Captain Cliff Manis and an unidentified fireman, both of Carbondale Fire Department's Engine Co. No. 2, hose down the side of a building just as it begins to collapse.

Fireman battle blaze in Carbondale

Engine companies from both Carbondale fire stations were called to the scene of a fire that destroyed two abandoned houses in the 300 block of East Oak Street Tuesday afternoon. Both structures, one a two-story brick house and the other a wood framed house, were on fire at the time the fire department units arrived, shortly after receiving the call at 4:59 p.m., said Assistant Fire Chief Floyd Nesbitt at the scene.

Nesbitt said firefighting efforts were hampered by weak water pressure in one of the hydrants on the block and by high winds, which threatened to spread the flames to the homes and grass. Nesbitt said he didn't think the flames spread to other homes or property.

Hinckley note implies motive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Department sources said Tuesday they have found written evidence that John Warnock Hinckley Jr., accused in the shooting of President Reagan a day earlier, may have wanted to "go out and do something to get himself killed."

Hinckley was given tranquilizers and held without bond at a Marine base in Virginia, awaiting psychiatric testing to determine if he is competent to stand trial on charges of attempting to assassinate the president and assault upon a federal officer.

The Justice Department sources, who declined identification, revealed that federal investigators found an unmailed letter written by the accused assailant in which he indicated "he might go out and do something to get himself killed."

The letter, the sources said, was addressed to 18-year-old movie actress Jodie Foster and reflected that Hinckley, the 25-year-old son of a wealthy Denver oilman, was in an "I don't care what happens to me" frame of mind.

Administration and congressional sources, who declined to be identified, said Hinckley's letter spelled out his plans in detail. They did not elaborate.

The youthful actress played a pre-teen prostitute in the movie "Taxi Driver" and made her stage debut last week in a student production at Yale, where she is a freshman.

In that play, a prison drama entitled "Getting Out," she plays a teen-aged prostitute who has murdered a taxi driver.

Earlier Tuesday, Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., said authorities established a motive in the attempted assassination, in which President Reagan, his press secretary and two law officers were shot.

However, Laxalt refused to divulge details, and there was no public word from other officials whether the discovery of the letter was linked to the suspected motive.

Hinckley, confined to a 6-by-10-foot private cell, was being watched around the clock by at least two U.S. marshals, said Bill Dempsey, a spokesman for the U.S. Marshal's Service.

Hinckley appeared subdued and unemotional throughout a 45-minute hearing at midnight Monday before federal magistrate Arthur Burnett.

An attempt on the life of a president is a federal crime carrying a maximum penalty of life imprisonment, and an assault on a Secret Service agent is punishable by up to 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine. Charges were yet to be filed in connection with the shootings of Press Secretary James Brady and a local police officer.

Ad hoc committee to study IAC duties

By Randy Roguski
Staff Writer

Plans for creation of an ad hoc committee to study the function and membership of the Intercollegiate Athletics Advisory Committee were unveiled by President Albert Somit Tuesday at an IAAC meeting in Anthony Hall.

Somit said the ad hoc committee will define the duties of the IAAC, identify the administrative area to which it should report, investigate the role of faculty representatives on the IAAC and determine the appropriate ratio of students to faculty on the IAAC.

Somit said IAAC members are among those who have called for the study. The role of the IAAC in the past, he said, has been "somewhat ambiguous."

IAAC Chairman William Klimstra said he hopes the study will result in "some clear-cut responsibility" for the committee in the future.

"An important aspect is deciding exactly what our role is," Klimstra said. "Someone must decide whether we are an advisory body, and if so, to whom we should give advice."

The IAAC currently reports to the Vice President for University Relations. Plans for the ad hoc study are part of Somit's scheme for long-range restructuring of the Intercollegiate Athletics Program, most of it based on December's recommendations from the blue ribbon commission on intercollegiate athletics.

Somit said study of the IAAC is necessary before implementation next fall of another commission recommendation—a student referendum.

IAAC members later resolved that the ad hoc committee should be composed of Klimstra, Men's Athletics Director Gale Sayers, Women's Athletics Director Charlotte West and representatives of "appropriate constituencies"—which committee members said might include alumni, student athletes or community citizens.

Klimstra said he hopes other members of the IAAC will also serve on the ad hoc committee. The IAAC resolution, passed 5-3 after Somit had left the meeting, recommends that members of the ad hoc committee hold a "positive attitude" toward the role of intercollegiate athletics at SIUC.

Somit will consider the IAAC resolution when he makes appointments to the ad hoc committee, expected within the next two weeks.

Opposed to the resolution were Debbie Brown, president of the Graduate Student Council; Harold Bardo, faculty member in guidance and educational psychology; and Betty Mitchell, faculty member in English.

Reagan rebounding; Brady may recover

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan rebounded Tuesday from gunshot surgery in "exceptionally good condition" and with a strong dose of humor as he signed a major economic bill and resumed command of the country.

Vice President George Bush said the chief executive was rosy-cheeked and looked robust as he took up presidential business from his hospital bed early in the morning. Bush, meanwhile, assumed the president's day-to-day White House schedule.

The 70-year-old president was described by doctors as being in "excellent spirits," fewer than 24 hours after an assailant's bullet was removed from his left lung.

The bullets fired outside the Washington Hilton Hotel on Monday at 1:25 p.m. CST also felled White House press secretary James Brady, a Secret Service agent and a District of Columbia police officer. Brady, shot in the forehead, was described by Dr. Dennis O'Leary as having suffered "fairly extensive damage" to the right side of the brain.

"We believe he is going to live, but we have no idea where he is going to end up," said

O'Leary, a George Washington University hospital official serving as a spokesman. Later in the day, Speakes said he was "very optimistic" about Brady.

White House Chief of Staff James Baker said that after Reagan was attacked Monday, Gerry Parr, the chief of the Secret Service's presidential protection detail, ordered Reagan's limousine to return the president to the White House. But on the way, the president complained of soreness of the ribcage and "he may have complained of difficulty in breathing," Baker said. The course was changed and the limousine headed for the hospital.

Baker said his deputy, Michael Deaver, called from the motorcade and told him the president had not been struck in the gunfire. Not until the president "collapsed" in the emergency room after walking in from his car, did aides realize Reagan was wounded, Baker said.

At the White House Tuesday, lunchtime crowds milled outside the black iron fence under sunny skies. Inside the gates, aides took pains to portray the government as functioning normally.

Bush directed a Cabinet meeting, met with congressional leaders, and greeted the visiting prime minister of the Netherlands, Andreas A.M. Van Agt.

White House communications were installed at the George Washington University Hospital, where Reagan was recuperating, seven blocks west of the White House.

Reagan appointments secretary David Fisher set up an office there, and deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said "there's not a lot of difference from him (Reagan) being in the Oval Office."

"We're fully prepared to take care of anything," Speakes said. "He's fully able to function as he would be anywhere in the world."

Chief of Staff James Baker said that shortly after the wounded president reached the hospital Monday, "full communications" were opened between the medical center, the White House situation room and the airplane carrying Bush back to Washington from a speaking trip to Texas.

Baker insisted the administration was prepared at all times "for any contingency that might arise."

Thailand generals overthrow year-old constitutional rule

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Thai army generals overthrew the year-old government of Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanonda in a pre-dawn coup Wednesday and established a Revolutionary Committee to rule the country. Radio Thailand announced.

The coup came one day after Thailand allowed Indonesian commandos to assault a hijacked Indonesian jetliner at the Bangkok airport and free 55 hostages, but there was no indication that was connected with Prem's ouster.

A radio announcement said the generals, considered pro-Western as was Prem, seized power "because of the deteriorating situation. Several political parties are undermining the stability of the government with an intention of taking over the country and changing it into a dictatorial state."

It reported that Gen. Sant Chitpalima, deputy commander-in-chief of the army, was the head of the Revolutionary Committee and that Prem had resigned as prime minister and commander-in-chief of the army. The constitution was abolished and the Cabinet and Parliament dissolved by the committee, which took over at 2 a.m., according to the broadcast made at 5 a.m.

Sant, 59, is a close personal friend of Prem. He was scheduled to assume Prem's duties as army commander last October when Prem became 60 years old, the mandatory retirement age for that post. Top military officers decided to give Prem one more year as army chief.

Bangkok appeared quiet and normal after the coup announcement, with sparse traffic and no sign of military movements.

The broadcast said, "The Revolutionary Committee, comprising members of the army, navy and air force, have taken over and have appointed Gen. Sere Narakorn, supreme commander of the armed forces, as an adviser to the committee."

Solidarity supports strike call-off

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — The Solidarity leadership voted Tuesday night to accept independent union chief Lech Walesa's decision to call off a general strike, despite dissatisfaction with the agreement Walesa worked out with the government.

Soviet-led land, sea and air military exercises were reported continuing in and around Poland, and Polish officials mounted urgent missions to the West for economic aid.

The vote agreeing to call off the strike was 25-4, but there were many abstentions among the membership of 55.

American Nazi leader resigns

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Harold A. Covington announced Tuesday he is resigning as head of the National Socialist Party of America and said members of the Nazi organization will go underground because of government harassment.

Covington, who has led the party since December 1979, said he will continue to act as a public spokesman for Nazi philosophies and will continue his public activities although he will have no official position with the party.

Covington said the new head of the national party will be Michael Allen of Chicago.

Nine drug ring members convicted

CHICAGO (AP) — Nine members of a million-dollar drug ring that operated on a West Side street corner were convicted Tuesday in Circuit Court, but a mistrial was declared in the case of an alleged leader of the ring.

After 4½ days of deliberation, an eight-man, four-woman jury returned guilty verdicts against the nine, but was unable to reach a verdict on charges against Harry "Mad Dog" Cannon, 38, who prosecutors said was in charge of the operation.

As a result of the mistrial, Cannon will have to stand trial again, prosecutors said.

Prisoner rights lawyers condemn treatment at Marion

By Scott Canon
Staff Writer

Prison administrators at Marion Federal Penitentiary play "mind games" on inmates there, according to two lawyers from the Marion Prisoners Rights Project.

Speaking to about 25 people in the Ohio Room of the Student Center Monday, Jim Roberts and Martha Easter-Wells accused the prison officials of abandoning rehabilitation practices and concentrating their efforts on coercing prisoners.

Prison administrators deny inmates of more privileges than necessary for security, Easter-Wells said.

"The things about Marion that makes it so insidious are the mind games they're playing with prisoners," she said. "The goal at Marion is to debilitate the prisoners—to break them."

Inmates are denied religious freedom, visits with outsiders, access to legal advice and other privileges by prison policies, she said.

Those policies prompted a 139-day work strike, Easter-Wells said. The work stoppage was halted when the administration removed some of the prison's industrial equipment and mothballing the rest.

When the prison ended the strike economic reasons were cited for removing the industries. Prison spokesman Rich Phillips said the federal prison system had a large investment in the industrial equipment.

Roberts said he believed the prison is not going to move the industries as it indicated.

"I've heard reports that prisoners are being transferred out of there so they can have a more stable population to work in the industries," Roberts said.

Phillips denied Roberts' charges.

Director resigns suddenly, early

By Randy Roguski
Staff Writer

The director of the Division of Human Development resigned suddenly Monday for reasons which have been called "quite ambiguous" by Samuel Goldman, dean of the College of Human Resources.

Elsa McMullen had planned to leave the University in June to head the Department of Home Economics at the State University of New York at Oneonta. Goldman said he received a letter from McMullen Monday which informed him that her resignation was effective immediately.

Contacted at home Monday, McMullen declined to comment about her resignation, saying she preferred not to "publicize a lot of personal details."

Goldman said he hopes to appoint a temporary replacement for McMullen this week.

Excessive ambition breeds disloyalty. Disloyalty breeds betrayal. Betrayal breeds murder and more murder, and ultimately, the destruction of the social order. This, in brief, is the theme of Throne of Blood, Akira Kurosawa's adaptation of Shakespeare's Macbeth. Set in feudal Japan, Throne of Blood chronicles the catastrophic results of a Samurai's violation of the ethical and moral code of the Bushi (warrior); the betrayal and murder of his daimyo (feudal lord).

Throne of Blood will be shown Wednesday evening, 1 April, in Davis Auditorium (First Floor, Wham). Curtain time is 7:30 PM (running time approx. 1 hr., 45 min.) Admission is $1.00 ($210).

Whatever her motives, Byrne deserves credit

WHETHER HER MOTIVES ARE political or humanitarian in nature, or a combination of both, it is hard to argue with Jane Byrne's recent decision to move in part-time at the crime-plagued Cabrini-Green housing project.

For those who condemn Byrne for making what they see as a blatantly political move—to win over the black vote for the 1983 mayoral primary—consider the fact that the crime rate at the high rise housing project on the Near North side has dropped by over one-third since Byrne made her announcement in March.

Lives are being saved there. In the past five years, more than 100 people have run rampant at Cabrini-Green in recent months, 12 people have been murdered and over 300 wounded since Jan. 1, alone. In fact, Byrne announced her decision to move the same day she saw a 16-year-old girl who had been raped at the project.

BYRNE IS TAKING STEPS which will help bring about a real improvement in peoples' lives, something which ought not to be shrugged off. She has announced that 800 tenants, who are believed to be illegally harboring prison pariahs active in gang violence, will be evicted (the complex houses 14,000 residents). Police patrols have been stepped up. Floor-by-floor weapons searches have been started. City services, always notoriously poor at Cabrini-Green, have miraculously improved since Byrne's announcement about her change in living quarters.

Byrne's dramatic gesture has had a noticeable ripple effect among both her political rivals and allies. A political rival, Cook County State's Attorney Richard M. Daley has announced that he intends to identify street gang leaders and prosecute them under conspiracy laws. Third Ward Alderman Tyrone Kenner has followed Byrne's lead and announced that he will move into the troubled Robert Taylor Homes project on the South Side.

IT WOULD BE NAIVE TO ASSUME, however, that Byrne's move to Cabrini-Green will provide a long-term solution to the problem of gang violence that plagues the project (unless her move is permanent). Many of the projects' 14,000 residents are single mothers who are easy targets for gang intimidation. Poor management by the Chicago Housing Authority compounds the problem. There is considerable doubt whether high-rise housing projects for only the poor can ever be made livable, and there are questions about the morality of lumping society's unfortunate into high-rise ghettos.

But those are questions which can not be solved in the immediate future, given the state of the economy. Byrne's highly-publicized move has helped bring immediate relief—and hope—to the residents of Cabrini Green. Unlike the late Mayor Daley, who wanted to build a fence around the ghetto during the 1968 Democratic Convention, Byrne has focused the resources of the city (and the media) on the plight of the poor. For that she deserves credit.

Friends from Anna need you

Blacks, beware of false prophets

She told me that some had no conception of time. They didn't know what year, or month, or even day it was. Yet somehow, instinctively, on Thursdays, their spirits were high. They bathed and put on clean clothes talking excitedly of the volunteers coming. As evening neared and the sky darkened, they wailed by the window. We saw heads peering out as our car drove up. They yelled down to us wanting some response. We organized our group and entered the doors of the Anna Mental Institution.

Last night I was taken to a different section where there was a conference room to fill out some information. As we walked through the first door, a few residents ran up to the woman next to me excitedly asking, "A party? A party?" We left them behind as we entered the conference room.

"Sometimes I come at 8:30 in the morning and they're asking about a party," she said. I was informed that these adults were more severely retarded and required more care and attention.

"We used to have a whole separate group that came to this section. But there just aren't as many volunteers any more."

It saddened me, but I was certain it was just a lack of publicity. Out of all of Southern Illinois University there had to be more than just 12 of us to come visit these people. I felt guilty for a moment. My motive for being there was selfish. I wanted some sort of volunteer experience—just dabbling around wondering if a career in this field would interest me. And now I've learned that some of these people have no outside communication except for us.

I had to inform the world. Well, at least SIU-C and I guess that's why I'm writing this little story. Anyone that is interested is more than welcome to come. We meet at the Newman Center every Thursday at 6 p.m. Don't feel committed for life. Maybe just try it once. Twice is even better—sometimes first impressions are deceiving. With Special Olympics coming April 30th, they need all the help they can get. Maybe "Some may say that I'm a dreamer. But I'm not the only one. I hope some day we'll join up and the world will be as one."—Roni Paton.

I would caution all people, especially black people, to beware of false prophets.

Black people have realized that their condition and plight in this country has produced much bitterness and even some hopelessness. However, it's wise to be on guard against all forms of oppression.

Too often the black man has suffered because he has abandoned reason, in hope of finding some tangible solution in human form to solve all ills and problems of racism. Jim Jones, Elijah Muhammad and other demagogues have exploited blacks by introducing a false messianic doctrine.

Still, I am not suggesting that black people should abandon a tradition of seeking answers to their problems by resorting to the aid of a divine source. (God) But, I caution them to be on guard; religion is big business; thus I'd urge all people to beware of false prophets that seek only to make financial gain or to acquire power by use of deceptive language and misinterpretation of scripture.—Jameel M. Ali, senior, Philosophy.

Shot-clock needed in NCAA

Put more pizzazz in ticket sagas

In the past few years, many articles, commentaries and editorials have been written about college basketball and the use of a "shot-clock." This is yet another. However, I would like to point out an angle that hasn't received the proper attention it deserves. By utilizing a 50-second or one-minute time limit in the college ranks, the NCAA just may be promoting a higher degree of discipline, which in turn could open the door to many college players into the professional ranks.

Opponents of the shot-clock claim that a certain amount of discipline is required while a team is attempting to run the clock down. The object is to keep the ball in motion in such a way that the defense can't keep up, hold it for as long as possible, and move it around again. I would have to agree to a point. The discipline required, however, may be possibly harmful to many players who have high hopes of entering the pros, and staying there.

By utilizing a shot-clock, college players would be able to experience the pressure in dealing with setting up for a shot, recognizing a high percentage opportunity, and executing the shot with a given time limit. I believe it takes a higher degree of discipline to work for a shot, which happens to be the object of the game, than to stand with the ball in hand watching the clock tick away. Watching the clock tick down is not basketball, it is the job of the officials. It is also a coach's way of telling his players: "I really don't have too much faith in you guys, I'm afraid we'll do something wrong and lose." That may sound ridiculous to many, but if it is ridiculous, why wouldn't the coach tell his players to go out there and finish them off?

The fact that a shot clock does not exist under present NCAA rules only denies players the opportunity to experience the pressures, (at least to some degree) of the professional ranks. The ability to create opportunities is a mightier virtue than the disability a stall creates. The NCAA has a choice. Either go for the shot-clock or stall some more. The decision is theirs to make or blow. Can the NCAA handle the pressure? We'll give them 60 seconds.—Michael J. Zeltin, senior, Radio-Television.

With delight I read another harrowing episode of your serial "Pristine Parker vs. No Parking Zone." Sadly, the forces of light were again trounced by the bureaucratic beasts.

Please, do live up future scripts. The relatively virtuous are always ruthlessly cited for parking offenses of the most mediocre sort. Really, to argue that they only intended to stay a few minutes, or they didn't have time, or they didn't want to walk shows little imagination. Inject some pizzazz: "Gee officer, I left him out front because the door is too small and, no officer, I don't know how to ticket an elephant. He really resented being towed last time! If you will look under his tail you'll find my parking sticker."

This incessant wailing about being only slightly in violation reminds one of the old adage about being just a little bit pregnant. It is also sour grapes. People who decide to buck the odds and gamble should not cry when they lose. As the man said, "There ain't no free ride."—Allen O. Miller.

The process of federal government may have looked more shaken and wounded than the president was Monday afternoon following the assassination attempt in Washington, D.C., but two SIU-C political science professors said Tuesday that in their opinion, there was never any serious threat to the nation or the chain of command.

Professors Randall Nelson and John Jackson, while not complimentary of the way the Reagan staff handled themselves during the first frantic hours following the shooting, both said they believed the legal and communications systems developed around the office of the president kept the nation functioning and out of danger throughout the ordeal.

"It is only my opinion, but in watching the television networks Monday afternoon, I had a feeling that there was excessive pandemonium around the incident, and that the Reagan people could have behaved in a more disciplined manner. No one, in government or on the networks, really seemed to know what was going on," Nelson said.

Nelson said that although there were many references to the Constitution's 25th Amendment, which covers some aspects of presidential succession in times of crisis, there was no mention of the Presidential Succession Act of 1947. That law, Nelson said, had the answers to many questions being asked by government and media people.

The 1947 act draws the line of presidential succession from the vice-president to the speaker of the House of Representatives to the president pro-tem of the Senate and to the Secretary of State. Nelson said, and there were times Monday afternoon when it appeared to him that no one involved in government or media knew the line.

Secretary of State Alexander Haig called a press conference Monday afternoon to explain what was happening at the White House as the wounded president was in surgery, and at one point announced that "I am in charge pending the return of the vice president from Texas."

It was speculated later Monday that Haig had made the statement in light of the current labor crisis in Poland to signal to the Soviet Union that the government was still functioning, and they should not attempt to take advantage of the situation, but Nelson rejected that argument.

"If the Soviet's are aware of our form of government and our communications systems, which I presume they are, they could have determined that Haig was without power to act, and very quickly," Nelson said.

Jackson described the administration's activities as "rather ragged for a while" following the shooting, but said he had seen "no serious threat or problem because there appeared to be no plot to shoot large numbers of officials," and stop the government.

"Given the communications network that is so well formed around the president, there was no problem with any of the functions of government or question of our ability to act. It is rather remarkable that no one in the press or government didn't seem to know who was in charge," Jackson said.

Woman hurt in collision

A Murphysboro woman was listed in guarded condition Tuesday afternoon in Memorial Hospital in Carbondale with head wounds she received after the motorcycle she was driving collided Monday afternoon with a car on New Era Road, a hospital spokesman said.

According to Carbondale police, Kimberly Baskin, 20, was driving a motorcycle at about 1 p.m. south on New Era Road, just north of Illinois Route 13, when she collided with a northbound car driven by Charles Gallatin, 21, a junior at SIU-C majoring in pre-law. Witnesses told police that Gallatin made a left turn in front of Baskin, causing her to strike the car. Police said Baskin's head hit the windshield of Gallatin's car. Gallatin was not injured, police said.

Don't call gunman 'crazy,' expert says

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

While many words will undoubtedly be used to describe the alleged actions of John W. Hinckley, the 25-year-old Colorado man charged with the attempted assassination of President Reagan, one SIU-C faculty member warns against calling the act "irrational."

Thomas Mitchell, associate professor of psychology, said that while there are no definite psychological patterns among political assassins, almost all seem to believe they acted rationally.

"Not everyone who attempts a political assassination is crazy," Mitchell said. "And killing someone is certainly not always an irrational act. Now what may be irrational is the assassin's perception of the reasons for his act."

Mitchell said that there is not enough information about Hinckley to speculate on his motives, but by viewing political assassination attempts from a historical perspective, one might see a category he fits into.

"In many cases a cause is the motivating force of the assassins," Mitchell said. "A belief in a cause that's more important than whether or not they get caught, a cause more important than life itself."

"These people see a rational purpose in what they are doing," he said. "They believe that by eliminating this powerful person their cause will be furthered and the world will be better."

"A second category of assassins is the person who is a loser, a nobody," Mitchell said. "These people want to do something great and dramatic to prove they are not failures."

The idea of committing a great crime for the sake of notoriety is well established in literature and history, said Mitchell, who has taught at SIU-C since 1968. He noted specifically Dostoevsky's "Crime and Punishment" which dealt with this subject. A more recent example given by Mitchell is Arthur Bremer's 1972 assassination attempt on Alabama Governor George Wallace. People like Bremer, according to Mitchell, are not concerned with who they shoot, as long as it is someone prominent.

"Now these people are not the same as the guy who goes berserk and starts shooting a schoolyard full of kids," he said. "They have a specific target, and it's always someone important."

Mitchell said that at this time with so little information, it is dangerous to speculate if Hinckley falls into one of these two categories. He said there may be other reasons Hinckley, the son of a wealthy Denver oilman, may have acted as he did.

"There's always the possibility that he's totally psychotic," Mitchell said. "He may have been completely out of touch with reality, in some way paranoid that the president controls his life and that only by killing him could he be free."

"Another possibility is that Reagan is a symbol of Hinckley's father, who is wealthy, conservative and successful," Mitchell said. "Maybe he really wanted to kill his father, or perhaps ruin his parents by running a symbol they believed in."

Mitchell said many people have difficulty believing that assassins are rational people because they could not imagine themselves committing an assassination. He said it may be helpful to remember the German soldiers who unsuccessfully attempted to assassinate Hitler during World War II.

"When you think of all the potential lives they might have saved by killing Hitler, most everyone in this country would agree that they were more heroes than psychotics," Mitchell said. "And few would say they were irrational."

Man sentenced for DeSoto robbery

A Murphysboro man was sentenced to 13 years in prison Tuesday for his part in an armed robbery committed just seven days after his release from Menard State Penitentiary.

Bruce Griffin, 20, was convicted Feb. 24 of driving the getaway car for his two brothers, Dan and Bob, when they held-up the Han-Dee Mart convenience store in DeSoto on Nov. 17.

Circuit Judge Richard E. Richman delivered the sentence that will send Griffin back to Menard where he served three years for a forgery conviction prior to the robbery.

Griffin and his brothers, who have also been convicted of the Class X felony, face armed robbery charges in Williamson County.

Michael C. Carr, assistant Jackson County state's attorney, prosecuted the case in a three-day jury trial.

The prisoners' diets were another point of concern. Easter-Wells said the inmates' demands for better food and optional vegetarian meals were also denied by the prison administration.

Another area criticized by Easter-Wells was use of the prison's Control Unit, a block of solitary confinement cells.

"They use the Control Unit as arbitrary mind control," she said. "They try to break the prisoners' spirits."

Warrant issued on student

By Scott Canon
Staff Writer

A warrant was issued Tuesday for the arrest of an SIU-C football player, Jerry Halley, for allegedly holding-up a fellow dormitory resident at gunpoint.

Halley, 20, junior in technical careers, has been charged with armed robbery by the Jackson County State's Attorney's Office.

Michael C. Carr, assistant state's attorney, said Halley was identified by John Natale, sophomore in technical careers, as one of two masked men who came to his Schneider Tower room at about 10 p.m. Thursday and took $18 in cash at gunpoint.

Carr said Natale recognized Halley, who also lives in Schneider, because he allegedly took off his mask as he allegedly was leaving the scene.

Conrail postpones rail abandonment

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Conrail has decided to postpone its request—originally scheduled for Tuesday—to abandon a 143-mile stretch of track in Southern Illinois until May 1. Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., said.

Simon said Conrail needed more time to gather data to support its request to abandon the Cairo rail line.

The delay will also allow five railroads negotiating with Conrail to buy the rail line to continue negotiations.

Black Affairs Council bids farewell to 'Mom'

By Vicki Olgeaty
Student Writer

The Black Affairs Council's "mother" will be leaving SIU-C April 1.

Dorothy Smith, coordinator of student development, will return to Mississippi Valley State University to resume her duties as director of the Academic Skills Parlor, a learning resource center similar to SIU-C's Center for Basic Skills.

Smith was tagged "mother" by this year's BAC members for the help she has provided to the group in management, leadership development and programming, she said. Richard Gardner, coordinator of BAC, presented her with a plaque inscribed "mother" at a program paying tribute to the black church on Feb. 8.

Smith, 32, came to SIU-C in August, 1979 as a doctoral student in higher education and graduate assistant for non-traditional students. In the spring of 1980 she accepted her present post.

"I thought the job would just be a part-time endeavor. I soon found out that working with students is a delicate process that takes at least 12 hours of my day," Smith said. "Students have become a major part of my personal and professional life."

When Smith accepted her job, she heard complaints from students about a communication barrier between the students and the administration.

"Students kept telling me that the university administration wouldn't listen to them and that the faculty wouldn't come to their programs," she said.

"The first thing that I did was to invite the administration to the 1980 spring BAC orientation," Smith said. "To everyone's surprise but my own, they came."

"Communication is the key to solving any problem," Smith said. "I have tried to extend programs beyond the walls of campus. The black church tribute was very successful at including students, university administration and town residents in one event."

Smith said her office is run informally and her hours are

Campus Briefs

Leisure Exploration Service, Base Camp, Student Outdoor Adventure Recreation and Alcohol Education Project will sponsor an open house from 3 to 6 p.m. Wednesday at the southwest corner of the Recreation Center. The open house is designed to give students a greater awareness of the services that the sponsoring programs offer.

President Albert Somit will address the meeting of the Civil Service Council at 1 p.m. Wednesday in the Balcony Conference Room of Anthony Hall. The council will discuss details of the upcoming officers' elections to be held in May.

Effective Wednesday, the Golf Room hours of the Recreation Center will be 7-10 p.m. daily.

The Coalition of Progressive Social Scientists will sponsor a lecture entitled "Peace, Jobs and Capitalism," at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Lawson 151. The lecturer will be Nelson Peery, a central committee member of the Communist Labor Party.

There will be a series of workshops on the subject of disabilities from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center. "Job Placement Strategies for the Professional Disabled Graduate" will be held 10 a.m.-noon in Ballroom B. "Clothing Designs for the Disabled Person" will be held 1-3 p.m. in Ballroom B. There will be an informal discussion session from 3 to 5 p.m. in Ballroom B. All students and faculty are invited to attend.

The School of Medicine will sponsor a seminar entitled "Health Effects of Airborne Environmental Pollutants," at noon Wednesday in Wheeler 212. The lecturer will be Finis Cavendar, director of inhalation toxicology at ToxiGenics Inc. of Decatur.

A meeting will be held to discuss SIU-C's eight-week summer study program in Mexico at 4 p.m. Wednesday in Faner 2083. All interested people are invited to attend.

The La Leche League of Carbondale will hold the second of four monthly meetings on the subject of breastfeeding at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at 217 W. Gray St. in Carbondale.

The Career Counseling Center will offer two personal development and skill building workshops this spring. Both groups will begin in April and registration must be completed by April 6. The groups are "How to Choose a Major" and "Senioritis or is There Really Survival After College?" Students may register by calling 536-2096 or coming by the Career Counseling Center, Woody B204.

flexible to make it easier for her to comply with students' schedules.

Smith said she bases her philosophy of self-determination on a quote she heard years ago: "The world will step aside for any to pass if he knows where he's going."

"If you really want and believe in something, put in the effort and fight the odds," she explained. "Be sure you know what you want to do."

Smith's office in the Student Center is decorated with many awards. She was named an "Outstanding Young Woman of America" in 1979 and 1980, which is a national recognition given for outstanding contribution to the community," she said.

"I have become quickly attached to SIU-C," said Smith. "I believe that home is not the place - it is the people in the place that count."

Smith first postponed her departure date from Feb. 1 to March 1, then she switched it to April 1 because she wanted to help select her replacement.

"I just have to remind myself that there are as many warm people at home as there are here," she said.

21st victim identified

ATLANTA (AP) — A 13-year-old black youth whom police had labeled a runaway was identified Tuesday as the 21st victim in Atlanta's string of child deaths. Two other youngsters have been reported missing.

Dr. John Feegel, associate Fulton County medical examiner, said Timothy Hill apparently died of asphyxiation at least a week before he was found in the Chattahoochee River on Monday.

"It's one more of the same — black male, teen-age, no marks, no mutilation," Feegel said.

Hill had been considered a runaway by Atlanta police, who turned his case over to their missing persons bureau rather than the special task force investigating the deaths and disappearances of 22 other black children since July 1979.

Tuesday's Puzzle Solved

Reagan hometown planning special get-well wishes

DIXON (AP) — Residents in Ronald Reagan's boyhood home were planning their own special get-well card Tuesday — a group portrait of the entire community to be published and sent to the president.

Plans called for people to gather downtown Wednesday morning next to the historic 1919 Memorial Arch, a World War I monument and the town's trademark.

The photo was scheduled to be published on the front page of Thursday's edition of the Dixon Evening Telegraph and a copy sent to Reagan, who is recuperating from a would-be assassin's bullet at George Washington University Hospital.

The photo will be accompanied with words to the effect, "Get Well, Dutch," said managing editor Lenny Ingrassia, referring to the president's boyhood nickname which is still familiar to longtime Reagan family friends who live in Dixon.

Reagan, the son of an Irish shoe salesman, lived with his family in Dixon between 1920 and 1932, when he left to work in radio and eventually the movies.

School of Music to present its Spring Chorale Concert

The School of Music's Spring Chorale Concert will be presented at 8 p.m. next Wednesday, April 8 in Shryock Auditorium. The Daily Egyptian reported Tuesday that the concert would be held this Wednesday.

Next Wednesday's concert, conducted by David Williams, associate professor of music, will open with four selections from Pulitzer Prize-winning American composer Samuel Barber, who died earlier this year. Zoltan Kodaly's "Missa Brevis" will be presented with solos from Jeanine Wagner, Dane Runestad, Julie Greene, John Kazee and Renwick Hester.

The School of Music is presenting three solo recitals this week.

Dennis Bergin, visiting artist in the School of Music, will present an organ recital at 8 p.m., Wednesday in Shryock Auditorium.

Bergin, winner of several national organ playing competitions including the Ruth and Clarence Mader Memorial Scholarship Competition in 1977, the National Organ Playing Competition in 1975 and 1978, and the Region VI American Guild of Organists Competition in 1977, will perform works from Bach, Pachelbel, Tournemire, Franck and Reger.

Classical guitarist Alex Chu will present his graduate recital at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Old Baptist Foundation Chapel. Chu, a native of Hong Kong who is an instructor of guitar at John A. Logan College and Rend Lake College, has performed for well-known guitarists like Michael Lorimer, Sharon Isben and Carlavano.

Trudy Wintizer will present her graduate flute recital at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Old Baptist Foundation Chapel. Wintizer, assisted by Akiko Ohaski on the harpsichord and David Andersor on piano, will perform works from Bach and Mozart among others.

Luzinski hopes to give Chisox more than their money's worth

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Greg Luzinski knew he was going to be traded, but the veteran outfielder never dreamed he could be had so cheap.

The fate of the 30-year-old Luzinski was sealed last week when the Philadelphia Phillies acquired Atlanta outfielder Gary Matthews, and Manager Dallas Green immediately established Matthews as his regular left fielder.

It was then just a matter of time, where and what would be the best deal the world champions could exact for the 6-foot-1 outfielder who carried the nickname, "The Bull," since joining the Phillies nine years ago.

On Monday, it was decided — Luzinski was dealt to the Chicago White Sox for an undisclosed amount of cash.

The Phillies really wanted a pitcher for the 225-pound Luzinski, but were unable to get anyone they felt could help them in 1981.

And since they had backed themselves against the wall with an excess of outfielders when they acquired Matthews, they were forced to take what the veteran outfielder apparently was worth on the market.

Luzinski had laughed at reports that he had no value on the baseball market.

He admitted that maybe his skills were on the downgrade, but insisted he still had a few good years with the big bat that for seven years threw fear into National League pitchers.

Luzinski didn't particularly want to leave Philadelphia, but he realized he had no future on a team where his feud with the manager was legendary.

Luzinski, who has had operations on both knees, felt Green had not given him the proper chance to rehabilitate and make a comeback. He made his dislike of the manager very clear.

Although Green insisted that he liked Luzinski, he made it clear that nobody played for his Phillies on past reputation.

The beginning of the end for Luzinski was in 1979 when he slumped to .252, and followed the next year with a .226 batting average. His defensive ability never was anything to write home about, and in 1980 he had a mere 19 home runs.

Green refused to consider that Luzinski was a four time NL All-Star player, starting three of those games. He felt the one-time Chicago football and baseball star had outlived his usefulness to the Phillies.

Eleven that night.

The youthful enthusiasm surrounding the world of sports was dampened Monday. Writing about what amounts to fun and games was difficult, to say the least. Ironically, the man who drew most of the nation's attention is as sports-minded as the most devout armchair quarterback. In fact, the President was a baseball broadcaster prior to his eventual screen and political careers.

SPORTS ARE A BUSINESS, and should be treated as such, many say. Others consider them forms of entertainment. The NCAA and NBC evidently felt the show had to go on Monday night, and Indiana won, 63-50.

But the atmosphere surrounding the game and the fact that the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences postponed the Oscars stamped a black eye on college athletics and the sports media. It was difficult for many fans to get excited about basketball after the traumatic events of that afternoon, and after the Oscars were postponed, it would have been a popular gesture by NBC and the NCAA to follow suit.

PERHAPS WE ARE TOO FAR GONE to try to put sports in perspective. The staggering amount of dollars involved can't be ignored. But the crises we perceive in the sports world, be they in Saluki basketball or a manager's firing, seem to require nothing short of flood, famine or fire before they are looked at realistically.

NCAA decision to play gets mixed reactions

By the Associated Press

The decision to play the NCAA basketball championship game as President Reagan lay wounded from an assassination attempt was blasted on some of the nation's sports pages Tuesday.

"It makes me want to cry," wrote Dave Kindred, a sports columnist for the Washington Post.

Meanwhile, other sports writers, fans and the two coaches involved in the title match defended the action.

"I think the kids felt as we all did about the tragedy, that both teams were here to play—nothing we could do," Indiana Coach Bobby Knight said after the Hoosiers' 63-50 victory over North Carolina in Philadelphia Monday night.

North Carolina Coach Smith said the shooting was "a tragic thing, but we heard the president was in stable condition. There are a lot of tragic things all around, the child murders in Atlanta for example. Had he been near death, it would have been different."

NBC said public response had been overwhelmingly in support of its decision to telecast the game.

Curt Block, director of press and publicity for the network, said the vast majority of telephone calls made Monday to the NBC switchboard favored going ahead with the game. Eighty-one of the callers disagreed with the decision, he added.

By the time the game started at 7:30 p.m. CST, Reagan had been removed from two hours of surgery and was reported in good condition. Block said that had the president's condition been poor or uncertain, NBC would have stayed with the news story rather than do the game.

The game was the last title contest NBC carried under its contract with the NCAA, which will switch to CBS next season.

Columnists on several major dailies came down hard on the decision to play the game rather than postpone it.

"As I am writing this, the president of the United States has been wheeled out of surgery his press secretary is fighting for his life...and in the makeshift press room under the Spectrum grandstand you can hear the University of North Carolina pep band playing 'The Tar Heel Fight Song,'" Jerry Izenberg said in the New York Post.

"In one man's opinion," Izenberg wrote, "they should never have opened the door. It is always arguable that life goes on. But it doesn't."

Sports editor Bill Dwyre of the Milwaukee Journal compared the decision to play the contest with that of the National Football League to play its full slate of games the Sunday after President Kennedy was assassinated in November 1963.

But some writers defended the NCAA's stand, including Joe Gilmartin, sports editor of the Phoenix Gazette.

"A cynic might bitterly suggest that if we stopped the world every time one of us got shot, we might never start at all.

Had there been any question about the president's recovery, playing the game would have been obscene."

Sports events lost their glitter Monday

MONDAY HAD PROMISED to be a sportswriter's dream on a local and national level. Allen Van Winkle that morning was named as the eighth men's basketball coach in SIU-C history. The announcement followed weeks of speculation, faulty predictions and local media hype that fueled more than a few barroom debates.

And in Philadelphia, Bobby Knight's Indiana Hoosiers prepared to take on Dean Smith's North Carolina Tar Heels for the national championship of college basketball. NBC was bound to receive a substantial percentage of the national television audience.

The first bulletin about the incident in Washington came across the Associated Press teletype at about 1:30 Monday afternoon. First, there was fragmented information about gunshots and President Reagan. Initially, the President was said to be unhurt, but as time passed and more detailed reports came in, the picture darkened.

The grave injury to presidential Press Secretary and Centralia native James Brady made the afternoon even more sobering.

BUT AN EVEN MORE sobering realization developed as the nation put aside personal interests and turned its attention to Dan Rafter, John Chancellor or Frank Reynolds as they tried to unfold the story of a national emergency. The battle in Philadelphia and the announcement of the new basketball coach became increasingly trivial and obscure. All the sports media hype in the world failed to drown out the urgency of an assassination attempt.

I don't know about the majority of sportswriters, but my perspective on the importance of sports news was brought under a new light Monday afternoon. The insulated world of fans and sportswriters, a bubble with ever-growing proportions, sprang a leak. The fact that a Saluki pitcher was being moved to the bullpen seemed about as important as what brand of coffee I'd buy at the Seven-

Netters acquire two recruits, prepare for Memphis State

By Scott Stahmer
Sports Editor

"Wait 'til next year" would be a ludicrous thing for women's tennis Coach Judy Auld to say. After all, her team is 10-2 going into Wednesday's meet at Memphis State and this weekend's Southern Collegiate Tournament.

But Auld already is looking enthusiastically to next year because two top recruits, Alessandra Molinari of Stockholm, Sweden, and Amanda Allen of Galesburg, have signed with SIU-C. Auld confirmed the signings Tuesday.

Auld said she learned of the 6-0 Molinari, Sweden's seventh-ranked player, from Molinari's brother, a player at St. Louis University.

"Just from the letters I've gotten and talking to her, it seems like she'll be strong in doubles with her net volleys and overhead shots," Auld said. "In singles, her weakness could be her mobility. She's very consistent, but she'll go for the putaway."

"I think Alessandra will be a real big boost to our program. She'll have to make a transition to the humidity here in August."

Auld said Allen "could be the best doubles player I've recruited in my six years at SIU." At Galesburg, Allen teamed with Heidi Eastman to finish second last fall in doubles play at the Illinois High School Association state meet.

"Amanda is a very intelligent doubles player," Auld said. "She's not a highly aggressive doubles player because her partner was an overly aggressive player. Amanda was like a general. She determined what they did. Singles-wise, she'll probably be in the lower part of the lineup to help us with depth."

"With these two people," Auld said, "and perhaps one more recruit, I think we'll be even stronger next year. We still won't be able to beat Northwestern (the state's top women's tennis team), but we'll be more competitive."

Auld hasn't lost track of the present, however, as the Salukis will gun for revenge Wednesday at Memphis State. The Lady Tigers defeated SIU-C last fall, 7-2, and captured a narrow 5-4 decision last spring.

"I feel we can beat them, but we have to play every point like it's the last point," Auld said. "We just have to play them like we really want it. I think we could play them much closer than we did in the fall and possibly beat them."

Auld said the Salukis will shoot for a finish in the middle of the Southern Collegiate, which will include several nationally-ranked teams. In the past, Mississippi, Mississippi

United Nations representative to speak at mock UN session

By David Murphy
Staff Writer

Students interested in learning about international relations will have a chance when a simulated United Nations, complete with a speaker from the United Nations in New York City, comes to SU-C next week.

The simulation, which will take place April 9-11, is being sponsored by many campus groups, including the Undergraduate Student Organization, Graduate Student Council and the Donald F.

McHenry Society.

"This is a great chance for people to learn about international affairs," Mike Witten, a third year law student and coordinator of the simulation, said. "We need people to be either ambassadors or delegates."

The ambassadors and delegates will meet in assembly and committees over the three-day period and try to draft resolutions on subjects such as international food development and arms limitation, according to Witten.

On the second day of the simulation the assembly will hear an address by Donald Kimmel on the role of the United Nations in preventing world hunger. Kimmel is the North American representative to the Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations.

Ambassadors in the simulation will be responsible for making sure their delegates are present at sessions for the votes. They may also have to speak to the assembly at various times.

Social frat suspended

Phi Beta Sigma, an off-campus social fraternity, has been suspended by its national organization, according to Nancy Harris, director of student development.

Harris said her office received a telephone call from the fraternity's national headquarters notifying the University of the suspension. She said written correspondence is expected later this week confirming the suspension, but until then she would be unsure of the reason for the action. She said the University would take no action until the letter is received.

Willie Scott, faculty adviser for the fraternity, would not comment on the suspension, saying Monday he would wait for further information.

GSC to hear El Salvador resolution

By Carol Knowles
Staff Writer

Reconsideration of a resolution calling for an immediate withdrawal of U.S. military support for the regime in El Salvador will be the main order of business at the Graduate Student Council meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Mississippi Room of the Student Center.

Opposition to consideration of the motion was voiced at the last meeting, and after some confusion over procedure, a vote to consider the original motion was defeated.

The resolution also called for recognition of the rights of the citizen's of El Salvador to self determination, active opposition at the state and federal level to any policy adopted by the U.S. government calling for political involvement in El Salvador and utilization of legal means to expose and stop all foreign assistance there.

The council is also expected to consider a resolution requesting an apology to the GSC member who introduced the resolution on El Salvador, stating that one of the goals of the GSC is the expression of ideas in an open debate.

Reports from the Student Health Program policy board and an ad hoc committee on sexual harassment are also expected to be given.

Counselors set series on majors

The Career Counseling Center has scheduled a series of meetings entitled "How to Choose a Major" for undecided freshmen and sophomores.

The sessions will begin Monday, April 6, and will continue at 3 to 5 p.m. each Monday for four weeks. Career counselors Jean Person and Jim Scales will conduct the sessions to help people undecided on fields of study to clarify their interests, abilities, values, skills and options.

Persons interested in attending are to meet initially at the center's reception area, Woody B-204.
