SIU-C health insurance in dilemma

University employees wanting to go to Memorial Hospital of Carbondale for health care may find they will be paying a bigger amount of money than they bargained for

The University switched ealth insurance last semester health insurance last semester from the CarleCare Health Maintenence Organization to the state of Illinois, William personnel services, said.

The state of Illinois negotiates deals with hospitals in the state through the Department of Central Management Services in Springfield, Capie said. The hospitals that make deals with Illinois are called "preferred providers."

Illinois pays 90 percent of the total bill for inpatients who go to preferred provider hospitals for treatment, Capie said.

Memorial Hospital of Carbondale is not a preferred provider hospital.

According to Shirley Mills,

the hospital's charges.

The Memorial Hospital of Carbondale is the closest hospital to the University, but if it does not become a preferred provider, impatients will have to pay most of the total cost on their own, Capie said.

This could potentially cost University employees thousands of dollars out-of-pocket," Capie said.

St. Joseph Memorial Hospital in Murphysboro is a preferred provider hospital and so are many other hospitals in Southern Illinois, but if an emerger cy arises for employees while at work, Memorial Hospital of Car-bondale is the closest.

Benefit to be held for student needing heart, lung transplant

A local bar will be the site of a benefit Sunday night on behalf of a University law student who has been awaiting a heart and lung transplant since last year.

Dianne Levin, a May 1988 law school graduate, has Eisenmenger's Syndrome with Pulminary Hypertension. The disease occurs when there is a hole in the wall of the heart separating the two chambers, with one side of the heart this syndrome produces high blood pressure in the lungs, scarring them, and makes the exchange of oxygen and carbon monoxide very difficult. The lungs become irreversibly damaged as a consequence of the disease and begin to fail, Victims of the disease suffer from shortness of breath and frequent ex-treme fatigue. Levin, who now has a pacemaker, is on a waiting list for the life saving See BENEFT, Page 7

The initial evaluation of her condition last year cost $10,000.
The price tag of the transplant alone has been estimated at $124,000, while medication could run up to $600 a month, not including twice weekly trips to St. Louis' Barnes Hospital for treatment.

Professor researches protective coating to be used in aerospace By Tim Crosby Gus Bade

Finding ways to make a good piece of technology even more useful is the goal of a University assistant professor in the mechanical engineering

Gov. James R. Thompson nears the end of what will be 14 years as Illinois' governor on a high note in Southern Illinois as he formally announced Rend Lake as one of the three sites chosen for a new state

"I hope you will be able to say, by the time I complete my 14th and final year, in January of 1991, simply, that he was a good governor," Thompson said. "And I know you will be able to say that he knew where Southern Illinois was."

Thompson arrived at the Rend Lake golf course shortly before 2:30 Thursday on the last leg of a three-stop route to announce the three prison sites. He also announced plans locate two minimum-security prisons in Robinson and Taylorville.

The minumum-security prisons at Robinson and Thompson announces new state prison sites Taylorville are expected to cost approximately $23.5 million.

The prison at Rend Lake is expected to cost $50 million.

Six communities were originally in the running for the three proposed prisons, all of which put on campaigns to convince the governor and Michael Lane, director of the Department of Corrections, that their perspective area was the best site and the most in need

The three communities that failed to receive the governor's blessing were Decatur, Flor and Streator.
Thompson said he had to look at the many advantages that all six sites had to offer the Department of Corrections and also look at the recom-mendation from Lane.

"Selecting the three sites from the group of six finalists was a difficult decision,"

Monsoon rains disrupt life life in India, kills hundreds

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) - Relief teams used boats and NEW DELFH, India (UPI) — Reher teams used boats and helicopters to evacuate villagers from monsoon rains, but the flooding has already claimed more than 780 lives, news reports said Thursday. Flooding from almost continuous showers since July 22 has disrupted life and affected millions of people in six southern and western states, with rivers breaching their banks, crops destroyed and homes inundated, the reports said.

House budget plan will slow up stealth bomber

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House started a day-long drive to finish the $305 billion defense budget Thursday, a bill that slows up the $70 billion B-2 stealth bomber and sharply cuts the "Star Wars" program. Speaker Tom Foley said the chamber would wrap up work on the bill by early evening. The three days the House worked on the bill's major provisions is the shortest time in recent years the chamber has spent on the biggest spending bill in the U.S. government.

LONDON (UPI) — A Korean Airlines DC-10 crashed in the Libyan capital of Tripoli while trying to land in heavy fog Thursday, killing at least 78 of the 199 passengers and crew and four people on the ground, the official Libyan news agency Jana said. The cause of the accident was not known. It was the second fatal crash of a McDonnell Douglas DC-10 in eight days.

Polish farmers block roads, make demands

WARSAW (UPI) — Several hundred farmers on tractors decorated with Solidarity banners blocked streets in the Baltic seaport of Gdansk for six hours Thursday in one of two protests to demand higher prices for produce, activist sources said. A spokesman for the Gdansk protesters said as a result of the blockade, one of a series nationwide, officials agreed to compensate farmers for a price freeze imposed this month but ignored requests for higher produce prices and tax cuts to last year's level.

New satellite dish to offer expanded programming

Hormone alteration advantage for dairy

THE MENTION of hormone alteration has left a bitter taste in the mouths of milk producing companies. The hormone is bovine somatropin (BST), a growth hormone that is produced naturally in the pituitary gland of cattle and most other mammals.

Cows injected with a bioengineered BST produce 10 to 25 percent more milk with only 5 to 10 percent more feed. From an economic standpoint, supply should increase and the price should go down.

No wonder milk companies are mooing.

Claims are being made that the consumer's perception of milk as a wholesome product will be destroyed by the image of manipulated cattle.

MEANWHILE, children are starving. These children don't think much about how much protein the cow had in its pituitary gland. They just need the milk.

Bioengineering is an extremely controversial issue. But, given modern technology, it is an issue that will not go away. Scientists and consumers alike are wise to consider the short-term and long-term effects of bioengineering at any level in order to ensure that responsible action is taken.

The use of BST has the potential to help low-incomed families by providing milk for cheaper prices. The negative effect is a disadvantage for advertisers who want to promote milk as a wholesome product.

MAYBE TWO different types of dairy products, one using the engineered hormone, and another using existing methods, can be produced. This way consumers will have a choice.

The threat to marketers is real; a negative image could seriously harm the product's ability to sell. More important however, is the ability the product has to provide nutrition for more people.

If approved by the Food and Drug Administration as a safe product, we support the use of BST in cattle for dairy products.

Racism in the U.S. a white problem, must face present mistakes, not past Racism in the United States is a white problem. All of us white citizens of the Unites States are responsible for racism and oppression, because racism is endemic to our society.

We are responsible because although African-American males comprise only about 5 percent of our population, they comprise about 45 percent of our prison population (Atkinson, Journal of College Student Personnel, 1987).

There is no statistical evidence showing that African-American males are more likely to commit crimes than white males, but there is evidence linking crime rates to poverty levels, which partly explains the high crime rates found in our socially perpetuated ghettoes. Economically, responsible because the poverty rate of African-Americans is twice that of whites. We are responsible here in Southern Illinois because the poverty level in the 22nd Congressional District in 1979 was 14.5 percent for the total population, and 39.5 percent for African-Americans. African-Americans comprised less than 20 percent of the total population of this district at that time (1980 Census).

Socially, we are responsible because we dony the heritage of African-Americans history" is an ethnocentric misnomer for "history of whites as recorded by whites"). We are responsible because our institutions continue practices that discriminate based on race.

It is true that we are guaranteed some rights regardless of race or gender, which provides some gender, which provides some equality. I guess that means African-Americans can be thankful they're oppressed here instead of, say, in the Soviet Union, where they couldn't complain about it. But the overrepresentation of African-American males in our jails illustrates that "guaranteed" rights are not equally meted.

It's true we aren't responsible for mistakes of the past. Does that free us of responsibility for the present? We needn't apologize for the behavior of our founders, any more than we need defend their behavior. However, does that absolve us from recognizing past mistakes and striving to avoid repeating them?

We are not all the same. We come from different pasts; we carry different prides and prejudices. To seek an "equality that denies our divergent cultural histories is to seek annihilation. Our strength is in our diversity. Our Constitution speaks to the protection of the right to be different. Even our flag represents a union of diverse entities, each of which is recognized in its right to be counted separately.

It is right to seek equality of opportunity and equality in the recognition that every human being deserves freedom and respect. Freedom fron oppression, and respect for the right to be different. These are basic human rights.

Racism is a white problem, and will remain so until we accept our roles in perpetuating disparities and begin seeking ways to actively overcome our institutions of racism.

It is not wrong to be white; it is only wrong to be blind to one's own racial proclivities and standards of measure. It is wrong not to recognize the impact one's own racial perspective has on one's views of how the world "should" be experienced and perceived by others. — Todd Hedinger, graduate student in educational psychology

Above this temperature, oxidation occurs as the composite is exposed to oxygen in the atmosphere. Oxidation can cause damage to, as well as change the properties of the composite.

This is where Don's work

By coating the material with other substances such as zirconium carbide, zirconium zirconium carbide, zirconium diboride and hafnium carbide, Don hopes to be able to push the envelope of carbon-carbon composites to over 2,000 degrees Celsius.

Don said by layering silicon carbide with these other substances in layers several hundred microns thick, the heating process is diffused and higher temperatures may be withstood.

"This is all pretty new research. Most of it is carried on by private industry," he said.

Such technology is used on the space shuttle as well as on the re-entry vehicles of in-tercontinental ballistic missiles.

Don said another reason the Air Force is interested in the technology is to develop faster more accurate missiles

Du Quoin State Fair events 'exceptional'; ticket sales up

More than 1,000 people were on hand Thursday morning — including three young men who had been there 21 hours when tickets went on sale for the Du Quoin State Fair.

the Du Quoin State Fair.

"I been around here for about 20 years and this is the best I can remember," Jane Bailey, publicity director for the fair, said. "We have an exceptional lineup this year. I hate to say we expected it (the response), but I guess we did." Tickets went on sale at 10 a.m.

The fair, which as been run since 1986 by the state of Illinois, is the second largest in the state behind the State Fair in Springfield. Du Quoin opens Aug. 26 and runs through Sept.

"Things got pretty bad there from about 1979 to '85," Bailey said. The loss of the Ham-bletonian nearly a decade ago, a world-class harness race that is now run at the Meadowlands in New Jersey, meadowlands in New Jersey, sent the fair into a tailspin.

Du Quoin drew 250,000 in 1986, 330,000 in 1987 and 383,000 last year. Bailey declined to estimate this year's crowd.

"We have a great lineup, but so much depends on the weather," she said. At the head of the ticket line

Hand Therapy Center formed at SIU School of Medicine

By Christine Broda Staff Writer

A Hand Therapy Center specializing in the rehabilitation of hands and upper extremities has been established at the SIU School

The center is organized around the occupational therapy of Norma Arras, who will work with five SIU plastic surgeons and other referring physicians.

physicians.

The program will continue to provide follow-up care, especially important in hand injuries and diseases.

"The program has been a success so far. I think that we'll be able to expand to provide more comprehensive care, which we were not able to do before," Arras said. Among the services that Arras said she hopes will be expanded are the exercise treatment programs, because of impressed sense, and the of improved space, and the work hardening program.

The work hardening programs provide services for people needing hand therapy to return to work.

The Hand Therapy Center also educates the public about hand care safety.

Arras said the center has seen about 150 to 200 patients since its reorganization last montl.

The most common type of injuries are considered to be a

Police capture guerrilla leaders, 17 others during raids in capital

MANILA, Philippines (UPI)

— Police Thursday captured two key communist guerrilla leaders who participated in unsuccessful peace talks with the government of President Corazon Aquino more than two years ago

The two were described as a "moderating force" who opposed brutal tactics and called for a phased rather than immediate withdrawal of U.S.

Military officials said Saturnino Ocampo and his wife, Carolina Malay, were officials captured without resistance by a national police team while they drove in the capital's financial district.

National police chief Maj. Gen. Ramon Montano said officers arrested Ocampo and Malay on a tip from an in-former after photographs of the two were published Monday and the reward for their capture was doubled to

Brig. Gen. Alexander Aguirre, chief of the military capital command, said in a radio interview 17 guerrillas also were captured in raids in 23 rebel "safehouses" late Wednesday and early Thur-sday. He did not say if other leaders were among those arrested in the operation by 200 soldiers

Montano said Ocampo, 50, former business editor of the Manila Times, was chairman of the Communist Party's propaganda arm, the National United Front Commission. He also was on the policy-making politburo of the outlawed party. But But Montano said the Communist Party was "in disarray" and he could not place Ocampo's position in the leadership.

Malay, a Paris-educated writer, was Ocampo's deputy in the commission. Both were on a rebel panel involved in brief peace talks with the Aquino's government in December 1986 before the negotiations broke down.

Left-leaning Congressman Bonifacio Gillego called Ocampo and Malay "a movement," opposing purges revealed early this year with the discovery of mass graves of executed "deep penetration

In an interview with United Press International in Press International in February, Ocampo expressed disappointment at the bloody turn of the 20-year insurgency waged by rebels of the New People's Army, the armed wing of the Communist Party with some 23,000 members.

He also proposed resuming peace talks if Aquino agreed to installations. Aquino rejected Ocampo's offer.

Ocampo's offer.
Ocampo said public debate on the 1947 treaty covering Washington's largest overseas facilities, Clark Air Base and Subic Bay complex, centered rot on whether they should said, but rather on how long they would remain before they would remain before being dismantled. The treaty expires in 1991.

Malay said in the interim,
"The bases are something you have to live with."

Playwright's Workshop takes audience to different worlds

By Carrie Pomeroy Staff Writer

All three of Playwright's Workshop plays, which will be performed at the Laboratory Theater on July 31-August 2, are concerned with how people relate to each other in difficult situations, and two of the plays deal with war.

But the similarities and there. These plays take their audience to a totally different world each night.

Patricia Sweet's "Mother 6," which will be performed July 31, is based on the playwright's experiences when she was stationed in Vietnam.

Vietnam.
The dialogue and situations of the play, as well as the acting, subtly convey the black humor and raw emotion of living with war. The intimate, theater-in-the-round design of the Laboratory Theater in-creases the feeling that one isn't really watching a play, but observing real events unfold.

The main character of "Mother 6," a Vietnam vet named Sonja, addresses the audience as if it is a veterans' rap group.

She tells of her compulsive habit of secretly collecting and trying on military gear when her family is away. She says she's "running out of room" for her cache, providing an apt metaphor for wartime for her cache, providing an apt metaphor for wartime memories painfully flooding the veteran's psyche. Sonja's memories of life as a Service Club hostess during the Tet Offensive provide a framework for several colorful characters to share their views of the war.

Rose, a black woman who would rather stay in Vietnam than return to the racism of the United States, is played with foul-mouthed assurance by Fern Chappell.

Leah Ellison's portrayal of Marybeth, a woman who cracks under the pressure of her obligations to the fighting sympathetic

Juanita is a mother figure on Juanta is a momer rigure on the base whose promisculty is a purposeful attempt to get pregnant and create life in the midst of death. She is portrayed by Joann Givens as a highly complex, likeable

"Mother 6" depicts themes that may disturb or even of fend some audience members.

One of the play's premises, that the women in Vietnam were obligated to fill the male were congaced to fift the mate soldiers' every need, may make feminists squirm. Sonja's revelation that taking part in the violence and car-nage of the Tet Offensive was the high point of her life may disturb pacifists.

The strong point of "Mother 6" is that it is hard not to care about its characters, even if one doesn't agree with their actions or statements.

The characters in "Currents" by Gretchen Smith, on the other hand, are too flat and unrealistic to in-spire feeling in the audience.

The play, which deals with the conflict between a dead man's friends and his sister over ownership of his house, over ownership of his house, has little emotional urgency. "Currents" attempts to show the waves of change that unexpectedly bring people together and tear them apart, and it sometimes successes is its portrayal of the affection between the dead man's motley crew of friends.

But many of the play's plot twists seem highly un-twists seem highly unmotivated and inconsistent.

The play does contain some fine performances, particularly Brian Holtz as a shy, fumbling man in love with his dead friend's pregnant girlfriend, and Michele DiMaso as Luna, an ethereal, nature-loving ray of light in the play's general drabness.

Currents was performed July

The scene of Frederik Norberg's "Jerusalem" is a courtroom in Paris just after the liberation of France from the Nazis. Solange Devereux, a French prostitute, is being tried for helping a Gestapo officer rape and murder a young French girl. Her case gives Norberg an opportunity to make important points about hypocrisy and betrayal. Norberg does a good job of recreating the witch hunt mentality of the Freuch towards those they saw as collaborators with the Nazis. the Nazis, Solange Devereux, a

The villains of the play are the upper-crust Becquier family. Although they are sometimes a bit melodramatic and cartoonish, resembling characters from a soap opera, characters from a soap opera, they are portrayed with great style by Leah Ellison as the family matriarch and Tracey Brouillette and Troy Skeeters as her children.

Dawn Wall as Solange has a raw beauty and intensity that is emphasized by her prisoner's shaved head and the swastika branded in her head swastika oranded in her nead by her imprisoners.

John Weagly is the picture of naivete and inexperience, from the baggy suit that makes him look like a child masquerading as an adult to his furnhing attempts. his fumbling attempts to defend Solange.

Other stand-out characters are the rebellious freedom fighters Jean and Cheri, played with mischievous enthusiasm by Peter Schmit and Michele DiMaso.

One of the play's great strengths is that the charac-ters observing the court court proceedings actually sit in the audience, drawing the audience into the play and giving the play's action a convincing tension.

Convincing tension.

Reds' losing streak ends

CINCINNATI (UPI) After suffering through their longest losing streak in 23 years — 10 straight defeats — the Cincinnati Reds finally won a game Thursday, whipping the San Diego Padres 6-1. Despite the first victory in 12 days, Cincinnati manager Pete Rose found it difficult to be optimistic about the future. After all, the losing streak was just part of a major sevenweek slump for the Reds.

Cincinnati, which led the National League West seven weeks ago, has lost 31 of its last 42 games to 'umble virtually out of the division

"It'll take a miracle for s to win the division, I know that," acknowledged Rose. "We've just got to go out now and finish as high as we can.

"But at least the losing streak has ended and that's a burden off our shoulders. It's tough to go home every night after losing."

The Reds had Rolando Roomes and Tim Leary to thank for stopping their embarrassing streak.

Baseball card collectors stay young with hobby

Baseball brings out the little kid in everyone and it gives adults the opportunity to keep in touch with the old days.

Baseball card collecting has

He will probably be named the player of the month." Larry Jackson, Carbondale High School baseball coach, said he first started collecting baseball cards as a kid. He stopped collecting in high school and college before taking up the hobby once
