Advisement Timetable Announced by Center

Procedure Ready for Advance Registration

Procedures for making appointments for advisement for advance registration for either the summer or fall quarters have been prepared by the Academic Advisement Center.

Appointments will be made starting Thursday in the Olympic Room of the University Center, according to Jack W. Graham, coordinator.

The schedule follows:
Seniors, juniors and sophomores in colleges or schools: Thursday, 8 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 4:30 p.m.

General Studies students who have passed at least 75 hours by the end of the quarter, have selected a major, have a "C" average, and plan to transfer to a college or school prior to the time of appointment: Thursday, 10:30 to 11:30 a.m., and 1 to 4:30 p.m.

General Studies students with last names beginning with A through K: Friday, 8 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 4:30 p.m.

General Studies students with last names beginning with L through Z: Monday, April 6, from 8 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 1:30 p.m. The remainder of the afternoon until 4:30 will be reserved for students in any class who missed the earlier appointments.

The desk for making appointments will be closed from April 7 to April 25, but it will be reopened Monday, April 27, and continue until May 29. Appointments for all academic units will be made in the Advisement Center, Building T-65, during this period.

Students on scholastic probation may advance-register for either the summer or fall quarters. A student must present his ID card when making appointment. He must know if he is in General Studies or a college or school, his major, and the name of his adviser.

A student may make an appointment for one additional student, if the second ID card is also presented.

Probation students planning to attend the summer quarter must wait until summer to advance-register for the fall quarter, according to the announcement.

A schedule has also been prepared for students qualified for self advisement. The hours are 8:15 to 11:45 a.m. Tuesday through Friday at the Advisement Center.

These students have been asked to report according to the first letter of their last names, as follows:

A-C: April 16 or 24.

D-G: April 17 or 28.

H-L: April 21 or 29.

M-R: April 22 or 30.

S-Z: April 23 or May 1.

In addition, the period May 2-29 has been set aside for self advisement for any student, from 8:15 to 11:45 a.m.

Wilson Fellowship Test Set April 25

Students who will be seniors next year and who wish to apply for Woodrow Wilson fellowships should take the Graduate Record Examination this spring, according to David T. Kenney, assistant dean of the Graduate School.

The exam will be given next April 25, and applications for that exam must be received by the Testing Service by April 10.

According to Kenney, taking the examination the following fall often means that the results are not available in time for use in fellowship competition.

Botany Program Set for Thursday

William S. Lacey, lecturer in botany at the University College of North Wales, Bangor, and currently visiting professor of botany at SIU, will speak at a public meeting sponsored by the SIU Sigma Xi Society Thursday evening.

Lacey will present an illustrated talk on "The Study of Fossil Plants; Men and Methods." The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the Studio Theatre of University School, according to Dewey Amos, SIU geologist and Sigma Xi program chairman. The organization is made up of scientists.

Lacey, a native of Leicester, England, holds two bachelor's degrees, a diploma in education and a doctorate in paleobotany from the University of Reading, England. He has been on the College of North Wales faculty since 1949. He was visiting lecturer in botany at the University College of Rhodesia and Nyasaland, Africa, in 1958.

He has travelled widely in Africa, Western Europe, Canada and the United States for study and lectures. His major research interest has been in the field of fossil botany.

'70s Are Topic Of Conference

"The 1970s and Things to Come" is the name of a conference to be held April 10 and 11 in the University Center.

The conference will present the technological developments that are expected to be realities within the next 15 to 20 years and the predicted impact that they will have on our society.

The anticipated developments will be presented by research personnel from the laboratories and development divisions of IBM, Eli Lilly and Company, United Airlines, RCA, American Telegraph and Telephone, and Chrysler Corporation.

SIU faculty members George Axtell, William Simon, Arthur Prell, Harold Cohen and a member of the Anthropology Department will predict the impact of these developments on society.

A third session will discuss what demands these developments will place on the educational requirements of professional persons in the 1970s.

Cochairmen David Davis and Ken Boden said, "This conference will be a valuable experience for the students because it is providing a glimpse into the future at a time when they are preparing for this future."

Registration cards for the conference may be obtained at the Information Desk in the University Center.

REACHING FOR PRESIDENT—Ron Centanni (right) and his "idea man," Jim Smithson, mount a giant poster in Lentz Hall for the coming Thompson Point election, to be held Monday. Centanni's opponents are Joe Beer and Larry McDonald.

Three Racing for President In Thompson Point Election

Two members of the executive council and a senator have entered the race for the presidency of Thompson Point council.

They are Joe Beer of Brown Hall and Larry McDonald, a sophomore residing in Abbott Hall, both members of the Thompson Point council, and Ron Centanni, a resident of Felts Hall and senator from Thompson Point to the Student Council.

Election will be held Monday for four offices—president, vice president, secretary and treasurer. Seven candidates are vying for the positions.

Official campaigning began this week and signs and posters have begun to appear in the residence halls and in Lentz Hall.

Howard Bode, an Abbott resident, is opposing Tom Gaby of Felts Hall for vice president. Bode is a member of the executive council, while Gaby serves as co-chairman of the social programming board.

Running unopposed for treasurer is Dave Brown, a resident of Brown Hall and former hall treasurer.

Bobbie Sturm, a junior residing in Smith Hall and the only female candidate, is the lone seeker for the position of secretary.

Present officers of the Thompson Point residence halls are Dave Trebilcock, president; Ron Kramme, vice president; and Nancy Seibert, secretary. Dick Harris recently resigned as treasurer when he moved off campus.

Residents also will be voting on proposed changes in the Thompson Point constitution,

Kerner to Speak on Dropout Plan

Gov. Otto Kerner will speak to SIU students Monday concerning the dropout problem and will introduce a plan for a tutoring program for high school and elementary schools to be conducted by college students.

Gov. Kerner will speak at 10 a.m. in Shryock Auditorium to all interested students, and again at a noon luncheon in the University Center ballroom to some 80 students who have been invited to represent the student body.

Faculty members and area lay people who are concerned with the program have also been invited to the luncheon.

Purpose of the visit is to better acquaint students with the current dropout problem and to initiate a program which would provide college students to voluntarily visit area schools on Saturdays. They would encourage school children to continue their education and to aid them with difficult courses.

Judy DeLap has been named chairman of the campus group to organize such a program.

Also appearing at the 10 o'clock meeting will be James T. Griffin, vice president of Sears, Roebuck and Co. and chairman of the Governor's Committee on Literacy and Learning; and R. J. Hiller, Midwest public relations man for Sears.

The Sears, Roebuck Foundation and SIU are co-sponsors for the governor's visit.

Ticket Sales Begin Friday For Pair of One-Act Plays

Tickets will go on sale Friday for "The Bald Soprano" and "The American Dream," two one-act plays to be presented by the Department of Theater.

Mail orders for the plays, which have replaced "The Birthday Party" on the schedule for presentations, are being accepted now. Holders of season tickets are urged to exchange their coupons now in order to get the seats of their choice.

The two plays represent examples of the current style of drama called "The Theater of the Absurd" which centers around the absurdity of human existence.

"The Bald Soprano" concentrates on the difficulty of human communication, the mystery of identity, and ridiculous social facades of politeness and etiquette.

Featured in "The Bald Soprano" will be Gerry Baughn as Mr. Smith, Joanna Hogan as Mrs. Smith; Mr. Martin, Victor Corder; Mrs. Martin, Mamona Nail; Mary, Eileen Fishman; and Randy Bunk as the fire chief.

"The American Dream" is a serious consideration of some of the more unattractive aspects of our American way of life with its emphasis on success, money and "the glossy exterior" which the individual shows the world.

This play, which is said to leave the audience shaken from its acceptance of the status quo, features Burton Dikelsky as daddy, Lynn Leonard as mommy, Barbara Burdorf as grandma, Helen Seitz as Mrs. Barker and Christopher Jones as the young man.

Curtain time is 8 p.m. for all performances.

SIU Men Attend Atlanta Meeting On Civil Rights

Four SIU students attended the annual conference of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee in Atlanta, last weekend in Atlanta, Ga. SNCC is a civil rights group.

The students, Richard Phillips, graduate assistant in the Sociology department, John Motley, Vincent Tranquilli, and Minnie Jean Brown, are members of the SNCC affiliate on campus.

The conference theme, "Freedom Now," centered around the planning of voter registration and other civil rights projects.

John Lewis, the chairman of SNCC was re-elected by the Coordinating Committee for his second term.

In a speech to delegates from most regions of the country, Lewis said that Negroes are willing to give their lives to destroy the power structure in the South, which stifles human endeavor. He said "This summer's demonstrations will be on a much greater scale than they were last summer."

Students also participated in workshops on civil rights movements.

The Freedom Singers, a folk-singing group of SNCC provided entertainment. A surprise visit from Chad Mitchell of the Chad Mitchell Trio, gave the singers an extra voice.

SNCC has four field secretaries working in the South who are former SIU students, including John O'Neal, who coordinates the freedom schools in Mississippi; Edward Hamlett, an organizer of white students on segregated campuses; Chico Neblett, working in Texas; and Charles "Chuck" Neblett, a member of the Freedom Singers.

BLIND TEACH THE BLIND - William Hickerson (left), Galesburg, a sightless student who recently completed a six-months' training program in operating small businesses, gives student trainee Gerald Myers, SIU junior from Blandinsville, instruction on operating an electronic sandwich oven by touch. Hickerson is temporarily filling in for regular instructor Robert O'Shaughnessy at VTI's Student Center snackbar where the training is given.

At VTI Student Center

Blind Students Use Snackbar To Learn Business Operation

A student center snackbar at SIU's VTI is the training ground for teaching two blind students to operate a small business.

The program is a cooperative effort of Southern's Small Business Institute, the Illinois Division of Vocational Rehabilitation and a Chicago organization, Business Opportunities for the Blind.

Present trainees are Gerald Myers, an SIU junior student from Blandinsville, and Richard Nelson of Peoria, a former student at Bradley University. Myers is starting the second half of a six months' on-the-job training period at the VTI student center. Nelson is just beginning the program.

Student trainees learn to restock merchandise on the snackbar, to use an electronic oven for cooking prepared frozen sandwiches, to use a special cash register with braille keys, and to perform other business operations.

The snackbar operates partly on a self-service basis and the business transactions with the blind trainees depend much on an honor system as customers pay for purchases. Sightless Robert O'Shaughnessy is the Illinois Division of Vocational Rehabilitation instructor for the training program. His first trainee to complete the program in December, William Hickerson of Galesburg, currently is the temporary training operator while O'Shaughnessy is recuperating from surgery. Hickerson plans to take a small business position in northern Illinois soon.

Other Students Fined

Ticketed Driver Sees Red, Police Give More of Same

Donald Ventelulo, of Carbondale has a flock of tickets because, according to Carbondale police, he lost his temper after receiving a parking ticket.

The police placed a ticket on Ventelulo's automobile because it was in a no-parking zone. According to authorities, the SIU student became angry, sped out of the Illinois Central Railroad parking lot, made an illegal left turn onto Main Street and went through a red light at South Illinois Avenue.

Police stopped him on the other side of the intersection and issued summonses for various infractions.

Other incidents involving SIU students were:

Michael McDivit, of Chicago was arrested Monday for driving 45 miles per hour in a 30 m.p.h. zone and for driving while intoxicated. His driving license was held as bond and McDivit was ordered to report to the office of the clerk of the circuit court by April 13.

Brian Maloney of New York was fined $50 plus $5 costs in Magistrate Court for shoplifting. He was charged with stealing a steak from a grocery store.

William Gordon of Maywood was fined $50 plus $5 costs in Magistrate Court for shoplifting. He was charged with stealing a pint of liquor from a package store.

James Arnold, 20, of Joliet was fined $50 plus $5 costs in Magistrate Court for shoplifting. He was charged with taking a fifth of whiskey from a package store.

While there he will confer with Mark Keller, center staff member and editor of the Quarterly Journal of Studies on Alcohol, regarding a three-year study of literature in the field of alcoholism which Snyder is making under a $55,613 research grant from the U.S. Public Health Service.

Snyder received his Ph.D. degree from Yale University, and was a staff member of the famed alcohol studies center there before it was moved to Rutgers, the state university of New Jersey. He joined the SIU faculty in 1960.

Associated Press News Roundup

Quake Death Toll Is 178 Or More

ANCHORAGE, Alaska--Shattered Alaska counted more dead Tuesday and reports from backwater villages indicated there may be still many more victims of the great earthquake.

The toll of dead and presumed dead mounted to 178 in a tally released by Alaska Civil Defense. Officials noted some of the deaths could not be confirmed.

The picturesque island of Kodiak, southwest of Anchorage in the Gulf of Alaska, appeared to be the state's hardest hit area. The report showed 72 or more dead or presumed dead as a result of Friday evening's quake and tidal waves.

Omitted from the Civil Defense list was the community of Chenega on Prince William Sound. Reports from Fairbanks indicated half the town's population of 45 may have been lost in a desperate race for higher ground against an 80-foot tidal wave.

The new casualty figures were up 74 from the last

Civil Defense report issued Monday. Nearly all the new dead were from Kodiak--which listed only seven victims Monday.

The list seemed to confirm the belief that scores of fishermen and seaside residents had died in waves that smashed the south-central coast. A number of isolated areas--mainly on the Alaskan peninsula or in the Aleutian Islands--were described "situation unknown."

An airlift was under way from the Seattle, Wash., area carrying emergency supplies to stricken cities.

Fifteen Air Force Globemasters were scheduled to arrive in Anchorage before the day was out with cargoes ranging from diapers to electrical equipment.

Commercial airline service was fully restored to Anchorage, a major air center. The Alaskan Highway was reported in fair condition. Port facilities were generally unusable.

VATICAN CITY--Packing of Michelangelo's Pieta for shipment to the New York World's Fair was delayed again today.

A final checkover by insurance agents apparently caused the delay.

Packing of the Pieta had been scheduled to start Monday, but the day after Easter is a holiday in Italy.

Cambodia Withdraws Threat To Seek Ties With Peking

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia--Prince Norodom Sihanouk has dropped his threat to seek closer ties with Peking despite failure so far in his campaign to obtain a Geneva conference to guarantee Cambodia's neutrality and frontiers.

A statement published Tuesday by the government news agency said Cambodia for the present will not take any countermeasures.

"While waiting for the meeting of the Geneva conference, which Cambodia has not renounced," it said, "the Cambodian government will devote its efforts to problems of immediate interest, notably economic, as well as as those concerning cooperation with France in several fields."

Sihanouk had threatened to swing to Red China if the United States and Britain

WE-ALL WOULD RATHER FIGHT THAN SWITCH

Khrushchev Goes to Budapest To Map Red Bloc Strategy

BUDAPEST, Hungary--Soviet Premier Khrushchev arrived Tuesday and opened strategy talks with his Hungarian allies to strengthen his hand in the struggle with Communist China for leadership of world communism.

The Soviet leader's visit is expected to be largely devoted to laying the groundwork for a summit meeting in Moscow next month of Communist leaders.

Khrushchev and his host Premier Janos Kadar, touched indirectly on the dispute in an exchange of greetings on the arrival of the Soviet delegation at Budapest's railway station.

Stressing the theme of Communist unity--Moscow's main argument against the Chinese--Khrushchev said his talks "will consolidate and strengthen socialism. We are convinced that our exchange of views will be most interesting and useful."

Kadar called the visit "a further contribution to the progress and unity of the socialist movement."

In Hungary, the Soviet leader is among friends. The Kadar regime's policy of liberalization, which brought a considerable raise in living standards, stands in sharp contrast to the Chinese thesis of Communist evolution through force.

Soviet Delegation in London Seeking Pact for More Trade

LONDON -- A five-man Soviet mission arrived Tuesday from Moscow to arrange a new five-year trade pact agreement and long-term credit with the British government.

The negotiations will be watched with more than academic interest in Washington, which opposes long-term credits for the Soviet Union. The talks probably will result in greatly expanded trade. A volume of $434 million in 1963 represented about 55 per cent of Britain's total trade with Soviet bloc nations.

An agreement between London and Moscow expiring in June set targets for the exchange of something under $14 million dollars worth of consumer goods a year, each way.

The Russians have said they want to increase this by 400 per cent in the next five years.

Rights Bill Foes Want More Debate

WASHINGTON--The leader of the Southern senators battling the civil rights bill served notice Tuesday they have no intention of letting the other side "call the tune" in the debate.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., said that Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., floor manager of the bill, "seems to feel he not only can call the tune but do all the dancing."

Russell and other Southerners protested in the Senate that Humphrey, in making a lengthy speech Monday in support of the bill, had refused to yield to them for any questions or enter into a debate.

They also chided Humphrey and his side for saying they had agreed to let the Dixie forces take the floor instead of pushing ahead, as previously announced, with speeches laying down their case for the bill.

"If the advocates of the bill have broken down temporarily, I believe the record should show it," said Sen. Spessard L. Holland, D-Fla.

"We're ready to vote on the bill right now," Humphrey said. "We laid down the case for the bill yesterday," he added, noting he and Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., had made speeches explaining the measure section by section.

Humphrey and Kuchel are the leaders of the bipartisan coalition that has been organized in an effort to overcome the opposition of the Dixie forces.

Russell jibed that Humphrey had spoken for three or four hours without permitting any questions by opponents, and "wants to vote" now that he had made his speech.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., said proponents had headlined they were going to make their case to the people but now aren't ready.

LONDON--A Soviet mission seeking a new five-year trade agreement and long-term credit from Britain arrived Tuesday to begin negotiations.

Trade under an agreement expiring in June now amounts to almost $14 million worth of manufactured goods each way. The Soviets have said they want to quadruple it.

The British also are interested in boosting trade.

Faculty Studying SIU Bylaw Revision

4 Divisions Proposed By Iowan

Four administrative divisions for the operation of SIU are proposed in the revision of By-Laws and Statutes of the Board of Trustees, currently under study.

The four are academic affairs, business affairs, student services, and special services.

The accompanying table of organization illustrates the grouping of University functions within these four areas.

The draft of the revision is currently under study by faculty members, who were given 26 pages of the document prepared by Provost Harvey Davis of the State University of Iowa.

In this proposal the president of SIU is designated as the executive head of the internal operating organization of the University and is responsible for the administration of the academic, business, and service activities of SIU. He, and the officers and offices directly responsible to him, constitute the Central Administrative Organization.

The draft of Provost Davis's recommendation provides five key offices in the plan of four administrative divisions. They are:

1. The chief officer for academic affairs. His responsibility is the instructional, research and publications programs of SIU.

2. The chief officer for business affairs. His is the general executive and coordinating responsibility for the business operations and physical development of the University.

3. The chief officer for student services. His area of responsibility consists of all matters pertaining to students which do not fall under the jurisdiction of one of the other chief officers. This area includes registration, maintenance of student records, supervision of student activities, and student health.

4. The chief officer for special services. His responsibility includes such activities as publicity, extension service, and community services.

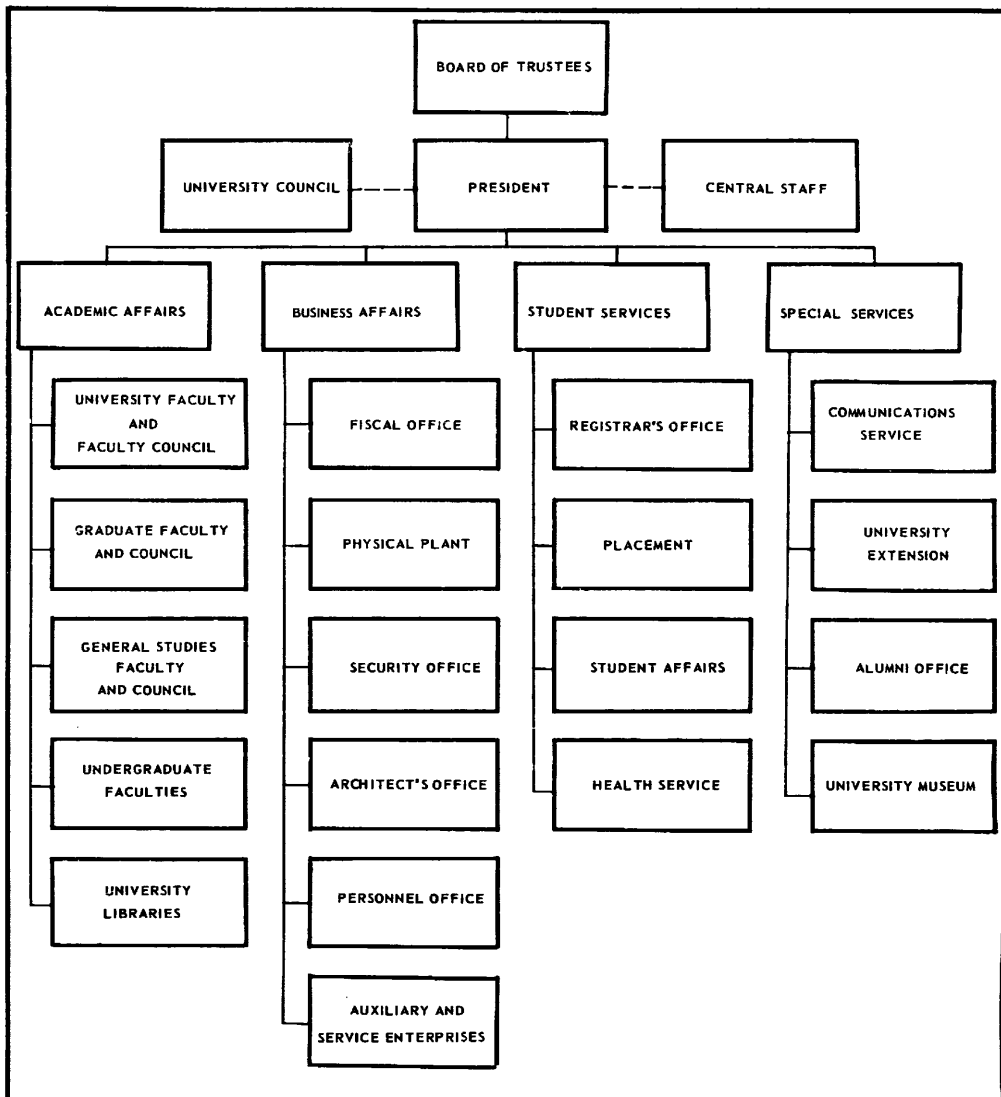

5. The legal counsel and assistant to the president. His responsibilities include advising the president in legal matters and providing legal counsel to students in their capacity as students and in matters in which SIU is not a party of interest.

The revision provides that each officer may be assigned additional responsibilities by the president.

The revision spells out the general area of responsibility of University functions shown in the accompanying chart.

An illustration of the change proposed is afforded by three functions established in the present by-laws. These are the Area Services Office, the Student Affairs Office, and the University Health Service. These now are designated as offices of the Central Administration, directly responsible to the president or his delegated representative.

In the proposed new table of organization, Health Service and Student Affairs are grouped in Student Services.

The broad division of Special Services will include Communications Service, University Extension, Alumni Office, and University Museum.

The revision makes provision for administration of various campus complexes in broad terms contained in three paragraphs, as follows:

"Because the University is operating on more than one campus and because the distance between campus complexes is considerable, efficient operation requires that University officials be available with reasonable frequency on the various campuses. Personnel of the President's Office will divide their time between campuses, some having homes near one campus complex and some near another. They will maintain offices on at least two of the major campus complexes and will have a major assistant in each such office.

"Some of the persons responsible to the chief officers, such as director of libraries, director of physical plant, and registrar, who have University-wide responsibilities, may have offices on one campus complex with first assistants having offices on another.

"The annual internal budget will set forth the assignments for the current year."

Members of the faculty have been invited to study the proposal and submit suggestions.

In addition, a series of faculty meetings is planned to permit faculty discussion. The Carbondale meetings are scheduled for April 7, 8 and 9, and the Edwardsville meetings for April 13 and 14.

Because the revision concerns not only the faculty, but other members of the University staff, other meetings will be scheduled to accommodate those who are not covered in the small group faculty meetings.

Deep Historical Roots Feed Rift Between China, Russia

Tsars, Mandarins, and Commissars. by Harry Schwartz. Philadelphia: New York: J.B. Lippincott Company, 1964. 248 pp. $5.

Last September in Mexico City I had the opportunity to ask some dozen or so Soviet philosophers what they considered the basic conflict between the Chinese Communists and themselves. All of them indicated that the major issue was that the Chinese Communists do not have firsthand experience with atomic testing and thus do not know of the dangers of atomic warfare.

This is a line which Harry Schwartz does not buy. In his new book subtitled, "A History of Chinese-Russian Relations," he maintains that the rift between China and Russia has deep historical roots and that commitment to Marxist ideology has little to do with the healing of these differences.

S. MORRIS EAMES

Schwartz traces in some detail the history of the Chinese-Russian relations from the earliest border clashes to the present; most of the pages of the book, however, are devoted to more recent history. Aside from the early border clashes, Schwartz shows that the Chinese attitude toward the Russians in the past is that the latter are thought of as barbarians, whose culture is far below the Chinese. He digs out rather insignificant instances, in some respects, to prove that the Chinese have tried to humiliate the Russians in the past, as in one case of letting an economic envoy from Russia wait a whole year before giving him a hearing.

Schwartz points out the ill feeling in recent times on the part of the Chinese concerning Russia's part in the Korean war. He thinks that nationalistic tendencies in each nation play a great part in the struggle for the role of world spokesman for the Marxist movement.

Sometimes "racism" gets into the picture. There are personal elements as well, and Schwartz says, "So long as both Khrushchev and Mao Tse-tung are alive, a genuine reconciliation seems unlikely." He thinks that too much bitterness has been built up between the two men.

The verbal attacks of the Soviets and Chinese Communists upon each other which began in the spring and summer of 1963 have all the world guessing as to what lies behind the rift and what will be the outcome. The problem is too complex for a simple analysis, and while Schwartz's book throws some light upon the context of the problem, I do not think that one can discount the fact that the Chinese Communists are becoming a threat to the world, including the Soviets.

Schwartz's book is worth reading; however, after reading it, one is left with the supposition that what is now happening between the Soviets and Chinese Communists is still a puzzle.

Mister Abbott is a glittering spectacle that reflects a hundred aspects of Broadway's growth and growing pains. People and places are brought to life with boundless imagination, and within the pattern of Abbott's career dozens of other people play out their lives.

His sharply written character sketches of such celebrities as Richard Rodgers, Oscar Hammerstein, Tallulah Bankhead, Leonard Bernstein, Nancy Walker, Paul Ford, Mary Martin, Ezio Pinza, Carol Burnett, Shirley MacLaine, Jerome Robbins, Rosalind Russell and many, many more tell his abundantly varied story with compelling gusto.

Mister Abbott is witty, urbane and bawdy, but always charming. It's an enormous canvas of people and places, painted in flamboyant color by a master of musical comedy.

Abbott Paints Memoirs On Flamboyant Canvas

Mister Abbott. by George Abbott. New York: Random House Inc., 276 pp. $4.95.

The imperturbable George Abbott has done it again and with his customary finesse. Instead of directing or producing a Broadway show, he has written a book in an evocative style that equals his theatrical sense of timing and perception of dramatic highlights.

Abbott's fast-running and often funny memoirs tell of his early boyhood in Salamanca, N.Y., and Cheyenne, Wyo., where he sold newspapers and as a Western Union messenger boy occasionally delivering buckets of beer to deplorable customers.

He comments on the problems in the theater when he started in 1913 as an actor in "The Misleading Lady," and tells of the frustrations he encountered in 1962 while directing his latest production "Never Too Late."

Artist's Tribulations

Wife Sends Doctor to Cure Poet of Creative 'Disease'

A Fine Madness. By Elliott Baker. New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1964. 319 pp. $4.95.

The tribulations of an artist in our frantic, affluent society are oftentimes horrible to contemplate.

But they also can be hilarious, when related by a storyteller of wit and verve.

Mr. Baker's hero is Samson Shillitoe, a middle-aged poet of tragic demeanor, a delightfully absurd character who just wants a little peace and quiet in order to write his poetry.

He is hounded, however, by his ex-wife's lawyer, by a persistent police detective from the Prostitution Patrol, and by the prim editor of a poetry magazine.

Samson's current spouse, Rhoda, a waitress in whom he has somehow instilled an artistic view of life, hires a reluctant psychiatrist to cure Samson's creative doldrums. Samson's troubles are thereby compounded, by the judicious Dr. Wren, his lovely, lonely wife Lydia, and the whole analytical, sagacious crowd on the Parapraxes Society's board of directors for Para Park, an inimitable mental institution.

Samson emerges from the maelstrom scarred, but hopelessly not badly, and returns to the refuge of his boyhood home town—Cob City, Ind.

This exceptional, jovial yet earnest novel is Baker's first published work.

She Couldn't Forget

Testimonial to a Great Lady Recounts Israel Development

Golda Meir. by Marie Syrkin. New York: G. P. Putnam. 320 pp. $4.95

The book, like its subject, is simple, direct, and to the point. Golda's personal life is dealt with fleetingly. Her story is Israel's story; they are one.

Aroused in her teens by the anti-Jewish excesses of World War I she threw herself into relief work. She made speeches. She was finally convinced the only way to stop these recurring excesses was "for the Jews to have a country in the world to which they could come without quotas, where they would command their destinies, where they would not cower behind planks, or be kicked by the horses of Cossacks. Zionism provided the answer." She had her cause and from then on she never wavered.

To the present day, except for the years on a kibbutz, and as a Tel Aviv housewife and mother, her fate has been Israel's fate.

From the instant of realization that house and hearth were not enough to still her restlessness, and her being absorbed by the Histadruth as secretary to the Woman's Labor Council, her political career was launched.

Appointment followed appointment up the ministerial ladder until Golda becomes Foreign Minister.

Once in America the anti-semitism and pogroms of Russia and Poland faded from the memories of countless immigrants. Not from Golda's. When Abdullah offered compromise, when partition was tendered after World War II, when those in Israel would have limited immigration until better able to absorb them, neither her memory or her vision faltered.

She pleaded her cause before the United Nations, and when Israel was compelled to fight she got unprecedented funds for arms, spurred on by the fresher reminder of 6,000,000 slaughtered Nazi victims. That must never happen again.

The author, Marie Syrkin, is a well-known writer and lecturer, currently a professor of humanities at Brandeis University. Her book is eloquent testimonial to a great lady but that alone would not keep the book alive and eagerly read; it is her clear cut picture of the development of a nation, compactly, accurately, excitingly told.

The last chapter deals with Golda "At Home"—still the same simple, dignified concerned person. Admirable though Golda is in this cross-role of diplomat-hostess-grandmother, unchanged because of her eminence, this is the weakest part of the book.

The young nation, providing housing, planting forests, seeking funds, assimilating Jews from 70 different nations, fortifying its borders against constant Arab attacks, harassed by the perfidious British, establishing itself as a nation among nations, with Golda having a decisive hand in it all—this is where the story moves excitingly, a testimonial to Golda, Israel, and its inspired leaders.

Timely Background Provided On House Malapportionment

Congressional Districting, the Issue of Equal Representation. by Andrew Hacker. Washington: The Brookings Institution, 132 pp.

On Feb. 17 the United States Supreme Court in a 6-to-2 decision remanded to the lower courts in Georgia the problem of overseeing the equalization of congressional district size in that state. The immense implications for many House members in most other states was immediately noted.

Prof. Hacker estimates that more than half of them represent districts which are oversize or undersize by 15 per cent, or more, and the number is growing every year. At this early date it is difficult to see if the state legislatures, the parties responsible for the present situation, will do anything about it without further prodding from the federal courts.

sional malapportionment. Many of the statistical tables were prepared by Hacker's students in his seminar on political behavior at Cornell University. These tables turn, document much of the cross-reference data on the characteristics of the inequitable districts.

A preliminary chapter also furnishes similar information on the state legislatures, the key to any redistricting, at least before the federal court decision.

It would seem that Andrew Hacker, often dubbed a scintillating, "Sunday Supplement" type of political scientist, might be confined by such a facts-and-figures book as this.

Despite this limitation a large measure of Hacker's liberal point of view comes through, especially in his contrasting the rural, urban, and suburban ways of life. Anyone wishing a quick, interesting background on this timely subject would enjoy his presentation.

His data lead to some revealing conclusions. For example, he proves (as everyone might expect) that the suburbs suffer most from congressional underrepresentation, with the entrenched city and rural interests looking after themselves. He also points out that a state can be neatly gerrymandered, as New York is, and still have nearly equal-sized districts.

After equality comes to the United States House of Representatives, Hacker, like the Congressional Quarterly before him, concludes from data that neither the Democrats nor Republicans would gain appreciably. Judging from what happened to some state legislatures after a similar federal-directed equalization two years ago, however, we would suspect that "clearing out of 'deadwood'" will create a much more progressive atmosphere than could be surmised by projected statistics alone.

Next Year Looks Bright Too

SIU Has Best Gymnastic Year: Undefeated, NCAA Champions

Bill Meade's gymnasts just completed the most successful season in the history of the sport here.

Not only did Meade's squad complete its fourth straight undefeated season, it accomplished what no other Southern athletic team has done in major college competition.

The gymnasts brought home the illusive NCAA crown after falling short for three years running. The Salukis did not settle for a backseat in this year's nationals and did what they were favored to do three times before.

Next year, the competition will probably be keener when SIU hosts the NCAA championship meet in the new 10,000 seat Arena. Despite the loss of Meade's all-around star and cocaptain, Rusty Mitchell, he could assemble an even tougher team to face the NCAA's new set-up dividing the nation into four regions.

Mitchell, who is considered by many as one of the best gymnasts in the country, will be lost due to graduation next year. Meade was quick to comment however, upon his team's arrival from LA, "I'll probably be the Big Ten against us."

Meade was confident that his charges would be the Midwest at large entry that will face the Big Ten champions in the Midwest regional next year.

Of course Meade has a right to be optimistic about next year as Mitchell is the only performer he'll lose from this year's championship squad. (Tom Geocaris is also expected.)

Saluki Golfers Score Victory

SIU's undefeated golf team scored its second victory of the season here Monday by defeating a weak Southeast Missouri State squad 14-1/2 to 1/2.

Coach Lynn Holder's Salukis swept all five individual matches to defeat the visiting Indians at Crab Orchard Golf Course.

The win marked the 52nd out of the last 54 matches Southern's golfers have won at home.

SIU was paced by senior stars Gene Carello and John Krueger, who both shot two over par 74's. Carello, a sharp-shooting veteran from West Frankfort, had little trouble defeating the Indian's Dan Hoog, who shot an 81 for the match. Saluki ace Krueger easily defeated Indian Bob McBride, who shot 83 for the 18 holes.

In other matches Monday, SIU's Jim Place shot a five over par 77 to defeat Ron Medley by seven strokes.

ed to graduate but he did not make the trip to the coast.)

The Salukis' only weak spot this year was the trampoline and Meade said that flaw would be corrected. He recruited two freshmen trampoline specialists who are considered to be of top caliber right now.

Frank Schmitz, one of Meade's trampoline recruits and the current AAU champ, shows great promise of becoming one of the best trampoline men in the country. A product of Lafayette, La., Schmitz is currently touring S. Africa wearing the colors of the United States.

Along with Schmitz on the trampoline next year will be Brent Williams, better known as "Miami" by his teammates.

Along with the two rookies, Meade's team will center around Chuck Ehrlich, second on rings in the NCAA, Steve Pasternak, second on the sidehorse; Bill and Dennis Wolf, two fine all-around performers; Bill Hladik, Ray Yano, Tom Cook and Ken Weigand.

A dynasty of gymnastic champions has been slowly developing at SIU. It may have finally arrived.

Baseball Squad to Look South For Warmer Diamond Results

After a frigid season's opener at home Saturday, SIU's baseball team travels south again this week in hopes of finding warmer weather while meeting Memphis State's Tigers in a double-header.

Coach Glenn (Abe) Martin's Salukis, who gained a 6-3 win over Illinois State University in their regular-season opener, will be making their second trip south Saturday when they head for Memphis.

The Salukis recently returned from a spring trip to Texas where they won three of nine games played against the University of Houston and Sam Houston State College.

Martin has not yet nominated his starting pitchers for Saturday's games but is likely to use Ed Walter, Mt. Carmel sophomore, in one game.

Walter, who established a new single-game strikeout record as a freshman when he fanned 19 St. Louis University batsmen, lost to Memphis State last season when the Salukis divided a twin bill with the Tigers.

The remainder of Southern's lineup, however, appears generally set with veterans occupying four positions and newcomers having already established themselves at two others. Only the left side of the infield where Bob Bernstein and Terry Lynn started Saturday is apt to undergo any changes.

Captain Mike Pratte will be behind the plate, Jim Long at first, Gib Synder at second, and John Siebel, Kent Collins and Al Peludat in the outfield.

Collins and Peludat are both in their first season at SIU. Collins collected four hits in the opener and Peludat has also shown well at the plate in early workouts.

Tryout Dates Set For Proscenium

Tryouts for Proscenium One will be held at 7:30 p.m. today at the theater, 409 South Illinois Ave.

No decision has been made as to which plays will be presented, but there are parts in a drama and a musical revue. Folk singers are also needed for a Hootenanny at the theater.

PRIDE AND JOY - The NCAA National Collegiate Championship trophy for gymnastics now is the pride and joy of SIU's athletic trophy display case. Steam Baths and Diet Keep Wrestling Champ in Trim

Terry Finn was sprawled on a mat in the center of the Quonset hut behind the men's gymnasium.

Around him wrestlers were rolling, twisting and grunting. Except that they were not locked in mortal combat, it could have been a scene of Roman gladiators.

Even though he appeared physically drained, he jumped up, beamed an ear-to-ear smile, and yelled, "Yes sir, what can I do for you?" when he heard his name called.

The 5-foot, 4-inch senior, who won state honors on Oak Lawn's wrestling team, says he had not originally planned to attend SIU.

"A friend of mine told me about the school and that it had an excellent wrestling team. I wrote Coach Wilkinson a letter and was asked to visit the school.....and here I am."

Terry, who weighs 130, says his wrestling weight is 123 pounds.

"To get down to my wrestling weight, I take steam baths and cut down on fattening foods before a meet," he explained.

When asked if these procedures hurt his stamina, he replied, "No, not really, just as long as you eat the right

Guides Olympians

Joe Brown, former SIU graduate student and assistant trainer under Bob Spackman, has been named as head trainer for the United States Olympic team.

Brown, who received his master's degree from Southern in 1962, is current head trainer at the University of Kentucky under basketball coach Adolph Rupp.

The Prairie City, Mo., native has departed for New York, where the final basketball tryouts for the Tokyo Olympics will be conducted April 2-4.

foods and get plenty of sleep."

Terry, who has also spent three years in the Air Force, wrestled for the Armed Forces team during his tenure. He has no particular superstitions concerning his sport, but laughingly admits that he knew of a coach in the service who insisted that his wrestlers put their shoes on a certain way, and lace them a certain way before competing in a meet.

When asked if he thought wrestling was a dangerous sport, he replied: "No, the rules are set up to require a maximum amount of safety when wrestling and the padded mats and protective headgear help minimize danger."

Terry, stiffening from the extended rest, stretched and said, "Well, if you don't mind, I'm going to go grab a good hot shower." He trotted across the building, his footsteps making a resounding echo against the now deserted floor of the hut.

Editor's Note: Since this interview was conducted, Finn won the NCAA collegiate wrestling title in his weight division at Ithaca, N.Y.
