Massage law enforcement questioned

By Scott G. Bandle
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Former Chief of Police Joe Dakin believes the proposed city ordinance banning sexual stimulation in massage parlors will be "almost unenforceable."

Referring to his experience as police officer, Dakin told fellow City Council members Monday that "unless they put a TV camera in every room and have a police officer watching the screens all day long, this kind of regulation is very difficult to enforce."

Dakin also expressed personal concern about managing personal morals. He said that although he disapproved of the massage parlors, he didn't know if restrictions should be passed on to other citizens.

Wyatt George, a member of the Carbondale Citizens for Decency, addressed himself to the council and said that in his dealings with the owners of the massage parlors, he felt they were law-abiding men and would follow the law and regulate themselves.

The Citizens for Decency had been working for the ordinance ever since it was revealed November 19, 1974 that the massage parlors in Carbondale, the DeJa Vu and the New York, were giving "locals" masturbating the customers at the end of a massage.

The group formed to protest the parlors. An April 16 referendum resulted in a 2,200 to 1,740 vote to allow the bodies of one sex to be massaged by the opposite sex. Massaging of the genitals was defeated by a 2,056 to 1,897 vote. City attorney John Wornick was asked to draft an ordinance for formal review.

City Councilman Hans Fischer praised the ordinance. He said that there are many city ordinances that are hard to enforce, but that doesn't make them any less legitimate.

Fischer said that the council has received complaints from citizens about motorists ignoring stop signs in various parts of the city, but that doesn't mean they are going to be taken down. He said that the ordinance is what the citizens want.

Earlier in the meeting, Jerry Bryant, chairman of the Citizens for Decency, appeared before the council. He also praised the ordinance and thanked Wornick for the work he had done drawing it up.

Bryant presented to the council 2,500 signed petitions from Carbondale citizens as proof of the community's desire to regulate the massage parlors.

The idea that the majority of the citizens want this ordinance was challenged by Robert Phillips, a member of the Citizens for Freedom.

He said that only one to two per cent of the people use this service and he thought that it was unfair to these people. He said that the majority of Carbondale citizens are against the ordinance.

Phillips also said that the ordinance is against the women who work in the massage parlors. The ordinance says that applicants would have to give name, address, social security, physical description, proof of legal age, past criminal convictions, submit to fingerprinting if desired by the Chief of Police and undergo a physical examination for contagious and communicable diseases.

Phillips said that the ordinance is clearly discriminatory.

"The only thing the young women who work in restaurants need is a tuberculosis test," he said.

Phillips accused the City Council of self-interest, saying that they are ignoring the will of the people.

Phillips promised the council that if the ordinance is passed, he would start an initiative campaign to have it repealed.

Formal action on the massage parlor ordinance will take place on July 21 at a formal council meeting at that time.

Mace still consultant for Garden Park

By Lenore Sobota
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

George Mace, acting vice president for administration and campus treasurer, said Tuesday that as far as he knows he is still a consultant for Garden Park Acres Apartments.

The owner of Garden Park Acres, Jerome Robinson of Springfield, had said last week that Mace "acts as an agent for the owner" and oversees the operation of the apartments, between his University duties and his work for Robinson.

Mace denied any interest and said he is doing only consulting for Robinson on the possibility of converting the apartments to condominiums.

"As far as I know, I'm still working under the same arrangement until the job terminates December 15," Mace said.

"The only overseeing I am doing is overseeing the specs (specifications) for the possible conversion of the apartments," he explained.

Mace said he knows of no decision to abandon plans to convert the apartments and that Robinson "probably" made statements to that effect to "protect his business interests."

Robinson was contacted at his Springfield office Friday but refused to discuss the matter over the telephone.

Mace has written approval from SIU President Warren Brandt to perform the consulting duties for a $300 a month retainer.

A retainer is not really a salary, Mace said, suggesting that is why Robinson had said he could not comment on whether Mace was paid a salary.

Robinson contacted James Osberg, supervisor of off-campus housing, a month and a half ago to inform him of vacancies for resident managers at Garden Park Acres.

One of the applicants, who asked not to be identified, said he contacted Mace about the job and was told to bring over a resume.

"He (Mace) took the resume, looked at it and said he was having lunch with Mr. Robinson that day, and he would go over it with him," the job applicant said.

Mace said he had accepted resumes from two couples applying for jobs as resident managers at Garden Park Acres, but these were given to Robinson when he was in Carbondale.

Mace said he has nothing to do with management or hiring of personnel at Garden Park Acres.

"I gave the resumes to Mr. Robinson and if you ask the people involved, you'll find that Mr. Robinson interviewed them and did the hiring," Mace said.

Mace is scheduled to become vice president for university relations on July 1.

While serving in his present position of vice president for administration and campus treasurer, he was responsible for University Housing until last month. The operation of University Housing, which includes off-campus approved living centers, married student housing and single undergraduate housing, was transferred to the vice president for student affairs May 1.

City plans aids for handicapped

By Ron Morgan
Student Writer

A special traffic light for the blind, a house for the developmentally disabled and a study of the needs of the handicapped in Carbondale are planned for the city, according to Janel Taylor, social planner in the Carbondale office of Community Development.

Part of the newly acquired $2.9 million Community Development Block Grant will be used to fund a traffic light specially designed for the blind, now under consideration by the City Planning Division, Taylor said.

The special light synchronizes audible tones with changes in light colors. A different tone is associated with each color.

The sound device begins operating when the blind person pushes a button on a box at the intersection.

The City Planning Division has three possible locations for the light that is under consideration—the intersections of Grand Ave. and South Illinois, East Walnut and South Illinois and College and South Illinois. The light will be installed no later than February, Taylor said. Cost for purchase and installation of the device is estimated at $5,000.

In July the City Planning Division (CPD) will begin two studies which deal with the handicapped.

A five thousand dollar feasibility study will begin on the possibility of purchasing a house in the city which would be used to house six developmentally handicapped persons (people with slight mental handicaps) and two house parents. The residents would be provided with specialized therapy, educational services and personal management skills, according to Taylor.

A study of the needs of the handicapped persons in Carbondale is also set for July. The study is seen as an important step the city must take before it can develop meaningful programs for the handicapped, according to George Everingham, city planner in Human Resources.

In Jackson County there are 4,064 disabled persons, according to a state study. Taylor estimates 3,000 of these persons live in Carbondale.

727 crash kills over 100 in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — An Eastern Airlines non-stop 727 jetliner from New Orleans crashed and burned while approaching Kennedy International Airport through heavy rain and lightning Tuesday, and more than 100 persons aboard were reported killed.

The plane carried 116 passengers and seven crew members. At least two eyewitnesses said they saw lightning strike the aircraft just before it tore through two landing approach lights and plowed into an area of open parkland north of the airport.

"Lightning hit the plane," declared eyewitness Paul Moran, a Nassau County police officer. "It tilted to the right and went about 20 more yards, then hit the ground."

Mozambique free of Portugal rule

LOURENÇO MARQUES, Mozambique (AP) — The East African territory of Mozambique became an independent nation Tuesday at midnight after nearly five centuries of Portuguese colonial rule.

More than 50,000 exuberant Mozambicans at Machava football stadium watched as the red and green flag of Portugal was lowered for the last time. It was replaced by the national flag of Mozambique whose green, white, black and yellow stripes and red triangle hung limp in the sultry African night under the glare of powerful floodlights.

S. Korea alert on war anniversary

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — South Korea intensified its alert Tuesday on the eve of the 25th anniversary of the outbreak of the Korean War, and a North Korean general warned that "war may break out at any moment."

All employees of the South Korean government and state-run corporations were ordered on "second-degree emergency duty," one degree short of an all-out war footing.

The government gave no specific reason for the alert and some observers said it may have been ordered to dramatize the anniversary of the 1950 war.

A U.S. military spokesman declined to say if any unusual Communist movements had been reported along the demilitarized-zone-DMZ. The daily routine of Seoul appeared unaffected.

SIU budget passes, awaits Walker's OK

The SIU Budget has been passed without cuts in both houses of the General Assembly and is on the governor's desk, said Rep. Bruce Richmond, D-Murphysboro, sponsor of the budget in the House.

He added that a bill to provide a 6 per cent contingency reserve in the event that Gov. Walker vetoes all uncut appropriations bills, as he is expected to do, is now in the amendment process.

Richmond said that the SIU budget "can still be whittled on after it passes."

The reserve, under the bill, would be impounded until institutions have used up the other 94 per cent of their budgets and can show additional financial need. Only the governor, comptroller and State treasurer would be authorized to release the reserve funds.

In other action in Springfield, the bill to give SIU-E an autonomous board of trustees is still in its last House reading. The bill's sponsor, Rep. Horace Calvo, D-Granite City, has chosen not to present the bill for the last four days.

Avert price war, gas shortage

American motorists, bracing for higher gasoline prices resulting from an increased oil import tariff, can expect shortages as well this summer. Domestic refinery production has dropped sharply at a time of high crude oil stocks and a global oil surplus. All concerned—oil company executives and federal energy officials—have their usual, complicated explanations for this paradoxical situation. But we are more interested in action, now, to prevent the consumer-getting squeezed again without good reason.

The latest figures from experts who monitor the oil markets indicate that gasoline prices will rise by 3 to 5 cents early next month and could go higher. Herbert Hugo, senior editor of Platt's Oilgram, a reliable publication on petroleum affairs, predicts gasoline prices in Illinois could range between 70 and 79 cents by the end of the year. They now average between 58.9 and 62.9 cents.

Most of this increase is due to the second $1 tariff imposed by President Ford on foreign oil imports to discourage consumption through higher prices. Some of it is caused by higher industry operating costs. But these hikes were expected because of continued U.S. reliance on imported oil and the unflagging demand for gasoline.

What is surprising is that refiners in this country should start reducing their production and the operating capacities of their plants. As of last Friday, refineries were working at 83.2 per cent of capacity, compared with 84.4 per cent a week earlier and 90.3 per cent last year. According to the Federal Energy Administration, stocks of gasoline are 6 per cent below last year's levels while crude oil stocks are up by 5 to 10 per cent.

The oil industry claims that the FEA's production allocation system makes the production of more gasoline than the refiners need for themselves costlier than the price it brings. But critics of the industry charge that gasoline scarcity is nothing more than a maneuver by the oil companies to force up gasoline prices.

Congress has proved its inability to deal with the energy issue and the FEA, according to its own officials, is illprepared to cope with shortages, despite the brave talk of Energy Administrator Frank Zarb. The figures indicate not only that the country faces the tightest gasoline shortage since the Arab oil embargo, but that there is a real possibility that heating oil will be scarce next winter.

It would be understandable if shortages develop because of lack of crude oil. That is not the case, and the consumer shouldn't become a victim of a pricing war between the government and the oil companies.

Letter

Guns, guns, guns

To the Daily Egyptian:

I wish to comment upon a letter written by John Hilland of the Libertarians (Friday, June 20). I agree with his conclusion that the federal government should NOT restrict U.S. citizens from bearing arms. But I am in disagreement with his reasons for keeping guns.

A lot of liberal minded people want to curb crime by restricting the whole population from owning guns. I want also to be able to stop crime, but eliminating the gun will not accomplish this. I look at the reason for the crime as opposed to looking at the weapon used in that crime. I say, let us all look at the reasons why crime takes place.

Where private property is concerned with the given crime, there must be a reason behind the motives of that "criminal" for performing that task. Do "criminals" like the thrill of stealing from unknown people? I think not. I think it is more likely an act of necessity and urgency, particularly with the hard economic times in which we live. Presently, on top of everyone's mind is the need to survive. The motive of crime begins with the inability of a person to have enough money to survive. The gun just happens to be the go-between in that person's endeavor to exist. In such a case, society is the real criminal, by not providing for its inhabitants. Furthermore, with the great wealth of the United States, such economic delinquents should, must, and ultimately will be given an equal amount of the pie. By taking a look at the U.S. wealth, one need not look further than the Mellons, DuPonts, Rockefellers, Fords, etc..

Other crimes that utilize the gun include assault, rape, and murder. These crimes of emotion can also be explained as crimes promoted by society. With such crimes, the gun was present to resolve a

"YOUR TIRED, YOUR POOR, YOUR Huddled 'MASSES' COMING OVER HERE EATING OUR FOOD TAKING OUR JOBS....."

A solution to lawlessness

By Arthur Hoppe

Sirs:

I read with interest about the beheading in Saudi Arabia last week of King Faisal's assassin. Two aspects of the account should concern every decent American.

First, the method. The killer, who was not wearing a blindfold, was forced to kneel. The executioner, wielding a gold-handled sword, delivered three blows, each one minute apart, "in order to increase the pain." The head was then held up on a pole to the acclaim of the wildly cheering multitude present.

Second, was a paragraph in the story that caught my eye: "Saudi Arabia enjoys one of the lowest crime rates in the world."

Thus, while we have lavished the most modern military and technical aid on these loyal allies, the Saudis have had the good sense to stick to tried-and-true methods of punishment—including not only painful beheadings, but chopping off the hands of thieves, and stoning adulterers, always in public.

The contrast between the terror in our streets and the tranquility that blesses our Saudi friends is all too obvious. As I said to my wife, "The proof is in the pudding."

Thanks to the bleeding hearts who run our so-called system of justice, most criminals are immediately freed to prey again on innocent citizens. A small number spend a few idle years in jail at taxpayers' expense. And a precious few are executed—always in the most humane manner possible and always in private! What kind of a deterrent is this?

Clearly, we have much to learn from our more sociologically advanced Saudi friends.

The chopping off of the hands of thieves would unarguably to a long way toward ending the purse-snatchings and muggings that make our streets unsafe for every decent American.

And there can be no question that the nationally-televised beheading of every murderer would not only attract a wide audience, but would teach would-be killers that taking a human life is the most heinous crime.

I can hear the bleeding hearts now, ranting about "the sensibilities of our children." But there is no reason that televised beheadings cannot be scheduled for after 9 p.m. when the little ones are in bed.

Nor do I feel we would require a gold-handled sword to the task. We are, let us remember, a Republic, not a monarchy. Neither would I object to a blindfold. We are not, after all, barbarians.

But it cannot be gainsaid that the Saudis have proved the most effective deterrent to crime is the most painful and unique of public punishments. And as an advocate of law and order, I can only pray we follow the excellent example they have set, as I am sure does every other decent American.

A decent American

Sale of illegal wiretap devices reported

WASHINGTON (AP)—Several manufacturers sell wiretapping and bugging devices to police departments in states where possession of such devices is illegal, even for police, according to data acquired by the National Wiretap Commission.

The Associated Press has learned that commission investigators obtained sales records which showed that at least three of the largest makers of electronic surveillance gear restricted their sales to U.S. government agencies or state and local law enforcement officers.

Federal law permits police to own the equipment if they are permitted to use it by state law. However, at least 19 states do not have such authorizing laws. And in those states, the Justice Department says, in a policy statement, "It would not ... be legal for police to possess devices designed for non-consensual interceptions."

Among the records examined by the commission were those of Bell & Howell Communications Co., Audio Intelligence Devices (AID) and B.R. Fox Co. Inc. An analysis of the records shows that nearly half of all the devices sold for use in wiretapping phones or bugging rooms go to the police in states where possession of such devices is illegal.

The states include: Alabama, California, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, West Virginia and Wyoming.

The specific law enforcement agencies that purchased the equipment were not named in the commission report.

The commission, formally named the National Commission for the Review of Federal and State Laws Relating to Wiretapping and Electronic Surveillance, is to open three days of hearings this week.

Commission investigators have found that federal laws making it a felony to advertise, possess or use electronic surveillance equipment are difficult to enforce and regularly violated.

In one survey, the investigator contacted 115 private investigating agencies in seven cities seeking clearly illegal services.

Garage ad attracts protests from feminist action group

By Dan Ward
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Jim Bedrava's head and arms were engulfed in grimy machinery under the hood of a blue compact.

He surfaced to find a box wrench.

"Oh yeah, the paint job," he said, referring to the feminist slogans that were painted on the outside of his East Side Garage overnight.

The slogans, "Women don't need your tools" and "Sexest (sic) ads equal women boycott" were apparently painted as a result of an advertisement Bedrava ran in the Saturday Egyptian with the slogan "Sex sells East Side Garage."

The ad included a photo of a shapely model, with a miniature Bedrava, wearing aviator helmet and a wrench in his teeth, crawling out of her bikini bottom.

"Needless to say, I'm getting a new ad," he says with the same toothy smile he wears in the controversial ad.

"I love doing the ads," he says. "I sort of liked that ad—but my wife didn't."

"I was just being outrageous. It was sort of a play on sex ads anyway," he says, shrugging his shoulders. "I think it was the word 'sex' that got them, anyway. These bars downtown have ads with girls in short skirts bending over pool tables. I was just bringing it out in the open."

"I think my ads pay off—but this time I think I overdid it," he jokes.

raising his eyebrows and twitching his handlebar mustache like Terry Thomas.

"I didn't get any calls about it (the controversial ad). I do kind of wish they'd have stopped by and talked to me first. I'm a nice guy," he says.

Barb Duvall, a member of the Feminist Action Coalition, said she did not consider the ad humorous. "I sent the ad to MS Magazine to print in their 'No Comment' section. I think that there is no excuse for that sort of blatant sexism," she said.

She added that she did not know of the spray-painting until she drove past the garage Tuesday morning.

"I had nothing to do with it. I think someone would be justified in tearing the place down brick by brick, though," she maintained.

Does Bedrava think that the feminist boycott will hurt business?

"Naw, I don't think so—not unless the other chicks, I mean women, go along. I already put an apology in the papers."

Adrian Combs, Daily Egyptian business manager, said his office cautioned Bedrava of possible repercussions prior to running the ad.

Will Bedrava keep advertising with zany ads?

"Hell yes," he replies. "I'll keep running them in a humorous light, but I'll be more careful. I'm planning to put myself in a (sex exploitation) ad. But, if I do that, there will be a bunch of religious organizations after me," he says with a grin.

"Nothing I do is serious," he says. "What was the cost of the damage?"

"None—I was going to paint the building anyway. This will prompt me to do it now. I'll wait a couple days so that they (the slogan-painters) can have their satisfaction," he said without any apparent malice.

"In the meantime, I'll keep on smiling," he concluded.

White to face contempt charge in court

By Pat Corcoran
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Jackson County's sheriff will appear in court Wednesday at 9:30 a. m. to show why he is not in contempt of court for releasing a prisoner 20 days early.

Don White, sheriff, is docketed to appear before Chief Circuit Judge Peyton Kunce to answer why he released Norvell Haynes, a Carbondale man convicted of assault, 20 days before his sentence expired. Howard Hood, Jackson County state's attorney, said he will represent White in court.

Judge Kunce called for the Illinois Attorney General's office to represent the state in this case after stating in a court order, "The court is informed and believes the said sheriff of Jackson County may have consulted with or been advised by the office of the Jackson County state's attorney concerning the early release."

Hood has made no comments about any defense he will use. He has been doing considerable research and was not available for comment Tuesday afternoon.

Bruce Locher of the Attorney

General's office will be coming to Murphysboro to prosecute the case, Hood said.

Haynes will also appear in court Wednesday. He was serving a six month sentence for assault after striking Paris Frazier in 1973 and for the hatchet chopping destruction of a city-owned air conditioner in 1972. Under court order, Haynes spent weeknights and weekends in jail.

White said Haynes' early release came about under Illinois law which allows a sheriff to reduce a prisoner's sentence by four days for each month of good behavior. Kunce contends the good behavior statute does not apply to periodic sentences such as Haynes served.

Trial to begin for alleged drug dealers

Two former Menard prison workers go on trial Wednesday morning for the alleged sale of amphetamines to Southern Illinois Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG) agents.

William Clutts and Willard Bierman, both of Randolph County, will be tried in a bench trial before Jackson County Circuit Judge Richard Richman in Murphysboro.

The pair is charged with illegal delivery of a controlled substance, a felony under Illinois law.

Clutts and Bierman were arrested July 18, 1974 for allegedly selling 50,000 hits of amphetamines to MEG undercover agents in a rural Jackson County tavern. The agents paid $5,000 for the drugs, according to court records.

It was the largest confiscation of drugs that MEG agents have made in Southern Illinois.

Larry Rippe, Jackson County assistant state's attorney, said Tuesday the trial had been scheduled several times but defense motions for continuances delayed it. Rippe added he and Jackson County State's Attorney Howard Hood will be jointly handling the case's prosecution.

Richard White, Murphysboro attorney, will represent Clutts and DuQuoin attorney Robert Gandy will represent Bierman.

Rippe estimated that the trial will last from a day to a day and a half. In a bench trial, Richman said, the judge sits as both "trier of fact and trier of law."

SIU fire protection pact extended

A 30-day extension of SIU's present fire protection contract with the city has been approved by the city council.

The extension, which was requested by Mayor Neal Eckert at Monday night's council meeting, will continue fire services to SIU until July 31, 1975.

Eckert has said previously that he favors a rate increase if a new contract is negotiated with the university.

SIU's payment to the city for fire protection is determined by the number of students enrolled at the university each year.

Based on a payment of $4 per student, SIU will pay $72,172 this year for fire protection.

Eckert has also said that any increase in rates would be retroactive as of June 30.

SIU President Warren W. Brandt was out of town Tuesday and could not be reached for comment.

George R. Mace, who was negotiating with Eckert on the fire services contract, is presently on vacation and could not be reached for comment.

Ambulance service members to attend Mattoon symposium

SIU ambulance personnel will attend the East Central Illinois Emergency Medical Technicians and Ambulance Symposium Wednesday in Mattoon.

The symposium which is co-sponsored by the Memorial Hospital in Mattoon, Illinois Department of Public Health, and the Illinois

Bureau of Emergency Medical Services and Highway Safety, will feature 13 speakers on the different aspects of emergency care.

Some members of the SIU ambulance service are expected to attend the all-day conference which will be held at the local Holiday Inn.

Student hurt in cycle mishap

Diana Cannon, a senior majoring in journalism, is listed in "stabilized and fine" condition Tuesday in the aftermath of a motorcycle-automobile accident Saturday evening.

William J. Simmons, driver of the motorcycle, collided with a 1974 Chevrolet Monte Carlo driven by Edward A. Hicks at the intersections of City Blacktop and Meadowbrook Lane at 8:08 p.m. according to a Carbondale Police report.

Cannon was taken to the emergency room at Doctors Memorial Hospital in Carbondale by the SIU Health Service. Simmons refused treatment and transportation by the ambulance personnel and none of the persons in the automobile were admitted to the hospital.

Funeral pending for Calhoun

Funeral arrangements are pending Tuesday in the aftermath of a two car collision that fatally injured Harold Calhoun, 30, Carbondale Chamber of Commerce president and owner of three Carbondale businesses.

The accident occurred on Route 127 in Hillsboro, at 12:25 p.m. Calhoun was taken to Hillsboro Hospital and then transferred to St. Johns Hospital in Springfield where he died at 3:19 p.m.

Janice L. Sykes, 28, of Sorento, was the only other fatality in the accident which involved five persons.

SIU student, accident victim, buried locally

Services were held Thursday for Gilbert Lee Vineyard, 26, SIU senior in political science, who died June 16, in a one-car accident north of Carbondale.

Vineyard, who was a yeoman second class serving in the Cape Girardeau Naval Reserve Unit, was buried with full military honors.

Vineyard, a Carbondale resident, was a member of the SIU Vets Club and the Marion Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW). He is survived by his parents, two brothers and a sister.

Festival artists asked to solicit

Nancy Baumann, city planning coordinator for the Carbondale Community Fest on July 4, has invited artists and craftsmen to sell their products at the festival.

Individual soliciting permits will not be necessary. Sellers should provide their own display tables or blankets.

The sale area will be located on the west side of the arena parking lot. The sale is scheduled to run from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m., but may extend as long as artists are interested in staying, according to Baumann.

Hearing slated for 2 charged with murder

Two 15-year-old Marion youths will appear in Jackson County Circuit Court Thursday at a hearing to decide if they should stand trial as adults for allegedly slaying a 79-year-old Carbondale woman.

Judge Dorothy Spomer of Cairo will hear the case at 9:30 a.m. Thursday in the Jackson County Courthouse in Murphysboro. The youths are Willie Jefferys, Jr. and David Beaver. They are charged in the Jan. 26 death of Cary Lee Reischauer.

Jackson County Circuit Judge Richard Richman said Spomer was the judge for the first judicial circuit designated to hear all cases asking for transfer from juvenile to adult criminal status.

Jefferys already faces a 5-to-30 year sentence from Williamson County for his actions in the attempted murder and robbery of Blanche Elliott of Blairsville. Jefferys was declared an adult for the Williamson County trial.

Reischauer was found dead in her home. She had been bound and gagged with a nylon stocking. A coroner's jury ruled her death was caused by suffocation.

Jackson County State's Attorney Howard Hood filed the motion to try both defendants under felony statutes. Hood also filed juvenile delinquency petitions charging each with participating in the burglary and robbery of the Reischauer home, as well as the murder of the woman.

Viet refugee doctors needed by rural areas

FT. CHAFFEE, Ark. (AP)—Efforts to relocate Vietnamese refugee doctors in small towns across the nation have turned into "almost mass hysteria," a U.S. Labor department official says.

"People think all they have to do is give us a call and a doctor will be on the next plane," said William D. Cheyne, coordinator of Chaffee's doctor relocation program.

"There is a very real rural doctor shortage and it has to do with maldistribution," a spokesman for the American Medical Association said Tuesday. "The family care physician is no longer willing to locate in rural areas. ... He finds himself isolated from professional advancement and feels he is in a medical backwater."

Cheyne said about 170 refugees at Chaffee have identified themselves as doctors.

He said his office is flooded with calls from small towns asking to sponsor doctors, but because "there's almost no easy way to determine doctors are qualified," the doctors have been kept idle, waiting with more than 23,000 other refugees here to start new lives.

Cheyne said when the Labor Department took over the doctor relocation program Friday he found the refugee files incomplete, very little background work done and even a lack of a list of state-by-state requirements that physicians will have to meet.

"The biggest problem is trying to get the licensing requirements of each state and matching those up with the doctors here," he said.

Most states, he added, require foreign doctors to pass a test for non-American doctors, a standard national medical test and a state medical examination.

Some refugee doctors met those qualifications before arriving in the United States, Cheyne said. "Those few doctors are already relocated. The rest will require more training and tests."

The AMA said the additional training, internships and tests could take up to a year to complete.

Many of the refugee doctors will have to take jobs such as medical technicians and aides until they can pass the tests to qualify as a physician in the United States, Cheyne said.

Squad car damaged downtown, police nab irate trespasser

Carbondale police reported for the second time in five days that a police department vehicle was damaged in the early morning hours while parked in the downtown area.

Police said that at 2:30 a.m. Tuesday the front windshield of a Carbondale police car was found smashed while parked near the Varsity Fountain and Grille, 420 S. Illinois Ave. The officer had been inside taking a break.

Police said the first time a department vehicle was damaged was at 1:59 a.m. Friday in an alley by the Police Community Service Center, 312 S. Illinois Ave. While the officer was inside the center participating in a department training program, a concrete block was thrown through the back windshield.

Police reported William H. Mitchell, 20, 805 W. Freeman St., was arrested on a complaint by the manager of the Saluki Arms, 306 W. Mill St. Mitchell allegedly tried to enter the apartment building after he had been advised earlier in the day by the manager to stay away, after Mitchell had allegedly shoved one of the tenants around.

Mitchell was charged with criminal trespassing and disobedience to a police officer. He was released on $25 cash bond for return to city court July 7.

EPA funds local mine waste study

Ten counties in Southern Illinois have been awarded $1.2 million under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act to do a study on the feasibility of eliminating water pollution in this area.

Ike Kirkikis of the Greater Egypt Regional Planning and Development Commission said that his office has received a notice from Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has approved the $1.2 million grant. The Greater Egypt Regional Planning and Development Commission, in conjunction with the Southeastern Illinois Regional Planning and Development Commission, had applied for $2.7 million to fund the study.

Kirkikis said that the Illinois EPA will have to revise and re-certify the study because the funds allotted are much less than the amount requested. Kirkikis said the study will determine the feasibility of eliminating industrial, agricultural, erosion and strip mine pollutants of waterways in a 10-county area of Southern Illinois.

He said that the Illinois EPA was particularly concerned about this region because of problems caused by acidic strip mine wastes seeping into streams and rivers.

River fest schedules opening week

The seventh annual Mississippi River Festival will start Monday at SIU-E with three film programs and two concerts the first week.

Scheduled for opening night in Meridian Hall of the University Center are two films featuring Orson Welles: "The genius of Orson Welles is featured in the directors chair with 'A Touch of Evil' and in an acting role with 'The Third Man'." Lyle Ward, festival general manager said. The films begin at 7:30 p.m.

Stephen Stills and Michael Murphy will open the concert season Tuesday at the outside amphitheater north of campus at 8:30 p.m.

Films scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday are Buster Keaton's "The General" and Katherine Hepburn and Spencer Tracy in "Pat and Mike" at Meridian Hall.

At 7:30 p.m. Wednesday "Red River" and "The Last Picture Show" will be shown.

James Taylor and Phoebe Snow will be in concert at 8:30 p.m. Thursday.

Other features this summer will include a national arts and crafts festival and a two week stay by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, presenting six concerts.

Tea leaf readers' predictions back up computer analysts

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The tea leaf readers and the electronic computer analysts both agree that the economy should be in better shape within six months or so and both claim evidence to prove their position.

This is another way of saying that a consensus seems to have been reached among forecasters, but it doesn't mean there aren't some dissenting views and some aberrant statistics.

One of the popular consumer sentiment polls shows that despite forecasts of an economic recovery, "a fair degree" of pessimism has crept back into the minds of Americans.

There is a matter of interpretation, too. George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, can't agree that the bottom has reached or is being approached so long as unemployment remains above 9 per cent.

On the other hand, the National Federation of Independent Business, which just concluded a meeting in Washington, complains about a shortage of skilled workers, primarily among blue collar craftsmen.

The federation assigned an independent research group to sample the job situation among its members. "The findings show that 14 per cent of the respondents currently have unfilled jobs," it said.

Also hard to assess but equally not to be ignored is the finding of one of the popular consumer sentiment polls that "a fair degree of pessimism surrounding a business recovery has crept back into the minds of American consumers."

One ingredient of a healthy recovery would be stable interest rates, but a bit of doubt is creeping into that area. Rates have been falling, but just this week short-term rates on big business loans tended upward.

Worth watching will be the rate of new business incorporations. As the recession deepened so did the number of new businesses drop. But in April, Dun & Bradstreet reported a turnaround.

Nevertheless, in the first four months of 1975 a total of 104,345 businesses were incorporated, compared with 113,173 in the January-

April period of 1974. The turn, therefore, is still too new to be called trend.

The housing market seems to be more active lately, but many private housing industry officials are far from being optimistic. Lenders are still nervous about interest rates and aren't pushing loans with great enthusiasm.

Visiting photographer instructs summer classes

College students are not really learning what a professional photographer's job is, according to Robert Miller, a Milwaukee Journal photographer. Miller came to SIU's Department of Cinema and Photography to instruct two courses this summer session, one advanced and one basic.

"Black," as most people call him, has had much experience in his field. He has worked for Time, Life and Sports Illustrated and is now capturing everyday experiences of people in Humanistic-Realism work. Miller enjoys the photo essays on people and their problems.

"It has taken me almost 11 years experience to do the essays," said Miller. "I have done a series on the terminally ill and one on the isolation of people for the Milwaukee Journal recently."

The photographer was nominated for a Pulitzer prize this year. He was also the only American to win an award (second place) in an environmental contest, sponsored by the United Nations.

Photographers should learn the basic techniques so well that they become second nature, then concentrate on creativity, according to Miller. He believes a good broad education helps the students.

Describing students here, Miller claims, "They are very perceptive and intelligent."

Miller is undecided about teaching as a full-time profession. "I don't know, even with all the hassles from the paper, when the pattern finally breaks and your picture is in print, it makes you feel good. Maybe if things get too routine, I'll think about it."

In the Air Force Miller first got into photography. He was scheduled to be an airborne radio operator and instead received orders for photography school in Denver.

"After Air Force service, Miller 'bummed' around for a year," before finally deciding on college. After two other colleges, he ended up at SIU and received a bachelor of science in cinema and photography and has done work toward a master's degree.

The "restless blooded" photographer, has many jobs left to accomplish. In September he will begin working again for the Milwaukee Journal after a vacation. He will also work with ABC television.

Miller would like to do a fashion assignment for Vogue and maybe someday a documentary film having to do with people.

Robert "Buck" Miller, Milwaukee Journal photographer who is a visiting professor at SIU this summer, answered questions posed by Mary Ann McNulty, workshopper from Proviso East High School.

Bumper stickers on cars at SIU promote, advertise, amuse

"WSIU—Put It In Your Ear," "Think Snow," "Don't Blame Me—I Voted for McGovern" stand out as examples of the variety of bumper stickers on cars and trucks about campus.

Most stickers on bumpers at SIU lots this week were promotional of businesses or colleges or vacation spots (like "Virginia is For Lovers") but a random check also revealed many political, ecological, collegiate and just plain funny messages. Colleges, of course, on a campus obtained a share of promotion. Besides "Saluki Country" one could read of ISU, Drake, Vermont, William and Mary, Triton and St. Charles.

Besides stickers advertising car dealers and insurance firms, the largest number promoted radio stations. The leader with 12 stickers was WTOA, Murphysboro. The station distributed the blue stickers this spring in a promotion, according to Harvey Weinstein. A station-owned car drove about award albums to cars bearing the sticker.

Other radio stations issue bumper stickers, too. The reporter spotted WDDD, WMCL, WJPF, WCIL, KCLC, WJPC and K-She.

A bright yellow jeep sported not a sticker but entire front and rear bumpers made of a split log.

One car was a real mixed bag. The dealer sign said it was purchased in Des Moines, Ia. The owner belonged to the AAA of Missouri. The car carried Illinois plates but the sticker read: "I'd rather be in Chapel Hill." A true cosmopolitan.

Some cars hypocritically displayed stickers such as "Fight Smog, Ride a Horse" and "Be Cool, Save Fuel—Ride a Motorcycle."

They may do this but not that day.

Both Smokey the Bear and Woodsey Owl were seen on stickers plus "Warning: 1 Brake for Animals." Another wanted to stop the Meramec Dam in Missouri and one urged boycotting of Japanese products to "Stop the Whale Killers."

Hannibal, Mo., Mark Twain's boyhood home was promoted as well as Six Flags, and Dogpatch USA, and the recent Carbondale Friendship Festival One. One was urged to visit Buckeye Country, enjoy Riverview Gardens and to be friends in Murphysboro.

One sticker advised police what towing firm the owner preferred if that action became necessary. Another driver, obviously concerned about tailgaters displayed a small sticker which warned "If you can read this, you're too close." One was also urged to buy Mary Kay Cosmetics, support the Green Bay Packers, "Breed 'em all, Simmental," and to welcome home the POWs. One read: "No Farmers, No Food."

Political signs suggested people in the past vote for Burditt, Simon, Walter G. Robinson, Bowers, Harrell, Kennedy, Buzbee, Frasier and Dakin.

A wilder one read "Beautify America, Shoot a Redneck." One could tell teachers were in summer school as bumper stickers supported the IEA and the NEA.

The religious sticker pictured with the story was one of the view of this nature.

Bumper stickers, whether saying "Truck Drivers Make Great Lovers," or supporting the Navy, Air Force, Army or National Guard, or whether promoting a city, county, state or fair, or urging people to do something, seem a popular American fad.

Campus construction totals $13 million

About $13,122,200 worth of construction is being done on the SIU-C campus at this time, reports Rino Bianchi, director of the Facilities Planning office. The construction consists of five projects—the Recreation Center, McAndrew Stadium, Building 0112, the multi-level parking lot near South Wall Street.

The Recreation-Intramural Building will cost $10,883,000. It is a three-year project which should be done by 1977. The Center is being paid for by student fees and is located east of the railroad tracks on both sides of East Grand Avenue.

Another construction project is new seating for McAndrew Stadium where the playing field was modernized with Astro-Turf in 1972. The bleacher and stands expansion with a new press box was begun last December and is scheduled to be finished in August. The estimated cost for the stadium expansion is $2,000,000.

The third area of construction consists of remodeling building 0112 a former fraternity house. The building, after remodeling, will be divided into two parts. One will be used as a pharmacy for the health services and the other will be the library for the School of Law. The total cost for the remodeling project will be about $150,000.

The fourth construction project is the multi-level parking structure. When finished the parking building will hold 359 cars. The project was started in December 1974 and should be completed one year later.

Cafeteria provides meals for students on $2.67 a day

Even during the summer, the cafeteria staff at Grinnell Hall works hard to provide meals for 600 to 700 workshop and summer school students.

The cafeteria employs about 100 students and 50 Civil Service workers. The regular employees begin preparing breakfast at 5:30 a.m. and start lunch. The second staff comes in at 9:30, finishes lunch, and begins dinner.

Menus are planned a semester ahead because food must be ordered from one week to one month in advance. All food purchasing is done by bid from different companies so that SIU gets the lowest possible prices.

All food is provided by the $2.67 each student pays per day. The school receives no government commodity food, such as peanut butter.

At one meal, 108 lbs. of meatballs, 290 lbs. of ribeye steak, or 1000 lbs. of hamburger may be consumed. The cooks prepare 72 heads of lettuce; the menu may also include 35 lbs. of tomatoes or 400 lbs. of watermelon.

Each day students drink 60 gallons of homogenized milk and 25 gallons of chocolate milk. They also eat 90 loaves of white bread and five loaves of both wheat and rye bread.

These figures pertain only to the summer enrollment. During the school year, the three cafeterias in Grinnell, Trueblood, and Lentz feed 4500 students.

The Grinnell cafeteria has one huge dishwasher and a second machine that washes pots and pans. It also has four walk-in refrigerators, three walk-in freezers, plus smaller compartments.

One of the Grinnell managers said that the cafeteria's biggest problem is that students expect the food to be bad and don't give the college cafeteria food a chance. But Pat Crosson, journalist workshopper, said, "I think the cafeteria food is really good—a lot better than I expected. And it's sure a lot better than the cafeteria food at my high school."

Green stripes tell lots at book store registers

The tan computerized cash register ticked away as the sales clerk ran the white pen-like object along the green striped price tags. The receiver reached the last stripe and a ding came from the register. The machine recorded the price, item number and department number along with the price and tax total. The clerk took the money and made change.

This is the normal procedure in the SIU Book Store in the Student Center as the electric terminals take in all the information from the tags. They pick up the information through the green coded tags made by the store itself with a special printing machine which codes each tag using different color imprints.

These cash terminals are from the National Cash Register Co. and cost approximately $3,500 each. Assistant Manager Mike Monroe reported the terminals are a great help with inventory control. They record how many of each item has been sold, which helps in figuring how many have been stolen, and are also useful when ordering new supplies. The store has 12 terminals, six of them which are being used now during the summer term.
