LBJ Proposes More Sweeping Gun Restraints

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson proposed Monday national registration of every gun in the nation and licensing of every person entrusted with a gun.

The President proposed these steps, going farther than previous control proposals, in a special message to Congress on what he termed "the people's right to protection."

The White House said the message will be followed by suggested specific legislation. Johnson said the American people have been too long without the steps he recommended Monday.

"The cost of inaction through the decades affronts our conscience," he said.

"Homes and city streets across the nation which might have rung with gunfire will be spared the tragedy of senseless slaughter. We will never be able to measure this violence that does not erupt. But our history tells us America will be a safer country if we move now—once and for all—for the protection so long denied our people."

The registration and licensing proposals from Johnson followed his earlier bids to Congress to control interstate sales of long guns—rifles and shotguns—and ammunition. He called again for action without delay on this.

The presidential proposals came during a wave of sentiment for control of firearms following the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York earlier this month.

Presidential assistant Joseph A. Califano Jr., outlining Johnson's latest proposals to newsmen, said the President is requesting Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark to see to it that the government goes "to the full reach of the constitutional power" in the field of gun control.

Federal registration of guns would be mandatory under the new bill whether or not the states require this, so that there would be a central record in one computer center.

Licensing would be required of all persons who own guns now or purchase them later, under definite federal standards.

This could be done by the states if they met these federal standards. The federal government would step in if they failed to do so in 10 years.

"Registration," Johnson told Congress, "has long been an accepted part of daily life in America. Automobiles, boats—even dogs and bicycles in many communities—are commonly registered. Our citizens must get licenses to fish, to hunt, and to drive."

"Certainly no less should be required for the possession of lethal weapons that have caused so much horror and heartbreak in this country. Surely the slight inconvenience for the few is minimal, when measured against protection for all."

Condition Students

Asked to Meeting

All new freshmen students admitted to the University this summer on a conditional basis have been asked to attend either of two special meetings today and Wednesday.

Mrs. Dorothy Ramp, General Studies academic adviser, said the sessions are scheduled at 9:30 a.m. in Davis Auditorium in the Wham Education Building.

Conditional students are those in the lower third of their high school graduating classes who have been admitted to the University on a provisional basis.

Senate Okays

Missile Shield

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate overrode stiff opposition Monday and voted a go-ahead for administration plans to begin deployment of the "thin" shield Sentinel antiballistic missile defense system.

The majority rejected a move to delete a $227.3-million authorization for purchase of land for ABM sites and initial construction of facilities.

but one has not been chosen, Spector said.

Spector said he considers KA to be "a success and a benefit" to the students, but he quoted Moulton as saying that KA was "a failure."

Spector said that only five complaints were received at the editorial offices and not one of those came from students. Spector said four of the five complaints came from Vice-President Ralph Ruffner and that the other complaint came from Moulton.

KA received "dozens" of favorable letters from students, Spector said.

Spector said "Moulton and Ruffner have never really studied the relationship of KA to the students and they have independently done their own analysis of KA and independently decided it failed."

Ruffner could not be reached for comment.

KA was suspended last summer pending an agreement on new guidelines for the publication.

The new guidelines read in part: "Good taste will always be a basic criteria for material to be published. The canons of professional journalism will apply to publication. Material published will deal with policies, regulations, and procedures, and there will be no personal attacks on individuals. All items

Abernathy Arrested

Police Curb Disorders After Permit Expires

WASHINGTON (AP) — Police closed down Resurrection City and arrested the leader of the Poor People's Campaign Monday, sparking sporadic disorders which apparently were choked off quickly with massive use of manpower and tear gas, backed by a strict curfew.

Less than an hour after the curfew went into effect at 9 o'clock, the disorders seemed to have been curbed. Police reopened all the streets which had been blocked off as the tensions rose earlier in the evening.

Resentment over the evacuation of the campaigners' shantytown and the arrest of the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy and more than 200 others built a tense situation in the area of 14th and U Streets, one of the sections racked by destructive riots in April. Police and National Guardsmen ranged throughout the areas hit by the limited disorders and also patrolled in strength through other downtown areas.

But there were few persons on the street and at that point damage seemed to have been confined to a dozen broken windows, some minor fires which were quickly extinguished, and a little looting.

There were no major injuries reported—although hundreds were hit by tear gas—but a good many arrests were made on minor charges.

Washington's Negro mayor, Walter Washington, went on television and radio a few minutes before 9 p.m. (EDT) to declare a state of limited emergency and impose a curfew at that hour.

As darkness fell, tear-gas firing police and National Guardsmen had limited the disorders to a few broken windows, some minor looting and a few, small incendiary fires.

At that time, a police official in the field reported the city as a whole generally quiet.

Student Weekly

KA Suspended for Summer, Maybe Fall

By Brian Treusch

KA, student opinion weekly, has been suspended for the summer and maybe for the fall term.

Buzz Spector, recently appointed editor, said he was formally notified at a conference last Friday with Dean of Students Wilbur Moulton that the weekly has been "banned."

When contacted Monday, Moulton would say only that "a study is underway to determine the status of KA," and that "nothing more can be said at this time."

According to Spector, Moulton told him that KA would not be allowed to publish this summer "under any conditions" and that "in its present form, it would not be allowed to publish in the fall."

Moulton was quoted by Spector as saying that if KA were to be allowed to publish, it must submit a new set of guidelines that would require the publication to present more balanced articles and "articles which would represent a fuller range of student opinion."

As approved by the Student Senate last spring, the KA staff will include Spector as editor, Jerry Finney and Paul Wheeler as assistant editors, and Gary Krisher and Carl Courtner as staff members. A position for a full-time secretary was also approved

Critic 'Pleased'

'Forum' Cast Shows Enthusiasm, Draws Laughter From Audience

By Dean Rebuffoni

Stanley Kauffmann, the distinguished New York City drama critic, was recently quoted as saying "Broadway is strangulating. If the American theater is to survive... its other areas must prosper: resident theaters, university theaters, small independent theaters."

Mr. Kauffmann should know: he is the associate literary editor of The New Republic and formerly served as drama critic of The New York Times.

But New York City is a long journey and a far cry from Carbondale, Illinois. And Stanley Kauffmann is, doubtless, a far different type of audience than are the individuals who witnessed "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" on three different nights last week here at SIU. But, if the audiences which saw "Forum" were to be asked their opinion of the Summer Music Theatre Company's musical comedy, they would doubtless answer enthusiastically — that the "other areas" Mr. Kauffmann spoke of are, indeed, prospering.

"Forum" was, to put it mildly, a very funny musical. Even those who saw the movie version (with Zero Mostel and Phil Silvers) would appreciate the efforts of director Joe Robinette and his cast (including a bevy of beauties from "The House of Marcus Lycus" — the house with the red drapes and red lights).

The musical, which was staged on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights, was one long gale of audience laughter and cast enthusiasm. The songs (including one dancer — filled number entitled "Everybody Ought to Have a Maid") were well done; the jokes were hilarious (and rather black-humor in nature); and the whole affair ended on a happy note. It was a play to enjoy—and the audiences did.

There were some debits to the production, however. The use of Muckelroy Auditorium—an "agriculture arena converted to a theater," in the words of one "Forum" cast member—is unfortunate. The auditorium is too small (only 325 seats, as compared with the 588 available in the Southern Theater) and, as a result, too crowded.

And there was the silly, too-much-slapstick "chase scene" in the second act, a feature which tended to leave the stage rather empty for periods while the actors scurried about behind the set. The musical's second act tended to fall short of the fine first half's performances.

But, minor faults aside (this was, after all, the first series of performances by the Summer Music Theatre Company), the play was very funny, very colorful, and very well executed. The first song of the musical, one promising "a comedy tonight," served as an excellent forecast of the ribaldry that followed.

And, had he attended, Mr. Kauffmann would doubtless have been very pleased.

Peace Committee to Meet, Plan Activities for Summer

The Southern Illinois Peace Committee will meet at 9 p.m. today in the Home Ec Lounge. The meeting is the first of the summer session and is intended to acquaint new members with the purpose of the committee.

Plans for summer events will be made. All students and faculty members are welcome to attend.

Steve Mirowitz, spokesman for the organization, said "the function of the SIPC is to promote peace on campus and throughout the world."

The SIPC has a membership of 60 students and has been active in sponsoring several activities including a speech by Dick Gregory, a Peace Weekend program, and draft counseling.

75 of 120 Summer Classes

Provide Air-Cooled Comfort

As the temperature rises during summer quarter, many students go to class seeking not so much knowledge as an air-conditioned escape from the heat.

Approximately 75 to 120 general classrooms in use this summer are air-conditioned.

WSIU(FM) Holds

Student Auditions

WSIU (FM) will hold auditions from 3 to 5:30 p.m. Friday for students interested in doing newscasts and/or sportscasts on the air during the summer.

The auditions will be held in the Production Studio of WSIU (FM), located in the northwest corner of the basement of the Communications Building.

Persons being auditioned will be required to read news and sports copy and will be judged on their pronunciation of names and places, interpretation, and understanding of the copy.

Fee Deadline Friday

Graduate and undergraduate students must pay their fees for summer quarter by Friday, or registration will be cancelled by the Bursar's Office, according to Kirby Browning, director of registration.

Firearms Ruling Eliminates Delay of Postal Deliveries

The new Post Office Department ruling regarding firearms delivery has taken effect, according to the assistant postmaster of Carbondale, R. L. Dillinger.

The ruling which originally stated that the post office would not make delivery of firearms until the local police had been notified, and had cleared the delivery, has been amended. Now the postal authorities will make the delivery without waiting for clearance from the police; however, Dillinger added that the police would still be notified of the delivery.

In cases where the delivery is to be made to a student living off campus, Dillinger said that his office would notify the Carbondale police only, and they could notify University officials. He said, however, that very few individuals receive weapons through the mail, with the bulk of their deliveries being made to registered gun dealers.

Activities Meeting Scheduled

A meeting for new and old members of the Activities Programming Board is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Wednesday in Room C of the University Center.

The Board is seeking new members willing to participate in the planning of activities for the summer quarter. All new students and faculty members are welcome to attend this meeting.

The function of the board is to organize trips, movies, dances, and other events held on campus.

Anyone who might be interested or who wishes to know more about the organization, is asked to stop by Room A of the University Center where the office is located.

Situation Like 'Heroic Epic'

The situation is one like those found in a mock heroic epic. The action seems to show so little valor and to be worth so little esteem, yet it is highly praised and commended.

The hero in this case is SIU President Delyte W. Morris. The heroic deed is the utterance of a statement: "...some are in jail, some are in the hospital, all are expelled." The prize is a plaque engraved with these words.

A St. Louis American Legion Post apparently found these words, uttered in Morris' handling of the recent student problems on the Carbondale campus to be quite in their favor. Doubtless the middle class white members of the organization were pleased that the students, mostly black, who, according to the press, attempted a "break-in" at the president's office, were so firmly dealt with and so definitely put in their places.

As a result, the Legion is happy, Morris receives recognition and the students' futures are disrupted and dim. Morris merely acted in the line of duty and in the capacity of an administrator. But what if he had taken a different view and stand on previous confrontations and his statement had been less "valorous" and a little more understanding and sympathetic toward the students?

Then the misguided Legion, which did not understand that Morris' deed was not so spectacular and particularly praiseworthy, would be unhappy; there would be no hero to whom the Legion (probably in need of a project for the year) could present an engraved plaque in the style of the commemoration of "the famous last words." However, the victimized students might have appreciated the one break that could mean their "to be or not to be."

Public Forum

The Daily Egyptian encourages free discussion of current issues through editorials and letters. Editorials are written by members of the student news staff and by students enrolled in journalism courses and represent opinions of the authors only. Readers are invited to express their opinions in letters, which must be signed with name, address and telephone number, preferably typewritten, and be no longer than 250 words. Letter writers should respect the generally accepted standards of good taste and are urged to make their points in terms of issues rather than personalities. Acceptance for publication will depend upon the limitations of space and the timeliness and relevance of the material. It is the responsibility of the Daily Egyptian to determine content of the opinion pages. Other material on pages four and five includes editorials and articles reprinted from other newspapers, syndicated columns and articles, and interpretive or opinion articles authored locally.

Mounties, FBI Nab King Suspect

The capture in London of James Earl Ray, object of a search as the sniper who assassinated Dr. Martin Luther King in April, was the result of a painstaking and unrelenting pursuit of the fugitive. Ray was traveling on a fraudulent Canadian passport. When all other leads proved fruitless, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, after combing thru 100,000 passports, enlisted the help of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who got on Ray's trail after they had sorted thru another 200,000 passports. We sometimes hear that Director J. Edgar Hoover of the FBI is getting too old for his job, and that his organization has become encrusted in sterile routine. But most Americans will feel that, as long as Mr. Hoover and the FBI maintain the standards of performance that have produced unflinching results for almost 45 years, the security of this country is in safe hands.

Justices Sidestep Social Issue

The United States Supreme court handed down a decision yesterday in the case of Leroy Powell, a $12-a-week bootblack in Austin, Tex., who was convicted of public drunkenness. His lawyers appealed, contending that he was a chronic alcoholic who had lost the power to control his drinking and that jailing him would violate the 8th amendment's prohibition against "cruel and unusual punishment."

The court, in a 5 to 4 decision, rejected the appeal. Justice Thurgood Marshall, who pronounced the judgment, said there is no agreement among physicians about what it means to say that alcoholism is a disease and no agreement on the cause of alcoholism.

"The picture of the penniless drunk propelled aimlessly and endlessly thru the law's revolving door of arrest, incarceration, release, and re-arrest is not a pretty one," Justice Marshall said. "But before we condemn the present practice across the board, perhaps we ought to be able to point to some clear promise of a better world for these unfortunate people. Unfortunately, no such promise has yet been forthcoming."

This hesitation to rush into a solution for one of the old ills of mankind is most uncharacteristic of the Supreme court's behavior in recent years. It has plunged into all sorts of social problems, junking state laws, federal laws, and long standing construction of the Constitution. No thicker has been too thorny for the court to enter, no theory has been too novel for the court to embrace.

For several years Justice John Marshall Harlan has been warning his brother justices against their tendency to believe that "all deficiencies in our society which have failed of correction by other means should find a cure in the courts."

Yesterday the court, with a rare show of humility, confessed that, along with the medical profession and the social work profession, it has no quick cure for drunkenness. The court admitted that there may be times when the best way to deal with a drunk is to lock him up.

It was a red letter day in the Supreme court building.

Deserter Cannot Be Extradited

The testimony of a State Department official before a Senate Armed Services subcommittee, to the effect that there is no legal basis for the United States to demand the extradition of military deserters from foreign countries, clearly points up the need for such a provision.

Our present treaties pertaining to extradition seem stranglely contradictory. While they authorize return of lawbreakers to the United States, none list military offenses—which are violation of this country's laws—or stipulate military deserters can be extradited, according to the witness in the Senate.

Our treaty with Sweden—a favorite sanctuary for United States military deserters—expressly prohibits the return of military offenders.

The Senate subcommittee currently is studying the desertion problem. Hopefully it will initiate treaty revisions to close the loopholes through which some un-American servicemen have been crawling to escape their duty.

Dolphin's Sonar Works Like Navy's

By Frank Macomber
Copley News Service

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—The U.S. Navy for years has been experimenting with dolphins to learn more about one of undersea warfare's most valuable devices—sonar, or underwater sound detection and location.

The Navy has learned much about the strange ability of the dolphin to pick up, pinpoint and identify sounds under the water by echo location—that is, by making its own mammal sounds, then listening for the echo to bounce back from the surface of the object it is seeking.

Now a 25-year-old assistant director of training at the Sea World marine park here has come along with a new approach to this animal phenomena. He is Donald McQuarrie, who went to night school and studied child psychology, then read books on the dolphin's behavior in an effort to find out more about its built-in "sonar."

His experiment seems to prove that the dolphin's sonar works a lot like that of the Navy, but without electronics.

"It's really pretty simple," he explains. "We built five four-foot diameter stainless steel rings and connected them side by side to a rack, which is submerged in the dolphins' pool."

"First we trained the dolphins to swim through the first hoop, turn and swim through the next, and so on, using their eyes to guide them."

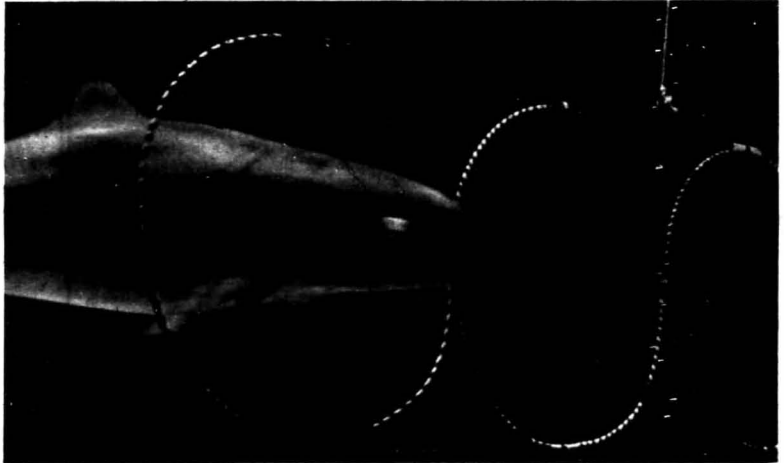

"Then we blindfolded the dolphins with rubber suction cups and sent them down again. This time, to swim through the maze of rings as they had been instructed, they had to use their 'sonar gear.' They emitted a 'click' from the blow-hole in the top of their head. The sound hit the surface of the rings and bounced back to the dolphin to guide it through the hoop. That's pure sonar."

"Our theory is that sonar works like a beam of light in the dark," McQuarrie explains. "We believe the dolphins therefore form an actual image in their minds from the echo they get back from the rings. This is what guides them."

McQuarrie says the child psychology didn't help him much, but the reading of books on marine psychology was a great aid in devising the experiment.

A Bull's Eye!

Skipper, a dolphin at San Diego's Sea World Marine Park, zips through a four-foot submerged steel ring with his eyes blindfolded, using his underwater sound detection system to guide him. By "clicking" through the blowhole in the top of his head, Skipper bounces a sound off the ring and its echo bounds back to direct him.

Our Man Hoppe

Hoppe Homes in on Hubert, the Hired Man

By Arthur Hoppe

Morning, folks. Time for the first tee-vee chapter in our new true-to-life series, "Hubert, The Hired Man"—the heart-warming story of a kindly, loyal, hardworking, small-town pharmacist and his dream that some day The Boss will let him mind the store.

As we join Hubert today, everything's coming up roses. The Boss announced he's retiring come the first of the year and Hubert can have the whole shebang, even including the good will—if he minds his P's and Q's.

So there's Hubert behind the counter, chipper and smiling as usual. And here comes a customer, good old Uncle Sam Grommet. A real, typical American, Uncle Sam is.

Hubert: Hi, there, Sam. What a beautiful day to be glad in. The sun's shining, the fish are jumping in the creek, and the lovely smell of wood smoke fills the air.

Sam (gloomily): The smoke's from across the tracks. The rioters burned out eight blocks last night.

Hubert: Well, Sam, you've got to look on the bright side. We sure did need a little urban renewal around here.

Sam: And I can't see the sun, what with the smog.

Hubert: It's good protection against sunburn, Sam.

Sam: And there's nary a fish jumping, mainly because the creek ain't fit for nothing to swim in.

Hubert: Say, that's good news. We won't have to worry about any kids getting drowned this summer. You've got to think happy and joyous, Sam.

Sam (grumpily): How can I think happy and joyous with this Asian flux (cq) I got? Hubert: There, there, Sam, I'm sure we're winning the battle.

Sam: That's what you told me five years ago. And it's just been getting worse and worse. You going to prescribe another bottle of that Eskalashun Panacea for me?

Hubert (hesitantly): Well, now, Sam, The Boss swears by it. He say's it's a great cure-all.

Sam: Five years I've been swallowing it and the pain just gets more excruciating.

Hubert: Well, look at it this way, Sam. You take it in small doses and you hardly notice the effect. The Boss says...

Sam: Never mind The Boss, Hubert. I hear you're fixing to take over the store. And I'd like to know what you prescribe.

Hubert (glancing nervously over his shoulder): Well, confidentially, Sam, I've always figured that another remedy...

The Boss (a deep voice from the back of the store): HUBERT!

Hubert (loudly): ...another remedy could be worse. I mean it couldn't be better. That is... (desperately) I mean I'm loyal. Sam (annoyed): Now, look it here, Hubert, I hate to see a man smiling and sweating at the same time. Just you calm down and tell me...

Hubert (beseechingly): Please, Sam, think happy and joyous. Come January I'm going to cure all your complaints with my secret nostrums. But with so much at stake this is no time to talk about your Asian flux—not with these delicate negotiations going on.

Sam: Negotiations? Between who? Hubert (with another fearful glance toward the rear): Between me and The Boss.

Well, tune in again, folks. And meantime, remember what Hubert, the kindly drugstore philosopher, always says: "Honesty pays. But loyalty pays off."

Who Regulates Regulators?

Who will regulate the regulators? This is a question as old as the Romans. It has always applied especially to the regulatory commissions which serve, in the American system, to remove certain areas from politics without removing them from some degree of governmental control. At the moment two commissioners of the Federal Communications Commission are striving to introduce some regulation of the regulators in their own work.

Commissioners Kenneth A. Cox and Nicholas Johnson have made an exhaustive study of what actually takes place in the programming of the radio and television stations of the state of Oklahoma, the licenses of which were routinely renewed by the FCC for three years beginning June 1, 1968.

They found, to the surprise of no one familiar with the business, that the official FCC scrutiny of the applicants is extremely casual as regards programming content, that minuscule percentages of time are devoted to local matters, that network entertainment provides the vast majority of programming, while the excellent network special, non-commercial documentaries are often ignored. In short, local commercial broadcasting has been a "license to print money," and very little else.

Certainly it has done little to create authentic and effective local systems of communications within communities. But it was for just such a purpose that the present system was established by Congress.

The conclusions of Commissioners Cox and Johnson are the result of serious study and intelligent analysis. They deserve earnest consideration by Congress and the people. The time may well be here to rethink a regulatory system which has long since ceased to accomplish, or even to try to accomplish, what it was created to do.

will be identified as to authorship. Both sides of controversial issues will be presented."

Spector said that the provision to present both sides of controversial issues is "ludicrous." He said that frequently there are many sides of controversial issues that no intelligent person would want to espouse.

Regarding the provision for "good taste," Spector said Moulton was ambiguous as to who the final authority would be to determine "good taste."

"In the present form, those guidelines amount to nothing more than censorship," Spector said.

Grad Student Dies

In Cycle Accident

Schuyler Pardee, III, 25, from New Vernon, N.J., was reported dead on arrival at Doctors Memorial Hospital early Saturday morning after being involved in a motorcycle accident at Crab Orchard Lake.

According to the Williamson County sheriff's office, Pardee lost control of his cycle at the Spillway Road Bridge across Crab Orchard Creek about 3:30 a.m. Saturday.

Karen Williams, 19, who was riding with Pardee, said she walked for over a mile before she was able to secure assistance. She was later treated at the SIU Health Service for multiple abrasions and then released.

City Council To Consider Urban Renewal, CATV

Carbondale City Council will consider a weighty agenda at 7:30 p.m. today at its regularly scheduled meeting at City Hall.

William J. Burns, Community Conservation Board Commissioner, is to present a report with recommendations on the proposed College Neighborhood Urban Renewal Project.

Council Members will hear letters from three organizations on the consideration of future passenger train station locations, a proposed Cable Antenna Television franchise and operation of the city landfill.

Paul H. Reistrup, vice-president of the Illinois Central Railroad, sent the letter concerning meeting with city administrators to discuss train station locations.

In another letter, General Telephone and Electronics Communications, Inc., wants to discuss with city officials the possible granting of a Cable TV franchise.

The third letter is from the State Health Department.

Mayor Keene is to give a report on the denials of alcoholic beverage licenses.

Other items include reports by the City Attorney and the City Clerk on voter registration for city elections, and a report by the City Manager on a proposed dog control enforcement program. Under unfinished business, the Council is to consider a proposed pay plan for city employees.

4 From Ag School Attend Symposium

Four members of the SIU faculty represented the School of Agriculture at a teaching symposium in Lincoln, Neb., last weekend.

They were Bill Goodman, associate professor of animal industries; Joe H. Jones, associate professor of plant industries; Lyle Soverson, assistant professor of agricultural industries; and Philip Neumann, forestry instructor.

The symposium, "Effective Use of Examinations in Teaching and Learning," was sponsored by National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges.

Coach Lutz Conducts First Youth Baseball School Here

Approximately 130 youngsters from throughout Illinois have besieged SIU for the first annual baseball school which got underway Monday on the baseball field.

Directing the school is Joe Lutz, who led the Southern baseball team to the runnerup spot in the NCAA Tournament and the second-place rating among the nation's college baseball teams.

Lending a hand to Lutz are capable assistants: Marty Karow, coach at Ohio State

Alumni Designate Professor Davies 'Great Teacher'

Dorothy R. Davies, chairman of the Department of Physical Education for Women at SIU, was recently named Great Teacher of the Year by the SIU Alumni Association at its annual banquet. Miss Davies was presented a plaque and a check for $1,000 by Roger E. Spear, president of the association.

A native of Cincinnati, Miss Davies came to SIU in 1939 and has been chairman of her department since 1946. She is listed in Who's Who in American Education, is an honor fellow of the Illinois Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation, a fellow of the American College of Sports Medicine, and is a past president of the Midwest Association of Physical Education for Women.

University; Bob Winkles of Arizona State University; and Roy Lee, coach at SIU Edwardsville. Lee is former head coach at St. Louis University.

Lutz was named Coach of the Year in District Four of the NCAA after his team won the regional. Karow led the Buckeyes to a national championship in 1966. Winkle's teams won the NCAA title in both 1965 and 1967. Lee is respected as one of the top collegiate baseball coaches in the Midwest.

Participants, ranging in age from 12 to 17, arrived for the school on Sunday afternoon and received their first on-the-field instructional session at 8 a.m. Monday.

A typical day will include: 8-8:15, pepper games; 8:45-9:30, individual instruction by positions; 9:30-9:40, break; 9:40-10, sliding practice; 10-10:30, base running; 10:30-11, hitting; 11:15-11:45, swimming; noon-1 p.m., lunch; 1-2, break; 2-5, intra-squad game; 5:30-6:30, supper; 7-9, recreation; 10, lights out.

Although most participants will be housed in Kellogg Hall on the SIU campus, a number of students were enrolled as commuters for the two-week split session.

Tuition, room, meals and recreation are included in the $60 fee for one week or $110 for the two-week session. Commuters, meanwhile, can enroll for $40 for one week or $75 for two weeks.

The approximately 130 Illinois youngsters attending the SIU baseball school listened closely Monday as coaches issued instructions for the upcoming week. This is the first year that the clinic has been held. (Story on Page 7).

SIU Rehabilitation Teacher Lives Precarious Weekends

For a man whose profession is aiding the handicapped, Richard Sanders spends his weekends precariously.

Sanders, who is an associate professor at the SIU Rehabilitation Institute, spends his spare time with the dangerous hobby of sports car racing.

Sanders explained that car racing is "just a hobby. There certainly isn't any money in it," he laughs.

His biggest win on the racing circuit came last Sunday when he placed fourth in the June National Sprints at the Mid - America Raceways, Wentzville, Mo.

Competing against 25 other cars on the 2.9 mile track, Sanders drove his car well on the twisting track and averaged 67 miles per hour en route to his fourth-place finish.

Sanders' car is a Fiat-Al-barth-Aleman sports model with 8,500 cc. He finished sixth in the competition last June, his first year as a competitive driver.

The cars in Sanders' class average from speeds of 45 to 115 miles per hour.

Last year in Arkansas, Sanders was running third in a race when mechanical difficulties occurred and caused him to finish eighth.

Sanders' future as a competitive driver is questionable. "I don't know if or where I'll be racing in the future," he remarked. "It all depends on the car and what condition it's in."

The SIU instructor is hard put to talk about his racing experiences, referring to them as "nothing."

There were at least 28 drivers behind him in Sunday's competition who would have liked to trade places with him.

SIU's Champ Golfer Travels PGA Circuit

SIU's gal golfer Dot Germain plans to travel on the women's golf circuit this summer shooting for a berth in the U.S. Open Golf Tournament.

Recently, Dot finished as the medalist of the National Women's Collegiate tournament with a score of 73, two under par. She also was a member of the SIU Women's Recreation Association golf team which finished its undefeated season by taking the National Collegiate title at Duke University last weekend.

Dot played in the National last year, but she represented Monticello College, Monticello, Ill.

First on Dot's list of tournaments will be the Broadmoor golf tournament in Colorado Springs during the first week of July. In 1966, she won the Broadmoor.

Following the Broadmoor, she plans to participate in the Western Amateur Women's Golf Tournament also slated for Colorado Springs.

During the first week of August, she will travel to Detroit, Mich., for the National Women's Amateur Tournament.

Later that month, Dot is scheduled to play again in Detroit at the Trans Mississippi Tournament.
