Election J-board hearing canceled after reporter refuses to leave room

By Debby Ratermann
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The trustee election special judicial board canceled its scheduled closed hearing Tuesday night when a Daily Egyptian reporter and photographer refused to leave the meeting room.

The board has insisted that all hearings be closed.

Mary Day, chairperson, moved the meeting from its original location in the Student Center to her private office at 600 W. Freeman, a campus classroom building.

After the board met briefly in Ms. Day's office, she emerged to read a statement. "We will not have a meeting tonight," Ms. Day said. "We refuse to compromise our position on a closed meeting."

Ms. Day said the board will continue to hold closed meetings unless SIU Legal Counsel instructs them otherwise.

SIU Legal Counsel's Bob Artz said the student trustee election has been "strictly left-up to the internal structure set up here on campus."

After her statement, Ms. Day and the other board members, as well as student disciplinary administrator Carl Harris, returned to her office.

Ms. Day told the press, "We are not having a board meeting. We are having a private meeting in my office."

However, several of the eight students who had been invited to attend the hearings were admitted to Ms. Day's office.

Student trustee elect Matthew Rich was one of the eight. "It's absurd," Rich said. "I don't want the meeting closed. I have nothing to hide."

The four members of the trustee election commission also were invited to attend.

Commissioner Ralph Rosnyk said the cancellation was "asinine" and passed out statements calling for open meetings.

Daniel Scheuring, who attended as one submitting a complaint, said of the meeting, "It's ridiculous."

Another complainant, Larry Rafferty, said, "The whole thing is taking too long."

A journalism professor said Tuesday afternoon that the board may be violating state law by holding closed hearings on two complaints concerning the Dec. 5 student trustee election.

Harry Stonecipher, who teaches a course in journalism law, said the board's decision may be in violation of the Illinois open meetings act.

"The question is whether it's a public

Drive planned to close gap in budget proposals

By John Morrissey
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A committee of University and area citizens is making plans for a legislative drive to close the gap between SIU's proposed fiscal 1975 budget and the recommendations of the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE).

Sen. Kenneth V. Buzbee, D-Carbondale, formed the committee in an attempt to gain support he said he lacked when he tried to fight last year's budget cuts in the Illinois General Assembly.

IBHE budget recommendations, which triggered the termination of 104 teaching positions at SIU last December, are only the first step of a long budgetary process. IBHE figures must first be approved by Gov. Daniel Walker and incorporated into his March budget message. Walker's requests for appropriations must then be approved by the General Assembly before higher education budget figures become final.

Buzbee has drawn criticism recently from Gale Williams, former state representative, for not fighting SIU budget cuts last year. Contacted at his home in Murphysboro, Williams said Buzbee made no attempt to file a motion to override a Walker veto reducing SIU's allotment of funds for fiscal 1974.

Walker used his reduction veto to cut IBHE recommendations written into last year's budget after deciding the figures were too high.

Buzbee said he decided not to file a motion to override the veto because he did not have the support of the SIU Board of Trustees. He said SIU's governing officials "could not make up their minds whether to fight this thing."

Buzbee explained some dealing was necessary to gain support from other senators, particularly those in university districts.

But with the continued hesitancy of the Board of Trustees to back him, he said he "was in a position of going into that fight with the chance of dealing gone. If your own governing board says they're being treated fairly, it's hard to make a case that SIU needs more money."

Meanwhile, motions presented by other university district senators in behalf of their governing boards were

SIU professor praises Russia for progress in serving its people

By Gary Houy
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A recent visit to the Soviet Union convinced an SIU instructor that Russia "has come a long way" toward meeting the needs of most of its people.

William Shelton, assistant professor of educational administration and foundations, returned from the Soviet Union on New Year's Eve, impressed with how well the Russian government has worked for most of its people.

"I'm not really impressed with the system as a whole, but with how far they have come in the past years," Shelton said. He made the trip to research Soviet schools for a course he will teach this spring and to "get a feel of the people there."

Shelton arrived in Moscow on Dec. 15 and spent four days visiting "regular" and "special" Soviet schools, the University of Moscow, the Institute of Pedagogy and the Ministry of Education.

"A regular school is much the same as an American school," Shelton said. "Students start in first grade at about age 7 and continue until eighth or tenth grade." He said science and technology are the subjects stressed by Soviet teachers, and a student in a regular school starts learning a foreign language in the fourth grade.

"In a special school, a foreign language is stressed from the second grade, and certain courses are taught in that language," he said.

Shelton suggested two reasons why foreign languages are emphasized in Soviet schools. "The Russians naturally consider themselves a world power, and they want people trained from childhood in foreign languages to man their foreign offices. Also, the Soviet Union is bordered by many countries using many different languages."

He left Moscow on Dec. 20 and traveled to Kiev. Shelton felt he could get a better look at the country from a train than if he took a plane. "Our railroad system is a little more comfortable," Shelton said. "And you'd better be prepared for the sanitation facilities. However, I was amazed at the precision of the system. The train left the station precisely on time and arrived exactly according to schedule."

In Kiev, Shelton was impressed by the busy attitude of the Russian people, especially during a visit to a large department store. "They all seem to be going somewhere, and in a great hurry to get there," he said.

Shelton toured institutions and points of interest in Soviet cities by taxicabs, which are state-owned. The cab drivers have a quota of money they must make each day. Since the state cannot afford to have a lot of cabs in service, it sometimes takes about one and a half hours for a driver to arrive after a call, he said.

The hotel he stayed in was also state-owned, as are most of the residences of the Soviet citizens. "There are hardly any houses left, except out in the country. Most have been torn down and replaced by apartment buildings," Shelton said.

"Some types of housing can be owned by the people. They can buy an apartment in a condominium," he said. "However, they must sell it through the government for the same price as they bought it."

Russian citizens who live on collective farms are sometimes given a plot of land for their private use. The individual can raise vegetables on the land and sell the produce in certain designated places in town and keep the profits. A good musician can give private lessons for profit and a doctor may develop a private practice in the Soviet Union, Shelton said.

Russians bearing Christmas trees greeted Shelton on his arrival in Leningrad Christmas day. Although the holiday is not celebrated in the familiar way, the Soviet people tend to "slow down" their work by Dec. 27 and combine two holidays in a New Year's celebration.

"The same kinds of gifts that we buy are available in the stores during this season," Shelton said. "They have toy dogs, toy tanks and toy guns just like we do. And they give the gifts to each other just like it was Christmas. Except the trees are called New Year's trees instead of Christmas trees."

Most technical programs offered by Soviet universities cover five years and teaching programs take four years. Since the state pays for the schooling, a student must only pass the competitive examinations to enter college, he said. The government may issue a stipend in some cases to pay for the student's clothing, room and board.

Shelton said he was surprised by the number of Soviet women involved in jobs Americans associate with men. "There were women bus drivers, conductors and snow shovelers," he said. "I didn't see any women policemen."

A male policeman did notice Shelton once, as he hopped a guard-rail and jaywalked across a Russian street. The policeman reprimanded him and fined him one rouble.

Shelton originally became interested in Russia while serving in the Air Force during the joint occupation of Japan from 1945 to 1947. He was selected to go to Pakistan as a professor and consultant in education in 1954 for the Department of State Foreign Aid Program. He continued to work in countries controlled or affected by Soviet Union influence until 1970.

From his experiences, Shelton has concluded that we can learn something from the Russian system, especially the educational system. "Because we have neglected our foreign language abilities, we have neglected culture and the joy of knowing about other people," he said.

5 bills slated for S-Senate

Five bills are scheduled to be debated at the Student Senate meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center Ballrooms.

The bills include Senate support of the Farm Workers Union and an allocation of $59 to the Asian Studies Club.

Three new campus groups have asked to be recognized at the meeting—the Young Workers' Liberation League, the Undergraduate Association of the Administration of Justice, and the Graduate Students Association of the College of Human Resources.

No new bills had been turned in for the meeting as of Tuesday afternoon, Margo Carlock, Student Government secretary, said.

Year of the Tiger

New Year celebrated by Chinese Wednesday

By Rafe Klingler
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Chinese Americans spent midnight to dawn Wednesday warding off the monster with fireworks and lights as they welcomed in the New Year of the Tiger.

Based on the lunar calendar, the Chinese New Year occurs sometime between mid-January and mid-February.

But the night-long vigil is based on what happened long ago, before written history, when the Chinese dressed in animal skins and lived an idyllic, simple life.

According to "A Cycle of Chinese Festivities" by C.S. Wong, an unseen monster was periodically ravaging a peaceful village located in a fertile basin beside the Yellow River. The elders of the village formed a council to decide what to do. But no matter what defenses they set up, the monster returned time after time to destroy the village's peaceful life.

Finally, a wiseman noted that the monster's attacks occurred at regular intervals—every 365 days. The village spent the year making preparations. On the 365th eve, the villagers lit bonfires, raised a din and made sure all solid objects wore a skin of red paint.

Murphysboro residents should take note that the ruse worked and the monster, nicknamed Nien (year), was frightened off—until the next year.

Life may no longer be simple, but many of the monster scaring techniques remain in the Chinese New Year celebration.

Tien-Wei Wu, associate professor of history, said the New Year's Eve celebration is spent in ancestor worship and socializing by family gatherings. At Midnight, a large meal is eaten. New clothes are worn and presents in red wrappings are exchanged. Homes are decorated and brightly lit.

The next 15 days are a continuation of the celebrations. In sections of the country where there are large Chinese populations as in San Francisco, fireworks explode and parades featuring music and winding dragons fill the main streets.

Wu said that even in modern-day Peking, with its austere and revolutionized culture, the people celebrate the New Year in the gay, traditional manner. "People don't change that fast," he said.

According to Chinese custom, each year is named after one of 12 animal symbols, said Wong in his book. This year is the year of the Tiger. Last was the year of the Ox. Other symbols are the rat, hare, dragon, snake, horseshoe, monkey, cock, dog and pig.

Wong said a person born in the year of the Tiger "is believed to be ferocious."

The best birth year is one named for the dragon. Wong said that the "Dragon Year is the most auspicious year" and those born under it are blessed with "riches, luck, power, longevity and perhaps a harem."

For those practicing planned parenthood, the next year of the Dragon is 1976.

Convicted murderer free after 20 years

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Ruby McCollum, a black woman whose conviction in the murder of a white doctor became a national cause in the 1950s, is free after 20 years in a mental hospital.

The wife of a wealthy gambler, Mrs. McCollum was convicted by an all-white jury in the north Florida town of Live Oak in the 1952 slaying of C. LeRoy Adams, a white doctor who she said had fathered one of her children.

Mrs. McCollum, 63, was released from the state mental hospital at Chattahoochee last weekend.

SOS members will attend Derge's faculty coffee hour

Several members of Save Our School (SOS), the organization of the 104 terminated SIU employees, are planning to attend President David R. Derge's faculty coffee hour Wednesday.

Fred Whitehead, terminated assistant professor of English, said they will arrive at Anthony Hall at 11 a.m., midway through the open house. He said the appearance by SOS members is "no sort of confrontation."

SOS Publicity Chairman Rod Botts agreed, saying he wanted to "downplay the idea of its being a formal delegation." Botts is a terminated professor of English.

Other than walking in together, Botts said he does not know of any particular plans the SOS group has. The group's aims are not to embarrass Derge, he added.

"It's not as if we're going to make a great stand against Derge," Whitehead concurred, although he said some of his questions for Derge are going to "pretty heavy, and direct."

The SOS move is basically for morale, Whitehead said. He said he personally believes the SOS does not have anyone to fear, and the SOS visit should increase the confidence of the terminated employees.

J-Board pondering procedural changes

By Bill Layne
Student Writer

The Campus Judicial Board is reorganizing its procedural guidelines to take on a role in the student disciplinary process.

Under the proposed guidelines, the board would be empowered to review problems between the University and the student: Narcotics and marijuana violations, vandalism, cheating, theft, physical abuses, violating quiet hours in dormitories, and plagiarism are just a few of the problem areas the board would be able to review.

At present, the board can only hold hearings in cases involving undergraduate students elections and impeachment of student senators and Student Government officials.

Bill Wayne, chairman of the nine-member board, said the Student Government constitution limits the board to governmental matters only.

"There are two sets of procedures. One is set up already, the governmental part. The other, the disciplinary part, is being set up now," Wayne said.

Wayne hopes the board will be operational by late February or early March.

The nine members of the board are appointed for two-year terms by the student body president. Six members were appointed in November.

Wayne explained the new guidelines are a cross between the area boards and the Student Conduct Review Board.

"We're using the procedural outlines from area boards and the Student Conduct Review Board. We're drawing up our procedures somewhere between the two," Wayne said.

There are presently three levels of judicial review — area, appellate and presidential. At each level the student has two choices. He can request a hearing either by the area dean or by the area judicial board. There are two area judicial boards at Thompson Point and two at the East Campus area.

After the judicial board's decision the student is notified automatically of his right to appeal to the next higher level. Again, the student can choose between review by the administrative side (the coordinator of student discipline at this level) or request a hearing by the Campus J-Board.

Coordinator for Student Discipline Carl Harris said new guidelines that his office and the J-Board are writing will help both his office and the student.

"I do not feel directly or indirectly unbiased right now. The student can appeal above me, but the Campus J-Board will make things easier to handle concerning student-University disciplinary problems," Harris said.

Harris added that the new disciplinary powers of the J-Board will help to "speed up" the judicial process, and also standardized the campus judicial system.

"It (the campus judicial system) will be a centralized system with decentralized authority. Reviews of cases will be handled on a standard procedure," Harris said.

A student can appeal a decision of the Campus J-Board or the coordinator for student discipline to the Student Conduct Review Board or to the Board of Trustees. The J-Board would review cases involving students who live both on and off-campus.

Buzbee plans budget drive going down in defeat. Buzbee said he held up his support while waiting for word from SIU.

"On the final day for SIU to decide" on a motion, Buzbee related that the Board of Trustees "said they didn't want to make a fight."

Buzbee said this year's round of budget-challenging in the General Assembly will be handled differently. He plans to call attention to support from area residents in case the Board of Trustees refuses to back him again.

"Apparently their reasoning is if you fight, you may get less the next time," Buzbee said. "I say if you don't, they might treat you worse the next time."

Besides requesting more money for fiscal 1975, Buzbee said his committee plans to make sure SIU's role in the state's higher education master plan is not changed.

"If they are rewriting Master Plan IV, we want them to include SIU as a comprehensive, service-oriented university, and not as some backwater four-year college," Buzbee said.

He said the current plan lists SIU as service-oriented, and he emphasized "we don't know that they're planning to cut us out of that role."

But Buzbee pointed out that funding is based primarily on student enrollment and credit hours, criteria which are not generated by services.

Carr said the election laws "say nothing about whether the board's meetings are open or closed."

Carr declined comment on the board's decision to close the hearings. "I don't know their reasons, so I can't comment," he said. Carr said he had been trying to get in touch with Ms. Day to discover the board's reasons.

"I don't have any power over the board," he said. "It would be like the executive branch messing with the judicial."

Rich was ordered by the board to "discontinue participation in all activities related to the Board of Trustees" until the two complaints are decided.

Ms. Day would not comment on the board's decision to halt Rich's work, saying, "the board agreed we would not discuss anything we said in executive session."

The first closed hearing of the board was scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Tuesday. Eight persons, including Rich, were asked to appear at the hearing. The other seven included the four members of the trustee election commission, and Ron Ruskey, Daniel Schuring and Larry Rafferty, who submitted the complaints.

Buying power takes 9 per cent dive in '73

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation clipped almost nine cents off the dollar's purchasing power in 1973 as consumer prices rose 8.8 per cent, the most in any year since the lifting of World War II price controls.

The year end figure came with the Labor Department's report Tuesday that the Consumer Price Index, led by soaring food and fuel prices, rose five-tenths of 1 per cent seasonally adjusted in December. Unadjusted, the increase was seven-tenths of 1 per cent, the same as in November.

The nation's inflationary rate more than doubled that of the previous two years combined. Consumer prices rose 3.4 per cent in 1971 and again in 1972.

It also marked the biggest annual increase since retail prices rose 9 per cent in 1947 following the end of war price controls.

In a report to Congress, he conceded "the picture was not as bright as we would have liked," but said if the country responds "to new challenges, posed by the current energy shortage with the same sense of poise and flexibility" as in the past "we can look forward with assurance to a prosperous new year."

The administration early last year had hoped to bring inflation down to 2.5 per cent by the end of 1973, but abandoned that hope when food prices began to soar last spring.

Nixon offered no inflation forecast this year but some private economists predict it will be as bad as 1973 with a new surge in meat prices and continued high prices for fuels, among other things.

Tuition petition waived by Derge

By Debby Ratermann
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU President David Derge refused to sign a petition Tuesday which urged Gov. Dan Walker to halt proposed tuition increases.

Derge said he could not sign the petition because "it's up to the Board of Trustees to state its position first."

Derge said, "the first part of the board's operational guidelines states the board will set all policy on all legislation affecting the universities or the system."

"I am not backing off my position," said Derge, who has said several times in the past he does not support tuition increases.

"We're in a sensitive area now, where the board wants to exercise its prerogatives," Derge said.

SIU student Jeff Lohrmann said SIU-Edwardsville Student Body President Chuck Mecum said Tuesday SIU-E President John Rendleman had signed the petition.

Lohrmann, SIU representative to the Association of Illinois Student Governments (AISG), said Mecum "had just met with Rendleman, who signed the petition and announced his complete support of AISG," which sponsors the petition.

Lohrmann said he and student Bruce Hackel went with Student Body President Mike Carr to Derge's office to ask him to sign the petition.

"He was very friendly," Lohrmann said, "but explained the Board wants him to withhold his statements until they decide their policy."

body." Stonecipher said. "The fact that they're hearing evidence and calling witnesses means they're thinking of themselves as a court, and courts have to be open."

Tom Busch, assistant to the dean of students, said a decision to hold closed or open hearings "is left to the option of the judicial board."

Busch echoed Artz that the board "is an internal matter of the undergraduate and graduate councils. The administration has seen fit to stay out of it."

Busch quoted a memorandum by Dean of Students Bruce Swinburne issued Dec. 10 which states, "the University will not be involved."

Busch said the Illinois law approving student trustees states "the method of election shall be determined by campus referendum."

In the SIU referendum last fall, the student body voted to hold a general election run by undergraduate and graduate councils.

The two councils, Student Senate for undergraduates and Graduate Student Council for graduate students, set up the election laws.

Letters

Fester answers editorial

Dear Ms. Ratemann:

Enough is enough. Your editorial, "What have they done for us?" was a classic example of the sort of over-simplification and demagoguery that typifies Daily Egyptian editorials. I do not belong to a fraternity; neither do I know Mike Carr or Jim Kania, but I believe that your editorial treated them unfairly, to say the least.

You criticized Jim Kania for having alienated several senators, who believe that he is "unfair." Anyone who presides over any competitively elected assembly will have detractors. It is not surprising that said detractors should consider Kania as "unfair" and "prejudiced." Such statements, without clarifying facts in support, are nothing more than ideological boiler-plate and of zero constructive value.

You criticized Mike Carr for not speaking at the first senate meeting. What sort of speech did you expect? If you oppose the views of Messrs Carr and Kania as much as your article infers, one would think you would be glad that he passed over an opportunity to express views that you seem to consider toxic.

As one who has been active in campus government-related activities (at another large public university) I concur in Kania's judgement that little gets done in public meetings. The interruptions from lobbyists of various cause-oriented groups quite often totally disrupt such meetings. That is not reason enough to discontinue open meetings. To voice such sentiments, however, isn't synonymical (sic) with philistinism.

As for "throwing Gay Lib out" of student government offices and replacing them with the Inter-Greek Council, I dare say that Inter-Greek Council represents many more people than does Gay Lib.

If Carr and Kania supported the "sexist" Miss Southern contest, I believe they are to be commended for their insight into human nature. You see, Ms. Ratemann, eros is as much a part of human nature as is agape. To honor someone for being beautiful and physically attractive is no less justifiable than to honor someone for intellectual achievement. The reigning Miss Southern symbolizes much that is beautiful at SHU and I see nothing wrong with that. Yet you see fit to imply that she is either a sexist herself or the dupe of a sexist enterprise. I believe that you owe her an apology for such effrontery.

I do not blame Kania for not confiding plans with the Daily Egyptian. A good example of the DE's infamous ability to distort even the most simple piece of journalistic grist can be found in article which ran a couple of weeks ago. The headline of the article read "Evansville Tops (college?) Cage Poll". Now to those not versed in the newspeak practiced by the Daily Egyptian, this meant that the basketball team of the University of Evansville indeed headed some rating poll. Such, of course, was not the case. At the time of the printing (and as was mentioned in the article), Evansville's team was ranked in third place. Enough said.

Finally, you have dared to criticize student government officers for drawing salaries. I for one believe that as long as the reporters on the Daily Egyptian are paid, student government officers certainly have a valid claim to their salaries. Whatever student government's putative short comings, they cannot be compared with those of the greatest cliché distillery in the state, the Daily Egyptian.

Yours truly,

Robert Fester

On sinking sand

To the Daily Egyptian:

In the January 16th edition of the Daily Egyptian there was an article in which Dean Stanley H. Smith stated that "The College of Human Resources will not lose any faculty because of the budget cuts recommended by Illinois Higher Board of Education." (sic) Either this statement is a bold-faced lie or else the letter which I received from Dr. J. K. Leasure, stating that my termination is due to "financial exigency" is a lie. In either case it is grievous to see the shift from solid ground to sinking sand where truth becomes as nebulous as the mouth that speaks it.

Tenure vs. financial responsibility

The announcement by the SIU-Carbondale administration that tenured faculty are among 104 persons who have received letters of termination notifying them of their release at the end of the current fiscal year calls the entire concept of academic tenure at Southern Illinois University into question.

The University administration cites recent Illinois Board of Higher Education recommendations for a $2.7 million reduction in SIU's operating budget for 1974-75 to justify termination of the 104 faculty members. By including tenured faculty in the list of those due to lose their jobs in July, the University appears to be carefully complying with the letter of the law, while ignoring the spirit of academic tenure.

Both the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) and the Board of Trustees, in their Statutes and Bylaws, hold that tenured faculty may only be terminated for adequate cause, or, in extraordinary circumstances, because of financial exigency. And in response to a Carbondale campus administration request, the Board approved a resolution at its December meeting which declared a state of financial exigency.

Protected by the declaration of financial exigency, the University defends termination of tenured faculty on several grounds.

First, a state of financial exigency does amount to ground for dismissal of tenured faculty, even under AAUP standards.

Second, the administration holds that it is more fair to spread the impact of job losses among both non-tenured junior faculty and the senior, tenured ranks.

Third, by including some tenured faculty in the dismissals, it would be possible to retain some potentially brilliant, but non-tenured, junior faculty who might otherwise be lost to the University community.

Although financial exigency is accepted as adequate cause to release tenured faculty, such a step is usually considered a drastic last resort, when no other remedy is available. A 1925 AAUP Conference Statement on tenure says that "situations which make drastic retrenchment of this sort necessary should preclude expansions of the staff at other points at the same time, except in extraordinary circumstances." Clark Bye and Louis Joughlin, two of the foremost interpreters of AAUP tenure policies, write that in most cases requiring retrenchment, efforts should be made to reduce costs in all other areas before cutting into academics and dismissing faculty. Even in that case, they feel cuts should be made on the basis of seniority, with non-tenured persons being released first.

While it is unpleasant to have to dismiss any faculty member, especially because of financial exigency, if tenure is to exist at all it should have some meaning. The 1940 AAUP Statement of Principles on Academic Freedom and Tenure, which most universities endorse, describes academic tenure as a means to achieve the end of academic freedom, which includes a measure of economic security. In these times—especially with financial exigencies rife in the academic world—economic security means job security.

The argument that non-tenured, but creative and dynamic junior faculty are being protected by releasing some tenured faculty is logically unsound at best. All tenured faculty were non-tenured junior faculty at some time. Some were probably considered creative, dynamic, potentially brilliant. But under present policies, they will be just as unemployed in July as the dullest drone who has survived through longevity alone.

If the present policy of releasing tenured faculty is established, junior faculty who might have looked forward to some measure of security in tenure as a reward for their brilliance and dedication will find that security illusory.

Academic tenure exists or it does not exist. A system of tenure which allows some tenured faculty to keep their jobs while others are dismissed for declared financial exigencies and non-tenured faculty are retained is no system at all.

Nixon's foreign relations

By C. Harvey Gardiner
Research Professor of History

Up to his political ears in Watergate and fast sinking in the economic morass of inflation, our president tends increasingly to point with pride to his conduct of American foreign relations. The impression is given that those relations are so successful they herald a new day for America, if not the world. Accordingly Nixon's foreign relations deserve closer attention. Unfortunately space limits the breadth and depth of that consideration.

CANADA: Our relations with our northern neighbors leave too much to be desired. Numerous highly complex commercial, monetary, tariff and related economic issues have worn thin the patience of Canadians in and out of government. The most dramatic evidence of the chasm between Washington and Ottawa was Canada's official reaction to the stepped-up bombing of North Vietnam late in 1972. In an unprecedented action, the Canadian House of Commons unanimously adopted a resolution deploring the U.S. raids. That resolution was drawn up by the government of Prime Minister Trudeau and introduced by External Affairs Minister Sharp. Never in all previous U.S.-Canadian relations had the government at Ottawa ever castigated the conduct of American foreign relations.

MEXICO: Repeatedly, in pre-presidential and later utterances, Nixon, reminding all of a happy Nixon honeymoon in Mexico, indicated that our neighbors to the south would receive special attention. In August, 1970, President Nixon spent a scant 24 hours in Puerto Vallarta, an out-of-the-way place that reflects the political pulse of Mexico about as accurately as Hoback Junction (Wyoming) reflects that of the United States. It was an ill-timed visit, in closing weeks of the 6-year term of President Diaz Ordaz. However, in a 2½ hours conversation about U.S.-Mexican problems, the two men did consider the salinization of the water due Mexico under a decades-old treaty. Nixon, in all of his presidential years has given Mexico, homeland of 50,000,000 people, less time than he gave Rumania. And Mexico is the only one of more than a score of countries south of us that he has visited.

When President Echeverria came to Washington on a state visit in August, 1973, he addressed a joint session of Congress. He told our Senators and Representatives that American non-compliance with treaty terms represented an unacceptable level of discrimination against his country. Many were shocked; some wanted an apology. Numerous Washingtonians agreed the Mexican president had delivered the most blistering criticism ever focused on an American administration by a visiting chief of state. While stumbling and procrastinating on the Colorado River matter, Nixon rushed and fumbled a drug control effort. Unilaterally he instituted Operation Intercept which so offended Mexico that he had to back down and agree to the bilateral program called Operation Cooperation. Meanwhile the Mexican president's estimate of our handling of U.S.-Mexican problems provoked another official blast, this one in an address to the Mexican Congress.

PANAMA: This small isthmian state, initially a political creation born of American desire, for a canal, now stands as a lasting monument of anti-American sentiment. For more than 70 years, Panamanians have resented the unequal treaty terms that originated in 1903. For all of Nixon's years Panama has agitated for renewed negotiations. In November, 1972, their ambassador prodded us by charging that U.S. bureaucracy was "paralyzing progress" regarding a new Panama Canal treaty. In March, 1973, the United Nations Security Council, meeting in Panama, considered a moderate resolution concerning U.S.-Panamanian negotiations. Only one country of the fifteen on the Council stood in opposition. To block that resolution the U.S. exercised its veto. To make matters worse, four months after thus defying world opinion, we did nothing to keep our senior negotiator for talks with Panama from resigning his post. Nixon's relations with Panama persistently bear two stamps: Paralyzing inertia and lack of imagination.

CHILE: Saddened by ITT's willingness to meddle in their national election and shocked that democratically-inclined Uncle Sam with his penchant for law-and-order did not bat an eye when revolution toppled a legally elected administration, millions of Chilean proponents of self-determination are wondering which side of his mouth Mr. Nixon was speaking out of during September, 1973.

RUSSIA and CHINA: Smothering this infinite capacity for muddying the waters of Western Hemisphere relations, the Nixon Administration has generated fulsome praise for its handling of more distant ones, especially those with Russia and China. In mid-1972, after visits to both of those countries, Nixon, speaking of dealing with Communist leaders, said, "I find that making a bargain with them is not easy; and you get something from them only when you have something they want to get from you." For a large, long-term loan that enabled Russia to purchase wheat at an advantageous price, we now know what we got in return: higher bread prices, higher defense budgets, higher taxes, and —oh yes—the penetration of the Russian market by Pepsi Cola. As for the fruits of the Peking special, we seem to have settled for pingpong tournaments, basketball games, gymnastic exhibitions and that dream of every corporation head, namely "if we can just get each and every one of those 800,000,000 Chinese to buy about $2.00 worth of our indispensable product." The break-through in Russian relations presently represents an invasion of the American pocketbook and the rapprochement with China has induced more euphoria than a million pipes of opium. Although the outcome of our Russian and Chinese relations raise unanswered questions, the impact of them elsewhere is painfully apparent. By encouraging the idea that American military commitment in Europe might be reduced, the prospect of less hostility between Moscow and Washington has given some of our NATO allies fits of discomfiture. In like fashion our relations with Peking have doomed Taiwan to endless uncertainty.

(To be concluded in Thursday's Daily Egyptian)

Solzhenitsyn in peril

The mounting violence and virulence of the official campaign against Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn may wind up doing more damage to the Soviet regime than did the publication in Paris of his new book on the prison camp system. If the denunciations are followed by arrest, confinement to an insane asylum, internal deportation or forcible exile, they will set back a decade of Soviet policy abroad in pursuit of detente, trade and technological exchange with the West.

It is incomprehensible that, 56 years after the Bolshevik Revolution, the world's second most powerful government still feels obliged to censor every word its people read and to explode in fury when criticism of the Soviet system by a Soviet citizen is published abroad. Last weekend representatives of the Italian, French, Spanish and Swiss Communist parties renewed their criticism of Soviet handling of dissidents. They expressed particular hostility to the banning of Solzhenitsyn's works within Russia.

The European security conference in Geneva, called in response to years of pressure from Moscow, is hardly likely to make much progress toward technological or cultural cooperation if all Moscow's commitments there to a freer exchange of ideas are devalued daily by events at home.

Leading American scientists have already served notice, in the case of Soviet physicist Andrei Sakharov, that their participation in exchange programs is unlikely to survive further intensification of repression in the Soviet Union.

In Congress, advocates of trade and cooperation with Moscow have been put in the minority by Soviet policy toward emigration and the Mideast war. Hopes for a more receptive attitude will dwindle further if Solzhenitsyn's authenticated accounts of Stalinist repression, which Moscow itself repudiates, and of pre-Stalinist police terror, which he accuses Moscow of still practicing, bring punishment to one of the century's most distinguished and courageous authors.

Strict dog control measures approved by City Council

By Dan Haar
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A dog's life in Carbondale is no longer as carefree as it once was.

The City Council, with Councilman, Hans Fischer, absent, approved an ordinance Monday night containing stricter measures to control the number of dogs running at large in the city.

The ordinance, which amends the existing animal control ordinance, requires all dogs to be physically restrained by a leash whenever off the owner's premises.

The license fees for dogs are $4 for neutered animals and $7 for unaltered animals.

Another major change from the old ordinance requires the city animal warden to apprehend any dog found off the owner's premises without a leash.

Formerly, the animal warden was given a discretionary power to apprehend and impound animals.

Mayor Neal Eckert said at the meeting that he received many calls from people against the ordinance. He said that most of those against it thought it too harsh and opposed the strict leash law.

Council members were concerned over the provision granting a lower license fee for neutered animals than for unaltered animals.

Councilwoman Helen Westberg recommended that the fee be $5 for all animals.

She also asked City Attorney John Womick about the Jackson County's requirement of a $4 license fee.

Womick said the county's requirement for a license does not apply within the corporate limits of Carbondale. He added that the county's requirement would have control only if the city had no ordinance.

Council members reacted favorably to a suggestion, stated by Fischer in a letter to the council, that the fees be $4 for altered dogs and $7 for unaltered dogs.

Susan Webster, 213 S. Dixon, addressed the council with questions concerning the effectiveness of the ordinance. Mrs. Webster said she thought more men were needed for adequate enforcement of the ordinance. "The ordinance looks nice but what good is it without more men?"

Eckert agreed with Mrs. Webster saying he believed more men were needed to enforce the ordinance.

The city presently has two wardens who work 30 hours a week each. Fry said the hours of the two wardens could be increased to include weekends. He said he did not believe more men were needed.

Eckert then asked Carbondale Police Chief Joe Dakin if he thought two wardens could enforce the ordinance. "No, I don't think so," Dakin replied.

Councilman Clark Vineyard suggested that the council wait and see what the ordinance does and then decide if more wardens are necessary.

In other action, the council approved an agreement between the city and the Illinois Department of Transportation relating to improvements to Route 13 between Carbondale and Murphysboro.

The improvements consist of the construction of two additional lanes of pavement, providing a four-lane road between the two cities.

Under the agreement, the city is expected to maintain the traffic signals at the Old Route 13 intersection. Also, the city is required to pass an ordinance to control the disposition of encroachments along the route.

The council also passed an ordinance establishing temporary regulations for the Cedar Lake area. The regulations, which will expire April 30, 1975, prohibit the use of firearms in the area and prohibit motorboats with more than 10 horsepower.

The ordinance also restricts swimming to certain areas and allows only line and pole fishing.

The ordinance contains provisions prohibiting littering and trespassing in restricted areas. Fry said the regulations were necessary until a more detailed plan is developed by the council.

Courtland L. Monroe, a doctor from the Carbondale Clinic, will discuss and give an inside look at the medical profession.

Gerberding said plans for the upcoming trip to Washington University School of Medicine this Saturday also will be discussed.

All members should attend and anyone wishing to pay late dues may do so, he said.

He said the meeting is open to the public and that anyone wanting further information may contact him at 549-6996.

Service awards are offered

The Intergreek Council is sponsoring the Service to Southern Award for the 27th years. The $100 award is given away to two undergraduate students, one male and one female, who have made an outstanding contribution through fraternal or living unit activities, or campus and community activities.

Applications are now available and can be picked up at the Student Life office, East Campus and West Campus offices and the Student Activities and Student Government offices. All applications must be returned by 5 p.m. Feb. 7 to the Student Life office barracks T-40.

All undergraduates with a 3.0 grade point average are eligible. The award will be presented March 2 at the 27th annual Theta Xi Variety Show. For further information, contact Joel Blake at the student government office 536-3393 or the Student Life Center, 536-2338.

Duo will feature black folk blues Saturday night

Sonny Terry and Brownie McGhee, a black folk blues duo, will perform at the convocation 8 p.m. Saturday at Shryock Auditorium.

Together since 1939, the musicians have combined on more than 45 albums and toured the U.S., Canada, Europe and Australia. Their most recent album, "Sonny and Brownie," includes Arlo Guthrie, Sugar Cane Harris, Eddie Greene, John Mayall and others as sidemen.

Both have overcome physical handicaps while pursuing their musical careers. Terry lost his eyesight in two childhood accidents and McGhee was left lame after polio struck at age four.

Terry plays harmonica and McGhee plays acoustic guitar. The concert is free to the public. Following the show, Student Government will sponsor an informal coffee hour backstage.

Lentz lettuce protestor terminated for job neglect

Student Sen. Diane Johnson was terminated from her job in Lentz Cafeteria Saturday because she failed to show up for work Friday night, said William French, coordinator of campus employment.

French said Tuesday this information was the result of an investigation conducted after Ms. Johnson filed a grievance Monday. He also said it was office procedure to investigate all grievances.

Ms. Johnson, who protested Lentz Cafeteria's policy of buying nonunion lettuce and grapes on Jan. 15, said Monday she had been fired from her job in the vegetable department at Lentz.

French said Ms. Johnson had stated to him that she felt she was terminated for her political views. He said Ms. Johnson said that when she started the job Jan. 7 she had been told she would have no weekend or late hours, but she could not state the source of this statement.

French said all student workers employed in food services are required to work some late and weekend hours, but the schedules vary from week to week.

After Ms. Johnson complained about being required to work unusual hours, French said a check into other student work schedules showed Ms. Johnson's "right in line with the others."

"We have no record of her termination here because the paper work has not gone through the proper channels yet," French said.

French also said that Ms. Johnson had punched her time card for work prior to the protest Jan. 15 and she punched out after the protest.

"It is grounds for termination to protest during the time she was being paid to work. She was not doing her assigned duties," French said.

Nurses attend day-long workshop

More than 500 area nurses Tuesday attended a day-long workshop examining the legal responsibilities and liabilities facing nurses. The workshop was sponsored by the Southern Illinois Health Manpower Consortium and the Division of Continuing Education.

The workshop was held from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Student Center Ballrooms. The nursing workshop was the first of three planned for this quarter.

The second workshop, called "Care of the Patient with Closed Drainage," will be held starting at 8:30 a.m. Friday in the Veterans Administration Hospital in Marion.

The third Workshop will cover medicine and religion and will examine the promise and peril of medical ethics. The workshop will be held in April.

William A. Reagen, of the law firm Reagen, Carberry & Flynn, Providence, R.I., was the guest lecturer at the nursing workshop. He spoke on four legal areas affecting nurses and gave legal cases illustrating the points.

A noon luncheon was held and a question and answer period closed the workshop.

Reagen is a hospital legal consultant and the author of reports on nursing law, hospital law and medical law.

SIU Science Fiction Society ready to unleash 'Chimaera'

A Chimaera is a mythical fire-breathing monster composed of lion, goat and dragon parts. One is not likely to jump out of the bushes in Thompson Woods and demand money, because the only one in Carbondale is tame.

The SIU Science Fiction Society is in the process of starting a magazine called "Chimaera: A Review of Fantasy and Science Fiction." Bill Roper, a society member, said Monday at a meeting of the Society that the new magazine will have the format of a fan magazine, and will carry reviews of science fiction books and films, as well as original stories.

Roper, a freshman majoring in Chemistry, invited those interested in science fiction to submit articles and short stories to the society in care of the Student Activities Office at the Student Union or to the society itself at regular Monday night meetings.

He said the society, which bestows the title of "Dictator" to one of its officers, also welcomes help in managing and editing the infant chimaera.

Conflict leaves police, fire posts unfilled

By Dan Haar
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale City Manager Carroll Fry said Tuesday that vacancies in the police and fire departments will not be filled until the conflict over an ordinance transferring the Board of Administrative Functions of the Board

Test tubes dirtied by fuel crisis

By Gary Pierson
Student Writer

Test tubes may be dirtier around the Department of Chemistry and Biochemistry due to the fuel crisis. The shortage of fuel has cut down the production of acetone, and the department is experiencing difficulty in obtaining it, department chairman Richard T. Arnold said. Acetone, a product of the petrochemical industry, is used in experiments and as a cleaning agent. When asked how the shortage is affecting his department, Arnold replied, "It is extremely awkward without acetone. Acetone is the most versatile, common solvent in the chemical industry." The Department of Art also has been affected by the fuel shortage. Polyester resin and plexiglass, both made from a petroleum process, are used by art classes for sculpture. The supply of polyester resin has decreased while the price has increased; plexiglass has been readily available but the price has steadily risen, according to assistant professor of art Aldon Adgington.

Outlaw to play at dance held by volunteers

Outlaw will play at a dance from 8 p.m. to 12 midnight Feb. 1 at the Student Center Roman Room. It was announced by Rick Pere, public relations coordinator for Mobilization of Voluntary Effort (MOVE). He said MOVE is sponsoring the dance to show gratitude to the individuals who helped with the Red Cross blood drive in November. The dance is open to the public and refreshments will be served, Pere said. He also said that MOVE needs volunteers for Spring quarter and any interested persons may contact Don Williams or Scott Barron at 453-5714.

Mail cut to Rhodesia

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP)—East Germany is the latest of 14 countries to suspend postal services with this breakaway British territory. The post office said the others are Russia, Poland, Tanzania, Kenya, Uganda, Algeria, Libya, Ethiopia, Nigeria, Ghana, Somalia, Pakistan and India. India's suspension applies to parcels only.

of Fire and Police Commissioners is resolved.

The city is seeking a writ of mandamus from the Jackson County circuit court requiring the board to comply with the city ordinance.

Fry said that even if the legal proceedings should draw out, the vacancy in the police department and the vacancy in the fire department will not be filled.

"If the vacancies get too bad," Fry said, "the council will have to do something."

The board informed the council at its Monday night meeting that it would comply only with the state statutes governing the board and would reject any city ordinance conflicting with the state statutes.

The board has insisted that the ordinance, which amends the Illinois Board of Fire and Police Commissioners Act, conflicts with state statutes.

The ordinance, which became law Sunday, authorizes the city manager to hire employees of the police or fire departments from a list of three eligibles provided by the board.

The manager also has the power to discipline any fireman or policeman with the board holding a hearing into the causes of the disciplinary action. The board's decision would stand pending court action by the city manager or the person involved.

The board has held that the council does not have the authority to transfer its administrative functions to the city manager.

Shakespeare play planned for February

A Southern Players' production of William Shakespeare's "All's Well That Ends Well" will be presented at 8 p.m. Feb. 1, 2 and 3 in the University Theater in the Communications Building.

"All's Well That Ends Well" is a satiric comedy dealing with social attitudes and young love, and is frequently referred to as Shakespeare's "problem play." It features Helena, a virtuous but lowborn woman rejected by her snobbish husband, Bertram. This distressing situation is presented in high seriousness, although Shakespeare's comic sense makes an appearance from time to time. As indicated by the title, all ends happily.

The play is directed by Eelin Stewart-Harrison, associate professor of theater.

Tickets are $1.75 for students and $2.25 for non-students, and may be purchased at the University Theater box office or the Central Ticket Office in the Student Center.

Gay women plan to meet Tuesday

A meeting for gay women will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Women's Center at 404 W. Walnut. Purpose of the meeting is to organize a gay women's support group.

For more information call the center at 549-4215.

"If I defied the council as they (the board) did, I would be fired," Fry said. He added that the board should either comply or should quit.

Fry said that the present vacancies in the departments are not causing any problems yet.

The court order requested by the council would also require the board to submit a list of eligibles to the city manager so he can fill the vacancies.

Fry said he had requested a list as provided in the ordinance to fill the police vacancy but had not gotten one from the board. He said after the board refused to submit the list he stopped making requests.

He said he did not expect to receive any list and that any future attempts would be a "waste of time."

Elwyn Zimmerman, board chairman, said the board had not submitted the list of eligibles at Fry's request because it was operating under state statutes and was not required to recommend any eligibles to the city manager.

March of Dimes

Volunteers collect $1,700

The Mother's March volunteers collected $1,700 from Carbondale residents Sunday afternoon, it was announced Tuesday by Max Waldron, Chairman of the Little Egypt Chapter of the National Foundation of the March of Dimes.

The Mothers March is an annual fund raising event for the March of Dimes against birth defects.

"All indications show that we will reach $2,100," Waldron said. "We still have about two dozen areas to be turned in."

He said the rainy weather didn't cause any serious problems and, in fact, seemed to help because more people were at home.

About 80 per cent of the 125 volunteers went out Sunday with the remaining volunteers planning on going out this week, he said.

Waldron said Murphysboro reported contributions totaling $1,100 with 4 or 5 areas still to be turned in.

The Dame's Club and Graduate Wife's Club received a good response from the Evergreen Terrace, Southern Hills, Brookside Manor and trailer court areas as they collected $350, he said.

"Everyone concerned with the March was real pleased with the response of the people in Carbondale and Murphysboro," Waldron said.

Students' academic queries solved by Survival Seminar

-By Rafe Klinger
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Students imprisoned in a dull class, or seduced into sleep by a droning professor, or prevented from attending 8 o'clock classes by inbred laziness will find a remedy at the Academic Survival Seminar, according to Yvonne Hardaway, coordinator of Counseling Outreach Office Location (COOL).

Designed to help overwhelmed students cut through University red tape, the seminar teaches "skills to make the University work for you," Ms. Hardaway said.

The next seminar is scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday at the 10th floor lounge in Neely Hall and is open to everyone.

Last week's meeting failed to draw an audience.

"I think interest increases when you have a problem," Ms. Hardaway said. "But trying to teach prevention is a low interest thing."

This week's discussion will focus on telling students where to go for information, who to see and who is the head, Ms. Hardaway explained. This information should keep students from running around and going to the wrong place for help.

Other sessions of the seminar will delve into effective study methods, sensible class scheduling and proper methods of preparing for a test. The program is "primarily designed to make the student system-wise" and prevent snags before they become problems, Ms. Hardaway said.

"Once a student has a problem that no one can solve, he may find himself in the office of Kris Haedrick, ombudsperson."

Ms. Haedrick said there is usually a rush of persons with problems in her office at the beginning and end of each quarter, but this year has been "busier than usual."

The Ombudsperson's Office is the "last resort" for people who no longer know where to go for help, she explained. The trouble is that too many persons are given incomplete or inaccurate information and become confused. Unfortunately, there is no "central handbook" which gives people complete information on parking procedures, admissions rules, bookbuying, health services, etc.

The result is confusion and a visit to the ombudsperson, she said.

Peace Corps and Vista will recruit next week

A Peace Corps and Vista membership campaign offering literature, counseling and interviews will be on campus all next week.

Jim Stevenson, campus representative for Action, said Tuesday that a booth will be set up in front of Morris Library all week and will be opened from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Students also may contact recruiters at the International Lounge in C-wing of Woody Hall. Recruiters will be in the Home Economics Lounge Tuesday at the Placement Office Wednesday, Stevenson said.

The purpose of the campaign, Stevenson said, is to attract people concerned to do something. He said no special degree is required.

Stevenson said people majoring in certain areas are needed more than others. Areas the recruiters are specifically interested in include agriculture, biology, engineering, mathematics, business and teachers who can speak French and teach English as a foreign language.

YWLL to organize class on Marxism

About 15 persons attended the Young Workers Liberation League (YWLL) meeting Monday night, Fred Whitehead, faculty advisor of the group, said Tuesday.

Whitehead, a recently terminated assistant professor of English, said one thing the YWLL will do is to attempt to get the Student Senate to support the Faculty Senate's censure of the administration.

One way the YWLL will do this is to help with the petition campaign now being waged on the subject, he said.

Whitehead said that some students said they would try to attend the next Student Senate meeting and give their support in fighting tuition increases.

The YWLL also plans to organize a series of classes on Marxism which would include an introductory and advance class, he said.

"The first session of the advanced course will be the women's issue from a Marxism point of view," Whitehead said.

He said the group plans to show a film on the African liberation struggle sometime next week.

Kissinger, Sadat raise hopes for end of Arab oil embargo

WASHINGTON (AP)—The unrestricted flow of Arab oil to the United States may resume in less than two months as a result of the Egyptian-Israeli troop agreement, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger indicated Tuesday.

"I have every reason to believe that our success in the negotiations mark a major step toward ending the oil embargo," Kissinger told reporters.

He laid out no specific timetable, but he said "I think in more ambitious terms," when asked if the boycott end was linked to the final implementation of troop separation along the Suez Canal.

Kissinger's report was one of several optimistic signs on the subject Tuesday.

At a news conference in Algiers, President Anwar Sadat of Egypt indicated that the Arabs should alter their oil embargo of the United States.

Planning board to hold public talk

A picture show and public discussion on planning in Carbondale are on the agenda for the Carbondale Planning Commission's meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the City Hall Courtroom.

The public has been invited to attend.

Behavioral scientist to speak

William L. Gardner, behavioral scientist of the University of Wisconsin, will be featured in a colloquium titled "Behavior Modification in a Rehabilitation Setting" to be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

The colloquium, sponsored by the Rehabilitation Institute, will be in Davis Auditorium, Wharm Education Building. Gardner also will lead an informal discussion on behavioral counseling at 3:30 p.m. in the seminar room of the Agriculture Building.

Lecture planned about meditation

Mind exploration through meditation will be the subject of discussion at a lecture by Acarya Yatishtarananda Avadhuta at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Home Economics Lounge.

Avadhuta's lecture, "Yoga for Today" will encompass the Ananda Marga philosophy of meditation, which emphasizes physical exercises, social service and meditation. For more information, call 549-6642 or go to 401 W. Elm St.

Leaflet suffocation

STORRS, Conn. (AP)—Pollution begets pollution, at least in the classroom, says a University of Connecticut professor.

"Students and teachers have found themselves suffocating under carloads of leaflets, buttons, pamphlets, posters, stickers, club membership cards, kits, records, films, filmstrips, activity collections, newsletters, reports and guides," writes science education Prof. Dr. Edward E. Dyrli in the November issue of "Learning."

States because Washington "has adopted a new policy" in the Mideast.

"There is a significant, though not total, change," Sadat said. "For every change in the American position, it is necessary for the Arabs to make an identical change toward the United States."

In Israel, Premier Golda Meir won parliamentary approval for her agreement to pull Israeli forces back from the Suez Canal, clearing the way for separation of the Egyptian and Israeli armies to begin Friday.

According to the agreement signed last week, Egypt and Israel must complete the disengagement within 40 to 60 days. The process is expected to start Friday.

This means Arab oil could be on the way to the United States no later than the end of March. And Kissinger appeared to signal a much earlier resumption when he answered "yes" to the question: Do you expect the embargo to be lifted before the agreement is finalized?

Although optimistic, the secretary injected words of caution and warning in his first news conference since returning from his peace-making Middle East trip. "Failure to end the embargo in a reasonable time would be highly inappropriate and would raise serious questions of confidence in our mind," he said.

Accounting Club will hear banker

At Wisconsin, Gardner holds the positions of professor in the department of studies in behavioral disabilities, research specialist in the Research and Training Center in Mental Retardation, and director of the Laboratory of Applied Behavior Analysis and Modification.

Both afternoon and evening sessions are open to the public.

Accounting Club will hear banker

The Accounting Club will sponsor a lecture by Michael Travelstead, vice president of the University Bank in Carbondale, at 7:30 Wednesday in Activity Room A in the Student Center.

Travelstead will speak on banking careers, establishing credit and on the banking industry. A question and answer session will be held after the lecture.

The lecture is open to the public.

Judicial quorum will start hearings

The standing undergraduate Campus Judicial Board has enough members for a quorum to hear Student Senate election complaints, Student Body President Mike Carr said Tuesday.

"The hearings will be restricted because of class conflicts and one student going into the hospital, but they will begin hearings all the same," Carr said.

"The board has nine members, six of which were approved this year," Carr said, "so there are enough for a quorum."

However, when asked if American force might be considered to overcome a continued boycott, Kissinger responded, "I don't think the embargo will go too far."

"We are not guarantors in the sense of formally enforcing" the agreement, Kissinger responded.

Boyle nominated to chair English

Ted Boyle, professor of English, has been nominated by his colleagues for the chairmanship of the English department.

Ted Boyle, professor of English, has been nominated by his colleagues for the chairmanship of the English department.

Boyle, as a faculty candidate, must receive the okay from Liberal Arts Dean Roger Beyler and Provost Keith Leasure before assuming the chair.

It was incorrectly reported Saturday that Boyle had been elected chairman.

Leasure said Tuesday neither he nor Beyler have received the paperwork on Boyle from the English faculty. Boyle's nomination is "somewhere in the process," Leasure said, adding he did not know how soon Boyle could be confirmed.

Boyle's nomination came in the wake of William E. Simeone's resignation. Simeone, English professor, resigned from the chair after disagreement with recent departmental faculty cuts.

Kentucky Colonels sign NIU forward Bradley

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The Kentucky Colonels, apparently at an impasse in their attempts to sign Jim McDaniels, announced the signing Tuesday of a 6-foot-10 forward, Jim Bradley, from Northern Illinois University.

Bradley, a senior, lost his eligibility for the first half of this season because he played in an all-star game at Gary, Ind. He then was suspended by Coach Emory Luck for missing a practice.

Babe McCarthy, coach of the American Basketball Association club, said, "We scouted Jim thoroughly and researched his abilities as extensively as any athlete I know of. We are convinced he has the tools to be a truly great pro forward."

McDaniels explained he has been advised against signing by his attorney-agent, Al Ross of Los Angeles, and by Larry Fleisher of the NBA Players' Association, pending a decision by NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy, who will be in Germany on a State Department tour until Jan. 30.

Cold shooting hurts women's cage team

By Kenneth Pilarski
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The SIU women cagers suffered through another cold shooting spell as the Salukiettes dropped a close one to the University of Tennessee-Martin 45-43, Saturday morning at the Women's Gym.

The Salukiettes continued to have difficulty finding the basket as SIU shot a dismal 29 per cent from the field. The Salukiettes were more successful at the charity stripe, where they shot 55 per cent. Tennessee-Martin countered with 43 per cent from the field and 60 per cent from the free throw line.

SIU was cold right from the start of the game as they shot an unbelievable six per cent from the field on one basket in 17 attempts in the first quarter.

Luckily, Tennessee-Martin wasn't much better and SIU only trailed 8-5.

In the second quarter SIU got their offense rolling as they shot 58 per cent and took a 21-20 lead into the locker room. The third quarter continued in favor of the Salukiettes as they increased their lead to seven points, 35-28.

But the fourth quarter again spelled doom for SIU as they failed to hold off Tennessee-Martin's surge and at the 3:50 mark SIU held a slim one point lead, 37-36.

The lead continued to alternate and

Frazier praises Glenn's 'cool'

Cagers show depth

Mark Tupper
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

For the second game in a row and the third in the last five, 6-11 Saluki center Joe C. Meriweather fouled out of the ball game. But unlike last season, when SIU usually folded the moment he left the court, the Salukis have kept on winning.

When Meriweather was called for his fifth personal foul with 5:39 left in Monday's game and SIU leading 70-36, Florida State Coach Hugh Durham said he thought his team had the game won. Durham's thoughts probably stemmed from last year's meeting between the two clubs when the Seminoles streaked ahead of the Salukis to win 78-73 after Meriweather fouled out.

But SIU Coach Paul Lambert moved freshman Corky Abrams into the pivot and he, assisted by Shag Nixon, came up with some big rebounds. Durham told Lambert after the game that his Florida State team had played its best game all year, and he didn't feel they could play any better.

Durham told Lambert he was particularly impressed with the way the Salukis played without Meriweather in the game and categorized SIU's team as "an outstanding club."

"We have more offensive help from the outside this year," Lambert explained. "We have two or three players who are much better offensively and this has enabled us to sustain an offensive attack with Joe out of the ballgame. At least it no longer completely disrupts our offense."

Even though the Salukis have been a high scoring team all season, Lambert is not totally happy with the club's offensive play. "I'm not completely satisfied offensively," Lambert said. "We can move better than we have been, but I understand that we are playing with four newer players."

Walt Frazier was not without comment after the game. Frazier sat calmly through the first three quarters of the game, but when the two teams battled in the closing minutes, Frazier was up on his feet cheering.

"I thought the Salukis played well tonight," Frazier said. "They have plenty of potential with a young team. They have a chance of being great. It was a great ballgame."

"I think Meriweather is a good big man who's real strong and smart," Frazier commented. "But I really like that freshman... what was his name?" (Mike Glenn) "Oh, yeah. I think he might make the people of Carbondale forget about me someday. He's real smooth, a good shooter and he doesn't get rattled. He's real cool."

SIU will need Glenn's cool Thursday when they host Indiana State at 7:30 p.m. in the SIU Arena. The Sycamores, 7-9, have won their last three games, and also managed to handle the Florida State team, 93-92, in the first round of the Bear Classic at Mercer University.

Irish steal throne; UCLA drops to 2nd

By The Associated Press

Notre Dame's basketball team joined Ara Parseghian's football team Monday as sovereign of all it could survey—No. 1 in The Associated Press Poll.

Dick "Digger" Phelps, young coach of the Righting Irish cagers, anticipated the outcome when, holding one finger on each hand high in the air, told a Sunday night pep rally:

"I want to thank you fans for being the No. 1 sports fans and No. 1 sports town in America."

Notre Dame, in ending UCLA's 88-game winning streak with a dramatic come-from-behind 71-70 victory Saturday, bumped the great California team out of first place for the first time in three years.

The Irish collected 36 of 51 first-place votes from a panel of sports writers and broadcasters for a total of 990 points. UCLA received 15 first-place votes and 944 points.

UCLA's fall into second place behind Notre Dame was the most significant upheaval in the standings which produced other changes in the Top 20 although no new teams moved into the Top Ten.

North Carolina State held to No. 3, followed in order by North Carolina, Maryland, Marquette, Vanderbilt, Providence, Alabama and Long Beach State.

North Carolina jumped ahead of Maryland. Marquette held No. 6. Vanderbilt went to No. 7, changing places with Providence, and Alabama shoved ahead of Long Beach State into ninth place.

The Notre Dame victory, scored with an unbroken 12-point surge in the final three minutes of the game at South Bend, ended the longest winning streak in college basketball history.

It duplicated—on a smaller scale—Notre Dame's upset of another powerful UCLA team Jan. 23, 1971, when the Irish won 89-82 to hand the Bruins their first non-league loss in 48 games.

cessfully, UTM never scored on it."

Scoring honors, as in their other three games, went to their 5-3 guard Connie Howe with 17 points. The senior from Rock Falls is now averaging 15.8 points per game.

Freshman Kathy Vondrasek was second in scoring with eight points and led with 19 rebounds. Ms. Vondrasek is averaging 7.8 points a game.

Other scorers for SIU were sophomore Vicky King with six, junior Nancy Rist with five, sophomore Cathy Lies with four, senior Annette Griffin had two and senior Gail Moschino finished with one. Top scorer for Tennessee-Martin was Jan Goowin with 15 points.
