

Other events include a talk by Phil Smith, vice-president of the Gardner Advertising Co. of St. Louis who will address students at 10 a.m. in the Agri-

Peace Corps Director to Speak In University Center Ballroom

R. Sargent Shriver Jr. will describe Peace Corps operations at 2 p.m. today in the University Center Ballroom. Any interested SIU student can attend.

After the Peace Corps director's address, the floor will be open for questions and comments.

Shriver's appearance is part of the Peace Corps Week observance here. During his recruiting campaign, Shriver hopes to secure 200 Peace Corps volunteers from SIU and, according to one of his staff members, over 600 students had asked for ques-

1964 Tag Numbers Must Be Reported

Joseph Zaleski, assistant dean of student affairs, reminds the faculty, staff and students that they must report their 1964 license numbers to the Parking Section.

He said it is necessary to keep the records up to date.

Southern travels to Louisville, Ky., Saturday for its next game against the University of Louisville Cardinals. In the preliminary game, Southern's freshmen, led by Walt Frazier's 32 points and Clarence Smith's 29, bombed Harrisburg JC, 108-65.

The scoring: SIU - Ramsey 18, Bigham 18, Lee 16, Goin 14, Warning 11, Lloyd Stovall 7, George McNeill 6, Boyd O'Neal 5, Henry 2, Thurman Brooks 2, Blythe 0, Clem Quillman 0.

Southwest Missouri - Teegarden 19, Danny Bolden 12, Ryan Gaili 7, Butch Marshall 6, Don Carlson 4, Dave Tucker 4, Tony Logan 4, Dale Mathes 4, Frank Davidson 3, Roy Green 2, Jim Gant 1, Wayne Rieschel 0.

Agency Day is slated for Monday. Arranged with the cooperation of the Central Region of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, the features of the day will include meetings and talks by three representatives of advertising agencies. A case history presentation will be given at 10 a.m. in the Seminar Room.

A dinner meeting at Tom's Place will climax the week's activities, which are sponsored by Alpha Delta Sigma.

Later, Smith will meet with students for coffee at 2 p.m. in the same room.

tionnaires by yesterday morning at the Peace Corps information booth set up on the first floor of the University Center. Members of the recruiting team will be on campus all week and will speak in various classes.

Scheduled to arrive at the SIU Airport at noon today, Shriver will meet with President Delyte Morris then attend a luncheon in his honor in the University Center Renaissance Room.

Dick Moore, student body president, will introduce Shriver at his 2 p.m. appearance. Following his address, a press conference is slated for 3 p.m. in the ballroom.

Shriver will leave SIU at 3:30 p.m. today, flying to the University of Illinois for another speaking engagement. Just before arriving at Southern, Shriver was slated to discuss the Peace Corps at the University of Missouri.

Shriver is a member of both Illinois and New York bars and was assistant general manager of the Chicago Merchandise Mart until three years ago. Shriver, who is from Chicago, served as president of the Board of Education there from 1955 until 1960. He was on the Illinois School Boards Problems Commission and received a law degree from Yale.

Shriver is married to Eunice Kennedy Shriver, sister of the late President. She was on the SIU campus last May.

Sargent Shriver's visit to the SIU campus will be telecast at 8:30 p.m. today.

The telecast will include Shriver's address at the University Center.

While Shriver continues his tour of various colleges and universities to encourage students to volunteer for the Peace Corps, his recruiting staffs including Jim Gibson, assistant director of recruiting, Ellen White, Mary Cahill, Patricia MacDermot and John Hodgson will continue to test volunteers here.

TP Contest Will Honor 2 Residents

The "Most Outstanding Resident Fellow" of Thompson Point will be selected this week.

A male and female winner will each be selected in a contest sponsored by the T.P. Pointer, newsletter at Thompson Point.

Six finalists were chosen last week, in a penny-per-vote election which netted over $200.

They are Larry Asmussen, Felts 1; Dwight Smith, Felts 2; Mort Wright, Pierce 1; Mary Ann Shorb, Baldwin 2; Sandra Horning, Smith 2; and Barbara Bird, Kellogg 2.

The selection of the two winners will be based on an essay which is to be written by supporters of each of the finalists, on why their RF is most outstanding.

The $201.40, which was donated by residents, will be used for charitable purposes. Tentative plans call for use of the funds for a scholarship to be awarded to a resident of Thompson Point.

OPERA ROYALTY - Sharon Huebner of Waterloo as the Countess Almaviva and Ludlow Hallman of Dayton, Ohio, as the Count from the Sunday performance of Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro." The opera has been double cast to give more voice students an opportunity to sing the leading roles.

Student Opera Means Many Rehearsals For Choral Director Robert Kingsbury

By the time the curtain goes up on "The Marriage of Figaro" later this week, the 30 singers in the chorus probably will be wishing Figaro had remained a bachelor.

The chorus has had some 300 man hours of singing in rehearsal at the rate of two hours a week for the last five weeks. This week they are singing "straight through" every night preparing for Saturday's opening.

Actually, it is a labor of love and no one knows better than Robert Kingsbury, who not only is directing the chorus for the opera but also is production coordinator.

Kingsbury hastily explained that one really has to love to sing to devote so much time to such a project as an opera production.

"There are 30 members in the chorus and in addition to the time they have already spent rehearsing, we are practicing every night this week," he said.

"This really is not a lot of time by opera standards," Kingsbury added. "This opera calls for only light chorus work. Last year's production of 'Aida' required much more chorus work."

The chorus is only one of Kingsbury's worries this year. His post as production coordinator has some built-in non-musical headaches.

"It includes the handling of the sets, performing rights, physical arrangements, photography, costumes, and a few other items," he explained.

"I spend an average of two hours a day working on the opera but sometimes it seems like 22," he laughed.

Kingsbury has found that the "marriage" of two jobs for the production, like most marriages, isn't all peaches and cream.

"Scheduling rehearsals is a big problem. We have to use several different places to rehearse," he explained. Sometimes I almost have to use the parking lots but they are not available either. Making arrangements for all of the high school students that are coming down is also no easy job.

"One unusual thing about this production is that it was written for harpsichord accompaniment. We had to rent one. It does sound very good."

Kingsbury glanced at his watch and noticed that he was late for rehearsal. He smiled apologetically. "Well I'm off again."

Ticket Sales Begin For 'Figaro' Opera

Tickets for this weekend's performances of "The Marriage of Figaro" are on sale now at the University Center Information Desk. Prices are $2, $1.50 and $1.

The opera will be presented at 8 p.m. Saturday and 3:30 p.m. Sunday in Shryock Auditorium, a music department spokesman said today.

DeMolays to Form New Organization

SIU students who are DeMolays or senior DeMolays can become charter members of the Jacques DeMolay Club at the organizational meeting slated for 9 p.m. Thursday in Felts Hall Classroom.

John Zink, chairman, said the group should have its charter from SIU prior to the meeting.

Staff and faculty members who are Masons are invited to become associate members of the new DeMolay group.

Mecca Dormitory Elects Officers

Residents of Mecca Dormitory elected four new officers at last Sunday's meeting.

New officers include: Paul Riley, additional social chairman; Don Weger, sports activities chairman; Dennis Puffaf, judicial chairman; and Gerry Opela, scholastics chairman.

Prof Aims at Facts

Cupid Finds He's on Opposite End of Arrow in New Textbook

Cupid, who allegedly is extra busy about this time each year, suddenly has found himself on the other end of the arrow.

And the man behind the bow is an SIU family life specialist who ranks all the "sentimental stuff that surrounds Valentine's Day" just so much hogwash.

In fact, George R. Carpenter, associate professor in the School of Home Economics, has written a text book about the facts of love--and Cupid is relegated to a minor role.

Love, according to Carpenter, is nothing but a "well-structured friendship" and the incurable romantic notwithstanding, it is possible for any couple to develop love if they are willing to try hard enough.

But hearts and flowers--nor heart-shaped boxes of candy won't do it alone, Carpenter says.

Carpenter doesn't disapprove of Valentine's Day--"I give my wife a box of Valentine candy, but that's an adornment of love, it isn't love itself," he said. And he denies any supernatural or magical control of love.

"Love is the same element whether it is between parent-child or boy-girl," he said. "At the center of any love relationship is communication. Surrounding communication are three sets of attitudes: respect, which leads to admiration; understanding, which leads to tolerance, and cooperation, which leads to complementary living or companionship.

"Given these factors, these attitudes, you have love. You don't fall in love--you build love."

Industry Education Group Initiates 12

Psi Chapter of Iota Lambda Sigma, honorary professional society in industrial education, has initiated 12 new members, including a dean.

They were inducted in formal initiation ceremonies in the University Center. William J. McKeefery, SIU dean of academic affairs, was speaker at a banquet following initiation.

New members of the chapter, organized at Southern in 1956 and now one of 25 chapters throughout the nation, include Dean Julian H. Lauchner of the SIU School of Technology.

Others include: Kenneth Hortin; Charles Romack; Fred Bartel, director of marketable skills program at Community High School; James S. Harmon, SIU industrial education instructor; James E. Stroud; Charles C. Powers; John Baptiste; Louie Caron; Joseph D. Clinton, SIU drafting and technical illustrating instructor; Donald Bald and Mike Skertich.

English Club Sets Robert Frost Topic

"The Development and Reputation of Robert Frost" will be discussed at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at a meeting of the English Club in the lounge of the Home Economics Building.

Carpenter teaches courses in family relations in the department of home and family, with more than 50 students--both boys and girls--enrolled. In the spring quarter he will teach a similar course in the evening. It will meet each Monday and Wednesday nights from 6 p.m. to 7:25 p.m.

Feast Celebrates End of Ramadan

Eid-ul-Fitr, the Moslem festival marking the end of Ramadan, a month of fasting, will be celebrated by a Mid-Eastern feast Feb. 14, sponsored by the Moslem Students Association.

During Ramadan, Moslems must abstain from food or water from dawn to sunset.

This year's celebration will include entertainment and a dinner at the Faculty Club beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Reservations, which must be made by Feb. 11, may be sent to Miss Linda Clark, 118 S. University. The event is open to the public.

ECONOMICS CAN BE CHUCKLES

Many of you have been avoiding economics because it is so widely known as "the dismal science." Oh, good friends, stop cheating yourselves of many a laugh and cheer, because economics is a positive riot! True, it is called the dismal science, but that is only because it was invented in 1681 by Walter C. Dismal.

It is easy to understand why Mr. Dismal's discovery of economics is today almost forgotten, for the fact is that he himself only stayed with the subject for two or three days. After that he took up embonpoint, which means fatness. It is said that at his age, Mr. Dismal reached 1200 pounds. This later became known as Guy Fawkes' Day.

It was not until 1776 when Adam Smith published his Wealth of Nations (or Ozymandias, as it is usually known as) that the world came to realize what a rosy, twinkly, fun subject economics is. As Mr. Smith showed in his jocular little treatise, there is nothing complicated about economics.

When there is a great demand for a product, a great supply is placed on the market. When there is a small demand, there is a small supply. Take, for example, custanets. You walk into any average American town today and I'll wager you won't see more than eighty or ninety custanet shops. That is because the demand is small.

For Marlboro Cigarettes, on the other hand, the demand is great. Thus, you will find Marlboros--with all their yummy rich tobacco flavor and pure white Selestrate filter and pliable soft pack and unphable Flip-Top box--at any counter where cigarettes are sold in every one of our fifty great States and Duhth.

To Ada--Smith, I say, belongs the distinction of popularizing economics. Mr. Smith was followed by David Ricardo. In fact, everywhere he went he was followed by David Ricardo. Mr. Smith finally got so annoyed that he summoned a bobby, as British policemen are called, and had Mr. Ricardo arrested. This later became known as the Louisiana Purchase.

Upon his release from gaol, as a British jail is called, Mr. Ricardo reported to his parole officer, Thomas Robert Malthus. They soon became fast friends, and one night over a game of whist they invented the stock exchange, or chutney, as it is called in England.

Well sir, with the British having, you might say, a corner on economics, the French decided that they wanted some economics too. Being, however, a proud nation, they refused simply to borrow British economics, but insisted on inventing their own. At first they tried using the truffle hound as a medium of exchange. When this proved less than satisfactory, they switched to pomade. Discouraged by this second disappointment, they finally shrugged and said, "Oh, who cares about economics anyhow?" and returned to the guillotine and Maurice Chevalier.

America, I am pleased to report, had much better success with economics. Our early merchants quickly broke down economics into its two major categories--coins and folding money--and today, as a result of their wisdom, we can all enjoy the automatic toll station.

Well sir, I could go on and on about this fascinating subject, but I know you're all in a tearing hurry to rush out and sign up for Econ 1. So I will leave you now with two kindly words of farewell: Gresham's Law.

We, the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes, are tobaccoists, not economists. But this much we know about supply and demand: you demand full flavor in a filter cigarette: we supply it--Marlboro!

Associated Press News Roundup

Ball Flies to Cyprus On Peace Mission

NICOSIA, Cyprus--Under-secretary of State George Ball flies to Cyprus on his peace mission and is expected to get a cool reception from Greek Cypriots. There is a possibility of new anti-American demonstrations.

Coming from Turkey, the third stop on his mission, Ball will confer Wednesday with President Makarios, a Greek Cypriot who is an Orthodox archbishop, and Vice President Fazil Kutchuk, a Turkish Cypriot.

On the eve of his arrival, reports circulated in Nicosia of possible demonstrations similar to those last week when two bombs were set off at the U.S. Embassy.

Makarios has denounced last week's bombings. But the Greek Cypriot press has kept up daily attacks against the United States, Britain and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, claiming they advocate the Turkish desire for partition of this eastern Mediterranean island.

Notasulga Whites Get Private School

NOTASULGA, Ala.--A boycott by white pupils left the classrooms at Notasulga High School deserted again Tuesday but still no Negroes showed up although the way was left clear for them to enter.

At nearby Shorter High School, state troopers said no white students appeared when the opening bell rang at 8 a.m. This indicated that the boycott had spread in that community as well.

However, six Negroes admitted to the Shorter school last week under federal court order went into their classrooms today.

A private academy opened its doors to the boycotting pupils, and Negroes sought a court order to block state-aid tuition grants.

Cambodian Rocks Peace Hopes, Blasts U.S. for Air Attacks

SIEM REAP, Cambodia-- Just when a Philippine formula for peace between Washington and Phnom Penh seemed to be producing results, Prince Norodom Sihanouk fired another blast at the United States.

The mercurial, 41-year-old Cambodian chief of state told newsmen the United States is aiding subversive elements in Cambodia.

He charged that Americans-backing a war against Communist rebels in neighboring South Viet Nam--planned and "are responsible for South Vietnamese air attacks on Cambodians" in the frontier area.

He declared the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency tried to instigate a coup against him in 1959.

Similar accusations--denied by the United States--accompanied Sihanouk's decision to reject continued American aid of $30 million yearly, a mutual withdrawal of diplomatic personnel and a near break in relations last fall.

"We want an early Geneva conference for neutralization of Cambodia," Sihanouk said.

Bloodhound Gets His Man, But Posse Is Empty-Handed

GREENVILLE, S.C.-- James Robert Wilson escaped Monday from O'Neal Prison Camp.

Officers put two bloodhounds on his track. An automobile hit one dog and put him out of the race.

A posse followed the tracks of the other dog. The tracks of the dog and Wilson met, then continued side-by-side.

Wilson, part-time cook at the prison camp, also helped train the dogs.

The hunt was still on Tuesday for the convict and the defecting bloodhound.

House Passes Civil Rights Bill; Johnson Hails 'Historic Step'

WASHINGTON--The House has passed the civil rights bill in an overwhelming vote hailed by President Johnson as "an historic step forward for the cause of dignity in America."

Now the bill faces a tougher battle in the Senate where Southerners hope to whittle it down with speech-making.

As turned out by the House in a 290-130 roll call Monday night, the bill amounts to the most sweeping civil rights legislation in history. Southern efforts to water it down

Kidnaping Of Sinatra Termed Hoax

LOS ANGELES -- The defense in the Frank Sinatra Jr. kidnaping trial, in an opening statement Tuesday, charged that the abduction plot was a hoax and added: "The actions of Frank Sinatra Jr. are suspect of chicanery from start to finish."

Charles Crouch Jr., attorney for Barry Worthington Keenan, 23, described by the government as the ringleader of the alleged kidnaping plot, told a federal court jury:

"If the kidnapee (Sinatra Jr.) cooperated or consented to his taking away, there is no crime.

"The issue here is not who committed the crime but was a crime committed?"

The trial in U.S. Court opened Monday and by 4 p.m. a jury and four alternates had been selected and the government had made its opening statement. In court procedure, this is equivalent to breaking the 4-minute mile.

On trial are Joseph Clyde Amsler, 23; Barry Worthington Keenan, 23, and John William Irwin, 42. They are charged with kidnaping Sinatra at gunpoint from his hotel room at Lake Tahoe, Nev., Dec. 8.

Johnson to Attend St. Louis Banquet On Bicentennial

WASHINGTON -- President Johnson signed a bill Tuesday authorizing 200th anniversary medals for the city of St. Louis--where he will participate Friday in a bicentennial ceremony.

The President will deliver the principal address at a banquet in St. Louis Friday. The city was founded Feb. 14, 1764.

Johnson also will inspect a stainless steel archway rising on the St. Louis waterfront as a symbolic gateway to the West, and take part in a tree planting ceremony at St. Louis University.

were crushed at every turn by a coalition of Republicans and Northern Democrats.

But in the Senate with its different rules of debate, the Southerners hold the weapon of the filibuster and hope to weaken the measure by forcing a compromise.

Girding for the battle ahead, Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield has outlined parliamentary moves designed to delay Senate action on civil rights until the tax cut bill clears Congress, probably by the end of the month.

PARIS, Ill.--Radio Station WPRS announced Tuesday it no longer will accept cigarette advertising as a result of the federal report.

BUCKMINSTER FULLER'S 'DYMAXION AIR-OCEAN WORLD MAP'

Design Exhibits Feature Map, Geometric Globe by Fuller

R. Buckminster Fuller's "Dymaxion Air-Ocean World Map" is still on display in the University Center Magnolia Lounge.

The large map is in a geometric form composed of 20 equilateral triangles. This projection eliminates many of the distortions found on modern maps, particularly the Mercator.

A major problem in accurately portraying the world on a flat piece of paper is eliminating the distortion errors of changing the earth's shape from a three-dimensional sphere to a two-dimensional one.

Another project still on exhibit is an illuminated map with three different colored lights within every major nation of the world. A three-screen slide presentation and the illuminated map are still on display in the University Center ballroom and will be used during this week.

SIU Gets $64,000 NSF Grant For 7th Annual Math Program

For the seventh consecutive year, SIU has received a National Science Foundation grant supporting a summer institute for high school mathematics teachers.

The NSF has announced a grant of $64,000 to help finance the 1964 program. Purpose of the eight-week institute is to give teachers additional training in the subjects they teach.

Applicants chosen will be paid stipends of up to $75 a week, with allowances for dependents and transportation. The University will provide scholarships covering tuition and fees, according to Wilbur C. McDaniel, SIU mathematics professor, director of the program.

The grant brings total funds provided by the NSF for special summer programs at Southern this year to $145,700. Other grants include $61,900 for a similar institute for biology teachers, and $19,890 for a science program for outstanding high school students.

For the mathematics institute, which is limited to approximately 50 teachers, SIU will bring to campus visiting lecturers and special staff members.

More than 500 applications were received for last year's institute, with those selected coming to Southern from 25 states.

Democratic Side of Housing

Architecture Related To Problem of Living

Architecture in Transition, by Constantinos A. Doxiadis. New York: Oxford University Press. 1963. 199 pp. $7.50.

This is an interesting and, in many respects, a great book. It tries to relate the role of architecture to the social problem of living in a rapidly changing society. It discusses the task of architecture not only in terms of creating monumental structures, but also, with even greater emphasis, in quantitative terms which are relevant to the housing needs of the masses, or what might be called the democratic side of housing. It calls for a rational and aesthetic approach to the problems of human habitat in both qualitative and quantitative terms.

The author points out that architecture is in a stage of transition which is characterized by confusion. Old cities have lost their historic character and new ones have failed to develop a character of their own as centers of healthy and balanced social living. Of the few exceptions to this phenomenon he cites Venice, which has no cars and whose growth so far has been negligible.

Again, the growing interest in trailer life and the increasing preoccupation with cars represent a surge of neo-nomadism which reflects the failure of architecture to meet the housing needs of a large number of people. Many people who would be ashamed to drive an old car seem to be indifferent to the character of the house in which they live.

Concentration on a few modern buildings has accompanied general neglect of the overall needs of social living in cities and towns. The situation has been further complicated by the problems of traffic and the rising number of cars.

Abdul Majid Abbass

Department of Government

Doxiadis makes it clear that it is not the change produced by the transition but the accelerated rate of the change which is responsible for the confusion. He analyzes the seven causes underlying the crisis: population growth, economic development, socialization or the democratic concept of social welfare, the advent of the machine and specifically the car, industrialization, urbanization and the simultaneous impact of all factors combined.

He calls on the architect to understand the implications of these factors individually and collectively for social living and to harmonize his architectural creation with their unfolding manifestations.

It can be easily admitted that the book draws on a rich experience of a quarter of a century of intimate work in more than a score of countries all over the globe. Along with careful examination of a wide variety of present conditions it also deeply penetrates historical perspectives and future visions.

In his attempt to arouse enthusiasm, Doxiadis sometimes blames to architecture than it really deserves. His reference to the neo-nomadism as a reflection of the failure of architectural creation is a point in order. While deficient housing may lead sometimes to living in trailers or to an increased utilization of the car, the factors leading to this phenomena, as sociologists know fairly well, remain only remotely and indirectly related to architectural achievements.

The exclusive concern with utilitarian buildings, even if sound from the point of architectural theory, is not likely to be adhered to in the foreseeable future. In making this assumption, Doxiadis seems to ignore an important facet of human nature. This facet calls not only for the preservation but also for the imitation of, and competition with, past monuments both on the private and public levels.

It is only fair to conclude that the writer seems to be quite aware of the practical limitations on his vision.

Role of Press in U.S. Policy

The Press and Foreign Policy, by Bernard C. Cohen. Princeton, N.J.: Princeton University Press. 1963. 288 pp.

Public opinion analysts differ markedly in their evaluations of the influence exercised by the press. Discussion exists largely on an argumentative level, with little evidence to support various hypotheses.

Cohen has examined closely press influence in one area of concern, U.S. foreign policy. In his study he conducted more than 225 interviews with newsmen and staff and policy officials in the executive and legislative branches of the federal government.

Reviewed by

In addition to providing a rather complete picture of how foreign policy reporters work, the author analyzes the impact of foreign policy reporting on congressional and executive branch officials. He concludes that the press, especially certain elite newspapers and writers, exert considerable influence on American foreign policy.

Nkrumah an African Caesar In Biography by Ex-Ghanaian

Kwame Nkrumah, by Bankole Timothy. Northwestern University Press. 1963. 191 pp.

Is freedom a reality or a hollow mockery in Ghana? Is it "freedom or foomdom?" "Democracy or Ghanocracy? Socialism or Nkrumaism? Or is this the much vaunted African personality?" These are among the questions that underlie this critique of a man who is charged with "wishing to build a great African Empire with himself as Caesar."

Bankole Timothy traces the life of Kwame Nkrumah from Half-Assini, where he was born in 1909 of "poor and illiterate" parents, through his American days and his rise to power.

Nwia Kofi, as Nkrumah then was called, became a teacher, and inspired by Dr. Aggrey and Dr. Azikiwe, he left for Lincoln University in 1935. In 1947, he returned to Ghana (with four degrees) to become General Secretary of the United Gold Coast Convention. Believing that "what must be done must be well done," Nkrumah started his own party, the Convention Peoples Party, because the Gold Coast convention leaders "were going too slowly and taking politics as a hobby rather than as a fulltime business." He put a new vigor into Gold Coast politics.

Hardworking, a shrewd organizer and orator, Nkrumah geared the Gold Coast to self government in 1946 and to independence in 1957. The author writes, "One can disagree with his views, but one cannot ignore him...he is a master of the art of playing on the emotions" and skillful in using words.

But perhaps the tone of this book would have been kinder to Nkrumah if he had never broken away from the United Gold Coast Convention. His break brought him the bitterness of his enemies, men who now probably would wish him dead any minute.

Bankole Timothy states the case for the Ghana intelligentsia (including himself, I suppose) who have fled Ghana because of Nkrumah's regime.

The charges against Nkrumah are numerous: "Nkrumah is a person who cannot cooperate in any organization unless he is the leader." He gave "important jobs to very incapable men, who served simply to buttress the party interest." "Nkrumah's success is due to 'cooperation of the unsophisticated masses; their gullibility, their hero-worship, and their capacity for following blindly.'" He embarked "on a personality cult campaign. First he built a 20-foot statue of himself with public money; then he insisted on having his head on coins and stamps." When his friends "transgress and err wantonly...he continues to keep them in positions of trust."

Those acquainted with events in Ghana will realize some of these charges have no grounds. The last charge might be answered by Nkrumah's handling of the bourgeoisie and disloyal elements in his cabinet and party.

Again, this is a case for the presumably persecuted intelligentsia in Ghana. It is true there are some misgivings on Nkrumah; however, as he said, "In politics, the man who wins is the man with wits."

In this book, Nkrumah is quoted as saying, "Africa needs a new type of man, a dedicated, modest, honest and devoted man. A man who submerges self in service to his nation and mankind. A man who abhors greed and detests vanity. A new type of a man whose meekness is his strength and whose integrity is his greatness. Africa's new man must be a man indeed."

We may disagree with Nkrumah's methods, but he is a man indeed.

Role of Tories in Revolution

Royal Raiders: The Tories of the American Revolution, by North Callahan. Indianapolis: Bobbs-Merrill Co. 288 pp.

North Callahan, professor of history at New York University, is rapidly becoming one of the foremost authorities of our time on the period of the American Revolution.

The purpose of his new book has significance for our generation. Callahan underscores it in his foreword. If the American Revolution has become worldwide and the shot fired in April, 1775, has not only been heard around the world, but has awakened the whole human race, then it inevitably follows that the true story of the revolution should be better known.

Certainly the role of the Colonists who remained loyal to the crown is one of the least understood facets of the struggle for independence. What has been written about it has been distorted and misconstrued.

This book seeks to put into proper historical perspective the part played by the Tories. John Adams estimated that at least one-third of the Colonists remained loyal to Britain throughout the war. Another third was either indifferent or neutral. Those who refused to rebel against the mother country not only lost their property and often their lives, but, as the author points out, they have also lost their place in history.

One of the questions which has never been answered adequately is why the Tories, with their numbers and their staunch loyalty to the crown, were not more successful. The explanation, Callahan believes, lies in lack of unity, lack of leadership and lack of arms--plus the incredible stupidity of the British in not making effective use of them.

The patriots, on the other hand, "had a positive program, an inspired leadership, skillful if inconsistent military organization and effective propaganda." There is a lesson here for our country in our policies to help other peoples win their liberty.

One of the unfortunate results of the persecution of the Tories by their American brothers was the banishment of an estimated 100,000 of them from this country. Callahan compares the impact of their exile to the banishment of the Moors from Spain and the Huguenots from France.

"Certain it is," he writes, "that this exodus of the Tories deprived the new nation of some of its best political, diplomatic and financial talent."

This study of the Tories is impartial rather than sympathetic, and it is impressively documented. Many of the sources are new. It is the grim and unflattering story of gory fratricide, of torture and ruthlessness for which there is no counterpart in our history--not even during the Civil War.

In Henry Knox, George Washington's General, Callahan gave us what is probably the best biography we have of that Revolutionary War hero. In Daniel Morgan: Ranger of the Revolution, he presented a vivid portrait of one of the forgotten figures of the war.

Now he gives us an authentic and discerning picture of the role of the Tories in that struggle. It reads like a swiftly paced novel and it has a significant message for our own time.

ideas, insights, and interpretations in the field of foreign affairs."

He points out that the press is used by members of the executive and legislative branches for foreign affairs orientation. In this way he credits the press with "coordinating policy in an otherwise decentralized political system."

He also cites examples in which State Department officials have released information to the press in an effort to influence others in the same department, in other executive branches, and in Congress.

Since newspaper reporters and columnists "exert disproportionate influence on foreign policy, Cohen advocates training foreign policy reporters in much the same way that diplomats are trained. He proposes "more explicit training in theories and modes of analysis of international relations and policy" as being more appropriate than the traditional experience on a city police beat.

Readers interested in foreign policy, the operations of this segment of the Washington press corps, or opinion formation would find this excellent book stimulating.

SIU Matmen Rated 7th in Nation

SIU's classy wrestling team nosed out Western Colorado's defending NCAA small-college champions to win the Colorado School of Mines quadrangular meet at Golden.

The Saluki matmen outscored the rugged Western crew 72-65 and captured four of 10 championship titles in one of their most impressive performances of the season.

Small-college power Moorhead (Minn.) State finished third in the meet with 59 points and three championships and the host Orediggers placed fourth with 49 points and two first places.

Blue ribbon winners for the Salukis were Don Devine, Bloomington; sophomore surprise Don Schneider, Hillside; Dan Geskey, North Chicago; and Don Millard, Pekin.

Devine was crowned champion in the 115-pound class after defeating Western Colorado's John Coca by default and 130-pounder Schneider overpowered Western's Roger Bowen 9-0. Geskey pinned his opponent for the 177-pound crown and Millard took top honors in the 167-pound division with a victory over the Orediggers' Gifford Massie. Salukis Terry Finn, Dan DiVito and Terry Appleton so qualified for the finals but were defeated in championship matches.

Two of the big surprises for Southern were the first losses in 12 bouts for the 123-pound Terry Finn and star heavyweight Larry Kristoff. Kristoff, bothered by an ankle injury, lost a referee's decision to Joe Kuhn of Western Colorado.

Intramural Tournament Opens Tonight, 7 Games Scheduled

The following is the schedule of first round games in the men's intramural basketball tournament for tonight:

- University School
- 7:15 North -- Saluki Mo-Fos vs. Hustlers
- 7:15 South -- Gousters vs. ROTC No. 1

8:15 North -- Foam Blowers vs. Springfield Caps

8:15 South -- GDI's of 113 vs. Abbott Second

9:15 North -- Southern Acres Road Runners vs. Rebels

Men's Gym

8:15 North -- Aitra Phidella Guys vs. Stags

9:15 South -- Tees vs. Travelers

The teams playing in the tournament are those which finished in first place in their respective leagues.

Many of the league championships were decided over the weekend as close standings put the pressure on the top teams. Winners had been dec. in only six of the 19 leagues before the crucial games played last weekend.

Wrestlers Add Colorado Meet To Season's Winning Record

Southern's once-beaten wrestling team is currently ranked as the No. 7 team in the nation, according to the latest ranking from the Amateur Wrestling News.

The official collegiate wrestling newspaper picked Iowa State University for the top position ahead of Oklahoma State, Michigan, Colorado State, Lehigh, Syracuse, SIU, Northwestern, Navy and Bloomsburg State.

The second 10 included Western Colorado State, Iowa, Adams State, Indiana, Army.

Delyte Morrisses Get Second Grandchild

President and Mrs. Delyte W. Morris are grandparents for the second time.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Morris announced the birth of a son Sunday at Cedar Falls, Iowa, where Morris is an assistant professor at Iowa State College. The president's wife has gone to Cedar Falls.

The Peter Morrisses have one other son.

Pittsburgh, Penn State, Maryland and Springfield.

The Salukis outpointed Western Colorado 72-65 in a quadrangular meet last weekend. The SIU crew also whipped Bloomsburg State 23-16 and lost to Oklahoma State 27-7 earlier this season and will meet Iowa State's Cyclones in a dual meet at Ames, Iowa, Feb. 22.

In placing SIU seventh, the newspaper said, "If Southern Illinois had tougher competition, they would be ranked higher. They compared favorably with Colorado State against powerful Oklahoma State, scoring seven points, the Bears nine. They were much stronger than Northwestern, our second choice in the Big Ten, in the Illinois Invitational."

SIU Coach Jim Wilkinson, however, feels his squad deserves a higher rating. "As far as I'm concerned," said Wilkinson, "we were more impressive than Michigan in an open meet at LaGrange during the Christmas holidays, but perhaps that meet isn't being taken into consideration."

Debaters Will Compete in Three States

SIU varsity debaters Janelle Schlinggen of Huron, S.D., and Jeff Barlow of Benton placed in the octa finals with a 6-2 record at the weekend North-western debate tournament. Although defeated by Stanford in the round, they were among the top ten speakers at the tournament with Barlow rated fifth and Miss Schlimgen, the only girl in the top ten, rated ninth. The novice debate teams tied for first at the Purdue tournament with a 7-1 record. Jill Bulla, Robinson, and Janet Trapp, Springfield, had an undefeated 4-0 score, and Karen Kendall, San Francisco, Cal., and Becky Sheeler, Joliet, had a 3-1.

This weekend, Pat Micken and Charles Zoekler, both of Carbondale, will travel to Dartmouth to debate, while the teams of Carol Williams, Anna, and Janet Trapp, and Jill Bulla and Ron Hreber, Rock Island, will debate in the varsity meet at DePauw University, Greencastle, Ind.

JIM DUPREE

Dupree Wins in Literal Upset When Canadian Star Stumbles

Jim Dupree, track star at SIU, scored one of the biggest upsets of the young indoor track season Saturday at the Los Angeles Times meet.

Competing in the 1,000 yard run, Dupree went up against Canada's Bill Crothers, who was literally upset.

The 23-year-old Toronto star, shooting for his 19th consecutive indoor victory at 880 yards, tripped on an opponent's heel, sprawled on the track, got up, but just missed catching Dupree at the tape.

Crothers was still voted the games' outstanding performer despite the loss.

"I don't know who it was, but I hit somebody's heel," Crothers said, "I guess I lost about 35 yards. For a second I was tempted to quit after falling, but I came too far not to finish the race."

Crothers missed catching Dupree by inches although both were timed in 2:11.9.

Dupree was representing the Southern California Striders.

Ex-SIU Runner, Now Chemist, Discovers Knockout Formula

What do you get if you mix the proper chemicals with a right jab?

Ask Mike Brazier, now a chemistry teacher in Pontiac, Ill., and former SIU track man. Brazier, who was graduated from Southern last year after lettering four years in cross-country and track, is teaching chemistry in the northern Illinois town. He is also boxing.

In case you are wondering how track, cross-country and chemistry mix with boxing, the formula seemed to be working for Brazier just fine until he absorbed a technical knockout.

Brazier entered the Streator, Ill., Golden Gloves Boxing Tournament last week after just two weeks of training in the sport of fisticuffs.

In the annual amateur boxing classic, Brazier fought his way into the finals of the 135-pound open championship. On the way, he knocked out Ted Overcash of the Joliet YMCA in the second round, then stopped Ron Bedner of the Streator Boxing Club in just 45 seconds of the first round.

Representing the Streator Boxing Club himself, Brazier's boxing career came to
