100-Degree Heat to Continue Here

HERE'S A REAL COOL TRICK—While human beings throughout the mid-section of the nation were sweltering in record temperatures these two harbor seals came up with the best idea in days for beating the heatwave. Residents of the Washington Park Zoo in Indianapolis, they have been spending most of their time in the water and even when they come up for a bit of air, they don't get very far above the waterline. An Associated Press photographer took this unusual shot of them through a viewing window in their tank.

Relief Not Seen Until Next Week

There is no possibility of relief from the 100-plus weather for at least five days, according to a United States Weather Bureau spokesman in Cairo.

"There is a cool air mass coming down from the north," the spokesman said, "but it will not reach St. Louis until this weekend. The southern Illinois area will not get it until early next week, or later."

The high Thursday was 105 and the high today will be 100 to 106. There is a slight chance or isolated evening thundershowers today, but if they come they will offer only momentary relief from the heat. The record high for this date is 105 set in 1936 and the record low is 48 set in 1930.

Southern Illinois is entering its seventh straight day of temperatures in the three-figure category. A record of eight straight days of such temperatures was set in 1930, according to the SIU Climatology Laboratory.

Blistering heat today will mark the 23rd day in a row that temperatures have climbed over the 90-degree mark.

St. Louis authorities reported Thursday that over 75 persons have died in that area due to the heat wave. Luckily, however, the SIU Health Service has had only a few, very slight cases of heat exhaustion. Area hospitals also have had only a few cases of heat exhaustion.

Hundreds of farm animals in the area, however, have died, and crops are suffering. It was reported that in Johnston City, 25 miles east of SIU, a hen left her eggs and they hatched.

One farmer near Carmi lost 500 chickens because of the heat this week and expected to lose another 500 before the week is over.

As can be expected, the sales of all types of cooling agents are soaring in the area. Beer and soft drink consumption is almost undeterminable. And air conditioners are hard to find.

The northern Midwest is experiencing a slight relief today with 90-degree temperatures. Southern Illinois just has to sit tight, and wait. Cooler air is on its way.

Jackson County Arts Potential Is Subject of Meeting Today

A conference to survey the arts resources and potentialities of Jackson County will begin at 10 a.m. today in the Renaissance Room of the University Center.

Burnett H. Shryock, dean of the School of Fine Arts and a member of the Illinois Arts Council, said the conference is the first of a series of county and community meetings to survey the potentialities of Southern Illinois.

Invited to the meeting as consultants are Virginia

Marmaduke of Pinckneyville, Mrs. Robert Raer of Anna and Goffrey Hughes, executive director of Southern Illinois Inc. State Sen. John Gilbert of Carbondale, President Delyte W. Morris, and Robert W. MacVicar, vice president for academic affairs also are expected to attend.

The Illinois Arts Council was authorized by Governor Kerner to make the survey under a legislative appropriation.

Jet Designers Go Supersonic

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones (General Features Corp.)

Thirteen miles above your head there is a cheerless place.

It has one-twentieth of the atmosphere at sea level. It is colder than the South Pole. If you were suddenly tossed into it your intestines would rupture, your lungs explode.

And yet, through this place is to run Man's new highway.

On Sept. 6 the final designs for a supersonic transport are to be submitted to the U. S. government by two airframe manufacturers—Lockheed and Boeing.

Never before has so much been riding on a head-to-head contest among industrial giants. At stake is the production of items worth from $30 million to $40 million apiece, and the possible sale of up to 500 of them for about 17 billion dollars. If widely purchased abroad they could go far toward eliminating the gold drain now running against the U. S. Treasury.

The British and the French have joined together to produce the Concorde, a Mach 2.2 (1,400 miles per hour) plane made of aluminum. A prototype is now actually under construction and may fly early in 1968. Mach 2.2 is the upper limit of speed for aluminum skin. Aluminum is weakened by the heat of air friction at higher speeds.

The Americans got in late, and decided to go in for a Mach 2.7 design. This required a skin of titanium, which only yesterday was a physics lab curiosity. But titanium can laugh off the 450-degree Fahrenheit skin temperature at 1,800 m.p.h.

There's one basic argument. Boeing has designed a wing with a variable sweep—sections that fold far back for cruise and move forward for take-off or landing. The advantage in short take-off and slow landing speeds would seem obvious. But Lockheed has a "double delta" fixed wing which, engineers claim, will bring it across the fence only ten m.p.h. faster than present jets. The variable-sweep wing idea has one bug. In the remote event the wings won't extend it will land as a very hot airplane, well over 200 m.p.h.

Since neither Lockheed nor Boeing are famous for incompetence, the research on both planes has been tremendous. The Lockheed plans started in 1956. But three weeks ago Boeing surprised everyone by substantially changing its design—repositioning its engines, altering its wings into more of a delta and upping its passenger capacity from 260 to 300.

The planes will have drawbacks. The graceful 272-foot-long fuselage of the Lockheed 2000 features windows six inches in diameter, most of which look out on an acre of wing. You might as well watch the movie.

The little windows have triple glass, which is no bad idea. For the difference between inside and outside pressure at cruise will be 12 pounds per square inch.

A window has yet to blow out the subsonics and if one should go at 70,000 feet they claim they can pump enough air into the cabin to keep the pressure altitude from rising above 15,000 feet.

The fact that the world's airlines have ordered 96 of the American planes when they don't know who will build them or exactly what they will look like, as against 52 orders for the already-building Concorde, is tribute to the tremendous prestige of American plane builders.

That highway in the sky is a frightening highway. But we'll be on it.

People No Longer Coolies

Red China: The Riddle Of Life in Rickshawville

By Arthur Hoppe (San Francisco Chronicle)

Sen. William Fulbright and others have been investigating Red China so that we Americans may have a clear picture of what the Red Chinese are really like. Actually, it's a waste of time. For we Americans already have a clear picture of what the Red Chinese are really like.

It's all set forth in my standard reference work, "An American's Guide to Other Lands—Illustrated with Clear Pictures." I refer you to the chapter entitled, "Red China, a Clear-cut Enigma."

China is a big, flat country covered with rice paddies. It has lots and lots of people. They used to be called coolies. In the good old days, all the coolies ran restaurants or laundries. They were therefore a clean, well-fed people and they loved us.

Then the Communists took over. The people are not called coolies anymore. They are called peasants. Nor do they run restaurants or laundries anymore. They carry rocks.

All day they carry rocks from one place to another. In their spare time they march up and down shouting slogans and waving banners. They are very weak because they are starving to death. They probably aren't very clean anymore either. Anyway, it's an awfully grim life and they hate us.

Naturally, they hate all our allies, too. They even hate their own allies, like Russia, Cuba and Indonesia. They also hate the United Nations. In fact they hate everybody except Albania. And they plan to conquer the world, except Albania.

But fortunately, they have no mechanical ability whatsoever. Their only method of transportation is the rickshaw. They don't have trucks or anything. This is why they spend all day carrying rocks. In fact they are a hopelessly backward country. They also have nuclear bombs.

Lucky for us, however, they have no delivery system for these nuclear bombs they have somehow pieced together. Except, of course, rickshaws. So we don't have to worry about that. What we have to worry about is the horrible new military tactic they've invented. It's called "the human wave" assault.

Not having any mechanical ability, their soldiers attack in human waves, hoping to smother the enemy to death. This shows they care nothing for human life. That's because they think differently than we do.

Actually, the peasants don't think at all. They're mere automatons. But their leaders are wily, inscrutable and fiendish. Sort of like Dr. Fu Manchu. And there's no doubt that even now they are hatching a diabolical plot to lead their weak, starving, backward, mindless hordes off to conquer the whole world. Except Albania.

So there you have a clear picture of Red China today. As it exists in the minds of most of us Americans. Indeed, it forms a sound basis for our not recognizing Red China. After all, who'd recognize a country like that?

Meanwhile, it is the clear-cut duty of every American to keep a sharp eye peeled for intercontinental ballistic rickshaws and to watch out for human waves, particularly when bathing on Pacific Coast beaches.

Is Freedom Being Killed In the War?

To the editor:

A few days past I was asked by some fellow students at the University Center to sign a petition protesting the recent escalation of the war in Viet Nam.

This I did, mindful of the words of Secretary-General Thant, Prime Minister Wilson and Pope Paul (to mention a few) and the realization that Lyndon Johnson and Dean Rusk would probably not respond any more favorably to my criticism than to the criticism of the National Council of Churches, Gen. Gavin, and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch (to mention a few more).

Today I learned that another student later approached the table where signatures were being solicited, grabbed the petitions and fled with them; leaving behind the comment that he had been in Viet Nam and knew what we were fighting for.

Perhaps we would all do well to pause here and contemplate what this young man did and what he said. And then perhaps we should thank him for so dramatically demonstrating what Sen. Fulbright, Seymour Melman and Paul Schilpp (to mention still more) mean when they say that this war may, regardless of the military outcome, defeat the American idea of freedom not only in Asia but at home.

And then, perhaps—unless you just happen to think that war is a neat thing in and of itself—you will begin to question the wisdom of this war, or this escalation (God forbid) the next escalation.

U. S. Airlines Eye Japanese Planes For Short Hops

TOKYO—U.S. airline companies will buy more than 200 Japanese-made aircraft over the next two years because the type airliner they want is not manufactured by U.S. firms.

Japanese officials of the Nihon Aeroplane Manufacturing Co., Ltd., (NAMC) say no U.S. manufacturer is making a turboprop aircraft.

NAMC said 13 U.S. "local service" airlines are keenly interested in the Japan-made YS-11 short and medium-haul airliner which has been selling well in Southeast Asia.

A spokesman said the 13 U.S. airline companies are Allegheny, Bonanza, Central, Frontier, Lake Central, North Central, Mohawk, Ozark, Pacific, Piedmont, Southern, Trans-Texas and West Coast. Hawaiian Airlines also is reported interested in the Japanese airplane.

A four-man team of U.S. experts organized by the Charlotte (N.C.) Aircraft Corp. visited here to evaluate the YS-11.

The Americans told the Japanese they felt the YS-11 would be "highly operative" in the United States and predicted a demand for more than 200 of the twin-engined, 60-seat airliners within the next two to three years.

All News Is Not Good Enough For English Woman Publisher

By Pam Gleaton

"Look for the good news." This is the advice that Kay Clemetson gives young reporters on the staff of the Kent Sussex Courier and the other weekly newspapers published by her.

The advice is typical of Mrs. Clemetson, who says that although she thinks a paper must report everything, she sees no reason to play up the bad news and let the good news suffer.

The five papers that she publishes serve villages within a 25-mile radius of Tunbridge Wells, Kent, England, her home town. Tunbridge Wells is in southeast England.

She is in this country to attend the International Conference of Weekly Newspaper Editors at Pere Marquette State Park. The conference will open Sunday.

Mrs. Clemetson will give a luncheon speech, "Towards a World Society," to a group of faculty wives, wives of weekly newspaper editors in the area and campus members of Theta Sigma Phi, professional journalism fraternity for women, today.

The luncheon will be served at 12:30 p.m. in the Illinois and Ohio Rooms of the University Center. Tickets will be on sale at the door.

Besides her publishing interests, Mrs. Clemetson serves as chairman of the English National Council for the Training of Journalists.

This council, which has been in existence for 10 or 12 years, is responsible for training all the journalists in Britain. Publishers, journalism unions and the Editors Guild all work together to sponsor the council, and newspapers have agreed to hire graduates of the council and no one else.

The program approved by the council is a three-year indenture period during which the trainees do all kinds of work on the paper they are training with.

The training is conducted in provincial weeklies throughout England. Most of what the trainees do is "district reporting," according to Mrs. Clemetson. She says this type of reporting is "one of the finest training grounds in the world" for young journalists, because they have to go to the villages and find the news as well as report it.

All of the trainees are required to take 100 words a minute in shorthand because of the stringent libel laws in England, Mrs. Clemetson said. Notes are sometimes produced as court evidence in libel suits, she said, so they must not only be complete, but legible.

After the three years, during which they must stay with one paper, the trainees must pass a series of proficiency tests set by the council. Upon passing the test they are given certificates of training by the council.

All of the training is done at provincial papers. One of the big problems with the training program, the publisher said, is that the trainees are "enticed away" from the weekly papers by other jobs in journalism that pay more.

She also commented favorably on journalism schools in the United States which combine a liberal arts education with practical experience.

A two-year research program on how best to introduce a journalism program at the University of Sussex will begin in January of 1967. The University of Sussex is one of the "new universities" in England.

All the training in the world won't necessarily make a good journalist in Mrs. Clemetson's opinion. "To be a journalist, you have to be a born journalist," she said. You also have to "love to meet people and get around" in order to be her brand of journalist.

She came into journalism quite by chance, however. Her first job was as a bookkeeper in the newspaper she now edits. Her eyes twinkle when she tells how she used to rush through her bookkeeping and go ask the editor for something to do.

Although meeting people is perhaps the most important part of a journalist's life in Mrs. Clemetson's opinion, she finds that she must also have some time for herself.

She finds this time in a home, "a tiny country cottage surrounded by woods," just outside Tunbridge Wells. The 37 acres surrounding her home are part of a steep valley with a small stream running at the bottom.

She and her husband are reforesting the area trying to replace the "great trees" that once grew there. They also care for a three-acre garden in which they each spend 10 hours every week.

In addition to her work with her papers and with the journalism training program, Mrs. Clemetson is a member of the Press Council of Great Britain, the self-regulating agency of the British press, and a member of the Editors Guild. She has served as the guild's first woman president.

Mississippi Democrat Next in Line For House Rules Committee Chair

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. William M. Colmer, 76, a long-time Mississippi Democrat with a soft Southern drawl and a keen sense of humor, is in line to become chairman of the House Rules Committee.

Colmer first came to Congress in 1933 as a Franklin D. Roosevelt New Dealer. Years later, after he had been tagged as a Southern conservative and segregationist, he remarked to a friend:

"You may not believe it, but I came to Washington as something of a liberal."

As second-ranking Democrat on the Rules Committee, Colmer could succeed Chairman Howard W. Smith, D-Va., if he is re-elected in November and if House Democrats continue to follow the seniority tradition in committee organization next January.

Smith apparently was defeated for renomination Tuesday in a close contest with George C. Rawlings Jr., 44.

Colmer has won renomination in his southern Mississippi district, beating back the bid of a labor-backed opponent. While he has a Republican opponent for November, his re-election generally is expected since Republicans haven't fared well in that area over the years.

As chairman of the Southern House members he helped draft what became known as the "Southern Manifesto" which stated Southern opposition to the Supreme Court's 1954 ruling banning segregation in the public schools.

Throughout recent years he has been a close supporter of Smith and their thinking on legislation was much alike.

Like Smith, Colmer is a keen student of House rules and is familiar with all kinds of legislative maneuvering.

Thus if he takes over as chairman next year there wouldn't be much change in the committee's direction.

However, there has been some talk that liberals on the committee might seek to upset the seniority precedent and make a less conservative chairman.

Colmer survived one move to oust him from the committee or reduce him in seniority five years ago. This was after Colmer and several other House members from Mississippi supported a slate of unpledged presidential electors in the 1960 election.

Colmer is now sixth among House members in point of service.

Blasts Hit Plant

CARTHAGE, Mo. (AP)—A tremendous explosion rocked this area shortly before noon Thursday and large columns of smoke rose from a powder and explosives plant south of the city. Five unconfirmed deaths were reported.

Two blasts came close together. Later there were four more. Windows in many parts of Carthage were broken.

Ambulances and fire trucks were rushed to the Hercules Powder Co. plant, south of here.

U. S. Jets Down Two MIGs In Air Action Near Hanoi

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) - Still officially barred from hitting Hanoi's jet air bases, U.S. Air Force F4C Phantoms felled two Communist MIG21 jets northwest of that city with Sidewinder missiles Thursday in super-sonic dogfights three minutes and 28 miles apart.

A slower and older MIG17 had been blasted to pieces Wednesday by another of the heat-seeking sidewinders, this one fired by a Navy Phantom.

Together these boosted the announced toll on the Soviet-designed fighters to 17 destroyed and one probably shot down since the first air-to-air engagement of the war April 4, 1965. The U.S. command has reported the loss of four planes in combat against the MIGs.

While the air action over the North kept the spotlight, B52 bombers hit for the second straight day at suspected enemy troop concentrations 10 miles south of the border. A U.S. military spokesman said three Red-regiments-from 4,500 to 5,000 men-had been seen in the area in recent weeks.

Military briefing officers reported 287 allied servicemen and 1,349 Communists were killed in action in the South last week. Of the allied dead, 110 were Americans.

In addition, 620 U.S. servicemen were wounded and seven were missing or captured. By unofficial calculation, American dead in the war now total 4,239.

On the political front, Buddhist sources said Thich Tri Quang has agreed in principle to end the partial hunger strike that he launched June 8 in an effort to force Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's government to resign. They said they expected him to drop it later this week. That could mean the militant monk intends to return to active campaigning against the regime.

Officials of the Saigon clinic where Quang is hospitalized, however, said he was still limiting himself, as before, to liquids.

The clashes between the Phantoms and the MIG21s pitted standard fighters of the U.S. Air Force against delta-winged speedsters such as the Russians use in their own air force and have supplied to various Communist nations and some neutrals around the world.

Democrats Cancel Meeting

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—The continuing airline strike forced indefinite postponement today of the 18-state Midwest Democratic conference scheduled for Friday and Saturday here.

Student Nurses Slain in Chicago

CHICAGO (AP)—An insatiable killer invaded a dormitory early Thursday and methodically strangled or fatally stabbed eight student nurses, one by one, while a ninth crouched in frozen horror under a bed.

Veteran policemen called it the most wretched crime in memory.

When the bloodletting ended, the terrified survivor broke her bonds, burst through an upstairs window to a ledge outside and screamed: "My friends are dead! Help! Help! I'm the only one left alive!"

The eight girls, six of them preparing to be graduated from nursing school, were strangled, stabbed, or both during a 2 1/2-hour massacre.

"I've seen more people killed," said Police Cmdr. Francis Flannagan, "but I've never seen anything more horrible than this." Coroner Andrew Toman called it "the crime of the century."

The survivor, Miss Corazon Amurao, 23, an exchange student from the Philippines, told police the killer was a tall, blond young man.

Chicago police, beleaguered by nights of racial turmoil in another part of Chicago, immediately began one of the most intensive manhunts in their history.

The eight victims and Miss Amurao were in training at South Chicago Community Hospital, seven blocks away on Chicago's far Southeast side.

They lived in a two-story, three-bedroom contemporary town house, set aside for student nurses. They commuted to the hospital by bus.

Police were not sure whether the killer came through a kitchen window at the rear of the building or forced his way in the front door when one of his victims answered his knock. Nor were they certain of precisely how or when he left.

Miss Amurao, of San Luis, Batangas, told police that she and one of the other girls were aroused from sleep by a knock on their bedroom door. Opening it, she saw the man who displayed a pistol.

He motioned them to another bedroom at the back of the apartment and bound their hands behind them. Three other girls were brought back and tied. The other victims were brought to the bedroom and pushed in as they arrived at the dormitory after their night duty tour. One of the nine was a visitor, Marianne Jordan, a friend of two regular residents.

The killer then took the girls from the bedroom to other parts of the house, one by one, and killed them with a knife or his hands.

A man with a bloodstained shirt was seized in downtown Chicago when he tried to purchase an airline ticket to New Orleans. He was later released because he did not match the description given by Miss Amurao.

Those killed were:

- Merlita Gargullo, 21, Mautjan, Oriental Mindoro, the Philippines.
- Valentina Pasion, 23, Jones, Isabela, the Philippines.
- Pamela Wilkening, 22, suburban Lansing, Ill.
- Gloria Davy, 23, Dyer, Ind.
- Susan Farris, 22, Chicago.
- Patricia Matusek, 21, Chicago.
- Marianne Jordan, 22, Chicago.
- Nina Schmale, 21, Wheaton, Ill.

Girl's Arms Severed by Mower Are Sewed Back On by Doctors

OTTAWA (AP)—Three doctors at Ottawa Hospital worked through the night and until noon Thursday to sew a 4-year-old girl's arm back on after they had been severed by a hay mower.

Hospital officials said it is too early to determine whether the operation on Myrna Blair was successful.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Blair, Pakenham, 40 miles west of here said Myrna was lying in a field to watch a hay mower being operated by a neighbor on the Blair farm. The accident happened about 9 p.m. Wednesday.

The child's father said Myrna's right arm was severed by the mower being operated by the mower and the left arm was hanging only by a thread when he took her to Arnprior Hospital. The girl was then brought to Ottawa and her arms were brought in later by provincial police. Both were severed between the shoulder and the elbow.

TRACKMEN—Bolstering SIU's track program next fall will be newcomers Harvey Cannon (left) and Jimmy Thomas of Baton Rouge, La. Cannon, who for the past four years has coached Broadmoor High School in Baton Rouge, has accepted a graduate assistantship to work on his doctorate and will help out with the track team. Thomas is a standout hurdler who this season had a low of 13.8 seconds in the 120-yard high hurdles. The mark is four-tenths of a second lower than the Illinois high school record.

Louisiana Hurdler, Coach Join Saluki Track Ranks

Track coach Lew Hartzog, who has already developed one of the top Midwest powers, has added a promising 18-year-old hurdler to his future plans, and has brought along his coach to boot.

Jimmy Thomas, a 6 feet 4 175-pounder has been described by Hartzog as "the best prospective hurdler we've ever signed."

Thomas' coach at Baton Rouge, La., Harvey Cannon, has accepted a graduate assistantship under Hartzog.

Cannon was a former track star at Louisiana State University, and is the brother of Billy Cannon of the professional Oakland Raiders football club.

Thomas has had top marks of 13.8 seconds in the 120-yard high hurdles and 19.3 in the 180-yard lows. He is unbeaten in his senior year of high school.

Two top distance men are attending school this summer, and doing plenty of running.

Al Ackman and Oscar Morre have been running up to 20 miles a day, joined by some freshman distance prospects.

Moore, the former Olympian, is coming back after a foot injury developed at the end of the season.

"Oscar won't be running in any competition until the cross-country season in the fall," said Hartzog.

Moore is up early, running about 10 miles. He runs about the same distance late each evening.

Asked about the Polish and Russian withdrawals from duel track meets scheduled for this month, Hartzog felt like most observers.

"I think it is obviously political," he said. "Both teams are breaking a contract, putting a tremendous burden on everyone who has had anything to do with the preparation of the meets."

Hartzog doesn't believe that the move came from the threat of the two countries being beaten by the U.S. team. He also is against any plan to bar both teams from the Olympic Games to be held in Mexico City.

"It would be a hollow Olympics if they did that," said the coach. "Both Poland and Russia have strong teams."

Tax Share Distributed

Townships and road districts in Jackson County have received $12,497 as their share of the motor fuel tax during June.

Salukis Face Parsons Today

Ace righthander Don Kirkland will attempt to get the Salukis off to the right start today as they invade Fairfield, Iowa to take on Parsons College.

Parsons is currently far out in front of the Midwest Summer League, registering nine victories against just one loss. The lone loss came at the hands of Southern in an opening five-game series at Carbondale.

After a satisfying four victories in five games against St. Louis University, Southern faces the necessity of a winning series against the Wildcats to stay in contention. The Salukis are at an even 5-5 mark, while the St. Louis Bills are 1-9 for the season.

Coach Joe Lutz will rely on freshman hurling for the remainder of the five-game weekend series.

Mike Weber and Bob Ash are set to go in a Saturday doubleheader, and Skip Pitlock and Tom Kettelkamp will start in Sunday's twinbill.

It will mark the first game played by the Salukis on Parsons' new baseball diamond, which was dedicated early this summer.
