Student killed during Salvadoran election day

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Tens of thousands of Salvadorans voted in national elections Sunday, but the threat of guerrilla violence kept thousands of others away. One student was shot to death by leftist rebels.

Only hours after the polls opened, a seminary student riding in a car was shot to death by guerrillas with machine guns. But no other violence was reported Sunday by police or a U.S. delegation in El Salvador observing the elections.

Despite patrols by thousands of army troops on maximum alert, there was virtually no highway traffic on the fourth day of a rebel-declared national transportation shutdown.

At stake during the elections for a new 60-member national legislative assembly and 262 mayors is the future of Duarte's liberal reform program, which has faced stiff opposition in the rightist-dominated assembly.

Voting results were not expected before Wednesday.

The Central Electoral Council said it expected 1.6 million people to vote for the nine political parties fielding candidates, but political observers consider the figure optimistic. About 1.4 million participated in last year's elections that won President Jose Napoleon Duarte the presidency.

There will be no voting in at least 25 towns under virtual guerrilla control or depopulated.

In La Palma, the northern mountain town that was host to the first peace talks between leftist rebels and Duarte, local officials said many residents of outlying villages were afraid to travel into town.

Capt. Julio Hernandez Monge, leader of the army battalion stationed in the town, said rebels robbed people en route to vote and threatened others.

"I believe the people are a little afraid," he said of the lower-than-expected turnout. "If people hear gunfire, they get alarmed and leave."

But in the provincial capital of Chalatenango, 47 miles north of San Salvador, thousands of voters crammed polling stations in front of the city's army barracks

Hospital OKs abortion ban

By Jeff Curl
Staff Writer

Elective abortions will no longer be performed at Memorial Hospital of Carbondale, the hospital's board of trustees decided Thursday night.

While one anti-abortionist called the decision a "moral victory," a spokeswoman for Southern Illinoisians For Choice called it "appalling."

The hospital's 12-year policy of performing abortions was re-examined after the board members were given an anti-abortion petition signed by 32 of the hospital's 67 staff physicians, said administrator George Maroney.

The board also received a pro-choice petition signed by over 600 people, and other petitions from local churches supporting the anti-abortion stance.

While the petitions were a catalyst for re-examining the hospital's abortion policy, they had nothing to do with the board's decision, Maroney said. He said the question the board dealt with was whether performing abortions fits under the proper role of a hospital.

"The board is saying that they do not see abortions as part of the role of a hospital," Maroney said. "They are not making any statement on the rightness or wrongness of abortions."

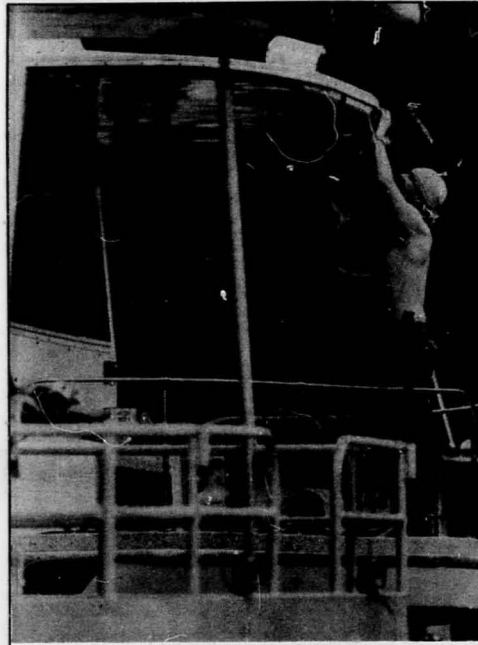

Therapeutic abortions, done when a mother's life is in danger, will not be affected by the new policy.

Sheffield Boardman, the internist who started the anti-abortion petition signed by medical staff members, said the hospital is a "moral leader" for deciding against killing young children. Boardman said he feels his petition had some influence on board members and added that he hopes the decision will help other hospitals which perform abortions to change policy.

"We want to spread the good news across the country," he said.

Muriel Hayward, spokeswoman for Southern Illinoisians For Choice which started the pro-choice petition, said that she is "appalled and angry" at the hospital's decision. She said it frightens

Searches triggered by killing

JERUSALEM (UPI) — A gunman shot and killed an Israeli settler in the West Bank town of El Bireh Sunday, triggering large-scale searches and arrests and a curfew, military sources said.

The council of Jewish settlers on the West Bank demanded immediate retaliatory measures for the killing of Zalman Obolnik, 52, an El Bireh municipal employee and a founder of the nearby Jewish settlement of Givon.

Military sources said Obolnik, who immigrated to Israel from the Soviet Union in 1973, was shot in the head from close range by a man shortly after shopping in El Bireh's produce market.

Authorities clamped a curfew on the town. Soldiers carried out large-scale searches and detained dozens of people, sources said.

Obolnik's slaying followed a clash in the Dehaishe refugee camp near Bethlehem Saturday in which two Palestinians youths were wounded by Israeli gunfire.

Jewish settlers demanded the arrest of alleged Palestine Liberation Organization activists in the region and the closing of Bir Zeit University.

The settlers charged the Palestinian college, near El Bireh's twin city of Ramallah, 9 miles north of Jerusalem, was nourishing the ideology that prompted the attack on Obolnik.

The militant Kach movement of U.S.-born Rabbi Meir Kahane, in a call to the United Press International bureau in Jerusalem, urged the expulsion of all Arabs from Ramallah and El Bireh.

"If the Israeli government is not prepared to take action, then Kach will," it said.

Neo-Nazi murder suspect arrested

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI) — FBI agents arrested neo-Nazi David Lane in a supermarket parking lot four days after the capture of another member of the white supremacist group suspected in the murder of a Jewish talk show host in Denver, the FBI said Sunday.

An FBI agent put a shotgun to Lane's head as he got into a pickup truck Saturday afternoon outside the Winn Dixie supermarket, said Robert Pence, agent in charge of the FBI in North Carolina. On the seat next to him was a .45-caliber pistol and a large knife, said Pence.

"We waited until we had him where we felt he wasn't a threat to anyone and felt he wasn't armed," Pence said. "There was a weapon just inside the truck, about a foot away from him. But he didn't go for it. We didn't give him the opportunity."

Agents who had staked out the parking lot grabbed another man sitting in the truck and a man outside the supermarket, but they were not identified because they had not been charged, Pence said.

Lane was held in the Forsyth County jail on a warrant charging him with counterfeiting $10 bills in Philadelphia. He is scheduled to appear before a federal magistrate Monday.

Lane is not formally charged in the slaying of Denver talk show host Alan Berg, but Denver police believe he was a member of a four-man hit squad that shot to death Berg in the driveway of his home on June 18, 1984.

Berg frequently argued with neo-Nazi members on his call-in show, and Denver police say Lane frequently called the talk show to air his anti-Semitic views.

Candidates debate issues in forum

By Bob Tita
Staff Writer

Republican candidates for Carbondale Township offices stressed need for new ideas and leadership, while the incumbent Democrats expounded their accomplishments Thursday during a candidate forum sponsored by the Jackson County League of Women Voters.

Voters will be able Tuesday to cast ballots for four trustee candidates as well as a township supervisor, assessor, clerk and highway commissioner.

Timothy Capps, a township trustee candidate, was the most vocal of the Republican candidates calling for change in township government.

He said the Democratic-controlled township is a "cozy club" that is closed to SIU-C students.

"I want to start a new trend to get SIU-C students in local government," said Capps, a SIU-C radio-television major.

Charles Pharazyn, also a SIU-C student running for trustee, said "The word is out. Students need not apply for positions in the Democratic Party."

Jan See and Mary Nell Chew are the other two Republican

S. African leaders send troops into townships

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (UPI) — Police in armored trucks fired rubber bullets and tear gas into a crowd of about 35,000 blacks leaving a funeral Sunday. One black man was killed by a shotgun blast, township sources said. For the first time in five months, the white-minority government announced it sent army troops into black townships in southern South Africa as police reported scattered violence around the coastal city of Port Elizabeth.

Israel opposes troops on Lebanon border

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israeli officials Sunday objected to a Lebanese proposal to station U.N. forces near the border after Israeli occupation troops withdraw, charging they could pose an "obstacle" to anti-terrorist operations. U.N. aide Jean-Claude Aimee will hold discussions with Israeli officials Monday on extending the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon's mandate beyond its April 18 expiration date. UNIFIL spokesman Timor Goksel said.

Iranian missiles cause explosion in Baghdad

BAGHDAD, Iraq (UPI) — A huge explosion believed to be an Iranian missile rocked the Iraqi capital Sunday, blowing out doors of houses and leaving a nearly 5-foot-deep crater. Iraqi warplanes attacked Tehran in retaliation, Tehran residents, contacted by telephone, reported hearing a loud explosion as the planes flew overhead but it was not immediately clear whether it was a bomb exploding or the planes breaking the sound barrier.

Cut in Pentagon staff recommended by Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Senate subcommittee has recommended cutting 175,000 people from the Pentagon payroll to reduce defense spending by $5.25 billion over two years. The Washington Post reported Sunday. The Senate Armed Services subcommittee on manpower also voted to delay for six months a recommended 3 percent pay raise for the military, which would have taken effect in July. The committee recommended delaying the raise until January, then increasing pay to 4 percent.

Pan Am mediator says talks are encouraging

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal mediator working to avert a second strike against financially troubled Pan American World Airways said Sunday both sides are "anxious to reach an agreement" before a midnight deadline. Federal mediator Walter Wallace, who has been directing the talks between flight attendants and Pan Am since last week, said in a news conference there has "been some encouraging results today so far, with a lot of hard work ahead of us." Star Hesse, a spokeswoman for the Independent Union of Flight Attendants, accused the company of pushing the talks to the limit.

Solidarity protests against price increases

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Interior Minister Czeslaw Kiszczak Sunday attacked the outlawed underground Solidarity movement on the eve of planned protests against price hikes and charged it was trying to undermine the communist government. In a speech to a Communist Party conference in the industrial center of Konin west of Warsaw, Kiszczak said the government's opponents were waiting to exploit any error made by the authorities. His remarks were reported in the official media on the eve of a second round of price hikes scheduled to be introduced Monday that will raise coal, gas and electricity prices by as much as 22 percent.

Police search transit lines for terrorist bomb

TORONTO (UPI) — Police Sunday used dogs specially trained to sniff out explosives to search miles of public transit lines after Armenian terrorists threatened to explode a bomb in a bus or subway station on Monday. In a letter sent to police, a group calling itself the "Armenian Secret Army for the Liberation of Our Homeland" threatened to explode a bomb on Toronto's public transit system if Canadian authorities did not release three Armenians arrested for an attack on the Turkish Embassy in Ottawa on March 12.

Newspaper reports military contract waste

NEW YORK (UPI) — Major military contractors use too much time and too many workers to build weapon systems, promoting waste, inefficiency and higher price tags for the American taxpayer. The New York Times reported Sunday. Most companies with military contracts take two to 10 times longer to finish their tasks than their own engineers said they would need, the Times said, citing industry efficiency data presented to the Senate Budget Committee by the Pentagon.

Embassy employee released

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Moslem gunmen released a kidnapped French Embassy employee Sunday — the second Westerner freed in as many days — as Christian and Moslem militiamen pounded each other in southern Lebanon. At least five people died in the fighting.

Danielle Perez, 34, a secretary at the French Embassy in Beirut, was released tired but unharmed Sunday afternoon, French Ambassador Fernand Wibaux said. Perez was kidnapped March 22 with her father, French chief of protocol Marcel Carton, 62, as they drove to work at the embassy.

Kidnappers are still holding her father and nine other Westerners — two other Frenchmen, five Americans, one Briton and one Dutchman.

The shadowy pro-Iranian Islamic Jihad (Holy War) originally claimed responsibility for the abduction of Perez, Carton, another Frenchman and two Britons, Geoffrey Nash and Brian Levick.

But a previously unknown Moslem guerrilla group calling itself the "Khaiber Brigades" said last week it was holding the five and would free the two Britons and the secretary because it no longer believes they are spies.

Nash, a metal expert, was released Wednesday and Levick, an oil executive, was freed Saturday. Both were unharmed.

Near the port of Sidon, 24 miles south of Beirut, Christian militias and Palestinian-backed Moslem forces bombarded each other with artillery shells and rocket-propelled grenades.

At least five people were killed and five others were injured in the shelling Sunday, officials at Sidon's Hammoud Hospital said. Forty people were reported killed and 75 injured in similar fighting Saturday.

Official Beirut Radio said gunmen from the Lebanese Forces Christian militia resumed bombardment of the Miyeh-Miyeh and Ain Al Hilweh refugee camps on the eastern outskirts of Sidon.

Council to consider insurance costs

By Bob Tita
Staff Writer

Revised alternatives for cutting costs in the City of Carbondale's insurance program include allowing retired city employees to remain covered under the city's group insurance plan until they reach the age of 65 or become eligible for Medicare supplemental insurance plans.

The City Council on Monday will discuss a report by City Manager Bill Dixon outlining ways to reduce the city's insurance cost for both retired and current city employees.

Dixon said retired firefighters would not be required to convert to the Medicare supplemental plan because of state law.

Other alternative proposals in the report call for retired city employees presently covered by the group insurance to remain covered while people who retire after May 1, 1985 would have to convert their group policies to other types of coverage.

The council instructed Dixon to come up with alternatives to a plan that would have increased the cost of insurance for current city employees, while retired city employees would have had to convert their group policies to other types of coverage.

Retired city employees led by retired city manager Carroll Fry protested the proposal at the March 18 council meeting. Fry argued that the conversion would cause retired employees to pay more money for possibly less coverage.

In his report, Dixon said the conversion of retired employees was recommended because they are "high risk" policy holders and drive up the city's yearly group cost for insurance.

Figures in the report, show that the retired employees account for "16.2 percent of the experience related costs" charged by the Shawnee Health Maintenance Organization, one of city's insurance plans. The report points out that retired employees only account for 8 percent of the Shawnee HMO policy holders from the city.

Dixon said the retired employees pay 100 percent of their premiums, but at group rates. The experience rate for the group is based on the number of claims filed. In the HMO policies, Dixon's report states that the retired employees cost $37,992 more than what they paid into the plan.

Cost cutting measures proposed for current city employees include having health insurance take effect after the first 90 days of employment with the city. Presently, employees are required to work for 30 days before being eligible for insurance benefits.

Another proposal would require part-time employees to work 1,000 hours a year before becoming eligible for city insurance.

The council is also expected to vote on a water rate increase. The proposed increase would raise water rates 9.1 percent for minimum consumption of 3,000 gallons a month. Industrial users with a monthly consumption of 2.5 million gallons would experience and 11.3 percent increase.

The council will also begin a review on the so-called Halloween ordinance. At issue in the ordinance is the ban on new liquor licenses for Illinois Avenue.

The Liquor Advisory Board recommended late last year that the council repeal the ordinance. Board members felt that the ordinance has removed the competitive business atmosphere from downtown. Board members said repealing the ordinance would also make bar owners more responsive to drinking laws, because city officials could more easily revoke a liquor license.

Woody cafeteria a needed service

SIU-C MAY NEED AN ATTRACTIVE RECEPTION AREA for recruiting students, as suggested by President Somit. However, converting Woody Hall cafeteria to make room for it would be a mistake.

Somit announced plans for the conversion at a recent Faculty Senate meeting. The proposed reception area would include office space for admissions workers, an auditorium and a food canteen. The reception area's purpose would be to help attract prospective students and impress their parents.

There is nothing wrong with wanting to present an attractive image to those people interested in attending SIU-C. But not at the expense of Woody Hall cafeteria.

The cafeteria is one of the truly relaxing places on campus. Its quiet atmosphere has been enjoyed for years by students and faculty as a place for conversation, reading or just coffee sipping. Many of the people who go to the Woody Hall cafeteria are regulars who make it part of their daily routine. For them, the cafeteria is a desirable change of pace from the hectic, crowded and loud cafeterias in the Student Center.

IN FACT, WOODY HALL CAFETERIA would be a good place to start presenting that better image Somit wants. Replacing the old curtains and buying new furniture — particularly for the patio — are just some of the things that could be done to improve the looks of the cafeteria. Opening the patio doors on nice days would also capitalize on an aspect of the cafeteria that is neglected now.

With a little effort, Somit could have the attractive area he says is important to recruiting students and the cafeteria's regulars would still have their meeting place. Parents waiting for registering students would have a pleasant place to pass some time.

Fix up Woody Hall cafeteria and bypass the reception center plans. That way the University will get a desirable facility that, unlike Somit's proposed reception area, could be enjoyed by both prospective students and the faculty and students already here.

Belonging to professional fraternity proved a tremendous experience

Recently a friend gave me the opportunity to discuss the value of membership in a professional fraternity. I was delighted to respond in a positive manner concerning the merits of belonging, participating and acquiring an educational advantage on the challenges the future will possess.

While hesitating for a brief moment, my thoughts turned to the many personal rewards I have attained directly related to my association with a professional fraternity.

I spoke with pride concerning our chapter's dedication to the preservation of professionalism in the marketplace as well as at SIU-C. I felt comfortable in acknowledging that we were a unique mixture of majors, ranging from marketing and finance to computers and biology. I pointed out, of course, that all our members were not "A" students, but had the initiative and potential to become a successful business person in their unique career path.

...there are ample opportunities to gain practical ...experience in college there are ample opportunities to gain practical business experience not found in textbooks. Professional fraternities offer members excellent resources to develop the skills and knowledge necessary to be an informed and effective business person, instilling actual business activities that college is unable to teach in a classroom setting, furthering the freedom to deal with professionals and gain outside contacts and rewarding members with an "edge" that an uninvolved college student won't have. The fraternity's importance is considered by our membership as a serious investment in their career future.

I went on to mention that, along with many projects and sales and marketing events, fraternities participate in regional and national conventions which offer members a chance to travel, meet contacts and get away from routine classes. Conventions provide members with enriching seminars and banquets all weekend. Motivational speakers relate current trends and happenings in the real business market, producing increased student awareness on the opportunities their career can create.

Did I make a sale? Did my friend become a member. Only time will tell. One certain and positive result from this involvement enabled me to re-think, evaluate and more greatly appreciate my membership.

If I had the opportunity to join a professional fraternity again, I most certainly would and this time I would become president. — Michael A. Bala, senior, Marketing.

Township election chance to elect students to office

The result of the Carbondale Township election on April 2 hinges on what students at SIU-C do — or fail to do. Right now, two student candidates are hard at work trying to win seats in local government. Tim Capps and Charles Pharyzyn would represent student interests if elected to township trustee positions.

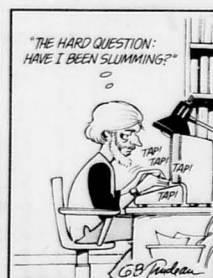

Student apathy has already thrown away the City Council election, at least as far as student candidates are concerned. Dave Madlener and Tim Larson didn't make it through the primary. But SIU-C has a second chance at the township level.

If you don't know much about Carbondale Township government, that's because the present trustees have let it sink further into obscurity for the past eight years. Without a change in 1985, it will just be a bad joke in 1989.

We don't need seat-winners in local government. We need some young people who will tackle the responsibilities of office with enthusiasm and genuine concern. So let's flex our voting muscle April 2 and get some students into Carbondale government. — Ben Stratemeyer, Carbondale.

Swinburne being attacked unfairly

I want to offer a word of support for Bruce Swinburne, who is too much of a gentleman to respond in kind to the slings he has suffered this past week. Those of us who work with him know of his commitment to the University, the inordinate amount of time and effort he expends in the execution of his administrative responsibilities and the concern for people he brings to each situation.

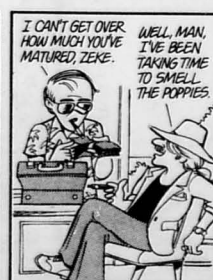

Only the main characters will ever know exactly what transpired in the meetings and discussions surrounding the future of SIU-C's basketball program. Perhaps there were some errors in judgment and some misunderstandings. That is no reason to mar the professional careers of men who have contributed so much to the University. Let us put the events of the past week in proper perspective and lay the matter to rest.

We should recognize Bruce Swinburne for his contributions as an outstanding teacher and administrator; let Lew Hartzog retire with honor from his illustrious career as an athletic coach; thank George Tubelt for his many years of quality service in various roles at SIU-C; and wish Dean Stuck and Al Van Winkle the best as they plan for the future.

After all, "the sun also rises" after basketball season. — Bill Bleyer, director of Intramural-Recreational Sports.

Storms cover Midwest in snow

A spring snowstorm blitzed the Midwest with more than a foot of snow, blustery winds and near-blizzard conditions Sunday. Flooding caused by driving rain and high winds chased hundreds of people from their homes along the Great Lakes.

A blizzard warning was posted for southeast Minnesota, where gusty winds and up to a foot of snow was forecast. Winds up to 45 mph cut visibility, and jackknifed trucks and cars littered the highways.

"I'm looking out the window and I can hardly see across the street," said Barb Reiland, a Minnesota State Patrol radio operator in Rochester. The Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport was shut down for almost two hours Sunday afternoon. By nightfall, more than 14 inches of snow had fallen on the Twin Cities.

Iowa and Nebraska were buried under eleven inches of snow, and travelers were warned of near blizzard conditions. Winter storm warnings stretched from Nebraska and Iowa to Wisconsin and Michigan.

Up to a foot of snow blanketed northeast Wisconsin. In some places the snow was accompanied by thunder and lightning.

In Arrery, Wis., a 3-year-old boy wearing only blue jeans and a shirt was found in good condition after being out in the snow for several hours. Authorities said the boy had wandered out of an apartment and hid under a bush.

The weather was blamed for one traffic death in Iowa and another in Nebraska.

Flood or flash-flood watches were posted for western and southern New York, western Pennsylvania and southwest Ohio. Heavy rains flooded streets in Indianapolis and 6 inches of rain since Wednesday flooded creeks and closed southern Indiana roads.

her that the country's increasing conservative attitude might result in the outlawing of abortions, a move which she says would leave women searching for illegal, and sometimes unsafe, abortions.

Like Sheffield, Hayward thought the board members were influenced by anti-abortionist attitudes in the community. She said she "finds it difficult to understand" why the hospital suddenly decided against doing abortions after performing them for 12 years.

Maroney said it is "very rare" for hospitals to perform abortions because the procedure can be done safely and usually for less money at private clinics. The price for an abortion at Memorial Hospital, which did 150 last year, was about $500, but can be done at clinics for around $275, Maroney said. The nearest abortion clinic is in Cape Girardeau, Mo., about 60 miles from Carbondale.

candidates for trustee. "It's sad that the people of this town don't know what township government does," said See, former manager of the Ramada Inn.

Chew is a former member of the Jackson County Board. She served two years as chairwoman of the board. She said her experience with county government would be an advantage as a trustee.

James Oscar Bodkin, Republican candidate for highway commissioner, said he has knowledge of country roads because he has worked and lived in the country. He currently works for his son at Bodkin Electric.

Vi Prineas, candidate for township clerk, said her experience with computers and office machines would aid her in the clerk duties.

Democratic incumbent clerk

Marie Harrell said, however, that there is no need for the clerk to use a computer. Harrell was appointed in 1984. Vernell Bloodworth said he has done extensive renovation of bridges and roads in the township since taking office eight years ago as highway commissioner.

He said before he took office, the township did not have a snow plow, salt spreader or a shed to store the machinery.

"When I took office two-thirds of the township roads needed repaving," he said. He said the township's seven wooden bridges have been replaced without additional tax levies.

Freda Stalls was appointed as a Democratic trustee in 1981. She is a 33-year resident of Carbondale and is a licensed foster parent for the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services.

Township trustee incumbent Clara McClure said that the township government has treated people with dignity, especially people applying for general assistance. McClure is a social worker at the Jackson County Mental Health Center and has been a Democratic trustee for 12 years.

Two school teachers are running for re-election as trustees.

Democrat Charles Leming is an eight-year incumbent trustee. He disputed Capps' assertion that the township government is closed. He said better public attendance is needed.

"We conduct business for the township in public. I think we take the open meetings act very personally," he said.

Gerald Compton, a 10-year incumbent, concurred with Leming.

Hagar's performance was hot and hard-rocking

By Martin Folan
Staff Writer

The temperature may have been warm in Carbondale Thursday, but the SIU-C Arena was burning hot when Sammy Hagar rocked into town for a hell-raising performance.

Hagar's show, which lasted more than two hours, featured hits from his newest album, VOA (Voice of America), as well as some of his classical hits.

The stage show enlivened the total performance, with Hagar singing and dancing atop the speakers on stage and on the v-shaped platform above the stage. A display of fireworks and colored smoke were also part of the dynamic performance.

Driving and love — hard rockin' love — were the themes of many songs. "I Don't Need Love" was one of the first few numbers of the concert.

Later, the other four band members — drummer David Lauser, guitarist Gary Pihl, bassist Bill Church and keyboard player Jesse Harms — joined Hagar in singing "Two Sides of Love," a hard rockin' love song from the VOA album.

The audience joined Hagar in a song he wrote while receiving a speeding ticket, "I Can't Drive 55," also from the VOA album.

In singing the song, Hagar shouted out "I can't drive," and the audience shouted back, "55."

The air was heavy and the temperature rose throughout the evening, as Hagar, the band and the audience stood throughout the entire performance.

At one point in the show, two beams of colored lights slowly descended to the stage floor on an angle. Hagar ran up through a beam to a platform near the roof and jammed on his red guitar, as five streams of white fireworks rocketed at the back of the stage and red and blue smoke puffed in the air.

During the encore, which lasted 26 minutes, Hagar and the band played eight bars of music as loud and as hard as they could, allowing time for the audience to yell as loud as it could after each bar was played.

The audience of 8,000-plus, which included many high school students, also enjoyed the acid rock music of Dokken, Hagar's opening act.

Calipre Stage production brings satire to community

By Belinda Edmondson
Staff Writer

Last week's performance by the Calipre Players at the Calipre Stage was a first in two ways: it was the group's first show on its home turf since its inception last September and it was the first official production of satire at SIU-C.

The group performed "Cutlass & Rapier," a hodge-podge of satirical literature from authors as varied as e.e. cummings and Lewis Carroll.

The Calipre Players decided to produce satire because of its noticeable absence in theatrical productions in the Carbondale community.

"In one way we see it as a community service — we're providing a needed service. We also wanted to provide SIU students with a different kind of performance that hasn't been available," said Ronald Pelias, the group's manager and assistant professor in the Department of Speech Communication.

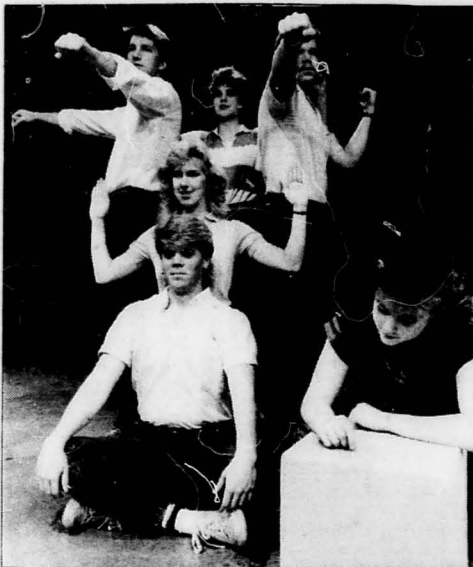

According to Pelias, "Cutlass & Rapier" differs from most dramatic productions in that it is a production of literary prose.

"I think satirical material plays very well to a variety of audiences. We wanted a show that has a broad appeal, and satire has that — it's comic."

Though the term satire often brings to mind stinging commentaries on taboo subjects, Pelias says in choosing works for the group's repertoire he has been especially careful to choose pieces that deal with socially acceptable subjects, because he wants to attract a community and high school audience.

"I wouldn't mind doing controversial work, but I would mind risque pieces because of our intended audience," explained Pelias, who remarked that neither a "damn" nor a "hell" were to be found in "Cutlass & Rapier."

Pelias' predictions for the success of "Cutlass & Rapier" are optimistic — he expects to be busy touring with the group through next fall. A prolonged tour will need an expanded repertoire, and Pelias already has started to plan for additional pieces. In the future he hopes to do a collection of shows about feminist issues.

ANYONE A BACK PAIN TARGET

Do you have a "bad back" that's been causing you a lot of pain and discomfort? You have lots of company. According to some estimates, more than 75 million Americans have back problems. It's even been referred to as epidemic.

It doesn't seem to matter what your occupation is, either. Waitresses who do lots of bending over to pick up and remove dishes can develop back problems. So can executives who spend most of their time at desks. However, people who are not active and do not work at keeping physically fit are most likely to develop back problems.

Whatever the cause, that's when a chiropractic examination and treatment may help restore your back and body to good health. Through gentle manipulations of the spine and other treatment, the doctor of chiropractic works to remove any misalignments that may be causing pain and discomfort by interfering with your body's nervous system. Don't suffer needlessly when chiropractic treatment may bring you the relief you need.

Speaker says anti-Semitism has roots in Greek empire

By John Dysin
Staff Writer

Anti-Semitism is not a 20th century phenomenon. Its history extends to the beginnings of the Greek empire and is even a part of the Book of Exodus in the Bible, said Stanley Anderman, executive director of the Anti-Defamation League in St. Louis.

Anderman visited SIU-C Thursday.

Judaism was the second most common religion and there was a theological competition between Judaism and Greek Pantheism, Anderman said. The Roman Empire continued anti-Semitism during its reign.

Christianity basically began during the Roman empire, he said, as a denomination of Judaism. When Christianity established its own religious context, competition with Judaism occurred, Anderman said. He likened the troubles between Christianity and Judaism as similar to parent-children quarreling.

"THERE IS A theological, political and now a sociological competition between Christians and Jews," Anderman said.

A major stumbling block in the relationship between Christianity and Judaism, Anderman believes, is that Christianity holds Jews responsible for the killing of Jesus. Therefore, it is the responsibility of Christians to punish Judaism and Jews, he said.

Anderman claims that in the past, Christians were taught to hate Jews. That is not the case so much today, he said.

The competition between Christianity and Judaism also stems from the New Testament because it says that Jews are the children of Satan, Anderman said.

FURTHERMORE, Martin Luther's anger toward the Jews added to the problem. Anderman said Luther became anti-Semitic when Jews didn't join him in Protestantism.

Converting Jews to Christianity has been a goal of many Christians for several centuries now, Anderman said. He said there are several reasons Christians want to convert Jews to Christianity. They believe that Jesus will come again if Jews accept Jesus as the Messiah, that Israel must be returned to biblical greatness and the return of Jews to Israel, Anderman said.

"That is a big burden to place on Jews," he said. "The Jewish basic belief is that the coming of the Messiah is in God's hands and He'll decide when the time has come."

HE BELIEVES it is rather humorous that Christian fundamentalists, many of whom are considered anti-Semitic, are also the strongest supporters of Israel.

Anderman cited two instances as low points in Jewish history. The first occurred during the Crusades when more Jews were killed than during the Holocaust. The second was the Holocaust, when six million Jews were killed by Adolf Hitler, he said.

Anderman said that the Catholic church still hasn't excommunicated Hitler. In addition, he believes the Catholic church didn't take a strong enough stance against Hitler during World War II. He said that Catholic churches and monasteries took in many Jews, but it was not church policy.

MANY EUROPEAN countries are still anti-Semitic, Anderman said, including Germany, Austria, and Poland. Few Jews live in those countries, he said.

Student robbed in dorm

A student's checkbook and $100 cash were stolen from his dormitory room by two men who threatened him with a 4-inch hunting knife, according to a representative of campus security.

The incident occurred at about 9:30 a.m. Thursday. Grant Hedges, 25, of Boomer I, told campus police that two black males, one carrying a hunting knife, entered his room and told him to lie on the floor.

The men searched his desk drawers until they found the cash and his checkbook, the representative said. Hedges was unharmed.

'Twelfth Night's' transvestitism result of old theories, prof says

By Cathy Brown
Staff Writer

"Shakespeare's 'Twelfth Night,' Transvestite Theatre in a World Without Eggs" was the topic of the annual Harry T. Moore lecture delivered Thursday night in Morris Library Auditorium by Stephen Greenblatt, a professor at the University of California at Berkeley.

The lecture was one of the highlights of the Central Renaissance Conference last week at SIU-C.

Greenblatt's lecture was a provocative, entertaining attempt to explain the transvestitism and homosexual attractions which take place in the Shakespeare comedy "Twelfth Night."

IN THE PLAY, one girl falls in love with another girl who has disguised herself as a boy. The girl in disguise falls in love with the man she serves, who doesn't immediately return her affections because he thinks she is a boy.

After numerous plot twists, everyone pairs off in happy heterosexual relationships.

Greenblatt explained that in the play, "events pursue their natural curve."

characters may try to follow a straight line to their desired love objects, in the play "there is something off-center implanted in nature that deflects men and women to their natural desires," he said.

Only by not getting what they think they want are the characters able to get what are their natural desires, he said.

Greenblatt said the cross-dressing plot was "perfectly conventional" in Renaissance times. People were fascinated with trying to understand the differences between the sexes, and accounts of women suddenly being transformed to men were often told.

These accounts were explained by theories that male and female sexual organs were identical except for differences in "magnitude and distribution." The differences were caused by the fact that females were cold, so their organs couldn't develop properly, Greenblatt said people believed.

THUS FOR RENAISSANCE scientists gender was never absolute. There was simply a predominance of one sex in a person, not an exclusion of the other, he said.

Furthermore, during the Renaissance, people knew nothing about female ova. They believed both men and women produced sperm which was necessary for reproduction. So they lived in "a world without eggs," Greenblatt said.

Cross-dressing is a common plot because of this belief in the twin sexual nature of human beings. Through the "playful tension" in such plots, the plays come to possess sexual energy, Greenblatt said. This energy transforms the girl who dresses as a boy and helps her to find her real sexual nature.

GREENBLATT SAID the characters are "realizing their identities through cross-dressing. They pass through the state of a man in order to become a woman," he said.

Greenblatt has degrees from Yale and i-embroke, has won a Guggenheim fellowship and a National Endowment for the Arts award, and has written several books.

His lecture was one of 64 presentations which were given during the conference. They ranged from a slide lecture on the Shroud of Turin to a presentation of Mexican Renaissance choral music.

Program helps displaced women find jobs

By Sarah Robrs
Staff Writer

Finding employment can be a trying time for some women. One social service in Southern Illinois is making jobs easier for some women to find.

The Displaced Homemaker Program is helping women through vocational counseling and training to find employment and, in some cases, get off public assistance.

Women who have been out of the labor force for at least five years and have been dependent upon another family member or public assistance are eligible for the program.

Women often need job skills after family support is removed by the death of a spouse, divorce, or disability or are no longer eligible for public assistance, said vocational counselor Peggy Sattler.

SATTLER SAID that getting off public aid is a major priority with the women in the program because going on public aid is like "going from one dependent stage to another."

The program also helps women who are victims of domestic violence. Some abused wives will return to their husbands because they have no form of support, she said.

Kathy Gyure, director of the program, said that without this program many women who are thrust into the situation of being a provider for themselves and their families would not find employment.

IN 1984, Gyure said, 42 percent of the women enrolled in the program were able to find jobs within one year and 35 percent decided to continue their vocational education, either at SIU-C or some other school.

Women in the program begin by developing their own career plan which includes knowing what skills to develop and what kind of job training to go into, Sattler said.

Women have the option of taking a secretarial class offered at the Displaced Homemaker's office, which meets three times a week for 26 weeks at 231 W. Main in Carbondale, or take vocational training classes in other fields at John A. Logan College, Sattler said.

SATTLER, along with vocational officers Helena Quaid and Trish Hammonds, help women obtain student aid at John A. Logan or fill out forms for public educational aid.

The Displace Homemaker's program was part of Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA), which was dismantled in 1983, but is now part of the Jobs Training Partnership Act (JTPA), which is funded through the Illinois Farmers Union.

The program also receives a grant from the Illinois Coalition Against Violence, Sattler said.

A vital part of the program's effectiveness is working with other agencies in Southern Illinois.

"THERE'S NO way for one agency to provide all the people's needs", Gyure said. "We all realize it's a concerted effort if agencies in the area are to be effective."

Displaced Homemaker's program absorbs the costs of the women's child care and mileage costs. These two factors are the most common barriers for the women getting to classes and making the program effective for them, Gyure said.

The program serves Jackson, Williamson, Franklin, Jefferson, Perry, Washington, Marion and Clinton counties. Some women, however, travel from other counties to the field offices to apply, Sattler said.

DISPLACED homemakers and victims of domestic violence are all facing different barriers to entering the workforce, she said. The major obstacle seems to be lack of self-confidence and working in the program helps the women's self-esteem, Sattler said.

USO asks views about fall break

Student's opinions about the proposed break-up of the Thanksgiving break will be solicited at the Undergraduate Student Organization Suggestion Table in the Student Center Monday.

Intramural basketball champions crowned

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

The 1985 intramural basketball championships were held last week, and Davies Gym became the site of the games for the first time.

The championships have been played at the Recreation Center in the past, but this year's intramural championships were held at Davies Gym because of the larger size and the quality of the court.

Other additions to the games included printed programs and the use of a public address system and scoreboard. This gave the games an added sense of professionalism, Bill McMinn, coordinator of intramural sports, said.

In the men's A league, Todd Haines scored 18 points to lead the Law to a 51-46 win over The Whip Thursday night.

It was a close game most of the way through, but the Whip couldn't gain the lead. Over 200 fans were in attendance for the game, marking an attendance record for the intramural championships.

Keith McReynolds and Myron Crowley scored 16 points each to lead Frustration to a 60-36 win over The Sixshooters in the men's A 6-foot and under league.

In the men's B league, the Jam defeated The Sikulas 61-49. Touch-N-Go won the men's 6-foot and under B title by defeating The Chasers 51-46.

The women's A league title was won by The Dudes, who defeated The Valley Girls 30-25. In the women's B league, the Women Floggers defeated Future Dunk 47-30.

In the Co-Rec leagues, close games prevailed. The Red Riders took the A title by defeating FloorPlay 61-59. In the B division, Borah's Core defeated 7 Mixed Nuts 72-71.

"We had an exceptional crowd, the largest and most enthusiastic I've ever seen at an intramural game," McMinn said.

"The sportsmanship was also exceptional, and that's a credit to all the team captains. I'm very pleased with the participation and enthusiasm displayed by everyone involved.

"The officials were outstanding and they worked very hard. They put up with a lot of frustration," McMinn said. He added that it's difficult for student referees to learn if they have to take criticism from fans.

McMinn also said the use of the public address system worked well. Peggy Kusinski, who works as a referee for intramural sports, was the announcer for the games.

With the completion of the basketball championships, the Intramural-Recreational sports program will now prepare for the spring season.

Softball is the most popular intramural sport during the spring. There are men's, women's and co-recreational softball leagues. For further information on softball or any other intramural sports contact the Office of Intramural-Recreational Sports at 536-5531.

Intramural swimming meet held

The Office of Intramural-Recreational Sports sponsored a swimming meet at the Recreation Center March 23, and five intramural records were broken.

The meet was part of the Intramural swimming league, which features six teams in the men's division and three teams in the women's division. The Water Polo club currently leads the men's standings with 94 points and the 4-somes lead the women's standings with 101 points.

Four women's records were broken at the meet. In the 50-yard breaststroke, Linda Paulkustys finished first in a record time of 35.00. Brenda Freeman set a record in the 100-yard freestyle with a 57.55. Lisa Stein established records in both the 50-yard backstroke and 200 yard freestyle with times of 31.58 and 2:16.70, respectively.

In the men's division, Matt Williams set a record in the 50-yard breaststroke with a 29.08.

Five co-recreational relays were also held. The Lifesavers dominated the relay competition by winning the 250-yard diminishing relay, the 100-yard intertube relay.

Saluki softball team splits in rain-shortened tourney

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

The Saluki softball team traveled to Normal this weekend, but rain and bad weather prevented completion of the Redbird Invitational.

In the Salukis' first game played Friday, SIU-C came from behind three times to finally defeat Illinois Central College 8-7 in eight innings.

The Saluki offense was led by Kathy Richert, who went 3-for-5 at the plate, and Rhonda Snew, who went 2-for-4. Shortstop Jenny Shupry continued to hit well, going 3-for-3 with one walk and four runs batted in. Shupry came up three times with runners in scoring position and brought them in each time. Laura McCune hit a solo home run, while Eileen Maloney earned the win.

In the second game played Friday afternoon, the Salukis were pitted against a tough Central Michigan club. The game was scoreless for the first five innings, but the Salukis jumped on top in the bottom of the sixth 1-0.

Central Michigan then got two runners on in the seventh inning and brought them home with a bases-clearing double which gave CMU a 2-1 win. Lisa Peterson took the loss.

Saluki Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said that she was pleased with the way the Salukis played, but was disappointed with the final outcome.

"All we needed was three more outs, and we just didn't do it," she said. "We've got to bear down on every pitch. See how fast the momentum can change?"

On Saturday, the Salukis were leading Miami of Ohio 1-0 before the game was called in the fourth inning, one inning shy of a complete game. The remainder of the tournament was then canceled because of bad weather.

The Salukis are now 8-8, not counting the two wins against Illinois Central College. SIU-C defeated ICC for the first time in the Saluki Invitational last week.

The next Saluki game is scheduled for Tuesday at 2 p.m. when SIU-C will host Southeast Missouri State at the IAW field across from the Recreation Center.

"SEMO is a quality Division II team, and they're a good hitting team," Brechtelsbauer said of the last Saluki opponent before starting conference play this weekend.

Saluki gymnast Lori Steele placed seventh at the NCAA Central Regionals on Saturday with a score of 36.35, while teammate Michelle Spillman scored a 34.45.

Steele and Spillman, the only members of the women's gymnastics team to qualify for regional competition, represented SIU-C as two of the six individual all-arounders. Six teams competed as well, with Alabama finishing first and advancing to the NCAA finals with a 186.35 total.

"Steele had a very good meet. She put together a good, strong meet; probably the best of her career," SIU-C Coach Herb Vogel said.

Steele and Spillman tied for fourth place in vaulting with scores of 9.45, and again in the floor exercise with 9.25 marks. Alabama's Cindy Wilson finished first in vaulting with a 9.55. Spillman had captured last year's regional vaulting title with a school-record 9.65.

Steele placed third in the uneven bars with a 9.30, while Penny Hauschild and Barbara Mack of Alabama tied for first. The Crimson Tide won each event, and placed the top four all-arounders. Hauschild scored a 37.70 in four events to top all other all-arounders.

"We expected to have done a little better. Both of the girls had their best warmups on Friday, but they had another day before competition. I think Michelle just tried a little too hard. She had a lot of trouble on the balance beam," Vogel said.

Spillman helped SIU-C place second at last year's regionals with an all-around score of 35.85 to place fifth. She had big expectations for her sophomore year, but illnesses held her back most of this season.

Louisiana State finished second with 181.50 points, followed by Michigan State (178.35), Illinois (177.80), Illinois State (177.25) and Missouri (173.85).

Women golfers finish 2nd in nine-team field

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

Gi Magnusson fired a two-under par 70 in the final round of the Saluki Invitational Saturday, to take medalist honors and lead the SIU-C women's golf team to a second place finish in the nine-team field.

Illinois State and SIU-C were tied for the team lead at 311 after the first round played on Friday at the Kentucky Dam Village course in Gilbertsville, Ky. The Salukis went ahead at the turn of Saturday's play, but gave up crucial strokes in the final nine holes and were edged 302-309.

"That 302 Illinois State shot is a great score and for us to still be battling with them I'm really pleased," Saluki coach Sonya Stalberger said. "They are a much more experienced team and it showed through in the last nine holes."

Redbird Coach John Platt agreed, and said consistency keeps his team in the top three at most events. Western Kentucky placed third with a 642 total, followed by Wichita State and Kansas State, which tied for fourth at 672. Platt talked about the disparity in the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference this season and the upcoming conference meet.

"Southern and Illinois State are basically the two top teams. I think it's going to be close, so we'll want to play good in every tournament. Our biggest concern is that the girls want to make the nationals," Platt said.

Stalberger said the Salukis are gaining in confidence and could surprise the Redbirds.

"We needed to get in this position. When we get in this position more often, we'll come out on top — you've got to experience that type of competition before you can do it to win," Stalberger said.

Redbird Julie Baxter shot a one-over-par 73 in the first 18 with Magnusson trailing by one stroke. Magnusson rallied early in Saturday's round with four birdies on her way to a career low and first place finish.

"I felt I had the game — I was really relaxed which is the most important thing," Magnusson said. "I had a couple of problems, but I had recovery shots which were really good. The only bad thing I did was I missed a putt which was less than a foot."

"You know you can't think about it — you have to play on," Magnusson said.

Women's tennis team beats Illinois State

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

The SIU-C women's tennis team split a pair of matches last weekend, losing to Iowa State 5-4 Friday but rebounding with an 8-1 victory over Illinois State Saturday.

The Salukis received strong performances from singles players Alessandra Molinari, Mary Pat Kramer, Maureen Harney and the doubles team of Kramer and Harney. They all went undefeated last weekend.

"I thought we would get a couple of wins in the top two singles matches against Illinois State because that would move our players up in the conference seedings, and Alessandra and Mary Pat did that," Saluki coach Judy Auld said.

The Salukis swept all six singles matches in their victory over Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference opponent Illinois State.

Molinari defeated Julie Loomis 7-5, 7-5 at No. 1 singles. Kramer beat Dawn Hanson 6-2, 7-5 at No. 2 singles. Ellen Moellering outlasted Peggy Scheiman 6-7, 7-5, 7-5 at No. 3 singles. Harney beat Annie Scheidt 6-1, 6-1 at No. 4 singles; Amanda Allen defeated Chris Nowicki 6-1, 6-4 at No. 5 singles; and Susan Steuby beat Carol Rundle 7-6, 7-5 at No. 6 singles.

The Salukis also won two out of three doubles matches. Kramer and Harney defeated Nowicki and Scheiman 6-3, 6-0 at No. 2 doubles; and Moellering and Steuby came away with a victory at No. 3 doubles.

SIU-C's lone loss was at No. 1 doubles, as the Redbirds' Loomis and Hanson defeated Molinari and Allen, 6-4, 6-4.

In the loss to Iowa State, the Salukis received wins from Molinari at No. 1 singles, Kramer at No. 2 singles, Harney at No. 4 singles, and the No. 2 doubles team of Kramer and Harney.

The Salukis' second match Saturday against Southwest Missouri State was cancelled.

With the victory over Illinois State, the Salukis raised their record to 2-1 in the conference and 3-10 overall in the spring season.

Hoyas, Wildcats set for title tilt

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — The NCAA will measure the accomplishment of Georgetown against the commitment of Villanova Monday night in its 47th annual championship game.

Georgetown's Hoyas have the look and accomplishment of a champion: they won the 1984 NCAA championship, they finished 1985 as the No. 1 team in the nation and they now find themselves in the title game against a team they have already beaten twice this winter.

But Villanova's Wildcats have the commitment of a champion: as the No. 8 seeded team in the Southeast Regional, they beat Dayton at Dayton and then posted consecutive upsets of No. 2 Michigan, Maryland, No. 7

North Carolina and No. 4 Memphis State to earn the school's first NCAA title game berth since 1971.

The Wildcats have given up either size or speed to everyone they have faced in the tournament thus far — but what they haven't given up is points. What Villanova does best is play defense — and that defense is tied to the Big East school's ability to control the tempo.

"We made a commitment to do the things we know we can do best," Villanova Coach Rollie Massimino said. "The teams we have beaten thus far have been outstanding basketball teams — everyone but Dayton has been in the Top 20 and in most cases the Top 10."

"We knew we couldn't run up and down the court with them. We'd like to run our break, but we don't want one-pass shots. We make the extra pass to get the ball where we want it. We don't ever intentionally try to hold the ball; we just try to get a good shot. Making the extra pass doesn't mean taking the air out of the ball."

Villanova has held its five NCAA opponents to an average of 47 points per game on 42 percent shooting.

condition," Zimmerman said.

Aaron Castner of the SIU-C boxing club had reservations about returning to the ring after suffering a vicious cut in golden gloves competition a month ago.

"I was nervous about going back in. I gave it everything I had," Castner said.

He was hardly touched by Matt Marchand in the 180-pound novice class fight. Marchand, bloodied in the first round, fell victim to Castner's punishment with a second round knockout. Castner improved his mark to 2-1.

William McKnight, another

SIU-C boxing club member to compete in golden gloves this season, evened his record to 1-1 after a close decision in the 140-pound novice class bout against Sergio Aguilero.

"It was pretty close. In the second and third I turned the steam on, worked hard on his body and used the ring to my advantage. It sounded like the crowd thought it should've gone the other way — I guess because he was a good fighter who was tougher than he looked," McKnight said.

Men swimmers place 16th at NCAA finals

By Mike Frey
Sports Editor

Gary Brinkman placed fourth in two events to pace the SIU-C men's swimming team to a 16th place finish at the NCAA Division I Swimming and Diving Championships at Austin, Texas, Saturday.

Brinkman, a junior from Athlone Park, South Africa, finished fourth in the 500-yard freestyle Thursday with a school record time of 4:18.16. On Saturday, Brinkman took fourth place in the 1,650-yard freestyle with a school record time of 14:54.72.

Stanford won the meet with 403.5 points, Florida was second with 329 points and host Texas finished third with 306 points. SIU-C had 40 points.

Anders Grillhammar and Erwin Kratz also had personal-best performances in the 1,650-yard freestyle. Grillhammar finished 13th in the event in 15:17.45 and Kratz finished 18th with a 15:20.35.

Tom Hakanson was the Salukis' top placer in the 100-yard freestyle, as he placed 23rd with a time of 44.60. Nigel Stanton finished 18th in 3-meter diving with 490 points.

The Saluki 800-yard freestyle relay team of Hans Kroes, Gerhard Van der Walt, Joakim Sjöholm and Hakanson placed 18th with a time of 6:39.66.

On Friday, the Salukis competed in four events. Their best performance came in the 400-yard freestyle relay, where the team of Kroes, Van der Walt, Sjöholm and Hakanson placed 14th in 3:59.76.

Giovanni Frigo finished 25th in the 100-yard backstroke in 50.89; Kratz placed 19th in the 400-yard individual medley with a personal best 3:55.37, and Van der Walt took 19th place in the 100-yard butterfly in 49.10.

The 16th-place finish was the Salukis' worst since 1980, when they placed 27th with eight points. SIU-C finished 15th in 1981, placed 12th in 1982 and 1983 and tied for 12th place in 1984.

The Salukis' highest finish came in 1965, when they took ninth place with 43 points.

Brinkman's performance enabled him to gain All-America honors for the third consecutive season. He finished fifth in both the 500- and 1,650-yard freestyle events at last year's NCAA meet.

Zimmerman gains victory by TKO

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

Roger Green survived three eight counts and was even smiling during a fourth eight count, but it was John Zimmerman of the SIU-C boxing club who had the last laugh as champion of the bout.

Green, a 1982 state golden gloves champion, and Zimmerman, a 1985 golden gloves champ, battled in the 135-pound open class as the main event at the Round-ups' first annual amateur boxing tournament Friday at Murphysboro.

The first round of the main bout was sloppy and too close to call.

"I was trying to feel him out because I knew he was loading a big right hand," Zimmerman said.

The pace quickened as Zimmerman sent Green to the floor twice with big left hooks in the second round. Green was saved by the bell during the second eight count.

Zimmerman came out strong in the third, immediately knocking down Green for his third eight count. Apparently resting, Green shook off all but his fourth and final eight count when the referee stopped the fight and gave Zimmerman the victory by TKO.

"He started to miss, got frustrated and that's when I could slip in. I got close enough to use my left hook and delivered it. He didn't look hurt, though. I don't know why they stopped it," Zimmerman said.

Endurance and quickness were major factors contributing to Zimmerman's triumph, but he wondered if Green was truly finished.

"I'll guarantee he was resting because he had a smile on his face. The only thing that won this fight for me was my endurance — I was in better

Baseball Salukis win seventh straight game

A perfectly executed squeeze bunt off the bat of Terry Jones drove home Jay Burch with the winning run as the Salukis defeated SIU-E 2-1 in a rain-shortened game at Abe Martin Field on Friday.

The Salukis, who collected only four hits, scored twice in the bottom of the fourth inning and held the Cougars in the top of the fifth to win their seventh straight game. The game, which got underway 30 minutes late because of rain, was called by the umpires after five innings as rain continued to fall.

With one out and the bases loaded, Jones dropped a bunt

Weather causes cancellations

The rain and poor weather that plagued Carbondale throughout the weekend caused the cancellation of the Salukis' weekend series with Louisville. SIU-C was scheduled to play the Cardinals in a single game on Saturday and in a doubleheader on Sunday. The Borgsmiller Travels-Saluki Invitational, which was scheduled for Saturday, was also cancelled. The Invitational would have featured both the men's and women's track teams.

down the third base side that was fielded by Cougar pitcher John Groennert (1 2). Groennert's throw to the plate wasn't in time to catch Burch, and the Salukis had taken the lead.

"We knew the game wasn't going to go nine innings so we were just going for another run. Ordinarily we'd be swinging away and looking for a big inning," SIU-C Coach Richard "Itchy" Jones said.

The Salukis' winning rally was started by designated hitter Steve Finley's triple to right field. Burch then singled home Finley with his 16th run batted in to tie the score at one. Right fielder Robert Jones reached on an infield single.

and a walk to Charlie Hillemann loaded the bases for Terry Jones.

SIU-C had trailed since the second inning when the Cougars scored an unearned run off Todd Neibel (2-0).

First baseman Tony Duenas led off the second inning with a grounder to Jones at shortstop, but Jones' throw bounced in front of Saluki first baseman Kevin Pour, and Duenas was on first. Jones, who committed 12 errors in 40 games as a freshman last year, already has 11 errors this season.

Todd Miller than singled to right center and Duenas scored all the way from first. The ball died in the wet outfield grass, and by the time Pour's relay came to the plate, Duenas had scored the Cougars' lone run on a close play.

Rich Kocik relieved Neibel with two runners on and two outs in the top of the fifth, and hit the first batter he faced to load the bases. Koch then got Dave Slimack to ground out to second.

Old Dominion wins women's NCAA cage title

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Tracy Claxton and Medina Dixon controlled the backboards and sparked Old Dominion's defensive effort down the stretch Sunday to bring the Lady Monarchs the national championship of women's collegiate basketball with a 70-65 victory over Georgia.

Old Dominion captured its third national title in seven years, finishing its season with a 31-3 record and 11 wins in a row.

Georgia, meanwhile, had two of its key players foul out — Olympic team member Teresa Edwards and high scoring Katrina McClain — and thus did not have enough muscle or firepower over the final minutes to combat the Lady Monarchs.

The Lady Bulldogs stayed in the game during the middle portion of the second half despite the fact Old Dominion claimed almost every rebound.

Old Dominion made five straight field goals off of offensive rebounds, but with 4:22 to play the Lady Bulldogs pulled even at 59-59 on a free throw by Traci Waites.

Georgia turned the ball over on its next three possessions, however, and failed to score for 2:22 while Old Dominion was running off six straight points.

Dixon scored 18 points and Claxton had 17 to pace the Lady Monarchs, who won the national championship in 1979 and 1980 when women's collegiate athletics was under the direction of the AIAW.

This was the fourth women's championship conducted by the NCAA.

Georgia took a 31-22 lead late in the first half when Old Dominion went 4:16 without scoring a point, but the Lady Bulldogs could not score themselves for the final 4:22 of the first half while the Lady Monarchs pulled to within a point at 31-30.

Edwards, who scored 29 points in Georgia's semifinal win over Western Kentucky Friday night, picked up her fourth foul with 13:23 to play and then fouled out with 8:29 left having scored 11 points.

McClain, who had a career-high 25 points in the semifinals, fouled out with 5:34 to play with eight points.

Claxton, who was voted the tournament's most valuable player, put Old Dominion in front with four minutes left after grabbing an offensive rebound. Maria Christian boosted the Lady Monarchs to a four-point lead and then Adrienne Goodson made two free throws.

That gave Old Dominion a six-point advantage with 2:27 to play and the Lady Bulldogs could get no closer than four points after that.
