Southbound Train at the Point Where Up to 20,000 Pedestrian Crossings May Be Made Daily This Fall.

Unmarked Crossing Remains Hazardous

By Kevin Cole

An old campus sore will open wider this fall as the student population east of the Illinois Central Railroad tracks increases sharply.

The nub of the sore is the unmarked pedestrian crossing on the double IC tracks west of Brush Towers and University Park. The crossing, until this fall, carried the daily foot traffic of one major University and two major off-campus living areas.

In September, some 4,500-5,000 persons, including residents of Brush Towers, University Park, Wilson Hall and the Wall Street Quadrangles and myriad offices will use the crossing as the route to and from campus. If each of the residents crossed the tracks four times daily, total crossings would nearly equal SIU's last fall enrollment.

Joseph Serra, area dean of University Park, said that "certainly the increased use of the crossing this fall with the expansion of this area of University housing calls for considerable focus on the problem."

"The question of exactly what should be done should be left to the safety experts, but I do support the need for focusing on the problem," he said.

Behind rising concern over the situation are nine passenger trains and up to 11 freights that roll through the crossing daily.

"To ask for some form of warning or guidance at the pedestrian crossing is not to insult students' judgment, but to supplement it," according to one campus source.

"I can just see the day when a group of inattentive students rushes across the tracks after one train has passed, only to be cut down by a train going the other direction on the other track."

SIU Safety Officer Oliver Halderson believes signals as such would have only limited effectiveness, but that a policeman stationed at the crossing at train times is the needed safety factor.

"As traffic over the crossing increases and if a sign or signal is not installed, I think the SIU policeman who stands at the Harwood-Illinois corner should stand at the tracks to direct student crossings. While his presence at the intersection is a good idea, I think his presence at the rail crossing would have more meaning and do more good than lights or a set of gates," Halderson said.

John Lonergan, SIU associate architect, called signals a "futile installation."

"It is the opinion of most people concerned that signals would do no good. If a pedestrian is close enough to see and hear a signal, then he is close enough to see and hear the train," he said. He added that if signals were installed, students would likely disregard them, using their own judgment to beat the train.

The one project designed to take pressure off the unmarked crossing is an underpass which would dip under the IC tracks and U.S. Route 51 south of the Physical Plant and emerge on campus near the tennis courts. The project however is still in the planning stage.

Postponement 'Kills' Car Bill

A bill which would permit SIU students to drive motor vehicles between home and campus died in Senate committee Tuesday morning without having seen action.

The bill, which last week passed the Illinois House by a vote of 113 to seven, was automatically killed when the bill's sponsor, Rep. Gale Williams, R-Murphysboro, asked the Illinois Senate Education committee to postpone reconsideration on it.

Williams requested postponement because the committee hearing scheduled for 3 p.m. Tuesday had been rescheduled for 10 a.m. and many of his witnesses could not appear in Springfield at the earlier hour, Williams said.

Sen. John Gilbert, R-Carbondale, chairman of the Senate Education committee and opponent of the student driver bill, said that "all bills not considered by a committee this (Tuesday) morning were automatically killed."

In part, the bill stated that SIU governing bodies "shall not enforce any rule or regulation that denies to any student the right to have and use motor vehicles while traveling to or from the University." It did not prohibit SIU administration from regulating the

Faculty Council Action

'Due Process' Asked For Charged Students

The action taken against 11 students prompted the Faculty Council to adopt a resolution Tuesday recommending that all students involved in disciplinary matters be given "due process of law," according to a member of the council who requested that his name be withheld.

The faculty member said that no official comment of what transpired at the meeting would be released until Chancellor Robert MacVicar had a chance to see the minutes of the meeting.

The Faculty Council's action was the result of recent action taken against 11 students who allegedly participated in a demonstration against Army recruiters in the University Center on May 2.

The action of the Faculty

Council reportedly recommends to MacVicar that all disciplinary action against students should follow the procedures prescribed in the "Joint Statement of the Rights and Freedoms of Students," which was adopted by the Association of American Universities and Colleges.

That statement says in part: "The student should be informed in writing of the reasons for the proposed disciplinary action with sufficient particularity and in sufficient time to insure opportunity to prepare for a hearing."

SIU is a full member of the Association of American Colleges and Universities and also fully cooperates with the American Association of University Professors, which has also adopted the Joint Statement.

Gus Bode

Gus says that crossing the railroad tracks this fall will just be a matter of proper training.

Activities

Film, Play Workshop, Auditions Set

Advanced registration and activities for new students and parents will be held from 10:30 a.m. to noon in University Center, Ballroom B.

SIU No Smoking Signs Ignored

Much has been written and discussed recently concerning the detrimental effects of cigarettes on smokers. Little, however, has been said about the discomfort and annoyance smoking causes the non-smoker.

There are very few places where one does not encounter cigarette smoke. The NO SMOKING signs in many SIU buildings provide no deterrent to even the most casual smoker.

Cigarette smoke is acutely irritating to the eyes, nose and throat of the non-smoker. While the cigarette smoke may not bother the smoker, a non-smoker may soon be sitting with tears in his eyes, unable to breathe due to the smoking going on around him.

Cigarette smoke contains many toxic agents, one of which is carbon monoxide. Exposure for one hour to a concentration of carbon monoxide of 120 parts per million commonly leads to dizziness, headache and lassitude. Concentrations of 100 ppm often occur in garages, in tunnels and behind automobiles. Concentrations of 42,000 ppm occur in cigarette smoke. Smokers, and non-smokers, survive because most of the time they breath air not so heavily polluted. But in a poorly ventilated, smoke-filled room, concentrations of carbon monoxide can easily reach several hundred ppm, thus exposing smokers and non-smokers present to a toxic hazard.

If people wish to smoke, it is their concern.

Non-smokers are well aware of the discomfort, if not the danger, from cigarette smoke, but they have very little control over it. It is therefore the responsibility of the smoker to see that he does not infringe upon the rights of others, while enjoying his rights.

He Doesn't Mind Being Slave at SIU

To the Daily Egyptian:

I wish to express what I have learned at Southern in the three years I have been down here. First, I learned that I would not be able to have a car. That didn't bother me because I had only waited 16 years to get one and now I didn't need it anyway, because my classes were only a mile away. Second, I learned that I couldn't have a cycle. This didn't bother me either because the four mile walk each day was good for me. Third I was told where to live. This didn't bother me even though it broke the supreme law of the land. I like living in accepted living centers. The noise, smell and general run down look of the accepted living centers don't even bother me. Fourth, but not last I am sure, I learned that KA is not a student paper. This doesn't even bother me because now I just don't care any more. Being a slave isn't so bad, is it?

Administration Control Arbitrary

To the Daily Egyptian:

What kind of an institution is Southern Illinois University? First, Stuart Novick is banned from the campus and denied readmission because of "inflammatory remarks." The evidence for this charge is unclear; however, Mr. Novick is still banned from the University without having had an adequate opportunity to defend himself, and has now brought his case to the American Civil Liberties Union. Indeed, this is an interesting form of justice: conviction and sentence on the basis of dubious evidence without either trial or defense. What happened to freedom?

Secondly, we are told that the publication of KA has been suspended indefinitely. Again, the administration felt that KA did not serve a purpose beyond that served by the Daily Egyptian. Whether we feel that KA was a good publication or bad, it was definitely offering the student something that the Daily Egyptian failed to give. That is, it provided a vehicle for student comment, even if such comment should conflict with the administration. With the arbitrary suspension of KA, what happens to freedom?

Third, 11 students have been denied readmission to the University because of their alleged participation in a non-violent demonstration, two and a half months ago, in which no formal complaint was filed. The administration of this justice is based upon an unusual technique of accusation: "I literally don't know how they were identified. . . but I think there is no question that these persons were involved." How comforting that Chancellor MacVicar thinks so. As to the crime that the students committed, Vice-President Ruffner "believes" that the demonstration was in violation of certain portions of the Illinois Criminal Code. Before accusing someone of a crime it is usually good practice to determine if a crime was in fact committed. This is especially true in this case, where it is clear that the students did not interfere with or stop the activities of the recruiting officers.

Eleven students have been barred from future registration at the University and placed on disciplinary probation because the administration "thinks" they were involved in a demonstration that it "thinks" is illegal. This form of justice is completely without conscience.

The University has chosen to deny students the right to free speech, to freedom of the press, to peaceful assembly and the right to counsel and a fair trial. Why has most of this occurred during the Summer Quarter when there are fewer continuing students enrolled who might question University policy?

In the University's attempt to control dissent, demonstrations and riots, they have created just the environment that fosters the need for dissent and responsible social change. The administration cannot continue to say that its behavior is motivated by the desire to protect the freedom of the majority, because when it denies freedom to one man, it denies it to all men. This is obviously the unilateral and arbitrary control of the majority by a minority of the power elite. Where do we go from here?

Lesson Learned in Prejudice

A teacher in a small all-white town in Iowa has reported the results of an experiment in prejudice she tried with her third graders. She divided her class into two groups, the blue-eyed and the brown-eyed. One day she gave the brown-eyed youngsters special privileges, such as an extra five minutes of recess. The next day the blue-eyed youths were given the upper hand.

The results: anger and resentment from the underdogs, a delight in lording it over the others in the overdogs. "I didn't want to work," said one boy on a day he was discriminated against. "I didn't feel like I was very big." Said one of the privileged: "I felt smarter and gooder and cleaner." All as a matter of the color of their eyes.

Of course the parallels the teacher wanted to draw about racial discrimination were that it is based on arbitrary and therefore unfair principles and that all human beings find prejudice discomforting. And in this she succeeded.

But she proved another point as well: that anger and outrage can be stimulated by equally petty events. "I felt like slapping a brown-eyed person," said one child during the experiment. "It made me mad. Then I felt like kicking a brown-eyed person. I felt like quitting school." Here we have sentiments the seeds of which are to be found in school disciplinary cases and dropouts. (We also may have, as many teachers or parents will recognize, a case of a class trying too hard to learn its lesson well.)

So the Iowa children have been taught that they are susceptible to prejudiced and violent feelings. But another lesson is necessary: that they can, as individuals, overcome any slightest tendency to want to take advantage of others, and that they can meet with moral courage rather than personal outrage any injustice that confronts them.

Peking Tells Cong-'Keep Fighting'

By Edward Neilan
Copley News Service

Hong Kong — One of the many ports around the world where Chinese seamen are asked not to wear their Mao badges ashore is, of all places, the North Vietnamese port of Haiphong.

This scrap of incidental intelligence, reported by a sea captain recently in Haiphong, is yet another indication that relations between Communist China and North Vietnam are undergoing some strains.

It is no secret that Peking thinks North Vietnam is making a big mistake in talking with the United States at Paris.

Officially China is warning that talks will bear only bitter fruits of disappointment for North Vietnam such as those that resulted from the Geneva conference of 1954.

Privately Peking wants the fighting to continue because "people's wars" are the mainstay of Chairman Mao Tse-tung's policy. In the Communist camp, only "revisionists" think otherwise, says Mao and this is the crux of his argument with the Soviet Union.

In a recent statement from Peking, the official New China News Agency urged, in the plainest terms possible considering its propaganda vocabulary, that the North Vietnamese forget the talks and keep fighting:

East German Life Remains Unknown In Western Zone

By Edelgard Eichholz
Copley News Service

BONN, West Germany-- Most West Germans are woefully ignorant of the life their 17 million countrymen in East Germany lead under the Communist regime of Walter Ulbricht.

This situation, frequently deplored by West German politicians and government officials, has developed because few sources of accurate information about East Germany are accessible to West Germans.

Previously, West Germans could not even read newspapers or magazines published across the border. This, however, was changed July 1 with new legislation that now permits some East German papers to be sold in West Germany or subscribed to by West Germans.

East German newspapers have been banned in West Germany ever since the Communist Party was outlawed by the West German supreme court in August, 1956.

The new law initially permits East German papers to be sold in West Germany for an eight-month trial period. Originally, it was to have been passed only on the condition that East Germany reciprocate and permit West German papers to be sold in East Germany. This part of the original plan of course was wishful thinking on the part of West German lawmakers and it was eventually dropped.

Passage of the law permitting the Communist papers to be sold does not assure their availability in West Germany, however. The East Germans may refuse to "export" their newspapers.

A special city ordinance provided that these people could order a certain number of East German papers, if they desired. However, East Berlin authorities never filled the orders.

West German newspapers provide only scanty and sketchy information about life in East Germany, primarily because West German newsmen are rarely permitted to visit East Germany. Occasionally, the East Germans arrange guided tours for Western newsmen--but then they see and hear only what the East Germans want them to hear and see.

Most West German television viewers cannot receive East German TV transmissions, because the beams do not reach far into West Germany. East German radio stations broadcast a good deal of propaganda and little factual information reflecting life in East Germany.

Private letters exchanged between people in East and West Germany seldom dwell on the conditions, political and otherwise, in the two parts of Germany. There is always the fear that such letters might be opened and read by the East German censorship officials.

"We are firmly convinced that by persevering in protracted war the heroic Vietnamese people will surely win final victory in their war against U.S. imperialist aggressive war in Vietnam and, on the other hand, stepping up its 'peace talks' fraud."

For whatever reason, the North Vietnamese have decided to ignore Peking advice to give up the talks altogether. This is a main source of the strain seen in their relations.

Another is the departure of the North Vietnamese ambassador from Peking in April. He reportedly left abruptly and has not returned.

A North Vietnamese economic delegation led by Le Thanh Ngui, which recently visited other Communist countries in search of additional aid, did not visit Peking until the last leg of its journey. Usually Peking is any North Vietnamese delegation's first stop.

The official Communist Chinese press devotes more and more space to the National Liberation Front (Viet Cong) than to North Vietnam. The NLF, incidentally, has a full ambassador in Peking which analysts long ago noted as a handy means for China to play Hanoi vs. the Viet Cong subtly.

The man in the street in Peking and other Communist Chinese cities is not even aware that the talks are going on in Paris, since no specific reference has been made to them in the domestic press or radio.

Premier Chou En-lai's speech at a Peking reception for President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania on June 18 confirmed China's disapproval of the Paris talks. He said:

"The 31 million heroic Vietnamese people have dealt heavy blows at the U.S. aggressors in their war against U.S. aggression and for national salvation. While intensifying the war of aggression, U.S. imperialism is busy carrying out peace talks schemes in a vain attempt to gain at the conference table what it cannot get in the battlefield.

"This is what the Vietnamese people cannot permit. Responding to the call of its great leader, President Ho Chi Minh, the entire Vietnamese people are getting united still more closely, persevering in the protracted war and valiantly fighting for the great goal of thoroughly defeating the U.S. aggressors and liberating the whole of Vietnam."

Other recent Chinese press comment, as much by its omissions as by its statements, has disappointed of North Vietnam's participation in the peace talks.

Direct comment on the progress of the war has been scant over the last few weeks. Brief articles only have been carried of Viet Cong successes, with occasional reports of the shooting down of American aircraft over North Vietnam.

Several recent official speeches by Chinese leaders have failed to praise North Vietnam, whereas previously some reference had always been made to "the success of the Vietnamese struggle."

Vice Premier Li Hsien-nien made no mention of Vietnam at a reception for the Guinean foreign minister on May 24; neither did Foreign Minister Chen Yi at the reception for the Nepalese National Day on June 11.

What comment there has been has taken a hard line. Chen Yi, at a reception for the Guinean and Malian foreign ministers on May 18, said:

"Ho Chi Minh has exposed the U.S. imperialist scheme of peddling the peace negotiations swindle while stepping up the war in Vietnam and once again called upon the Vietnamese army and people to 'increase the resolve to fight and to win, brave all hardships and sacrifices, fight continuously and on all battlefields, in order to win still bigger victories.' We are convinced that under the leadership of President Ho Chi Minh the Vietnamese people, preserving the protracted war of resistance, will win final victory."

The militant statement of the National Liberation Front on May 6 was relayed by New China News Agency. NCNA has also quoted unnamed Vietnamese workers as expressing their determination to fight on.

Czech Stand May Herald New Revolt

PRAGUE-- Counterrevolution is one of the ugliest and certainly the most ominous word in the Communist Party vocabulary. It has not been used in describing activities in a fellow Communist state since the October uprising in Hungary in 1956.

But it is now being used quite freely in the Soviet press in articles on reformist Czechoslovakia.

In Hungary, a spontaneous popular uprising was primarily aimed at riddling the country of a despotic, cruel, Stalinist regime under Mathias Rakosi, the withdrawal of Red army troops from the country and replacing the outdated and intolerable police state methods of rule by a more enlightened, though still Communist, regime under Imre Nagy.

This was, in the eyes of the Kremlin, little short of heresy. It was counterrevolution, indeed.

Moving at lightning speed, Red army troops poured into the country, the Hungarian troops fighting for their country were brutally crushed, and Nagy was eventually executed by a Russian firing squad in Romania.

But 12 years is a long time. Both the men in the Kremlin and conditions in Europe and the world, within and outside the Communist camp, have altered drastically.

Today there is no Suez crisis to divert world attention from events in Czechoslovakia.

Should the Russians attempt to interfere by force, and the Czechs prove determined to defend themselves, it would be a far more difficult and costly undertaking against the well-armed, well-led Czech army than against an army of armed civilians and isolated regular units as in the case of Hungary in 1956.

It also would be a dramatic propaganda setback for the Kremlin.

The Russians and their close allies in the Communist camp thus may have decided against armed intervention at this time in favor of a "war of nerves" against the Czech liberals and moral support to the hardliners led by Antonin Novotny.

Kremlin attacks on the Czech reformers are expected to reach a crescendo just before the extraordinary congress of the Czech Communist Party called for Sept. 9, at which the future policies of the party will be clearly established.

The Russians have every reason to fear that a full-scale counterrevolution is in the offing, and has indeed already made considerable progress.

The top leaders of the Old Guard Stalinists have been thrown out of power and preparations are going ahead to remove more than 50 per cent of the nation's political functionaries in the party this summer.

Whatever the outcome of the September congress, the future Czech Communist Party will bear little or no resemblance to the rigid, stereotyped party pattern which until recent years has been the standard hallmark of all Communist parties throughout the world.

If the men around President Alexander Dubcek are able to keep their nerve in the face of increasing pressure from the Soviet Union, East Germany and Poland, and the Russians do not lose theirs and decide to use force after all, the bloodless counter-revolution, which the Russians fear so much, will become a fait accompli by this fall.

Czechoslovakia, under a Communist regime, will have taken a momentous and decisive step in the direction of a democratic way of life and a higher standard of living.

use of the vehicles once the student brought them to campus.

Death after the postponement request came because there would not be time for a second and third reading on the Senate floor and final vote before adjournment Wednesday, Gilbert said.

Tuesday's and Wednesday's committee hearings were scheduled in the morning instead of the usual afternoon time to allow a maximum of legislation to get through in this session, Gilbert said.

Williams said the bill was not dead, only postponed. He added that it would be taken up in committee if the Senate should for some reason convene before the end of the year. Gilbert denied this, saying the bill was "officially dead," but could be presented again at the January session of the Illinois legislature.

"If the Senate does not meet before the end of the year, we will re-present it in January," Williams said.

Gilbert said Williams was notified before 7 p.m. Monday of the committee's decision to reschedule the hearing and that at that time Williams and Gilbert began notifying witnesses for and against the bill of the time change.

Is Your Lawn Getting A Tan?

Water Your Brown Grass

Is the bluegrass on your lawn getting brown along with your tan?

Don't be alarmed, says Donald M. Elkins, forage specialist and assistant professor of plant industries at SIU. When hot and dry weather hits southern Illinois in July and August, bluegrass takes a rest (goes dormant). It will turn green and grow again when rains come in the fall and the temperatures cool slightly, especially if the lawn gets a light dose of nitrogen fertilizer. Blue grass will take its second rest period in winter.

Parched lawns are common in southern Illinois now with only widely scattered light showers registered during the first half of July and subnormal rainfall in some parts of the area during June. The last rainfall of consequence hitting most of the area came during the last week of June, according to data compiled by the Illinois Cooperative Crop Reporting Service.

Elkins says grass lawns can be kept green longer in the summer by adequate irrigation if the householder has a cheap source of water or doesn't mind paying a hefty water bill.

Sprinkling the lawn lightly every day does more harm than good. It encourages shallow rooting which reduces the ability of the grass to survive summer droughts, and helps crabgrass to grow better. The best watering system calls for soaking the sod thoroughly to a depth of five or six inches once or twice weekly.

University Archaeologists Win Race Against Time

A ten-year race with bulldozers and Carlyle Reservoir flood waters to save the story of a vanished people—Southern Illinois' earliest hunters and farmers—has been finished by SIU archaeologists.

It remains for archaeologists, zoologists, botanists and other scientists to study and correlate the vast accumulation of artifacts, skeletal remains, organic material and other debris yielded in the past decade from sites now covered by a man-made lake.

It may take years to unfold the full cultural pattern of how generations of rural native Americans lived along the Kaskaskia River over a span of ten thousand years or more, then disappeared before the coming of the Europeans, according to a wrap-up report of the Carlyle field explorations published by the SIU Museum.

This report, first in a new series of Museum Research Records, was prepared by Frank Rackerby, staff archaeologist who directed the two final summers' field work, in 1965 and 1966. Copies of the report are available on request from the Museum.

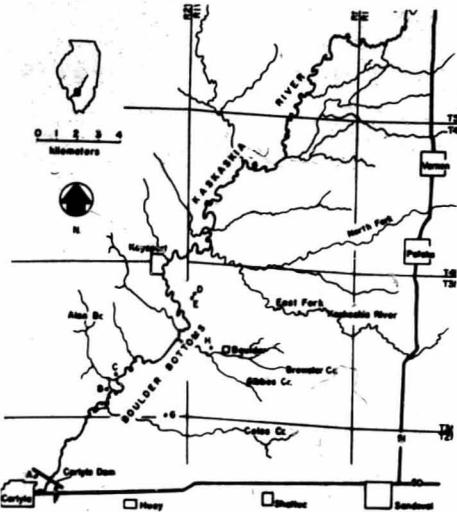

Rackerby, now on the anthropology staff at Northwestern University where he is completing his doctoral degree, considers the Carlyle project conducted under annual grants to the Museum from the National Park Service, a distinct contribution to Midwest archaeology.

"A great deal of cultural information was salvaged from destruction," he said. "The Carlyle project was also useful as a proving ground for new field techniques."

Citing the basic information recorded in the reports of each summer's field work, Rackerby said, "Undoubtedly, it will be years before all of the information collected during the 10 years can be analyzed, but it is recorded in field notes and collections of artifacts and other remains."

OK Emergency Plan In Telephone Strike

CHICAGO (AP)—Striking electrical workers and the Illinois Bell Telephone Co., agreed Tuesday on an emergency plan for installation of communications equipment for the Democratic National Convention scheduled to start Aug. 26.

Robert A. Nickey, chief spokesman for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, met with ranking labor leaders and Mayor Richard J. Daley before announcing that the union would allow 300 volunteers from among its 11,800 strikers to enter the International Amphitheatre to install the elaborate communications systems.

Mayor Daley rushed to a telephone to relay the proposal to the telephone company and immediately told newsmen: "The company has accepted the offer."

"This in no way affects the general strike now in progress against Illinois Bell," Nickey said. IBEW members have been striking Bell since May 8.

Nickey added that the convention truce is confined to the Amphitheatre, South Side home of many national political meetings. "This will not be extended to hotels," he said.

The exclusion of hotels from the agreement poses difficulties for segments of the news media with temporary workrooms and offices in various hotels.

'Strangulation' Seen

Mayor Keene Asks Traffic Problem Help

Carbondale Mayor David Keene has requested Gale Williams, state representative from Murphysboro, to aid in solving Carbondale's growing traffic problem.

Keene said in a letter to Williams that the "central business district will die of traffic strangulation before 1970" if solutions are not enacted soon.

The Carbondale mayor cited the "dynamic growth of Southern Illinois University" as a factor in the increased traffic congestion.

Williams recently introduced a bill in the state legislature which would permit all SIU students to operate motor vehicles between their residence and the campus. The University administration presently limits the number of vehicles operated by students.

Keene mentioned three factors necessary to solving the traffic problem.

The railroad crossing at Walnut Street must not be blocked for any period of time longer than the Main Street crossing is presently blocked.

Temporary connecting streets must be provided at both the east and west ends of the couple.

Appropriate traffic and regulatory signs must be erected.

The mayor cited the Division of Highways proposal that a traffic couple utilizing Main Street as one-way west and Walnut Street as one-way east. He said that it would require the extension of Walnut Street east of its present terminus at Wall Street to a point near the intersection of old and new Highways 13 east of the city.

The possibility of moving the Illinois Central railroad depot south of Carbondale to relieve congestion in the downtown area was also an objective listed by the mayor.

Keene said these plans were not expected to become reality until 1970 or later. The mayor requested Williams to aid in "making this vital improvement a reality on a temporary basis in 1968..."

Bagworm Spraytime at Hand; Larvae Emerge from Cocoons

It's time for householders to spray shrubs which show evidence of being infested with bagworms, says William M. Marberry, SIU assistant professor of botany and supervisor of physical plant greenhouses.

Bagworm larvae are now emerging from the brown cocoons (bags) on the bushes and are feeding on the foliage near their home base. As they develop they start making new cocoons in which the females will deposit eggs for the next crop of larvae. Spraying the infested shrubs at the time the tiny larvae are starting to feed on the foliage is a good control measure.

Spray materials poisonous to eating insects work best, such as lead arsenate, rotenone or lindane as sprays, mixed according to directions on the package. The materials generally are not harmful to birds, but children should be kept away from the spray.

Marberry said each of the over-wintering mature cocoons will hatch out 200 to 400 larvae. So much of the potential damage to shrubs can be eliminated by picking the bags from the plants and destroying them in the spring before the eggs hatch. The best time to do this is in April or early May. The adult male bagworm is the only flying member of the family. The female is a homebody that stays with the cocoon until it is finished and she has produced eggs for the next brood before dying. Usually there is only one brood of larvae each summer.

Not all evergreens are bothered by bagworms. The favorite is the juniper. Bagworms also occur in abundance on pyracantha shrubs, and occasionally may be on box elder. The insects do not seem to bother yews. A few birds feed on bagworm larvae, especially mocking birds and cuckoos, Marberry said.

Mexican Viet Returnee to Speak

A young Mexican citizen who recently returned from Vietnam will be in Carbondale on Thursday to discuss the "impact of the war on the Vietnamese people's lives, their hopes, and attitudes."

Rafael Ruiz worked in a Buddhist orphanage in Hue under the Voluntary International Service Assignment (VISA) sponsored by the American Friends Service Committee (Quakers). Ruiz recently left Vietnam during the Vietcong Tet Offensive.

Previously Ruiz had attended Texas Christian University and Union Theological Seminary. He also has been assistant minister at a Spanish-American congregation in New York City.

A free coffee hour with Ruiz is being sponsored at 11 p.m. Thursday in the River Rooms by the Student Activities Center.

A special discussion co-sponsored by the American Friends Service Committee and Clergy and Laymen Concerned About Vietnam will also be held at 8 p.m. in the First Presbyterian Church at the corner of Elm and S. University streets.

Persons concerned about the war, but who have not made a personal decision about what future action the U.S. should take, are especially invited to attend the evening discussion.

American Football—Korean Style

By Dave Palermo

One of the most unique football seasons imaginable is played just five miles south of the demilitarized zone in South Korea. It is at this locale that the 2nd Infantry Division, about 12,000 men assigned to block the "Kaesong Corridor," are stationed. From September to December an average of 8,000 GI's with their "Yo Bos" (girls) and an abundant supply of beer, crowd into a compound stadium for a thrilling afternoon of football.

Mitch Chuck, an SIU student who was stationed in Korea for two years, served as a sports writer and later editor for the Indianhead, the division newspaper.

"There was a college atmosphere at every game," commented Chuck. "We had cheerleaders, brass bands—the works."

"The 7th Infantry is the biggest rival on the schedule," Chuck said. "We beat them last year and it was really an exciting game."

The contest between the 2nd and 7th Division was exciting to say the least. The Warriors edged their arch rivals in the final two minutes of the game, 21-20. When the final gun sounded the capacity crowd at the gridiron spilled out of the stands and on the field, hoisting the victors (collegiate style) onto their shoulders.

"The players tried hard to stay on the team because if they didn't make it they'd get shifted to the front line. Knowing this gave the men an added incentive and they hit extra hard to stay on the team."

Each division in Korea fields a football team and they form the Eighth Army Conference. Members of the conference include the 2nd Division Warriors, 1-corp's Bullsayers, 7th Infantry Division Bayonets and the 8th Eascom Frontiersmen.

Highlighting the season for the 2nd Division Football schedule is a Homecoming Game, annual visit by Miss Korea and a Rivalry Game with the toughest team on the schedule.

The games are played near the north-south dividing line, and despite the athletic extra curricular activities, a wartime atmosphere still prevails.

"It's relatively peaceful," explained Chuck. "There's a war like situation north of the DMZ and there's firing every night. Athletics is used ob-vously to keep the division's morale up."

Since the 2nd Division's arrival in July 1965, they've been one of the most feared outfits in the league. They've taken three major league titles outright and have been a perennial power in other areas of athletic competition as well.

Four tribe boxers have gained berths on All-Eighth Army teams and seven basketball players have done likewise. The 1967 Warrior baseball team was the first service team in recent years to capture the league title, the 8th Army Tournament Crown and the Korean Goodwill Tournament title all in the same season.

Chuck, who was red-shirted along with Walt Frazier in 1965 for Southern, also played service basketball.

"Basketball wasn't as popular as football," he said. "We were lucky to draw 1,000 fans."

"The service teams were comparable to good small college teams," he continued. "We played the Korean Olympic team and they beat us very bad—by about 20 points."

One of Chuck's teammates was Ron Brack, who attended Union College in Kentucky. Brack was a little All-American selection.

Brack, along with player-coach Jeff Causephol and Dan Keegan, were selected to the 8th Army All Star team at the end of last season.

The sport of baseball—military style—also has its share of individual talent. Centerfielder Bob Garcia, infielder Ron Saltir and Sam Gafford, all members on the 2nd Division nine, were awarded major league contracts when discharged.

Chuck called his military service "one of the best things that ever happened to me."

National AAU Meet on Schedule

By Barb Leebens

Summer denotes a time when stringent tests of an athlete's ability are the rule rather than the exception.

To a small group of SIU swimmers, two of the biggest such tests are upcoming. They will be faced with the National AAU outdoor swimming meet during the first weekend of August to be followed by the Olympic tryouts in Long Beach, Calif.

"We gear the swimming program at Southern to the national level." Ray Essick, SIU swimming coach said. "In the Olympic tryouts they pick only the top three men with the best times in that event. That is stiff competition and sometimes a boy has to make a choice as to which test or challenge his ability can meet."

Essick cited 18-year-old freshman Bruce Steiner as an example. "Steiner is rated 11th in the nation in the 1500 meter-freestyle—that is to say that eight men in the nation have better times than he has. Would it make sense to compete in the Olympic tryouts or should he try to push himself for a National title?" Essick asked.

"When a swimmer trains for a swimming meet, he can't be pushed to the level that a basketball player or a football swimmer is every week. A swimmer's growth, endurance, speed, and development is pushed a little more each week 'like building stairs,' until finally the swimmer, toward the end of the season, is in his best form," according to Essick.

"People in this area are naturally baseball, basketball, and football oriented. To them the most important thing is to win the game." Essick added, "This is unrealistic in a swimming meet. Each boy is working to meet a peak and it takes a lot of work and endurance to achieve this.

"This does not mean that we do not try to win—the swimmers swim to the best of their ability that they have developed at the time of that meet.

"There are always boys like Mark Spirtz of Santa Rosa and Schollander (winner of four gold medals in the last Olympics) who are outstanding in all phases of swimming," Essick added.

Veron Dasch, Scott Conkel and Steiner have already qualified for one event in the Olympic tryouts. Brad Glenn and John Hoben will try for the Nationals in August.

Dasch, a 20-year-old freshman from Pompano, Fla., has already qualified in the 100 meter freestyle with a time of :55.7. This past weekend he was a finalist in the 200 and 400 meter freestyle in the regional trials in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., with times of 2:06 and 4:29 respectively. He also placed second in the 400 meter relay with a time of 3:45.8.

"I was a little disappointed with his times as he was swimming those times earlier in June," Essick said. "But he has been ill and I guess that slowed him up a little." Conkel, a 20-year-old junior swimmer from Pekin, didn't go to the regional trials in Louisville this past weekend. He qualified for the 100 meter relay in a timed performance earlier this season. Steiner likewise did not compete in Louisville last weekend because he developed a bad elbow.

"Not all the boys are able to compete in both the Nationals and the Olympics—you must swim a certain time before they will even let you try to compete," Essick said. "If and when a swimmer reaches this step on the stairs then it is usually up to him as to how far he can go from there."

PGA Adds Money, Courses To 1968 Tournament Sked

By Frank Macomber
Copley News Service

The Professional Golfers Association is adding $922,722 to its 1968 tournament tour prize kitty with a nine-event fall schedule.

The fall lineup includes a Caribbean tour and brings to $5,463,697.22 the golden fleece offered this year in PGA-sponsored tournaments. That's more than $809,000 ahead of the previous record prize figure of last year, says Billy Booe, PGA tournament administrator.

A newcomer to the fall schedule this year is the Kemper Open Invitational at Sutton, Mass., Sept. 12-15, with purses totaling $150,000. The $200,000 PGA team championship, off the schedule in 1967, moves back into the Sept. 19-22 time slot, replacing the Oklahoma City Open over the tough Quail Creek course and the Twin Hills layout in Oklahoma City.

The Lucky International Open Invitational at San Francisco also is back on the fall tournament calendar Oct. 31-Nov. 3 over the Harding Park Municipal course, with prize money aggregating $100,000.

Another change from last year is doubling of prize money for the Sahara Invitational Pro-Amateur at Las Vegas Oct. 15-16 over the Paradise Valley course. Pro-am purses are jumping from $11,111.11 last year to $27,222.22 this year. The $100,000 Sahara Invitational will be played on the same course Oct. 17-20.

The traditional three-tournament Caribbean tour has been trimmed to two events, but there remained the possibility that a 10th competition might be added to fill in one of four open fall dates.

The Caribbean events this year include the $20,000 Caracas Open at the Valle Arriba course in Caracas, Venezuela, Nov. 14-17 and the $20,000 West End Classic on Grand Bahama Island Nov. 21-24. Both tournaments stage $1,500 pro-amateur contests as well.

Caribbean tour purses are small by comparison with U.S. standards but draw prestige fields including many of golfdom's top pros. By that time of the year the tournament trail pressure has pretty well eased off. The pros call these the "holiday" tournaments.

Filling out the fall tournament season are the $110,000 Haig Scotch Foursome Invitational at Las Costa Country Club, Encinitas, Calif., Oct. 24-27, with a $5,000 pro-amateur Oct. 23; the $125,000 Hawaiian Open Invitational at Honolulu Nov. 7-10 with a $10,000 pro-amateur Nov. 6, and the $35,000 Cajun Classic at Lafayette, La., Nov. 21-24, with a $2,500 pro-amateur Nov. 20.

There still are four open dates on the fall tours, one in September, two in October and one in November. But Booe says only one of these is likely to be filled.
