Council Faces Equal Representation Question

By Bill Markle
I want to see this question of equal representation in the Student Council settled once and for all before we leave office May 15, said Clyde Reynolds, student council president. Thereupon the Council once more discussed the problem with many proposals offered but no one system of representation agreed upon.

Reynolds is in favor of keeping the present method intact except for adding an "ex-officio" body made up of one representative to the Council from each of the five main living groups (Men's Residence Halls, Women's Residence Halls, married university housing, Greek housing, and off-campus housing).

Other Comments
Julius Johnson, junior council member, said the council was faced with the alternative of "either rejecting proposals and initiating a new one or putting all proposed methods before the students and letting them decide."

Marvin Michels, junior council member, suggested a procedure for presenting the issue to the students.

"The Council could narrow the proposals down to the best three or four, and then each member would submit the proposals to the living groups for them to choose the best one."

All proposals will be reviewed at next Thursday's meeting. Those surviving the sifting-out process will be mailed out later to the living groups. They will then return the lists indicating the method of their choice.

Political Parties
The Council discussed a recommendation to the Board of Trustees asking them to drop their 1950 ruling barring political parties from organizing on campus.

Jerry Dams, senior council member, said most universities allow this type of organization to form on campus.

"The situation here," Dams remarked, "is just the opposite of what it is at the University of Illinois. There they have political organizations, but no politicians can speak on campus."

Politics Goad
The members felt campus political organizations were good because most students do not know very little about national affairs. It was also mentioned that at the present time many students are interested in the coming primaries.

The Council will vote on the recommendation at the next meeting. During this week members were urged to talk to the students about it.

Voting Booths
Dr. Elizabeth Greenleaf, supervisor of student activities, and the members of a Student Council Board meeting in her office Thursday that more than one voting booth be used for the May 15 election. Her plan was to install booths in the living quarters to facilitate voting and indicate questions of whether activity fees should be raised to provide funds for the new Student Union.

To reduce ballot confusion the council proposed to have two places on the referendum for paying holes, one for the candidate the other for the activity fee increase.

The members agreed to detain a conference with Dr. Greenleaf about the voting booths until requests received from the living groups concerning a method of representation.

Office Closed
The Council spoke of discontinuing office hours in the Student Union office during the coming week. Requests to anyone about the form would then be made by appointment. By leaving the person's name on the bulletin board in the Student Union, contact could be made.

Jerry Dams, chairman of the upper class committee, said the Council for the Spring Leadership Camp would like to have charges credited to its own account. Up to now all the expenses were referred to the Student Council.

Two Petitions
Two petitions for student organizations were voted on and passed — the Hardin County Students Club open to students living in Hardin County, and a Chapter of the Dolphin Honorary

High School Seniors To Learn 'To Work Way Through College'

High school seniors who slim pockets have dimmed hopes of a college education will have a chance to find out about working their way through college this week end.

The first in a series of three conferences sponsored by the Student Employment Service and the Office of Student Affairs will get underway Thursday afternoon, and will last through Saturday.

Dr. Clarence W. Stephenson, supervisor of the student work program, said that invitations were sent out to 120 seniors who had been recommended by their high school principals. About 90 of this group are expected to attend one of the three sessions.

Requirements for invitation, in addition to the principals' recommendations, were: scholastic rank in the upper 10 per cent of their class, a lack of financial resources to attend college, and a willingness to accept part-time work.

Stephens said the schedule for the meetings will include tests, campus tours and conferences with advisers on employment, scholarships and loans.

"We want to introduce those students to the overall financial assistance program available at Southern," Stephens said. "In addition to student employment, there are scholarships, prizes, grants - in - aid, private agency awards and student loan funds."

Other meetings will be held the weekends of April 12-14 and April 26-28.

Dr. Willis Moore To Attend Political Conference June 11

Problems facing modern-day political democracy in the United States will be discussed at a Conference on Democratic Theory that Dr. Willis Moore, chairman of the philosophy department, will attend June 11-19 at Buck Hill Falls, Pa.

Three distinguished political scientists will present two papers each day over a three-day period. They are Dr. Dwight Waldo, University of California; Dr. Leo Strauss, University of Chicago; and Dr. Felix Morley, former president of Harvard College.

This paper will be followed by a discussion by the 30 faculty members on the first count of the ballots.

The other candidates in the contest were Jean Williams, Ruth Reedy, Pat Griffin, and Betty Booth.

Attending the steak dinner besides the candidates and judges were the house council and the resident fellows.

Acting as judges were Jerry Hess, Bill Horning, Julian Dinty, and Handley Prou representing the men living at Southern Acres attending VTL. Representing the students living at Southern Acres and attending school on main campus were Donny Telford, Dick Lutz, Nick McNally, and Ed Bryan.

2-Year Art Course Offered At VTI

A two-year course in commercial art is now being offered by the SIU Vocational - Technical Institute, similar to that offered by vocational schools, according to Richard H. Morton, commercial art instructor at VTI.

The course leads to a degree of Associate in Technology and is designed to prepare the student in the use of the fundamentals of art in the various commercial fields. Students may specialize in one or two of these fields, according to Morton, who has worked in various fields of commercial art.

The student may pick his field of special interest from one of the following: advertising layout and production, advertising and store illustration, fashion illustration and lettering and design. He may concentrate in one of two of these fields in his second year of the course.

"Although the student spends most of his time in studio work," said Morton, "he will take some courses in other departments to give him a broader educational background."

"There are no vocational art schools near here," he added, "and there is a good market for the commercial artist in St. Louis, Chicago, and Kansas City. We will train the students for jobs that actually exist."

"There are no employment opportunities available to the trained commercial artist, according to Morton, are: advertising agencies, department stores, television studios, manufacturers, publishers, sign companies and display shops."

Proposal

The dilemma of equal representation on the Student Council is still with us.

The past editors expended a great deal of time and effort trying to prod the Council into action on the question. I'm not entirely in agreement with some of their methods, but, apparently they were somewhat effective, judging by the latest overtures on the part of the Council.

I'm referring to the suggested plan for submitting the proposals which have been made in connection with the question to the student body for approval.

This may be only a token gesture on the Student Council's part, but at least it's an action.

However, I would like to suggest another plan. The plan under consideration by the Council is to present all the proposals. Why not take all the suggested systems and the present one, analyze the problems of each, pick the best parts of each one and integrate them into one, trying for the best possible results. Then, submit that plan to the student body.

It may not be the perfect idea, but perhaps it may be a step in the right direction — gene crier

Rah! Rah! Southern

Jerry Lucas, junior from Kan-lakee, was chosen as chairman of the Southern Spirit Council Thursday by the Student Council. This is a new position which was created by the Council because it was felt there was a lack of spirit (the Rah-Rah type) on campus.

The functioning of the Spirit Council will involve many problems but the major one will be to obtain cooperation from the students in backing Southern to the hilt. The Council will undoubtedly deal primarily with athletic backing, but students, no matter how apathetic, should be proud of their school, which is one of the latest growing universities in the country.

SIU is building, not only physically, but reputation-wise. We students, should be the banners for the school everytime we get a chance. One place to start is on the athletic fields.

The more a student puts into his school, the more he gets out of it. I'm proud of Southern — I hope you are too.

When the Council does begin functioning, we hope it has great success, because good school spirit makes a good reputation for the school.

Now you have heard the propaganda, and you will undoubtedly hear it again. Doesn't it move you — make you want to stand up and give a big "RAH!" for Southern? No, it probably doesn't, but it it makes you think about just how much you have been lacking SIU and you see you could do more, it has served its purpose.

Good-bye, Jerry. j. thatch

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by Dick Bibler

"I SEE I'VE LECTURED PAST THE BELL AGAIN..."

Plans Underway For Crippled Children's Summer Camp

Some 70 to 80 handicapped children will get the benefit of a summer camp because of Southern's program for crippled children.

Jointly sponsored by SIU, the Southern Illinois Society for Crippled Children and the University of Illinois Division of Service for Crippled Children, the six-week camp will begin July 1 and end Aug. 13. The program will be under the direction of Dr. William H. Freeberg, head of recreation and outdoor education, and Dr. Isaac P. Brackett, professor of the CCC barracks at Giant City State Park and will swim in Little Grassy Lake. Prior to July 1, a two-week training program will be given for some 25-30 counselors which will be composed mostly of students from campus.

The remaining handicapped children will spend two weeks with just the recreational program and will be taught swimming and archery. When their two weeks are up, they will be dismissed and the same number of similar-handicapped children will take their places. These children will be paraplegic, amputee and accident cases.

Dr. Donald Woodson, chairman; Dr. Rowell Merrick, associate professor; and Robert Blackhurst, instructor, were delegates from the Department of Health Education.

SIU students at the five-day convention included Sandra Stein, Katherine Feirach, Lois Harris, Marsha Hearn, Sherry Nelson, Joyce Weber and Janet Orlum.

The objective of the program is the professional advancement in all areas of education which includes health, physical and recreation, according to Dr. Lura Lee, assistant professor of women's physical education.

"Around 3,500 persons from all over the United States have been present at the meeting," Dr. Evans said. "There is at least one representative from each state in the union."

'Psychologists' Procedure Similar To Biologists, Physicists'—Tyler

"Psychologists proceed with their system building in essentially the same ways as biologists and physicists proceed with the development of their respective fields," said Dr. Forrest B. Tyler in a lecture Thursday night in Woodbury Hall Formal Lounge.

Dr. Tyler, assistant professor of psychology, spoke on "Psychology, Science and Nature." His lecture was the last in a series of four University lectures.

"That is not to say," Dr. Tyler said, "that biologists and physicists have all the answers."

"But, by pointing out such similarities, I hope to impress on you a conception of the nature of psychology as a science," he stated.

Science Defined
In defining science, Dr. Tyler stated that it is a study which scientists use to explain natural activities in which scientists engage as observation, experimentation, data analysis, and enterprises such as definition of terms and construction of explanatory systems.

The subject matter of science is human experiences or human observations, not reality, according to Dr. Tyler. On this point there is a great deal of agreement among scientists, he said.

"All events are derived from experience; they are not reality, reality is unknowable," he stated. "The psychologist has climbed into the boat with the physical scientist and the biological scientist."

Approach
Although scientists approach their tasks in quite similar ways, Tyler stated, the problem of public observation seems relatively uncomplicated for the physical and biological scientists.

"The psychologist's task in this respect is complicated in several ways," he said. "First of all, he is saddled with the historical fact that he is supposed to study 'mind' and there by to sort of a glorified mind-reader and delve into the deepest private recesses of people's thoughts."

Subject Matter
"Secondly, his task is complicated by the complexity of his subject matter, human behavior."

"To order his observations the scientist must look for relationships among the phenomena he has studied," Dr. Tyler said, and he may do this by means of his descriptive terms.

"Descriptive terms refer directly to observations and are defined in terms of the operations whereby they are measured," he stated.

So Close, Yet So Far Grad Student, Wife No Match For Weather

So close, yet so far away—That is the story of the spring vacation an SIU student and his wife, Alvin and Shirley Cohen, who are a graduate student in rehabilitation counseling and Shirley is a clerk-typist at the Personnel Office.

The Cohens, who came to SIU from Dorchester, Mass., last September, had not been home since their arrival here. They did not go home during Christmas vacation because they were afraid the weather would be too bad for driving. So Al and Shirley, their dog, and a friend, Bill Hawkins, a graduate student who was going to ride as far as Pittsburgh, Pa., set out joyfully for the "far east" Thursday night, March 15.

Petite, friendly Shirley, who has short black hair and a warm smile that crinkles her brown eyes, told the story of their disappointing trip.

"I had an exam scheduled for Friday, but it was cancelled, so we decided to leave Thursday night and surprise everyone at home by getting there before we were expected," she said wistfully. "We expected to arrive in Pittsburgh around noon on Friday. When we left, it was already raining here, and when we reached Indiana, it started snowing. We could hardly see, but we kept driving until we discovered we had been driving for a great distance on the wrong side of the road."

"We pulled off the side of the road until it cleared up. Friday morning at 8 o'clock, we came to a curve in Ross, Ohio, where the cars were stuck across the road, and we couldn't get by, so we spent the day at a motel nearby."

"Thinking that the roads were in better condition at 5 p. m., The Cohens and troupe continued their journey. They drove 30 m. p. h. until 5 o'clock Saturday morning.

"We were then 15 miles out of Pittsburgh," Shirley said. "Three hours later, we were still 15 miles out of Pittsburgh. There were several large trailer trucks jackknifed across the road. We finally got to IRC Meeting Thursday morning, and spent all day and night there."

New P. E. Course For Swimming Pool Operators Offered
A course designed to meet the needs of managers and operators of swimming pools and water fronts in the Southern Illinois area has been approved for the spring quarter by the curriculum committee.

Dr. William Heuser, SIU swimming coach and assistant professor of physical education, will conduct the course "Administration of Aquatics." Classes will be taught on Tuesday evenings from 7-9 p. m. in the men's gymnasium.

The course will concentrate on pool maintenance, aquatic programs, facilities and equipment, standards for construction, financial problems, and qualifications and training of personnel.

Ammon To Speak At IRC Meeting Thursday
Dr. Harry Ammon, assistant professor of history, will give his observations on Austria, where he was a Fulbright lecturer in 1954-55, at a public meeting of the International Relations Club at 7 p. m. Thursday in the University School Studio Theater.

Ammon lectured at the University of Vienna on American history and traveled to Italy, Germany and Spain. Austria was still under Russian and Western Occupation while Ammon was in Vienna. He returned to SIU last fall.

Salukis Trounce Wesleyan 10-3; Edged By Arkansas State 4-3

Collecting only nine hits, but blasting three home runs, the SIU baseball team opened its regular season Friday with a 10-3 victory over Illinois Wesleyan.

Wayne Williams led the Salukis with two home runs, while Catcher John Orlando blasted the other. Both teams went down the first inning without a run, and each scored one in the second.

Wesleyan scored two in the third with the aid of two walks from Saluki pitcher Ron Ayers, but Southern went ahead in the same inning with three markers out, and Roger Wells followed with a strike out. Then Orlando boomed his home run in right-center field. After Norby walked, Williams then pounded the ball far over the left fielder's head for the second homer of the game. Richard Sasek then hit a double, but was stranded.

SIU picked up two more in the fifth when Dalluge, Wesleyan pitcher, walked Orlando, Williams, and Vogel, and hit Roger Bryan in the hip. Vogel then hit a fly to deep center to drive in the other run.

The Salukis scored another run in the sixth when the Wesleyan shortstop committed two straight errors, and Norby Vogel trapped out a single to score Roger Wells.

The Southern diamonds scored their last three runs in the eighth. After Tabacchi flied out, Wells walked and Orlando fouled out. Vogel drew a walk, then Williams smashed his second homer of the game.

Pitcher Ron Ayers got into some trouble in the second and third innings, but pitched shutout ball the last six. Ayers got the win, while Dalluge absorbed the loss.

Southern's next home game is with Wheaton April 9.

Saluki pitcher Ron Ayers bends and stretches while delivering a pitch in the Illinois Wesleyan game. Ayers allowed six hits and three runs, while

The SIU baseball team traveled to Arkansas Saturday and absorbed their first defeat of the regular season from Arkansas State, 4-3, although out-hitting them 9-8.

Marvin Myers pitched 3 1/3 innings for the Salukis, and allowed four hits and three runs. He walked three and struck out three. Don Gibbs buried 4 2/3 innings, and gave up four hits and only one run. He walked one and struck out one. Bauman, the Arkansas State pitcher, allowed nine hits.

Southern rallied for one run in the ninth inning to go ahead, 3-2, but Arkansas State came back with two in the last half of the inning to give them the victory.

"I've just got too many freshmen on the club," said Coach Abe Martin. "They're making a lot of small mistakes that they wouldn't make if they had more experience."

The Salukis are in an unusual position at the present. With the exception of the Illinois Wesleyan game which Southern won, 10-3, all the games Southern has played have been won by the team collecting the least amount of hits. They collected one more than Arkansas State Saturday.

Golfers Take Bradley For First Victory

The cold early spring morning didn't stop Southern's golfers from showing good golf Saturday as they defeated Bradley University, 1219-212. It was Southern's first victory of the year.

It was a sweet victory for Emma Holder's crew because Bradley won last year, 1915-43. Led by Captain Andy Barnett, Southern completely turned the tables as only one Bradley golfer took any points. It was Barnett who was the individual standout in the match. Shooting a very good 73, Jan Hartman would probably have taken three points from any man on Southern's team but his opponent was Barnett. Barnett shot a brilliant 69 for three, under par and

New Era Dairy Beats Collegians in Basketball

The New Era Dairy independent basketball team downed a group of SIU cagers 76-67 Thursday night in a game played for the benefit of the Carbondale Junior Baseball League.

The New Era team, which is composed of former Saluki basketball players, built up a 13-point first quarter lead, 27-14, and then coasted the rest of the way. Although the SIU team had the height advantage, the other boys caught up soon as their main weapon, and outran the collegians all night.

At halftime, Southern pulled to within eight points, but New Era, behind Tom Millikin, led by 22 at the end of the third period. Millikin was high for the game with 23 points.

The Dairymen hit 30 out of 78 shots from the field for 38 per cent, while Southern hit only 20 out of 84 for 24 per cent.

Gus Doss was the leading scorer for Southern with four field goals and 13 free tosses.
