Counterfeit $100 bills found circulating in area, police say

By Richard Guldstein
Staff Writer

The Carbondale Police Department announced Wednesday that counterfeit $100 bills have been circulating in the Carbondale area, but the Secret Service believes that virtually all the phony bills have been recovered.

Larry Hill, commander of Carbondale police investigations, said police are attempting to trace the source of bills that were passed in Carbondale July 11. Hill said the bills were passed in several University Mall stores as well as area grocery stores, including Kruger, Country Fair and National supermarkets.

The counterfeit bill is described as a 1985 series with a seal from the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston or Chicago. The side of the bill with Benjamin Franklin's picture in the upper left corner has a "D2" and the lower, right hand corner has a "D37," indicating plate numbers with which the original bill was printed. On the right side of the back of the bill is a "53," also indicating the back plate with which the original bill was printed.

Police said that if a brand new $100 bill is found with all of these identifiers, it probably is counterfeit.

Hill said at least one of the phony bills has been recovered from Murphysboro and, while he indicated that bills have been recovered in recent days, these seem to be "floaters" which are circulating in the wake of the person or people who delivered them originally.

Hill said police have descriptions but no solid suspects in connection to the crime. The penalty for

Jet crashes in Iowa; 35 alive

SIoux CITY, Iowa (UPI) — A United Airlines DC-10 carrying 298 people crashed Wednesday during an attempted emergency landing with total hydraulic failure, breaking apart and bursting into flames as it cartwheeled down a runway into a cornfield.

At least 35 survivors were reported. There were conflicting reports on casualties.

The plane left Denver at 10:45 a.m. and was to land at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport at 4:01 p.m., but it was forced to attempt the emergency landing without hydraulic brake power at Sioux City.

St. Luke's Hospital in Sioux City reported it had received 35 survivors. Spokesman Mike Merrigan said nine of the victims were in critical condition. Merrigan said the victims were being treated for burns, broken bones and head injuries.

Merrigan said he heard unofficially, as many as 150 people might be alive, but this report conflicted with a report from the Woodbury County Sheriff's Department, which said an estimated 185 to 190 people were killed. There was no official word on the number of fatalities.

The airline held a news conference in Chicago saying all information on the crash would come from the National Transportation and Safety Board.

Flight 232 was carrying 287 passengers and a crew of 11, said Sue Moss, a United spokeswoman in Chicago.

Jeff Pritchard, 35, was standing near the north end of the runway when the 15-year-old plane crashed.

"The tail came down, the nose came up and then it cartwheeled," said Pritchard. "It didn't catch on fire until it hit the runway."

Pritchard said he could tell the pilot was fighting to keep control.

"You could tell he was fighting it all the way," he said. "He came over the residential section of Sioux City. He made it to the airport."

Wreckage was scattered for several hundred yards.

Ordinance proposed against false alarms

By Tim Crosby
Staff Writer

At Tuesday's City Council meeting an ordinance that would fine building owners $100 for fire and $50 for police false alarms, was proposed by Fire Chief Everett Rushing and Police Chief Edward Hogan.

The purpose of the ordinance is to create an incentive for building owners to do more to prevent false alarms from occurring at their buildings. Most of the buildings involved use alarms which are directly wired to the police and fire stations.

Steve Kirk, assistant director of housing-residential life, said the housing office has always taken false alarms very seriously.

"If a student is caught setting one off, they can expect to go through the University legal system at a minimum," Kirk said. "Setting off a false alarm is a felony and we have chosen to prosecute people in the past."

Ed Jones, director of University housing agreed. "This is a life and safety situation, and that's something people shouldn't play with."

A memo from Rushing and Hogan addressed to City Manager Steve Hoffner said all alarms received by their stations must be perceived as real. This creates an unnecessary high risk situation not only for city personnel and equipment, but also for the general public, the memo said.

Cliff Manis, an assistant fire chief, said the rate of University false alarms declined in the last year.

Federal agencies to collect unpaid student loans

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

College students who take out Illinois Stafford Loans, formerly the Guaranteed Student Loan, should be prompt about paying back the loans since federal agencies will be collecting the payment.

A new agreement between the U.S. Department of Education and the Illinois State Scholarship Commission mandates that the unpaid student loan accounts will be assigned to federal collection agencies if no attempt was made to make an initial payment or if borrowers have not made a payment in five years since defaulting their loans.

Larry E. Matejka, executive director of the ISSC, said federal collection agencies are a lot stricter than university agencies when collecting unpaid loans.

Matejka said the assignment of these loans to federal collection agencies will mainly affect those who borrowed money between August 1986 and June 1984.

Matejka said the federal agencies will be going for those 10,000 people first, then they will concentrate on more recent unpaid loans.

"This number may seem high, but when you consider that over 637,000 persons have utilized ISSC's loan program during this same time period, the 10,000 who haven't paid represent only 1.6 percent of the borrowers," Matejka said.

However, most of the 10,000 borrowers are the ones who took out the larger loans, Matejka said. The ISSC could be out a great deal of money if the loans are never repaid.

Since the beginning of the Illinois Safford Loan Program, over $4 billion dollars has been entrusted to more than 932,171

Sandinistas celebrate anniversary of uprising

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Tens of thousands of dancing and flag-waving Nicaraguans poured jubilantly into a downtown park Wednesday to celebrate the 10th anniversary of the popular uprising that ousted dictator Anastasio Somoza. Leaders of the governing Sandinista National Liberation Front scheduled the Wednesday morning rally in the same downtown square — renamed Revolution Square — where they celebrated their triumphant march into Managua July 19, 1979, after the uprising ended the 50-year Somoza family dynasty.

Gorbachev says coal miner strikes dangerous

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev said Wednesday the coal strikes in the Ukraine and Siberia have reached dangerous proportions and warned the government may take action to stop unrest spreading to other vital industries. The miners have appealed to the country's railway workers to join the strike in a move that could bring virtually all of Soviet industry to a standstill. The work stoppages, the worst publicly admitted labor unrest to hit the Soviet Union in seven decades of communist rule, began in Siberia 10 days ago and a week later spread to the Ukraine.

Navy calls reports on USS Iowa speculative

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy refused Wednesday to confirm or deny that the lengthy investigation into the USS Iowa explosion has concluded there is a "compelling circumstantial case" to believe Gunner's Mate Clayton Hartwig committed suicide. "The reports you have seen on the Iowa investigation are speculative and do not reflect any official release of a report. The Navy has not released any information concerning the Iowa report," the Navy said in an official response to an NBC News report Tuesday night that was picked up by the major wire services and newspapers.

Scientists discover bones of cannibal victims

LAKE CITY, Colo. (UPI) — Scientists trying to unravel the mystery of cannibal Alfred Packer found a partial skull Wednesday at the supposed gravesite of Packer's five victims. The skull was the 12th bone fragment found by scientists at a memorial to Packer in the southwest Colorado mountains near Lake City. Earlier bones were from a skull, a hand, a foot and a femur, the long bone of the leg. The new bones will be sent to the Arizona State Museum in Tucson to be analyzed and then returned to the memorial site in August.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Lawyers for the state Corrections Department asked an appellate court Wednesday to let the bullets begin flying again at an agency shooting range closed since last August because of safety concerns. Justices of the 4th District Appellate Court heard arguments on whether it is safe to reopen the firing range at the Danville Correctional Center, which stands less than 900 yards from a motel and other buildings.

Librarian to be remembered for work

Colleagues praise Cohn for devotion to helping students

By Christine Broda
Staff Writer

With single-minded perseverance, Alan Cohn devoted himself to the study of James Joyce. To this purpose, he committed his extraordinary skill in biography, his far reaching friendships and his unquestioned position as a scholar.

Cohn, professor of English and humanities bibliographer died of cancer on July 15. He was 63.

Cohn regarded biography as an art, and to it he applied a sophisticated and vivacious mind and the keen perceptions of a man who truly loved his work.

His name evokes recognition in literary circles as a sensitive biographer and a friend of the humanities.

Cohn lectured at the University since 1955.

His dedication was enduring. His working hours were from 8 or 9 a.m. to midnight, and it is said that Cohn never took vacations.

Though he did not earn a doctorate, his associates have said that he could have written a dissertation in his sleep. To Cohn, they said, completing a dissertation was a mere formality, as were professional meetings and readings. Rather, Cohn took tremendous joy in helping people with their academic pursuits. He was the kind of person who would remember what type of research a person was doing and six months later still be finding sources for them.

Colleagues of Cohn stressed his creative research. "He was the kind of researcher who could take you from 'A' to 'C' without having to go to 'B,'" Shelley Cox, rare book librarian, said.

His fellow librarians say that he saved scholars thousands of hours in research time.

"Alan Cohn was able to make creative leaps in research that took you to a new level of knowledge," said David Koch, curator of special collections and University archivist, said.

"He would move mountains to help scholars," Manuel Schonhorn, English professor and long-time friend and associate of Cohn, said.

Cohn has written numerous articles and exhibition catalogs. He was the compiler for the "James Joyce Quarterly" from 1964 to 1989 and his decade compilation of the "Cumulative Dickens Checklist" was published in 1982.

Cohn may be remembered as the builder of the humanities section of the Morris Library. He was instrumental in the development of what is now the second floor of the library and for the strengths of the resources in modern literature and philosophy.

Besides his duties as a reference librarian, Cohn was a compiler of periodic James Joyce and Charles Dickens bibliographies, a guest lecturer for English, music and theater classes, and co-editor of "Icarus," a journal about Morris Library's rare book and archives collections.

Cohn also obtained the Crestman collection of James Joyce for the Morris Library.

His colleagues remember Cohn as a man with an excellent sense of humor. "It (the humor) probably went past a lot of people but he didn't waste on a good many others," said Schonhorn.

Schonhorn said that Cohn was proud of his talent for smelling out genius before the rest of the world.

The most telling of items to this attribution hung on Cohn's wall in his second floor carrel that he occupied since coming to the library: pictures of Billie Holiday, Count Basie, Louis Armstrong and Duke Ellington.

Schonhorn said Cohn was very proud of his neighborhood and developed an interest in early jazz in Southern Illinois.

During his final years, Cohn continued working on Shelley and Joyce.

Memberships include: Bibliographic Society of America, Charles Dickens Society, Modern Language Association and Phi Beta Kappa Association. Cohn was an honorary member of Pi Kappa Delta, and named the Amaco Outstanding Teacher for 1977. He has been president of LA & S Honor Society.

Cohn is survived by his wife, Sally, and his daughter, Kathryn.

Memorials may be made to the Alan M. Cohn Memorial Endowment Fund at the SIU Foundation. Proceeds from the memorial, established by Sally Cohn, will go toward the acquisition, preservation and publication of materials in the humanistic tradition, particularly James Joyce.

A memorial service honoring the memory of Alan Cohn will be held when the fall term begins.

Care Team to sponsor workshop

A Care Team training workshop will be held Aug. 8 through 10 at Mount Vernon. The program is specifically for teachers who want to help students with dysfunctional behaviors.

Participants will learn how to identify students with behavior problems, work with parents and family members of students and provide support for students who want to return to a healthy lifestyle.

The Care Team concept is based on the idea that both teachers and students are entitled to a drug-free environment. The workshop will be held at Mount Vernon High School from 8 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. Aug. 8, 9 and 10. Registration is $40 for the three-day workshop, and must be made before Aug. 1. Participants are eligible for one credit hour of SIU-C Health Education Credit at an additional fee.

Protesters rally against U.S. tax dollars to Contras

By Jackie Lay

"Your taxes killing you? Think what they're doing to Central America."

These were just some of the words written on hand-held signs displayed at Wednesday's rally in front of the federal building.

About 50 people attended, including members of the Southern Illinois Latin American Solidarity Committee.

"What we are trying to do is bring attention to the people of Southern Illinois about the realities of U.S. actions and policies in Central America and elsewhere in the Third World countries," said E.G. Hughes, spokesperson for the SILASC.

The delegation from the SILASC selected to rally at the federal building because FBI and Sen. Paul Simon's, D-Makanda, offices are located there.

"We want to register our protest," Hughes said.

According to Hughes, any complaints filed with the FBI office will be investigated.

According to a statement presented by the SILASC, the committee called for an investigation that would disclose activities of U.S. government officials that violate international and national laws, "especially those which result in war crimes as defined by the Geneva Conventions of 1949, the Genocide Convention of 1948 and the Nuremberg Principles."

"The U.S. government is violating the human rights and supporting it by giving intelligence reports and by training people to terrorize," Hughes said.

"This is a criminal activity, it violates international and national laws."

Included in some of the speeches were examples of the violent activities taking place in Nicaragua, El Salvador and Guatemala.

Mass transit needed, not new parking lots

THE SO-CALLED "parking problem" facing the University has again become a topic of conversation. The Parking and Traffic Committee has approved the construction of two new lots to be installed in the upcoming year.

One lot will be installed behind the Wham Education Building and will be an expansion of lot 29. The new lot will pave over half of Stehr Field. This lot will add an additional 200 red spaces and 88 blue spaces.

The second lot to be installed will be placed behind the Recreation Center. A total of 200 spaces will be added to relieve the "tension" of the existing lot.

THERE ARE enough parking spaces already existing on this campus that there is no need for new lots.

Hundreds of spaces go unused at the Arena parking lot every day.

Marilyn Hogan, campus parking manager, admitted there are empty spaces every day at the lots behind the Rec Center but the parking is two or three blocks away and not used by students who would have to walk.

IT HAS been said many times that our campus in one of the most beautiful in the country. But with the continued destruction of land close to campus this will not last into the future.

It seems that every time a parking lot becomes full someone begs for more parking and the destruction of scenic areas on campus.

If this continues to happen it will not be long before our campus in nothing more than a concrete jungle dotted with an occasional tree or shrub.

IF STUDENTS don't wish to walk to their destinations, then money that would be used to construct new lots should be used to provide mass transit or shuttles from the lots skirting campus.

Parking on this campus is far from being exhausted yet more lots are constantly being considered.

The unused land on campus should be used for construction of academic buildings and facilities, not wasted on parking lots.

The parking problem on campus is blown out of proportion. Spaces are available but go unused. The University should look for other solutions before building unneeded lots.

HUD officials hiding behind the Fifth

"How good is your memory?" Slat Grobnik asked.

It depends on how long we've been sitting at this bar. At the moment, it's in working order.

"OK, then tell me the first time you remember anyone taking the Fifth Amendment?"

That's easy. It was back in the Joe McCarthy days, when congressmen were rooting around Hollywood, the State Department and anywhere else they thought no-good, subversive, commie pinkos might be undermining this country.

"Me, too. I remember watching TV and seeing them ask those movie characters if they were still commies, or if they ever had been commies, or if they had any pals or neighbors, or mudders or foddres, who was commies."

Yes, and many of them took shelter behind the Fifth Amendment, saying they did not choose to say anything that could be self-incriminating.

"So what did people think when they saw them do that?"

Well, most good, solid, patriotic citizens assumed that they were no-good, sleazy subversives.

"That's right. I remember hearing right-wing types saying that if they didn't have nothing to hide, how come they didn't come right out and admit they was guilty."

Yes, but as it turned out, McCarthy and his fellow inquisitors didn't find many commies, although they did succeed in ruining a lot of reputations and careers.

"Ah, petty details. But after that, when was the next time you heard people take the Fifth?"

On a big scale? That was when Congress discovered the crime syndicate and began asking gangsters if they were gangsters.

"Yeah, that always confused me. I mean, everybody knew that guys like Tony Accardo and those other mugs were gangsters. The cops knew it, the FBI knew it, every bartender, bookie, burglar and news guy in America knew it. So why ask a well-known gangster if he's a gangster when you know he's a gangster?"

Mike Royko

Tribune Media Services

Because Congress wanted all decent Americans to know about the menace of organized crime. And to get themselves a bit of TV exposure.

"Yeah, but did it accomplish anything? Most of the mugs had lawyers who would whisper in their ears, then they'd say, 'I take duh Fifth.'" I remember my grandfodder watching on TV, and he said: "Dar's the 10th Fifth he's ordered, and he don't look any drunker then when he took the first."

Interesting reminiscence. But what has brought it on?

"I'll tell you what. All my life, I always thought that anybody who took the Fifth had to be a suspicious character. I didn't think that decent, respectable, honest people would do that."

By decent, respectable and honest, who are you referring to? "Well, like Republicans. They're very big on being decent and respectable and honest."

But what does all this political philosophy have to do with the Fifth Amendment?

"Because I'm shocked. I'm reading the paper and what do I find out? there are Republicans copping the Fifth, just like all those suspicious pinkos and gangsters used to do."

What Republicans?

"The ones who used to be big shots in HUD, when it was tossing around all our money to Republican contractors who had big-time Republicans like James Watt clouting for them and picking up $300,000 consultant fees. I read where some ex-big shot in HUD named Hunter Cushing — how's that for a Republican name? — took the Fifth. And before him, that Deborah Gore Dean — that sounds Republican, too — she took the Fifth."

But that is their constitutional right. People are not required to testify against themselves or to say anything that is self-incriminating.

"Hey, if they didn't do nothing wrong, then what have they got to hide?"

That is not the point. "Yeah, but that was the point back when Joe McCarthy was grilling people. The decent, respectable Republicans always said that if the witnesses didn't have nothing to hide, why didn't they open up, and if they took the Fifth, they must be guilty or they wouldn't be taking the Fifth in the first place. So they got blacklisted from their jobs, and that made the Republicans happy."

True, they did tend to take a harsh view of those who used the Fifth as a shield.

"So I want to know what this Hunter Cushing — he sounds like a polo player — and this Deborah Gore Dean — she sounds like a debutante — got to hide? If they didn't do anything wrong, they ought to say what they didn't do. Or at least squeal on somebody who did."

You know, you're starting to sound like a Republican.

"Well, why should they have all the fun?"

NASA awaits executive word on charting new space goal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Bush is charting a new course in space two decades after the first moon landing, but the White House said Wednesday no decisions had been made and Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, warned NASA "is in trouble."

Bush is scheduled to make a major space policy address Thursday, the 20th anniversary of the landing, in a ceremony at the National Air and Space Museum featuring Apollo 11 astronauts Neil Armstrong, Buzz Aldrin and Michael Collins.

Armstrong and Aldrin, carried to the Sea of Tranquility aboard the lunar module Eagle, set foot on the moon July 20, 1969. Collins remained in orbit aboard the Apollo command module Columbia.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Wednesday NASA has "recommended language that suggests going on to the moon, establishing a station there and then proceeding on to Mars."

"But it is under review, there is a lot of analysis that needs to be considered, especially in terms of the costs, timetables," Fitzwater said. "I just don't know what the president is going to do."

With the huge federal budget deficit threatening ambitious plans for a space station and other projects, Garn, who flew in space in 1985 aboard the shuttle Discovery, issued a warning.

"The space program of this country is in trouble," Garn said at an anniversary luncheon Wednesday. "We need help and we need it now."

Space program supporters believe interest in the 20th anniversary of Apollo 11 provides an opportunity to win support for something NASA is lacking — a goal.

President John Kennedy in 1961 set the United States on its course to the moon in an historic address to Congress.

"I believe that this nation should commit itself to achieving the goal, before this decade is out, of landing a man on the moon and returning him safely to Earth," Kennedy said.

Many people in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, as well as in other quarters, are looking to Bush for a bold commitment.

But at a news conference in May marking the Apollo 11 anniversary, Collins said times have changed.

"President Bush, whom I consider to be a president as dynamic as Kennedy, I think, in today's climate would have to say, 'I think we ought to dedicate ourselves to the goal of perhaps considering appointing a commission, after due deliberation with the Congress, of investigating the feasibility of certain long-range goals for the space program, perhaps even including a mission to Mars,'" Collins said.

NASA Administrator Richard Truly said Wednesday he did not know what Bush would propose in his speech Thursday, but he noted if NASA receives money to build the space station, the United States could return to the moon "around the turn of the century."

Counterfeiting exists nationwide, agent says

By Richard Goldstein
Staff Writer

Counterfeit bills in Southern Illinois may seem like a novel phenomenon, but a Springfield Secret Service agent said the crime has existed for as long as American currency, and imitating legal tender remains a relatively simple process to this day.

Agent Dodson Reeves of the Springfield Secret Service field office said that at one point in the nineteenth century nearly one-third of the paper currency in the United States was counterfeit.

This state of affairs, Reeves said, prompted Congress to pass stiff penalties for the use and manufacture of phony currency.

For knowing possession, manufacture or passing of a single counterfeit bill as legal tender a maximum sentence of 15 years each in a federal penitentiary is possible.

This means a counterfeiter could receive 45 years in jail for the printing and passing of just one bill.

But, Reeves said, counterfeiters do not go to the trouble of setting up a counterfeiting operation to print a single bill. He said the printing of millions of dollars in phony money at one spell is more common.

Often however, fake money will be identified by banks and the culprit apprehended before most of it makes its way into circulation, Reeves said.

Although he said there is no way of knowing exactly how much money is counterfeited each year, Reeves said at least 90 percent of the counterfeit money is identified before it is passed on to the public.

Though higher in cities and lower in rural areas, Reeves estimated that less than 0.1 percent of the circulating currency in the country is phony.

But that's not because counterfeiting paper money is extraordinarily difficult.

Any print shop owner has the necessary equipment to print paper money that looks similar to the real thing, Reeves explains.

Here's the process generally used:

A genuine bill is photographed and the negative image impressed on an aluminum plate used for offset printing.

knowing delivery, possession or manufacture of counterfeit money is a federal crime punishable by a maximum sentence of 15 years in prison.

Dodson Reeves, special agent in charge of the Springfield Secret Service office, said the trail of this series of counterfeit bills began on July 10 and leads came from western Indiana near Terre Haute to the southwestern corner of Indiana near Evansville on the same day. Reeves said the bills were passed in the Carbondale-Marion area on July 11 and discovered the next day.

In Carbondale, Reeves said, the bills "dead ended" and the series hasn't turned up in any other location.

Reeves said a Southern Illinois resident is not suspected of handing out the bills, rather it is thought that someone with phony bills was traveling through town and passed them off on unsuspecting merchants.

Rusty Conner, Security Manager for Sears Roebuck and Co., in the University Mall, said one counterfeit bill was taken by the store.

He said police notified the store last week to watch out for bills fitting the description of those found in Indiana.

Local banks originally reported the phony bills the day after they were passed, Reeves said.

"The campus is doing a great job," Manis said. "This is mostly about off-campus buildings," he added.

Jones said he hopes the decline in false alarms at the University continues.

"If it keeps going like it is, we won't be affected at all," Jones said, referring to the proposed ordinance.

Kirk said the housing office tries to educate students as to the seriousness of such actions.

"Our concern is that people will become casual about the alarms and someone will get injured or killed," he said.

Councilman John Yow said the city should take some action to deal with the problem.

"In light of the excessive number of false alarms, both this year and last, we need to take action on this," he said.

Mayor Neil Dillard, who lives near one of the city's fire stations, said many times he had seen fire trucks roaring down the street, only to return a short time later.

"I can see where this would be dangerous in a residential area," he said.

Robert J. Clement, director of the ISSC, said this is the first time the federal government has stepped in to handle the collections.

"They just want to make sure people obey the law," Clement said. "If you take out a loan, you must pay it back."

Pilot of mystery flight seen moving before crash

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI) — Pilot Thomas Root, who claims he was unconscious during his bizarre 1,000-mile flight along the East Coast, moved his head to the right and to the left while he was being followed by military aircraft, a federal investigator said Wednesday.

Andrew Alston, lead investigator in the Root case for the National Transportation Safety Board, also told a news conference that blood tests showed Root did not have any carbon monoxide in his blood when he crashed into the Atlantic Ocean following his wayward flight. It has been speculated that Root passed out from carbon monoxide leaking into the cockpit.

Alston said military pilots tracking Root, 36, during his ordeal last week reported seeing his head turn and his plane's sun visor in "three different positions."

"Pilots reported that the pilot's head was turned — as they intercepted him from the left he turned his head to the right, if they intercepted from the right, he turned to the left," Alston said.

Alston declined to speculate on Root's actions and said the FBI would investigate for any possible criminal activity.

Root remained in stable condition Wednesday at Hollywood Memorial Hospital and was expected to be released within a week, a hospital spokeswoman said.

While en route Thursday to Rocky Mount, N.C., from Washington National Airport outside the nation's capital, the lawyer and private pilot radioed that he was short of breath and had chest pains. He then activated his Cessna 210's automatic pilot and apparently lost consciousness.

With Marine Corps planes tracking Root, the single-engine plane flew until it ran out of gas and crashed into the Atlantic Ocean near the Bahamas. Root survived the crash and swam to a life raft dropped by military rescuers.

The story took a strange twist Friday, when police said Root had been shot in the stomach sometime before his rescue. Root has said he had no recollection of the shooting or his wayward flight.

Root had told Alston during a weekend meeting that he did not shoot himself and that a Smith & Wesson .32-caliber pistol in the plane's glove compartment must have fired by itself on impact with the water.

Multimillionaire extradited to U.S. to face charges

NEW YORK (UPI) — Saudi Arabian multimillionaire Adnan Khashoggi arrived in the United States in handcuffs Wednesday to face charges of fraud for his business dealings on behalf of exiled Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos.

Khashoggi, a key middleman in the Iran-Contra scandal, arrived at Kennedy International Airport from Switzerland, where he had been jailed for the past three months at the request of the United States.

Wearing a tailored green leisure suit, Khashoggi traveled first-class aboard a SwissAir jetliner, flanked by two plainclothes Swiss police officers who formally turned him over to U.S. authorities on arrival at the airport.

He emerged from the plane in handcuffs and was met by federal authorities, who loaded him into a car that sped him to the International Arrivals Building for a 50-minute trip through customs, public health and immigration checks.

Afterward, authorities whisked him in another car to Manhattan and arraignment in U.S. District Court.

Khashoggi, once a billionaire arms dealer, was arrested in the Bern, Switzerland, April 18. He spent 13 weeks in Bern district prison, with a team of lawyers fighting a U.S. request for extradition. He later agreed not to fight the extradition.

The Marcoses, Khashoggi and six others initially were charged in federal court in October 1986, with stealing $103 million in Philippine funds, and then defrauding U.S. banks of $165 million to buy prime Manhattan properties between 1972 and 1978.

Then, in a superseding indictment handed up March 9, prosecutors charged that group illegally obtained an additional $77 million, although not necessarily from the Philippines.

Imelda Marcos is the only person arraigned on the original indictment handed up in October 1986. She is out on $5 million bail. Ferdinand Marcos, the deposed Philippine president now seriously ill in a Hawaii hospital, was ordered to stand trial separately, but only if he recovers.

Swiss officials said they did not know if there was an understanding that Khashoggi,

53, would be released on bail soon after his arrival in New York but an American diplomat recently called Khashoggi "a small fish who can be used to catch the big ones."

Vocational Education Studies gets $68,000 gift

By Irene Oplow
Staff Writer

The Department of Vocational Education Studies has received a gift of $68,000 in memory of a University doctoral student.

The gift, received from the estate of Helen E. Lincoln in memory of her daughter, will be used to select an individual to serve as the Anita Lincoln Pinkham Distinguished Scholar.

A post-doctoral fellow or faculty member from another institution will be chosen to come to the University for a short period of time and work with the home economics faculty.

"This will allow the department to attract someone who is outstanding in the field and we will be provided with the benefit of their expertise," Phyllis Bubnas, coordinator of home economics education, said.

Pinkham came to the University in the winter of 1966 to work on her doctorate in home economics. Prior to her doctoral studies, Pinkham was the state dietician for the State Hospitals and Institutions in Indiana.

After receiving her doctorate in 1968, she became professor and head of home economics at Southwest Missouri State College. She received tenure after her first year.

Both Anna Carol Fuhs, her professor at the University, and the provost from Southwest Missouri, spoke of Pinkham's skill in human relations and in her genuine desire to help people, Bubnas said.

Although there is no longer a doctorate offered in home economics at the University, students can receive a doctorate in vocational education with a home economic specialty.

The scholar will be chosen by the chairperson of the Department of Vocational Education and Home Economics faculty.

House members seek ethics probe of colleague

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three House Democrats asked the ethics committee Wednesday to investigate published allegations by a Peace Corps volunteer that Rep. Gus Savage, D-Ill., sexually assaulted her in Kinshasa, Zaire.

The allegation was reported by The Washington Post. The newspaper said Savage, who is black, angrily declined to discuss the incident, saying, "Ask me the same kind of questions you ask white congressmen. You don't ask white congressmen questions like that."

Savage was in no mood to talk with reporters. Just outside the House chamber Wednesday, he shouted an obscenity at a Chicago Tribune reporter. She asked him for a comment and Savage said loudly: "Stay the — out of my face" — waving his finger in the reporter's face.

Meanwhile, Democratic Reps. Patricia Schroeder of Colorado, Matthew McHugh of New York and Barney Frank of Massachusetts wrote to the House Ethics Committee seeking an investigation.

They said they had no independent knowledge of the matter, but said: "We believe that the accusation is sufficiently serious to justify your looking into it."

If the ethics committee investigates, it could conclude there was reason to believe Savage had violated House rules, conduct a hearing and then recommend a punishment — such as a reprimand or censure. It also could conclude he did not violate House rules.

Savage's office did not return a call for comment on the story.

The 28-year-old woman, unidentified because of the Post's policy of not identifying those alleging sexual assaults, said the incident occurred March 19 while she was working as a Peace Corps volunteer in Kinshasa and while the congressman was on an official visit to the African capital.

She said she had been invited to a private dinner at the U.S. ambassador's residence and then was asked to brief Savage on the workings of the Peace Corps at the invitation of a supervisor who, the Post reported, repeatedly stressed the importance of making a good impression to assure additional funding in Congress.

The Post said that according to a U.S. diplomat, the woman accompanied Savage and several others on a tour of Kinshasa night life and, at Savage's insistence, rode alone with the congressman in a chauffeur-driven car.

Court affirms driving permits in DUI cases can be appealed SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The Supreme Court Wednesday ruled the secretary of state's office can appeal orders from the circuit courts to issue judicial driving permits for drunken drivers.

Secretary of State Jim Edgar's office had sought permission from the high court to bring the appellate court challenges. In February 1988, the 2nd Appellate Court ruled the secretary of state had no legal standing to challenge the permit orders when his office believes the judicial driving permits should not be issued.

State law allows the judicial driving permits, issued to allow drunken drivers to drive to work during certain times or for other specified purposes, only if a driver has not had a previous DUI conviction in the past five years, or following hearings for repeat offenders by Edgar's office. But a circuit court ordered a judicial driving permit for a driver whose second conviction came four years and nine months after a previous DUI conviction.

Under procedure set by state law, Edgar's office returned the permit order to the court that issued the order, stating the permit should not be issued. The court resubmitted the order to the secretary of state's office that the permit be issued.

When Edgar's office appealed the circuit court order in the appellate court, the challenge was dismissed because Edgar's office was not a party to the case and had no legal standing.

But the Supreme Court, on a 4-3 vote, disagreed, saying the secretary of state's office has broad authority over matters of the Illinois Vehicle Code and judicial driving permit proceedings.

"Certainly, if the court denied the issuance of the JDP or agreed with the secretary that the order was improperly granted, the petitioner could appeal. However, faced with the reverse situation, where the JDP was issued and the court does not agree with the secretary, some party must have authority to determine the propriety of the order through the appellate process," Justice Howard Ryan wrote for the court.

Justices Horace Calvo, John Stamos and William Clark disagreed with the court's ruling, saying that the Legislature did not intend for the secretary of state's office to have power to appeal court orders to issue judicial driving permits.

Man found guilty of rape, murder receives 110-year prison sentence

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — A man formerly from north St. Louis County has been sentenced to 110 years in prison for the rape and murder of a woman who was abducted while Christmas shopping in 1982.

Walter Lee Harvey Jr., 26, formerly of Moline Acres, Mo., was found guilty Tuesday by St. Clair County Chief Circuit Judge Stephen Kernan after an abbreviated bench trial.

Prosecutors had agreed to drop their demand for the death penalty in exchange for Harvey's stipulation to the evidence against him. Kernan immediately sentenced Harvey to consecutive terms of 80 years for murder and 30 years for rape.

Harvey was convicted in the killing of Donna Decker, who was abducted with her husband from a parking lot in north St. Louis County while Christmas shopping on Dec. 14, 1982.

The normal maximum sentence for murder in Illinois is 40 years, but Kernan ruled the crime was "exceptionally brutal and heinous behavior, indicative of wanton cruelty."

Harvey will serve the sentences concurrently with the 120 years he already is serving for kidnapping and other federal crimes in the same case.

Investigators said they believed Decker's husband, Gary, was shot to death, apparently while trying to protect his wife, shortly after Harvey and an accomplice forced the couple into their own car. Donna Decker was driven to East St. Louis, where she was raped and shot to death.

Harvey twice was convicted in St. Louis County Circuit Court for the murder of Gary Decker, but both convictions were overturned.

Harvey's co-defendant, Raphael Clark, 27, formerly of the St. Louis suburb of Jennings, Mo., is serving a sentence in Missouri of life in prison without parole for 50 years for Gary Decker's murder, as well as a 120-year sentence for kidnapping and other federal crimes.

Convicted spy sues public station for allegedly breaking a promise

BENTON, Ill. (UPI) — Convicted spy John A. Walker Jr. is suing public television for $25,000 for allegedly failing to live up to a promise to explore his brother's role in the spy ring.

Walker, who is serving a life sentence, filed suit against the Public Broadcasting Service, Frontline Inc., television producer William Cran, reporter Scott Malone and assistant producer Stephanie Tepper.

A court spokesman said Wednesday the suit was filed July 5 in U.S. District Court East St. Louis and was transferred to Benton. No hearing has been scheduled, the spokesman said.

Walker, 51, has been in the Marion federal prison since May 1987. He was convicted in 1986 of spying for the Soviet Union and is eligible for parole in 1995.

The suit charges Walker agreed to be interviewed on the television program "Frontline," which was aired in January, on the condition the defendants would also interview his brother, Arthur Walker, who also was sentenced to life for spying.

The suit says the defendants failed both to interview Arthur Walker and present his case as promised. John Walker has argued ever since his arrest that his brother was guilty only of poor judgment, was a minor player in the spy ring and did not deserve a life sentence.

In the suit, John Walker said he was defrauded and said the program could not have been done without him. He said "Frontline" averaged about $350,000 in revenue per program.

Bush briefs congressional leaders on recent trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Excited and enthusiastic, President Bush told congressional leaders Wednesday about his recent trip to Poland and Hungary, vividly describing the crowds he saw.

"He was excited about the trip," said Sen. Bob Packwood of Oregon, ranking Republican member of the Senate Finance Committee.

Packwood recalled that Bush said the visit to Gdansk, Poland, birthplace of the Solidarity Movement, was "absolutely monumental" and quoted Solidarity leader Lech Walesa as saying, "Oh my God, oh my God ... the size of the crowd."

Both Packwood and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, indicated they would support financial aid packages Bush promised, including modest sums of $100 million for Poland and $25 million for Hungary to encourage private enterprise.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said that the assistance money already is earmarked in foreign aid legislation.

"Yes, I'll support it," said Bentsen, who added he was "delighted to see the president's enthusiasm about what's happening in Eastern Europe."

Bush returned to the White House Tuesday afternoon from the 10-day trip that took him to the two communist nations, to Paris for an economic summit and then to the Netherlands for a brief visit.

The president also arranged to brief his Cabinet later in the day on his journey.

But Bush has to contend with Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who has served notice that he will fight the aid packages for the communist countries.

"I'll share with him, we all will, and others who haven't benefited from the experience that all of us had from this trip," Bush said.

He said he would tell Helms: "Look, there were times when I felt exactly as you might have felt."

The president said he has "a very pleasant relationship" with Helms.

"Any senator who is interested in listening to the collective observations of all of us here ... we all came away with genuine feelings of genuine change," Bush added.

"I would think the American people need to know how strongly we feel about this," Bush said, referring to the dramatic political and economic changes taking place in both countries. "But our eyes are wide open. Nobody's guaranteeing that everything's swimmingly rosy. And I will make that point clear too."

Bush gave a preview to the Cabinet upon his return Tuesday when members gathered with other dignitaries and well-wishers to welcome home him and his wife, Barbara.

Bush then gave Cabinet members an overview of his trip and called them back Wednesday for a more substantive briefing.

.2 percent inflation increase in June displays easing off

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Inflation eased slightly in June, rising a moderate 0.2 percent during the month as energy and clothing prices fell, and food prices leveled off after sharp hikes earlier in the year, the government reported Wednesday.

The increase in the the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index was the smallest since February 1988, and followed steep 0.6 percent and 0.7 percent jumps in April and May that had analysts worried that spiraling inflation might return.

Combined with last week's report that producer inflation dropped 0.1 percent in June, the modest growth in consumer inflation should reassure the Federal Reserve and financial markets that inflation, if above the low levels of 1986 and 1987, is not out of control.

So far this year, inflation has advanced at a 5.9 percent annual rate, the biggest December-to-June increase since 1982.

But subtracting food and energy prices, which tend to be volatile and drove the inflation rate up earlier this year, inflation rose 0.2 percent in June and at a 4.5 percent annual rate for the first six months of the year.

At the White House, chief administration economist Michael Boskin predicted inflation "will abate substantially" in the second half of the year.

"We remain confident in the ability of the economy to sustain its growth while controlling and ultimately reducing inflation," he said.

Analysts generally agreed with Boskin that the year's worst inflation already had occurred.

"We should go from a rate of 5.5 percent to 6 percent during the first half of the year to a 3 percent to 5 percent rate during the second half," predicted Stacy Kottman, assistant director of the Economic Forecasting Center at Georgia State University.

"Over time we will see some drop in the inflation rate particularly if we see the economy continue to weaken," added Michael Penzer, a senior economist with Bank of America in San Francisco.

"But as long as the unemployment rate remains low, there is going to be a tendency for inflation to stay rather high."

The Federal Reserve forced up short-term interest rates by 3 percent from March 1988 to February 1989 to slow down the economy and keep inflation down, although in recent weeks it has eased its credit policies.

But an OPEC production agreement pushed energy prices up early this year and last year's drought drove food prices higher. So far this year, energy prices have risen at a 17 percent annual rate, while food has climbed at a 6.9 percent annual rate.

Breaking out Wednesday's report, apparel and upkeep prices dropped a sharp 1.1 percent during the month after 0.3 percent and 0.8 percent increases in April and May. The department said that end-of-the-season prices, especially for women's clothing, fell more steeply than usual.

U.S.-Korean jet deal unconcluded; 43,000 American troops to remain

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and South Korea's defense minister concluded a three-day security conference Wednesday without reaching agreement on a controversial Korean proposal to co-produce U.S. jet fighters.

Cheney said he strongly urged the South Koreans to buy F-16 or FA-18 jets directly from the United States rather than seeking a co-production agreement that is opposed by some members of Congress.

"I would like to get the best possible deal," Cheney said at a news conference attended by South Korean Defense Minister Lee Sang Hoon. "It's still under negotiation."

At the 21st annual Security Consultative Meeting, U.S. and Korean defense officials also agreed there would be no immediate attempt to withdraw any of the 43,000 U.S. troops in South Korea.

Lee said he and Cheney "reaffirmed the importance and need of the U.S. forces in Korea, sharing in the view that any immediate reduction or withdrawal of U.S. forces in Korea cannot be considered at this time."

Several members of Congress have introduced or are drafting bills to require reductions of 10,000 or more U.S. troops in South Korea by the early 1990s, but Cheney said, "I think the overwhelming majority of members of Congress will, in fact, support our present policy."

Cheney said he and Lee discussed Seoul's proposal to enter into a $2.6 billion contract to co-produce 120 U.S. jet fighters for its air force, either the F-16 or the FA-18.

Talks about the possible co-production have been under way for four years, and the United States has been expecting Seoul for months to choose between the two jet fighters so a formal agreement can be signed.

Sens. John Heinz, R-Pa., and Alan Dixon, D-Ill., are leading the fight against the proposed deal. They contend it would give the Koreans vital U.S. technology, allowing them to build a civil aviation industry that could later challenge the U.S. aviation industry.

Comparing it to the administration's controversial FSX fighter agreement with Japan, the two senators introduced legislation Monday that would place strict conditions on any similar deal with South Korea.

Lee said the South Korean government will select either the F-16 or FA-18 as its new air force jet "toward the end of August or early part of September," adding that it had eliminated consideration of the British Tornado or French Mirage.

"The No. 1 requirement, I believe, is to see to it that the Republic of Korea has the necessary equipment to upgrade its air force," Cheney said.

"The United States and I personally have ... urged them to the maximum extent possible to buy off-the-shelf aircraft in the United States. We have also been exploring these other options.

Cheney declined comment on a report North Korea may be developing a nuclear weapons capability.

'Classic sick fan' could have murdered actress

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — THE MAN WHO STAKED OUT actress Rebecca Schaeffer's apartment and shot her to death as she opened her door may have been a deranged fan, detectives said Wednesday.

Schaeffer, 21, who co-starred in the television series "My Sister Sam," was shot in the chest at 10:15 a.m. Tuesday when she opened the security door of her apartment in the city's Fairfax district.

Detectives said Wednesday they were working on the theory that a fan had stalked the actress.

"I BASE THAT ON the fact that I find it hard to believe that an ex-boyfriend or anyone else would stand out in front of her apartment in broad daylight and make no attempt to conceal himself and then murder her," detective Dan Andrews said.

"(It) smacks of the classic sick fan," he said.

The killer, Andrews said,

"was apparently in the neighborhood earlier that morning with a photograph of the victim and asked a pedestrian if she had seen the victim. That again is a fan, not a boyfriend," he said.

DETECTIVES WERE questioning friends and acquaintances of the actress to see whether there had been any incidents of harassment that went unreported to police.

Detectives questioned the actress's boyfriend but he was not considered a suspect, Andrews said. They said they were asking her publicity agents for the names of fans who had recently requested her photo.

Schaeffer's agent, Jonathan Howard, said the actress did not have any enemies.

"She was one of the nicest people I've ever known — sincere, honest and kind," Howard said.

Detectives said the gunman rang the doorbell at Schaeffer's apartment and waited for her to open the glass security door.

A NEIGHBOR, Kenneth Newell, heard the shot and found Schaeffer on the ground outside the door, which was splattered with her blood.

"I felt her pulse; I couldn't feel any," Newell said.

Schaeffer was pronounced dead on arrival at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center.

It was not known whether Schaeffer, who lived alone, saw the gunman, or whether he concealed himself before she opened the door, Andrews said.

"There is the possibility she saw and recognized the suspect. Another possibility is (that) he might have stepped to the side... out of the view of the door. The third possibility is that she merely was going outside to leave or pick up a paper or whatever and was confronted by the suspect," Andrews said.

Neighbors told police the man was seen loitering in the area throughout the day, beginning about 6:30 a.m., he said.

AFTER SHOOTING Schaeffer at close range, the gunman fled on foot.

The gunman was described as between 20 and 30 years old, about 5-foot-7, with curly brown hair. He was wearing a yellow shirt, jeans and floppy sandals, Andrews said.

Schaeffer co-starred with Pam Dawber on CBS's short-lived "My Sister Sam." The sitcom was the young actress's big break, Howard said.

Born Nov. 6, 1967, Schaeffer grew up in Portland, Ore., and started modeling at 14. Less than two years later she went to New York to pursue her modeling career. Her parents, Ben and Dana Schaeffer, still live in Portland.

SCHAEFFER APPEARED in Seventeen magazine, went briefly to Japan for more modeling assignments and returned to New York.

A few months later, Schaeffer landed a small part in the television soap opera "One Life to Live." She did commercials and finished up high school at New York's Professional Children's School.

Schaeffer won the role as Dawber's teenage sister in the sitcom in 1986. The show opened to mixed reviews in October 1986 and ran through the season and in parts of the next. The last episode aired in April 1988.

"WORDS CANNOT EXPRESS the grief and rage that I feel," Dawber said in a statement from New York. "My question is, why? My heart and sorrow go to her mother and father for losing such a beautiful child."

Schaeffer recently completed work on a new film "One Point of View" starring Dyan Cannon. Schaeffer played the Cannon character in teenage years. The film has yet to be released.

Toddler starts car, drives into lane of traffic; officer injured in rescue

BOSTON (UPI) — A 22-month-old toddler left alone in a car while her mother talked with a police officer started the car and drove into rush hour traffic until the officer gave chase on foot and stopped the vehicle.

"She's smart, I'm telling you. She's a daredevil," Joel Guarino, 31, of Everett, said Wednesday of her daughter, Rochelle.

Metropolitan Police Officer James Rooney had pulled Guarino's car over on the Southeast Expressway during Tuesday's afternoon rush hour when the incident occurred.

Rooney and Guarino were inspecting the vehicle's rear license plate when Rochelle wriggled out of her car seat, crawled behind the wheel, turned the car on and shifted it into drive.

"I was facing him and he was facing the car. All of a sudden his eyes lit up. And I said 'What?', and he didn't say anything. He just made a mad dash for the car," Guarino said.

Both Guarino and Rooney managed to get the moving car's front door open before the officer told the woman to "Get out of here," Guarino said.

As the tearful mother looked on, Rooney reached in through the driver's door, wrestled the gear shift into the park position and slammed on the brakes — just as the car was drifting in front of an oncoming 18-wheeler.

Rooney suffered a minor injury to his hand in the rescue, police said.

"I could tell he was hurt," Guarino said. "He had to walk away from me for five minutes and collect himself. He was rubbing his hand."

Minutes later, the officer was called to the scene of a nearby car accident and left a sobbing but grateful Guarino to drive home without so much as a traffic ticket.

1989 SUMMER FINAL EXAM SCHEDULE

Because of the limited number of examination periods available, no departmental examination times are scheduled for the Summer. The following points are pertinent to the final examination schedule:

1. The class final exam period is scheduled based on the meeting time and days listed on the first line of the class entry in the up-to-date Schedule of Classes book (which should be the same as the first printed line for the section on the registered student's schedule print-out). For example, a class section is listed in the Schedule book on two lines in the manner:
07:30 - 08:30 T TH
08:40 - 09:40 W F

The scheduled class time for the first line of the entry starts with "07" and the meeting days for that line are "T TH" only. Therefore the exam time is 10:00 - 11:50 a.m. Friday, August 4, as is indicated on the attached Summer 1989 Final Examination Schedule.

Classes that meet less than the entire semester should hold their exams during the last regularly scheduled class session prior to final examinations.

2. Classes should plan to hold their final examination in their regularly scheduled class rooms. The space scheduling section of the Office of Admissions and Records will forward to departments information relative to the location for examinations for those classes that cannot hold their examinations in their regularly scheduled rooms because of a space conflict. This will be done sufficiently in advance of the final examination days to provide adequate notice for all.

3. Students who find they have more than three examinations on one day may petition, and students who have two examinations scheduled at one time should petition their academic dean for approval to take an examination during the make-up examination period on the last day. Provision for such a make-up examination period does not mean that students may decide to miss the scheduled examination time and expect to make it up during this make-up period. This period is to be used only for students whose petitions have been approved by their dean.

4. Students who must miss a final examination may not take an examination before the time scheduled for the class examination. Information relative to the proper grade to be given students who miss a final examination and are not involved in a situation covered in the preceding paragraph will be found in the mimeographed memorandum forwarded to members of the instructional staff at the time they receive the final grade listing for the recording of grades

1. One credit hour courses, and classes scheduled for meeting dates less than the full 8-week session have their examinations during the last regularly scheduled class period prior to the two formal exam days.

2. Other classes (those scheduled for the full 8-week session) should hold their final exams according to the following:

'Finian's Rainbow' tells story of Irish man who steals gold

By Carrie Pomeroy
Staff Writer

"Finian's Rainbow," showing July 21-23 and July 27-30, will end McLeod Theatre's Summer Playhouse '89 with music, magic and romance.

The musical tells the tale of Irishman Finian McLonergan, who steals a crock of gold from Og the Leprechaun and brings the crock to America's Rainbow Valley. Eager to produce a bumper crop of millionaires by burying his gold in Rainbow Valley's fertile soil, Finian brings a little Old World magic to America.

Director and choreographer Lori Merrill-Fink, who recently choreographed the McLeod Theatre production of "South Pacific," said there's more to this musical than famous songs like "How Are Things in Glocca Mora?" "Look to the Rainbow," and "That Old Devil Moon."

"There are a lot of hidden jewels in this musical," she said. "Finian's Rainbow" has an unusually high number of major, full-cast production numbers, Merrill-Fink mentioned. Among the play's production numbers is an Irish jig, a religious, gospel-tinged number, and a song featuring snobby, upper-crust characters.

"There's very little time when people are alone on stage," Merrill-Fink said, emphasizing the musical's ample use of its ensemble cast of 25 adults and 9 children.

Merrill-Fink also mentioned that the setting of the play draws the audience in and makes them care about the musical's characters.

Rainbow Valley is a close-knit "family-community" in which people work hard and dream big, she said. The show's action unfolds at The Meetin' Place or town square, which emphasizes the small-town spirit of the play.

Merrill-Fink described the musical as a powerfully emotional experience that covers a wide range of themes from greed and bigotry to love and hope.

"I won't be surprised if there are a few eyes welling up in the audience," Merrill-Fink said.

The cast of "Finian's Rainbow" already will be familiar to audience members who saw "South Pacific" earlier this summer. William Kirksey, who Merrill-Fink jokingly described as "this Summer Playhouse's warhorse," plays Finian. Linda Moshier, who had the lead role of Nelly in "South Pacific," plays Sharon.

Other cast members include Clay Hulsey as Og, Timothy Fink as Woody, Rob Hurst as the greedy, bigoted Senator Rawkins and Mark Mendelsohn as Buzz, his shifty aide.

"Finian's Rainbow" also features several children in the cast, including Mandy Boyd, Jason Fischman, Tristan Kraft, Carrie Shannon, Porter Schermerhorn, and Andria Wilson in the chorus, and Jessica Cashon, Julia Stemper, and Eric Chappell in speaking parts.

The musical will be performed at 8 p.m. on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays and at 2 p.m. for Sunday matinees. Tickets are $8 for adults, $7 for senior citizens, $6 for children under 12, and $4 for students with valid I.D.

For ticket information, call the McLeod Theatre Box Office at 453-3001.

Navajo mystery author concedes mistakes in his books are typical

Scripte Howard News Service

Tony Hillerman would be the first to admit that he has never written a flawless book.

"Who was it (who) said a novel is a long work of fiction with something wrong with it?" he said the other day in an interview in Kansas City. "Some famous fellow said that, a novelist. There's sure something wrong with all of mine."

Hillerman was talking about some of the reaction to his latest mystery novel, "Talking God" (Harper & Row, $17.95).

The book is the latest in his captivating series of crime stories centering on two officers of the Navajo Tribal Police and the haunting landscapes of the desert Southwest.

After a snowballing readership, a groundswell of critical acclaim and an inextinguishable climb up the bestseller lists, Hillerman has received less than universal cheers for "Talking God."

Perhaps it's only that in such books as "Dance Hall of the Dead," "Skinwalkers" and "A Thief of Time," Hillerman set standards that mere mortals can't be expected to achieve every time. Novelists, after all, are only human.

"Talking God" has two serpentine plot lines that take Hillerman's crime solvers, Officer Jim Cooe and Lt. Joe Leaphorn, away from the reservation to Washington, each unbeknownst to the other.

"In my own mind," Hillerman said, "I think I disappoint a lot of readers by spending so much time in a strange landscape that I don't know, my policemen don't know, in Washington."

Fignon takes over LeMond's yellow jersey in Tour

L'ALPE D'HUEZ, France (UPI) — French rider Laurent Fignon took the lead in the final climb of a 100-mile stage in the Alps to wrest the yellow leader's jersey Wednesday from American Greg LeMond in the 76th Tour de France.

Fignon, who has jockeyed back and forth for the lead with LeMond, built a 26-second lead over the American in the overall standings.

"I was feeling strong this morning, but I didn't think it was possible to get the lead back," said Fignon, who had been slumping and started the day 53 seconds behind LeMond.

The Frenchman, winner of the Tour of Italy, made his move in the final stretch of the 17th stage, which began in Briançon.

LeMond, who had stayed close to Fignon and Spaniard Pedro Delgado throughout the day, finally faltered at the end of the seven-mile climb to 6,000 feet.

"At the foot of the mountain, I pushed to try to quicken the pace," Fignon said. "Greg responded each time. Seven kilometers from the finish, I saw he (LeMond) was hurting. I decided to wait, and at four kilometers, I attacked, and he finally fell back."

The breakaway winner in the stage was Dutchman Gert-Jan Theunisse in five hours, 10 minutes, 39 seconds. Delgado caught Fignon and edged him at the finish line for second place, with both at 1:09 back.

LeMond placed fourth, at 2:28, falling into second place overall.

Delgado's performance enabled him to climb into third place overall, at 1:55 off Fignon's pace.

Paraplegic climber goes up

Disabled by fall, ranger takes on 3,500-foot El Capitan ascent

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (UPI) — Dressed in leather padding that made him look like a hockey goalie, paraplegic ranger Mark Wellman began climbing the famed El Capitan in Yosemite National Park Wednesday.

Wellman, 29, who was paralyzed from the waist down in a 50-foot fall seven years ago, hoped to complete the climb up the western face of the 3,500-foot monolith in seven days.

With climbing companion Mike Corbett, a veteran of more than three dozen El Capitan climbs, Wellman set out on the difficult shield route, using a specially adapted ascender with a two-handed pull bar attached.

Wellman and Corbett, a worker at the Yosemite Medical Clinic who is known as "Mr. El Cap" because of his 41 previous climbs of the monolith, have been training for six months, making smaller climbs in other areas of the park and part way up easier routes on El Capitan, a giant slab of granite.

Wellman is a naturalist lecturer in the park and also is director of Yosemite's handicapped access program. He has been confined to a wheelchair since 1982 when he was paralyzed from the waist down in a fall while hiking in the John Muir Wilderness.

Corbett will lead the ascent and fix the climbing ropes and then Wellman will pull himself up the ropes on the ascender with his hands, arms and shoulders.

Wellman and Corbett carried about 200 pounds of gear, which they will drag up on ropes during the climb. Their gear includes ropes, sleeping bags, clothing and food.

Before beginning the climb, Wellman said they hoped to reach Mammoth Ledge, at the 900-foot level, by nightfall. They will spend each night camped on ledges during the climb and expect to complete the climb about noon next Tuesday.

As they approached the base of El Capitan to begin the climb, Wellman's wheelchair was blocked by rocks. Corbett carried his friend on his back the final half mile to where they began the climb.

Wellman said the El Capitan climb is something he has been thinking about for the past year and a half.

Despite the presence of television cameras and reporters, Wellman said he didn't consider the climb anything special.

"It's just a climb," he said. "It's not like Mike and I are new to this. We've been training for six months."

Corbett said that by the time he and Wellman complete the ascent, Wellman will have done the equivalent of 7,000 pull-ups.

Just before they began climbing, Corbett helped Wellman strap on the leather padding that will protect his body as he pulls himself up the ropes on the ascender.

Lisa Dapprich, a park spokeswoman, said the shield route was one of the hardest climbs up El Capitan.

"The ascent on the shield route is one of the most difficult climbs in the world," Dapprich said. "Mark will have to use tremendous upper body strength on the climb, but he is confident he can make it."

She said once the climb is completed, Wellman will be brought down on horseback and Corbett will walk down.

Sox beat Yankees for 6th straight

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ivan Calderon delivered a pair of hits and two RBI, including a tie-breaking double in the seventh inning, and Dan Pasqua had three singles and two RBI, leading the Chicago White Sox to their sixth straight victory, an 11-5 victory over the New York Yankees in the first game of a two-night doubleheader.

Carlton Fisk added four RBI for the White Sox who have not lost since the All-Star break.

With the score tied 5-5 in the seventh, Harold Baines opened with a walk against reliever Lee Guetterman, 2-3, and scored when Calderon doubled. One out later, Daryl Boston singled to score Calderon and make it 7-5.

Reliever Shawn Hillegas, 5-9, allowed one run and three hits and one walk in two innings to earn the victory. Bobby Thigpen hurled 1 2-3 perfect innings for his 18th save in 22 opportunities.

Pasqua's RBI single and Fisk's three-run home run in the eighth off Dale Mohorcic, closed the scoring.

Pinch hitter Mel Hall's two-out single off Hillegas in the seventh inning had tied the game. The hit scored Roberto Kelly, who led off with a single and stole second.

Boston opened the sixth inning with a single off New York starter Clay Parker and moved to second base on Carlos Martinez's sacrifice bunt. Ozzie Guillen greeted Guetterman with an RBI double to give Chicago a 5-4 advantage.

New York took a 1-0 lead in the first inning on consecutive two-out doubles by Don Mattingly and Balboni off starter Greg Hibbard.

When will Mike Tyson meet a worthy match?

Sports Analysis

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Every time Mike Tyson fights, the same question arises:

When will he truly be tested in the ring?

Tyson wonders himself. Like boxing fans around the world, he would like to know how he will react when a challenger really puts his title in jeopardy. He knows all the quick knockouts — awesome as they look — will not prove his character as a fighter.

Asked if his 91-second demolition of Michael Spinks last year was his best performance, Tyson said, "You can't call that my best performance. That's when you're in a fight."

He instead lists knockouts of Jesse Ferguson, Tyrell Biggs and Jose Ribalta, which all lasted at least six rounds, as his best.

Tyson's next test, Friday night against Carl "The Truth" Williams, is not expected to be much tougher than usual. Although Williams is considered among the finest contenders in the world, he is a 12 1-2 to 1 underdog. If he falls as expected, Tyson will be 37-0 without a feared challenger on the horizon.

"This is the worst I've ever seen the heavyweight division," said Floyd Patterson, who was champion in the late 1950s and early 1960s. "And it's hurting Tyson because, as great as he may be, he will never get that recognition."

Tyson shrugs and says he can only fight the opponents out there.

"Joe Louis fought the best of his time, Muhammad Ali fought the best of his time, Jack Dempsey fought the best of his time," he said. "You can only fight the best of your time."

Promoter Don King, whose job is to find viable opponents for Tyson, says Tyson will not run out of foes.

"You always have challengers for a champion of his caliber," King said.

But who? The best of the bunch right now is Evander Holyfield, the undefeated former cruiserweight champion. Even he lacks the punching power and defense to be given much of a chance against Tyson.

The rest of the list includes Buster Douglas, Razor Ruddock, Michael Dokes, Ribalta, George Foreman, Greg Page and Orlin Norris. When Tyson finishes with them, the next generation of heavyweights will be ready — Ray Mercer, Lennox Lewis and Riddick Bowe.

Scramm's international football league gets OK

SCHAUMBURG (UPI) — The National Football League Wednesday gave its formal approval to a new international venture, dubbed the World League of American Football.

Key details of the new league, to be played in the spring across two continents, still need to be worked out, including possible owners, host cities and a television contract. But WLAF president Tex Schramm said he was optimistic the league would be in operation by 1990.

"I always had a lot of confidence in it," Schramm, former president of the Dallas Cowboys, said after the NFL owners unanimously voted to give their go-ahead to the new league. "There's been other leagues started before, but this is the first one where you're trying to operate on two continents."

Some of the North American cities mentioned as possible sites for WLAF teams include New York; Nashville;

Orlando, Fla.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Charlotte, N.C.; Sacramento, Calif.; San Antonio, Texas; Birmingham, Ala.; Mexico City and Montreal. Possible foreign sites include London; Milan, Italy; Barcelona, Spain; and Frankfurt, West Germany.

The NFL owners immediately elected a WLAF board of directors, which is expected to meet within the next week to begin making formal plans. The board includes Pittsburgh Steelers president Dan Rooney, Philadelphia owner Norman Braman, Kansas City owner Lamar Hunt, New England owner Victor Kiam, Minnesota general manager Mike Lynn, New Orleans owner Tom Benson and Oakland owner Al Davis.

Preliminary plans call for 12 teams in three divisions, a 10-game schedule and 40- to 42-man rosters. The rosters will be filled from the pool of available college players and those that didn't make it in the NFL. Schramm said he envisioned some players taking part in both the WLAF and NFL.

How quickly formation of the new league can be carried out will determine when it can begin operations.

"One of the things that has to be looked at is just when we will play — whether we will begin in 1990 or 1991," Rooney said.

nesota's Mike Lynn and Seattle's Ken Behring, part of the dissident faction; and the Raiders' Al Davis and Washington's John Cooke, considered to be neutral.

"Those six will start immediately, using the material that's been developed and possibly getting additional material," Rozelle said. "Hopefully, they will have some recommendations on the commissioner front very shortly."

"I'd like to retire, but as I said in March, I'll stay on until a new commissioner is elected and maybe through a brief transition period. They're going to move promptly."

Cleveland Browns owner Art Modell, a member of the old search committee, said he resigned from the NFL's broadcast committee Wednesday in an attempt to appease the dissident faction. He withdrew his resignation upon the urging of other owners but is not a member of the new search committee.

Rozelle said he felt the split of the owners had been healed, and that the league was closer to electing a new commissioner. During the two days of meetings in Chicago, scheduled to address the new league issue, Rozelle played the role of healer, holding some 10-12 "caucuses" with representatives of the dissident faction.

Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones, a member of the dissident faction, said the new voting bloc has been reunited with the old-guard owners. He added that the new search committee had a "much shorter timetable" to come up with candidates than the old one.

Modell said he believed Finks' still remained the prime candidate to succeed Rozelle, despite the dragging out of the selection process.

"I think his candidacy is alive and well, and I hope it stays that way," Modell said. "I have not heard another name mentioned by anybody."

New panel to pick NFL commissioner

SCHAUMBURG (UPI) — Outgoing National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle Wednesday appointed a new search committee to choose his successor, appeasing a group of dissident owners blocking the selection of Jim Finks.

Rozelle, who announced in March he would retire after nearly 30 years on the job, named a six-member committee, consisting of two "new guard," two "old guard" and two neutral team representatives. The committee is expected to report back with several candidates as quickly as possible. No exact time frame was announced.

The NFL owners, meeting for two days in suburban

Chicago, also voted unanimously to give approval to the creation of a new international football league, which will play in the spring. The details of the expansion league still need to be worked out, including whether it will begin in 1990 or 1991.

Finks, the president-general manager and part-owner of the New Orleans Saints, was the sole finalist recommended by the original search committee to replace Rozelle. But 11 dissident owners stopped the selection by abstaining from the vote during a July 6 meeting in Chicago.

Finks is still considered a prime candidate to replace Rozelle, but the dissident owners objected to the way his nomination came about. They demanded a role in the search process and got that with Rozelle's appointment of a new committee.

The new search committee members include AFC President Lamar Hunt of Kansas City and NFC President Wellington Mara of the Giants, considered part of the old-guard faction; Min-

Polo club trying to make sport a regional classic

By Curtie Winston
Staff Writer

A local group of polo players is hoping Prince Charles' favorite sport will take off in Southern Illinois.

The Chautauqua Polo Club of the Southern Illinois Polo Association will test the local interest in polo by holding a match with the St. Louis Polo Club at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Du Quoin State Fairgrounds. Admission is $2.

David Ponce-Campos, SIPA president, said he hopes Saturday's match will turn into what would be an annual event. "We hope that this will be a Southern Illinois classic," he said.

"We are trying to get an idea for what kind of audience we can get together," said Campos.

The match will be held on the grassy area near the south entrance of the Fairgrounds. Campos said spectators are invited to "tailgate" before and after the match, bring a picnic lunch and meet the players.

Spectators also have a chance to be part of the game, during the half-time, when the fans traditionally walk onto the field and repair the divot holes made by flying hoofs, much in the same way golfers fix their greens.

Black may hit white and force him across the line of the ball and then take possession.

Black may bump white at right angles in scrimmage or in fencing for the ball at slow pace and no foul would be called because there would be no real danger.

In a bump or ride-off, black would commit a foul if at the instant of contact black's moun't's shoulders were ahead of those of the white man as in diagram.

Two players riding at a ball in the open must both give way to the left and take the ball on the right side.

Source: Southern Illinois Polo Association

SIPA has its beginnings in some polo clinics and games held in 1986 at the "Cheval de Boskeydell" polo grounds southeast of Carbondale. Last year, the idea of the Southern Illinois Polo Association took hold and the club became affiliated with the United States Polo Association.

Now the young club is playing one of the oldest clubs in the United States, the St. Louis Polo Club, formed in 1893. "St. Louis is definitely the favorite," Campos said.

"We are the underdogs definitely, but we intend to make every effort to win," Campos said.

Polo depends heavily on handi-caps. Each player is given a handicap rating, from 2 to 10, which is expressed in terms of goals. For instance, there are about six 10 goalers in the whole world, Campos said. The St. Louis team has some six goal players, while the SIPA team plays with mostly 2 to zero goal players.

In order for the game to be equal, St. Louis would have to mount players with the same amount of goals as SIPA, or risk giving handicap points to the host club.

"They will probably mount an equivalent team to ours," said Campos, who is has a three-goal rating. "We aren't going to give them any goals and they aren't going to give us any either."

The game also is a CoRec spor", with men and women playing at the same time, but since it is played on horseback, the sex of the player is of little consequence. "The horses (or ponies in polo lingo) are a great equalizer," Campos said.

Polo is very much like hockey, with horses added for an extra twist. Two opposing teams of four players each try to drive a ball through an opponent's goal posts. Players use a long bamboo mallet to drive the ball down the field.

Saturday's match will be played in four periods, two less than regulation, on a slightly smaller-than-regulation field, Campos said. A regulation field is 300 yards long and 200 yards wide.

"I suspect we'll give them a pretty good battle," Campos said. "We've played with them before and we know their players."

Although the social aspect of the sport can last longer than the actual game, polo can be quite rough once the players and the horses get going. "It can be brutal ... but we emphasize safety," Campos said.

Baseball signs four players to national letters of intent

The baseball Salukis have signed four more athletes, one an all-state third baseman, to national letters of intent, Coach Richard "Itchy" Jones, announced Wednesday.

Among the latest signees are junior college recruits Bob Geary from Crowder College (Neosho, Mo.), Boyd Manne from Meramec (St. Louis) and Tom Strabavy from Triton (Chicago).

Also signing is the Chicago Tribune's all-state third baseman Mark McCarthy, from John Hersey High School in Arlington Heights. McCarthy hit .361 this past season with a 36 RBI. As a junior he hit .412.

Geary, a left fielder, averaged .393 for his two years at Crowder, and his team won over 50 games each season. An outstanding fielder with great speed, according to Jones, Geary stole 42 bases as a freshman and 38 last season.

Strabavy, a right-handed pitcher, was 6-3 with a 1.67 ERA this season for Triton, the nation's seventh-ranked junior college team. He was a first team all-state performer while playing for Fishop Noll Institute in Hammond, Ind., and was drafted out of high school as an outfielder by the Toronto Blue Jays.

Manne hit .323 this past season for Meramec. Six of his 61 hits were home runs and he drove in 39 runs. The first baseman-outfielder joins fellow Meramec teammate Bob Finder, a pitcher, at SIU-C. Finder signed in June.

Angels to remember Donnie Moore

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — Before their game with Detroit Thursday night, the California Angels will ask for a moment of silence in memory of their finest reliever.

Donnie Moore would have appreciated the quiet. In his final days with the team, all he heard was jeers from the crowd, who ignored most of his accomplishments to focus their venom on one fateful pitch thrown on a Sunday afternoon.

Moore, 35, shot his estranged wife Tuesday and then killed himself. Tonya Moore was recovering but still in serious condition Wednesday.

Moore will always be remembered for serving up the home run to Boston's Dave Henderson in 1986 with California one strike away from the World Series.

Forget the fact that Moore was pitching with an injured shoulder. Forget his 31 saves that season, still a franchise record, or his 61 saves in little more than two full seasons with the team.

Forget the fact the Angels sent that game with Boston into extra innings but lost, then dropped Games 6 and 7 as the Red Sox, and not the Angels, took the pennant.

Few remembered any of that. Most were blinded by the image of Moore with his head down, refusing to watch Henderson gleefully circle the bases. So they booed him whenever they could.

"I don't think he was treated fairly," longtime Angel Brian Downing told reporters Tuesday night. "Nobody ever looked at the great things he did. Everything revolved around that one pitch, and it ruined his life."

Tony Harvey to play in U.S. Olympic Festival

Tony Harvey, freshman Saluki basketball standout, is participating in the United States Olympic Festival in Oklahoma City, Okla.

The festival, which kicks off Friday, is held every summer in non-Olympic years and is designed to accustom players to Olympic style competition for the 1990 World Championships and the 1992 Olympic games in Barcelona, Spain.

Basketball is just one of 38 sports in the event. The basketball competition consists of collegiate freshman and sophomore players from around the country.

The teams are split geographically among the North, South, East and West regions. Harvey, the tallest player on the team at 6-foot-11-inches, is playing on the North squad coached by Jud Heathcote of Michigan State. Doug Vance, a festival spokesman said.
