Inmate to be subpoenaed to testify

Polk fears retribution in Reiman case

By John Mohler and Mary Wisniewski Staff Writers

A man authorities say was hired to commit a murder for Physical Plant Assistant Director Dale Reiman will be subpoenaed to testify against Reiman in March, Assistant State's Attorney Patrick Prendergast said Wednesday.

In a telephone interview last November, Shawnee Correctional Center inmate David Scott Polk said he might not testify against Reiman because he fears retribution.

Polk said he received $750 from Reiman in Dec. 1986, when Reiman visited him at the prison in Vienna. It was during these visits that the Johnson County state's attorney alleges Reiman tried to solicit the murder of the student, whom Reiman is charged with kidnapping and assaulting on four days in Dec. 1986.

Reiman has pleaded not guilty to the charges. He is scheduled to go on trial in Vienna March 28 for the solicitation-to-commit-murder charges.

Reiman's attorney Richard E. White refused to comment on the case Tuesday.

Polk said he accepted and spent the money, but never agreed to kill the student.

"I gave him a (false) story about how it was gonna get done...I was just gonna beat him out of his money and that would be the end of this," Polk said.

"I never really said yes. The thing that got me the most is this guy trying to give me more time — I'm gonna rip him off," Polk said. "I was just gonna beat him out of his money and that would be the end of this."

Polk said he had affiliations with street gangs and could have directed a gang to commit a murder.

Polk was imprisoned in 1985 on arson, theft and burglary convictions. He was transferred from Menard Correctional Center in Chester to Shawnee in May 1986.

Polk said he knew Reiman for several years before the deal was allegedly made.

"He helped me out when I got out of prison (and) got me a place to stay," Polk said, referring to a previous prison term. "He was the youth director of our church."

Polk said Reiman was on his

Sen. Paul Simon's third place finish in Tuesday's New Hampshire primary and his hints at the possibility of withdrawing from the presidential race did not dampen the enthusiasm of student supporters in Southern for Simon.

Simon said Wednesday that he is staking his entire effort on a win either in South Dakota or Minnesota. "Otherwise, I have to withdraw," Simon said in Manchester N.H. "I can't continue to run second and third. You have to win somewhere."

Glenn Richardson, coordinator of the group, said Simon was directing these remarks largely at the people of Minnesota and South Dakota, where primaries will be held next week.

Simon will be on the ballot in Illinois, Richardson said. "For our purposes, our efforts are not wasted, they're needed now more than ever."

"It's been rather frustrating to see Paul dismissed from the race by so-called experts," he said. "It's like the (rumor about the) Beatles — Paul is not dead."

Simon's placement in the New Hampshire primary gives the group the chance to stand up for what it really believes in and to contrast Simon with the current administration, Richardson said.

"We are concerned with how Paul has stood on the issue: year in and year out," Richardson said. The only condition on which the group will stop working is if Simon says he wants it to, he said.

The group supports Simon's support of everyone's fundamental right to a job during good and bad times, and his support of a balanced budget, Richardson said. "Paul's message is not crafted to appeal to voter, it's crafted to appeal to values that we share."

Southern for Simon, which has over 400 members, is going to start working harder than ever now, he said.

The group is going to up efforts and open an off-campus office in Carbondale in the next week or two, Richardson said.

Buses hurt DeKalb, NIU roads, officials say

By Susan Curtis Staff Writer

Many streets running through the campus of Northern Illinois University and the city of De Kalb need repairs partly because of the weight of buses in the mass transit system.

Several organizations at SIU-C, including the Undergraduate Student Organization, are supporting the implementation of a transit system here.

NIU's transit system,

Huskie Bus Line, has served the city and the university since 1971. Although the bus line is not being solely blamed for the damage to the roads, the city engineering division estimated that one bus trip is equal to 3,600 automobile trips, according to the campus newspaper, the Northern Star.

Marvin Tanner, a member of SIU-C's Student Welfare Commission's mass transit committee, said the street

Debate continues about condom ads

By Steven Starke Staff Writer

"The preceding program was brought to you by ACME condoms, play it safe or don't play at all. Available at your local drug store...."

This hypothetical message might not be one you would expect to hear while enjoying your favorite television or radio program, but the concern for safe sex and the growing number of AIDS cases make widespread condom advertising a possibility.

According to an article in the Feb. 12 issue of the Chicago Tribune, television networks and other TV broadcasters have been reluctant to air condom ads for fear of offending viewers. Reactions from Southern Illinois media are mixed.

Linda J. Lawton, general manager of KBSI-TV in Cape Girardeau, Mo., said that station would accept condom advertising done in good taste and for health reasons. KBSI would be willing to serve as the test station in the Southern Illinois market for the ads, she said.

"The important thing is that the issue of safe sex needs to get out to young people," Lawton said.

She divided condom advertising into two categories: Those ads that deal with health and safe sex, and those dealing with birth control. She said the station has declined to run a spot that dealt with birth control because the medical community doesn't consider condoms 100 percent effective for that reason.

Steve Wheeler, general manager at WSIL-TV in Harrisburg, said WSIL also would air condom ads.

Israeli soldiers on patrol shoot into mob, kill youth

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israeli soldiers fired on a mob of Palestinian youths who attacked troops clearing barricades from a village road in the occupied West Bank Wednesday, killing one and wounding three in the latest surge of unrelenting violence, the army said. Scattered protests of Israeli military rule erupted in the West Bank and Gaza Strip in what has been a near-daily occurrence since Palestinians in both conquered lands began protesting.

Laos releases remains of U.S. servicemen

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Communist Laos, which agreed to renew cooperation on MIAs in exchange for U.S. concessions, Wednesday turned over remains believed to be those of American servicemen missing in the Indochina War, officials said. A statement from the U.S. Embassy in Laos said the Laotian government also turned over to U.S. officials "identifying pieces" of aircraft wreckage found with the remains at two sites excavated by Laotian experts in December 1987 and January.

Thailand, Laos armies agree to a cease-fire

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Commanders of the Thai and Laotian armies agreed Wednesday to a cease-fire and troop pullback to halt three months of fighting over a disputed strip of border hills that has cost hundreds of lives. A joint statement said the agreement included an immediate end to attacks with a formal cease-fire to take effect Friday morning. It said the military leaders agreed to pull their troops back 2 miles from their line of contact within 48 hours and establish a joint military commission to enforce the cease-fire.

Philippine police told to crack down on rebels

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — National Police commanders, advised the government has no intention of proclaiming a state of emergency, were ordered Wednesday to draw up criminal charges against communist insurgents. In the latest fighting of the widening 18-year-old rebellion, guerrillas ambushed a police team in Mountain Province north of Manila, killing eight troopers and wounding 10.

Officials suspected North before Iran scandal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Eight months before Oliver North's pro-Contra activities were publicly exposed, Justice Department officials had evidence of his possibly illegal role, but did not aggressively investigate, the U.S. attorney in Miami has testified. A frustrated FBI investigator said in separate congressional testimony Wednesday that the office of U.S. attorney Leon Kellner dragged its feet on the investigation.

Reagan budget proposal ready for Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration officials put final touches on President Reagan's $1.1 trillion budget proposal Wednesday, ready to implement $14 billion in tax increases and military and domestic spending cuts already negotiated with Congress. The spending plan being sent to lawmakers on Thursday sets forth Reagan's plans for spending the government's money in fiscal 1989, which begins Oct. 1 — less than four months before he leaves office.

Employers adopt AIDS workplace principles

NEW YORK (UPI) — Thirty employers ranging from AT&T to Archie Comics and the Salvation Army to the Girl Scouts have adopted a set of AIDS workplace principles, the citizens group that created the standards said Wednesday. John Zuccotti, former deputy mayor and co-chairman of the Citizens Commission on AIDS, said the 10 principles would help dispel myths about AIDS in the workplace and provide relief from abuse and discrimination for those afflicted.

Labor secretary, union to analyze twin plants

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (UPI) — Secretary of Labor Ann McLaughlin Wednesday invited the AFL-CIO to participate in a study of the controversial twin-plant program or maquiladora along the border between the United States and Mexico. The labor federation's executive council has condemned the program as a drain on U.S. jobs and a tool for exploiting Mexican workers. The program, established in 1965, provides incentives to encourage companies to open plants in Mexico to produce finished goods for export to the United States.

Social scientists: Black people lacking discipline in community

By Antoinette Hayes
Staff Writer

Blacks suffer from a lack of discipline in the community, social scientists Nathan and Julia Hare told a crowd of about 50 people Tuesday in the Wham Building.

The Hares, a husband-and-wife duo from San Francisco, spoke on the black family as part of Black History Month. The lecture was sponsored by the Black Affairs Council.

Parents and teachers do not discipline black children as they used to because they are afraid of being accused of child abuse, Julia Hare said.

Black people need to reinstate the extended family, Nathan Hare added. He said blacks are passing up traditional family units in favor of an atomic family, "a structure with no shape or form."

The black community needs to get fathers back in the home, Julia Hare said.

She said there is a high number of black children dropping out of school because parents and teachers cannot control them. Many children are uneducated because their teachers are uneducated, Julia Hare added.

"Someone wrote the book not too long ago, 'Why Johnny can't read.' In today's school, if you visit, you find that Johnny is now the teacher," she said.

She said fewer black men are in college now because of the number of grade-school dropouts. This is a "systematic destruction of the black men," she said.

Black women are telling themselves that they do not need a man because they cannot find a well-educated black man, Julia Hare said. She called this problem "sexual anorexia," adding that many black men are in prison or dead by the age of 21.

In addition, young black men do not have positive role models, Julia Hare said. They do not know how to relate to others because they rarely have seen a black man relate positively to a black woman, she added.

"There used to be a lot of pretty women at home and a lot of working men," she said. "You go to those communities now and there are a lot of working women and a lot of pretty men at home."

Nathan Hare was the coordinator of the first black studies program in the nation and holds a doctorate in psychology and sociology. He is the editor of Black Male-Female Relationships and was founding publisher of the Black Scholar.

Julia Hare has a doctorate in education. She has won awards for her work in education and broadcasting.

Dead body found in home of ex-C&P head

By Curtis Winston
Staff Writer

A murdered Youngstown State University student was found Tuesday in the Austin Town, Ohio home of former SIU-C cinema and photography chairperson Timothy Lyons, a reporter for the Youngstown Vindicator said.

The victim, Kenmore B. Drake, 21, senior in secondary business education, was found by police with numerous stab wounds. Drake had been restrained with duct tape on the ankles and wrists with his hands taped in front of his body.

Lyons, who left his home Friday afternoon to visit his daughters in Los Angeles, had employed Drake to watch his house during the visit.

Police obtained a search warrant and found Drake's body in a second floor bedroom between the bed and a wall, after Drake's father became concerned Tuesday when no one answered the phone or came to the door of the Lyons' residence.

The bed, walls and floor of the room were splattered with blood. A knife was found on the bed, but is not suspected as the murder weapon, the reporter said.

Richard Kaschak, detective with the Austin Town police, refused to comment or give out any details of the stabbing Wednesday.

Civil rights fight must be revived

IT'S ABOUT TIME America recognizes the proud African heritage of a large portion of its residents. Black History Month, which is taking place in February, is a good way to creating much overdue interest in black history.

Contrary to what is taught in most high school and college history courses, America's cultural background is not limited to Europe and Asia. In fact, the cultural history of blacks is as important and as valid as that of whites.

The United States is a conglomeration of virtually every culture in the world. People of African heritage have had at least as profound an impact upon contemporary American culture as people from Germany or Ireland or any other part of the world.

Letters

Caldwell followed Christ's orders

I wish to comment on the Feb. 10 editorial entitled "Bible-quoting case not worth the fuss."

If I understood the article correctly, you said Curtis Caldwell violated the Constitution, that your readers should consider Christian theism and atheism from an objective, neutral position, that Mr. Caldwell is narrow-minded for using the Bible in a mathematics class, that he was wrong to promote a "particular theology as a panacea for the whole of humanity, if everyone would only see things his way," and that we can sympathize with Mr. Stivers over the alleged prejudices of which his daughters are victims.

To the first idea, let me say Mr. Caldwell was not violating the Constitution of our country. The idea of separation of church state is supposedly addressed in the First Amendment, which reads "Congress shall make no law respecting the establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

Congress is not passing any law in this case to establish a national religion. If anything, Mr. Caldwell is being prohibited from the free exercise of his religion. Additionally, there is no mention of the separation of church and state. This phrase came from a letter written by Thomas Jefferson on Jan. 1, 1802, not the First Amendment. I think you clearly libeled Mr. Caldwell by accusing him of violating the Constitution.

The second idea, of an "objective" position from which to weigh the merits of theism vs. atheism, came as a surprise. I hold a minor in journalism from SIU-C and clearly recall being told in Journalism 311 that the idea of neutrality is a myth. My professor, a well respected member of the faculty, repeatedly referred to the myth of neutrality. Furthermore, although you advocate a neutral position, you refer to Mr. Caldwell as "narrowminded" and suggested "sympathy" for Mr. Stivers and his daughters, whom you called "victims." This is not a neutral position.

To the third idea, let me call for honesty. You are not accusing Mr. Caldwell. He is doing nothing more than the founder of his religion told him to do. Jesus himself told his followers to "go and make his disciples of all nations...teaching them to obey everything I have commanded you." (Matthew 28:19-20) If you're upset, it is with Jesus, not Caldwell.

To the final idea of sympathy for the atheist, let me refer to a similar situation which developed among the ancient Israelite nation around 1425 B.C. They were questioning the necessity of worshipping God and their leader told them "Now fear the Lord and serve him with all faithfulness. Throw away the gods of your forefathers who worshipped beyond the River and in Egypt, and serve the Lord. But if serving the Lord seems undesirable to you, then choose for yourselves this day whom you will serve..."

But as for me and my household, we will serve the Lord. Joshua then said to the people, You are not able to serve the Lord. He is a holy God; He is a jealous God. He will not forgive your rebellion and your sins. If you forsake the Lord and serve foreign gods, he will bring disaster on you and make an end of you, after he has been good to you." (Joshua 24:14-15, 19-20)

I would suggest that you not serve the "gods" of atheism and humanism, but I leave that choice to you.—Brian DeJong, alumnus, Carbondale.

INSTEAD OF ACTING as if the African influence in America were unimportant or nonexistent, U.S. schools and universities must teach African history and culture. To ignore the backgrounds of millions of black Americans is to deny their importance as citizens of the United States.

Unfortunately, this is a message that American blacks are given much too often. The U.S. school system fails to recognize that there is a large number of Americans to whom European history and culture are not nearly as important as African.

This is cultural snobbery, plain and simple.

MOST WHITE AMERICANS would find it very hard indeed to stomach two or three years of required African history while their own heritage was ignored. It is a wonder that blacks have not stood up for their rights and demanded equal time for their heritage in the schools.

This may be a result of the same type of apathy that has caused college campuses, which once were the centers of public criticism in the United States, to seem more like a convention of couch potatoes. It seems the efforts of Martin Luther King Jr., Malcolm X and others are on the verge of being washed because of the apathy of students — both black and white — who should be fighting tooth and nail for civil rights.

...and here's where to start

A GOOD PLACE to start at SIU-C is fighting for the revitalization of the Black American Studies program. The program, which has undergone major cutbacks over the last three years, must be not be allowed to quietly fade away, as it seems the University would like it to.

Two general studies courses through Black American Studies were cut in 1985. These should be reinstated, or others begun in their places. In addition, two faculty members who left the University should be replaced. Locksley Edmondson left SIU-C in 1983 and a replacement has yet to be hired. If the University needs more than five years to find someone to replace Edmondson, it obviously is not trying very hard.

The Black American Studies program is much too important — as an inroad against America's cultural snobbery and ignorance of African cultural history — to let go by the wayside.

Black History Month offers a convenient springboard for a revived civil rights movement at SIU-C. Don't let the chance get away.

Caldwell infringed upon his students' rights

Mr. Caldwell's constitutional rights to freedom of speech and religion and all other constitutional rights extend only until they infringe on someone else's rights. This limits his rights while teaching because the students are obligated to remain in the classroom and listen to the teacher; they do not have the freedom to leave.

Mr. Caldwell's class is math, not religion (or anything else for that matter), so he should be expected to teach math and nothing else unless it pertains directly to math. Parents who want their children to learn religion can teach it at home, send the children to Sunday School, or even send them to a parochial school. By the way, even in a parochial school the math teacher sticks to math.

Now, before you angrily pick up your pen to respond to this letter, answer these questions. Are you behind Mr. Caldwell because you support his freedoms or because he picked the right religion to talk about in his class? Would you support him if he was a Jew, a Muslim, a Buddhist, or anything other than your brand of Christianity. —Michael A. Phillips, graduate, geology.

First American serviceman kidnapped in S. Lebanon

TYRE, Lebanon (UPI) — Two unidentified gunmen kidnapped a combat-decorated U.S. Marine officer in southern Lebanon Wednesday, ambushing his U.N. Jeep in the first abduction of an American serviceman in Lebanese territory, officials said.

Lt. Col. William Richard Higgins, 43, heads a U.N. peacekeeping force. He was snatched from one of two U.N. vehicles driving south on a coastal road from the port city of Tyre, 45 miles south of Beirut, toward the town of Naqura, near the Israeli frontier. The abduction occurred about a mile south of Bras El Ain village near the Raddiyya refugee camp.

No group immediately claimed responsibility for the abduction. The abduction raised to nine the number of U.S. hostages in Lebanon among 22 foreigners held captive. All the Americans previously abducted were civilians.

The pro-Iranian group Hezbollah — linked to the Islamic Jihad organization that abducted three Americans and four French nationals — was suspected of the kidnapping.

The Tyre region is controlled by the Hezbollah and the Shiite Amal militia.

Higgins arrived in Lebanon in June and in January he became the head of the 75-member U.N. Truce Supervision Organization. The organization oversees the 1949 armistice between Israel and Lebanon in the southern part of the country.

Timor Goksel, spokesman for the U.N. Interim Force in Lebanon, said three organization members in the first car realized Higgins was missing early in the afternoon when they lost eye contact with his vehicle after a curve in the road.

"We assume it was a kidnapping," but there was no sign of struggle, he said.

In Santa Barbara, Calif., with President Reagan, White House spokesman Robert Hall said, "We will hold the kidnappers responsible for his safety and once again call for the release of all hostages in Lebanon."

As he arrived at the White House later, Reagan said in response to questions, shouted by reporters, "We're still trying to get more information on that."

All U.N. vehicles are painted white, are emblazoned with the letters "U.N." in black and carry the blue U.N. flag.

Goksel said the first car drove back several miles and found Higgins' vehicle abandoned near the village of Bras El Ain, 4 miles south of Tyre.

The entire U.N. Interim Force of 5,800 soldiers was placed on alert, launched a 24-hour search in heavy rain and set up checkpoints and roadblocks, Goksel said. Helicopters also swept over the rugged coastal region south of Tyre and the mountains to the east until nightfall.

Lebanese police said hundreds of Amal militiamen searched homes in the town of Bourghiyeh, a Hezbollah stronghold 3 miles north of Tyre, where the kidnappers were believed to have moved Higgins.

An Amal official said Abbas Al Musawi, a powerful Hezbollah clergyman, "personally ordered the abduction of the American," and that Amal chief Nabih Berri gave "strict orders" to his men to find the Marine.

Sources said the U.N. troops and Amal militia consider the kidnapping a direct challenge to their control in southern Lebanon.

The U.N. Interim Force is separate from the U.N. Truce Supervision Organization and is trying to maintain peace in the region.

Phone calls to registered voters and a mass mailing of the group's newsletter are also planned, he said.

Southern for Simon wants to be more visible on campus and distribute absentee ballot request forms to encourage voting in the primary, which falls during spring break, he said.

"Let the word go out that we're alive... we're going at it harder than ever," Richardson said.

George Hampilos, member of Southern for Simon and junior in political science, said the group's support of Simon will not change. There may be less money, but a local fundraiser is being planned and the group will canvass locally this weekend, he said.

However, Wheeler said media in this market are unlikely to be approached for such advertising because of the market's small size.

Dan Steel, administrative manager and program director at WPSD-TV in Paducah, Ky., sided with the TV stations that would not run the ads.

Steel said that WPSD does not accept condom advertising because it believes the ads would be more offensive to viewers in this area than viewers in larger metropolitan areas.

Area radio stations and daily newspapers agreed that they would run condom advertising if it was done tastefully and in an educational vein, but none have been approached to date.

damage issue has not been studied yet and might have to wait until plans for the system are definite.

A survey was done by Carbondale several years ago with the idea of implementing a city bus system. But Wayne Wheelles, Carbondale streets superintendent, said the question of the buses' damage to the streets was never posed.

However, most of the streets in the city are built to accommodate a transit system, Wheelles said.

Officials from the physical plant were not available to comment about campus roads.

Ralph Tompkins, a De Kalb city engineer, said there has been major damage on some city streets, especially those near the NIU campus.

City streets were not constructed to accommodate a bus system, Tompkins said. The city currently is repairing street damage near NIU's Greek Row with funds from a Build Illinois grant. The roads had to be completely taken out and reconstructed, Tompkins said.

He said many other city streets are in bad shape, "primarily due to bus traffic." He added that funds are not available right now to do repairs.

John Harrod, director of the physical plant at NIU, said the roads on campus are not designed to accommodate the weight of the buses.

"We do not have the funds available at this time to go in and do any major overhauls," Harrod said. The roads are being monitored for further damage, he said.

Charges were filed against Reiman after Polk told authorities of the deal, Polk said.

Reiman was arrested for the Johnson County charges on Sept. 16.

Murder-for-hire is a Class X felony, carrying a minimum sentence of six years in prison and a maximum sentence of 30 years and a $10,000 fine.

Reiman also faces 21 criminal counts in Jackson County, including charges of aggravated sexual assault, aggravated sexual abuse, kidnapping, aggravated battery and unlawful restraint.

The indictments charge Reiman with kidnapping a student worker and forcing him to perform sexual acts.

He was arrested Aug. 5 by Carbondale police.

Reiman, 36, graduated from the University in 1972. He was hired as an administration assistant at the University in 1977 and was appointed Physical Plant assistant director in 1982.

Police Blotter

A motor scooter belonging to Carol E. Gantt, sophomore pre-major, was stolen from the front of her residence at 1207 S. Wall St., Carbondale police said. It was taken between 10:30 p.m. Sunday and 9 a.m. Monday. The black Honda Spree scooter is valued at $564. It was locked and left on the sidewalk before it was taken, police said.

Bertolucci's film gets nominations for best picture

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif (UPI) — "The Last Emperor," Bernardo Bertolucci's lush saga about China's last monarch, won nine Oscar nominations Wednesday and "Broadcast News," a cynical look at television journalism, garnered seven.

Both films were nominated for best picture of 1987, along with "Fatal Attraction," "Hope and Glory" and "Moonstruck."

Among those nominated by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for best acting awards were Jack Nicholson and Meryl Streep for their roles in the Depression era drama "Ironweed."

Vying with Nicholson for best actor were Michael Douglas as the vicious stockmarket manipulator in "Wall Street," William Hurt as the bubblehead anchorman of "Broadcast News," Marcello Mastroianni in "Dark Eyes," and Robin Williams as the hyper Army disc jockey in "Good Morning, Vietnam."

Streep is up for best actress this year against Cher as the hot-blooded widow in "Moonstruck," Glenn Close as the obsessed other woman in "Fatal Attraction," Holly Hunter as the highly principled producer in "Broadcast News," and Sally Kirkland as an ex-actress in "Anna."

Academy members will vote on the nominees next month, with the winners announced on national television April 11.

The Serpent and the Rainbow — (University Place 8, R) Movie based on a true story of a young man who explores the mystery of the voodoo cult in Haiti and ends up becoming one of its victims.

Three Men and A Baby — (University Place 8, PG)

Directed by Leonard Nimoy, this comedy stars Tom Selleck, Steve Guttenberg and Ted Danson as three bachelors who find a baby girl on their doorstep.

Throw Momma From the Train — (Fox Eastgate, PG-13) Danny DeVito and Billy

Crystal try to murder DeVito's momma in this hilarious parody of Hitchcock's "Strangers on a Train."

Federal trial begins for 14 men accused of seditious conspiracy

FORTSMITH, Ark. (UPI) — A federal judge said Wednesday 14 men on trial for seditious conspiracy and plotting to kill federal officials were not being tried for what they believed but for taking unlawful actions.

U.S. District Court Judge Morris Arnold took about 30 minutes to instruct the all-white jury before opening arguments began.

Arnold said the men were not on trial for their white supremacist philosophy but he said it was important to show what they might do. He told jurors to judge each defendant separately.

In his opening statement, Steve Snyder, an assistant U.S. attorney, said he intended to prove that 10 of the defendants plotted to overthrow the government and that the others were guilty of trying to kill a federal judge and an FBI agent, among other things.

He outlined an intricate plot of weapons stockpiling, military training, armored car robberies, assassinations and municipal sabotage, including blowing up electrical lines in Fort Smith.

Some of the defendants delivered their own opening arguments. Others planned to let their attorneys do the talking. Opening testimony was scheduled to begin today.

The prosecution said it planned to call 200 witnesses and the defense said it would call 25 in what observers believed would be a lengthy trial.

Snyder said leaders of right-wing white supremacist groups in 1983 discussed the possibility of poisoning the water supplies of New York and Washington, D.C. He said the poisoning scheme was discussed between James Ellison and Robert E. Miles and between Ellison and Richard G. Butler. Snyder said Ellison had about 200 pounds of sodium cyanide in his possession at the time.

Ellison is the former leader of the north Arkansas survivalists group known as the Covenant, the Sword and the Arm of the Lord. He testified before the grand jury that returned indictments against the 14 defendants. He was convicted in 1985 on racketeering charges in connection with activities at the covenant compound.

The men are charged in a 1983 plot to overthrow the government and establish a white nation in the Pacific Northwest. Prosecutors said the conspiracy was financed through robberies and counterfeiting and was to be carried out by bombings, destruction of utilities, pollution of public water supplies and killings of federal officials.

Wild Dogs to play before Blues tonight

By Jeff Grieser
Staff Writer

Tonight is a big night for the SIU-C Wild Dogs hockey club as it takes on Washington University at the St. Louis Arena before an NHL battle between the Blues and the Los Angeles Kings.

The Dogs' game begins at 4:45 p.m. The tickets, which are $9, are available at the Arena ticket window and are good for both games.

More than 200 tickets already have been sold, team captain Scott Boehm said.

The Dogs' opposition is familiar with the surroundings of the Arena. Washington University is 3-3 at the Arena this year.

"We're really up in the air about them," Boehm said. "All I know is that they've played six games in the Arena already this year, so it's like we're playing them on their home ice."

The game came about accidentally, Boehm said. He and Dogs' General Manager Wade Farrell were attending a Blues game earlier in the year when an Arena promoter noticed their Wild Dogs hockey jackets.

"He just started telling us that they (the Arena) held college games before the Blues games every once in a while," Boehm said. "After that every thing just kind of worked itself out."

The only stipulation set by the Arena was that the Dogs sell at least 100 tickets.

SIU-C suffered its only loss of 1988 on Tuesday in Evansville, Ind. The Evansville Chargers beat the Dogs 10-5.

"We've been winning all of our games lately," he said. "I think the loss on Tuesday really brought us back down to earth, so we'll be up for the game tonight."

nationwide attention, Middleton has received little recognition outside of Carbondale.

"It's just one of those unfortunate situations," Herrin said. "Hawkins is a great player and he's playing on a winner. Winning gives you more recognition than just being a great player. If Hawkins wasn't there, then Steve would get more attention. The runner-up never gets what the champion gets."

—There will be at least one and maybe two MVC representatives in the NCAA tournament. The winner of the Valley postseason tournament receives an automatic bid. Even if Bradley loses in the MVC tournament, the team will get a bid to the NCAA tournament, Herrin said. Wichita State might get an at-large bid if Bradley wins the MVC tournament, he said.

—Attendance at the Arena is up. This season the Salukis are averaging 4,264 fans per game compared to 3,323 last season.

"We've played hard and I think that's the reason our crowds are up," Herrin said.

Local high school basketball has a significant effect on the attendance. During the last two weekend homestands, the Salukis drew much better on Thursdays than Saturdays. On Thursdays the Salukis drew 6,128 against Creighton and 4,206 against Wichita State.

On the following Saturdays with a full slate of local high school games being played, attendance was 3,878 against Drake and 3,039 against Tulsa.

—Saluki Erik Griffin is out for the remainder of the season with a broken wrist.

Women face Sycamores tonight

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

Indiana State women's basketball coach Andrea Myers said the Sycamores are ready to battle the Gateway leading Salukis despite getting drubbed 95-53 by Illinois State last week.

"I think our kids will come back," Myers said. "We have a lot of pride and that will get us to play with more in-tenacity."

SIU-C, 16-7 overall and 12-3 in the conference, play Indiana State (19-4, 11-3) at 6 tonight at the 5,000-seat ISU Arena in Terre Haute.

With SIU-C and Eastern Illinois sharing first and Illinois State and Indiana State a half game behind, the conference is in the midst of its closest race ever.

"The loss at Illinois State makes this week's games loom even bigger," Myers said. "The pressure is on a lot more than a week ago, making these games extremely important."

Saluki coach Cindy Scott also expects Indiana State will bounce back from the humiliating loss.

"It will be a tough game," Scott said. "Indiana State has got to feel it is in a must-win situation. I hate the fact they're coming off a big loss because they'll want to prove themselves."

"I just know that if I got blown out, I would be ready to come back."

SIU-C also must contend with ISU's 16-game home win streak, including 12-straight this season.

"It's a difficult place to play," Scott said. "It has a much different perspective, with fans on only one side of the floor."

Three weeks ago, SIU-C escaped with a 77-73 win over ISU at the Arena.

"We zoned them last time because we didn't feel like we could match up," Scott said. "They played well together, complementing each other. They play with confidence."

Slalom spill costs Swiss second gold

MOUNT ALLAN, Alberta (UPI) — Swiss skier Pirmin Zurbriggen crashed into a gate during a slalom race Wednesday to ruin his bid for a second Olympic gold medal and enable Hubert Strolz of Austria to capture the combined alpine championship at the Winter Games.

Zurbriggen, who held an substantial overall lead and was nearly assured of victory in this twin-discipline event, slipped and skidded off course midway through his second slalom run of the day.

Strolz swerved gingerly down the treacherous course to capture the gold medal, edging countryman Bernhard Gstrein. Paul Accola of Switzerland won the bronze medal.

Zurbriggen, who posted the fastest time in Tuesday's downhill stage of the competition, had put himself in a commanding position to win his second gold medal by skiing well in the first of Wednesday's two slalom runs.

"I had bad luck," said Zurbriggen, who won a gold medal in Monday's downhill race. "I had a space between the legs and I had bad luck. That's the sport."

Strolz had the fifth fastest time in Tuesday's combined downhill and was seventh in the slalom. Gstrein, who had been 15th in the combined downhill, placed third in the slalom to capture the combined silver medal.

"I skied not for safety, but safely," he said of his second run on a slippery course that thwarted many skiers. "I gave not 120 percent, but 100 percent."

Accola was only 24th in the downhill but won both slalom runs to move up to third place overall in the event, being held in the Olympics for the first time since 1948.

Strolz, 25, is a slalom and giant slalom specialist who won the only combined event held so far on the World Cup ski circuit this season. He finished fourth in the giant slalom at the 1984 Olympics.

"Going into the second run I felt so relaxed, that's why I won the gold medal," said Strolz, who started one spot before Zurbriggen. "We (Austrians) skied so relaxed, that's why we came in first and second today."

The course, which had 55 gates on the first run and 57 on the second, was so slippery that only 23 of 43 skiers survived both slalom runs.

Herrin: Salukis must get defense together

By Dave Miller
Staff Writer

Offense sells tickets but defense wins games, according to an old coaching adage.

This certainly applies to the Salukis. In Valley games, the sixth-placed Salukis are scoring more points than anyone but also are allowing the most. An offense that scores 87.4 points per game added to a defense that allows 88.7 points per game has resulted in a 4-7 record in the MVC.

"That really doesn't bother me," Coach Rich Herrin said. "If you really want to have a good defense statistically, you can hold the ball for 35 seconds before you shoot it. We're going to run and get the ball up the floor as quickly as we can."

Herrin also said the scoring margin can determine a good defensive team. The Salukis' negative 1.3 scoring margin ranks them sixth in the conference. Opponents are making a league-high 51 percent of their field-goal attempts against the Salukis.

"We need to be a better defensive team by far," Herrin said. "If we're a better defensive team, we're going to win more ballgames. That's how ballgames are won. They are not won on the offensive end."

Other notes:

—The Missouri Valley is dominated by guards this season. The top six scorers in conference games are guards Hersey Hawkins of Bradley (30.3 ppg), Steve Middleton of SIU-C (27.2), Tracy Moore of Tulsa (21.1), Rod Mason of Creighton (20.8), Eddie Bird of Indiana State (20.5) and Kai Nurnberger of SIU-C (20.3).

—Middleton has been forced to play in the shadow of Hawkins, who leads the country in scoring. While Hawkins has led Bradley into the Top 20 and gained Steve Montez, graduate student in recreation and coach of the rugby football club, starts out the first practice Tuesday with a few pointers.

Rugby club shapes up for spring

By Greg Huber
Staff Writer

With a strong compliment of nearly 30 returning players and another 20 recruits, the rugby football club is in good shape and ready for the spring season, Coach Steve Montez said.

The team held its first practice Tuesday at the rugby pitch, or field, behind Abe Martin Field. The team is preparing for a Feb. 27 scrimmage at the Shawnee Correctional Center in Vienna.

The regular season begins March 5 at the Ole Miss Tourney at the University of Mississippi. The first home game will be March 26 against Indiana.

"We're going to do all right," Montez said. "We've got a lot of new guys and we've got a lot of experience."

Montez, who is on crutches after suffering a leg injury in preseason workouts, has 11 years experience as both player and coach at the University of Illinois and at a Peoria club.

The rugby club will not play any city clubs this season. The schedule is comprised entirely of college clubs.

Montez said the club learns more about finesse and commitment in playing other college clubs.

Top players include kickers Derrick Spalt and Tim Ary, David Graham, Doug Johnson and Art Brown, who has recovered from a leg injury.

Other home games are St. Louis on April 9, Western Kentucky on April 30 and the Southern Old Loads on May 7.

Away dates are Illinois Selectside on March 12, Eastern Illinois on April 2, Western Kentucky Banshee Tourney on April 16, and the Western Illinois Scrumdown Tourney on April 23-24.
