★ ★ SIU Training Workers to Aid Dropouts

SIU has a role in the war against "dropoutism."

As a part of the U.S. Department of Labor's project CAUSE, a campaign to get dropouts on the rolls of the employed, SIU will be training community workers who will be going out into the streets to find and help youths on their own "turf."

In an attempt to drive the job opportunity message home—"right where the kids hang out"—the department has started programs to train a new breed of "community worker" for its Youth Opportunity Centers. One of the programs began this week at SIU.

As explained by Robert Lee, head of the CAUSE II project at SIU, the community worker trainees have been recruited from the same hard-luck neighborhoods as the target groups themselves. Their jobs will be to live among the disadvantaged youth, to associate with them, to gain their confidence. Working quarters, according to a Labor Department memorandum on CAUSE II, will be "wherever the kids are: on the streets, at the bowling alley or in the pool hall."

The eight-week training project at SIU is one of four in the nation. It differs from one held here last year in that the original CAUSE trainees were college graduates destined for basic counseling jobs at Youth Opportunity Centers. It will be run by SIU's Rehabilitation Institute under a $64,286 grant from the Labor Department's Bureau of Employment Security. Project CAUSE is one of the programs stemming from the Manpower Development Training Act.

The training regimen will consist mainly of group discussions and three days on field trips each week. The trainees will go to urban and rural Job Corps Centers, Youth Corps Centers and other such locations "to learn what various government agencies have to offer youngsters who are up against it," Lee said.

'Period of Adjustment' Back After Big Demand for Tickets

The Southern Players production of "Period of Adjustment" will be presented again this Friday and Saturday nights.

Sherwin Abrams, director of the play, said the demand for tickets was so great this past weekend that the theatrical troupe decided to offer the play two more times.

The play's normal five-day run ended Sunday night.

"We were swamped both Friday and Saturday nights and could have sold twice as many

STUDENTS PUT FINISHING TOUCHES ON THE SHOW WAGON

Ceremony Tonight

Student-Built 'Show Wagon' Will Make Debut; To Be Given to City As Entertainment Vehicle

A brightly colored show wagon, which was almost wholly designed and built by SIU students, will make its debut at 7 p.m. today.

The wagon will be presented to the Carbondale Park District by Troy W. Edwards, assistant dean of the College of Education, in a ceremony at Washington and Pearl Streets.

Kenneth R. Miller, president of the Park District Board, will accept the wagon. And then Loren E. Taylor, acting chairman of the Department of Recreation and Outdoor Education, and Mayor D. Blaney Miller, will introduce the first performance to the people of Carbondale.

On today's program are several song and dance numbers and a baton-twirling act which will be presented by students.

Other students who have talent and want to perform on the show wagon which will tour the city parks and neighborhoods to present shows, are urged to contact Mrs. Linda Brandon, show wagon program coordinator, at 453-2093.

The wagon, which will unfold into a stage for live performances, is a project developed by the SIU Department of Recreation and Outdoor Education in cooperation with the Carbondale park district.

Kenneth R. Miller of the SIU Foundation, who also is a member of the park board, said the show wagon is the first of a projected cavalcade of wagons which is the idea of William Ridinger, associate professor of recreation and outdoor education. Others planned are a combination puppet and marionette wagon, a crafts wagon, and a science wagon.

Russian Movie Showing Tonight

"The Gordeyev Family," a film based on Maxim Gorky's novel, "Foma Gordeyev," will be shown at 8 p.m. today in Morris Library Auditorium.

The film is sponsored by the Department of Foreign Languages Russian Institute.

"We'll start here in Carbondale but the show wagon will be available to other towns of Southern Illinois," Miller said. "It can be used for concerts, plays, talent shows, style shows, and other events. It will be pulled by a tractor or truck."

The wagon, designed and built by William Abernathy of the department of recreation and outdoor education, will be displayed at the DuQuoin State Fair later this summer.

Abernathy said the vehicle is 18 feet long, eight feet high and eight feet wide. A side lets down to provide a stage 18 by 15 feet in size.

Abernathy said there are front curtains and back curtains, operated by ropes. The wagon has its own sound system and lights.

"It looks like an old-time circus wagon," Abernathy said, "painted white, red, green, and other colors, with a wooden fringe around the top."

Tuesday night's program will include stage entertainment and a speaking program in which Carbondale Mayor D. Blaney Miller, Dean Elmer J. Clark of the SIU College of Education, Loren Taylor of the department of recreation and outdoor education, and Kenneth Miller will take part. Ridinger will be master of ceremonies.

Journalists Give Lovejoy Award

The editor of a Canadian weekly newspaper, who was honored in effigy because of his editorial stand in a jurisdictional fight between unions, is this year's winner of the Elijah P. Lovejoy award for courage in journalism.

He is Foster M. Russell, editor of the Sentinel-Star in Cobourg, Ontario.

Russell received the award, presented annually by the SIU Department of Journalism, at the opening session of the annual meeting of the International Conference of Weekly Newspaper editors at Pere Marquette State Park near Grafton.

The Canadian editor was cited for his outspoken editorial campaign which pointed out what the inter-union fight was doing to his community and for his stand in a closed shop issue that had split his town.

The Lovejoy award honors the Alton, Ill., abolitionist editor who died in 1837 defending his press against an angry pro-slavery mob. It has been given since 1956.

Other 1965 Lovejoy nominees were Norman W. Dufresne of the Lowell (Mass.) Optic, who received "brickbats" for criticizing the activities of local politicians, and Kieth A. Howard of the Yellow Springs (Ohio) News, who championed civil rights.

Winner of the Conference's Golden Quill Award for excellence in editorial writing by a weekly newspaper editor will be announced at the annual Sigma Delta Chi banquet Thursday.

Daniel DeLuca, former chief of the Berlin Bureau of the Associated Press, will speak at the banquet which will be in the Three Flags Restaurant at St. Charles, Mo.

The six-day conference, which is being attended by editors from 11 states and Canada, opened Sunday and will run through Friday.

Moose Auxiliary Gives to Nurses

Chapter 1214 of the Women of the Moose, Carbondale, recently presented a $203.30 grant to Winifred Mitchell, coordinator of the practical nursing program at Southern's Vocational-Technical Institute.

The money, earned by the auxiliary through various projects during the year, will be available to students in the nursing program on the basis of individual need. The project was started in 1964 with a grant of $200.

The James Bond Syndrome

Fleming's Ruthless, Virile Hero Figure Seems Made to Order for Current Times

By Edward Rapetti

Ian Fleming's James Bond launched a wave of public interest like no other character since Andy Hardy or Horatio Alger.

Unlike Hardy and Alger, Bond isn't the goody-goody type hero...he's cold and ruthless and a wench to boot.

Can this interest in such a hero-figure be indicative of our times?

Would all our young college men trade places with the ir-repressible Bond?

Do our coeds dream of being romanced by him?

A California preacher called the Beatles a communist plot. Could the fiendish Bond also be a communist plot to undermine the moral standards of America's youth?

The Bond novels were popular from their first printing, but it wasn't until America's movie moguls picked up the Bond mania that it really took hold.

With Sean Connery as the tall, dark, smirking, Bond, the British agent hero was lionized as the epitome of masculine appearance and mastery of the world. The silver screen has given birth to another Valentino, only this one packs a Walther PPK and has unsurpassed sexual pro prowess.

The Bond aura of the improbable has spread like Oriental virus. Magazines run analyses of the hero and fall programming on TV will exploit the theme to the point of absurdity with at least five shows on the Bond premise of tongue-in-cheek intrigue.

What does this mean?

A good guess (said, good, not educated) is that Bond represents a reaction of the realist and absurd school of literature and entertainment that started with Chekov and ran the gamut up to Tennessee Williams, Sartre, Genet and Baldwin.

The public is tired of smelly armpits, poor but honest prostitutes and the rest of the "slice-of-life" goodies pouring out of method acting schools and Manhattan hovels.

Which proves that entertainment (for which the time being) is reverting back to escapism and romanticism.

Who knows--maybe our next superhero will be a modern day Cyrano de Bergerac smiting down movie heavies with zip-gun and stiletto while unrequited love awaits him when he can find the time.

Team to Report On Junior College

A Southern Illinois University research team will report Wednesday on its study concerning the feasibility of a proposed regional junior college to serve portions of six Southern Illinois counties.

This study is being conducted under the sponsorship of a 15-member steering committee, mainly composed of school superintendents.

Factors important in the selection of a location will be the physical land area and the population, surrounding buildings and sites, resources and proposed programs for the college curriculum.

The full study should be completed in September. A recommendation for the location of the proposed institution can be made at that time.

The six counties involved are St. Clair, Monroe, Randolph, Jackson, Perry, and Washington.

Drinking, Driving, Discipline

Today we'll touch on a subject close to the heart of many a student—drinking! It is true that alcohol may be harmful, but let's face it—drinking is popular among young and old. Drinking is also the cause of many headaches—the hangover type included. Underage drinking is a problem, but nothing much can be done here except to comply with the state law.

But what about the local ordinance which closes taverns at midnight and on Sundays? As we see it, this "blue law" does more harm than good.

Many students (and others) head for road houses and other towns after midnight and on Sundays. Thus Carbondale proprietors lose money (which is taxable). Aside from this there is the added risk of having "overindulged" drivers on the highways late at night.

Surely it is safer to keep students in town (hopefully on foot) rather than to have them careening down highway 13 headed for Cartersville—or oblivion.

Of course student responsibility comes in here. Many of us raise too much hell and wind up in conference with a certain dean, well known to a select group of students who have been accused of "conduct unbecoming a student."

Ed Rapetti

More Theaters Are Needed

Moviegoing is one of the most popular forms of entertainment. Including the student population, more than 30,000 people in the Carbondale area are served by a single moviehouse of little more than a thousand-seat capacity. As evidenced by the overflow crowds during the showing of "Mondo Cane," we are in need of more theaters.

The movies shown at Furr Auditorium help a little, but first run shows are never scheduled. Proscenium One and the Southern Playhouse are just too small to do more than they already have to widen the scope of entertainment.

The existing theaters have done all they can to bring good movies and some very fine dramatic performances to this community. But it's just not enough. Our praise goes to student groups and the Department of Music for their performances on the entertainment scene. The variety shows and concerts are good examples of what individual and group initiative can accomplish.

Will WACs Have to Curtsy?

By Arthur Hoppe
San Francisco Chronicle

The case of Pfc. Billy Wilson created in furor teaching the highest echelon in the Pentagon. As the world well knows, Private Wilson failed to salute Brig. Gen. Charles R. (Monk) Mayer in San Francisco last week when the general passed by in his car. The private's excuse was that he was carrying six books in one arm and a ruler in the other. And could've put his eye out.

Naturally, he was court-martialed—not for cowardice, but under an Army regulation requiring that "a soldier must keep his right hand free for saluting." It was the publicity given this regulation that caused the fuss.

Inevitably, the issue reached the highest echelon of the Pentagon which, of course, is the Strategic Saluting Command, whose grave responsibilities include not only saluting, but building better officers' clubs maintaining the 736,897 signs at home and abroad that say, "Off Limits to Enlisted Personnel," and preserving American democracy. The top-secret minutes of the top-secret meeting follow.

General Regs (grimly): Condition Red, gentlemen. We are on the brink of all-out war with Congress. Our regulation requiring that the right hand be used only for saluting is under heavy fire. Several Congressmen have condemned our historic left-handed Army ways and others are decrying leftist activities by the military.

Gen. Larm: Well, at least Walter Lippman says he finally understand why we're losing the war in Viet Nam.

Gen. Regs: Nonsense. Look at all the wars we've won left-handed. As Gen. Goldwater says, "We can lick the world with one hand behind our back." That is, as long as it's the left hand, so the right hand is free for saluting. But, gentlemen, our position looks hopeless.

Lt. Heep (an aide): Sirs? Pardon, sir, but couldn't we, sir, qualify the regulation a little, sir, by adding "if possible"? Sirs?

Gen. Regs (amidst general clamor): Stop beating that lad with your swagger sticks, gentlemen. He knew not what he said. (He helps the lieutenant up.) Son, you must realize that it is our sacred duty as officers to defend our precious heritage of democracy. And how can we do that, boy, if we don't keep those enlisted men in their place?

Gen. Larm: Right, by thunder! We must never bow to the public outcry for equality and...

Gen. Regs (triumphantly): That's it! We must do away with the salute entirely! (There are shocked cries and several generals draw their sidearms.) And replace it with the bow from the hip! (A stunned silence is followed by a roar of approval and Gen. Regs is carried off on the shoulders of his fellow officers.)

The new regulation, replacing the salute with the bow, is expected to be issued as soon as the proper degree of inclination required for a brigadier general can be agreed upon. The bow will not only provide healthy exercise for the troops and satisfaction for the officers, but it will, of course, leave both of every soldier's hands free for military tasks—thus doubling America's fighting strength overnight.

As Lt. Heep happily said later to Gen. Regs after touching his forehead to the floor three times: "It'll be the greatest blow ever struck for democracy, sir."

Teenagers Don't Value Rights

Another survey has been completed that—if accurate—should be enough to make Quad-Cityans "fighting mad." Perhaps any ire that is aroused can be channeled constructively into family discussions dealing with, for want of a better label, the "American way of life" and why it should be preserved.

A recent study of opinions held by U. S. high school and college students produced these findings:

Seventy-one per cent of those interviewed would deny an accused person the right to confront his accuser, and 26 per cent would permit search and seizure without consent. Forty-one per cent said freedom of the press should be curtailed, and 34 per cent would abridge the right of free speech. Fifty-six per cent voted for strict regulation of all business by government and 53 per cent favored government ownership of banks, railroads and steel companies.

Eighty-four per cent denied that patriotism is vital and that it plays an important role in the lives of Americans. Sixty-three per cent said the government has the responsibility to provide jobs, and 61 per cent rejected the profit incentive as necessary for survival of free enterprise.

Quad-City discussions often reflect concern over whether the younger generation nationally is receiving intact the heritage built up with such foresight and sacrifice during the past two centuries. There are such questions as "Why aren't schools and colleges doing a better job of

Bruce Shanks, Buffalo Evening News

"WHAT'S A FARM LOOK LIKE, POP?"

How About 'Bachelor Of Excavation' Degree?

by Robert M. Hutchins

about the kind of education the seeker-after-gain should pursue is negative. He should not limit himself too narrowly. The reason is that he has to live a long time to get the 13%, and he cannot be sure if he prepares himself for a certain line of work that it will be there when he is of an age to reap its rewards.

There is a high correlation between investment in education and the prosperity of individuals and nations. College graduates, if they live long enough, earn more money than their less fortunate contemporaries. Countries that spend a lot on education have a higher per capita Gross National Product than those which spend less.

Yet this seems an unfortunate sales talk for education. The whole process is mysterious. Nothing whatever is known about the way in which education promotes individual or national prosperity.

Gary S. Becker, professor of economics at Columbia, has just published a book establishing that the return on a college degree to a white American male is somewhere around 13%. Since his figures include all kinds of colleges, all kinds of courses and all kinds of white males, they leave the aspiring 13-per center in doubt about what he should be doing in college.

But what will be the competitive value of the degree if, as seems likely in the next 25 years, everybody has one?

Becker's only suggestion

Becker says, "The long payoff period increases the advantage of an education that is useful in many kinds of future economic environments. If 'liberal' education were identified with such flexible education, as well it may be, there would be an important economic argument for liberal education, as well as arguments based on intellectual and cultural considerations."

But from the point of view of the individual the real trouble with the sales talk is that it is statistical. The 13% return is an average. What about those who don't make it?

A white American male who is led to believe that he may become a bank president if he goes to college, whereas he will be a ditch digger if he does not, will feel some resentment against those who proposed these misleading prospects to him when he becomes a ditch digger anyway.

An examination of education around the world shows that its principal difficulty has been to bring the expectations of those who have gone to school for economic reasons into harmony with the realities of the economic situation. This accounts for the wild fluctuations in the educational policy of the Soviet Union and for the disorder in the developing countries, where school-leavers at every level, including the primary, swell the ranks of the unemployed in the overcrowded cities because they believe that education, no matter how little, entitles them to escape from farming.

The notion that education guarantees a brighter economic future for the individual is beset by uncertainty and illusion. In a very large number of cases—and the number will be larger as the number of educated persons increases—it must lead to disappointment and frustration.

Chicago Police Seek Maniac for Bombings

CHICAGO (AP)—Increased police patrols were ordered into Chicago's downtown district Monday night after a fresh bomb blast—the fourth in the loop area in six days—damaged the Wrigley Building, a Michigan Avenue landmark.

Police feared a "mad bomber" was striking at random.

Several other structures in the downtown area were guarded as a result of bomb threats.

The explosion at the Wrigley Building, that stands like a tall frosted cake on the north bank of the Chicago River, occurred near midnight Sunday, shattering more than 30 windows in the building's two lower levels. Three automobiles parked nearby were damaged.

The Wrigley Building blast and similar bombings at two other Loop-area office buildings last week caused authorities to speculate that a "mad bomber" might be responsible for all three.

Experts of the police department bomb squad reported all three explosions were caused by black-power bombs, similarly constructed.

Authorities, however, admittedly were unable to determine a motive for the bombings.

Charles Siragusa, executive director of the Illinois Crime Investigating Committee, attributed the bombings to a maniac.

Harriman Visit to Moscow Seen as Possible Viet Bid

MOSCOW (AP)—W. Averell Harriman, the leading U.S. expert on negotiating with the Russians, arrived in Moscow Monday night and informed Asian sources said they believed something was afoot in Viet Nam.

These sources, who were in touch with the top Soviet leadership late last week, said secret diplomatic activity seems to be under way.

Over the weekend Soviet leaders omitted from speeches the kind of condemnation of U.S. policies in Viet Nam and support for Hanoi's demands that they repeatedly voiced before.

Then Harriman arrived on what was officially labeled a vacation.

He told reporters he had not come to Moscow for negotiations.

"I have no message," he said. Harriman said he would not raise the subject of Viet Nam in meetings with Kremlin leaders. But he added, he is prepared to discuss Viet Nam if the Russians raise it.

U.S. Embassy sources said Harriman will probably meet "at least for courtesy calls," Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and President Anastas I. Mikoyan.

Harriman is an ambassador at large, who in World War II was ambassador to Moscow. He was a negotiator the U.S.-British-Soviet discussions here that led to the signing of the test-ban treaty in 1963.

He arrived from Paris with his wife and a family friend, Mary Russell, for a five-day visit. U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler met them at the airport.

Harriman told newsmen he came to renew old friendships and to do some sightseeing. Asked specifically whether he was carrying a message from President Johnson, he said he was not.

Air Force Jets Continue Assaults; More Troops Landed in Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Air Force jets aimed another one-two punch Monday at North Vietnamese ammunition depots in the valley of the Red River, a link between Hanoi and Red China. A spokesman announced ordnance centers at Yen Sen and Yen Bai, respectively 65 and 77 miles northwest of Hanoi, were hit in 15-plane raids following up initial attacks there during the weekend.

The spokesman said the raiders dumped nine tons of 750-pound bombs, plus rockets and missiles, on each of the depots. He said they destroyed two buildings and damaged three at Yen Bai and damaged four at Yen Sen. Two railroad cars were reported damaged in a freight yard just south of the Yen Bai depot.

Light antiaircraft fire was encountered, but no enemy planes were sighted and all the Americans returned safely, the spokesman said.

Among targets of other planes were 14 barges and the Hon Nieu Island radar site, 11 miles northeast of Vinh. The pilots said all were damaged.

Heavy air activity also developed south of the border, with strikes aimed at suspected guerrilla encampments, shipping and supply areas.

Military authorities had little to report on ground operations.

One Viet Cong was killed and seven suspects were rounded up by U.S. Marines in a clash Sunday two miles southwest of Da Nang, they said. It was estimated the Marines drove 200 Viet Cong from a heavily defended hamlet. Briefing officers mentioned only one Marine casualty, a wounded man evacuated by helicopter.

A spokesman said U.S. military strength in Viet Nam rises to 71,000 men with the scheduled completion today of the landing of the 2nd Brigade of the 1st Infantry Division, the "Big Red One" of World War II.

The brigade, the first sizable force of U.S. combat infantrymen to be committed to the jungle war, totals 3,900. Its home base is Ft. Riley, Kan.

The vanguard, a reinforced battalion of 1,000 riflemen, artillerymen and support troops, streamed ashore Monday at Cam Ranh Bay, a deep-water haven on the South China Sea 180 miles northeast of Saigon.

The U.S. Army's 35th Engineer Group is working on harbor improvements in the bay, one of a string of bases beaded along the coast from Vung Tau, 40 miles southeast of Saigon, to Da Nang, 380 miles northeast of this city.

Col. James Simmons, the brigade commander, told newsmen the first mission of his men is to protect the engineers.

"Later, when we get our feet in the ground, we'll get out there and find the Viet Cong," Simmons said.

HARRY LINES HOLDS A MODEL OF A STAGE SETTING FOR THE "FLOWER DRUM SONG."

New Yorker Making 'Flower Drum Song' Sets

A New York stage-designer and a vocal music coordinator from Indiana are helping Southern's Summer Music Theater produce "Flower Drum Song," to be presented at 8 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Shryock Auditorium.

Richard Jaeger of Lafayette, Ind., is coaching the high school students—members of the Music and Youth at Southern camp—for their roles in the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical. Jaeger first worked at SIU when he served as technical director for the first summer musical production in 1956, at the request of William Taylor, assistant professor of music and director of the Summer Music Theater.

Taylor, orchestra conductor for "Flower Drum Song," met Jaeger at Indiana University's graduate school, where they worked in such productions as "Finian's Rainbow" and "Showboat."

Harry Lines, New York stage designer, is creating the ten sets required for the production. Lines was the first student to graduate from Indiana University with the bachelor of science degree in scenicoopera technique.

At Indiana, Lines staged the campus "Jordan River

Revue" and the little 500 Variety Show for two years, using such famous talent as Bob Hope and Juliet Prowse. He also staged and designed the Miss Indiana University Pageant of 1963 and 1964 and received an award for the best statelevel pageant in the Miss America competition.

Among his favorite kinds of designing work he includes ballets, opera, revues, night club shows and musical comedy. Lines does freelance display and design work, using production backdrops with bright, gay colors as his trademark. He feels that bright colors give the stage that theatrical effect which separates it from reality.

Commenting on the "Flower Drum Song" background, he said that the play has a maze of color with fluorescent lighting and smoking dragons—"an Oriental tapestry".

"The scenes are not necessarily authentic," Lines said. "They are a mixture of Chinese and Japanese. I'm using those things which the audience will recognize as Oriental, regardless of true nationality. The motif is what I would term high Oriental camp."

Lines is known as a "painting designer" as opposed to a "constructing designer." In this style he follows the work of his idol, Oliver Smith, who created scenes for "Hello Dolly" and "Camelot."

"Flower Drum Song" is a popular Broadway musical which tells the story of Oriental families living in San Francisco's Chinatown. "I Enjoying Being a Girl" is one of the familiar songs from the production.

Tonia Intraivaia, dance lecturer in the Department of Music, is staging the dance sequences. Tickets for the production are available in the Summer Theater box office in Shryock Auditorium at $1 and $1.50.

Triple Play Made

SIU Takes 3 Victories In Series With Illini

The baseball Salukis came up with a lot of firsts last weekend in taking three of four games from the University of Illinois at the SIU baseball field.

In winning a series from an opponent for the first time this summer, the Salukis hit their first two home runs of the season, made their first triple play of the season and lefthander George Poe nearly pitched a no-hitter.

Southern started the series on the wrong foot Saturday by losing the first game of a doubleheader 5-1. SIU's only run came in the first inning on a home run by centerfielder Nick Solis.

Starting pitcher Mike Stafford, who is the usual victim of most of the Saluki batting and fielding lapses, lost his third straight game.

Illinois bunched all its runs in the first and fourth innings with the help of four Saluki errors.

In the second game Saturday, which Southern won 7-5, the Salukis trailed 5-1 going into the sixth inning before they rallied for six runs. The Salukis didn't do much heavy hitting in the inning, with only a lead-off home run by first baseman Frank Limbaugh and a two-run single by catcher Dan Josten.

The Salukis benefitted most from the wildness of reliever Brad Rothermal, who walked five batters and hit another in the inning.

Ron Guthman, who came on in the fifth inning in place of Bob Ash, received credit for the win.

In the first game of the doubleheader Sunday, which Southern won, Poe had a no-hitter going before third baseman Jim Reed got the Illini's only hit, an infield roller with one out in the sixth.

Southern got all its hits and runs off starting pitcher Byron Sabol in the first inning.

A two-run single by Limbaugh and a two-run triple by rightfielder Jack Brown were the big blows in the inning.

Poe gave up two unearned runs in the fifth without giving up a hit. Two walks, two errors and a fielder's choice accounted for two Illini runs.

Mike Lyle pitched the second game for the Salukis, which Southern won and, Ike Poe, didn't give up an earned run.

Illinois scored in the first on two singles and an error and might have added more if the Saluki infield hadn't turned over its first triple play of the season.

With runners on first and second, Jim Reed hit a grounder to second baseman Mike Lyons, who tossed it to shortstop Rich Hacker, who fired it to Limbaugh. Trenton Jackson, who was the Illini runner on second when the action started, tried to score during the completion of the double play and was cut down at the plate on a good throw by Limbaugh.

Limbaugh's single with Hacker on third tied the score for the Salukis in the bottom half of the first.

Illinois quickly regained the lead in the second with the help of two walks, two errors and one hit.

A third-inning single by Hacker and a double by centerfielder Nick Solis accounted for the Salukis' second run.

The score remained 4-2 until the Salukis exploded for three runs in the last inning. Lee McRoy, a late-inning replacement in the outfield, started the inning off by lining a double down the left field line. Another double by pinch-hitter John Hough brought in McRoy with the third run of the game.

After a walk, a fielder's choice and a stolen base put runners on second and third with two out. Southern received a giant-sized break when second baseman Jackson fielded Solis' softly hit grounder and threw wildly past first for an error.

Hough raced home from third with the tying run and Hacker scored the winning run from second.

Raft Use Restriction Ended at SIU Lake

Some of the swimmers at the Lake-on-the-Campus were disappointed Sunday when they found they couldn't use the raft. Swimming was restricted to the area within the roped-off section.

A spokesman for the Activities Office said the raft was not used because the heavy weekend rains had caused water to seep into the floats and this caused the surface to warp.

All was well Monday and the use of the raft was resumed.

Marichal to Face Pappas Today In Twin-Cities at All-Star Game

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Juan Marichal, the high-kicking ace pitcher of the San Francisco Giants, will face fiery Milt Pappas of Baltimore in today's 36th All-Star baseball game before 47,000 fans at enlarged Metropolitan Stadium.

Although Willie Mays still is aching from a home-plate collision with Pat Corrales Saturday and may see only limited action, the National League remained a 7-5 favorite over the American League team.

The game starts at 1 p.m. EST, with network radio and television via NBC.

The National League, which once trailed 12-4 in the series dating back to 1933, pulled even at 17-17 last year by winning at New York's Shea Stadium on Johnny Callison's three-run homer in the ninth.

Pappas, a 26-year-old righthander, has a 9-3 record with a 1.74 ERA for the Orioles.

$11,694 Granted for Psychiatric Study

The Illinois Department of Mental Health recently awarded a $11,694 grant to William Wagman, assistant professor of psychology, and Donald J. Shoemaker, associate professor of psychology, to finance a year-long study of psychiatric therapy techniques.

Wagman and Shoemaker will use animal subjects in an examination of psychiatric theories. They will attempt to set up neuroses in the animals and then use and evaluate the therapy methods under study.

Wagman said the project is an extension of broader, separate research which the two southern investigators have been conducting for some time.
