Senator Predicts U.S. to Apologize For Pueblo Rift

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Stephen M. Young predicted Friday North Korea will release the USS Pueblo and its crewmen next month in return for a U.S. apology and large indemnity payment. The State Department disputed the forecast.

Young said settlement will include admission that the Navy intelligence ship penetrated North Korean waters, an apology for the intrusion and payment of an indemnity of $100 million or more.

Free School, KA on Agenda

Senate to Discuss Gun Laws

Proposals to support gun control legislation and to continue Free School are on the agenda for the SIU Student Senate meeting at 2 p.m. today in the ballroom of the University Center.

The Senate will discuss a proposal that the vice president of the student body should send a resolution to all of Illinois' senators and congressmen declaring the Student Senate's support of legislation aimed at reducing the number of violent deaths in this country through better gun control and registration.

failed to approved installation of the signals as well as improvement of the road.

Pleasant Hill road, which runs east-west and connects US 51 and South Wall Street, was resurfaced in 1966. Since then the surface has been broken down and the road is badly rutted and pocked. It dips down more than a foot at the crossing, which receives heavy automobile, truck and school bus traffic during much of the year.

According to the IC spokesman, a motion to seek state approval for the crossing signal was not filed until May 22 although it had been months in planning.

Groups backing the proposal were the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Carbondale Road District for Jackson County, and the Illinois Department of Works and Buildings.

The IC official said there is no legal way his crews can install warning signals until they are approved by the appropriate state offices.

Also, the Senate will discuss a proposal calling for continuing support for the operation of Free School for the duration of the summer quarter. The funds to be provided for Free School total $142 plus the salaries for the director and secretary of the organization. The amount of the salaries is determined by the Student Work Office.

The agenda will also include a proposal recommending approval of the SIU Chess Club, which recently fulfilled the requirements for recognition

Dirksen Defends LBJ 'Lame Duck' Policies

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois defended Friday President Johnson's right to appoint two old friends to the Supreme Court—and said presidents traditionally have named cronies to top jobs.

"You don't go out and look for an enemy to put on the court," Dirksen said at the Senate Judiciary Committee hearing on the nominations of Justice Abe Fortas to be chief justice and Judge Homer Thornberry to become an associate justice.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., who opposes the nominations, indicated before the committee that he might lead a filibuster to delay or block the appointments.

"I'm suggesting that the Senate take a great deal of time" in examining the two appointments, Griffin said.

He added he would try to block "any effort to push this to a vote within the next few weeks."

Dirksen also defended Johnson's right to continue making appointments despite the President's announced intention to leave office in January. He drew a parallel with nine senators who are not seeking re-election. "Are they to abstain from voting?" he asked.

The minority leader also defended Johnson against those who call him a "lame duck." He said "I find that term 'lame duck' as applied to the President of the United States as entirely improper and an offensive term."

Dirksen spoke after Griffin delivered a lengthy attack on Johnson's nominations. It was virtually the same text he used Thursday in the Senate.

"Never before has there been such obvious political maneuvering to create a vacancy so that a 'lame duck' president can fill it and thereby deny the opportunity to a new president about to be elected by the people," Griffin said.

He added that "the argument has been advanced that if a crony-nominated because he is a crony—is qualified, he should be approved. I reject such a view because it demeans the Senate and the Supreme Court."

Dirksen said a crony is nothing more than an intimate companion or a friend and added, "President Truman had some rather intimate friends and he sent them to the Supreme Court."

Dirksen listed Justices Harold H. Burton, Tom Clark and Fred M. Vinson, who became a chief justice.

Seek $175 Million

Junior College Funds Sought

CHICAGO (AP)—A lump sum of $175 million will be asked for construction at junior colleges in the 1969-71 biennium.

The Illinois Junior College Board decided Friday to do that instead of requesting the money on a college-by-college basis.

The members approved the move after one of them, Richard G. Browne, suggested that political influence might be brought to bear for adjustments if funds were sought for each school.

The request must be reviewed by the Illinois Board of Higher Education and the Illinois Legislature.

Browne said that if the junior college board gets the money in a lump sum it could apportion it among junior colleges on the basis of their needs and rate of growth when the cash is in hand.

A list of construction funds earmarked for 33 junior colleges by the board's staff was discussed by the members before the vote for a lump sum appropriation. The allocations added up to $170,128,000.

The Board approved:

—A construction project at Highland college in Freeport that includes a science building, a central utility building and a library. It involves $2,230,000 in state funds to be borrowed through the Illinois Building Authority.

—Kankakee Junior College's plan for development of its campus on the southern edge of Kankakee.

—Black Hawk College's request for permission to buy 20 acres of land adjacent to its Quad Cities campus.

But the board took no action at the meeting on a request by the Joliet Junior College for authority to buy 83 additional acres for its campus. Discussion indicated members might approve an adjustment of the campus site to change its shape but not its size.

Representatives of Wabash Valley College in Mount Carmel asked for a change in classification from Class II to Class I, an upgrading that would entitle it to more state money and give it more prestige.

Gerald W. Smith, the board's executive secretary, said the list of 33 junior colleges and the state money earmarked for each would be kept as a worksheet, with allotments subject to adjustments.

No state funds were marked in for Sauk Valley. Smith commended for Sauk Valley in the next biennium.

Construction Worker Hurt In Accident

A University-contracted construction worker suffered serious internal injuries about 8 a.m. Friday in an accident at the Morris Library work site.

Andrew Lee, 63, of Carbondale, fell five feet off a scaffolding lift into the bed of a dump truck, according to a foreman for the R & R Construction Construction Company of Alton, the firm contracted to work on the library. The foreman, Ferrell Goins, said the accident occurred while Lee was unloading trash into the truck, and that he apparently tripped and fell.

Officials at Doctors Memorial Hospital said Lee's condition was listed as serious, and that he was being admitted to the intensive care unit there.

Dazzling SIU Queen Sets Out for State Title

By Mary Lou Manning

Once upon a time in the town of Murphysboro lived a little girl with long, blond hair and big, brown eyes who grew up to be a queen.

The girl moved from Murphysboro to Lebanon, to Milwaukee, Wis., to Decatur, to Rockford and back to Murphysboro with her parents, younger sister and older brother. While attending Murphysboro High School, she won a part in the SIU summer musical "Music Man" and enrolled in dancing school.

After graduation, the girl came to SIU, joined the Alpha Gamma Delta social sorority, became a President's Scholar and entered a contest.

During the Bob Hope Show on May 12, 1968, at the climax of that contest, Phyllis Green was crowned Miss Southern.

Miss Green, a junior majoring in speech, presented a monologue-singing-dancing skit as part of the Miss Southern competition. She is now busy preparing and revising that skit for the Miss Illinois Pageant in Aurora next week.

On Sunday morning Miss Green and her mother, who will act as her chaperone throughout the week's events, will leave Murphysboro by car bound for Aurora College. Here she will compete with 50 Illinois queens for the title of Miss Illinois and the right to vie for the Miss America prize.

"This is the first beauty contest I've entered. I've done some newspaper modeling but I'm not interested in that," she explained. "I want to teach."

The 5'2" coed hopes to teach speech and direct plays in high school when she graduates.

Miss Green enjoys skiing, swimming, reading and dancing and before she became involved in rehearsals, worked at the Stenographic Office as a receptionist.

A member of Alpha Gamma Delta, Activities Programming Board, New Student Week and Homecoming steering committees, the vivacious Miss Southern has some serious views.

"What bothers me is that all the good young people do goes unrecognized. A lot of kids have problems but this is normal. Still a lot of young people believe in law and order," she said, commenting on the "unrest" that has spread to the college campus.

"It is really difficult to explain why it has happened because so many forces and so many different kinds of people are thrown together in a university."

As Miss Southern, she participated in the Carbondale Memorial Day parade at the request of Mayor David Keene.

"As Miss Southern I am able to meet people that I ordinarily wouldn't get a chance to meet. I hope, in this capacity, to further a better relationship between the students and adults," she offered.

"There is a great deal of pride and honor that goes along with my title. Through my knowledge of SIU, I hope to represent it the best way that I can.

Curb U.S. Suicide Rate

Police officers are hired to protect people from crime, nurses help those who are sick, and firemen help people in distress. But, who is helping those who believe that the world has become too complex to live in and decide to take their own lives rather than face today's fast-moving world?

A national survey shows that approximately 22,000 people committed suicide last year, but Dr. R. Edwin S. Shneidman, chief of the Center for the Studies of Suicide Prevention of the National Institute of Mental Health, says there are at least 44,000 suicide deaths a year. It seems ridiculous that 22,000 lives must be taken each year just because people can't face today's world.

If so many feel they cannot cope with today's world, there is a tremendous need for guidance. Yet today there are only 33 suicide prevention centers in 14 states to help those who feel they want to die.

This number of centers is far below the number needed. State and federal agencies should join to increase the number of centers to help stop this senseless taking of lives, which now ranks as the tenth leading cause of death among adults.

Are Restless Students Pushing too Hard?

To the Editor:

Well, it looks as if we have one more student ousted from SIU. Perhaps the spirited fellow was just feeling his oats and getting a kick from the emotion stirred by his eloquent words. Perhaps he was only trying to honestly and constructively better his alma mater by calmly suggesting some desirable reforms. Perhaps he was only testing his fresh young mind on several more fresh young minds eager to use their resources in some lively endeavor.

It's always baffled me how an individual or mob feels that they may say anything, assault anything or tear apart anything in a university and still scream "injustice", or "infringement" when punished. Most baffling, however, is how quick they are to attempt to muscle their way back into the school with which they found so much fault. I'm afraid I don't understand because I haven't been "persecuted" for any of my opinions. "X" lawyer defending one of these red-blooded boys is certainly going to try to find some legal instrument to get him back in (thus collecting his little fee).

Why, everyone knows that it's desirable to speak up and use one's fresh young mind. Colleges need these leaders! The quality of SIU will be raised by reinstating these crusaders. Again, everyone knows that in our democracy we are promised lots of free speech and action. Therefore, what has happened to a few of our fellow students has to be a terrible injustice!

How far should students go to push ideas? Why all the way! (and to heck with the consequences). We are the intellectual elite, who have had all kinds of experience and more than enough sound judgement ingrained in our tested characters. To have respect for institutions such as the home, church, school, is being weak and passive. With our backgrounds, anyone who criticizes our judgement has to be evil. Since most things are gray rather than black and white, we have unlimited security in our arguments. So let's keep at it fellow students! Think how proud you'll be if you "triumph" over some administrator with a court ruling.

P.S. The author sleeps well knowing we have people around with the courage to boot undesirables.

An Editor's Outlook

Difficult for the Runaways to Stay Away

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones

One thing this country could use is an infallible device for telling which runaway kids should be allowed to keep going.

In the 19th century America was full of runaway youngsters who did, indeed, keep going, and many of them turned into our top citizens. They ran away from drunken fathers and mean stepmothers. They ran away from neglect and coldness. And, once over the hill, they were rarely caught.

Today runaways don't run very far. They can't outrun the teletype, the radio and the scoutcar. The young job-seeker needs a birth certificate. So there's the night in the police station, the telegram to the home sheriff, and the humiliating return trip with the deputy.

Yet it is unrealistic to condemn all runaways as wild kids. Some of them in immature desperation are really trying to save themselves. They are trying to save themselves from lousy parents. The science of child-catching has far outrun the science of child-raising.

It is sad that the ability to beget children has nothing to do with the ability to bring them up. Indeed, among the best begetters there is an abnormally high percentage of rotten raisers.

The business of parenthood is to supply love, healthy experience and, if possible, opportunity to the man-cub. The first doesn't cost anything, the second very little and the third is not essential.

The number of parents who can't even deliver the free commodity is staggering. I know a father—he only has a few million bucks—whose daughter in a distant city is in the hands of psychiatrists. He came to town not long ago, called her to say he could spare an hour between appointments, and she hurried over to the hotel. He sat there conversing in monosyllables and looking at television.

The kid who isn't loved knows it. There is no trauma so excruciating as parental rejection. No other form of human cussedness can more efficiently wreck a human life. Yet there persists the superstition that "advantages" are a substitute for affection. They aren't.

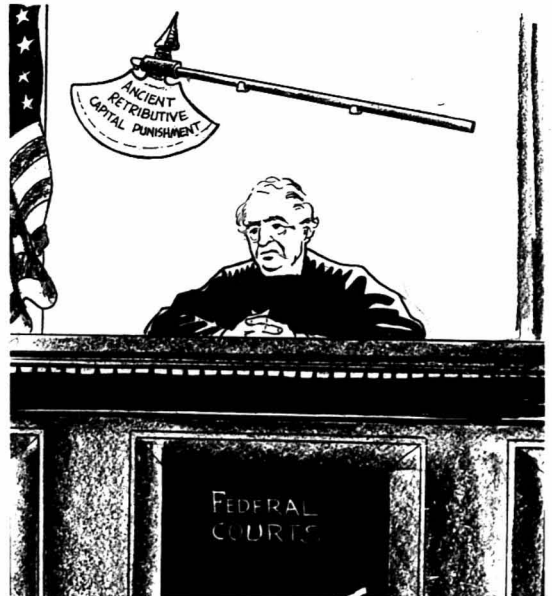

The finest of the advantages a family can offer can't be found in a department store, a car dealer's show room or a prep school. The only priceless one is the sense of belonging. Otherwise, the family becomes a combination cafe and dormitory. There's no glue in it.

Much has been written about cloying parental attention, fathers who drag mere babies into the Little Leagues and mothers who follow their children around like clucking hens. This is certainly an error, for as Al Capp has acidly written: "What 8-year-old wants a 40-year-old pal?"

But there is a difference between being a parent and a pal. A parent should be an object of some awe. But a parent should also be a fountainhead of wisdom and a leader-into-the-world-of-men.

What substitute is there for the family outing, whether it is a trip to the zoo, a weekend at the beach or a journey to the far Yellowstone? The thunderstorm that broke up the picnic, the flat tire on the mountain road, the lost swimming trunks in the motel pool—these are savored around the dinner table for months and years. Nothing delights children like family legends that grow with the telling.

The grant was awarded to Herbert I. Hadler, associate professor of chemistry, by the Public Health Service. It totals approximately $197,000.

The grant will be used to study carcinogenic polynuclear hydrocarbons, which Hadler says, "are similar to compounds found in our modern atmosphere and in cigarette smoke." Since the 1930's, it has been known that these compounds will produce cancer in experimental animals, he says.

He plays to administer one of the most potent of these compounds to animals and determine what new compounds it is transformed into by the animals' metabolism.

Hadler says he hopes to find how normal biological processes are interfered with by the original compound and those new compounds which are formed. This, he says, may shed some light on how cancer is caused.

Of the total grant of $197,000, about $165,629 will be used to cover the direct expenses of the study and the rest will go to the University for overhead expenses.

Lakers Ecstatic Over Life With Wilt

LOS ANGELES—About the best word to describe the way the Los Angeles Lakers and their fans feel about getting Wilt Chamberlain is ecstasy.

There is a relish in the way they look forward to the 1968-69 season that resembles the way a man feels when he has a royal flush in a no-limit poker game.

After the party is over, however, it might be wise to consider a few facts that should bring a sense of reality back to Los Angeles fans:

1. The three Laker superstars, Chamberlain, Jerry West and Elgin Baylor are in their 30s. The Lakers may be creating a "retirement village" for basketball greats.

2. The Lakers are very short on guards. After West, the only other immediate prospects are retreat Fred Crawford and a rookie by the name of Eddie Beidenbach, second round draft choice from North Carolina State.

3. The fact that there are three superstars on a single team makes it possible for the first time for National Basketball Association players to stage a "team" holdout not unlike the Sandy Kofax-Don Drysdale maneuver in 1966.

To get Chamberlain, the Lakers gave up their best young guard, Archie Clark, as well as forward Jerry Chambers and veteran Darrall Imhoff. The three went to Philadelphia for Chamberlain, the 32-year-old all-time scoring great who couldn't get together with the 76ers on terms for the forthcoming season.

A year ago the Lakers dealt Walt Hazzard to Seattle and a few months ago surrendered Gail Goodrich to Phoenix in another expansion draft.

General manager Fred Schaus at last report was trying to make a deal for another guard. He is not unaware that West has become increasingly fragile and missed many games last season, which required rotation of Crawford, Goodrich and Clark at guard.

The age problem is not of immediate concern, but it has to be a long-range consideration for the best franchise in pro basketball. By adding Chamberlain—the big man so long coveted by the Lakers—the Lakers have assured themselves of a record attendance for at least one season.

The other teams also will benefit when Los Angeles goes on the road. Expansion teams in particular will profit because fans will want to see Chamberlain, West and Baylor playing on the same team—certainly one of the best road shows in basketball history.

Chamberlain should be good for several years, but the longevity of Baylor and West

Konnivial Klassic Golf Tournament Finals Set Today

The final rounds of the Konnivial Klassic, a golf tournament for married male students, will get underway at 10 a.m. today at Midland Hills Golf Course.

The leader in the championship flight is Dick Hume who has posted a 77 average since play began Monday. He is trailed by Jerrie Johnson with a 78.

Mark Satterlee leads the first flight with an 86 while Jim Costigan is second with an 88.

Bob Flaherty leads the second flight with a 106. He is followed closely by Tom Casper who has a 107 average.

is more doubtful.

Jerry, who came with Schaus, his coach, to Los Angeles from West Virginia, in 1960, has said he would consider retirement if he had another season in which injuries caused him to spend much time on the bench.

Baylor, who had a great year in 1967-68, will be 34 next season. It seems inevitable he will retire within two or three years.

The idea of a holdout by all three acting together is something owner Jack Kent Cooke doesn't want to think about. But the fact remains there has never been a situation in NBA history in which three such celebrated players were in a better bargaining position.

Stanky Quits White Sox

CHICAGO (AP) — Eddie Stanky stepped down Friday as manager of the Chicago White Sox and will be replaced by Al Lopez, the man whom Stanky succeeded more than two years ago.

The sudden switch was announced by Arthur Allyn, owner of the White Sox, after Allyn and Stanky had consulted for more than two hours. Coach Les Moss is to pilot the club until Sunday when Lopez is expected to arrive and take command through the 1969 season.

"Eddie and I met for two hours today, and he resigned in the best interest of the team," said Allyn.

Thespians Present Cuts From Variety of Plays

By Dave Johnson

Overcoming the obstacles of sk mypy scenery, limited costuming, talent scrambles and rushed rehearsals, the Theater Workshop put on scenes from 17 famous plays Thursday evening.

Director Tries Orange Tactic

"Sensory perception makes students more aware of their surrounding sensorily and experience things more fully," says Miss Janet Larsen, director of the Oral Interpretation Workshop.

To develop their sense of taste, workshopppers had to pantomime drinking orange juice. "They could not do this effectively until they really tasted the orange juice and this may take 10 to 15 minutes of intense concentration," Miss Larsen commented.

In the analysis lab, workshopppers evaluate literature—prose, fiction, poetry, drama—in depth. They are introduced to new types of literature to explore its various aspects from a purely literary point of view.

Workshopppers practice performance techniques by improvisation and pantomime to learn to approach a character.

"Students are given both the intellectual and physical aspects of interpretation and they put these two together in performance," concludes Miss Larsen.

Under the direction of Charles Zoekler and his assistant, Ron Travis, the students presented the first results of their workshop training in Furr Auditorium.

Glenn Becker, Barbara Piecuch and Kathy Warma excelled in dramatic acting. Kay Harper carried well the humorous parts of her cuttings.

Unfortunately, there was a great mish-mash of good and bad acting in all scenes. Those doing their parts well were robbed of good reactions by bad actors. Often the better actors carried the whole act.

Moliere's Would Be Gentlemen was presented in part by Kay Harper, Lyla Orrison, Benjay Alarcon and James Michael Reeder.

Old folks in a retired home were played by Glen Becker, Mark Carmichael, Denise Latella, Benjay Alarcon, Kay Harper, James Michael Reeder, Suzanne Fulton and Kathleen Weir in a cutting from The Silver Whistle, which had the best group collection of actors.

Born Yesterday was done in part by Tim Dial, John Dougherty and Judy Miller. Charlotte Booker, Alice Mott, Kathy Warma, Debbie Cummins, Judy Miller, Sarah Schenke, Kathleen Weir, Debbie Evans and Barb Edleman played a strange collection held in The House of Bernarda Alba.

Instrumentalists, Artists Begin Summer Camps

Equipped with paints, brushes, sketch books, musical scores and instruments, 281 high school students began art and music camps last Sunday at SIU.

Art classes are in five areas: sculpture, ceramics, print making, painting and drawing and collage making. Most students take classes in four areas except the advanced which has sessions in three areas. All students take print making.

The artists will exhibit their work Wednesday, July 24, in University School.

The music students will display their talents on four different occasions. Monday, July 15, at 8 p.m. there will be a program featuring selected musicians in the Home Economics Auditorium, 140B. The stage band will be in concert Friday, July 19, at the same place.

The pianists will present their program Saturday, July 20, at 3:30 in the University Center Ballroom. That evening all groups will appear in a public performance at the ballroom.

Melvin Stener, director of the music department and bands at SIU, is the coordinator of both camps.

'Carousel' To Highlight St. Louis Trip Monday

Highlighting the Communications Workshop's trip to St. Louis Monday will be "Carousel," starring John Davidson at the Muny Opera.

Mr. Davidson is well-known from his numerous television appearances. He will play one of the leading roles in the musical, which was written by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II. Since 1945 it has become one of the most popular musicals in America.

The play is set on the New England coast during the 1870s and '80s. It is the story of a bully who can express his love for his wife only by beating her, and of her patient, understanding love for him, a love that survives even death. Among the famous songs that were written for this musical are "If I Loved You" and "You'll Never Walk Alone." Now in its 50th season, the Muny Opera is located in one of the few open-air theaters of its kind in the country. Workshopppers will see not only the performance but will also be given a backstage tour.

Debaters Prepare For 'Oral' Sport

"Resolved: That the United States should establish compulsory service for all citizens." This is the topic around which debate squads will work this year in research and argument.

To be a debater, a person must be able to spend long hours on research, think fast on his feet, speak well and make use of reasoning and logic, according to speech students.

To prepare for an important debate the teams may do one and a half to two months of research on one topic. Speech Workshop is designed to set the proper working climate for the debater who is willing to exert the necessary amount of effort.

When the day arrives for debate, the teams will argue either for a topic or against it, with the information and the knowledge they have gathered.

Although the debaters work long hours, workshopper Michael Wayne McKeeman of La Grange, Ill., describes this "oral" sport as "great!" Without ardent preparation and self-perseverance a debater may find himself somewhat soured on the situation because he suddenly finds he cannot "beat other kids." "To be sure," said Kent Weissinger of O'Fallon, Ill., "I only have 53 debate cards in my file, and I have the feeling that debate is evolving into a debate of semantics and documentation instead of a true classical debate."

JuLion Reflects Workshop Activities

Meeting the Deadline

Focusing on workshop life at SIU, the 1968 JuLion will try to capture the spirit of work and recreation created by the students.

The "yearbook" will contain photographs of each workshop group. JuLion cameras will also take candid shots of workshopppers at SIU and on the St. Louis trip. Besides pictures, the "yearbook" will contain a directory of names and addresses of the students.

Tom Dougherty and Theresa McGinnis, elected by the yearbook class, are co-editors of the JuLion. Other members of the staff include Betty Fritz and Brenda Tinges, copy editors; Steve Modert and Cliff Sutton, layout editors; and Bill Lahares, Debra Meyer and Chuck Napier, circulation. Brent Jones will do the cover design. Mrs. Terry Zawacki is adviser for the JuLion.

Photography for the "yearbook" is being handled by workshopppers Debbie Gaffner, Reta Hoskins, Brent Jones and Mike Smith.
