Student Panel To Question SIU Trustees

The Board of Trustees will meet informally with students at 3 p.m. Wednesday in Ballroom B of the University Center.

Several Board members will be questioned by a panel of journalism students at the third "Face the Campus" meeting sponsored by the SIU chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic society. The conference will open Journalism Week on the campus.

Board Chairman Kenneth Davis of Harrisburg and Dr. Martin Van Brown of Carbondale are scheduled to appear. Other members will be on hand if business commitments permit.

Following questioning by the panel, the Board will answer questions from the floor. The meeting is open to the public.

The Campus Senate will sponsor a reception immediately following the press conference to allow students to meet with the Board.

The first "Face the Campus" conference was held during last year's Journalism Week with President Delyte W. Morris.

During the fall term members of the Carbondale City Council were questioned. At that time the City Council expressed interest in working with a student representative to improve Carbondale-student relations. The post of city relations commissioner was created shortly thereafter by the Campus Senate.

Wade Roop, Frank Messersmith, Rick Birger and John Epperheimer will make up the press panel Wednesday. John Matheson, SDX chapter adviser, will be the moderator.

Pan Am Festival To Feature Foss

Robert A. Foss, product market consultant at the sales development division of Caterpillar Americas Co. in Peoria, will be today's speaker at the Pan American Festival.

He will discuss "Sugar Cane Culture, Economic and Social Consequences of Mechanization" at 8 p.m. at Morris Library Auditorium.

Foss has lived in Puerto Rico, where his father operated sugar plantations, and he is an agricultural expert on Latin American countries.

The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

Wednesday will be Brazilian Day with films on Brazil and a special program by Brazilian school teachers and administrators who are visiting campus.

The Pan American Festival is sponsored by the SIU Latin American Institute.

Rash of Weekend Auto, Cycle Accidents Send Several Students to Doctors' Care

A rash of automobile and motorcycle accidents over the weekend injured a number of SIU students.

Cars driven by Donald D. Parson, 22, of Springfield, and Edwin D. Underwood III, 21, of East Alton, collided at 2:17 a.m. Saturday on a rural road southeast of Carbondale.

Police said Underwood was treated for major injuries at Doctors Hospital. Parson was treated for minor injuries at the SIU Health Service. Underwood was released from Doctor's Hospital Sunday.

A car driven by James R. Smith, 23, Carbondale, and a motorcycle driven by Carter A. Shepard, 22, Homewood, collided at 12:50 a.m. Saturday on the Snider Hill Road, a mile east of Carbondale. Shepard and a passenger, Janet I. Eck, also of Homewood, were treated for minor injuries. Smith was reported not hurt.

John M. Miles of Pearl City, Hawaii, and his passenger, Donna Marie Ivanecich, Chicago, were injured at 7:20 p.m. Sunday when he lost control of his motorcycle on a bridge on the Crab Orchard Lake blacktop.

Larry J. Branson, 21, Mattoon, received a possible back injury when his car ran off old Illinois 13 five miles west of Carbondale at 2:35 o'clock Sunday morning.

Three other weekend accidents involved persons identified by police as SIU students but who are not listed at the Registrar's office.

In the first of these, a car driven by James Kidd, 22, of Carrier Mills, ran off the road and hit an embankment on a rural road west of Carrier Mills. He and his passenger, Joann Stucker, 28, also of Carrier Mills, received minor injuries.

David H. Hardy, 21, Peoria, was treated for minor injuries after his motorcycle overturned off Illinois 13 west of Carbondale. The accident was at 1:10 a.m. Saturday.

Lance W. Munger, 21, Belleville, was treated for minor injuries at Doctors Hospital after his car hit a utility pole at 2:18 a.m. Saturday. The accident occurred off old Illinois 13, two miles east of Murphysboro.

Conference Bid Held in Doubt

An area newspaper has charged that Friday's Board of Trustees decision to "gradually expand" the number of National Collegiate Athletic Association scholarships to "55 or 60" may have killed "whatever chance the school had to become a major athletic power."

Pete Swanson, writing in the Evansville Sunday Courier and Press, also says SIU may have destroyed a "soon-to-be-extended" invitation to join the Missouri Valley Conference and may also hasten the departure of Basketball Coach Jack Hartman.

Referring to the failure to grant specific funds for the scholarship increase, Swanson said, "It was like telling your 18-year-old son he can have a college education—if he can come up with the $5,000 to $8,000 without your help."

The story quoted an Athletics Department official who insisted on remaining anonymous as saying "But we don't have the money; at least I don't know where we'll get it."

The athletics official said the Missouri Valley Conference (MVC) might take in one new school at its May meeting and would have considered Southern only if 80 or more scholarships had been provided for football alone.

Norval Neve, MVC commissioner, stated, "I'd have to say Friday's action hurts Southern Illinois' chances."

Someone identified only as a Carbondale friend of Hartman said, "Jack was waiting to see what would be done on scholarships. Now I doubt that Southern can keep him."

The NCAA scholarships pay room and board, tuition, fees, and $15 a month spending money. SIU currently offers work scholarships which require players to hold on-campus jobs.

The original proposal as passed by the Student Senate, called for 150 NCAA scholarships to be financed by a $4 hike in the activity fee.

Gus says he wishes he could legislate himself a job.

SIU Coed Killed in Car Smashup

An SIU coed was killed and four other persons, three of them students, were injured in a one-car accident at 1:40 a.m. Sunday four miles south of Carbondale on U.S. 51.

Killed was Sally J. Gloe, of Rockford.

She was dead on arrival at Doctors Hospital, according to a hospital spokesman.

Suffering minor injuries were Carl D. Kiefer, 24, 305 W. Sycamore St., driver of the car and the only nonstudent; Linda Jo Bowers, 18, of Rock Falls; Dennis P. Dragolovich, 21, of Kewanee; and Roseanne Parrillo, 21, of Melrose Park.

According to State Police reports, Kiefer, who was driving north of U.S. 51, failed to negotiate a curve.

The accident is under investigation by the police.

Funeral services for Miss Gloe will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Sunberg Funeral Home, Rockford.

Mandatory Presence Stifling to Education

College is not a day nursery where students must be spoon fed and tucked in. People attend an institution of higher learning to get an education and a working background for their future. Their purpose is not to sit back while knowledge is crammed down their throats.

It is not the university's responsibility to make and enforce rules concerning class attendance which force students to attend for fear their grades will be dropped. This practice is like the old saying about leading a horse to water, but not being able to make him drink. The opportunity to learn exists and if the student feels the desire or necessity, he'll take advantage and "drink" until he fulfills his desired capacity.

Admittedly, there are students who are not concerned with their success in school, but why should the administration be concerned with protecting these individuals from themselves? Students attend a university to learn; if they don't take advantage of the opportunities available for them, it's their fault and their tough luck.

Any intelligent and halfway mature individual realizes his abilities and limitations as far as the learning process is concerned. If he feels himself capable of maintaining a high standard in his studies without attending classes regularly, it is his concern and his right to do so.

Attending classes which are merely verbal repetitions of the book or worse yet, general discussions on anything and everything, is frequently a waste of time. Why go to class if the book is more beneficial?

Instructors doing a good job of teaching in an interesting manner rarely have trouble with students missing their classes. This isn't because of the requirement. The students realize the necessity and benefit of attending and do so.

The policy of jeopardizing grades on the basis of attendance is one of the most unfair systems in practice. Any individual who achieves at the same level as the rest of the class, whether he attends classes or not, deserves the respective credit—and more power to him.

Israel Can Show U. S. How to Curb Injustice

By Robert Hutchins

In the United States the restraints on the bureaucracy are legislative inquiries and judicial proceedings. Both are cumbersome, protracted and largely ineffective.

The legislature cannot easily discover whether the administration is efficient or whether it is carrying out the legislative intent.

The citizen cannot obtain redress for injustices committed by an administrative officer or agency without "exhausting" his administrative remedies.

When he does get into court he has the burden of showing that the administrative action complained of is arbitrary and unreasonable, not merely unfair. The delays and expense of litigation are notorious. A poor man, no matter how patient, has little chance of prevailing against the bureaucracy.

We live in a bureaucratic culture, and there is not much chance that our children or grandchildren will live in any other.

With computers multiplying at the present rate, all bureaucracies, private and public, will become more and more impersonal. Anybody who has tried to argue with a computer about a bill knows there is nothing in it but frustration.

Then there is the generality of any law. No legislature can possibly foresee every contingency. It tries to lay down a rule that can apply in as many cases as it can think of; but it cannot think of them all.

The efflorescence of administration, then, raises the question of how the legislature is to make sure the bureaucracy is carrying out the legislative will and doing it efficiently; and the question of how the citizen is to cope with maladministration. Almost every country other than the United States has developed some means of answering these questions.

One of the most promising of these attempts is that of Israel, which is trying to answer both questions through one officer, the comptroller. The present incumbent, I.E. Nebenzahl, gave an account of his progress the other day at the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions.

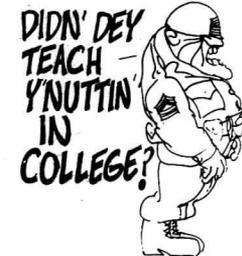

He reports to the legislature on the expenditure of every penny of public money, commenting on the efficiency as well as the legality of the outlay. At the same time he handles 3,000 complaints a year from citizens about the treatment they have received from government.

Nebenzahl insisted that his strength lay in the fact that he has no power. All he can do about maladministration is to make it public, together with his opinion of such misconduct. His standing is such that his observations almost always bring about correction of the abuses he condemns. The United States could use 51 Nebenzahls.

To these fellows, the national pastime is a business and a livelihood, not a hobby. Baseball, whether it had to pay the strikeout twins $100,000 or $500,000 a year, came out the winner of the feud.

Savage Crime Sparks Cry For Death Penalty in Rio

By Louis R. Stein
Copley News Service

RIO DE JANEIRO—An exceptionally savage crime here has aroused sentiment in favor of the death penalty.

Employees of a supermarket arriving to begin work found the bullet-riddled bodies of four coworkers lying in the blood-smears refrigerator.

More than 100 rounds of machine gun bullets had been fired inside the refrigerator by the killer or killers who made off with about $1,500 of the previous day's receipts. The criminals, who so far have eluded capture, failed to open a safe containing $25,000.

Position of the bodies indicated that the victims were shot to death while kneeling on the floor, possibly pleading to be spared. Police suspect they were killed because at least one of the thieves was known to them.

In a poll the magazine "O Cruzeiro" found that in the wake of the crime Rio residents were overwhelmingly in favor of the death sentence for murder.

Those on the side of mercy in the poll argued that no one has the right to take the life of another.

One said criminals should be reeducated and another declared that adoption of the death penalty would make everyone a murderer. Several said that "the people need education and religion, not legalized violence."

Others viewed the death sentence as a way to remove dangerous, incorrigible elements from society. One suggested that murderers be tortured to death. Another proposed that the death penalty be extended to cover all forms of homicide except killing in self-defense. All said the death penalty would act as a deterrent to violent crime.

The general public thus appears to disagree with most legal authorities who are opposed to the death penalty.

Criminologist Odir Araujo, who has written several books on the subject, said the only way to reduce violence is to prevent it by a more efficient police system.

But he admitted that "our criminals are better organized and better armed than the police and prevention is now a fantasy."

Letter

Let's Qualify 'Premarital'

To the editor:

I quote from a front-page story which appeared in the April 6 edition of the Daily Egyptian: "Leo F. Koch, an assistant professor of biology, was dismissed from the University of Illinois faculty in 1960 after he wrote a letter to the student newspaper in which he advocated premarital relations by 'unsophisticated student.'"

Every single student at SIU and the U. of I. has had "premarital relations." Talking to a professor, a bartender, an uncle, an aunt, a mail man, et al. Doing this before marriage is premarital relations. Social relations anyway.

However, not every student here or at the U. of I. has had "premarital sex relations."

Perhaps this is all much ado about nothing, but it is known that there is indeed a difference between premarital relations and premarital sex relations. Quite a difference!

Koufax, Drysdale Worth It? True Baseball Fans Say Yes

The recent salary feud between the Los Angeles Dodgers and their two star pitchers, Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale, stirred up a lot of comment on the sports scene concerning the wages of professional athletes.

The two baseball stars were demanding a combined contract calling for nearly $1 million between them over a three-year period. And they got close to what they asked for. The exact figures were not released, but Koufax is believed to have received a contract calling for $125,000 a year, while teammate Drysdale settled for something like $100,000.

The big question in the sports world was, "Are these guys worth the kind of money they demanded and received?" As most of the true baseball fans see it, they are worth every penny the Dodgers had to spend to get them. After all, they had everything in their favor.

Los Angeles won 97 games last year including a National League pennant and the World Series. Of those 97 games, Koufax and Drysdale pitched 49 victories which was more than half the games the Dodgers won. It's also been proven that strikeout king Koufax and hard-throwing Drysdale draw anywhere from 5,000 to 10,000 more fans into the stadium every time they pitch, which means more money for the owners.

And when a baseball player gets a raise whether it is small or large, it is always based on last year's performance, not what he's hopefully expected to do the next season.

These players could also argue that if a rookie is paid $100,000, or if a college football player is worth $400,000, then surely an established star should receive an equal sum.

Koufax and Drysdale have proved themselves over the years the same way a Willie Mays or Jim Brown and many others have done. And after all, no one's trying to prevent the owners from making money. Baseball is big business and always has been.

The big names in industry, science or any other field receive top salaries, so why shouldn't the top stars in the world of baseball?

To these fellows, the national pastime is a business and a livelihood, not a hobby. Baseball, whether it had to pay the strikeout twins $100,000 or $500,000 a year, came out the winner of the feud.

Do-It-Yourself Campus Leadership

Here's how the would-be

BMOC can hustle

the power structure

on his way to the dubious distinction of being a

Student Leader

By Phil Werdell

2. Encourage students to grade teachers. An extension of the survey approach is course and teacher evaluation. This needs manpower and therefore the cooperation of the student government, the newspaper, or some other major student organization.

Soon every college in America will have course and teacher evaluation programs, so for those schools that don't have one yet, it gives the potential self-proclaimed student leader a perfect bandwagon to join. At Columbia, all but three teachers surveyed felt the program was effective and should be continued. At Stanford, the program was responsible for major changes in one of the departments.

A complimentary course evaluation at Harvard produces at least a 25 per cent rise in that course's enrollment — and vice versa. Whether the program is published or unpublished, the student in charge is soon circulating freely in student and faculty leadership circles.

3. Take center stage for a broad-based protest against everything.

Activist protest is usually single-issue oriented, but a less militant tactic can include all Problems. Students at Ohio State turned the teach-in device inward by asking teachers to speak out for reforms they wanted and to tell students how to get them.

Students at the University of Colorado changed the name to "bitch-in" and put students on the stage; hundreds took their maximum five minutes to articulate a pet gripe.

At Oberlin, this took its most sophisticated form in a Mock Congress; not only did students state their complaints but they also went into committee session to write detailed drafts of suggested innovations and reforms in campus living conditions, curriculum, and social regulations.

In each case, the student who starts something like this becomes a Student Leader. He has a pretested program if he wants to be chairman of a project, and he has a consensus platform if he wants to run for office. What better formula for instant student leadership than supporting all the complaints of all the students?

4. Step into a policy committee meeting asking "Is this where the protest plans are being made?"

When university presidents met in Washington this October at the annual conference of the American Council on Education, there was general agreement that students should participate more actively in the formulations of educational policy. As a result, faculty and administration committees are looking for token students like businesses are looking for token Negroes. The sky's the limit.

Students are needed at the University of Oregon to serve on the tenure committee. At Dartmouth, students are needed to fill new positions on the student court, which has been given almost full control over student conduct. At American University, place for a stu-

Colgate student asked to have an arts festival, the administration said "go ahead and do-it-yourself." He did. He raised over $10,000, kept more students on campus than on any other non-football weekend, brought in two dozen artists of the caliber of Philip Roth and Norman Mailer, and made himself one of the few students known and respected in the art Establishment circles.

Would-be student leaders can also cash in on the Great Society and start something like the Tuskegee Institute Summer Education Program, which involved 600 tutors from 36 colleges and over 6000 tutees.

Smaller projects—not only in tutoring but in recreation, cultural enrichment, legal and health services — are very possible now that work-study money is available from the Office of Economic Opportunity.

On the other hand, it is difficult to name a government funded program after yourself. In any case, the efforts of one or two student leaders always stand out—and are remembered as long as the projects continue.

7. Begin to build your own college. Any sophomore can claim a following by insisting that he knows more about running a college than does the administration.

Two such efforts have made the New York Times in the last few months: the 25 Harvard medical students who found lectures so dull that they asked for and received permission to develop their own course; and the Student Curriculum Committee at City College in New York which constructed its own interdisciplinary course in the History and Philosophy of Science when the administration said it couldn't be done.

At San Francisco State the student government has decided to begin hiring its own teachers, starting logically enough with "community of scholars" advocate Paul Goodman.

The ultimate extension of these developments is the Free University, which has sprouted near campuses in New York, San Francisco, Chicago, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, and Boulder.

Others are in operation or are being planned at Stanford, Florida, Texas, and Michigan universities. The Free University offers non-credit courses in the evenings, the usual run of subjects including "The Biography of a Poet," "Viet Nam," "Marxism and Art," "The Sexual Life," and "Modern Film."

The appeal of the Free University is that it offers courses not possible in the standard curriculum, and the movement seems to be growing steadily.

The hopeful campus boss who finds that all chances for leadership on his campus are already taken might want to start a whole new trend that could sweep the campus by the 1970's. He could become a follower.

The Moderator

Last year the student mood was protest, as the fallout of the Free Speech Movement at Berkeley produced a host of student groups falling-in with the mode of militancy.

This year the campus scene has been quieter but possibly more productive. Administrators are paying more than the usual lip-service to student participation in policy formation. Faculty are slightly more self-conscious about the quality of their courses. Student governments tend to offer a hand to radical ad hoc groups, channeling their energy and idealism into mutually acceptable goals.

The patterns that are emerging and widening offer newly legitimized areas to the self-appointed student leader.

The striking fact about this year's action on campus is that this is all it takes: a good self-appointed student leader.

Possibly a handful of ardent workers are occasionally necessary, but for the most part the leadership has been singularly individual. To broaden the base of campus activism, more real leaders are needed. Those who are interested, therefore, might note the following ways and means of do-it-yourself student leadership.

1. Name a survey after yourself.

The cautious but concerned should start with a survey. A few years ago, at Yale, a small group of sophomores undertook a study of the university's student employment system.

They found that the jobs were dull and low-paying, and often were just feather-bedding. They arranged for these jobs to be taken over by the more economical and manageable town laborers and found new opportunities for students to earn money in research projects.

At Columbia an ad hoc survey of the dining hall found rubbery hamburgers, stale commercial pie, and a paucity of salads for dieting wenchers. With detailed documentation, the report could have been a candidate for the humor award, but the surveyors received more than laughs when the food improved.

The rules of the survey are: 1. pick a "bread and butter" issue; 2. have prestigious professors design the questions; 3. make sure that the administration knows that you want to "help" them; and 4. put your name in bold face on the cover of the report. Distribute the Phineas Leach Report widely and presto—you are a student leader.

dent was found on the faculty senate, and UCLA is among many schools which now employ a number of students in the selections committee for the arts and lectures programs.

5. Form a front organization with the growing proliferation of student leaders, the ambitious student can transcend the limitations of a formal campus position. Instead he might form a multi-school umbrella organization. The formula is simple: find a basic issue and invite every student leader to be a member of the "steering committee."

In metropolitan New York, it was impossible for a student leader at a public institution not to support the issue of free tuition. In the Bay area of California, students are "combining forces" to set up a student discount system — a program already proven successful in Buffalo, Washington, St. Louis and New York City. Possibly the most ingenious is the organization of New Jersey's Committee for Undergraduate Education (CUE) which originated at Princeton and now involves more than half of the student body presidents in the state campaigning for a broad based tax for higher education.

It is not surprising that these logical coalitions are making considerable headway towards their chosen goals. What is surprising is the little activity so far on a very exploitable student issue—the 18-year-old vote.

6. Build an annex to the college — and name it after yourself. It is important to remember that you will get more recognition for building a program than a building. When a

Astronomer to Speak

Man, Environment Series Will Open

Albert G. Wilson, noted astronomer and associate director of the Douglas Advanced Research Laboratory in Huntington Beach, Calif., will lecture at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Ballroom B of the University Center.

The lecture, "Some Principles of Hierarchical Structure," is the first in a series of three related lectures on Man and Environment being sponsored by the Department of Design.

The purpose of the series is to search for meaningful insights on the rapidly accelerating urgency for man to establish coherent and appropriate interactions with his terrestrial and spatial environment.

According to Wilson, "A common feature of a large class of structures and organizations, both natural and artificial, is hierarchical form."

In his lecture he will discuss the relation of the order he has observed in the galaxies to the man-made order of cities, towns and metropolitan areas.

Wilson is in charge of the Laboratory for Environmental Sciences at the Douglas Advanced Research Laboratory. He is formerly a staff member of the Mt. Wilson and Palomar observatories, was director of the Lowell Observatory in Flagstaff, Ariz., and was a member of the senior research staff for Rand Corp.

He is a member of the American Astronomical Society, The International Astronomical Union and a fellow of the Royal Astronomical Society.

From 1949 to 1953 Wilson was astronomer in charge of observation for the National Geographic Society-Palomar Sky Survey. Since 1962 he has been editor of ICARUS, international journal of the solar system.

Wilson did his undergraduate work at Rice Institute and received his doctorate from the California Institute of Technology in 1947.

The second lecture in the series will be delivered by George B. Happ, director of the Institute of Human Ecology, at 8 p.m. April 20.

The third lecture in the series will be delivered by R. Buckminster Fuller, research professor at SIU, at 8 p.m. May 11.

Britain Eyes Tankers In Rhodesian Blockade

LONDON (AP) — Britain kept anxious watch Monday night on two possible leaks in its blockade of oil for rebellious Rhodesia.

Ships cruised outside the port of Beira in Portuguese Mozambique as the tanker Ioanna V moved from her anchorage to an unloading dock where she could discharge 18,700 tons of oil into the pipeline to Rhodesia.

Another oil tanker, the Manuela, moved toward Durban, South Africa, after a British warship put a boarding party on her and turned her away from Beira. There was fear in London that the Manuela might be trying to beat the oil embargo by sending her cargo overland to Rhodesia from South Africa. She is due in Durban Tuesday.

In Beira, Capt. George Vardineyannis of the Ioanna V declared his vessel will not unload its cargo there and that he docked only to get spare engine parts and supplies.

The Portuguese Foreign Ministry issued a statement in Lisbon saying the tanker asked for authority to dock in Beira because the tides and the ship's size made it dangerous to remain where she was. The statement said port authorities gave permission to facilitate normal traffic in the harbor, which was being clogged by the prolonged presence of the ship.

The Ioanna V moved into Beira before the British had won United Nation's approval to halt tankers, by force if necessary, with oil believed destined for Rhodesia.

The tanker docked Monday only 30 feet from the pipeline running to the Rhodesian refinery at Umtali. The dock area was closed to reporters, but there appeared to be little activity around the ship.

More gasoline from South Africa reached Rhodesia overland Monday, and there is little evidence of a serious oil shortage in the colony, the white minority government of which declared its independence from Britain five months ago Monday. The size of oil stocks on hand is a government secret.

Tucson Attorney Turns Up Alive

NOGALES, Mexico (AP) — Attorney Robert Miller of Tucson, Ariz., at first believed one of 12 persons killed in Sunday's fiery plane crash turned up safe Monday at Hermosillo, Mexico.

Authorities said Miller's wife, Mary, 42, and two of their sons, Scott, 5, and Mark, 15, were among the dead.

Union Officials Order Workers To Return to Coal Mining Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A back-to-work order went out Monday to striking bituminous coal miners from their top union officials.

An estimated 48,000 workers who remained away from their jobs in seven states Monday were ordered to "return to work forthwith." Those not on strike were told to remain on the job.

The telegram went out to officials of all districts of the union as representatives of the United Mine Workers and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association got together here in an effort to agree on a new contract.

The talks began amid disagreement between union and industry officials on whether the workers were free to strike as they did Monday after the Easter weekend holiday.

United Mine Workers President W.A. Boyle, Vice President George Tittler and Secretary-Treasurer John Owens sent out this telegram to union district offices: "Certain mines in your district are presently idle. You are advised to instruct all members to return to work forthwith while we continue our discussion with representatives of the coal industry."

As the union acted to call off the strike, miners were off the job in Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, Illinois, Utah and Alabama, with reports that the strike was spreading to Virginia.

While the United Mine Workers did not order a strike, Boyle said Friday the union, which represents some 100,000 workers, "considered itself at liberty to strike at any time" because it was working without a contract.

At that time, the union reached agreement with three independent coal producers.

UMW officials said in Washington that since the miners had a new agreement with three independent operators they were free to strike other mines where they had no effective contract.

Outcome of Primary Elections May Indicate Political Trend

WASHINGTON (AP) — On the eve of the primary election season, Democrats in nearly a dozen states are embroiled in contests that ultimately could bear heavily on the party's leadership in the post-Johnson era.

Seeking some governorships or lesser offices are candidates who link themselves with President Johnson or Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and are tangling with opponents who have some ties with the Kennedys.

In addition to the outright tests for offices, there are overtones of struggles for party control.

States involved in contests that will run from May through September range from Massachusetts to California and include Johnson's home state of Texas.

Results conceivably could supply a political bridgehead for a 1972 presidential bid either by Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York or his brother, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

In many instances, the Johnson-Kennedy or Humphrey-Kennedy element is far from clearcut and may be only peripheral. But there are reasonably definitive tests shaping up in the battles for the Democratic gubernatorial nominations in Massachusetts, Tennessee and Wisconsin.

First Stone Laid At Kennedy Grave

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — The first stone of the John F. Kennedy permanent gravesite was laid Monday at Arlington National Cemetery, just a few feet down the grassy slope from where his body was buried in 1963.

The 11-ton block of Deer Island granite arrived at the cemetery over the weekend from Stonington Maine. It will form part of the base for the eight-foot wall at the head of the grave.

Work on the $2-million gravesite began last fall and is expected to be completed this fall.

Draft for June Drops

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — The Illinois draft call for June will be 966 men, all for the Army, state Selective Service Director John Hammack announced Monday.

The quota is the lowest for Illinois since March, 1965 when the figure was 584. The quota for May this year is 2,227.

2,000 Buddhists Plan New Demonstrations

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Two thousand leading Buddhists met in Saigon Monday night to discuss strategy for new demonstrations aimed at bringing down the government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

The Buddhists also decided, as another effort to force a showdown, to boycott a national political congress summoned for today by Ky to try to meet Buddhist demands for return to civilian government.

Ky called the conference of representatives of various political groups to draft plans for a constituent assembly. The assembly would draft a constitution and work out procedures for elections. He has proposed elections late next year, but the Buddhists insist on holding them immediately.

There was prospect that the Roman Catholics, who with the Buddhists, represent most of the vocal political thinking in South Viet Nam, also would boycott the congress.

South Viet Nam is overwhelmingly Buddhist. About 10 per cent of the people are Catholic.

As the political pot bubbled, the war against the Viet Cong slackened, even in the air. Sources said U.S. air strikes in South Viet Nam have been cut from 450 to 500 missions a day to about 300 because of a temporary shortage of bombs. The blame was attributed to logistics.

Woman Pilot Sets Record

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Flier Jerrie Mock rested Monday after her record 4,550-mile nonstop weekend flight and said she'd wait a while before tempting herself with another look at the record books.

"It will take about a year for the Mock family to pay for this trip," the 40-year-old grandmother said after less than seven hours of sleep. Her flight was partly sponsored.

She spent 31 hours in the air, flying from Honolulu to Columbus for the longest non-stop flight ever made by a woman. The old record, 3,671 miles, was established in 1938 by three Russians.

Two years ago, Mrs. Mock became the first woman to fly solo around the world. On that trip her longest stretch in the air was 18 1/2 hours.

"I was never really drowsy," she said Monday of the long flight in her single-engine Cessna Super Skylane. To prevent drowsiness, she took several pills prescribed by her doctor. She also ate three ham-on-rye sandwiches and drank water.

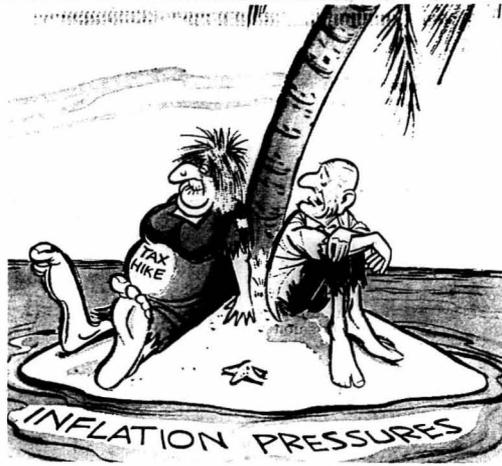

FHA, VA Rate Hiked on Loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The interest charge on Federal Administration and Veterans Administration loans for single family dwellings was raised Monday from 5 1/2 to 5 3/4 per cent.

The increase, second in slightly more than two months, brings the cost of borrowing to 6 1/4 per cent, including the charge of 1/2 of one per cent for mortgage insurance.

The interest charge on some multifamily dwelling was raised from 5 1/4 to 5 1/2 per cent.

Robert C. Weaver, secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, said the rates were increased because of the difficulty many applicants were having getting loans from banks and other lenders under the lower federal rate.

Perjury Claimed In '63 Conviction, Estes Asks Retrial

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Billie Sol Estes and his lawyers started trying to convince a federal judge Monday that he should receive a new trial because of what they claim is perjured testimony figured in his conviction.

Estes himself was among a dozen witnesses sworn preparatory to taking the stand.

His defense staff started reviewing in detail some of the fertilizer tank mortgage deals which led to his 15-year prison sentence.

A jury convicted him in 1963 of mail fraud and conspiracy. The hearing was before U.S. Dist. Judge Leo Brewster.

Women Gymnasts Win Collegiate Championships

Top Honors Won By Irene Haworth

The SIU women's gymnastic team found little competition at the Collegiate Open Championships Saturday at the Arena, and swept the meet with 235 points.

Centenary College was runner-up, with only 98 points, followed by the University of New Mexico with 20 points.

Coach Herb Vogel was surprised at the low scores of the other teams, and said that he had expected them to turn in better performances.

Irene Haworth, a 19-year-old sophomore from Saskatoon, Canada, was at her all-time finest Saturday. Her three victories in the Open accounted for a good deal of SIU's 235 team points.

A crowd of about 3,500 spectators cheered loudly each time Miss Haworth turned in a performance, and she won the balance beam, floor exercise and uneven bars events.

In taking the three firsts, Miss Haworth also captured the all-around title from teammate Donna Schaezner, the defending 1965 titlist.

Another strong SIU contender for the all-around honors was Gail Daley, who was hampered by a leg injury in the preliminary competition on Friday.

Miss Daley turned in the highest individual average of the meet, however, winning the vaulting event with a 9.35.

Judy Wills, SIU's women's world champion in tumbling and trampoline, won those two events at the Collegiate Open, to help place SIU in the first position in every event.

In the tumbling finals Saturday, one of the judges lowered his score for Donna Schaezner, making Judy Wills the winner.

Vogel said the judge told him afterwards that the original score for Miss Schaezner was a mistake made by the flasher, but Vogel said he thought the judge was giving her a bad score for a good performance.

Vogel added that he feels the same judge also gave Miss Schaezner lower scores than she deserved in the floor exercise, bars and balance beam events.

The SIU coach said he was surprised by the performance of Linda Scott, a freshman, who finished seventh all-around, with 31.5 points.

"Her second-place performance on balance beam was weak only at the end, but otherwise it was a good showing by a girl who has little experience," Vogel said.

The results:

Vaulting: Gail Daley, SIU, 9.35; Donna Schaezner, SIU, 8.95; Judy Wills, SIU, 8.8; Sue McDonnell, Centenary, 8.75; tie by Irene Haworth, SIU, and Paula Crist, Centenary, 8.6.

Trampoline: Wills, SIU, 9.25; Nancy Smith, SIU, 8.6; Sandy Rose, Everett Junior

IRENE HAWORTH

College, 6.8; McDonnell, Centenary, 6.3; Carole Nawojeki, SIU, 6.0; and Crist, Centenary, 5.65.

Balance beam: Haworth, SIU, 8.45; Linda Scott, SIU, 8.15; Janis Dunham, SIU, 8.1; McDonnell, Centenary, 7.9; Crist, Centenary, 7.55; Dina Lortzen, New Mexico, 7.25.

Floor exercise: Haworth, SIU, 9.25; tie by Schaezner, SIU, and Crist, Centenary, 9.15; Dunham, SIU, 8.875; Mary Ellen Toth, SIU, 8.775; Scott, SIU, 8.45.

Uneven bars: Haworth, SIU, 9.125; McDonnell, Centenary, 9.0; Carol Camp, Highline Junior College, 8.425; Scott, SIU, 8.375; Dunham, SIU, 8.225.

Tumbling: Wills, SIU, 9.3; Schaezner, SIU, 8.825; Haworth, SIU, 7.125; Scott, SIU, 6.775; Crist, Centenary, 6.6; Nowojski, SIU, 5.7.

Golfers Win Missouri Tourney

Coach Lynn Holder's golfers will tee off Wednesday against Washington University after winning their first match Friday.

The Salukis finished only one stroke ahead of runnerup Murray State in the Missouri Intercollegiate Tournament at Springfield.

Holder's inexperienced crew had lost five straight before the meet.

Sophomores Jim Schonhoff and Steve Heckel paced the victory by turning in scores of 73 and 74 on the final day of the 36-hole competition. Schonhoff wound up with a 151 and Heckel a 153.

Gary Robinson had the lowest score of any of the Salukis with his 150. He was followed by Schonhoff and Heckel along with Jack Downey's 153, Tom Muehleman's 155 and Phil Stamison with a 157.

Southern wound up with a final total of 606 strokes compared to 607 for Murray State.

compared to 51 for Southeast and 27 for the track club.

Despite the cool temperatures and threatening skies, three McAndrew Stadium records fell in the Friday meet.

SIU's Oscar Moore set a new mark in the two-mile run with a clocking of 8:59.5. The old mark of 8:59.6 was set three years ago by Bill Silverberg of Kansas.

Moore turned in a much better time for the event during the recent Florida Relays when he turned the course in 8:41.9.

John Vernon, a sophomore from Nottingham, England, cracked another mark with a leap of 50 feet 3 1/2 inches in the triple jump. He had held the former stadium record of 48 feet 1/2 inch.

SIU Sweeps 3 From Tulsa, Now Stands 11-9

The pitching came through in spectacular fashion, the hitting was timely, and the baseball Salukis came home early Sunday with a three-game sweep over the University of Tulsa.

Winning eight of their last nine outings, the Salukis have climbed to an 11-9 record. SIU came through with clutch hitting in the opening single game Friday, and then coasted behind two shutouts to take Saturday's twin-bill.

Wayne Sramek came up with his third victory Friday against no defeats, as Southern scored five runs in the top of the ninth to overcome a 2-1 deficit and take a 6-2 win. Ten men batted in the big inning for Southern.

Russ Keene started things with a lead-off walk, advancing to second as Sramek beat out a slow roller to the right side. Shortstop Steve Krelle smashed a double down the left field line to bring in the tying run. Husky catcher George Toler then lined a 3 and 1 pitch to left for a ground rule double, driving in Sramek and Krelle.

Larry Schaake then singled to right with Toler scoring. Rich Collins followed with another single, and then Schaake scored from third on a sacrifice fly by Bob Bernstein for the final tally.

Sramek struck out nine and walked two as he went all the way for the victory. Southern pounded out nine hits for its six runs.

Don Kirkland and Jim Panther both came through with superb pitching in Saturday's twin-bill as they threw shutout ball against the Golden Hurricans.

Kirkland allowed four hits as he struck out eight and walked only one in the seven inning contest. The sophomore righthander got all the runs he needed in the fifth, as the Salukis pushed across four runs. Two hits, along with three walks and an error, pushed Southern to its 4-0 lead. Kirkland, who has been striking out opposing batters at a rate of better than one an inning, increased his record to 3-1.

In the nightcap, the Salukis struck quickly in the first as Russ Keene did the unusual in driving home three runs with a single. His smash, which rolled to the left center-field fence, emptied the bases after Collins, Pavesich and Sandstead had all walked. Keene was tagged out standing on third, because he missed second base. He was credited with a single.

With Jim Panther having no trouble with Tulsa, Southern finished the scoring in the second inning, gaining four runs on three hits for the final 7-0 victory. Panther, now 2-1, allowed only two hits and was credited with six strikeouts.

The Salukis will begin a three-day home stand Wednesday. Monday's contest with Indiana State at Terre Haute was called off. Moorhead (Minn.) State will test the Salukis in doubleheaders

Wednesday and Thursday, before St. Joseph's (Ind.) comes in for a single game Friday.

The twin bills will start at the SIU diamond at 1 p.m., with the single contest slated for 3 p.m.
