Hartigan bid hinted to at fund-raiser

By John Walblay
Staff Writer

The signs that Attorney General Neil Hartigan would seek the 1990 Democratic nomination for governor of Illinois were obvious at last night's fund-raiser at the University Student Center.

The bumper stickers, buttons and pins all said Hartigan will run. U.S. Sen. Paul Simon, along with several Illinois legislators and former legislators, hinted toward that end, but Hartigan didn't make a formal announcement of his intentions.

"It's been said that we don't know what's going to happen tomorrow, right (Sen.) Vince (DeMuzio)?" Simon said. "But if by any chance tomorrow he (Hartigan) announces for governor of Illinois, in my opinion, he will be the next governor of Illinois."

Hartigan stressed the responsibility of legislators to the people and the bond that he called the "family of Southern Illinois and Illinois as a whole."

"Our business is a very interesting business and a very challenging business," Hartigan said. "Paul Simon doesn't think it's a game and neither do I, because it's human beings on the other side of everything we do."

Hartigan said it was the responsibility of the government of Illinois to bring the state to its potential and to ease the concerns of its citizens.

He said citizens see the potential in Illinois, "and yet at the same time they see things happening around them that they just don't understand and they wonder if anyone cares."

Hartigan is expected to formally announce his bid for governor at a press conference today.

Bush says freedom will thrive

LEIDEN, the Netherlands (UPI) — President Bush, capping a trip that opened in ancient capitals shaking off the hold of the Kremlin, declared Monday the dream of freedom will succeed and "Europe behind the wall will join its neighbors in the West."

With his first trip to the economic summit of the industrialized democracies behind him, Bush said a letter Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev sent to the participants in the Paris meeting "is only the latest example of the Soviets' moving in our direction."

"We must work together toward the day when all of Europe — east and west — is free of discord, free of division," Bush said in an address at The Pieterskerk, the centuries-old cathedral in the ancient city of Leiden where pilgrims worshipped before setting sail in the Mayflower for the New World.

When Bush and his wife Barbara arrived in the Netherlands from Paris, they were formally greeted by Queen Beatrix, who was welcoming the first American chief executive ever to visit the small but longtime ally.

IBHE forms group to ensure funding

by Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

With an operating budget of $250 million, the Illinois Board of Higher Education has created a committee to ensure that funding for higher education will be provided in the 1990s.

William B. Browder, IBHE chairman, said the establishment of the Committee on Scope, Structure, and Productivity of Illinois Higher Education was "one of the most important items we've ever had on our agenda."

The committee will focus on the goals of Illinois higher education, and the effectiveness of programs, resource allocations, productivity and the structure in relation to the goals.

One of the committee's top priorities will be to make sure higher education will be sufficiently funded after the two-year tax increase expires, Richard D. Wagner, executive director of the IBHE, said.

"The (Illinois) General Assembly almost didn't give higher education enough money this year," Wagner said. "At the very last possible moment, they passed the income tax increase. We came dangerously close to not getting the money we needed and we can't let that happen again."

At previous IBHE meetings, Gov. James R. Thompson endorsed the possibility of such a committee.

"I think one of the most important issues for higher education in the 90s will be the issue of accountability and productivity," Thompson said in a report from the IBHE. "There is a definite need for challenging and renewing higher education in this state and the IBHE must look into it."

The 1980s brought enrollment increases for Illinois universities despite the declining number of high school graduates, Wagner

Illinois miners return to work; many displeased

By John Walblay
Staff Writer

Striking Illinois coal miners have gone back to work after United Mine Workers of America President Richard Trumka requested an end to the five-day, contract-sanctioned work stoppage.

"The mines are working. They (workers) started to go back Saturday," Jerry Jones, UMWA District 12 president, said.

Most of Illinois' 8,500 UMWA miners went on a sympathy strike to show support for the 1,900 striking miners of the Pittston Coal Group Inc. of Appalachia.

The number of striking miners east of the Mississippi River dropped from 46,000 to 37,000 at the start of the contract-sanctioned work stoppage last week.

Jones said Trumka "asked them to go back as a show of good faith," to the Pittston company.

Many of Illinois' mine workers were not pleased with Trumka's decision to issue a back-to-work request, Jones said.

"Everybody is very concerned," Jones said. "There are a lot of strong feelings, but we're going to abide by Trumka's decision, and that's where we are at this point."

"Everyone can't be a leader, and we have to have a leader."

Jones said. "Trumka is our leader, and we respect that."

Jones said that although Trumka is the union's leader, that doesn't mean his decisions will always be popular with constituents.

However, Jones said it is important for the districts to show organized support for the

Tennessee state legislator kills self, officials say

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — State Rep. Ted Ray Miller was killed Monday in an apparently self-inflicted shotgun blast at his home, authorities said.

The apparent suicide came a day before a federal grand jury was to consider an influence-peddling indictment against the 55-year-old Democrat.

FBI and police officials said the body was found by Miller's wife, Carole.

Miller had been shot in the head with a 12-gauge shotgun, police spokesman Foster Arnett Jr. said. Miller, a nine-term legislator, left a note, but investigators declined to discuss its contents or length.

"He was alone when his wife found him," Arnett said. "He had suffered a gunshot wound to the head. When officers arrived, they found the body, which has been tentatively identified as Ted Ray Miller."

The body was taken to University of Tennessee

Medical Center, where an autopsy will be performed Tuesday.

Knox County Medical Examiner Randall Pedigo said he would make no identification of the body until he could compare the body's fingerprints with those of Miller's.

Pedigo is waiting to receive copies of Miller's fingerprints from the FBI's Washington office of identification, he said. UT spokeswoman Lisa McNeal said that Pedigo told her he would "not make an identification on this one without fingerprint proof."

Pedigo said he knew Miller and that he could not identify the body because the shotgun blast destroyed Miller's face.

"I'm shocked and deeply saddened. I'm devastated. That's all I can say at this point," said attorney Herb Moncier, who was steering

Gandhi ends two-day visit with Prime Minister Bhutto

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI) — Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi and Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto Monday argued over Pakistan's nuclear program and the disputed Kashmir region, illustrating some of the problems left unresolved by the first visit by an Indian leader in nearly 30 years. The disagreements aired by the leaders of the regional rivals at a joint news conference added a slightly sour note to Gandhi's two-day visit to Islamabad.

Soviets say end of military alliances possible

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — A senior Soviet official said Monday the Kremlin could see the day when the NATO and Warsaw Pact military alliances are not needed, and rejected Western insistence that his side currently enjoys superior strength. Marshal Sergei Akhromeyev, special military adviser to Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, made his comments during a debate with Gen. Wolfgang Altenburg, chairman of NATO's military committee, the highest military authority in the Western alliance.

Fed-local operation nets 456 drug suspects

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal officials announced Monday a special operation with local authorities from the Washington area had snared 456 drug fugitives in the eight weeks, and they said they hoped to repeat the effort in other cities across the country. The operation — dubbed STOP for Street Terror Offender Program — was hailed by both Attorney General Richard Thornburgh and National Drug Policy Director William Bennett as proof that federal cooperation with local law enforcement officials could be an effective part of the war on drugs.

U.S. offers compensation in Iran Air accident

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has offered what could amount to $30 million in compensation to families of the 290 people killed when the Navy shot down an Iranian passenger airplane last year, officials said Monday. The offer of so-called ex gratia payments was made to the six countries from which the victims came: Iran, India, Italy, Pakistan, the United Arab Emirates and Yugoslavia. Under the proposal, $250,000 would be paid to each family of a victim who had been employed full-time; $100,000 would go to the others.

Expanded Lawsuit filed against the Marcoses

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Philippine government filed an expanded complaint Monday against deposed President Ferdinand Marcos and his wife, accusing them of swindling billions of dollars from the Philippine people. Attorneys for the Philippine Commission on Good Government won permission from U.S. District Attorney Mariana Pfaelzer to file the broader, more detailed version of a racketeering lawsuit that was originally filed in June 1986.

Program puts more science in curriculum

By Micki Delhaute McGowan
Staff Writer

The crickets eat the plants and the chameleons eat the crickets. By observing this, some Carbondale third graders are learning about the food chain.

The students are participating in a local science program. The three-week program was designed to put more science into the educational curriculum of Carbondale students, in grades first through third.

Kathy Pericak-Spector and Susan Pearlman came up with the idea for the science program.

"We got the idea because we are parents of children in the school district, and we wanted to see more science in the curriculum," Pearlman said.

Pearlman said she and Pericak-Spector received a grant for the science program.

The program is a joint project between the University's College of Science, College of Education and Carbondale District 95, Pearlman said.

Pearlman said she used her background in education and Pericak-Spector used her science background to create the program.

Pericak-Spector and Pearlman planned a teacher's training course so that interested teachers could learn new methods of teaching science.

Teachers from the Carbondale school district who were interested in the program went through three weeks of training.

The nine teachers involved in the program learned how to teach "hands-on" science to children, Pearlman said.

Pearlman said the teachers learned why "hands-on" experience is important.

David Wells, 7, son of Ralph and Kathy Wells of Carbondale, examines his crystal garden through a magnifying glass at Lincoln Junior High School Monday.

"Children at this age learn best by doing rather than seeing or reading," Pearlman said.

Children "need to manipulate concrete objects because they haven't developed the ability to think abstractly," she said.

The science program gives children the opportunity to be actively involved, Pearlman said.

Second graders have learned how to use a battery to make a light bulb light up, Pearlman said. They also have worked with gears, pulleys and magnets.

"Kids learn best if they figure out the answers," Pearlman said.

She said the children enjoy "exploring and problem-solving and coming up with their own solutions."

"One of our goals is to integrate science with other subjects," Pearlman said.

Science will be integrated with social studies when first graders go to the recycling center this week, Pearlman said.

One-act plays drag on, too complex to follow

By Theresa Livingston
Entertainment Editor

McLeod Theater continued its 1989 Summer Playhouse series this weekend with its second feature, a double bill of one-act plays which centered around the theme of theatrical illusion becoming reality.

The performance began with "The Actor's Nightmare," by Christopher Durang.

Theater Review

The plot centers around George Spelvin, a mild-mannered, meek accountant who somehow stumbles into a stage production.

George, played by William Kirksey, can't remember his name or how he got backstage, but finds himself confusingly and inexplicably drawn into playing several different characters from several plays in what is presumably the same play.

The imaginary play is a romp through time, emotion and space, which has no boundaries and was at times hard to follow.

George, thinking he is in some sort of bad dream, repeatedly tries to wake up, only to discover that all sense of time and reality has altered beyond the normal rules, which gets pretty strange at times.

The supporting cast sets up the framework for George's confusion. The characters flow from a Noel Coward play to Hamlet to an avant-garde piece about two alley cats who discuss Godot and their mundane lives while they sit in garbage cans and read everything, including stage directions and notes to the actor, which confusingly ends up being an epoch about the death of Sir Thomas Moore.

While several of the lines are funny if you have a decent working knowledge of Shakespeare and other classics, the overall effect of this play is a bit stilted and disorienting. Although several scenarios drew laughs, rambling monologues that seemed out of place only heightened the confusion.

The second play, "The Real Inspector Hound," by British playwright Tom Stoppard, deals with the insecurities and petty jealousies between two critics as they are unwittingly sucked into a whodunnit they are reviewing.

The first critic, Moon, also played by Kirksey, is a pandering, second-rate critic consumed with envy for his immediate superior.

The second critic is a top-billed critic who also is an extreme womanizer. The critic, played by Rob Hurst, wears a loud gabardene pantsuit and enough chains to set off an airport metal detector.

The two are onstage, along with 16 members of the audience, watching an imaginary play. The whodunnit in question also is a parody, poking fun at formulated, complicated and over-dramatic murder mysteries. The problem is that everybody is so busy satirizing everybody else that the plot seems lost in the confusion.

Although many of the numerous cast members give fine performances within too-limited roles and the stage sets were excellent, the subject matter is hard to follow and drags at times.

Stance on abortion only part of election

IN THE WAKE of the Supreme Court's ruling that gave states more responsibility in determining abortion laws, the abortion issue has been given new life.

Many feel that abortion will be the single most important issue for politicians in upcoming elections.

The importance of the issue has trickled down to all levels of government because of the Supreme Court's decision.

It has not taken long for the issue to take root in Southern Illinois politics and will be a hot topic for one incumbent and challenger in the 1990 election for the 116th Legislative District seat.

REP. BRUCE RICHMOND, D-Murphysboro, has served in the Illinois House since 1975 and will have the opportunity to seek reelection in 1990. He is not personally in favor of abortion but does believe that women have the right to choose.

Richmond's challenger, should Richmond choose to seek another term, will be Republican Ron Isaacs, a long time supporter of pro-life and a Carbondale attorney.

Isaacs feels that Southern Illinois cannot afford to have any legislator who is pro-choice.

WHETHER OR NOT Southern Illinois can afford a pro-choice legislator is only part of what an election should be based upon.

Southern Illinois, as well as other parts of the country, is in need of politicians who can act responsibly on a variety of issues.

We need candidates who are willing to do better for their constituents over the long haul.

Education, social and human services, roads and any number of other topics need addressing in a political campaign.

WE BELIEVE abortion should be considered by all voters when selecting a candidate for office and politicians should make very clear their positions.

But selecting a candidate solely because of a position on a single issue is not the most responsible way of selecting a public official.

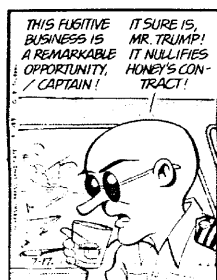

Whether for or against the issues surrounding abortion one should consider what the candidate has to offer on all issues in a campaign.

Single-issue campaigns may be emotional and may seem logical over the short term. But experience, past record, and knowledge of an area's constituents should be weighed when making a long term decision.

Letters

Prejudice in America is not a folk tale

I was flabbergasted by Ms. Sikora's letter which portrayed the naive attitude of some Americans on what goes on around and about us. Ms. Sikora's ignorance is no defense! Prejudice in America is no folk tale, it is real and my negligence is not rock, it is human; it bleeds, it feels and wants.

But more astounding is not really the parading of your ignorance, but rather your arrogance, as evident by your statement to Mr. Pryor, "Go back to Africa."

Africa has become the Africa of gaps for the prejudiced white American who wants to postpone or divert the problem of racial prejudice in America. You do not want to seek for a solution of the problems in America, why? Rather you would dispute "Satanic Verses" which you do not seem to understand. If I may borrow a wise saying: Give to God what is to God and to Caesar that which belongs to Caesar. Hence, give to us the black man what belongs to him and to religion which belongs to religion.

So it draws on your conscience, come of it, the truth may hurt but a solution is needed now, for justice delayed is justice denied.

Truth is absolute and, when crushed to the ground, will rise up again. Furthermore, did America belong to those who tell us to go back to Africa for all eternity? No.

Ms. Sikora, you asked what is holding Mr. Pryor and many of my fellow African Americans back, and that is that America is ours by birth right and we are here to stay.

For me, the African American, it is my right to be an American with all due rights, but for the immigrant it is a privilege to be a citizen, we never beg for rights but demand them.

Overall, I would like to clarify some of the misconceptions in your article. First of all the black man did not receive his independence officially until 1865, the Emancipation Proclamation, nearly 100 years after your independence.

Next, I would like to address your statement that all veterans of every war this country has been involved with fought side by side, this is incorrect! In WWI blacks were grouped in all black platoons and were not sent to the front lines because we weren't, so called, proven soldiers. It was not until the Korean war that white and black troops were integrated.

If you had such an open mind you wouldn't be so blind to prejudice in our world. Just because you were sheltered in a small town does not excuse you for not knowing the black man's prejudice towards the white man. It's been said time and time again: put yourself in a black man's shoes and walk around in his world and you will understand our suffering!

Martin Luther King stated that, "We shall one day overcome." The black man has and will always have to overcome. By all means necessary the black man will overcome the unjust and unfair system of America. In order for our races to live in harmony we must break the barrier of prejudice. — Ian D. Oliver, junior in administration of justice

Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

China repels summit review, warns against new sanctions

BEIJING (UPI) — China warned Monday that sanctions against it by the seven leading industrial nations could isolate the country and "undermine world peace and stability," as the number of confirmed arrests in the crackdown on dissent rose to nearly 3,000.

The arrests of 368 people by border authorities in southern Guangdong Province was reported in an official newspaper Friday and received by United Press International Monday. Guangdong borders Hong Kong and the Portuguese colony of Macao. Several prominent student leaders and intellectuals have escaped through an underground network to those enclaves.

The latest action raised to nearly 3,000 the number of arrests confirmed since the army's brutal suppression of China's student-led democracy movement in Beijing on June 3-4.

Over the weekend, the economic summit of the world's seven leading industrial democracies in Paris condemned the "violent repression" of the movement

"in defiance of human rights." The summit also called on the World Bank to continue to postpone reviews of new loans to China, which has looked primarily to the West and Japan as benefactors in its modernization program.

"The Chinese government cannot but express its utmost regret" at the summit's criticism of Beijing, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said.

"The G-7 summit's gross interference in China's internal affairs by pressuring China contravenes the most basic norms governing international relations and is absolutely unacceptable to the Chinese government," a ministry spokesman said.

The leading Communist Party newspaper, People's Daily, warned in an editorial that the "Chinese government and people will never give in to any pressure."

In a statement issued Saturday, the United States, Britain, France, West Germany, Italy, Canada and Japan took note of economic and diplomatic sanctions already imposed and called on Chinese leaders to "create conditions to avoid their isolation."

"Such an action is sheerly putting the cart before the horse," the People's Daily editorial said.

"It is noteworthy that China is a country of global strategic importance and can provide an enormous market both in reality and potential," the People's Daily editorial said.

"With the interdependence of the global economy ever increasing, the near-sighted practice of keeping China away from the world community may not only undermine world peace and stability, but hurt the interests of the Western countries as well," it said.

Since the crackdown, Western nations led by the United States have frozen military cooperation with China, suspended high-level diplomatic contact and postponed financial assistance.

"The G-7 summit made a miscalculation in continuing to exert pressure on China," the People's Daily warned.

Bush, who was to return to Washington Tuesday afternoon, also had tea with the queen and met with Prime Minister Ruud Lubbers. His schedule for Monday ended with a state dinner at Noordeinde Palace.

The Leiden sidetrip was a colorful and festive windup to the presidential journey to Europe, with thousands lining the way as Bush's limousine made its way from The Hague to the narrow cobblestone streets of the university town.

The crowds held flags, signs and banners, some supporting Bush and others criticizing him on issues ranging from abortion to aid to the Contra rebels.

Inside the church, Bush was briefed on his roots in Leiden — he is reputedly related to Pilgrim leader William Bradford — and he later walked through an exhibit of Pilgrim artifacts.

Bush also stopped in the heart of town to visit the "sweat room" of the University of Leiden, where students traditionally awaited their final grades and signed the walls if they passed.

The president began his 10-day journey last week in Warsaw, Poland, where once-banned Solidarity now shares power with the Communist Party. Then, in Budapest, Hungary, Bush paid tribute to the economic reforms under way there.

As seed money, the president promised to ask Congress for $100 million for Poland and $25 million for Hungary to encourage political reforms by generating economic development along free-market lines.

Bush, who has declared his determination to move "beyond containment" in dealing with Moscow and its Warsaw Pact allies, told the crowd at the church, "Freedom can never be extinguished... even in the Europe behind the wall."

"The dream of freedom for all Europe has never died," he said. "It's alive today — in Warsaw and Gdansk, in Budapest and across the Soviet Union."

At the Paris economic summit, the other summit leaders agreed with Bush that investment in Eastern Europe is a worthwhile investment, but no specific pledges emerged from the session.

Gorbachev's letter hinted that the Kremlin leader was interested in an invitation to next year's summit, to be held in the United States. The summit leaders were cool to the suggestion, with Bush calling the idea "fascinating" but "pre-mature" on Sunday.

On Monday, Bush said, "The Soviet Union has nothing to fear from the reforms now unfolding in some of the nations of Eastern Europe. We support reform — in Eastern Europe and in the USSR — and we are seeing dramatic changes."

The Gorbachev letter, Bush said, "is only the latest example of the Soviets moving in our direction."

"Our time is a time of new hope — the hope that all of Europe can now know the freedom the Netherlands has known, that America has known, that the West has known," Bush said.

said. Productivity in Illinois higher education was achieved by serving "more students with fewer inflation-adjusted dollars."

Hopefully, the committee will find ways to make sure higher education is still productive and available throughout the 90s, Wagner said.

It may not be so bad over the next two years, but the years that follow may be tight, he said.

With technology expanding, the committee will examine the possibilities of providing more money to students in the research technology fields, Browder said.

"Expanded research in fields such as computer technology, artificial intelligence, biotechnology and superconductivity holds the promise of future development for the Illinois economy," Browder said.

Miller through his legal troubles.

U.S. Attorney John Gill said in cases where the defendant dies the case is nullified.

A federal grand jury was to convene Tuesday to hear more evidence against Miller. It is unclear, however, whether the jury, which has heard evidence against the representative since April, would have taken any action Tuesday.

The jury, meeting in a rarely-called special session last week, was expected to issue an indictment but left after a day-long session.

Miller, who had contacted House Speaker Ed Murray the Sunday before the jury met and offered to step down as chairman of the powerful House State and Local Government Committee if indicted, apparently expected the jury to take some action,

"The situation at Pittston is not resolved. That's not a secret," Jones said. "There has to be some good faith bargaining."

"We haven't seen that from Pittston, and that's what brought the whole thing (strike) about," he said.

Stealth bomber completes maiden flight

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — The B-2 stealth bomber, the costliest warplane ever built, successfully completed its maiden flight Monday morning, soaring gracefully into a clear desert sky but with an uncertain future in Washington.

The $530 million radar-evasive graphite-gray bomber, shaped much like a bat, streaked across the Mojave Desert for two hours, flying in long, lazy circles at 10,000 feet.

Framed by a brilliant sunrise, the plane took off at 6:36 a.m. from a runway at an Air Force plant in Palmdale, 60 miles north of Los Angeles, where it was assembled in super-secrecy by Northrop Corp.

With Northrop test pilot Bruce J. Hinds and Air Force test pilot Richard S. Couch at the controls, the B-2 completed its first-ever flight at 8:29 a.m., landing at Edwards Air Force Base, 25 miles from where it took off.

An attempt to take off Saturday was scuttled by a fuel system glitch.

About 200 reporters and photographers and a handful of invited guests stood along the runway Monday to witness what was characterized by Gen. Bernard Randolph, commander of Air Force System Command, as "a historic day in aviation."

At a news conference about three hours after landing, Hinds declared, "It's going to be a very simple airplane to fly. It's a very nimble aircraft."

The test pilots said they kept their maximum speed to less than 200 mph because the plane's landing gear was left down during the flight.

Couch, asked whether the aircraft had any "kinks" still needing to be worked out, answered with a grin, "It's not a kinky airplane."

Randolph, beaming about the success of the newest weapon in the nation's arsenal, said the B-2 "basically negates the air defenses that have been built up around the world. We're extremely pleased with the performance today."

He said the successful first flight should send a message to Congress that the program is worth its price tag in terms of the "value to our deterrent posture."

Randolph was asked whether the Air Force was concerned the B-2 could be made obsolete by advancements in radar. "Not in any time that we're going to be around," he replied. "We've been working on anti-stealth technology and haven't been able to come up with anything."

In Washington, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said: "I am pleased with the success of the project to date. It is good to see that the test program appears to validate the judgments made previously by the Department of Defense and Congress to go forward with the B-2."

"It was wonderful — very impressive," said Patricia Hinds, wife of Bruce Hinds. "We knew it would be today."

Mrs. Hinds, standing in the desert sands beside the runway with her daughter and son, said her husband had been relaxed and "ready to do it."

Couch's wife, Ann, had tears in her eyes as she clutched her 12-year-old daughter while the bomber lifted off in front of them.

Bug to blame for women's death, injury

By Rick Goldstein
Staff Writer

A bug was responsible for an accident that killed one woman and left another injured, the Jackson County Sheriff's department said.

Police said passenger Angelica M. Alipaz, 81, of Cobden, was pronounced dead on the scene after the vehicle she was in rolled over when driver Carmela F. Nachicao lost control because a bug flew in the window.

Police said the vehicle, which was northbound on new Route 51 and two miles north of the intersection of new and old Route 51, went off the east side of the road, struck a guard rail on the west side of the road and turned over.

Alipaz was pinned under the vehicle, and Nachicao was taken to Memorial Hospital of Carbondale, police said.

Neutral particle beam prevails in space

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon announced Monday the first successful test in space of a neutral particle beam, dubbed the "proton torpedo," a major part of the administration's "Star Wars" anti-missile research program.

Military scientists believe the beam will be able to distinguish decoys from real nuclear missiles in space and also will destroy enemy missiles by damaging their internal electronics.

The 24-foot, 3,500-pound beam accelerator was launched on a second stage of a Minuteman 2 missile from New Mexico's White Sands Missile Range last Thursday for a nine-minute suborbital flight called BEAR for Beam Experiment Aboard Rocket.

The neutral particle beam — an energized beam of hydrogen atoms that has no net electrical charge — operated on command for four minutes of the test, firing into space in pulses every five seconds.

The particle beam is one of three legs of directed energy weapons research by the Strategic Defense Initiative, popularly known as the "Star Wars" program. The other two legs are chemical lasers and free-electron lasers.

"The particle beam worked perfectly. That's a major engineering achievement," Air Force Col. Thomas Meyer, director of SDI's energy office, said at a news conference.

Unlike lasers that slowly burn through metal, the neutral particle beam travels at half the speed of light and penetrates deep within a target where "all the energy is released simultaneously" through heat, Meyer said.

"We call them proton torpedoes," he said.

The heat of the neutral particle beam can attack and "screw up" the guidance system and other electronics of a missile in its post-boost phase at 72 miles or higher, effectively killing the missile, Meyer said.

Using less energy, he said, the beam "goes right through" a target missile.

Jury trial set for student on Aug. 7

By Richard Goldstein
Staff Writer

A University student charged with the murder of her newborn infant will face trial Aug. 7 on three counts of first degree murder.

Judge David Watt Jr. Thursday set the jury trial for Veronica April, 24, of Joliet.

Police say April drowned the baby she gave birth to on April 7, 1988.

On May 14, a baby was found in a dumpster near East Hester Street.

Police say April admitted to giving birth to a baby into a toilet then letting it drown.

Cleanup begins after Paris' bicentennial celebration

PARIS (UPI) — The party was over in Paris. Six world leaders, flow away, road barriers came down, stores reopened and the public could again see the Mona Lisa as a huge cleanup operation began.

The city began to return to normal Monday after four days of pageantry and politics marking the bicentennial of the French Revolution and the 15th Economic Summit of the world's richest nations.

"The customers are all back and are asking what it was like in Paris over the weekend," Chris Koenders, a representative for Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co., said.

Many Parisians fled the city during the holiday, unwilling to put up with the huge crowds of revelers, journalists and political aides drawn by the two events and the restrictions imposed by a security force of 30,000, the largest in Paris during peacetime.

The tight surveillance resulted in the arrests Friday of three suspected Irish Republican Army guerrillas 150 miles east of Paris where 33 heads of state were taking part in celebrations to mark Bastille Day, police said Monday. Police said the two men and one woman were suspected in connection with recent bombings of British Army personnel in West Germany.

Interior Minister Pierre Joxe thanked Parisians for putting up with the extra security measures, saying, "I thank them for proving their good citizenship and understanding the necessity of the measures we took. They took public transportation en masse and bicycles replaced cars."

Workers in green uniforms Monday worked to clear the last of the debris left from outdoor celebrations of the 200th anniversary of the storming of the Bastille prison, which led to the downfall of the monarchy.

Tourists flocked once again to see the Mona Lisa at the Louvre museum, which was closed to the public for visits by foreign leaders.

The American Embassy staff that laid the groundwork for President Bush's visit remained in Paris for a "wheels-up" party to celebrate the end of their months of preparation with his flight to The Netherlands.

"It will probably get back to normal here by Wednesday," said John Hennessy-Nyland, who is posted with the U.S. Embassy in Paris.

Also departing Monday were British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, Japanese Prime Minister Sosuke Uno, Italian Prime Minister Ciriaco De Mita and Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney.

The leaders signed a pact covering three areas of concern — economic growth and stability, Third World debt and the environment.

And, the Le Monde daily declared the bicentennial celebration and summit of the Group of Seven industrialized nations a victory for President Francois Mitterrand.

Strike spreads to Soviet coal heartland; 2,000 walk off jobs

MOSCOW (UPI) — Two thousand Ukrainian miners in the Soviet Donbass coal heartland walked off their jobs Monday, joining 110,000 striking Siberian miners in protests that threatened to cripple the world's largest coal producer.

The labor unrest spread despite an appeal from Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev for miners to end the strikes that are costing the government more than $32 million a day in lost production.

"Workers at six mines in the city of Makeyevka in the Donets Coal Basin of the Ukraine went on strike today," the official Tass news agency said. "The miners are demanding longer vacation leaves, extra pay for night shifts and improved pension plans."

The 2,000 striking miners are also demanding cuts in the mines' bureaucratic staffs, better housing in miners' settlements and improved services for miners' families, Tass said.

The strikes in the Ukraine came on the heels of a weeklong series of work stoppages at coal mines and other industrial enterprises throughout the Siberian Kuznetsk Basin, or Kuzbass, where Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov said Monday 110,000 miners were on strike.

The Donbass region in the Ukraine and the Kuzbass region in southwestern Siberia are the two richest coal belts in the Soviet Union, producing more than 40 percent of the country's total annual output of 733 million tons, the most in the world.

Politburo member Nikolai Slyunkov flew to the Kuzbass region Monday with an appeal from Gorbachev to end the Siberian coal strikes, Tass said. The Kuzbass strikes are costing the government at least $32 million a day in lost production.

Tass said a government commission headed by Slyunkov went to the Kuzbass cities of Kemerovo and Prokopyevsk, where they met with miners and other workers to discuss their grievances. Coal Minister Mikhail Shchadov, sent to the region last week, also met with the strikers, Tass said.

Ryzhkov told lawmakers that he was opposed to using force to end the strikes, the state-run news agency said.

Slyunkov's arrival in Kuzbass satisfied a key demand of the miners there, who had asked that a Politburo member come to the region to hear their demands for better living and working conditions and more independence from Moscow in their financial decisions.

The Kuzbass region, about the size of Belgium, symbolizes the eastward movement of Soviet coal production to Siberia from the Donbass basin and other traditional European centers in the Ukraine and the Urals.

Builders, instrument makers and coal industry drivers and processors have joined the miners strike in southwest Siberia, paralyzing the coal industry, Vasil Klimov, a correspondent for the Trud labor newspaper, told UPI in a telephone call Sunday from Mezhdurechensk.

Klimov said the miners' grievances ranged from demands for soap to proper scheduling with days off.

"The conditions here were unbearable," he said. "Imagine that you do not know when your day off is going to be."

Polish leader asks for Solidarity support in possible presidential bid

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski courted the support of Solidarity Monday in a possible presidential bid, but one lawmaker warned him social unrest could erupt if he re-entered the race.

Jaruzelski, who dropped out of the contest two weeks ago, met with 260 Solidarity legislators to gauge their support and said he would decide Tuesday whether to run for president.

Jaruzelski called the five-hour discussion "important, difficult and needed" and told the lawmakers his decision would be made during the next meeting of the Communist Party's parliamentary club.

Solidarity legislators also will meet Tuesday to decide whether to vote for or against Jaruzelski if he runs for president in Wednesday's election.

During the meeting with Jaruzelski, Solidarity deputy Ryszard Brzuz warned the Polish leader his candidacy could spark social unrest — a remark that generated applause from several lawmakers.

"If you assess me in a negative way, then I will be relieved of the burden (to run)," Jaruzelski said.

But some participants at the meeting said they thought Jaruzelski would run for president regardless of Solidarity's response.

In a speech to the Polish parliament, Jaruzelski revealed for the first time that the Polish army supported him in 1981 when Moscow demanded his resignation.

Jaruzelski told the lawmakers he imposed martial law to avoid a Soviet invasion but pledged to improve relations with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

"Good Polish-Soviet relations are of key significance for us," he said. "It is a chance for us."

Jaruzelski pulled out of the presidential race two weeks ago, but his meeting with Solidarity signaled his desire to re-enter the contest if he can win the needed support.

The Senate and the 460-member Sejm, the lower house of the National Assembly, are to meet Wednesday to elect a president, who will serve for six years and have the power to dissolve parliament, veto bills and impose martial law.

In an earlier meeting with the Polish leader, the speaker of the Senate said Jaruzelski "expressed his will to run and said a clear stand of the generals and the Communist Party inclines him to do it."

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa has also been under pressure from Poles to run for president but he declined to enter the race, citing an April 5 agreement that the president must be a government coalition candidate.

On Friday, Walesa said Solidarity would support whomever the Polish parliament elects.

When Jaruzelski withdrew from the presidential race, he proposed Interior Minister Gen. Czeslaw Kiszczak as an alternate candidate for the Communist-led government coalition.

A government source said Jaruzelski temporarily withdrew from the race because he had no chance to win, but he later met with the Democratic and Peasants parties' deputies and managed to get some support for his candidacy.

Utah timber wildfire threatens summer cabins, historic sites

By United Press International
New firefighting troops joined the fight Monday against a Utah timber wildfire threatening summer cabins, while archaeologists were helping to protect historic sites endangered by a blaze in a Colorado national forest.

Another 400 crew members and 10 engines were dispatched to join the 400 firefighters struggling with the 6,230-acre Uinta Flat fire roaring through commercial timber in southern Utah's Dixie National Forest.

The blaze was being pushed by winds toward about 20 summer cabins in the national forest, one of several wilderness fires raging in Utah.

"They should be here today and go on the fire this evening," Bevan Killpack, a Forest Service dispatcher said, to help protect cabins and ranches near the tiny town of Hatch, 220 miles southwest of Salt Lake City.

Wildfires spread across more than 1.5 million acres of the drought-parched West before being quelled last week. One of two contained California blazes was put out Monday. The other was expected to be declared controlled by evening.

In Colorado, firefighters were toiling to keep a wind-plagued 3,075-acre lightning wildfire from spreading to public and private lands outside Mesa Verde National Park, where archaeologists were also on the fire lines to protect historic cliff dwellings and other artifacts.

Full containment of the Mesa fire was estimated at 4 p.m. Wednesday.

Residents near the troublesome Utah Dixie fire were evacuated after the lightning-sparked flames raced Sunday to within a quarter-mile of 15 to 20 summer cabins, most of them owned by people from Las Vegas, Nev.

It was so dangerous that firefighting activity was confined to air drops of fire retardant between the front of the blaze and the cabins.

"We did what we wanted to do, but it was real close and pretty scary for a while," Killpack said.

The wildfire was worst on its north and east flanks, and winds of about 10 mph were expected to continue to push the blaze toward the cabins, leaving no room for backfires, Killpack said.

"We had some very irate people call us yesterday," he said.

The fire, reported Saturday, was consuming ponderosa pine on private and federal lands.

About 20 miles to the north, the Sandy Peak fire — another lightning-ignited Utah blaze — charred 530 acres of white and alpine fir and scrub mahogany.

Firefighters had to be flown in by helicopter because of the fire's location in "very steep and rugged country."

Gang action results in death of four men, about 270 arrests

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A rash of gang violence left four men dead and 27 people wounded during the weekend despite a police sweep that resulted in almost 270 arrests, authorities said.

The wounded included a 3-year-old playing on a driveway, two men hurt in what police described as a neighborhood free-for-all, and a 7-year-old boy hit in the arm as he slept by one of about 20 bullets fired into his family's apartment early Monday.

The violence came despite deployment of the anti-gang task force known as "Operation Hammer" in the San Fernando Valley, where police are frustrated by a 187 percent increase in gang crime in the first six months of 1989. Nearly 150 officers arrested 267 people, including 94 suspected gang members, but the unrelenting gang violence continued.

Sheriff Sherran Block, appearing Monday on NBC's "Today" program, played down the need for reinforcing local police forces with National Guard troops in fighting the gangs.

Portland, Ore., is using troops to relieve officers from desk duties, but Block said most clerical duties in Los Angeles are already being done by civilians and troops make poor police officers.

"We really don't have the need for the guard in L.A.," Block said.

"I think there is use for the guard in some of the backup responsibilities... But as far as putting guardsmen out in the streets, the guard is not trained to do law enforcement work. In fact, having the military we might have a parallel of what goes on in (Israel's) West Bank. The military just doesn't do a good police job."

The latest victim was a 7-year-old boy who was asleep in his bed when a bullet tore through a wall at his apartment and grazed him on the arm, Sgt. Robert Warden said.

The boy, a brother and his parents were asleep in their mid-city apartment when the gunman opened fire about 5:30 a.m., he said.

A gunman fired about 20 bullets into the apartment. One slug tore through a wall and grazed the boy. No one else was injured.

Police were investigating the incident as a possible gang-related shooting although no one in the victim's family was a gang member, Warden said.

Another boy, a 3-year-old, was wounded in the backside Sunday night by a gunman who chased a rival down a driveway and fired a shot that hit the child. Sean Richards was treated for a bullet wound that pierced his buttocks.

The intended victim fled before police arrived, as did the gunman and his two companions.

A few hours earlier, Efrain Gonzales, 21, was killed in a gang-related drive-by shooting as he talked with several men in front of his home.

Team of scientists plan to unearth Colorado's noted cannibal victims

LAKE CITY, Colo. (UPI) — A team of scientists began work in southwestern Colorado Monday to exhume the remains of five gold prospectors in an effort to determine if Alferd Packer, Colorado's notorious cannibal, killed his companions and ate their flesh while stranded by a mountain blizzard 115 years ago.

The expedition into the San Juan Mountains was led by James E. Starrs, professor of law and forensic sciences at George Washington University in Washington, D.C. The team of archaeologists, anthropologists and forensic pathologists will first have to locate the graves — believed to be beneath a bronze marker on Dead Man's Gulch, south of Lake City.

If the bones are found, the scientists will use high technology techniques to determine how the men died.

Packer was the only one of the six-man prospecting group to emerge from the mountains after being trapped by a blizzard for nearly 60 days in the winter of 1873-74. He admitted eating his companions' flesh, but said he killed only one and that was in self-defense. Packer gave conflicting accounts of the deaths of the other men.

Packer was convicted of murder, but the conviction was reversed. He was retried and convicted of five counts of manslaughter. He served 17 years in prison before being paroled in 1901. Packer died in 1907, and is buried in the Denver suburb of Littleton.

The project, dubbed a "shin-dig" by some, has its supporters and detractors. Opponents call the exhumation macabre and grotesque.

But the 418 residents of Hinsdale County — the third least populated county in the nation — tend to support the project.

"I don't think anyone is really anti-dig," said Lake City Mayor Bob Hall. "Lake City has more or less shunned it (the Packer legend) because people here didn't want to be linked with such horrible deeds. Now, people are saying maybe we should be capitalizing on it for our economic development, and what's wrong with that?"

Lake City, with 214 year-around residents, is jammed with reporters covering the dig. Packer memorabilia for sale include cookbooks and Packer dolls.

Report: Many cities can't clean up smog by 2000

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Only half of the 96 U.S. cities now suffering excessive ozone smog will be able to meet federal clean air standards by the year 2000 using current pollution control technology, congressional experts say.

In a report released Monday, the congressional Office of Technology Assessment was far more pessimistic about the prospects for cleaning up urban smog than President Bush and environmentalists, who have suggested that most cities can comply with federal requirements within the next 10 years.

The OTA, a non-partisan agency that analyzes technical issues for Congress, said that, over the next five years, current pollution control techniques can reduce key smog-related emissions by 35 percent from 1985 levels.

The OTA said that 35 percent reduction in volatile organic compound emissions would enable some moderately smoggy cities to attain federal standards, but would not be big enough to bring many heavily polluted cities into compliance by the turn of the century.

"Half of the (urban) areas (violating the ozone standard) are fairly closely to attainment; for these places, reaching the standard is probably feasible with existing technology," the OTA said in its report, "Catching Our Breath: Next Steps for Reducing Urban Ozone."

"However, the remaining areas, including the nation's worst violator, Los Angeles, present much more serious and challenging problems," it said.

"In the worst areas, even the most costly and stringent of available measures will not lower emission levels sufficiently to meet the standard."

The report, which comes as Congress begins debate on strengthening the Clean Air Act, said lawmakers should recognize that Los Angeles and other smog-choked cities face a long road to clean air and not set unrealistic short-term deadlines for full compliance.

Instead, it recommended Congress set interim pollution reduction goals to ensure steady progress toward full compliance within 20 years. The OTA said such interim goals could serve as benchmarks to measure the effectiveness of a city's pollution control plan and the need for improvements.

The OTA analysis clashes with the picture painted by President Bush last month when he unveiled his plan for updating the Clean Air Act.

Bush envisioned all cities but three — Los Angeles, Houston and New York — coming into compliance with the ozone standard by the year 2000. Those three remaining cities would have until 2010.

In addition, ozone is also harmful to trees and crops such as soybeans, with some analyses suggesting it could cost farmers billions of dollars in reduced yields.

New type of war on cancer needed to improve survival among poor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cancer often constitutes "a needless death sentence" for America's poor, and a new kind of war on cancer is needed to improve survival among the needy, an American Cancer Society report said Monday.

The report, based on testimony at seven public hearings held across the nation in May and June, concluded: "Poor people endure greater pain and suffering from cancer than other Americans."

"Millions of Americans living in poverty are not reaping the benefits of advances in cancer prevention, detection and treatment. For these Americans, a diagnosis of cancer is most often a needless death sentence."

Dr. Harold Freeman, president of the cancer society, said doctors generally expect about 50 percent of cancer patients to survive five years after treatment. But the cancer survival rate for the 39 million Americans living below the poverty level is 10 percent to 15 percent below that of the general population, he said.

The study said the crux of the problem appears to be that cancer is often detected much later in the poor than in more affluent patients. Cancer survival usually is much better if the disease is detected in its early stages and promptly treated.

The cancer society estimates about 178,000 people with cancer will die in 1989 who might have been saved by earlier medical attention. The poor make up at least half that number, 1 Freeman said.

"Cancer and poverty is indeed a lethal combination," said Freeman, director of surgery at New York's Harlem Hospital.

Vatican mends ties to Poland

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The Vatican announced Monday it has restored full diplomatic relations with Pope John Paul II's native Poland, the first such ties between the Roman Catholic Church and a Warsaw Pact nation.

The pope had no comment on the announcement made simultaneously by the Vatican and Poland. Since Wednesday, he has been on a private vacation in northwest Italy and his aides imposed a "press silence" Monday.

But the re-establishment of full relations for the first time since 1945 reflected John Paul's untiring support for the Solidarity trade union movement during the seven years it was banned as well as his frequent public pleas in favor of Polish sovereignty, Vatican sources said.

The return of Solidarity to legality in April, coupled with other moves toward democratic "plurality" in Poland, fulfilled the pope's wishes for Poland.

Poland is the first Warsaw Pact nation and only the second communist-ruled country — the other being Yugoslavia — to have full diplomatic relations with the Vatican.

The Vatican statement announcing re-establishment of relations at ambassador level said it was "in consideration of the noble tradition of many centuries of ties existing between the Apostolic See and the Polish nation" and said both sides were "desirous of developing mutual friendly relations."

The diplomatic restoration was seen as imminent July 1 when the Vatican published a letter sent by the pope to Polish Primate Cardinal Jozef Glemp in April saying he intended to send a "diplomatic representative" to Warsaw even though a formal convention governing church-state relations had yet to be signed.

Leader willing to consider Noriega exile

PANAMA CITY, Panama (UPI) — Pro-government presidential candidate Carlos Duque said Monday he would be willing to discuss the removal of military strongman Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega as de facto ruler.

Duque's statement, which came before the Organization of American States-sponsored talks resumed Monday, was coupled with conditions that the United States reduce its troop level and oust the new commander of U.S. forces in Panama.

The two sides met for more than three hours Sunday, the first direct talks on the political crisis that erupted when Noriega annulled the May 7 elections after widespread allegations of fraud.

Duque said that if the opposition brings up at the talks the subject of Noriega's possible ouster, pro-government envoys "will be pleased to discuss it."

Tin Machine recreates wild energy of rock 'n' roll's youth

New Bowie album makes statements on waste, prejudice

By Theresa Livingston
Entertainment Editor

Tin Machine, "Tin Machine," EMI Records

Veteran musical chameleon David Bowie changes artist: direction the way some people change their socks.

From the Man Who Fell to Earth to Ziggy Stardust to Alladin Sane to his Yuppie pseudo-synth pop stage in the early '80s, Bowie has always incorporated his music into the larger scheme of things, creating a whole persona, a whole mystique to go along with each phase of development that ultimately engulfed the performer himself.

Although the man who gave the world such classics as "Rebel, Rebel," "Heroes" and "Diamond Dogs" has always surrounded himself with talented bands and guest performers, he has always been the one to watch, the one whom all eyes were focused on.

WHAT MOST distinguishes this effort is that this time around, Bowie doesn't want to be the star; he wants to be actually in the band.

"Tin Machine" is not the title of his latest album, nor is it the new David Bowie Review. What this collaboration is, then, is a four-member group which David Bowie belongs to, a fact which is easily overlooked because Bowie holds all the copy rights and just so happens to be one of the most famous people in rock history.

But what about the other three and how did they get hooked up with Bowie?

Guitarist Reeves Gabrels, Drummer Hunt Sales and Bassist Tony Sales round out the group. Formerly with Rubber Rodeo, Gabrels, like so many other of his contemporaries, had idolized Bowie as a teenager.

GABRELS FIRST encountered Bowie in person through his wife, Sarah, who handled the press coordination on Bowie's 1987 Glass Spider tour. After establishing a friendship, Bowie discovered Gabrels played guitar—played it quite well, in fact—and asked him to do an album.

Hunt and Tony Sales were a little less awestruck at the prospect of making an album with Bowie than might be expected.

The two sons of comedian Soupy Sales, had played with Todd Rundgren, Alice Cooper and others when they first met Bowie. They were 15 and 17 years-old when they were introduced to him while hanging out with other musicians at the famed Max's Kansas City in the early 1970's.

But what does a Tin Machine have to with it?

Gabrels has said the name works at a number of levels for the band, comparing it to an authority figure, a time machine, the archaic, even society itself.

HUNT SALES has said it was either Tin Machine or Liquid Chicken (figure that one out...).

Tony Sales has said he wants the meaning to come from everyone else's minds, to not have a set definition.

But the ultimate question is not how they know each other or where the name comes from, but what the actual finished product is like.

How does an amalgam of aggressive, power pop and cynical, times-conscious lyrics punctuated by an undeviating current of rhythm and blues roots strike you?

Harnessing a wide variety of influences and subject matter, the group takes a stab at recreating the wild energy of rock 'n' roll's frenzied youth, while at the same time rebelling against the innane "disco, dance music crap on the radio" and the disposable culture that goes along with it that Tony Sales has said all four men hate with a passion.

LYRICAL EVIDENCE of this attitude hits the listener right away on the title cut, where Bowie sings "clarity and prayer—there's more than money moving here—there's mindless maggots glare...working horrors...carving up my children's future."

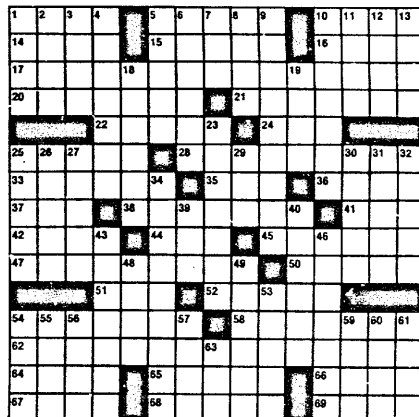

Not exactly the sunshine, feel-good standard radio fodder of the Pepsi generation, now, is it? Debbie Gibson probably would be grounded for such impure thoughts.

In fact, the 14 tracks on this album go on to make extremely strong sociological statements, which are tempered with a liberal sprinkling of obscene language to get the point across.

Tin Machine is quite vociferous on subjects such as children's drug abuse (in "Crack City"), the egregiousness and waste our society promotes (in "Video Crime"), hate and extreme prejudice (in "Under the God") and modern definitions of love and lust (in "Prisoner of Love," "Pretty Thing" and "Heaven's in Here").

THE MUSIC is loud in content even when not loud in volume. Powerful is actually the more fitting word, as the four parts blend into one killer pop punch.

Bowie has described this album as "the one I didn't have to make, but wanted to because I wanted to make something I'd like to listen to."

Baseball races shaping up for an exciting finish

By Tony Demarco
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

What has happened — and is about to happen — as the second half of the baseball season has started:

- A.L. East:
- Baltimore Orioles — Everything has gone right for Frank Robinson's Orioles. But with only five complete games, will the staff hold together, especially with seven doubleheaders ahead? Regardless, they're in the race to stay.
  - New York Yankees — Despite losing Dave Winfield and trading Rickey Henderson and Jack Clark, the offense is third in average, tied for fifth in homers and seventh in runs. But 14 starting pitchers have been tried, and only Andy Hawkins is solid. That's no way to win a division.
  - Boston Red Sox — A repeat of last year's pennant surge doesn't seem possible, as Roger Clemens is pitching in pain and the rest of the rotation has collapsed while especially Ellis Burks remains sidelined.
  - Milwaukee Brewers — The pre-season favorite has been slowed by injuries as pitchers Bill Wegman and Juan Nieves won't return this season. The defense has been bad. But enough key players are having the kind of seasons that could spark a comeback.
  - Toronto Blue Jays — Jesse

Cards could trade Willie McGee; Cubs have power deficiency

- Barfield is gone, George Bell may be next and Lloyd Moseby is on the bench. The new SkyDome was supposed to provide an emotional lift but hasn't. At least the bullpen and Tom Henke look ready for a strong finish.
- Cleveland Indians — They were 2-for-3 in the Julio Franco deal but regressions by Joe Carter and Cory Snyder have led to talk of a trade for an outfielder.
  - Detroit Tigers — The movement to youth and speed has failed. With Jack Morris, Jeff Robinson, Mike Hennehan, Fred Lynn and Alan Trammell injured, it's time to unload marketable talents to contenders.
- A.L. West:
- California Angels — Starting pitching has been impressive but the bullpen is shaky. Even mangager Doug Rader's personality reversal can't change an offense overly dependent on the home run, especially with the slump of speedy Devon White.
  - Oakland Athletics — Don't be alarmed by their fall from first place. It's a tribute to Tony LaRussa that the A's were on top for so long. With Jose Canseco already back and Dennis Eckersley and Walt Weiss soon to follow, first place is where the A's will finish.
- N.L. West:
- Montreal Expos — Getting Langston has fostered a win-

- now atmosphere. But it will be hard to hold on if Andres Galarraga continues to hit about .250 and Tim Lincecum suffers a power shortage.
- Chicago Cubs — A better bullpen and an injection of speed sparked a surprising first half. But there isn't enough power — not the kind of deficiency to have at Wrigley Field. It's been fun while it lasted.
  - New York Mets — Much like the A's, they have been hit by a rash of costly injuries. But unlike the A's, they have not been able to adequately replace Darrii Strawberry, Keith Hernandez and Dwight Gooden. It will take a change of character from a team that doesn't deal well with adversity to win this division.
  - St. Louis Cardinals — Starting pitching has been Whitey Herzog's dilemma. At least Milt Thompson's strong season has made the trade of Willie McGee for a pitcher a possibility.
  - Pittsburgh Pirates — Their contenders status was short-lived, primarily because of injuries to Andy Van Slyke, Mike LaValliere, Sid Bream and Jim Gott. It's too late to salvage this season.
  - Philadelphia Phillies — GM Lee Thomas has the right idea with this team — clean house. So did Mike Schmidt — quit before you embarrass yourself. Only time will tell if Thomas' deals are correct.

- N.L. West:
- San Francisco Giants — Only four hitters in the lineup produce, and the pitching staff has used 11 starters. But getting Steve Bedrosian is the kind of move that pushed the Giants to the top in '87.
  - Houston Astros — A 16-1 stretch last month got them into the race. Middle relievers Danny Darwin and Larry Andersen have been saviors. Art Howe is a serious manager-of-the-year candidate.
  - Cincinnati Reds — For all the distraction of the Pete Rose mess and the injuries to Kal Daniels and Eric Davis, the Reds are still in range. But they have shown no signs of coming together.
  - San Diego Padres — Benito Santiago is feeding with Jack McKeon, nobody likes Eric Show, and Jack Clark is having one of his worst seasons. Even Tony Gwynn and Mark Davis' efforts can't overcome that.
  - Los Angeles Dodgers — The pitching staff leads the league but the offense has collapsed and is last in everything. The disappointments start right at the top — 1988 MVP Kirk Gibson and Eddie Murray.

part of my life. I have a tremendous emotional feeling as far as the league is concerned. I would do anything I could to help the NFL.

"I don't think that (being the NFL's new commissioner) is realistic. But if they asked me if I would do it for a year while they took their time and made a study and picked a new commissioner? Well, that's different.

"I'm not looking to do that, you understand. I'm more interested in the world league. But, as I say, I feel a tremendous responsibility to the NFL."

He said he had no idea which team, if any, would nominate him for an interim commissioner's job.

Schramm, who left the Cowboys to become chief executive officer of the newly created World League of American Football, will attend Tuesday's scheduled owners' meeting in behalf of the new league.

NFL owners are expected to approve continued operations of the WLAF, which plans to open play in 12 cities — six of them in Europe — next April.

"Everybody seems to be very optimistic about it," Schramm said. "Everybody feels there will be a particular niche for it. As an example in Europe, they feel this is the sport of the younger people."

Schramm said he was convinced the league could begin operations next April.

"It has to be done by then," he said. "That's when the television networks here want it."

Before he left the Cowboys, Schramm said he expected a prolonged struggle in selecting a successor to Rozelle, who announced his retirement last March. He predicted then that several new owners would want to have their say.

commissioner. But 11 dissident owners abstained when Finks' name was put up for a vote, preventing him from obtaining the needed 19 votes.

"I could envision it (the Earlier this month, a search committee made up of veteran NFL owners recommended New Orleans general manager Jim Finks to be the new search for a commissioner) going for some time," Schramm said. "We have gone past the day when you could lock a group of people up in a room and go for a week (which happened in 1960 when league owners selected Rozelle)."

"The owners have too many commitments and interests. When you have 28 people involved in something like this, it will probably take a while."

the season begins and to attract other stations. "We're just taking a wait and see attitude," Hart said.

Perhaps Hart's most valuable asset is his dedication to the University. Charlotte West, associate athletic director, said Hart has a very sincere love for the University.

"Mr. Hart has made it known he wants to stay a part of the University. Jim is a very warm person, it comes across in his dealings," she said.

"It was a real setback to have a lack of stability," West said, referring to four different AD's that have held office since 1985. "Knowing that Jim will be here for a while has really stabilized our administration."

One part of Hart's job that is often overlooked are the numerous speaking engagements and personal appearances he makes.

Fred Huff, sports information director, said Hart has made more than 150 such appearances in the past year. "He's a worker. He is usually in the office before 8 a.m. every morning," Huff said. "Sometimes he works well into the evening attending functions."

West agrees, saying: "Jim has made himself very accessible to community groups. He has attended various Rotary, Lions Club and Booster events."

During the spring, Anthropology Professor Jerome Handler made a suggestion that the football program be dropped because it was losing money. Handler wanted the money channeled to academic areas. In support of keeping football, Hart reacted by beginning a 16-part weekly newspaper column, "Football Awareness ... Saluki Style," which is used by a few area papers.

Hart says he is confident the football program is not in jeopardy. "It was not a widespread opinion. We will handle anything as it comes along," he said.

In June, Hart announced a "Stadium Sellout Day" promotion, which is designed to fill McAndrew stadium to capacity for the first time in its history for the first game, Sept. 9. The starting time of the game has been pushed back until 4 p.m. to help attract more fans.

The demanding job has drawn Hart away from getting involved with the student athletes as much as he would like. He said he would like to initiate more one-on-one contact with them in the future.

Looking back on his first year, Hart said he would not do anything differently. "I would probably move a little slower, especially in making decisions. I've dealt with some controversial issues and will again in the future."

Rose not bigger than the game — lawyers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Pete Rose's lawyers said Monday he is no greater than the Cincinnati Reds or the game of baseball, and it is "wrong and irrelevant" to assume he would have a home-field advantage in a Cincinnati court.

In a memorandum filed in U.S. District Court, the attorneys for the Reds' manager also said it is legal for Rose to sue the Reds and major league baseball and that they have failed to prove his gambling case should be decided in federal court.

Rose, shown by a 225-page investigative report conducted by the baseball commissioner's office to have bet on sporting events, is trying to avoid possible suspension from the game by Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti.

Rose won a temporary restraining order last month in Hamilton County Common Pleas Court, halting disciplinary action by

Rose's attorneys said it is "wrong and irrelevant to assume he would have home-field advantage in a Cincinnati court."

Giamatti. He claimed the commissioner was prejudiced and already had decided against him.

But the commissioner's office had the case removed to federal court, maintaining local biases and pressures gave baseball's all-time hits leader a natural advantage in the Cincinnati courtroom of Judge Norbert Nadel.

Rose asked U.S. District Judge John Holschuh to remand the case back to Hamilton County, but Giamatti's attorneys argued that baseball is the national pastime and the commissioner has been directed by all the clubs to maintain the integrity of the game.

Rose's lawyer, Robert Stachler, in his response, termed the attempted removal to federal court "frivolous" and said it was a "gratuitous" charge that Rose was willing to accept jurisdiction only in a Cincinnati court.

"This totally misperceives Pete Rose's position," said the legal brief. "Pete Rose filed the action in state court because there was no federal question and no diversity per se federal jurisdiction. Unsupported speculation to the contrary is wrong and irrelevant."

Holschuh scheduled oral arguments for 2 p.m. Thursday but gave no indication how soon he would rule after that. If Rose bet on baseball games, he could be suspended by the commissioner. If he bet on Reds games, he could be banned for life. "In fact," Stachler's brief continued, "Pete Rose's reputation and affiliation with Cincinnati, though not insubstantial, is no greater than that of the Cincinnati Reds or baseball itself. Indeed, as Commissioner Giamatti himself said only seven days ago: 'The season's going on. No one individual is any bigger than the game.'"

Stachler also argued that Major League Baseball is an unincorporated association under Ohio law and not a trade name as claimed by the commissioner's attorneys. Thus, wrote Stachler, baseball may be sued by Rose.

Rose's attorney argued that both Major League Baseball and the Reds "are Ohio citizens for diversity purposes" and thus are proper defendants in the case.

He said the Reds, as a member of Major League Baseball, make baseball a citizen of Ohio.

Bebout to start SIC; could transfer later

By Curtis Winston
Staff Writer

Bryan Bebout will be a starting pitcher for the Southeastern Illinois College Falcons, SIC head coach Dave Montfort said Monday.

"For a pitcher of his caliber, mainly it's starting," Montfort said. "He could do just about anything for my team."

Bebout decided Saturday to stay in his hometown of Harrisburg and attend the local junior college instead of coming to SIU-C.

Bebout's mother, Brenda Bebout, said the decision was based mainly on the family's finances. At SIC, Bebout gets a full scholarship, a deal no university could match.

"(Bryan) also thought he could get more playing time (at SIC)," Bebout said. "I really just left it up to him."

SIU-C head coach Richard "Itchy" Jones also played a part in the ace southpaw's decision to attend a junior college. Since most of the Saluki baseball team's scholarships had already been awarded, Bebout will attend SIC for a year, with the possibility of transferring to SIU-C next year.

"I'm glad he's decided to stay around for his first year of college," Mrs. Bebout said.

Bebout, 18, graduated from Harrisburg High School this year after leading the Harrisburg Bulldogs to the Class AA State Championship. He is the winningest pitcher in his alma mater's history and was voted MVP at state. He finished his year was a 13-0 record and a 1.29 ERA.

He had signed a letter of intent to play at SIC last fall, but had been wooed heavily by the University of Illinois and SIU-C. Eastern Illinois and Murray State, also expressed interest in Bebout's talents. The letter of intent was binding only in the Great Rivers Athletic Conference, a JUCO league.

Grades did not play a part in Bebout's decision to play at the junior college level. He was a member of the National Honor Society and had grades eligible to play Division I ball.

"He's a kid that keeps himself in good shape both mentally and physically," Montfort said.

NFL post remains unfilled

DALLAS (UPI) — Former Dallas Cowboys president Tex Schramm said Monday that while he would be reluctant to act as interim NFL commissioner, he would listen to whatever proposal the league owners might offer him while they search for a permanent successor to Pete Rozelle.

The Los Angeles Times reported Monday that both Schramm and former Cowboys quarterback Roger Staubach would be nominated for the commissioner's job when NFL owners gather in Chicago Tuesday.

Staubach, in a statement released from his real estate office, said he had no desire to become commissioner. Schramm, however, hedged when asked if he might consider the job on an interim basis.

"I've had 39 years of association with the National Football League," Schramm said. "It is by far the better

Hart's first year: Learning on the job

AD handling controversy like a pro

SIU-C Athletic Director Jim Hart's first year was looked on as a learning experience. Fellow administrators seem to agree that Hart has done a good job for a person in his position.

University President John C. Guyon said: "Mr. Hart is doing very well. I'm very pleased with his fund raising." Guyon also said Hart had a very steep learning curve for someone who had no university experience, referring to his ability to pick up knowledge quickly.

Hart, in the second year of a five year contract, was chosen as athletic director over interim director Charlotte West and two other candidates. Guyon said all four candidates were qualified but he chose Hart because "his name brings recognition and enthusiasm to the athletics program and provides a positive rallying point to have to achieve success."

Guyon acknowledged Hart's limited administrative experience, saying the administrative part of the job can be learned, but the name recognition cannot.

Hart played football for the Salukis from 1962 to 1965 and holds several records. He received his bachelor's degree in education from SIU-C in 1967. He was an NFL quarterback for 18 years, spending most of those years with the St. Louis Cardinals, finishing as the third leading passer in NFL history.

recognition to his advantage. He began a campaign before he officially began his office that was designed to raise $50,000 for Saluki athletics in 50 days that was supported by buttons, bumper stickers and membership into the "First Fifty Club."

The campaign brought in $86,000 and the athletic department hasn't looked back. As of June 30, total cash contributions have reached $260,815, the most ever raised, as compared to $170,142 the previous year, according to Bryan Vagner, treasurer for the SIU Foundation.

"Fund raising needed inprovements and we've accomplished this. We brought in Wayne Williams, (athletics fund raiser for the SIU Foundation) and he has really helped us," Hart said. "Only time will tell in the long run how well of a job we have done."

Hart acknowledges he had limited administrative experience, but said he has learned from his first year on the job and will use the knowledge to his benefit in the future.

One of the more controversial issues Hart has dealt with arose when the SIU-C athletic department issued its Strategic Planning Report earlier this year and requested that men's gymnastics and women's field hockey be eliminated.

Handling campus controversy hasn't changed Jim Hart's smile, left, over the years since he handled footballs for the Salukis, above. Since he became athletic director over a year ago, he's cut two sports but he's also increased funding for existing sports.

Hart's decision to go along with the request was not well received at the time, but he was able to see that all other Saluki sports would benefit by dropping the programs.

Hart showed these benefits on July 11, when he increased the operating budgets on all Saluki sports programs. The football, volleyball and men's and women's track team budgets were increased by 20 percent while the other 14 programs were increased by 18 percent. It was the first time that every sport had received such an increase.

Another recommendation called for Hart to cut two of the four assistant director positions because the department was top heavy. The decision on who would be cut was made easy when assistants Gary Carney and Bruce McCutcheon left the University less than a month apart to take similar positions at other schools.

Every job has its good and its bad days, and it was a not-so-good day in June when Turner Communications cancelled a contract worth $13,000 for exclusive broadcast rights to cover Saluki football and basketball home games.

O.L. Turner, chief executive officer of Turner Communications, said the contract was terminated because of "inappropriate and threatening actions," taken by Hart.

Hart's rebuttal was that Turner had cancelled the contract because of personal differences but decided to honor the request to cancel the contract. Since then, the University has reverted back to an open door policy that was in effect before the contract with Turner Communications.

WCIL signed an agreement with SIU-C to cover five football and 15 basketball games in the upcoming season for a total of $4,000. The agreement, which is unexclusive, allows any other station to broadcast Saluki home games and pay for them on a per-game basis.

Minus the annual $13,000 Turner Communications would have paid, there is still a $9,000 deficit in the athletic department budget. Hart said there is still a lot of time before
