Terrorists suspected of inciting violence in Israel, Reagan says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan said Wednesday night the United States suspects terrorists may be inciting violence by Palestinians in Israeli-occupied territories and called on all sides to renew efforts for peace.

Reagan, speaking at his first nationally televised news conference in four months, said the administration believed the violence in the Israeli-occupied West Bank was "not home-grown and spontaneous" and suggested that outside agitators may be responsible.

"We have had intimations that there have been certain people, suspected of being terrorists ... stirring up the trouble," the president said.

Reagan, however, refused to expand on his statements, citing security reasons. He said it appeared that "certainly, the violence is both ways."

Simon 'smart' to stay out of race in South

By Dana DeBeaumont
Staff Writer

Sen. Paul Simon made a rational choice to skip Super Tuesday voting and to spend his time and money campaigning in Illinois and the other major industrial states, a political science professor said, Wednesday.

John Jackson, professor in political science and dean of the College of Liberal Arts, said Simon doesn't have the money to campaign in the 20-state Super Tuesday voting.

"He would have had real problems fighting in the south," Jackson said. "It's hard not to neglect (Simon's lack of funding) when it takes a million to $2 million to get on their TVs."

Simon announced at a news conference Wednesday in Washington that he will participate in national debates and make a few trips to Super Tuesday states, but that low finances are forcing him to restrict his campaign to Illinois and the states that elect delegates after Super Tuesday.

The industrial states Simon plans to campaign in include

Police arrest 30 on drug charges and UPI

MARION — Seventy-six law enforcement officers fanned out over Williamson County Wednesday serving drug violation arrest warrants on 45 people, 30 of whom already have been arrested.

Dennis Bowman, director of the Southern Illinois Enforcement Group, said the arrests culminated an 18-month undercover investigation in which special agents bought more than $9,000 in illicit drugs, including high grade cocaine, LSD, PCP, stimulants, depressants and cannabis.

Williamson County Deputy Sheriff Joan Schmic said there have been larger drug busts in the county, but usually a smaller percentage of the people involved get arrested so quickly.

Bowman told a news conference the investigation focused on several drug distribution networks consisting of individuals allegedly involved in organizing and directing the deliveries.

Two arrests were made in Franklin County based on evidence gathered in the Williamson County investigation conducted by the SIEG, a drug control agency, with assistance from the Williamson County sheriff's office and police departments in Marion, Herrin, Carterville, and Johnston City.

The SIEG presented the cases Friday to the Williamson County state's attorney's office, leading to the roundup that began after officers assembled at the sheriff's office at 5 a.m. Wednesday.

Bowman said documents filed by the state's attorney represented 63 violations of the Illinois Controlled Substances and Cannabis Control acts.

Board to take stand on Bible quoting issue

By Dana DeBeaumont
Staff Writer

The spotlight will be on the Carbondale Elementary School Board tonight when it takes a stand on the dispute between Bible-quoting substitute teacher Curtis Caldwell and parent John Stivers, who is an atheist.

The school board will hold a public meeting on the matter at 7 tonight in the Brush Administrative Center at 400 W. Monroe St.

Larry Jacober, superintendent of the Carbondale

Elementary Schools District No. 95, said the board president, Nancy Melone, will read a statement on the controversy during her president's remarks.

After Melone's statement, board members will have an opportunity to make a motion for a decision on whether to dismiss Caldwell.

"If a decision is required, it will be made then," Jacober said.

The controversy erupted after Stivers, a graduate student in higher education, complained that Caldwell violated the constitutional separation of church and state and students' civil rights when he lectured on religion while substitute teaching math classes at Lincoln Junior High School. Stivers is the father of twin eighth-graders at the school.

Caldwell said his lawyer, Ron Isaacs, submitted a written suggestion to the board on how the dispute should be solved, but Caldwell refused to comment on the suggestion, Wednesday.

However, Caldwell did say that he hopes there is a "place for differing and religious beliefs to be shared within the public schools."

Time for religious comment cannot be planned ahead of time, he added.

"Someone taking out a Ouija board during my class wasn't planned," Caldwell said.

He referred to an incident in which a student took out a Ouija board while he was substitute teaching. This

Amal militia leader vows to free kidnapped Marine JIBSHEET, Lebanon (UPI) — Shiite Amal militiamen maintained their blockade Wednesday around a southern Lebanon village where they believe U.S. Marine Lt. Col. William R. Higgins is held by pro-Iranian fundamentalists. Daoud Daoud, Amal military leader in the region, said he is determined to rescue Higgins even if it costs the lives of 100 of his men. Another Amal official ruled out using force, signaling a division over what options to pursue.

Transfer of power in South Korea protested

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — President Chun Doo Hwan relinquished his post Wednesday to his friend Roh Tae-woo in a transfer of power protested by thousands of dissidents who fought police and briefly took over a U.S. government office building. Roh officially took power at midnight Wednesday when Chun's term expired. Police expect more violence at Roh's inauguration Thursday.

S. Africa places more limits on black groups

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — The government launched its toughest crackdown on the opposition in a decade Wednesday, restricting black rights groups and leaders who were instrumental in bringing about international criticism of the country's race discrimination laws. Archbishop and Nobel Peace Prize laureate Desmond Tutu said the orders represented a "declaration of war" against blacks.

Peace initiative divides Israel's government

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israel's bitterly divided coalition government, scrambling for unity on the eve of a visit by Secretary of State George Shultz, failed Wednesday to agree on a common approach to a new U.S. Middle East peace initiative. A senior Foreign Ministry official predicted Shultz would not end the impasse over the peace process and a right-wing Cabinet minister urged Shultz to cancel his trip because of the domestic divisions. Shultz was to arrive in Israel today.

Senate republicans object to colleague's arrest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Republicans, filibustering a campaign finance bill, rallied against the parliamentary arrest of one of their colleagues Wednesday, deriding the Democratic strongarm tactics as akin to "a banana republic." Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., was tracked to his office by plainclothes U.S. Capitol police officers, apprehended and finally carried into the Senate chamber after he refused to respond to an early morning call to come to work. Republicans, who oppose the bill to cap special-interest contributions to congressional campaigns, decided to ignore the quorum call.

CIA chief opposes change in covert activities

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Advance notice to Congress of the secret plan to sell arms to Iran likely would have prevented the Iran-Contra scandal, CIA Director William Webster testified Wednesday, but he opposed tightening the law on reporting covert activities. The panel, reacting to the abuses exposed in the Iran-Contra affair, is considering legislation to toughen existing law requiring the president to give selected members of Congress notice of covert operations by U.S. intelligence agencies.

Army judge orders desertion trial to proceed

FORT DIX, N.J. (UPI) — A military judge, rejecting arguments that the Army is persecuting a private who defected to the Soviet Union and then changed his mind, ordered Wednesday that the soldier's court-martial for desertion go forward. The judge, Army Col. Earl Pauley, denied a defense motion to dismiss the charges against Pvt. 2 Wade E. Roberts. Defense lawyers had argued that Roberts was a victim of selective and vindictive prosecution, brought to trial only because he chose to flee to a communist country when he went absent without leave.

Students to protest until demands are met

AMHERST, Mass. (UPI) — Hampshire College minority students, occupying a campus building to protest racism, vowed Wednesday to remain inside until school officials agree to fund minority programs and adopt a racial harassment policy. The demonstrators began the day Wednesday by issuing a list of demands to college President Adele Simmons. Both sides agreed to begin negotiations at 8 a.m. today. The demonstration began Tuesday.

Chancellor Lawrence Pettit
SIUC
Carbondale, IL 62901

Dear Dr. Pettit,

On behalf of the Faculty Organizing Committee, IEA-NEA, I write in response to comments you made as reported in the Daily Egyptian, February 19, 1988, in an article titled "Labor Board Orders Union Election." In this article you said that the whole campaign for unionization is harmful to the university. When asked how, you stated that misinformation and lies sometimes circulate during the campaign. We have verified your comments with the Daily Egyptian reporter.

The committee believes your statement is inaccurate and unfair.

The committee also views it as an affront to the faculty of this university who serve on the organizing committees of the local collective bargaining organizations.

The committee is unaware of any lies or misinformation which have emanated from our IEA Faculty Organization or any other collective bargaining organizations on this campus.

The committee calls upon you to provide concrete evidence immediately for your charge or to retract it publicly. The committee asks you to do so by Friday, February 26, 1988.

Sincerely

Gary Kolb, Chair
IEA/NEA Faculty Organizing Committee

Fire's cause still undetermined

By Curtis Winston
Staff Writer

Rubble was still smoldering Wednesday afternoon after a fire Tuesday night destroyed two Murphysboro businesses and damaged two others.

A building in the 1400 block of Walnut Street containing three storefronts — the Murphysboro Township office, Lee's Hair Fashions and a vacant office space — burned to the ground.

Schwebel Printing and a warehouse owned by Huffman Appliance received smoke and water damage.

A fire department spokesman said the fire started in the attic of the beauty salon. The cause of the fire still is undetermined, the Murphysboro fire chief said.

Floyd Schwebel, owner of the printing shop, said the roof of his business had been on fire briefly. "I have to have a new roof and my basement is full of water," he said.

Caroline Lee, owner of the Lee's Hair Fashions, said several other Murphysboro cosmetologists have offered to share their salons with her until she finds a new place to set up shop. She had been at the location at 1412 Walnut St.

for 15 years.

The Murphysboro Township office has taken up temporary residence in a house at 108 N. 15th St., Earl Summers, township supervisor, said.

Estimated cost of the damage to the office and the building is more than $150,000, Summers said.

Although the files and records destroyed by the fire can be replaced, Summers said the duplication is going to take a lot of effort.

An estimate of damage to the entire building was not available.

State's attorney will wrap up case against Drakeford

By John Mohler
and Phyllis Coon
Staff Writers

State's Attorney John Clemons will rest his case against a Murphysboro woman accused of murdering her sister when a jury trial continues Friday at 8:30 a.m.

Public defender Robert Van Derhoff would not comment on whether he will call witnesses Friday.

In the second day of witness testimony at Jackson County Courthouse Wednesday, Carbondale police officer Donald Barrett described an interview with Dianne Drakeford, 31, which occurred the day after she pulled a knife from her bra and allegedly stabbed her sister, Ellouise Burton, to death outside a tavern in Carbondale Sept. 12.

Drakeford is charged with three counts of first-degree murder and one count of armed violence.

Clemons said the case is the first first-degree murder conviction sought by the Jackson County state's attorney's office since the classification was created in 1978.

The interview was conducted without an attorney present after Drakeford surrendered herself to police after the incident, Barrett said.

Barrett said Drakeford consented to the interview after Barrett informed her of her Miranda rights.

The interview took place at noon Sept. 13, Barrett said. He took notes as he questioned Drakeford, and then interviewed her again while making a taped recording.

The written and taped accounts of the interview yielded contradictions as to whether Drakeford and Burton pushed one another before the stabbing.

Barrett said Drakeford admitted pushing Burton in retaliation on the written record, but she said she didn't on the taped account. He attributed the contradictions to conflicting testimony by Drakeford.

Questioning by Van Derhoff centered on whether Drakeford believed Burton had been carrying a weapon in her purse during the incident. Witnesses earlier testified Burton had reached in her purse while arguing with Drakeford before the stabbing. Drakeford said in the interview she pulled her knife as Burton removed her hand from her purse.

Drakeford revealed in the interview that she had seen a knife in Burton's purse within two weeks of the stabbing incident but had not seen Burton with a weapon that night, Barrett said.

Drakeford said in the interview she believed Burton always carried a knife or an icepick in her purse.

Theater worthy of priority treatment

THE THEATER DEPARTMENT— like many other victims of the defunct 2-percent plan — still is reeling from that ridiculous scheme. But unlike the cases of some other victims, the damage to the theater department affects all of Southern Illinois.

It's no big secret that Southern Illinois is not a cultural mecca. Although there are many worthwhile and impressive attractions here, "Egypt" lacks variety in the entertainment it offers.

The theater department helped fill that void. While it will continue to do so, on a tighter budget, cuts to the department's funding stand out as sad examples of the corrosion of University priorities.

LAST YEAR, SIX major productions were held at McLeod Theater, compared to four scheduled for this year. This shows the University's insensitivity to the performing arts. It also sends the message that SIU-C is too strapped for cash to continue providing the quality productions Southern Illinois has grown accustomed to over the years.

The structure of the 2-percent plan was such that it called for every department to take a cut. But slashing something as visible as the theater department so viciously is akin to an administrative atrocity.

The master's programs in acting and directing were hacked in such a way that one faculty position will inherit the work of four graduate students positions. Graduate students previously taught introductory classes in voice, movement and acting. Because a faculty member will have to assume these duties, there will be fewer classes taught.

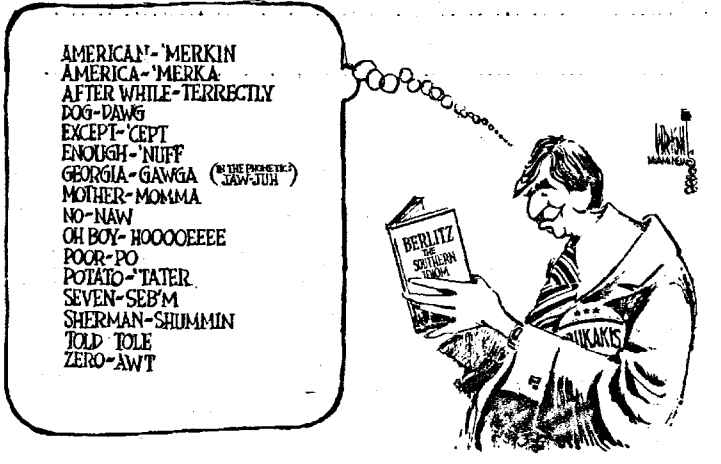

IT'S NOT AS if the theater department is some fly-by-night troupe of conniving charlatans out to make a quick buck off an unsuspecting community. It always has been a quality program, a boon to the University's image and a proving ground for talented actors, actresses and directors.

These budget cuts may seem like quick solutions to financial woes when viewed myopically, but in the long run, the University is cutting off its nose to spite its face.

This University evolved into the fine institution it is today largely because of Southern Illinois' love and respect for it. That respect has generally been boosted by visible, positive involvement with Carbondale and surrounding communities. Productions by the theater department are perfect examples of this interaction.

UNLIKE THE TOP-NOTCH coach who reminds his players they can always get better, the University is acting like it's achieved such a degree of prominence that it can forget about the hard work it took to get there. Rather than sacrifice measures of the excellence that brought it such an esteemed position, it should instead work to continue that bond it has forged throughout the last century.

The theater department is a proud and visible flame of that tradition — let's not allow it to fizzle.

Robertson talks tough on military; daddy got him out of Korean War

Pat Robertson is eager to get down South where he can start scooping up those delegates. He says that's his territory because Southerners believe in the old-fashioned, hard-nosed, patriotic virtues he likes to preach.

More than any other part of this country, the South believes that when the bugle sounds, a true American marches off to fight the enemy.

That could be Robertson's problem. There are a number of middle-aged ex-Marines scattered across this country who say there was a time when Robertson didn't have that flag-waving zeal to fight.

One is Pete McCloskey, a former congressman from California, who was a highly-decorated combat Marine officer in Korea, where he was badly wounded.

McCloskey has more than a little contempt for Robertson, the tough-talking patriot.

That's because McCloskey knew Robertson in 1951, when both were young Marine lieutenants on a troop ship bound for the Korean War.

McCloskey says Robertson used political clout — his father was a U.S. senator — to stay in Japan while others went to Korea, many to die or be maimed.

About 18 months ago, McCloskey shared his memories with a current congressman. The story got to the press and Robertson was furious.

He said it was a political smear, that his powerful daddy did nothing in his behalf and that he had indeed gone to Korea to face danger.

If Robertson had let it go at that, the dispute would have been forgotten. But Robertson made a political error by filing a $35 million libel suit against McCloskey.

Because of the suit, McCloskey's allegations haven't faded away. And McCloskey is no longer alone in having memories.

McCloskey tracked down others who were Marine officers on that troop ship and remember Robertson getting off in Japan.

These ex-Marines have given sworn depositions to be used when the case comes to trial. It seems Robertson isn't exactly a John Wayne character.

And to Robertson's discomfort, the trial is scheduled to begin March 8, Super Tuesday, when Robertson intends to harvest those patriotic Southern votes.

If the trial is held, what will the testimony be?

From McCloskey, we'll probably hear what he said 12 months ago about the troop ship voyage: "Pat was a fine, able, garrulous and candid. He spoke frankly of his desire to avoid combat and to have his father, Sen. Willis Robertson of Virginia, intervene on his behalf."

There will also be an old letter written by the late senator to a friend, who also had a son, named Edwin, on that troop ship. In the letter the senator said:

"On yesterday, I received a letter from General Shepherd, stating that Pat and Edwin were going to an interesting and historical part of Japan, where they would be given some valuable training before proceeding to Korea."

The general he referred to was Lemuel Shepherd, who was a family friend and commander of the Pacific fleet.

Later, the senator wrote another letter, saying he hoped that "...before that (training) is completed the issue in Korea will either have been settled or the united line so stabilized that there will be no excessive casualties."

As it turned out, there were "excessive casualties." Not for Pat, who was in Japan, but for many of the Marines who couldn't get off the ship with him.

Robertson stayed in Japan four months, while the others went into fierce combat. When Robertson finally went to Korea, he had a job far behind the lines.

In an interview this week, McCloskey sounded confident that he'd win any court battle with Robertson.

"We've had more than 20 Marine officers come forward to confirm one or more parts of what I said. The incredible thing about Robertson is the hypocrisy, his saying that he was in combat. How fraudulent it is."

McCloskey says that during the four months Robertson was in Japan, about 90 percent of the men from that troop ship were killed or wounded in Korea.

"Now he talks about strong moral leadership to fight the communists in Nicaragua. The humor of it is that when he had his chance, he didn't want any part of it."

GPSC recommends University keep same health insurance firm

By John Mohler
Staff Writer

The Graduate and Professional Student Council recommended Wednesday that the University keep the current student health insurance plan rather than seek bids from other companies.

The vote of 25-0, with four abstentions, favored a Student Health fee increase of $9-per-semester to accommodate a Blue Cross rate increase.

Council president Darrell Johnson said seeking bids from competing companies would be "bad PR," and that companies would "tack on 5 or 10 percent" if the University were to seek a new policy at a later time.

In debate the Blue Cross plan was commended for offering lower rates than most competing programs.

SIU-C student health fees will remain the lowest among state universities despite the increase, health services director Sam McVay has said.

In other business: —Illinois Student Association member Heidi Weisner announced plans for an April 13 Day of Action II student rally calling for increased funding for state universities.

Weisner said the rally will be held only at the Capitol in Springfield and that a rally will be held on campus. Weisner said she hopes 200 University students will join students from the other state universities at the rally.

Johnson said the GPSC should encourage students and their parents to write their state representatives, urging increased funding of higher education. He announced plans to collect student signatures for petitions to be sent to Springfield.

diplomacy in a renewed effort to solve the volatile situation.

Reagan called on all sides to work together for a solution, but stressed the United States could not impose a solution.

"I don't think it's up to us to dictate a settlement in the Middle East," Reagan said.

Reagan also said the United States was continuing its efforts to free American hostages in the Middle East and said the administration had never received any information about hostages from former television evangelist Pat Robertson.

Robertson said earlier Wednesday that his Christian Broadcasting Network once knew the location of U.S. hostages.

Reagan, following his own "11th Commandment" to not criticize fellow Republicans, refused to comment at length about the race to succeed him, but noted that Vice President George Bush did raise objections about the sale of arms to Iran, which led to the Iran-Contra scandal.

Reagan said he also would not go into detail, but noted, "Yes, there were reservations."

The president also made a spirited defense of members of his administration who have been accused of improper actions.

Wisconsin, Michigan and New York.

"This is not simply an Illinois strategy. This is a winning strategy," Simon said. "The reality... (is) 20 states at the same time. There's no sense fooling myself. We just don't have the resources."

The Simon campaign owes about $500,000. It received $137,000 in contributions on Monday, its biggest net in a single day.

Jackson said candidates in the past only went to caucuses and primaries they thought they could win. Jonn F. Kennedy only campaigned in and won two primaries, West Virginia and Wisconsin, and won the presidency, Jackson added.

Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri won the South Dakota primary with 44 percent. Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis followed with 31 percent, Sen. Albert Gore of Tennessee had 8 percent, Simon had 6 percent and the Rev. Jesse Jackson and former Colorado Sen. Gary Hart had 5 percent each.

Dukakis led the pack in the Minnesota caucuses with 33 percent. Jackson had 20 percent, Simon had 13 percent, Gephardt followed with 7 percent, Gore had 1 percent and Hart had less than 1 percent.

Simon finished second in the Iowa caucuses and third in the New Hampshire primary. Despite these showings, Simon claims he ranks second in delegates chosen in the four races.

Simon's chances of being the next president look grim, but his chances of getting a nomination for vice president are good if Dukakis is the Democratic nominee for president, Jackson said.

Makanda resident works for Simon's adversary

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

Southern Illinois Simon supporters have a rebel in their midst.

Mike Jessup, a University graduate student, who is a resident of Makanda — home of Sen. Paul Simon — is working as a delegate for Missouri Rep. Richard Gephardt's presidential campaign.

Jessup, who has lived in Makanda for less than a year, said he wrote to both the Simon and Gephardt campaigns to offer his help. Simon supporters said they could use Jessup's help eventually. But, "Gephardt supporters really went out of their way to get me involved in the campaign," Jessup said.

"I think Simon is a wonderful candidate, but I preferred some of the policies of Gephardt," he said.

Jessup has been involved in politics "off and on" for three or four years, but has not always been a Democrat. During his sophomore year in college, Jessup interned with a Republican senator.

"I had a change of heart, I guess," he said.

Jessup said he succeeded in getting Gephardt's eight Southern Illinois delegates on the ballot. The job required 700 signatures, he said.

Jessup said he hasn't met many Makanda residents yet and has not really been pressured for not supporting the hometown candidate. But, he added, not many Gephardt supporters live in the area.

Gephardt is a middle-of-the-road politician, Jessup said. Gephardt seems concerned with middle-income Americans who have been ignored for a long time, Jessup said.

Jessup said he also supports Gephardt's policy on improving public health care and his tough stance on trade.

prompted Caldwell to read Deuteronomy 18:9-11 of the Bible, which warns against demons, devils and incantations to the class.

The school board has said that "employees shall express no personal political or religious views, nor engage in religious instruction in the discharge of their duties while teaching in the classroom."

The board held a public meeting Feb. 5 that more than 400 people attended. The public had the opportunity to address the board before it went into a closed executive session. Neither Stivers nor Caldwell spoke at the public meeting. They each told their side of the dispute to the board during its closed meeting.

Both Stivers and Caldwell said they felt positive about the board's reaction during the closed meeting.

Stivers said he is suing both the district and Caldwell for the "irreparable damage" caused to his daughters because of Caldwell's Bible quoting. He said his daughters' classmates have a different opinion of them than they did before the controversy began.

If the school board decides in favor of Caldwell, and allows him to proselytize, "I will protest it until I've fallen into a wheelchair again," Stivers said. "I'll picket until I can't walk or push my wheelchair."

Jacobson said he doesn't anticipate a large crowd at the meeting.

USO puts off voting on medical fee increase

By Susan Curtiss
Staff Writer

A bill supporting a proposed $8 increase in the student medical benefit fee was not voted on by the Undergraduate Student Organization Wednesday.

The USO tabled the resolution to allow the housing tuition and fees commission to review the proposal. It will be voted on March 9, so that the information can be presented to the Board of Trustees at the March 10 meeting.

USO members also said they felt the time was needed to get students' opinions on the proposal.

The fee increase would pay for a 20 percent increase in the cost of student health insurance beginning next semester. The student medical insurance premium is part of the health fee that funds off-campus emergency treatment and some special laboratory and x-ray costs.

The coverage is through Blue Cross, which is raising its premiums by 20 percent.

If the increase is passed, the fee would be raised $5 for the summer semester and $9 for the fall and the spring semesters. This would raise summer fees to $23.75 and fall and spring fees to $39.50 per semester.

In other business the USO: —Passed a resolution supporting Morris Library's Two for Two campaign. The USO and the Graduate and Professional Student Council will have a dual to see which organization can raise the most money for the campaign. Students have been challenged to raise $10,000.

—Passed a resolution supporting Day of Action II. Plans for the student rally in Springfield are already being made by the USO governmental relations commission and the Illinois Student Association.

Last year students from colleges and universities across the state lobbied legislators at the Capitol to allocate more money for higher education. This year's rally will be April 13.

—Voted to support reconsideration of the financial aid budget. Some GPSC members said a survey taken of University students to help determine how much financial aid students may get underestimated many expenses.

The USO resolution calls for using more than one source of data for the survey, that the survey be taken every year instead of adding on inflation and that separate budgets be established for Pell Grants and Guaranteed Student Loans.

—Seated two new senators, Cindy Schnaitmann for the School of Technical Careers and Brian Stack for the West Side.

Television stations cancel Swaggart's show

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — With the national Assemblies of God considering stricter punishment of Jimmy Swaggart for reportedly consorting with a prostitute, television stations from Africa to Tennessee said Wednesday they were dropping the popular preacher's show.

Swaziland Broadcasting Corp. Manager Don Dlamini said Swaggart's show was coming off the air immediately, pending discussions with representatives of Swaggart Ministries. WTVC, Chattanooga, Tenn., also dropped the show, following the lead of the Christian Broadcasting Network, South African Broadcasting Co., Jamaica Broadcasting Corp. and a network in Chile.

Swaggart, who tearfully confessed to a sin of moral failure and begged forgiveness during a Sunday service, claims his broadcasts reach 510 million people in 145 countries.

Church officials said Swaggart had been photographed with an alleged prostitute entering and leaving her motel room in New Orleans. A resident of the motel said she had seen Swaggart there several times, and claimed he offered her money to perform a pornographic act.

The national council of the Assemblies of God is expected to decide this week whether to increase Swaggart's punishment imposed by the Louisiana District Council of the Church, which banned the evangelist from the pulpit for three months and ordered him to submit to two years of rehabilitation.

In an effort to head off more defections among broadcast outlets, the Swaggart Ministries in-house syndication company sent messages to stations warning they were bound by contract to run the show.

"We just can't arbitrarily remove it," said Roberta Denegre, a program coordinator at WDAF in Kansas City.

Several other stations said they would continue to air the program so long as viewers did not complain.

"There have been no complaints so far," said Steve Soldingier, general manager of WCCB in Charlotte, N.C. "As long as the checks keep coming, he's got air time."

Swaggart, mainly through Starcom, pays each station for broadcast time to air the show.

"Every station, no matter what the program is, have their own sets of rates for everybody," said John Voinche, a salesman at WAFB in Baton Rouge. He said his station would continue to show Swaggart.

The discipline imposed by the district council may not be strong enough, said the Rev. James Hamill of Memphis, Tenn., a member of the Assemblies of God national council that will review the Swaggart case.

"The constitution and bylaws require at least a year's cessation of active ministry," Hamill said. "My opinion is he should be treated just like anybody else, not more severely or less severely."

In a statement released late Tuesday from its headquarters in Springfield, Mo., the national council warned the decision of the Louisiana district council was not final.

Swaggart 'blessed' with home

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — From the $250,000 fence to the four-columned jacuzzi with a gold-colored swan fixture, Jimmy Swaggart's plantation-style mansion is not the typical preacher's home.

The television evangelist owns a 9,337-square-foot mansion on the outskirts of Baton Rouge. Swaggart who reportedly consorted with a prostitute was suspended from his pulpit for three months by the Louisiana Assemblies of God and ordered to submit to two years of rehabilitation.

Like his cousins Jerry Lee Lewis and Mickey Gilley, who grew up with Swaggart in the dirt-poor central Louisiana town of Ferriday, the evangelist has a taste for the extravagant.

The home, located near Gov. Edwin Edwards' house, is styled after the historic Shadows on the Teche plantation and was valued at $1.5 million by assessors in 1987. It reportedly was built at cost by the same company responsible for construction at Swaggart's World Ministry Center.

The preacher, in an interview last year, defended his lifestyle by invoking the word of God.

"Our people in the church, all the people that we minister to, they don't take the position that when a person becomes a Christian, he moves into a tent and wears sackcloth and ashes," Swaggart said. "They believe that God blesses you, if you live for God and you serve God."

Shultz to urge peace in Israel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz, barely resting from his trip to Moscow, arranged to go to the Middle East Wednesday to try to revive the stalled Arab-Israeli peace process.

"Maybe it won't work," Shultz said of his effort to promote peace between Israel and its neighbors and help settle the future of Palestinians in the occupied territories of the West Bank and Gaza. However, he said it is worth the effort.

Shultz returned Tuesday night from Moscow and talks with Mikhail Gorbachev on arms control and other issues, including a summit between the Soviet leader and President Reagan late this spring.

After hardly more than 24 hours in the capital, Shultz headed first to Israel for talks with the divided leaders of the coalition government, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir and Foreign Minister Shimon Peres.

The two Israelis differ sharply about the American effort to reach a settlement on the future of the occupied territories where more than 50 Palestinians have been killed in protest of Israel's rule.

Shultz was expected to arrive in Israel Thursday afternoon and plans to be in the region for six days. Based at Jerusalem, Shultz is to visit Syria, Egypt, Jordan, and Saudi Arabia.

Major demonstrations are planned by Palestinians and Israeli groups to protest the mission.

Later, Shultz is going to London to see Jordan's King Hussein, who is having elective oral surgery. Shultz then will join Reagan in Brussels, Belgium, for the two-day NATO summit, and, depending on the results of his first trip, may head back to the Middle East for more talks.

Newly renovated bar to offer alternative

By Dena Schulte
Staff Writer

WHEN MAINSTREET East closed its doors in November many people bemoaned the loss of Carbondale's last alternative bar. But a new bar, located in the same building, has stepped into the gap.

II Hearts opened its doors about two weeks ago and its owners have a new attitude and new ideas for an alternative, lifestyle bar.

"There's been a whole lot of attitude changing going on for a long time," part-owner Terry Cravens, said.

The attitude Cravens speaks about concerns the relationship between the owners and customers.

Terry Cravens
footage," he said.

JOHN BIRD, an employee, said II Hearts has a better customer-owner relationship than other bars.

"The owners listen to what the customers want and if it's reasonable they will change to satisfy the customers' needs and wants," he said.

Cravens said she and her business partner, April Smith, opened II Hearts because they saw a need for a more personal bar. Cravens said she would like to see the bar become a type of community center, where people can go during the day to watch TV, read and socialize.

She said she also would like to turn the coat closet into a library. "A place where people can get sexual information and not walk around ignorant about things," she said.

IN ADDITION to the changes that have already taken place — such as installing a big screen TV, more chairs, new lights and a juke box — Cravens said she would also like to build a beer garden in back.

Bird said, "It will be the largest beer garden in this area. No one else has the space we have."

The only bar larger than II Hearts is Gatsby's Bar and Billiards, Bird said.

"Without the billiards, we definitely beat them by square

OTHER FUTURE investments will include a video screen on the dance floor and lowering the ceiling so the air-conditioner can work more efficiently, Bird said.

Since its opening II Hearts has had an encouraging turnout. "We've been filled to capacity," Bird said.

Both Cravens and Bird attribute much of the success to friends and customers. Without their volunteer help, II Hearts may not have opened, they said.

"It amazed me," Cravens said. "There was a lot of work to be done. Some people came every day."

II Hearts is more than a bar, it's a gathering place for alternative lifestyles. Craven said.

NO OTHER bar in town plays new wave and alternative music, she said. Not all the music, however, is new wave, night club and dance music are also played, Bird said.

II Hearts also serves the younger community. The entry age is 18, but the drinking age is enforced, Cravens said. "We offer a variety of seltzers and juices at a low price," she said.

"We serve the community, not just the gay community, but an alternative community," Craven said.

Prosecution witness denies plotting agent's assassination

FORT SMITH, Ark. (UPI) — Defense attorneys Wednesday tried to chip away at the credibility of a key government witness in the trial of 14 alleged white supremacists charged with seditious conspiracy and plotting to assassinate federal officials.

James Ellison, 47, the former leader of the Arkansas-based Covenant, the Sword and the Arm of the Lord, denied defense contentions it was his idea to kill an FBI agent.

Ellison made the denial under cross-examination by Joe O'Bryan, attorney for William H. Wade, 68, of Smithville, Ark., in his third day on the stand in the U.S. District Court trial.

O'Bryan elicited testimony that Ellison met with FBI agent Jack Knox of Arkansas in Mountain Home, Ark., on the third day after a 1983 shootout near Smithville in which fugitive tax protester Gordon W. Kahl was killed by authorities.

O'Bryan said that was before Ellison said he and three other men had gone to the Imboden-Smithville area to discuss the Kahl affair with Wade and his son, Ray Wade, 35.

The Wades are two of the five men on trial for conspiracy to assassinate Knox and U.S. District Court Judge Franklin Waters of Arkansas, who were involved in prosecuting those involved in harboring Kahl.

O'Bryan asked Ellison if he said, "Mr. Knox, you'd better be ready to die for what you believe in."

Ellison said he made the statement during "friendly conversation."

Ellison said that William Wade was at the meeting in Imboden but said he did not go with them to the house where Kahl was killed.

"Isn't it true you're the one who came to that feed mill (meeting near the Kahl shooting) with the idea of killing Jack Knox," O'Bryan asked.

"No it isn't," Ellison replied.

Ray Wade handled his own cross-examination and he, too, attempted to make it appear Ellison already had met Knox on unfriendly terms. He also said it was Ellison who had asked him to see the Kahl house, instead of the other way around as Ellison testified Tuesday.

Ray Wade also tried to show that Ellison really did not know the Wades very well, mentioning that an assistant U.S. Attorney had to refresh his memory.

Falwell defeated in High Court; decision a victory for satirists

WASHINGTON (UPI) The Supreme Court handed the Rev. Jerry Falwell a bitter defeat Wednesday, ruling he may not collect damages from snub publisher Larry Flynt for an ad parody that portrayed Falwell as an incestuous drunk.

The 11-page decision struck down $200,000 in damages awarded Falwell by a jury that found the ad parody in Hustler magazine that portrayed him having sex with his mother while drunk did not libel him but did cause him emotional distress.

The ruling is a major victory for newspaper cartoonists and satirists who feared if Falwell was able to collect for suffering emotional distress the same standard would apply to them.

Chief Justice William Rehnquist, the court's most conservative member, noted in the 8-0 ruling that from the "early cartoon, portraying George Washington as an ass down to the present day, graphic depictions and satirical cartoons have played a prominent role in public and political debate."

"There is no doubt that the caricature of (Falwell) and his mother published in Hustler (magazine) is at best a distant cousin of the political cartoons described ... and a rather poor relation at that," Rehnquist said.

However, Rehnquist said that to make an exception for the parody would be a mistake.

"Were we to hold otherwise, there can be little doubt that political cartoonists and satirists would be subjected to damages awards without any showing that their work falsely defamed its subject," Rehnquist said.

Anthony Kennedy, who joined the court last week, took no part in the ruling.

Reacting to the ruling, Falwell said he appreciated the "deep concern the court has shown for the sacredness of the First Amendment."

"However, I respectfully disagree with their ruling. Just as no person may scream 'fire' in a crowded theater when there is no fire, and find cover under the First Amendment, likewise no sleaze merchant like Larry Flynt should be able to use the First Amendment as an excuse for maliciously and dishonestly attacking public figures as he has so often done.

"I believe the Supreme Court has given the green light to Larry Flynt and his ilk to print what they wish about any public figure at any time with no fear of reprisal. However, I am sure the justices, in view of Larry Flynt, were holding their noses while making the ruling."

The ruling was hailed by groups that defend the First Amendment's guarantee of freedom of the press, who said it should end tactics popular in recent years to bring charges of emotional distress in an effort to skirt libel laws that make it tough for public officials and public figures to prevail in lawsuits.

Falwell sued for libel, invasion of privacy and intentional infliction of emotional distress.

A federal court jury found against Falwell on the libel claim because the ad was clearly labeled a parody and the court ruled against the invasion of privacy claim.

New AIDS test announced; more precise, automated

NEW YORK (UPI) — A new AIDS virus test was announced Wednesday that could save tens of thousands each year from the agony of false or uncertain results showing infection with the virus that causes the dread disease.

The new test was promoted as more precise than the current test used to confirm AIDS infection after it is detected by a simpler test that mistakenly can register a small percentage of non-infected blood samples as positive.

The new test, dubbed HIVAGEN, will be used to confirm positive results from the other available test and to backstop tests in which results are indeterminate, the developers said.

"It is estimated that this year, thousands of people will be told they have AIDS (virus infection) when they don't," SmithKline Bio-Science Laboratories president Harry Groome said.

"HIVAGEN is the most accurate test available today to confirm AIDS infection," he said.

"The results are fantastic," Dr. John Mills, chief of the infectious disease division at San Francisco General Hospital, said. He monitored clinical trials of the test on 2,500 individuals and recorded no false positives.

Mills recalled an earlier case of a young mother who was tested while considering a second pregnancy because she had received blood transfusions before blood banks checked all donations for evidence of AIDS virus infection. Her test showed she was infected when she was not.

"She was told she might be infected and might have infected her husband and child," Mills said. "It doesn't take a lot of imagination to understand the turmoil this caused in this woman's life and in her husband's life."

False positive results occur among a fraction of a percent of the millions of tests performed.

Because the new test would be used only for blood already believed to be infected, it was not likely to have an impact on blood bank supplies recently estimated to unknowingly endanger up to one out of every 40,000 transfusion recipients.

The main significance of the HIVAGEN test is for the tens of thousands of people who must wait months to be retested because their results are not clear, said Mills.

The confirmation method currently used on all blood that shows infection is called the Western Blot test. It is performed manually by highly trained technicians who must interpret the results from shadings on strips of blotter paper. The HIVAGEN test is fully automated.

Groome said of 29 million blood samples likely to be tested for the AIDS virus this year, 500,000 will require confirmation by the complex Western Blot test, which could yield several thousand false positive results and 75,000 indeterminates. The latter will require follow-up testing six months later.

The Philadelphia-based drug company said it was offering the test immediately to all physicians, laboratories, hospitals and blood banks, but it could only be performed at SmithKline's laboratory in Van Nuys, Calif.

At a cost of $80 per test, one blood bank spokesman said wide use was unlikely by institutions that use Western Blot test kits to perform their own tests for about $15 each.

A financial analyst who specializes in the pharmaceutical industry said the test probably would generate one or two million in revenues for the company.

'Condoms' for women to be tested in U.S.

CHICAGO (UPI) — The first "condom" designed to be worn by women soon will undergo testing in the United States and should be approved for use later this year, a spokeswoman for a pharmaceutical company said Wednesday.

Called the "Femshield" in Europe, the WPC-333 device is a soft polyurethane vaginal liner shaped like a diaphragm at the end. The woman can insert the disposable device anytime before sexual intercourse, either by itself or with a spermicide and lubricant.

Compared to other barrier contraceptives, the "revolutionary" design of the device provides better protection against sexually transmitted diseases and is preferred by couples who have tested it, Mary Ann Leeper, head of WPC-333 development for Wisconsin Pharmaceutical Co., of Jackson, Wis., said.

"We've combined the best characteristics of the male condom and the female diaphragm," Leeper said.

U.S. trials of the WPC-333 will begin in March, to be followed by a bid for approval from the Food and Drug Administration, Leeper said. She predicted quick approval by both the FDA and the public.

"Women are already buying half of all male condoms sold today," Leeper said. "Our product gives women the chance to control contraception and to reduce the chances of contracting such STDs (sexually transmitted diseases) as herpes, gonorrhea, syphilis, chlamydia and AIDS."

The device was first developed by Dr. Erik Gregerson, a Danish gynecologist, based on an idea from his wife Bente, a nurse. Despite being a contraceptive, it is primarily designed to improve protection against sexually transmitted diseases.

The device, made of clear polyurethane, comes in one size. It looks like a sheath with a diaphragm-like ring at each end. One end, which lies against the cervix, is closed.

Because an outer ring covers the female labia, the WPC-333 prevents any direct contact between male and female genitalia, reducing the risk of disease transmission, Leeper said. The material, polyurethane, is 40 percent stronger than the latex used in condoms and far less likely to tear or develop holes.

Extensive trials in Europe have found the WPC-333 to be both effective and acceptable, Dr. Paul Salmon, of London's Middlesex Hospital, said.

A trade name for the WPC-333 will be chosen following the tests and FDA approval, Leeper said.

Reagan panel urges new AIDS programs

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The chairman of President Reagan's AIDS panel Wednesday recommended a 10-year, $15 billion drug treatment program to help stem the spread of the AIDS virus among intravenous drug abusers and their children.

The drug program as well as proposals for patient care and drug development were revealed by retired Adm. James Watkins in the panel's first formal recommendations since it began work last summer.

Federal experts, including Surgeon General C. Everett Koop, have said the AIDS virus is spreading rapidly among the 1.2 million intravenous drug abusers in the United States through shared needle use. This population group is the toughest to reach through traditional education methods.

A further complication is that waiting lists at drug treatment centers average three to six months, Watkins said at a news conference. Only 150,000 drug abusers are in treatment at any one time.

"We simply have to have a more sustained effort in this country when dealing with IV drug abuse," Watkins said. "We believe very strongly those who are crying for help and who are outside these programs should be taken in.

"We simply can't tolerate not giving help when help is being sought by these individuals. We can rehabilitate them and bring them back. We know they can be responsible individuals."

Watkins' report recommends expanding drug treatment programs, adding 32,000 more workers and 3,300 new treatment centers.

Study: one in 40,000 get AIDS from transfusions

BOSTON (UPI)—As many as one in every 40,000 blood transfusion recipients may become infected with the AIDS virus—an estimate that is one of the highest to date, according to a new government study released Wednesday.

The estimate indicates more accurate screening tests are needed and greater efforts should be made to deter people who are at high risk of being infected with the AIDS virus from donating blood, the researchers said.

"You have to emphasize that at this point everything that should be done is being done. We have to find out what else we can do to make this small risk even smaller," Dr. John Ward, who headed the study, said. Ward is an epidemiologist with the federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

About 3 million Americans each year receive transfusions of donated blood. Anyone who is at high risk of being infected with the AIDS virus is asked not to donate blood and all donations are screened for antibodies to the virus.

However, some people who are infected with the virus donate anyway. The test is estimated to detect slightly less than 100 percent of infected blood samples. It takes an average of eight weeks after infection before tests can identify infected people.

Based on those numbers, the number of people who donate blood and the frequency of their donations, Ward and his colleagues calculated the highest possible risk of infection from donated blood.

The New England Journal of Medicine published the study's worst-case estimate that as many as 460 people, or one in 40,000 transfusion recipients, could become infected with the AIDS virus each year in the United States.

Ward said he believed the estimate was one of the highest, if not the highest, to date.

Previous estimates of the risk have ranged as low as one in 250,000, but Ward said the new estimate is more accurate because it more accurately takes into account the "window period" between the time someone becomes infected and when they begin to test positive with the screening test.

In a telephone interview, Dr. Gerald Sandler of the American Red Cross said several steps had been taken since the study was conducted to reduce the risk of AIDS transmission through blood transfusions.

Screening testing is more accurate, the definition of a high-risk person is more stringent and donors who feel pressured to donate blood, such as by employers or peers, now have the option of confidentially indicating their blood should not be used for transfusions, he said.

"I believe those estimates are on the high side," Sandler said of the newly published study.

Testing the AIDS virus, HIV, would be offered on demand.

Watkins said it was estimated such an expansion in treatment would cost $1.5 billion a year for 10 years. The amount would be divided equally between federal and state or local governments.

Also proposed is an education and prevention program that would cost $200 million a year for 10 years.

The program is intended not only for adults but "to stop the potential spread of pediatric AIDS in our nation," Watkins said. The AIDS virus can spread from an infected mother to a fetus through the bloodstream or contact with the birth canal.

"Hope and Glory" explores childhood, war

By Richard Nunez
Entertainment Editor

Film Review

"Hope and Glory" is not the movie it seems to be.

Previews and promotions for "Hope and Glory" made the movie appear to be a heavy drama about a young boy's experiences with the horrors of war. Although the movie is based on a boy's experiences in wartime England, the subject is treated beautifully and with subtle, but wonderful, humor.

"Hope and Glory" is an autobiographical movie by director John Boorman.

Boorman, who directed the adventure movies "Deliverance" and "The Emerald Forest," does a complete about-face from those works, delivering an elegant and thoroughly thought-provoking movie.

Through the eyes of young Bill Rohan, Boorman explores his childhood and creates vivid and beautifully rendered scenes from his memories of the war. Each scene is bright and vibrant, and because they are seen through the eyes of an 8-year-old boy, the war is like a party, with wonderful events waiting to happen at any second.

Throughout the movie, Boorman treats the story as if he is remembering certain events at random, as they happen to pop up in his mind. If he were narrating the story, Boorman might say something like, "Then there was the time when..."

The result of the technique is a feeling that the audience has created the storyline rather than the director. There is no real transition from scene to scene, only an overlapping of images in which the audience must make the connections. This task is readily accepted because none of the scenes are ever forced upon the audience.

In one scene, Bill and his family return home to find their house on fire and automatically assume it was caused by a bombing raid, which was a frequent event in the neighborhood. Instead, they are told that it was caused by a fire inside the home.

"It happens in wartime also," a firefighter tells them.

Boorman repeatedly uses this ironic touch to downplay the drama of the movie and it seems to make the movie much more believable. The lives of each character seems to be in the hands of a power much greater than themselves. They seem to accept it and, at times, even celebrate it.

In another scene, Bill's grandfather orders Bill and his little sister Sue to catch fish for supper and warns them not to return home empty-handed. After spending the whole afternoon without catching a single fish, Sue is terrified to return home and face her grandfather.

Suddenly, out of the sky comes a stray German bomber airplane and drops a bomb into the river. The shock of the explosion sends hundreds of dead fish floating to the top of the river and the two children fill their boat and return home. Sebastian Rice Edwards and Geraldine Muir turn in wonderful performances as Bill and Sue, outshining the performances of the adult actors. This is as it should be, because "Hope and Glory" is a film for children who are forced to accept a world at war and to act as responsibly as adults.

Former student returns home as dance director

By Dona Schulte
Staff Writer

Lou Conte, a former SIU-C student, is returning to campus Sunday as artistic director of the Hubbard Street Dance Company.

Acclaimed by such legendary stars as Fred Astaire, Conte left his Du Quion home in 1960 to pursue his love of dance.

"I am looking forward to coming home," Conte said.

Conte studied zoology at the University, but never graduated because his first love, dancing, became more important.

He said Marie Hale, a former ballet teacher, and her husband changed his life. Hale convinced Conte to give up zoology and go with her to Florida in 1960 to study dance.

"She told me, 'If you like to dance you should try it now, because later you won't be able to.' So I did," he said.

"We were very good friends," Conte said. "All their friends were the artistic type. They had no money, but it all seemed very exciting and neat to me."

Conte said he did not study dance at SIU-C because during the 1960s the program he was "basically women in the gymnasium. It was not my cup of tea."

In 1964, Conte danced in the chorus of "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," his first Broadway musical.

From the mid 1960s to the early '70s, Conte choreographed over 30 musicals. In the mid-1970s he founded the Lou Conte Dance Studio in Chicago and later, in 1977, the Hubbard Dance Company.

"Broadway was fun, but my biggest contribution to the dancing world is my position as the artistic director to the Hubbard Dance Company," he said.

The musicals of the company portray a variety of jazz and ballet dancing, a technique that was molded from Conte's own dancing lessons when he was 12.

"My tap instructor refused to teach me unless I learned other disciplines as well," he said.

Conte attributes his skill and talent to his own creation and devotion to dance.

"My dad was a coal miner and my mom was a housewife. There wasn't any artistic input from the family," he said. "Dad was disappointed when I quit college to dance because dancing was a very insecure profession."

It still is a challenging profession today, Conte said.

"There are more dancers than there are jobs; only the good dancers work," he added.

Conte says he is still interested in zoology. "I am still an animal lover," he said.

His interest in animals may set the stage for his future.

"Five years from now I don't want to be doing the same thing I am doing now," Conte said. "I would like to get involved in animals in one way or another, raising or breeding. It's a fantasy of mine."

Conte said he is considering buying a log house and about 10 acres of land north of Elkhaville.

"The city can be very harsh to live in," he said. "I love to be out in the ground and trees. It would be a great place to raise chinchillas."

Conte said he is looking forward to returning to campus. "It's so different now from when I was a student," he said. "I remember when it was just the Old Main Mall, Shryock and Wheeler. Now it goes on and on."

"It's interesting getting old," he continued. "There are some nice things about it. I get to look back and say, 'I remember when.'"

Running Winter Games easy as ABC

By David E. Nathan

UPI Sports Writer

CALGARY, Alberta (UPI) — Amid the maze of acronyms at these Winter Olympics, it is easy to forget who is actually in charge.

Is it the IOC (International Olympic Committee)? Or maybe OCO (the local Olympic Organizing Committee)? Neither. The acronym running the Games is ABC. That stands for American Broadcasting Company, which stands for money ($$$).

ABC has been selective in exerting its influence. The network didn't demand lights at the bobsled or luge runs to permit live prime time telecasts. Instead, ABC seized control over hockey, one of the few Winter Olympic sports in which the United States was expected to be competitive.

Was it mere coincidence the U.S. hockey team played all five of its preliminary-round games at night during ideal viewing hours? Was it coincidental the medal round was increased from four teams to six, giving the U.S. squad a chance to play another week?

No and No.

Despite ABC's best efforts, and the power of persuasion its $309 million Olympic investment brought, the U.S. hockey team failed to advance past the preliminary round. That left a big hole in the network's programming schedule.

So ABC introduced Olympic hockey Plan B: If you can't have the team viewers love, get the team viewers love to hate—the Soviets.

But there was a problem. The Soviets were scheduled to play all three of their medal-round games during the day. After some juggling, organizers announced two of the three Soviet medal-round games would be played during prime time, including the blockbuster Soviet-Canada contest.

The medal-round scheduling changes were not easy to make, nor, at a hastily called news conference on Tuesday, was it easy to convince the media they were made free of network pressure.

According to a medal-round schedule distributed when the Games began, the Soviets were to have played Finland Wednesday afternoon and Canada Friday morning.

After emerging from several hours of meetings that ended Tuesday, officials with the IOC, OCO and the International Ice Hockey Federation announced a change. The Soviets would face Canada Wednesday night and the Finns Friday night.

Officials said they had the latitude under a 2-year-old agreement to change game starting times as long as the day of competition remained the same.

As for changing the dates of the Finland and Canada games, officials excused themselves by saying there was a clerical mistake in the earlier schedule.

"We made an error. We discovered it last night at 8:30," explained Jerry Joyn, vice president of communications for OCO.

Even northern neighbors in the TV business are upset with ABC. CTV, which has the exclusive Canadian television rights, was angry that only one medal-round game involving Canada will be played at night.

"I got one prime time game for the Canadian team during the preliminary round and ABC had prime time for all (the U.S.) games," John Esaw, CTV's vice president for sports, said.

"I'm asking for a fair shake for Canada. I thought I should have got a break being the host country."

Sorry, John. CTV paid only about $3.3 million to get Canadian TV rights. Money talks and when it is talking, the IOC is all ears and open pockets.

The alliance between ABC, IOC and OCO has not merely been restricted to hockey. The actual dates the Games are taking place were changed to suit television.

Trump announces he will sponsor boxing title fight

LAWRENCEVILLE, N.J. (UPI) — Developer Donald Trump said Wednesday he had outmaneuvered Las Vegas casinos and will sponsor the coveted heavyweight title fight between Mike Tyson and Michael Spinks June 27 in Atlantic City.

"I have a commitment on the fight and we anticipate having the fight in Atlantic City at Trump Plaza (Hotel and Casino) on June 27," Trump told reporters after an unrelated appearance at the New Jersey Casino Control Commission.

"I think we all agree this is probably the biggest fight since Muhammad Ali fought Joe Frazier many years ago," Trump said. "They've all been trying to say, 'He hasn't made (Atlantic City) the fight capital,' but I've gotten, it seems, most of the good fights and I'll continue to do it."

Trump, who owns or controls three casino hotels in Atlantic City, scheduled a news conference for today at Trump Tower in New York to announce details of the fight.

Movie extra gets baseball try outs

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — George Little's dream of becoming a professional baseball player died about six years ago — but an odd series of events has revived it.

The Chicago White Sox and the Kansas City Royals have invited the 26-year-old maintenance man to try out as a pitcher at their Florida spring training camps. The Indianapolis Star reported in a column Wednesday.

Little's big chance came about because he got a part in "Eight Men Out," a movie that was being filmed in Indianapolis about the 1919 World Series scandal in which the Cincinnati Reds upset the Chicago White Sox. Key White Sox players had agreed to lose in return for $100,000 from gamblers.

To make game scenes realistic, the filmmakers hired White Sox coach Ken Berry as a technical adviser and hired Indianapolis-area athletes to portray the Reds.

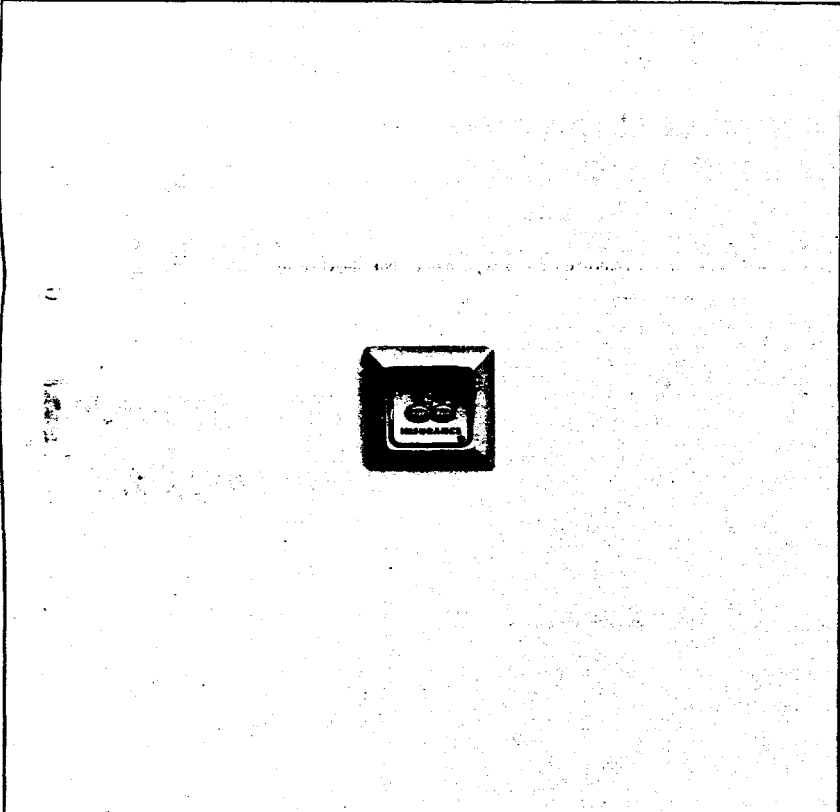

Working out as one of the movie's Reds, Little impressed Berry with his pitching.

After the filming ended, Berry told the staffs of the Chicago White Sox and the Royals Little was worth assessing.

Woolridge meets with counselor

NEW YORK (UPI) — New Jersey Nets forward Orlando Woolridge met Wednesday with counselors concerning his problem with cocaine and will enter a Southern California hospital to begin rehabilitation.

Woolridge left his New Jersey home and was to check into the ASAP program at Van Nuys, Calif., Community Hospital. He is suspended from play, with pay, until he completes an in-patient treatment that could take longer than a month to complete.

High school girls basketball tournament fires up today

CHAMPAIGN (UPI) — February Fever, also known as the girls state basketball tournament, will begin heating up today and continue at a torrid pace until Saturday.

Maine West, 32-0 in Class AA play, and Teutopolis, the class of Class A with a 29-0 record, head a stong pack of 16 teams going into the annual classic at the University of Illinois' Assembly Hall.

1985 Class A champ Teutopolis squares off against 25-7 Eureka in a quarterfinal match tonight while Maine West takes on 28-1 Mattoon Friday morning in the quarterfinal round.

Maine West, which lost a last-second heartbreaker to Massac County in the Class AA semifinals last year, has breezed through this year's tourney, most recently with a 82-56 drubbing of Evanston.

The team is led by the Kennelly sisters, senior Nancy and sophomore Moira. In the Evanston game, 5-foot-7 Nancy finished with 20 points and 12 rebounds. Moira led the winners with 21 points.

This will be Nancy Kennelly's fourth trip to the tournament, a factor that should be in her favor: "Every year it gets easier," she said.

Class A's Teutopolis has had a slightly harder time reaching the quarterfinal stage. Its last win came in a 50-47 nailbiter over Warrensburg-Latham. Connie Ruhoff, a 6-3 junior center, leads Teutopolis into the tournament, averaging 15.2 points and 7.8 rebounds a game.

If Teutopolis survives its encounter with Eureka, and Shiloh defeats Byron in the bracket's other quarterfinal game, the stage would be set for a grudge match between the two schools. Shiloh ousted Teutopolis in last year's super-sectionals.

Champaign firm gets Hawkeye TV rights

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — The University of Iowa announced Wednesday it has awarded Rasmussen Communication Management Co. of Champaign the television rights to Hawkeye basketball games and football and basketball coaches shows for the next five years.

University officials said RCM's bid of $6.5 million is believed to be the most money ever offered a university for its television rights and topped the bids of three competitors.

In addition to live basketball coverage, RCM also won the television rights for Iowa football replay programs and football and basketball coaches shows.

"Iowa basketball games receive very high television ratings which makes them very attractive to advertisers. I don't know of another school that has a more financially rewarding television agreement. We at RCM are extremely happy to be a part of it," RCM president Bill Rasmussen said.

RCM currently is under a one-year, $1 million contract to televise Hawkeye basketball games not telecast by the Big Ten or major commercial networks. The games are shown on seven stations in Iowa, two in Nebraska and one in Phoenix, Ariz.

The company also produces and syndicates games for the Big Ten Conference, Illinois, Purdue, Michigan and Michigan State.

"What we are (doing) is standing in the way of Southern's postseason play."

Eastern Illinois is familiar with getting in SIU-C's way. The Panthers became the first Gateway team to defeat the Salukis in more than two years with a 62-50 win on Dec. 30 in Charleston.

"Eastern is a different team than we are," Scott said. "They rely primarily on the outside shot and have a number of people who can fill it up from the perimeter. They have better quickness and run more."

The top outside player for Eastern Illinois is sophomore guard Barb Perkes, who was the 1987 Gateway Rookie of the Year and is scoring 15.0 points per game this season.

Last week Perkes had a career-high 31 points in the loss to Illinois State. She had 16 in the 60-59 win over Indiana State.

However, Hilke says Eastern Illinois is more than a one-player team.

"Perkes is not the only one who can score," Hilke said. "A team that tries to key on just her would get hurt. We are a lot more balanced than that."

Coach Dorr considers California job

By Greg Huber
Staff Writer

Head football coach Ray Dorr should know today if he will become an assistant football coach at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles.

A final decision is expected today on who will be chosen, Tim Tessalone, USC Sports Information Director, said Wednesday.

Dorr said Wednesday night that he visited USC a little more than a week ago in regards to a position with the Trojans.

"I'm a candidate for the position and I'm going to try to make a decision tomorrow (today)."

—Coach Ray Dorr

"I'm a candidate for the position and I'm going to try to make a decision tomorrow (today)," Dorr said. He said he would talk to the team at its 6 a.m. workout.

Acting Athletics Director Charlotte West could not be reached for comment Wednesday night.

The position opened when former wide receiver coach Ron Turner left to join the staff at Texas A&M University. USC football coach Larry Smith was unavailable for comment Wednesday. Tessalone said Smith is attending a football clinic on the East Coast.

However, Tessalone said he was expecting a call from Smith, either late Wednesday or early today, announcing a final decision on who would be chosen for the job.

Dorr said he was discussing the matter with his family and could not give a definite answer on the matter as it was up to USC officials.

"I like it right here. I'm employed by Southern Illinois University," Dorr said. "... it's like playing a doggone football game and I'm going to try and be as realistic as I can about my situation right here."

Dorr signed as SIU-C's 13th head football coach Jan. 6, 1984. The 1987 football season ended with a 3-8 record.

In 1986, the Salukis finished with a 7-4 record.

Winter Olympics

Debi Thomas skates into 2nd

CALGARY, Alberta (UPI) — American Debi Thomas slept away her bad nerves after a sub-par first figure Wednesday and returned refreshed to pull into second place in the compulsory segment of the women's Olympic figure skating competition.

Thomas trailed Soviet Kira Ivanova, but led her chief rival Katarina Witt of East Germany, who finished third in the compulsories.

The competition resumes tonight.

Nykanen gets 3rd gold medal

CALGARY, Alberta (UPI) — Matti Nykanen became the first triple gold medalist of the Winter Olympics Wednesday, leading Finland to a first place finish in the team 90-meter ski jumping competition and establishing his claim as the greatest ski jumper in history.

Nykanen, who earlier won the 70 and 90-meter individual competitions, posted jumps of 377 feet-4 inches and 375-7 to help give his team 634.4 points. Yugoslavia won the silver medal with 625.5 points and Norway had 596.1.

Salukis defeat Indiana State

By Dave Miller
Staff Writer

Play it again, Salukis.

For the second time this season, the men's basketball team defeated Indiana State in overtime. This time the score was 90-87 in Terre Haute.

The win vaulted the Salukis into fourth place in the Valley with an 11-14 overall record and a 5-7 mark in the conference.

Sycamore guard Ron Cheatham hit a three-pointer with four seconds left to tie the game at 83 and send the game into overtime.

SIU-C is 3-1 in overtime games this season.

Jan. 16	Indiana State	W	82-72, ot
Jan. 23	Missouri State	L	102-96, ot
Jan. 30	Drake	W	99-98, 3ot
Feb. 24	Indiana State	W	90-87, ot

Saluki guard Steve Middleton opened the scoring in the extra period and gave the Salukis the lead to stay at 85-83.

Sterling Mahan's basket extended the lead by four. Sycamore forward Eddie Bird answered with two free throws. Mahan hit a free throw to give the Salukis an 88-85 lead. Bird came back with a bucket to bring the Sycamores within one.

With nine seconds left, Nurnberger made two free throws to give the Salukis a 90-87 lead. A last-second attempt by ISU's Jimmie Holliday missed.

The Sycamores dropped to 7-19 and 3-10. Holliday scored 20 first-half points to give the Sycamores a 44-38 halftime lead.

In the second half, ISU jumped out to an eight-point lead. The Salukis then scored 10 straight points, including eight from Nurnberger, to take a 68-68 lead at 6:40.

Middleton led the Salukis with 25 points. Nurnberger scored 23 and Randy House had 14. Rick Shipley finished with nine.

Scott, team look for way to win

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

The frenzy of the conference race will conclude tonight as the women's basketball team takes on Eastern Illinois at 7:35 at the Arena.

Both teams have something on the line.

Eastern Illinois (13-4 overall and 18-7 in the Gateway) can secure a home-court advantage for the first round of the conference tournament with a victory.

SIU-C (12-5, 16-9) can squeeze into the four-team affair with a win.

"It's hard for me to believe our season has come down to this," Coach Cindy Scott said.

"I expected so much more from this year's team. We've found a lot of ways to lose this year. I hope we can find a way to win Thursday."

While the Salukis' hope rests almost entirely on this game

(any loss by Drake in its final two games also would put SIU-C in the tournament), Eastern Illinois coach Barbara Hilke is not putting any pressure on her team.

"Sure, we'd love to host that game," Hilke said, "but we've already faced the type of schedule that has drained us emotionally. We are just treating this as another game."

Sciano gets Gateway honor

Saluki freshman Danielle Sciano was named the Gateway Conference Athlete of the Week in indoor track.

Sciano set a school record in the 600-meter dash with a time of 1 minute, 35.47 seconds to win the event. She was the only Saluki to capture a victory in the 26-team Illinois Invitational last weekend.

Women swimmers out to qualify for NCAAs

The women's swim team will try to qualify for the NCAAs and the U.S. Junior and Senior National championships when it competes in the Midwest Independent Championships today through Saturday in Chicago.

"We need to qualify as many individuals and relay teams as we can for the NCAAs and the Junior and Senior Nationals," Coach Doug Ingram said.

The NCAA Championships will be

March 17-19 in Austin, Texas. The U.S. Senior Championships will be March 22-26 in Orlando, Fla., and the Junior Championships are set for March 29-April 2 in Grand Rapids, N.D.

Since points are doubled for relays in the NCAAs, Ingram said the team would like to qualify all of the relay teams.

"It's a pretty fast pool in Chicago, so that should help us some," Ingram said.

Last year, the 200- and 400-medley and the 200-freestyle relay teams qualified for the NCAAs. The 200 team finished 11th, 400 finished 15th and the 200 freestyle team came in 10th.

Senior co-captain Lori Rea and senior diver Celia Gales already have qualified for the NCAAs. Rea has qualified in the 100 butterfly, while Gales has qualified on the 1-meter springboard.

Senior co-captain Karen McIntyre qualified in two events last year, finishing 11th in the 100 butterfly and 14th in the 200 butterfly.

The team finished 18th at last year's NCAAs with 52 points.
