Third Annual Education Conference To Meet

The third annual education conference begins Thursday morning July 9, at 9 o'clock and ends Friday noon, July 10. The conference is sponsored jointly by the American Association of School Administrators, the Illinois Extension Services, and the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The conference, to be held in the University school auditorium, will run simultaneously with an exhibition by national textbook publishers in the University school gymnasium. Approximately 100 exhibitors are expected to participate, and school administrators, education, guidance, and health departments, the University Extension Services, and the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Road Barricades Are First Step In Two-Fold Goal

The black on Thompson St. from Chauquaqua st., to Harvard ave., has been closed as the first step in a two-fold program, according to John Lonergan of the Architectural Services. The aims of the long-range program are to remove automobile traffic from inside the University and to unify the northeastern corner of the campus, containing the old group of buildings, with the present regions of expansion in and around the Thompson Woods area.

It realized, the plan would seal traffic flowing around and not through the campus, resulting in less dangerous conditions. The grounds as those existing. University officials said. There are 500 cars and 3,500 people here," Mr. Lonergan said. "We've decided that the cars should give way to the people."

Book Search Has Humor, Tragedy

The daily routine of a librarian is never dull, and every day brings its own varieties of experience. In the letters printed below, what started out to be a routine order for a book turned into a correspondence enjoying both humor and tragedy. It is published here for its human interest and as an example of the behind-the-scenes effort that is sometimes necessary to secure library books needed for the students and faculty at Southern.

Dec. 20, 1949
Miss Cornelia L. Beach
Purchasing Agent
Southern Illinois University
Carbondale, Ill.

Dear Cornelia L. Beach:
I wonder if you realize how funny a situation had developed in my office. I had ordered a copy of "The Complete Book of Scansion," mislabeled by its publishers "Poets and Songwriters' Guide," and I had just received it. I had intended to give it to the English department, but I had just received a letter from Miss Beach indicating that she had ordered a copy of the same book. I had intended to give it to the English department, but I had just received a letter from Miss Beach indicating that she had ordered a copy of the same book.

But I am an author, not a bookstore or publisher. For the convenience of my post contacts and pupils, I often have a few copies of my books on hand. I have here at my winter address eight copies of "The Complete Book of Scansion." I have a few others at Bozenkill. The publisher is, in effect, out of print right now and it is worth my while in plainness of heart to have a copy, far more than individuals; but NOT through your silly red tape, putting a burden of typing seven copies of anything on me! You people are paid by the state; well, turn in and earn your pay there. I am not a department of the Pentagon.

I will not "Ship Prepaid and Add to Invoice" a darned thing, YOU will, or will have, the seven invoice vouchers prepared and sent me with check for $3.50 plus 50 cents packing postage. I will not charge—checked and certified check you will wait till the check clears the bank. I enclose to you the seven blanks—white, pink, goldenrod, blue, canary, buff, green, and would also have mine in white and insurance bills. Snap out of it. If, as a favor, you wish a copy of this valuable book, pay for it and relieve me of the annoyance of your red tape.

Cordially yours,
Clement Wood.

To: Dr. Muller
From: Cornelia L. Beach,
Purchasing Agent.

The author of the book listed on the attached invoice is no doubt a very clever man, but as you will see by the attached correspondence, he refuses to ship this book until he receives a check for it. Will you, therefore, please approve and return immediately this invoice-voucher so that it can be processed for payment.

Bozenkill School of Creative Writing
Cloria Goddard and Clement Wood,
Directors

My dear Cornelia L. Beach:
We think you're to a darling. I return the signed white invoice voucher and will gladly send "The Complete Book of Scansion," guaranteed and insured on receipt of remittance. If you also wish a birth certificate from me, including a baby photo, I'll do you.

Jan. 15, 1951
Mrs. Gloria Wood
Williamsburg, Va.

I appreciated very much your kind letter of Jan. 15. I was saddened to be reminded of your tragic loss. It was only a short while before that one of the library staff members had seen the announcement in the Wilson Library Bulletin of the tragic death of your husband, Our Order Librarian who knew I had been corresponding with him, called it to my attention. I think all of us here have a soft spot in our hearts for Mr. Wood, although we had never seen him. It all goes back

Dec. 8, 1950
Mr. Clement Wood
Bozenkill
Delanson, N. Y.

My dear Mr. Wood:
I have your order of Jan. 9, 1950, addressed to Miss Cornelia L. Beach, University Purchasing Agent. In this letter you indicated to Miss Beach that you were enclosing our invoice-voucher, properly signed, as an authorization for preparing the copy of your "The Complete Book of Scansion." Miss Beach had attempted to purchase this book from you earlier on behalf of the University Libraries.

Our records show that the State Department of Finance approved on Jan. 23, 1950, on voucher No. 3767, a check covering payment of this book. The library has never received the book. The University Storehouse, which receives all parcels post and other shipments addressed to the University and which forwards all books not specifically marked for other departments to the library, reports that it has not received this book.

If you have not already sent the book, I would appreciate your shipping it, addressed to me, as soon as possible, as promised in your letter of Jan. 9 to Miss Beach. If you already sent the book, I would appreciate your taking steps to find out what happened to the shipment. According to your letter of Jan. 9, you indicated that you would send the book insured; if it was lost in shipment, the loss, will, therefore, be recoverable.

Cordially yours,
Harry Dewey,
Assistant Director of Libraries

Registered—Return receipt requested
Mr. Clement Wood
Bozenkill
Delanson, N. Y.

My dear Mr. Wood:
I have not received a reply to my letter of Dec. 8, and I am wondering if it could have been lost in the Christmas rush, or whether it was possibly slipped your mind. As we are very anxious to clear our records in connection with this book, I would appreciate an early reply.

If you did not receive my letter, please let me know, and I will send you a copy.

Cordially yours,
Harry Dewey.

Williamsburg, Va.
Jan. 15, 1951
My dear Mr. Dewey:

Clement Wood died suddenly Oct. 27. What magic fact may explain why you have not received an answer to your letter. I do not recall any former letter from you, but I have not been handling all the correspondence. Your letter of Dec. 27 leaves me in a bit of a quandary. Are you writing about it? If so, I will certainly do all I can to clear up whatever has gone awry.

Sincerely,
Cloria G. Wood (Mrs. Clement Wood)

Jan. 15, 1951
Mrs. Gloria Wood
Williamsburg, Va.

I appreciated very much your kind letter of Jan. 15. I was saddened to be reminded of your tragic loss. It was only a short while before that one of the library staff members had seen the announcement in the Wilson Library Bulletin of the tragic death of your husband, Our Order Librarian who knew I had been corresponding with him, called it to my attention. I think all of us here have a soft spot in our hearts for Mr. Wood, although we had never seen him. It all goes back to a series of delightful and charming letters he wrote us last year in mild and humorous protest against some red tape we had imposed upon him in trying to acquire one of his books. His correspondence at that time was like a fresh breeze in our daily routine, and we passed it around to the office here. One of his letters was even published in the school paper. With all this to remember, it is easy to see how we were so true to your loss.

The letter I had written to Mr. Wood on Dec. 8 was intended to be only a gentle reminder that we had never received the book for which he required payment in advance. This valuable addition to the library was acquired only after a great deal of trouble, misfortune, laughs, and tears.

concerning your late husband's "The Complete Book of Scansion" or as Mr. Wood put it "mislabeled by its publishers 'Poets and Songwriters' Guide.'" In view of the unfortunate circumstances with which you have been faced, we would be quite willing to forget the entire matter. However, it occurs to me that if any copies of Mr. Wood's book should be on hand you might wish to make this book available to us.

The English department of the University has expressed a great interest in making it available to its students in that department. It is with the thought that, by sending this book to us, you would enable the work for which Mr. Wood would be carried on to that I have decided to leave it up to you whether you wish to make a sale or not.

Sincerely yours,
Harry Dewey

Williamsburg, Va.
Jan. 22, 1951
My dear Mr. Dewey:

Now I remember the entire correspondence. Clement told me all about it and the various letters to me. As I recall, there seemed to be dozens of beautifully tinted slips to be filled out. Clement found it highly amusing. He always hated red tape and routine, and so he pressed you about it. Would it be all right if I sent you a copy of the school paper in which his letter was published?

The book was sent to you, I assure you. However, I cannot check this until I return home. But that is beside the point. Certainly I shall send the book. It is one of the most important books Clement ever wrote, and he would want you to have it. I want you to have it. I cannot send it until after the first of April, when I shall be home at Bozenkill. It will be the first thing I do when I reach there.

I am grateful for your patience and sorry that your original letter was mislabeled. In the meantime, your correspondence that, for a time, seemed like a tidal wave. I am sorry, too, that you must put up with a further delay. But you will get the book as soon as it is possible for me to send it.

Sincerely,
Cloria G. Wood

Feb. 10, 1951
My dear Mrs. Wood:

It is very kind of you to insist on sending us Mr. Wood's book. I hope you will not be in any hurry about it as I know how often we are overwhelmed with correspondence you must be.

I called the editor of our school paper and asked him for a copy of the paper in which Mr. Wood's letter was published. I registered and emphasized the fact that I wanted to send you a complete issue, and I was dismayed to receive in the mail the next day only a clipping. I think the complete issue would have been of much more interest to you. I am sorry I could not obtain it for you. For your information, the name of the paper is The Egyptian, and the clipping is from the issue of Jan. 19, 1950.

I am enclosing a carbon copy of the original which you and your husband and also a justifiable refused to fill out. I regret to say that our invoices now have to be filled out in only six copies instead of seven required a year ago. I am sure Mr. Wood's letter was of some influence in causing this simplification.

Cordially yours,
Harry Dewey.

My dear Mrs. Wood:
I wonder if you recall our correspondence of about two years ago

HARRY DEWEY, assistant director of Southern Illinois University Libraries for technical services, and Kent Moore, chief of cataloging division of the library, examine "The Complete Book of Scansion," by Clement Wood. This valuable addition to the library was acquired only after a great deal of trouble, misfortune, laughs, and tears.

June 4, 1953
My dear Mr. Wood:
"The Complete Book of Scansion" has arrived and I am deeply indebted to you for sending it. I had not realized, of course, that you would have to choose among copies for all of which you had strong sentimental attachment. We are especially grateful to receive Mr. Wood's own care of it, not only for that reason, but because of its scarcity and also for its own intrinsic value.

I feel that it will thank many of our students in the years to come, and that it will serve the very important purpose for which you sent it to us.

Cordially yours,
Harry Dewey

Delanson, N. Y.
Bozenkill
May 12, 1953
My dear Mr. Dewey:

I was horrified to receive your letter. It certainly did slip my mind, but that is a feeble excuse. I did not return home until April and by then had completely forgotten about your order. "The Complete Book of Scansion" is out of print, unfortunately, because it is a splendid work and should be available.

I looked over the entire place and finally found three copies. At least, I knew where they were. I brought a third. I should not part with one of them and for several days have been debating the matter. I finally decided to let you have the one that is being sent. It is Clement's own copy. One is my own autographed one, which I cannot part with; the second is Clement's desk copy, with his notations in it, and I cannot part with that. The one I am sending is, therefore the least valuable, yet I hate to let it go. It has Clement's signature, which gives it added value. However, I feel sure he would rather have you have it, where it can be useful, than have it stay on the bookshelves here.

Please forgive this long delay.

Sincerely,
Cloria G. Wood

Stone Forts Described By Peithman

Nine "stone forts," traditional name of unique prehistoric ruins of stone walls found in Southern Illinois, are described in an article by Irvin Peithman, Southern Illinois University Museum curator of archaeology, in the current journal of the Illinois State Archaeological Society. Peithman is a secretary-treasurer of the society.

Remains of such stone walls have been found at Giant City State Park, Stonefort in Saline county, Draper's Bluff in Johnson county, Indian Kitchen and War Bluff in Pope county, The Pounds in Gallatin county, Cornish Bluff and Trigg Stone Fort in Johnson county, and Thomas Stone Fort near Cobden in Union county.

Theories of the reason for the building of the walls are based on work from protective stockades and ritualistic sites for ancient tribes to ponds where Indians slaughtered buffalo. Wall construction and location seems to support the theory that they were used as game traps for deer and elk.

Shrine Circus Is Coming to SIU

The annual Southern Illinois Shrine Circus sponsored by Atand Temple and Shrine clubs of Southern Illinois will be presented at the DeAndrew stadium July 10-14.

Featured in the acts this year will be the Wallenda Troupe, from the Hall of Fame of the International Circus Fraternity, who perform as aerial acrobats; the "Big Cat" Miss Riehl, also an aerialist, performs on a 135-foot high swinging steel mast.

Professor George J. Keller, with his wild animal presentation, enters completely untried the cage filled with the "Big Cat" tribe. Karis and Inga Peterson's Jockey dogs, eighteen dogs of assorted breeds, will ride horse jockey fashion and do a variety of tricks.

Other animal acts are the Palmiro stallions, Siamese elephants, Hawthorne's Bears, and Captain Joe Lemki's Club of chimps.

General admission is $1.25 for adults, with one dollar ticket admitting two children under 12 years of age. Reserve tickets are available. Starting time will be 6:30 p. m.

Massachusetts professor in the art department is a former student of Ralph Wickizer and is in charge of organization of the summer workshops. Topics to be included are special lectures during the third workshop are materials for children's art, tools for children's art, equipping the art room, and materials and techniques in metal, pottery, weaving, painting and sculpture.

The first art workshop, concluded June 26, concerned clay and metal projects. Miss Katherine Chev head of Ceramics at Sophie Newcomb college, Tulane university, New Orleans, was in charge of pottery. Fred Lauritzen formerly of the University of Wisconsin and now on Southern's staff demonstrated jewelry and metals.

Various activities have been planned throughout the summer for the students enrolled in art workshops. The educational and entertaining events include movies, expeditions to pick up materials for the workshop, opportunities to observe specimens in the foothills of the Ozarks, picnics at Little Grassy lake and Giant City, and a dinner and swimming party at Crab Orchard lake.

Hold Two Workshops In Elementary Science

The first of two elementary science workshops being held by Southern Illinois University this summer was concluded June 26. Sessions and audience students are eligible to enroll for the second session to be conducted from July 27 through Aug. 7.

An evaluation of the two weeks work highlighted the final meeting of SIU's first experimental workshop designed primarily for elementary science teachers.

Dr. Chalper Gross of the University School's science department opened the workshop, June 16, with a discussion concerning the "Needs for a Physical Science Background for an Elementary School Teacher." Following was a discussion of the types of physical science experiments needed by the elementary school pupil.

The afternoon session continued with the general orientation address "The Place of Science in a Child's Elementary School Curriculum" by Dr. Clyde Brown of the University School's science department, who is co-ordinator of the workshop. Donald King of the audio-visual aids department opened the second day of the workshop with an explanation of the use of audio-visual aids and their relation to teaching. A bird field trip, under the leadership of Miss Hilda Stein of the zoology department, was made to Giant City State park the same afternoon.

A demonstration of the construction of simple apparatus and devices to use in the elementary school was presented by John Gunderson of the industrial education department and John Plummer of the University School's industrial arts department.

Other features of the workshop included: a discussion about birds and the use of bird materials in the elementary class room; an introduction to earth sciences; a demonstration in physical science that may be used in elementary school teaching; an introduction to stream and plant ecology; and a discussion of general problems in teaching elementary science.

The development of Southern Illinois from pioneer days was reviewed by Mr. John Allen of the University museum. Mr. Irvin Peithman also of the University museum presented an illustrated talk on Indian cultures and excavations. Conservation of wildlife and use of wildlife materials in the elementary school program was discussed by Dr. Willard Klimstra of the zoology department.

Dr. Stanley Harris conducted a geology field trip which provided an opportunity to see the varied geological factors of the area near Carbondale. Dr. John Veigt of the botany department, assisted by Leon Minckler of the forestry service, directed a botany field trip to Giant City. Dr. William Lewis, the leader of a zoology field trip to Poplar creek and the rearing ponds for fish. The purpose of the trip was to study the aquatic life of the streams and ponds of the Southern Illinois area.

Arrangements may be made to enroll in the second session by contacting the registrar, and graduate deans office, or Dr. Brown.

SIU Students Get In The Swim At Crab Orchard

When the mercury soars above 90 perhaps the most craved students on the campus are those enrolled in one of the four swimming courses offered by the physical education department. Beginning swimming and intermediate swimming for women meet Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday of each week and are instructed by Miss Jean Stehr of the women's physical education department. "Advanced swimming for men are conducted Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of each week and are under the supervision of Lynn Holder, assistant professor in the men's physical education department. Free recreational swimming is open for university students. Buses leave from the Anthony Hall parking lot Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, at 2:50 p.m. for Crab Orchard lake, where the various swimming activities are held. "Life saving and water safety," a co-educational class, will be held the week of July 6. How to teach lifesaving and water safety will be under the supervision of a representative from the Red Cross. To qualify for the course "A student must be 18 years old or older and a strong swimmer," according to Dr. Dorothy Davies of the women's physical education department.

New Cafeteria Serves VTI Students at Noon

E. J. Simon, director, Southern Illinois University Vocational-Technical Institute, has announced the opening of a cafeteria for Institute day school students and faculty at the Institute's Soperham acres campus 10 miles east of Carbondale.

Opening of the cafeteria marks the realization of another goal in developing the VTI campus in the former Illinois Ordnance plant administrative area now under lease to Southern Illinois University for housing and educational purposes.

The cafeteria occupies a building formerly used for that purpose by the Ordnance plant and more recently utilized as a recreation building by SIU students living in the Southern Acres housing area. Newly decorated, renovated, and equipped the facility will handle 200 persons, accommodating the Insular auxiliary enterprises, says the president.

Paul Isbell, SIU supervisor of auxiliary enterprises, says that present equipment installations are such that larger units to increase the cafeteria capacity may be placed as needed without difficulty.

Summer service is being limited to noon lunches, but with the opening of the fall school term the cafeteria will go on a three-meals-a-day basis. During the past nine months the VTI day school has been transporting its students to the Sangamo Electric company cafeteria in the Ordnance plant industrial area.

"Through the cooperation of the Sangamo Electric firm we were able to solve a difficult feeding problem for students in our day school during its first three terms, and we are making local arrangements," State FHA officials, headed by George Reuss, Champagne, outlined the agency's program for the coming year. Russell Tallinger, Eltingham, Area 3 supervisor, presided at daily sessions in the Studio Theatre, University school.

Other activities were loans of the SIU Experimental Farms and four Judson county farms Tuesday afternoon; the annual dinner held at Giant City State Park, Moore, Murphysboro. Supervisor Judge Tuesday evening; and a picnic at Crab Orchard lake Wednesday evening.

County Personnel For FHA Meet

Farmers Home Administration county supervisors and other personnel from Area Three, comprising 34 Southern Illinois counties, met at Southern Illinois University June 23-25, according to Willard Moore, Murphysboro. Supervisor Judge Tuesday evening; and a picnic at Crab Orchard lake Wednesday evening.

YOU and the UNIVERSITY

(Editor's Note: Under this heading, official announcements from administrative offices of the University with regard to registration, probation, and other routine student relations will be published. S.I.U. officials desire that each student assume responsibility for inferring himself on all notices which may appear here.)

The Registrar's Office asks each student to become familiar with the following information:

(1) Concerning Grades: A student receives credit for a course only if he is registered for it. Attending a course without registering for it will not entitle a student to credit in the course. Also, failure to withdraw officially when desiring to drop a course will result in a W-E grade. This applies also to a complete withdrawal from school. If you desire to change your course program after registering, please see your academic adviser to complete a Program Change. If you withdraw from school, do it officially by contacting the Office of Student Affairs.

(2) Concerning Graduation: If you expect to graduate this August, you should make application for graduation at the Registrar's Office early in the summer session. In no case will such application be accepted later than three weeks before the commencement date. This means applications must be in by July 17.

(3) Concerning Veterans: If you are attending under P. L. 346, you must complete a re-entrance into training form. If you have not already done so, please report to the Registrar's Office.

If you are attending for the first time under P. L. 550, you must submit an approval for training form to complete such a form. If you have not already done so, please report to the Registrar's Office.

If you are attending under state military scholarship, the Registrar's Office must have a copy of your discharge. If you have not already submitted a copy, please do so immediately.

Robert A. McGrath, Acting Registrar

All juniors and seniors in the College of Education who did not do the full-time work during the regular school year should see their academic advisers sometime before Aug. 1. This does not include those seniors who will graduate in August this year.

The Academic Advisement Center is located in the Office of Student Affairs building on Harwood Ave. Please see the secretary in the Advisement Center or Call EX. 331 for an appointment.

Dr. Oeur Contributes Data To Handbook

Dr. Maurice Oeur, associate professor of microbiology at Southern Illinois University, has been invited by the American Institute of Biological Sciences to contribute to the "Handbook of Biological Data." The Institute, associated with the National Research Council, asked Oeur to prepare certain tabular data on the physical and chemical properties of nucleic acids, nucleotides, and nucleosides.

Oeur also has been invited to participate in the fourth annual summer conference at the Brookhaven National Laboratory at Upton, Long Island, Aug. 3-5. The conference will deal with abnormal and pathological plant growth.
