Johnson Sees Difficulty in Viet Nam

Draft Exams Will Go to Local Boards

The Selective Service tests given on campus Saturday will be sent to Science Research Associates, Inc., the Chicago firm that is handling the tests for the federal government, Registrar Robert A. McGrath, said Tuesday.

A story in Tuesday's Daily Egyptian incorrectly said that the results would not be returned over to local draft boards.

Except for administering the test locally, McGrath explained, SIU has nothing to do with the Selective Service test.

When the tests have been completed they are sent to the Chicago firm where they will be graded. It is our understanding the results will be distributed to the local board, the Registrar said.

McGrath said he wanted to make it plain to students that SIU could not control the sending or withholding of the results of this particular test to local draft boards.

He pointed out, however, that it is SIU's policy not to send to a local board any information it may request on a student unless the student gives his permission.

Honors Program Set for Tonight

(Another story on Page 8).

The annual Scholastic Honors Day program will begin at 7:30 p.m. today in the Arena. About 400 students will be honored.

Special awards, scholarships, and prizes from campus organizations and honoraries will be presented to 125 students.

Freshmen and sophomores with at least 4.5 grade averages, and juniors and seniors with at least 4.25 grade averages, will receive the majority of the awards.

The main address will be delivered by Ralph E. Prusok, dean of student affairs. He will discuss "Responsibilities of the Educated Person."

President Delyte W. Morris will present mementos to graduating seniors.

Paluch Seeks Election Helpers

George J. Paluch, student body president, and Bardwell W. Grosse, Liberal Arts and Science senator, are seeking students to help recruit voters for the city referendum Tuesday.

Paluch estimated that approximately 1,000 persons at SIU are eligible to vote in this referendum.

The election will decide if Carbondale will continue its mayor-commissioner form of government or change to the council-manager form.

Repairs Being Made

Telephone Service Disrupted on Campus By Moisture in 80-Foot Section of Cable

Moisture in an 80-foot section of a cable servicing the northeast section of the campus has disrupted telephone service to a number of campus buildings.

Neither the General Telephone Co. nor SIU officials were certain how many phones were affected.

A University spokesman said that he understood there had been trouble with all the phones in Wham Education Building for the past week. He added that he didn't know how many more were not working properly.

It was reported that a number of phones in the Chautauqua area, the Life Science Building and the temporary offices along Mill and Forest Streets were also out of order.

A spokesman for General Telephone said only one section of the cable was damaged. However, the entire 80-foot section was being replaced.

"We are not quite sure what happened because outwardly there appears to be nothing wrong with the cable, yet moisture did get into part of it," he added.

Work on replacing the cable started four or five days ago and the company spokesman said he expected it to be completed very shortly.

He said that to his knowledge only campus phones were affected.

Chicago Speech

CHICAGO (AP)—President Johnson, forecasting a difficult road ahead in Viet Nam, said Tuesday night "some Nervous Nellies" will turn on their country, but predicted Americans ultimately "will stand united until every boy is brought home safely."

In a speech prepared for a Democratic fund-raising dinner, Johnson defended his Viet Nam policy and declared that his aim is peace—"I want the killing to stop."

But he said the Communist side has shown no willingness to negotiate and added:

"Any person who wishes to test us can give us the time and the date and the place and he will find us occupying our chair at the negotiating table with any government who genuinely and sincerely seeks to talk instead of fight."

In some of the strongest language he has yet applied to his critics, Johnson said:

"There will be some Nervous Nellies and some who will become frustrated and bothered and break ranks under the strain and turn on their own leaders, their own country and their own fighting men."

While saying "the road ahead is going to be difficult" and foreseeing "times of trial and tension," Johnson said:

"But I have not the slightest doubt that the courage and the dedication and good sense of the American people will ultimately prevail. They will stand united until every boy is brought home safely, until the gallant people of South Viet Nam have their own choice of their own government."

An extraordinary security search of all vehicles in President Johnson's motorcade was carried out by three men in white coveralls just prior to his arrival Tuesday at O'Hare International Airport.

Parade to Open Greek Weekend ; Track Meet, Picnic Also Planned

Southern's 13 social fraternities and sororities will start Greek Weekend Saturday afternoon.

A parade will begin at Greek Row at 1:30 p.m. Saturday and will proceed around Thompson Point, downtown Carbondale and back to McAndrew Stadium, where the annual Greek Track Meet will be held, starting at 2 p.m.

The parade will consist of four hay wagons, approximately 30 automobiles and numerous motorcycles, according to William Reisenbuchler, Tau Kappa Epsilon, president of the Inter-Fraternity Council and general chairman of this year's Greek Weekend.

The track meet will feature members of SIU's eight social fraternities in various athletic events, including a chariot race, 100 yard dash, shot put, softball throw, broad jump, high jump and "fat man's hundred." A sorority tricycle race will also be included.

Chariots will be judged on overall appearance and originality. All events are competitive.

An all-Greek picnic will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. at Giant City State Park. Sororities and fraternities will participate in various games, races and contests and dancing music will be provided by the Scarabs.

In addition to Reisenbuchler, the other chairmen of the 1966 Greek Weekend are Susan Loomis, Sigma Sigma Sigma, Greek Picnic; Lee Seward, Theta Xi, Greek Track Meet; Robert Atherton, Phi Sigma Kappa, finance; Steve Ebbs, Tau Kappa Epsilon, secretary; and Tina Nelson, Delta Zeta, publicity.

McLuhan Concept Incorrectly Quoted

Marshall McLuhan, the Canadian author of "Understanding Media," was incorrectly quoted in Saturday's Daily Egyptian as having written "the medium is the method."

The McLuhan concept actually is "the medium is the message."

'Baroque Festival' Schedules 2 Concerts for Closing Week

Two events are scheduled for the final week of the SIU Department of Music's month long Baroque Festival.

A baroque music concert for string instruments will be given at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Davis Auditorium in the Wham Education Building. The 10-piece string ensemble will present two compositions by J. S. Bach and one by G. B. Pergolesi.

The two selections by Bach are "Sonata No. 3 in E major for Violin and Clavier" and "The Brandenburg Concerto No. 6." The composition by Pergolesi will be "Sonata a tre per two Violini e basso continuo in G major."

Saturday and Sunday the University Choir and Oratorio Chorus, accompanied by the University Symphony, will present J. S. Bach's "Mass in B minor" at 8 p.m. in Shryock Auditorium.

The two choirs, comprised of 150 voices, will be conducted by Robert W. Kingsbury, director of University Choirs. The 33 piece symphony will be under the direction of Herbert Levinson. Saturday night will be the first presentation of "B Minor Mass" in Illinois by a non-professional group.

Tickets for both performances of the B Minor Mass will be $1 for all seats.

'Earn-and-Learn' Program Offered

The Cooperative Education Program is offering qualified students work experience directly related to their academic majors.

The program includes the Alton Box Board Co. which will have a representative here Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Alton Box Board is the oldest firm participating in the SIU co-op program. A large number of students have taken part in their program.

Interested students should contact Bruno Bierman or Leonard L. Lukasik at the Student Work and Financial Assistance Office on Harwood Ave.

Paluch Endorses Manager Proposal

A letter from George J. Paluch, student body president, endorsing the city manager form of government for Carbondale, was read Monday night at the Carbondale City Council meeting. Paluch said a majority of the members of the Campus Senate voted in favor of the plan.

Carbondale residents will vote May 24 on whether to adopt the plan.

The Council approved a request for a street dance from 8 p.m. until midnight Saturday at 608 W. College St. The request was made by the Off-Campus Executive Council, sponsor of the dance.

Frank Kirk, commissioner of streets and public improvements, reported that a traffic signal has been approved by the state for a Murdale Shopping Center intersection on Illinois 13 on the western side of town.

An SIU student was killed in an auto accident at the intersection last week.

WASHINGTON, D.C. (KA)—President Early Bird Johnson has decreed that the U.S. supreme Court justices will attend a judicial workshop in Carbondale, Illinois next week to learn of new precedents being established there under the "equal protection" clause of the Constitution. The workshop will be led by the owners of Carbondale, Miller and Schwartz, Inc., makers of the famous "Royal Shaft." (br)

MARISSA, ILL. (KA)—Rumors are circulating at the Carbondale branch office of Southern Illinois University to the effect that Harwood Avenue will be annexed to the city of Carbondale "in keeping with the uniformity of Carbondale streets." These rumors are of course being denied by Wornshock Absorber, vice-president of Campus Drive. (br)

MARISSA, ILL. (KA)—In line with the policy of studying campus organizations (e.g., Commission to Study the Role of Fraternities and Sororities), the President's Office has called for the creation of a joint student-faculty-administration commission to study the Role of the Geology Club at SIU. The President's Office has issued the following statement: "The findings of this commission will determine what form, if any, the Geology Club will take in the future. We feel that this series of studies—and it isn't over yet—is a great stride forward in the areas of academic freedom, freedom of speech, and freedom of association." An administrative aid in charge of Selling Out is to head the commission. (dw)

MARISSA, ILL. (KA)—Student Body President Elect Bob Drinan has released the following information for those wishing to serve in student government next year: "Pledge activities for Theta Xi are to begin the second week of fall quarter 1966." (dw)

Special to KA From W. W.,

Our Washington Correspondent:

WASHINGTON (KA)—Barry Foldwater, ex-nothing and chairman of the world take-over committee of the G.O.B. party, today demanded that J. William Bulfright resign as chairman of the Senate Human Relations Committee saying, "No one has the right to call the United States immoral, ignorant, and impractical. Especially," added Foldwater, "when that no one hails from Arkansas."

Mr. Foldwater refers to the content of Senator Bulfright's recent series of speeches at nearby Washington Liberty University in which he restated his proposition in opposition to the course of events in the South Asian conflict. He maintained, among other things, that the United States has always had a "real big nose" and a violent "take-over" complex concerning other nations.

Senator Swilliams (R-Dal) said, "Mismanagement of war is terrible. Why, we are rationing bombs, toothpaste, and other essential military supplies right now in South Asia." Senator Forp (R-Mitch) added, "The civil heads of the Department of Defense are guilty of this mismanagement. The President has committed 255,000 of our finest Americans youth to South Asia and they at least deserve workable weapons and toothpaste on time."

Foldwater furthered the intensity of his colleague's accusations by stating, "Shortages of bombs, ammo, and poker cards are taking on the proportions of a national scandal." The former Arizona senator said that anyone who criticizes the Pentagon Poker house (base of operations of the effort to win the greatest military gamble of all time) is quickly branded irresponsible by Secretary of Defense Robert Smacknamara, noted card shark and repeal dealer.

"Being called irresponsible by what in my opinion, is the most irresponsible man in government, is in my opinion, a compliment," said Foldwater. "Of course that is just my opinion and you can take it for what you will."

Vote: Council-Manager

At long last the students and faculty of Southern Illinois University may have an opportunity to right the many wrongs done them by the city of Carbondale. The present city administration has been sadly deficient in handling such basic problems of government as street repair, housing standards and tax assessment. On the 24th of this month, the voters of Carbondale will be presented two alternative plans for the government of their city.

Under the first alternative, the government will be changed to conform to a state law requiring that councilmen of cities with a population exceeding 20,000 must serve a minimum of 30 hours per week. As the current council is composed of businessmen who, in all likelihood cannot devote such a great amount of time to their positions, council seats will, in all probability, go to men of somewhat lesser caliber who would depend upon their salaries as councilmen for their income.

Under the second alternative, council-manager government, councilmen will serve on the same basis as the current officials, thus providing for the preservation of quality in candidates for the offices. A manager whose duties include administration of the commission, leaving the formulation of policy to the city council, will be selected from outside the city on the basis of qualifications alone.

We feel that it is in the best interests of the city of Carbondale, facing ever-increasing problems connected with rapid growth, that the council-manager form of government be adopted.

As to the students, we have too long suffered poor housing, inadequate streets and unfair taxes. The present form of government has done little to alleviate these conditions. While we do not, of course, maintain that council-manager government is the answer to everyone's problems, we do believe it represents an opportunity for real improvement.

Students and faculty have a sizable stake in the outcome of the referendum May 24. It is small trouble to register to vote. Forms are available at the County Clerk's office in Murphysboro.

Remember, even should council-manager government fail at the polls, a vote for it is a vote against the current administration. We urge your support.

A Few Reasons Why Students Should Vote in City Elections

by scott overeem

The city building and zoning inspector, Tom Easterly, estimates that at least 50 per cent of the city's building activity in the past three years can be traced directly to the growth of the university.

The Carbondale City Council spend thousands of dollars which come directly and indirectly from the student population.

As of January 1, 1966 there is a four per cent utilities tax on telephone, gas, and electric bills. Water and sewer bills are not taxed because these utilities are owned by Carbondale, Elizabeth L. Leighty, city clerk, said.

The water rate for SIU was increased last fall, while it stayed the same for all other users.

Motorcyclists pay a $3.50 per year wheel tax, created by the City Council.

A municipal sales tax of 1/2 per cent yields about $17,000 per month. The tax is on general merchandise, food, eating and drinking establishments, apparel, furniture and radio, lumber, building materials, hardware, automobiles, and service stations, according to municipal publications.

Local governing bodies have considerable control in the spending of the Illinois Motor Fuel Tax which yields about $10,000 per month for Carbondale and another $12,000 per month for Jackson County, Mrs. Leighty said.

Property taxes are passed on to tenants. Students are tenants. Jackson County levies property taxes.

According to the registrar, 8,750 students are of voting age.

In February, 1967, the entire Carbondale City Council—four commissioners and the mayor—could be voted out of office.

Students are now represented on the City Council by one student body representative, who cannot vote. The student body representative, Ron Centanni, attends student senate meetings on Thursday nights and City Council meetings on Monday nights. He acts as a liaison between the two bodies.

If students register and vote in Carbondale elections they will have real representation in Carbondale government.

The City Council passes ordinances taxing the students in many ways—financial and otherwise. City Council approves or refuses liquor licenses and requests for zoning law changes which precede the construction of housing and business establishments.

Responsibility in solving the regulatory and financial problems of Carbondale rests on the persons who live and pay taxes here. But according to the provided-for channels (registering and voting) of controlling their fate as Carbondale and Jackson County residents.

Strawn With the Wind

--or how to secede from reality and become very trying

by phil weber

I write this, of course, in response to Mr. John Strawn's displeasure at my article appearing in the May 4 issue of KA, in which I evidently violated several of Strawn's sacred cows and so must be punished—as all heretics must be punished—accordingly. I am a little dismayed that Strawn did not address himself to the more salient points which I raised (except where he could distort my position) but chose instead to confine his remarks to a little hysterical ranting about the Renaissance, my military mentality, his dutiful taks, et al.

I am told first by Mr. Strawn that my entire article was little more than an extended ad hominum argument, a "grim blend of grotesqueries and deviant double-think" of a nature to which John Strawn will not resort, lest some uncharitable soul in an un-ecumenical moment brand him a "double-thinking deviate."

Strawn next asserts that: "(Weber believes) Hitler's attack on Poland serves as proof of his sanity... and justifies his foreign policy..." Strawn contends that this is the logical conclusion which one must draw from my insistence that war is a rational act, a legitimate instrument of foreign policy.

It is obvious from this that Strawn has either purposely distorted or mistakenly misread by position. My assertion was not that war is necessarily rational (although I don't think that it is quite accurate, the intellectual climate a la Chamberlain in Europe being what it was at the time, to brand Hitler's attack irrational). It was in this assertion that I seem first to have run afoul of Strawn's ideological commitments, for John Strawn seems to hold that war is necessarily irrational. In his summary argument, for instance, Strawn refers to the "idiotcy which is war..." by which I understand him to mean all war.

May not one infer from Strawn's statement about war that he considers the British, French, and (ultimately) American military response to Hitler to be an act of idiotcy, an irrational act of maniacs? The obvious way for the allies to have handled Hitler, Strawn would have to insist, would have been for them to entice him to the conference table, tried a little love and understanding, and accepted nothing less than a coalition government in Poland. His argument is sound, I will admit. All sound.

Strawn next attacks what he feels to be my opinion that peace is "bunk." "Peace is not bunk (simply because) it has served often as a facade for surreptitious betrayal," he says. Now what in the name rhetorical goo does that mean? What am I supposed to understand from that? That John Strawn is (ho hum) for peace? That he (and I am impressed) is in the name of "peace" because they were well-intentioned villainies? I am not quite sure.

At any rate, it is a pointless point, for I did not maintain that peace is bunk (at least not in the sense, say that I maintain that Rock and Roll, women's hours, the editorial pages of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, or Strawnian philosophy are bunk.) But I do maintain that Strawn's neurotic embrace of a peace which compromises man's dignity is bunk. I do maintain that a peace predicated upon the frantic scream "Chain me, humiliate me—but let me live!" is bunk, and bunk of the most pathetic sort. I maintain that a philosophy which urges its subscribers to seek their salvation beneath the hob-nailed boots of tyrants, to commit the ultimate blasphemy of placing life above honor, "peace" above human dignity—this, Mr. Strawn, I maintain is bunk. It is a philosophy only in the sense that it is a philosophy of human degradation and moral bankruptcy, a philosophy scooped from the dripping vomitiums of Pacifism.

Strawn asserts in a final argument that, "Only in a world where men are free, where the exigencies of power no longer preoccupy men's minds, can the idiotcy that is war be permanently consigned to the graveyard." I would submit that if men do stop occupying themselves with the exigencies of power, if, like John Strawn and his disciples of doom and despair, they find themselves unable to cope with the complexities of international relations and so retreat into a Never-never land of political absurdity—if this happens, there will not long be free men.

I have before me as I write these two publications: the May-day issue of Pravda, and the text-book used by first-graders in the Soviet Union. I would like to translate from the two. I quote first from a front page editorial in Pravda: "Comrades Generals and admirals, comrades sergeants and second lieutenants, comrades soldiers and sailors... I urge you to continue to polish up the glorious armed forces of the Fatherland, to improve your techniques and teach our people to be ever ready to repel in disaster the aggressions of the amateurish enemy..."

On page 55 of Rodnaia Rech' (a textbook of readings for class 1 of elementary schools" in the Soviet Union) there is a color drawing of a Soviet soldier. He is standing next to a red-and-white striped post indicating the Soviet frontier. In his hand he cradles a machine-gun. He is the picture of alertness. Behind him three Soviet jets soar through the air, and a battalion of tanks rumbles forward, glistening in the sun.

The lesson begins: "23 February is the holiday of the Soviet Army... The Soviet Army defends our Fatherland and protects our borders from enemies... We all love that Soviet army... On the Holiday in Red Square comes a parade of soldiers of the Soviet Army... Many tanks rumble past... in the deep blue sky soar fierce bombers... they fly past quickly, like lightning... Glory to our native Soviet Army."

Come again, Mr. Strawn, with your suggestion that we must learn to disregard the exigencies of power.

Thoughts Upon Reading Mr. Strawn's Refutation

by dan c. heldman

The "indomitable" Mr. Strawn has struck again. With his usual derring-do, he sallies forth ready to do battle with the enemy. (Pardon the allusion. In Strawn's world there are no enemies—only sweetness, order, and light—and certainly no battles.) But I am afraid that, Quixote-like, he is only charging windmills for nothing that Mr. Weber said has really been refuted.

In his own unique way, he has managed (I don't know quite how—it was perfectly clear) to miss entirely the indisputable point of Mr. Weber's assertions: simply, that "peace" is not always "good" and that "war" is not always "bad," at all times, for all persons, and under all circumstances. This is in certain contradistinction to the absolutist views held by those who, for one reason or the other, have chosen themselves as the found of final truth for the world.

Strawn says that war is idiotcy, irrational, and yet there are those, myself included, who would pursue war in defense of his right to make such statements. He forgets, as do so many, that war, like the tango, takes two and that the view of war may differ with the relative positions of the participants. The "peace efforts" of the United Nations includes (as Mr. Strawn surely knows, being a Woodrow Wilson scholar) provision that defense against aggression is recognized as proper — unfortunate perhaps, but proper.

War, as the opposition of forces and the resolution of that opposition by physical means involving large groups of men and material, is neutral, neither rational or irrational. It is the intent or means which gives philosophical coloring to this phenomenon. Thus, it is aggressive war (remember, Mr. Strawn, not plain war) which has been "outlawed" and it is nuclear war which may or may not be rational.

Yes, Mr. Strawn, the "categories of meaning imparted to human relations" do have little meaning, except as they are given content by human intellect and, contrary to your apparent opinion, there are many valid human intellects. The "militaristic mentalities" (a fine piece of aliteration but good for not much else) of which you speak so condescendingly and sneeringly are the mentalities responsible for our being heres as a free nation. While I am sure that you feel no debt of gratitude to them for being so irrational, millions do and gladly. It is an unfortunate characteristic of this world that, given one irrational man with the means at his disposal to give effect to his irrationality, all other men must be at least prepared to oppose him at his level. This is not a matter of choice but of necessity.

It is certainly true that "only in a world where men are free, where the exigencies of power no longer preoccupy men's minds, can the idiotcy that is war be permanently consigned to the graveyard," but here is the crux of the matter: men are not free throughout the world, and the exigencies of power still occupy the minds of at least some men. Thus, (your words, Mr. Strawn, "only") war cannot yet be consigned to the graveyard.

KA-ments

A simple observation on my part that I would like to pass on to the continuing students of Southern. I am afraid that the campus has already seen the whole of student government activities for next year. That is, the pre-election parades of the so-called "Drinan Rebellion." Ah, well, it will at least look impressive on one person's resume.

Loyalty Oath Contradicts American Way of Life

Last month, the U.S. Supreme Court struck down an Arizona state loyalty oath requirement terming it "unconstitutionally fuzzy" and "guilt by association."

Illinois, since 1955, has had a similar requirement for all state employees, including state university staff and student workers. Governor Kerner has recently called for the repeal of the requirement along with the Clabough Act (which outlaws Communist speakers on the U of I campuses).

This loyalty oath requirement seems highly objectionable and should be repealed for a number of reasons.

First, if this law is taken to court, it surely will be declared unconstitutional. It would reflect well on the state of Illinois if it were to repeal the law before this happens.

Second, it is an example of "guilt by association;" it is, in effect, a bill of attainder. That is, this requirement provides a punishment without trial for belonging to an organization which advocates the "overthrow or destruction" of the U.S. government, or of the government of the state of Illinois. One doesn't have to advocate this, he just has to belong to an organization which does.

Third, it provides a punishment, again without trial, for someone who is philosophically opposed to loyalty oaths. If anyone refuses to sign the oath, whether or not he belongs to such an organization, he cannot be paid through state funds.

Fourth, and as Governor Kerner has stated, the loyalty oath is an insult to state employees. It assumes that all prospective employees are potentially subversives, and that anyone who refuses to sign the oath is unfit for employment by the state, while overlooking the obvious fact that a Communist or a member of an organization which advocates the overthrow or destruction of the federal or state government could sign the oath anyway. In fact, the loyalty oath requirement is totally useless.

Fifth, it is in direct contradiction to the American Revolution and the entire train of events which led to the establishment of the constitutional form of government of the United States. Our nation was founded by violent overthrow of the British colonial government.

Sixth, and finally, the oath requirement is the expression of a paranoiac tendency, prevalent in the United States for the last 15 years at least, that the "American Way," the constitutional form of government, cannot, through a reasoning process, uphold itself against the assumed onslaught of those who advocate its overthrow. Are we afraid that this is the case, and must we stifle the free expression of such ideas? Are we afraid that the idea may attract a majority of people to its side?

The loyalty oath requirement cannot stand up in the light of the above arguments, and it is to be hoped that the students, faculty and staff of SIU will support through letters and petitions, Governor Kerner's efforts to have it repealed.

More Control of CIA Voted by Committee

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted Tuesday to seek a role in watching over the Central Intelligence Agency by expanding and upgrading the subcommittee that now has the job.

The subcommittee, known as "the Secret Seven," would be increased to nine members and given the title of full Committee on Intelligence Operations. It would oversee U.S. foreign intelligence and espionage operations of various agencies.

Before the 14-5 vote, the resolution was watered down, Chairman J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., said, to make it "more palatable" to those in the Senate who oppose making any more senators privy to CIA secrets.

But the proposal is expected to run into stiff opposition from such senators as Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the present CIA subcommittee. He disagrees sharply with Fulbright's contention that the CIA has overstepped its intelligence-gathering mission to influence foreign policy.

The resolution's chief sponsor, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., told newsmen after the vote, "I think we'll get action on the floor before the end of the session."

Knocked out were provisions to bring the FBI under the new committee's surveillance and to set up a staff of experts and employees to be paid out of Senate contingency funds.

The staff and fund provisions were eliminated by McCarthy to keep the resolution from being shuttled to the Rules Committee.

In addition to the CIA, the committee would review budgets and appropriations and keep itself informed on the Defense Intelligence Agency, and the State Department's Bureau of Intelligence and Research.

The present subcommittee consists of the senior members of the Armed Services and Appropriations committees, with some overlapping of senators.

OH NO, NOT AGAIN — Gemini astronauts Thomas P. Stafford, left, and Eugene A. Cernan, seemed to know that the Agena rendezvous mission would be postponed for the second time when this picture was taken the day before the scheduled launch. The Agena target satellite failed to orbit eight minutes after it blasted off.

Gemini Project Scrubbed Because of Rocket Failure

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Two keyed-up Gemini 9 pilots dashed from great expectations to sudden disappointments in eight minutes Tuesday when their space target fell to earth, scrubbing their vital sky adventure for about three weeks.

"Oh no! Oh no! Oh no!" said pilot Eugene A. Cernan, 32, a rookie astronaut who was to have made a record 21 1/2-hour space walk on the second day of the three-day mission.

The trouble was pinpointed in one of two swiveling booster engines in the Atlas booster. As the other swiveling engine and the main engine tried to correct for the wild activity of the erratic engine, the entire Atlas-Agena swung into an oceanward plunge.

It happened just 10 seconds before the Atlas booster engines were to stop firing and about four minutes before the Agena target ship was to take off on its own. A command stopped the Agena from firing, and both rockets separated on schedule, falling into the sea separately.

The astronauts were in their spacecraft barely 50 minutes, entering just about 20 minutes before the 113-foot Atlas-Agena roared spaceward at three seconds after 11:15 a.m. They were to speed off in pursuit—propelled by their Titan 2 rocket an hour and 30 minutes later.

But it wasn't in the cards. Two minutes and 10 seconds after the Atlas blastoff, the word came that signals had been lost from the distant rocket.

That loss of signal came at about the time the Atlas booster engine was to have cut off. Tracking data indicated initially that the Agena target ship had begun to tumble.

The Atlas lifted off 15 minutes later than scheduled because of trouble in fueling the 26-foot Agena rocket sitting atop it. There was a drop in pressure in fueling lines feeding the touchy and potent oxidizer—inhibited red fuming nitric acid—into the Agena tanks. That meant it would take longer to fuel the Agena and delayed the flight.

But in the confusion right afterward—as officials sorted through what data they had—it was not possible immediately to pin the trouble to either the Atlas or the Agena performance.

It was the second time that the record space walk had been thwarted by rocket failure. On March 16, just after docking with an Agena, the Gemini 8 was forced to pull away as the target ship began to send it into a wild spin. Pilot David R. Scott was to have performed the solo walk in space just 12 hours after that problem cropped up and cut the mission short.

Warning Sign

PORTALES, N.M. (AP)—Hand-painted signs were spotted nailed to the bottom of two city limit markers at each end of this New Mexico college town recently.

The signs read: "Canto III, Line 9, Dante's Inferno." Interested persons who checked the reference to the Italian writer's allegorical poem about a trip into Hades found that the line says:

"Bid hope farewell all ye who enter here."

State Bankers Vote to Oppose Branch Banking

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—The Illinois Bankers Association voted unanimously Tuesday to oppose branch banking.

The policy declaration approved at the final day of the three-day 75th Diamond Jubilee Anniversary Convention stated that "present or future attempts to change or interpret the state banking law to permit branch banking or the extension of holding company banking in any active form of monopolistic branch banking would be opposed."

The convention also favored requiring national banks to conform to state branching laws.

John Shorty Powers, former public affairs officer of the National Aeronautics and Space Agency, was guest speaker at the convention. He told the more than 1,200 guests and delegates that private enterprise has been integral in the nation's space program.

"The best investment we can make in the country today is in our national space program," Powers said. "In the Apollo manned space flight program alone, there are more than 6,000 individual companies and some 300,000 people working on it."

Earlier, J.L. Robertson, vice chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, told the convention that mutual savings banks and savings and loan associations could become "as extinct as the brontosaurus" if they are not allowed to offer complete banking services.

Dirk H. Groen, president of the First National Bank & Trust Co., Pekin, was elected president of the Illinois Bankers Association.

FiveDay Sit-In Ends in Chicago

CHICAGO (AP)—Student demonstrators who had occupied the University of Chicago's administration building for almost 5 1/2 days ended their sit-in Tuesday.

The last of the young people left in the wee hours, and the normal force of officials and workers went to their desks at the usual time.

The demonstrators, who moved into the six-story building Wednesday afternoon, had 300 or more on hand at various times, but had reduced their numbers to 25 during the weekend.

They protested against the university's policy of providing student class rankings to draft boards with the consent of the students involved. But the university did not change the policy.

Telephone operators had manned the switchboard in the building during the long sit-in. Other workers and officials had kept abreast of some of their work in other buildings on the campus.

The students demonstrated in shifts. That left them time to attend classes and to study.

Solidarity Plea Sent To Quang by Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson has appealed to dissident South Vietnamese Buddhist leader Thich Tri Quang to compose differences with other political elements in a common effort for solidarity against Communist forces.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk, disclosing the U.S. response to a Quang appeal for American support, told a news conference Friday, that American influence is being used "to persuade all elements" in South Viet Nam to put aside "lesser issues in order to get on with the great national tasks."

Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military government, accused by the Buddhist leadership of treason and murder, alerted elite troops Tuesday to stand by in case of Buddhist rioting in Saigon.

In the restive northern provinces making up the 1st Corps area, the new corps commander, Maj. Gen. Huynh Van Cao, urged dissidents to give up their struggle. He said that otherwise they will be considered criminals.

The ruling junta thus prepared to hold on to power despite Buddhist defiance and the threat of civil war.

The crack 7th Infantry Division of the Vietnamese army was put on the alert and two battalions—1,000 men—were reported already moving toward the capital.

Buddhist monks in Saigon's main pagoda announced they planned to start a 48-hour hunger strike Thursday.

Others built wooden pyres at the Tinh Hoi pagoda in Da Nang and three threatened to burn themselves to death if government troops invaded the pagoda compound. Seven suicides by fire were factors in the Buddhist campaign of 1963 that overthrew the Ngo Dinh Diem regime.

Goldwater Blasts Johnson, Appeals to Conservatives

CHICAGO (AP)—Barry Goldwater issued Tuesday night a "call to arms to American conservatives of all political parties" to join in a fight to defend a free society.

The 1964 Republican presidential nominee stated he has no national political aspirations and is not urging a new party.

He thrust at the Johnson administration, saying: "For all the folksy benevolence emanating from Washington, the objective is control for purposes of political power."

He contended the administration is engaged "in a relentless drive for more and more executive power."

He also criticized the 1965 Congress, saying it took "greater strides toward the socialization of America" than in any in history.

Goldwater announced he is starting a drive to preserve "the free American society."

Many of his critical words, in an address prepared for a $10-a-ticket dinner in the Sheraton-Chicago Hotel, were directed at "liberal thinkers of unthinkable thoughts."

Such people, he said, "downgrade the United States" while urging a surrender in Viet Nam, a Communist takeover in the Dominican Republic, an end to Red China's isolation and a cut-back in military commitments in Europe.

Goldwater said they also speak of unilateral disarmament, "destruction of our nuclear arsenal," and substitution of judgment by "Whiz Kids and computers for that of experienced military commanders."

China Claims to Have Evidence of Planes

TOKYO (AP)—Red China declared today it has photographs to prove U.S. fighters intruded over mainland China and shot down a Chinese trainer plane with guided missiles last Thursday.

Peking's official New China News Agency, in a broadcast monitored here, said "today we make public photographs showing the remains of the guided missiles and auxiliary fuel tanks jetisoned by the U.S. aircraft."

A U.S. State Department spokesman said the United States had no information to indicate that U.S. fighter planes had entered China's air space.

For Money and Experience

At SIU Agricultural Centers Students Do Variety of Jobs

To the average SIU student the idea of crawling out of his warm bed before dawn is to be considered only under dire circumstances.

And to do it every day, and to go to work at that ungodly hour, is enough to send him deep under his covers.

But for a small number of students the normal day often begins with the dawn. These are the boys who maintain SIU's numerous agricultural centers. For most of the workers, who were raised on farms, early rising is a habit.

About 65 students at SIU have jobs at the dairy, beef, swine, poultry, sheep, horse, and other agricultural centers. These include the Farm Service Center, the Southern Illinois Cooperative Agronomy Research Center, and the Illinois Horticultural Experiment Station, as well as the Experimental Forest at Little Grassy Lake, the Federal Small Fruits Research Center and the greenhouses tucked between two wings of the Agriculture Building.

Both the students and the School of Agriculture benefit from the work. The students earn money by doing work with which they have had lots of experience and at the same time gain more experience by working at a variety of jobs and in research, explained William A. Doerr, supervisor of the University Farms. The school benefits because the work gets done.

At the livestock centers the students care for the animals and keep the barns and yards clean. Students employed at the horticulture station help pick fruit, prune trees, plant seedlings and wield hoes for weed control. They sometimes help with emasculating and pollinating the flowers and with spraying and fertilizing. J.B. Mowry, supervisor of the station, said.

Students at the Small Fruit station are kept busy at a variety of jobs, said R.C. Blake, station supervisor. They help plant seedlings, prune and pick the strawberries and blueberries, in addition to helping with the cross-pollination of flowers, mixing soil and potting plants, pulling weeds, spraying insecticides and herbicides and moving the irrigation system from field to field.

The forestry crews help maintain the research plots and other areas in the Experimental Forest and work on fire breaks and with soil erosion control, according to George B. Richmond, superintendent of the forest. This summer some students also will be doing nursery work at the arboretum now being established.

Although students with a farm background are most likely to get the jobs, some students are employed because they need the experience.

The boys may work as much as 120 hours a month. The wages are the same as for most campus jobs, about $1 an hour to start. The Federal work study program is also available to the students who qualify.

Some of the students working at the livestock centers may live in a room at the center for a small amount per month which is deducted from their paycheck. One disadvantage, however, is that they must make arrangements for their meals elsewhere.

Most students tend to stay on the job from year to year during the time they are in school, says Doerr. Many start working in their sophomore or junior year, but there have been a few freshmen workers and a few seniors who had not worked at one of the centers before.

More students work at the Service Center than at any other one center. The 15 or so students there do much of the crop production work,

Awards, Installation to Follow TP Formal Activities Banquet

Approximately 160 members of the Thompson Point student government and the SIU faculty will be honored at the annual Thompson Point Activities Banquet at 5:45 p.m. today in the Lentz Hall dining room.

The program will consist of a formal banquet, followed by presentations of awards to individuals and organizations selected for outstanding service to Thompson Point.

The awards to be presented are outstanding hall, given to the dormitory with the best overall record for the year; outstanding athlete; outstanding citizen, given to the resident who contributed most to the good image of Thompson Point; president's award, in which the president of Thompson Point donates several books to Morris Library in the name of 59 students who greatly helped the Thompson Point student government; Pyramid Club awards; and the outstanding resident.

The outstanding resident award is the only one which has cash value. This award is presented to a member of one of the area boards of Thompson Point. The person named outstanding resident will receive $100; the second and third place awards are valued at $50 and $25.

Installation of new officers will take place after the awards presentation ceremonies.

Mr., Mrs. Eames To Attend Meetings

Morris Eames and his wife, Elizabeth, both associate professors of philosophy, will attend two international conferences this summer.

From July 23 to July 31, they will be in Winterthur, Switzerland, where they will discuss American philosophy with scholars from all over Europe. One of the main purposes of this conference is the preparation of a handbook on American philosophy for European scholars, they said.

Mr. and Mrs. Eames will participate in the Korcula Summer School, sponsored by the University of Zagreb, Yugoslavia, August 16. Scholars from all over the world will attend, Eames said.

Mr. and Mrs. Eames, who came to SIU in 1963 from the faculty of Washington University, St. Louis, visited Russia and the eastern European countries in spring, 1964.

Pneumonia for Publicity?

SIU-Batgirls 'Swim' Behind Home Plate

By Mike Schwebel

If any of the batgirls develop pneumonia, it'll all be in the line of duty. The girls practically had to swim behind home plate Saturday to retrieve baseballs.

At St. Louis, a steady rain came down during the entire contest. Coach Joe Lutz had to order the loyal girls to retreat to the team bus during the game.

Harold Tuthill, veteran sportswriter for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, interviewed the girls before the game, as they continue to draw publicity.

Centerfielder Paul Pavesich had a lot of people guessing about his home run clout in Saturday afternoon's contest at Southern.

The ball hit the top of the screen in right field in foul territory, but was still ruled a homer. Actually, Pavesich neatly sliced the ball around the foul pole in fair territory, which made the round tripper perfectly legitimate.

A summer baseball program should be announced soon by Coach Joe Lutz, who is determined to get his Salukis to the top of the heap in college baseball.

Currently, Southern California is rated the nation's best, with Florida State next. Tennessee, Michigan and several Texas teams are highly rated in the poll.

Another national athletic power seems to be in the making for Southern's baseball program. Only third baseman Bob Bernstein will be lost next year, as the veteran team leader is the lone senior on the starting squad.

While disappointed with the second game loss against St. Louis University, the Salukis did snap a 10-game winning streak the Billikens had compiled. They also handed south-paw hurler Tony Tocco his first loss of the year. The Billikens have lost only four games this year while racking up 25 victories.

The Billikens are the Missouri Valley Conference Eastern Division champions, and will play the Western Division champs, Wichita State, for the MVC championship.

Catcher Toler is back in the Saluki lineup after being out nearly a month with a broken bone in his right hand. Rich Collins is out for a while with a leg injury. Jerry Evans, who took over catching duties while Toler was out of action, filled in for Collins in right field in the Sunday game, and in both positions he proved it will be tough to get him out of the lineup.

The switch hitter has shown he can tag the ball well, and Sunday he came through with two defensive gems in right field. One was a diving catch of a liner to right center. In the other play, he cut off a hard-hit ball to his left to take a base away from the Billikens.

Scouts from nearly every team in the majors braved the rain and cold weather Sunday to watch the Saluki-Billiken contest. There should also be a large corps of them at Carbondale for the SIU-Parsons College series this weekend. Parsons could be the stiffest opponent the Salukis will face this year.

Despite the unpleasant weather, a fine crowd turned out at McAndrew Stadium Saturday night to watch Southern win the triangular track meet against Lincoln University and Western Kentucky.

Because of a faulty public address system, an award presentation to gymnast Irene Haworth had to be called off.

One of the fans on hand at the meet was Jim Dupree, a former Saluki track great. His record time of 1:47.4 in the 880 set in 1962 wasn't in danger, though. The winning time Saturday was 1:52 flat.

Oscar Moore was well ahead of his all-time best effort in the three-mile run, but lost a lot of time in the final four laps. His time at the two-mile mark equalled the best stadium time in a two-mile event. Oscar still had another mile to cover, however.

With Moore much more effective in the three-mile event, the mile record set by Bill Cornell in 1962 may stand for quite some time. Cornell's best was just a half second away from the four-minute mark of 4:00.5.

McNeil to Join Seven Stars At Rookie Camp of Pistons

Southern's George McNeil will be in some fine company when he reports to the Detroit Pistons' rookie camp later this summer.

The former Saluki guard will be joining seven other former collegians hopeful of landing a berth on the Pistons' lineup.

The Detroit squad finished last in the National Basketball Association's Western Division last year and had been hoping to get Michigan's Cazzie Russell in the first round. Russell, however, went to New York, and the Pistons got Dave Bing of Syracuse in the first round.

The other two best known players picked by the Pistons were Dorie Murrey of the University of Detroit and Women's Golf Team

Takes 1st in Meet

SIU's women golfers took first, third, fifth and a tie for fourth place in a golf tournament with the University of Illinois at Urbana.

Lynn Hastie, Carverville, shot a 77 to win the tournament, six points ahead of the U. of I.'s Connie Knight. Paula Smith, Belleville, scored 86 for third place, and MaryAnn Fowler, Centralia, tied the Illinois' Nancy Gore for fourth place with 103. Mary Jane Dameron, Harrisburg, SIU team captain, clinched fifth place with 104.

The team will go to Illinois State University at Normal May 20 and 21 for a 36-hole tournament, according to Charlotte West, faculty sponsor.

To Play in Arena?

The Detroit Pistons and the St. Louis Hawks may meet in basketball at the Arena next year, according to an announcement made by the Athletics Department Thursday.

Plans are tentative but Marty Blake, general manager of the Hawks, has contacted Athletics Director Donald N. Boydston, and they are working out financial arrangements for the game, for which no date has yet been set.

Boydston said that proceeds from the game would toward the Saluki Award Fund, set up for SIU athletes.

Oliver Darden, Russell's teammate at Michigan.

Other players drafted by the Pistons include Jeff Congden of Brigham Young, Willie Pickens of Georgia Southern, Carroll Hooser of Southern Methodist and Ted Manning of North Carolina College.

The newly formed Chicago Bulls got two familiar faces to Southern fans, Larry Humes and Jerry Sloan of Evansville. The Bulls bought Sloan from the Baltimore Bullets, where he played last year, while Humes was drafted during the first round.

The only other player drafted who played against the Salukis last season was

GEORGE MCNEIL

Lonnie Hughey of Fresno State, whose team lost to Southern in the first round of the NCAA finals.

Assistant Football Coach Hired

Dick Towers will join Jerry Hart and Don (Red) Cross as an assistant coach on the SIU varsity football staff.

Towers will concentrate on the men in the backfield, along with Hart.

Cross will continue to work with the offensive linemen.

A fourth member of the grid staff is expected to be named soon, as a replacement for Bill Knuckles, defensive line coach.

Ellis Rainsberger heads the varsity staff, replacing Don Shroyer, and Jim Smelser will begin his second year as freshman coach.

Towers gave up a position as assistant coach at Kansas State to come to SIU.

Before that, he was a high school coach at Leavenworth and Manhattan, Kan.

SIU SAILORS ON CRAB ORCHARD LAKE

Be a Salt, Join Club

Boat Docked in Parking Lot

For the many students wandering around campus today with the question in their minds, "Now, what in the world was that I just saw? Surely it couldn't have been...?"

Well, you had it right the first time.

It's a sailboat, and of all places for one to dock, this one is in the bicycle parking lot in front of the north entrance to the University Center.

The scene is part of a current registration drive being conducted by the newly formed SIU Sailing Club.

The club was organized in the latter part of winter quarter by a group of students interested in encouraging and promoting sailing.

The club now has 46 members. Its regular activities include weekly outings to Crab Orchard Lake, outdoor barbecues and instructional classes in some of the finer points of being a fresh water "salt."

According to Dennis R. Haf-fon, head of the membership committee, one of the main goals of the club is eventually to have a competitive sailing team at SIU.

Those interested in joining may register between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. today in Room H of the University Center.

91 Pieces of Art Shown in Gallery

A 91-piece art exhibit is being shown through May 22 in the Mitchell Gallery of the Home Economics Building.

The exhibit, "The Graduate Show," will display the works of SIU graduate students in art.

"Let's unplug the computer, boys! Start thinking!"

A lot of people believe that someday computers will do all their thinking for them.

Well, a funny thing is going to happen on the way to the future:

You're going to have to think harder and longer than ever.

Computers can't dream up things like Picturephone service, Telstar® satellite, and some of the other advances in communications we have made. Of course, we depended on computers to solve some of the problems connected with their development. But computers need absolutely clear and thorough instructions, which means a new and tougher discipline on the human intelligence.

And it will take more than a computer to create a pocket phone the size of a matchbook, let's say... or find a practical way to lock a door or turn off an oven by remote telephone control, or to make possible some of the other things we'll have someday.

It takes individuals... perhaps you could be one... launching new ideas, proposing innovations and dreaming dreams.

And someday, we're going to have to find a way to dial locations in space.

Makes you think.
