Union vote decision won't be expediated

By John Baldwin
Staff Writer

The Illinois Educational Labor Relations Board decided Thursday not to expediate an election on whether University employees want to unionize, with most parties in agreement that the election won't be held this semester.

However, Herbert Donow, president of University Professionals, said, "We aren't yet prepared to accept the board's ruling."

UP and the Illinois Education Association are the two unions vying to represent University employees should they decide to unionize.

He said the UP may take the issue to court so an election can be held this semester.

"It's an option that we're thinking seriously about," he said.

Chancellor Lawrence Pettit said, "We want to get it over with, but we want due process too."

"It continues to puzzle me how they can make something so relatively simple so complex."

—Herbert Donow

"I think it's unfortunate they didn't resolve the issues a month ago."

—Don Keck

Before the board orders an election, it wants to decide whether department chairs should be considered as faculty or administration. Only faculty can join the union.

The board also wants to decide whether the two SIU campuses should vote together or separately on the union issue.

The University has been waiting for a decision on how and when it can vote on unionization for more than three years.

"It continues to puzzle me how they can make something so relatively simple so complex," Donow said. "For being indecisive, these people rival Hamlet for not being able to make up their minds."

Don Keck, IEA organizer, said, "I think it's unfortunate they didn't resolve the issues a month ago."

Keck said the IEA is hoping an election can be held in the fall semester.

Former DE photographer wins Pulitzer Prize

Former Daily Egyptian photographer Scott Shaw won a Pulitzer Prize for spot news photography Thursday for a picture of "Baby Jessica" McClure, who was trapped in an abandoned well for 2½ days.

Shaw now works for the Odessa American in Odessa, Texas.

Shaw, after waiting wellside for 22 hours, shot the close-up photo of McClure being rushed to an ambulance after the rescue. Shaw described his wait at wellside as "fatiguing."

The 18-month-old child fell into an 8-inch-wide opening of the backyard water well in Midland, Texas on Oct. 14. The rescue team worked for 58½ hours to pull her from the well.

"You never knew when she was going to be rescued," Shaw said. "They kept telling us 'two hours' and there's not much going on when you're waiting for the big event."

Med School to resign from Chamber

By Steven Starke
Staff Writer

The SIU-C School of Medicine will not renew its membership with the Illinois Chamber of Commerce because the organization will not support a tax increase.

School of Medicine Dean Richard H. Moy said that by not supporting a long overdue and critically needed tax increase, the chamber is sending a message to Illinois citizens that higher education is not a priority.

At a Carbondale press conference last week, Chamber of Commerce President Lester Brann said a tax increase would not be necessary to raise additional funds for education in Illinois.

Daylight time starts on Sunday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Daylight saving time returns Sunday, depriving millions of Americans of an hour's sleep but giving them an extra hour of sunshine in the afternoon.

The time change requires that clocks be set forward one hour at 2 a.m. local time on the first Sunday in April.

The adage "spring forward, fall back" helps keep the time changes straight.

Because the return of daylight saving time coincides with Easter Sunday, those planning to attend morning services should make sure to advance their clocks before they go to bed.

Blood drive counting on 'friends'

By Antoinette Hayes
Staff Writer

The Red Cross is striking up the band and rolling out the red carpet during the "Friends Helping Friends" blood drive to be held in the Student Center ballrooms next week.

Vivian Ugent, blood drive coordinator, said the drive will kick off Monday at 9:30 a.m. Ugent said the drive, which ends Friday, may be the biggest the University has ever had.

Donation hours are 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. every day except Wednesday, when the hours will be 12:30 to 6:30 p.m. The stars of Monday's kick off will be the newborn quadruplets of John and Judy Simmons of Creal Springs. She said the Simmons quads were given blood and represent the importance of donating.

Mayor Neil Dillard also will be on hand Monday to proclaim the week of April 4 "Blood Donor Week" in Carbondale, Ugent said. Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit, members of the Marching Salukis, and student leaders also will be present at the opening session.

The goal for the blood drive is 2,500 pints. The University holds the record for the most donations during peacetime, she said, adding, the concern and enthusiasm of the students and the community are the

Israeli officials ease grip, lift curfew on Gaza Strip

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israeli officials decided Thursday to loosen the army's grip on the occupied territories, ordering an end to the unprecedented closure of the West Bank and lifting a three-day curfew on the Gaza Strip, where violent protests immediately erupted in U.N.-run refugee camps. At least two people were injured, one by gunfire, during clashes with troops in the Jabalia and Rafah refugee camps.

U.S. pilot killed in training crash in Germany

FORST, West Germany (UPI) — A U.S. Air Force jet fighter crashed Thursday in a residential neighborhood, killing the pilot and a civilian on the ground and setting three houses ablaze in a hail of flaming debris, police said. The Air Force F-16 Falcon jet crashed in the small town of Forst, 80 miles south of Frankfurt, during a routine 90-minute low-altitude training flight. It was the second jet fighter crash in West Germany this week, coming just one day after a French Mirage warplane on a low-altitude training mission crashed near a West German nuclear power plant.

Ortega: Contra aid will not harm peace talks

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — President Daniel Ortega urged the United States Thursday to jump directly into peace negotiations in Central America and said U.S. humanitarian aid to the Contra rebels would not jeopardize a week-old truce. In Washington, the Senate, in a lopsided vote, approved and sent to President Reagan a $48 million bill Thursday renewing humanitarian aid to the Contra rebels while efforts continued to end the 7-year-old civil war in Nicaragua.

Pope commemorates Last Supper in mass

ROME (UPI) — Pope John Paul II bowed to wash and kiss the feet of 12 priests Thursday during a Holy Week mass commemorating Christ's Last Supper with his disciples. The Holy Thursday rite in the Basilica of St. John in Lateran opened the most solemn period of the liturgical year marking the betrayal, crucifixion and burial of Christ, which precedes the Easter Sunday celebration of his resurrection.

U.S., Soviets allow supplies to Afghanistan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States and the Soviet Union, unable to agree on cutting off arms to the sides they back in the Afghan war, have decided independently those supplies can continue during the Soviet withdrawal, U.S. officials said Thursday. On that basis, and with Pakistan's concurrence, the United States is prepared to sign on as a guarantor in the agreement to end the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan, the officials said.

U.S. breaks international Mafia heroin ring

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Edwin Meese said Thursday authorities pierced "to the heart" of an international Mafia heroin ring and netted 233 traffickers in Sicily and the United States. Meese, hailing the operation as the "largest international drug case ever developed by the federal government," said 69 suspects nationwide and 164 in Italy were charged with importing heroin into the United States from Europe and distributing it through a network stretching from coast to coast.

Lawyer: Uprisings work for Cuban refugees

ATLANTA (UPI) — Nearly half the Cuban refugees being held in federal prisons have been approved for parole in a review process sped up by violent uprisings they staged last year in Atlanta and Louisiana, their lawyer said Thursday. Of the 3,800 Cubans jailed as "excludable aliens" — some since shortly after the 1980 boatlift delivered 125,000 Cuban emigres to Florida — at least 1,781 have been approved for release or already have been freed to live in halfway houses or with their families, Gary Leshaw, a lawyer who represents the Cubans, said.

IRS expects more people to file tax returns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the April 15 tax filing deadline drawing near, IRS officials told Congress Thursday they expect taxpayer compliance will improve for 1987 but about $85 billion in still-owed income taxes will go unpaid. Commissioner Lawrence Gibbs of the Internal Revenue Service said the agency expected individual taxpayers will account for $63.5 billion — or about 75 percent — of the "tax gap" while unpaid corporate taxes will total $21 billion.

University Museum caters to art, history buffs

Collections offer montage of artistry

By Amy Gaubatz
Staff Writer

The best kept secret on campus is the University Museum, said John Whitlock, director of the museum.

The museum, located in the north wing of Paner Hall, has a 27,000-piece collection of fine arts, decorative arts, furniture, costumes, geological and archeological artifacts.

"Most of the collection comes from scientific research, donations and gifts from alumni and friends," he added.

Graduate students and faculty members in the arts are invited to exhibit their work, Whitlock said. Students working on their master's degrees in art or cinema and photography are required to exhibit, and there is a faculty show every year.

THE MUSEUM receives some of its exhibits from other museums, and invites artists from across the country to display their works.

"If we hear about an exhibition that would be nice on campus, we see how much it would cost," Whitlock said. "We always look at our budget to see if we can afford it."

The price of an exhibit brought to the University from another museum can range from $1,500 to $8,000.

"We usually stay away from the really expensive exhibits," he said.

The University Museum Associates, which raises money for the museum and operates the museum gift shop, provides funding for the exhibits.

The most significant collection at the museum is the Melanesian collection of South Pacific Art. Consisting of 1,250 pieces, it is the largest exhibit the museum has had in the past decade.

"It's very difficult to display a large collection effectively if space is limited," Whitlock said. "Space is a problem. We plan exhibits two years in advance. It's the only way we can plan linguistics, space and budget."

"Exhibits are displayed usually for four weeks," Whitlock said. "It depends on how much something costs, and being practical. If we donate a lot of time and money and it won't travel to other museums, it's best to keep it on display for a longer time so more (people) can see it."

THE EXHIBITS are divided into two categories, art and history.

The history division includes anthropological, historical exhibits. The museum's permanent collection usually is used for such exhibits, Jo Anne Nast, the museum's curator of history, said.

"When setting up an exhibit, we look at the permanent collection, and try to pick things that are interesting to the campus and the region," Nast said. "We try to do things that will interest people on a lot of levels."

"Sometimes we try to use them in more creative ways," Nast added. "We try to do comparative things with them, so the viewer has something different to look at and think about."

Guides for the exhibits are written by museum researchers. "It tells our story, what our interpretation is based on," Nast said.

IT TAKES three to four months to plan and install an exhibit, sometimes longer if the exhibit is very large, Nast said.

Examples of the history collection include a historic clothing collection, a collection of American Indian artifacts and a collection of Mexican artifacts.

The art collection consists of paintings, sculptures, crafts, and photographs, Peggy Lietz, graduate student for the art division, said.

Lietz said that when an art exhibit is being designed, museum officials look at all of the work and try to get a main focus point.

"We look at the size, shape and color," she said. "We think about traffic patterns while arranging them, how gallery visitors will view them, how closely together they should be, and that they not block each other."

The final ingredient is the lighting, which often is the most sensitive part of the exhibit.

"A lot of artifacts can't take a lot of light, they will fade," Lietz explained. "That's why it (the museum) is dimly lit."

The lighting must be directed in such a way that viewers "notice the piece, not just the space around it," she added.

WHITLOCK SAID the most unusual and unique art collection ever exhibited at the museum were the "native paintings" by Clarence "Jay Bird" Tanner of Royaltown.

"His art reflected his life as a retired coal miner," Whitlock said. "He was self-taught. He painted his dreams and daily life."

Whitlock said the museum would like to have more exhibits which involve the audience directly.

"Our goal, over the next five years, is to create a learning experience center that will introduce the use of the computer as a learning device, which in turn will link the visitor to exhibits," Whitlock said. "We would like to develop a hands on combination of art and artifacts, and computer as an information device."

THE MUSEUM gives tours to University students, faculty, area school children, senior citizens and other groups. Whitlock said. Seventy-three tours were given in 1987, and 31,134 visits were recorded.

Compared to five years ago, the museum is probably receiving more grant money, said Whitlock.

"In the future, I would like to see us reach a point with the undergraduate and graduate programs in museum studies, so we could contribute to the museum profession," Whitlock said. "We would like to attract significant gifts to our collection so we could utilize them in our exhibits."

Harassment policy needs revamping

THE EXISTING SEXUAL harassment policy at SIU-C is ambiguous and leaves room for violations to go unreported for fear of humiliation, false accusations and retaliation.

The current policy defines sexual harassment as unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors and other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature. It also states that sexual favors cannot be made a condition of employment or instruction.

While these rules may be a sound framework for preventing sexual harassment, at least a few more provisions need to be added. Many victims, for instance, don't bother reporting harassment because they may be unjustly accused of provoking it or they fear negative retaliation from the perpetrators.

ANY RESPONSIBLE SEXUAL harassment policy must provide the victim with an advocate. Since most reported cases involve a superior attempting to coerce a subordinate. Besides the obvious fact that the experience is traumatic, in cases involving faculty members and students, most students can't afford an attorney while most faculty members can.

In an extreme case of retaliation several weeks back, a California man went on a killing rampage with a 9mm Browning automatic and other semi-automatic weapons after he was ordered to court in a sexual harassment case. This is an insane reaction, of course, but it shows that some sort of reassurance and protection for the victim is just plain common sense.

THE QUESTION OF consensual agreement also must be addressed. In situations where one person is in a position of power over another, it often is difficult to end a relationship. The major problem is that a teacher could threaten a student with poor grades if the student wants out. This is clearly sexual harassment, and the teacher should not be able to justify it by claiming it was a consensual relationship.

Another flaw of the existing policy is the president's omnipotence in enforcing the policy of law. Although an investigative body presents the facts to the president, the president has the authority to dismiss the evidence, the recommendations of the reviewing body and the whole incident if he feels the allegations are false.

IN ONE CASE, more than a dozen pages of findings documenting instances and suggesting punishment were submitted to the president and he overturned these recommendations with no punitive action. The charges resulted in nothing more than a painful ordeal for the victim while the harasser wasn't even given a slap on the wrist.

This sort of subjective justice could be avoided by giving final authority in sexual harassment cases to a neutral tribunal that would actually hear the case and see the witnesses testify.

Given his busy schedule, it's not feasible for the president to sit in on the proceedings (he doesn't), and in many cases the president couldn't afford to be objective. This sounds illogical, but in a hypothetical situation involving a researcher who may bring in huge sums of grant money harassing a secretary, who is more expendable in the administration's eyes?

PRESIDENT JOHN GUYON is revising the policy, with the help of many other qualified experts in the field. He has expressed hope that it can be implemented before the end of the term, but says he doesn't know if that's possible and won't set a deadline.

The Women's Task Force gave its recommendations to Guyon in early March, and it's understandable that he be given adequate time to review them. If this time is spent wisely and results in a fair, more comprehensive sexual harassment policy, then it will be worth the wait.

Child-care bill needs your support

What force in American life today affects the working lives of men and women in the economic health of our country, family stability, and the health and well-being of our young children?

High quality, affordable child care — the vital link that connects our lives as workers, parents and children — has come of age as a high-priority national issue.

The Act for Better Child Care Services, co-sponsored on a bi-partisan basis by many members of Congress (including Sen. Paul Simon and Reps. Ken Gray, Terry Bruce, Richard Durbin, Melvin Price, and Sidney Yates), would authorize $2.5 billion (with a 20-percent state match) to help states accomplish the following goals:

- Make child care more affordable for low- and moderate-income families;
- Increase the number of child-care facilities and the number of qualified day-care staff available to all families;

—Improve the quality of child care available to all families;

—Coordinate child-care resources to ensure their efficient use and help make a wide range of child-care options available to parents, enabling them to make the most suitable arrangements for their children.

Child-care issues seem to be caught in the "trilemma" of high quality care, affordability, and adequate compensation for well-qualified workers. The Act for Better Child Care would reduce these conflicts in the following ways:

- Provide states with funds to make child-care assistance available to low- and moderate-income families and to parents enrolled in educational programs;

—Establish low-interest loans to start and expand child-care programs and to train more family day-care providers;

—Provide training and technical assistance to child-care providers and ensure adequate salaries to attract and retain qualified workers;

—Coordinate existing services and establish referral programs to help link parents with appropriate child-care services.

While many Illinois members of Congress are co-sponsoring the Act for Better Child Care, Sen. Alan Dixon has not yet signed as a co-sponsor. Illinois citizens who believe in the necessity of such legislation should write to The Honorable Alan Dixon, 316 Hart Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20510. — Jo Ann N. Nelson, assistant professor, Curriculum and Instruction

Woody Shuffle does not end at graduation

The following letter is to the Bursar's mother with the hope that she will read it to her child (the Bursar). I have sent this to the Daily Egyptian because my other letters to the Bursar have gone unanswered. This letter shows that students are never really through with the Woody Shuffle.

Dear Mommy of the Bursar: Please try to explain the following to your child. It may be difficult because I believe your child is deaf and blind...

In May 1986 I graduated from this fine university with all fees paid. (If I'm going too fast you could read slowly to the little type.) But, as luck would have it, there was another student with the same name as mine at the same time and in the same department. He did not graduate and left without paying all his fees. (Hard to believe, I know.) So your child, in all its wisdom, billed me. At first this was amusing. Every few months, like clockwork, your child's playschool computer would spit out a bill with the following... Mark Collins MINIMUM AMOUNT DUE $60.46. But it had the other Mark Collins' social security number on it and my address.

Anyway, I wrote a couple of letters to your child explaining the mix-up, but this was to no avail. I did my best to keep the English simple, but I obviously failed. And for two years I have been getting billed while the other Mark Collins probably is receiving my transcripts.

Now it appears things have gotten a little more serious. Your rambunctious child has slapped a collection-agency fee on its latest statement. Ms. Bursar, I hope you will explain to your child the legal consequences of improperly tampering with someone's credit rating. If you do not, I'll be forced to take your child to the legal woodshed and spank its behind.

It is my deepest hope that you will read this letter to your child and it will get off my back soon. — Mark G. Collins, Class of 1986, physiology

Shaw learned of his award when he received a phone call from United Press International requesting an interview. About two seconds later, the news of his award came over the wire, he said.

"It was crazy," Shaw said. "Everyone was hugging each other, jumping around and two bottles of champagne were poured on me right away."

The same photograph won the National Press Photographers Clip contest for his region, which includes Louisiana, Texas and New Mexico, he said. It also appeared in Time Pictures of the Year and People magazine.

Bill Harmon, who was the managing editor of the DE for 14 years, said of Shaw's award, "This could make Scott's career. He was in the right place at the right time."

Shaw always was an alert photographer who "wanted to be a news photographer and not other kind," Harmon said.

Shaw said working for a bigger newspaper or possibly a magazine could be in his future.

Harmon said, "He'll find other opportunities and he won't miss them."

Shaw worked for the DE for two years and also served as photo editor. He said he learned a lot working and putting the paper out every day.

Shaw graduated from the University in May 1985. He majored in photojournalism and minored in psychology.

In a letter to the chamber, Moy said, "The School of Medicine has sustained substantial reductions in state support over the last several years with an even bleaker outlook projected for fiscal year 1989."

The prospect of no salary increases for faculty and staff for two years in a row has caused retension and recruitment problems for the medical school, he added.

Moy said he is concerned the medical school won't be able to stay competitive with other schools for top faculty, adding, some are being lured by offers of higher salaries from other states.

"We stand to lose excellent faculty members who can't wait for Illinois to re-establish its leadership role in higher education," Moy said. "We must compete in the academic marketplace, and frankly, our competitiveness is eroding at a rapid pace."

According to Brann, additional taxes could cost Illinois taxpayers anywhere from $750 million to $1.5 billion each year without any guarantee that the quality of education will be improved.

Brann said the chamber projects state revenue will increase $500 million in the next fiscal year and that increased taxes would slow industrial growth in Illinois.

"High tax states have slow growth rates," Brann said.

Northern Illinois University also has dropped its membership from the chamber for similar reasons.

Mark Raeber, public affairs spokesman for the medical school, said this decision will have no bearing on the school's affiliation with the local Springfield Chamber of Commerce.

'Battle for Books' race heats up as undergrads quicken the pace

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

The Battle for the Books is heating up.

Donations have begun to come in and the undergraduates are catching up to the graduates. So far, the undergraduates have $620.02 and the graduates have $898.41.

The undergraduates will begin selling $1 tickets today to raffie off a trip for two to Cancun, Mexico from Ask Mr. Foster Thunderbird Travel, United Airlines and Tradewind Tours.

To win the trip, ticket holders must guess the number of items loaned to other libraries through Morris Library's inter-library loan system in March.

Bob Cole, graduate assistant for the Student Alumni Council and the Alumni Association, said tickets are available from the Undergraduate Student Organization office on the third floor of the Student Center or the Alumni Association office on the second floor.

Any of the groups paricipating in the competition for prizes sponsored by the USO and Student Alumni Council also can sell tickets, Cole said.

The graduates are offering a trip for one to Hawaii from B & A Travel. To win, a $1 ticket must be purchased and one must guess the number of people to use Morris Library in March. The graduates have been selling tickets since last week.

Darrell Johnson, Graduate and Professional Student Council president, said many of their tickets have not been turned in yet. About 2,500 have been distributed to graduate students to sell, he said.

"We should both (graduates and undergraduates) be able to reach our goal if we get enough people out there" selling tickets, Johnson said.

Both groups are trying to raise $10,000 to have a named endowment for Morris Library. The deadline for the contest was moved back to April 28 to allow more money to be collected for the library.

Cole said that Schneider Hall is leading in the housing competition with $199 and that no other groups in that category had turned in any money.

Theta Xi fraternity is leading the fraternity-sorority group with $167, followed by Delta Zeta with $51 and Alpha Kappa Psi with $44. This based on the amount of money that each group has turned in so far, he said.

Cole said the Student Alumni Association and the USO would like to encourage more group involvement. "It looks like it's going to be fun," he said.

Complaints: Noise level up at Morris

By Daniel Wallenberg
Student Writer

The suggestions in Morris Library's library complaint box recently have dealt with the problem of noise and distractions in the undergraduate library.

"Personally I've received no complaints, but the memos seem to suggest complaints," Jay Starrett, assistant director of library services said.

Stacks of books along walls and hallways waiting to be put in storage have caused seating to be pushed closer together. When people sit closer to each other they tend to interact more, Starrett said.

With all the traffic between elevators, card catalogues, hallways and photocopiers in the undergraduate library, it's impossible to keep the area quiet, Roland Person, assistant undergraduate librarian, said.

Students studying in groups also may be part of the problem. Group study rooms are located on the first three floors of the library, but there are a limited number available, Person said.

Morris Library's upper floors offer quieter places to study with less distractions and traffic, but there also is less seating, Person said.

Students making excessive noise usually are quieted by other students, but occasionally a librarian will be asked to help quiet things down, Person said. If a problem persists, campus security is called, he said.

Starrett said there are no staff members available to monitor students in the library.

"The noise problem is one you create informal policies to deal with," Starrett said. "Peer pressure is the best control," Person said. "It's not our duty to be 'shushers.'"

Artists to speak at forum

By Richard Nunez
Entertainment Editor

Three students will present and lecture on their artwork during the first "SIU Forum for the Arts," which the members of Students for the Arts hope will become an annual event.

The event will take place at 7 tonight at the Soundstage in the Communications Building.

The event, designed for advanced students in the arts, will allow artists in the area to present their work to the public and answer questions the audience may have about it.

"Hopefully there will be an interaction between the audience and the artists,"

Kathleen Ensor, member of Students for the Arts, said.

The three artists lecturing tonight include: Monty Helm, graduate student in art, who will present some of his paintings and lecture about how he approaches his work and the subjects he explores; Neil Steffy, graduate student in English, who will read several of his poems; Steve Timpe, graduate student in cinema and photography, who will present his film "Puppet Show."

The forum is the first event to showcase artwork by budding artists in Southern Illinois, Ensor said.

"The whole reason we started this was to let students know that there is artwork going on like this every day," Ensor said. "There isn't anything going on like this (the forum) in the area."

Eventually the program will include artists in the departments of speech communication, theater, music, English, cinema and photography and the visual arts, Ensor said.

"We feel it's a very important program," she said. "It's educational in that the artists will be seeing each other's artwork and hopefully learn something about each other."

Ensor said the forums are free to the public.

'Hardbodies' on tap at Shryock

By Terri Hogue
Student Writer

Student will get a chance to parade their physiques at the Mr. and Ms. SIU Bodybuilding competition at Shryock Auditorium Saturday.

Twelve men, five women and three couples are expected to compete, Rich Arundale, president of the SIU Weightlifting Club, said. The exact number is not yet known because some entrants will decide not to compete, while others will enter late.

After months of training, some contestants decide to drop out of the competition because they did not lose enough weight or were unsure of themselves, Arundale said.

A serious contestant might start training years before a contest, he said.

Bill Boemper, who placed second in last year's contest, started lifting weights in 1984. He attended his first Mr. SIU competition in 1986, where he decided that he wanted to compete again this year.

"Your entire outlook changes when you bodybuild," Boemper said. "School becomes less important and relationships usually are strained."

"The body goes through so many chemical changes, one day you won't have any energy because you have cut your carbs, and on another day you won't feel like being around anyone," Boemper said. "You plan your life around it."

Bodybuilding is very time consuming, Joe Lochiano, head judge of this year's competition, said. Researching and planning a diet takes a lot of time, not to mention the time spent in the gym each day lifting, he said. As the contest draws closer, you have to tan and practice your posing.

Prejudging begins at 1:30 p.m. with the evening show at 7. Tim Smith, who has won several bodybuilding contests, will be the guest poser.

Journalism requirements to be changed

By Phyllis Coon
Staff Writer

An administrator and a faculty member disagree on how useful a foreign language requirement would be for students in the School of Journalism.

Last week, the journalism school's faculty board voted in favor of the idea to make a foreign language course requirement in the School of Journalism.

Studying foreign languages can give students a better knowledge and understanding of their own language that can make them better writers, Walter Jaehnig, director of the School of Journalism, said.

But Robert Spellman, head of the news-editorial sequence, questioned the value of a foreign language requirement. "Without two years of a language it loses its purpose," Spellman said.

Jaehnig said there are a lot of unanswered questions that will have to be addressed at the next faculty board meeting. The questions include which languages will meet the requirement, how many credit hours will be required and how many semesters students will have to take a language, he said.

Jaehnig said the requirement could go into effect in the fall of 1989.

About 400 students are enrolled in the School of Journalism.

"We probably will turn more students away if they want to study Spanish or French," Margaret Winter, chair of the foreign language department, said. "If they want to take one of the other languages, we will be able to absorb them."

Day of Action II staff wants letters written

Preparations for Day of Action II are underway.

Members of the Undergraduate Student Organization's governmental relations commission are encouraging students to attend the April 13 rally in Springfield to lobby legislators for more money for higher education.

The University will take four buses to the rally, Heidi Leisner, governmental relations commissioner, said.

Students also are asked to write letters to legislators from their districts thanking them for supporting a tax increase or encouraging them to do so, she said.

Tables will be set up on the first floor of the Student Center near the bakery from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. until April 12 for students to sign up for the buses or turn in their letters, which will be hand delivered to the legislators, Leisner said.

Leisner said the governmental relations commission will begin scheduling appointments with legislators today and also will do a breakdown of those in support of the tax increase and those against it.

Students are asked to write letters to legislators from their districts either thanking them for supporting a tax increase or encouraging them to support an increase.

Most of the legislators that the group has dealt with say they support an increase or can be swayed, she said.

However, House Speaker Mike Madigan is against the tax increase and students should focus on him, Leisner said.

Leisner said commission members plan to speak with registered student organizations and dorm residents to encourage them to participate in Day of Action II.

Most of the funding for the lobbying effort has come from the USO.

Classic revived in 'D.O.A.'

By Richard Nunez
Entertainment Editor

"D.O.A." is a slick, stylish remake of the 1949 classic film of the same name.

The original "D.O.A." was a brooding, black-and-white movie of the film noir era that had a unique and irresistible plot — a man discovers he has been poisoned and has between 24 to 48 hours to find his killer before he dies.

In the 1988 version, Dennis Quaid, fresh from his success in "The Big Easy," delivers an absorbing, highly charismatic performance as the young writer and college english professor.

The movie borrows the opening scene from the original and has Quaid staggering into the police station. He tells the desk officer a murder has been committed and when the officer asks who was murdered, Quaid says, "Me."

Film Review

The opening — actually the ending of the movie — is filmed in black and white and has a nightmarish quality to it that brilliantly depicts the final stages of Quaid's slow death.

When Quaid begins his confession, the film makes its transition to color and depicts the events that led up to his poisoning.

Having seen the original, it was maddening to watch Quaid accept so many drinks offered him during the first half of the movie and then trying to guess which drink might have been poisoned.

The movie is highly surreal and hypnotic. Quaid's hopeless despair is felt keenly and touches on a universal feeling that one is not totally in control of one's own life, especially in today's nuclear world.

The film makers seem to play off this idea and treats Quaid's search with poetic and often eerie touches.

In one scene, after Quaid learns he has been poisoned, the camera stumbles after him as he rushes through the streets and as throbbing, nightmarish music is heard in the background. There is no depth to the landscape and streets, buildings and even the horizon seem to loom directly over his shoulders.

Quaid's character is forced through a twisted and confusing search for his killer, which only emphasizes his desperation and his slowly decaying ability to understand his situation.

Quaid finally discovers his killer's identity and the killer's reason for poisoning Quaid is bitterly ironic.

"D.O.A." is one of those few movies able to surpass the superb quality of its original.

'Biloxi' focuses on men, not war

By Dona Schulte
Staff Writer

"Biloxi Blues" is a movie designed for Matthew Broderick.

Broderick stars in this Neil Simon sequel to "Brighton Beach Memoirs," portraying a somewhat sarcastic, but sincere young man named Eugene Jerome at boot camp in 1945 near the end of World War II.

The movie is a refreshing change because it focuses more on the men of the war rather than the war itself.

There is no strong conflict in the movie, which may be the only thing missing from the movie. The characters were not all buddies, but displays of hostility were limited. The only possibility of a strong conflict arises when Wacosky, the troop sergeant, breaks down emotionally and threatens the life of a troop member.

Sometimes slow in parts, the ending comes all too fast, leaving the audience wishing there was more.

Eugene acts as if he doesn't like the members of his troops, "It's the fifth day and so far I hate everyone. It's hard to believe these guys have mothers and fathers who are worried about them," he writes in his journal.

Yet, he is an unrecognized leader within his troop and has respect for his comrades.

Sergeant Wacosky, played by Christopher Walken, doesn't fit the Army sergeant stereotype.

Wacosky is a hard, cold sergeant who occasionally does something humorous. He drills in a calm, collective matter without a lot of unnecessary bullying or abuse, leaving others unsuspecting of his emotional problem.

Another character who plays a large part in "Biloxi Blues," is Ebstein, a geek who breaks all the stereotype rules.

Ebstein is the misfit of the troop whom Broderick believes has homosexual tendencies. Instead of playing a weak, wimpy character, Ebstein is a stong, occasionally heroic young man in search of truth and logic, who stands up for his own rights and speaks his mind.

Simon takes us through the training camp, to ROTC dances and a whore house. In doing so, he reveals each character as a real person that the audience can relate to and feel for.

'Beat' writer Holmes dies

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (UPI) — Author John Clellon Holmes, who coined the term "beat" to describe the literary and social rebels of the Beat Generation following World War II, died Wednesday of cancer, it was announced Thursday.

Holmes, 62, died one day after being admitted to Middlesex Memorial Hospital's Weiss Hospice Unit. He had been debilitated for some time by cancer but continued writing until a few months ago. Holmes, a native of Holyoke, Mass., and a resident of Old Saybrook, Conn., was a novelist, critic, poet, essayist and educator who wrote of the "beat" lifestyle in "Go," his first novel in 1952.

He was a companion of Jack Kerouac, Allen Ginsberg, William Burroughs and other writers in New York after World War II. He came up with the term "beat" to describe the negative reaction of young people to the "gray flannel suit mentality" of mainstream American society in the post-war years.

PETTIT DEMOTED

In a last minute move to block collective bargaining at SIUC the Board of Trustees voted today to appoint Gary Kolb (Chair of the IEA/NEA Faculty Organizing Committee) Chancellor of SIUC.

Kolb announced that he would immediately institute a 5 year 2% Plan for the administration at SIUC. He also indicated that it is his intention to donate the Stone House to the Jackson County Humane Society.

Former Chancellor Lawrence Pettit will become a visiting lecturer on administrative proliferation in the Department of Educational Administration. He will, or course, retain his $107,000 salary.

Dr. Pettit appealed to the IEA to assist him in filing a grievance against the Board of Trustees. IEA agreed to look into the matter, but informed the former chancellor that the SIUC grievance procedures were such a tangled mess that a resolution of his complaint could not be assured before 1999.

Dr. Pettit issued a public statement in which he stated that he "is now convinced that collective bargaining is both desirable and inevitable."

Hasenfus: Bush diverted funds to Contras

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A manager of the Contra aid network said in 1986 that Vice President George Bush knew of possibly illegal White House efforts to channel military assistance to the Nicaraguan rebels, according to testimony made public Thursday.

Eugene Hasenfus, a crew member on a Contra resupply flight downed over Nicaragua in October, 1986, testified that he was told the private rebel aid network was "being run out of the White House and Bush knew things."

Hasenfus, in a deposition to the congressional Iran-Contra committees, said such remarks were made on several occasions by his boss, William Cooper.

Cooper, who supervised

"The White House and Bush's name was mainly brought up a lot of times because (Felix) Rodriguez was there and had quite a bit of power."

—Eugene Hasenfus

other pilots and crews operating out of El Salvador for a private aid network, piloted the downed plane and died in the crash.

"The White House and Bush's name was mainly brought up a lot of times," Hasenfus testified, "because (Felix) Rodriguez was there and had quite a bit of power."

Rodriguez, alias Max Gomez, served as the liaison between the private aid network and top Salvadoran military officials who allowed it to operate from Ilopango air base in San Salvador during a congressional ban on official U.S. military aid to the Contras.

Rodriguez, a former CIA operative, is a friend of Bush national security adviser Donald Gregg and has acknowledged meeting at least three times with the vice president.

Hasenfus's deposition, and a memo released by the committees Wednesday, raise anew questions about Bush's denials that he knew of the secret White House operations.

Bush has vigorously insisted that, until Rodriguez told him about it in August 1986, he knew nothing of the resupply operation run by White House aide Oliver North. The Boland Amendment barred U.S. military aid to the Contras between October 1984 and October 1986.

The Senate Iran-Contra committee, in releasing thousands of other documents along with Hasenfus's January 1987 deposition, offered no corroboration for the Marinette, Wis., man's recollection of Cooper's remarks.

There apparently were also no other witnesses to corroborate Hasenfus's testimony about what the deceased Cooper said. It was Hasenfus's capture by the Sandinistas and public statements he made while in their custody that first exposed the secret network.

Hasenfus testified that Cooper regularly received telephone instructions from retired Air Force Col. Robert Dutton and apparently had had contact with retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard Secord, who headed the private network. Dutton worked in suburban Virginia for Secord.

U.S. takes steps to halt new money flow into Panama

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan administration, taking further steps to stem the flow of U.S. dollars to Panamanian strongman Manuel Antonio Noriega, announced Thursday alternate methods for American companies and individuals to pay their debts to Panama.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said three separate accounts would be set up for Panamanian President Eric Arturo Delvalle in the Federal Reserve Board.

Delvalle, who the United States recognizes as legitimate head of the Central American nation, attempted to fire Noriega, chief of the powerful Panamanian Defense Forces, in February. Delvalle later went into hiding and the United States, in an effort to oust Noriega, imposed tough economic sanctions that closed Panamanian banks and led to general strikes.

The latest administration move followed Noriega's breaking of a general strike and re-opening of the nation's banks after receiving payments from Texaco,

Three separate accounts will be set up for Panamanian President Delvalle in the Federal Reserve Board.

Eastern Airlines, United Brands and other American companies doing business in Panama.

Fitzwater said the companies were aware of the U.S. policy restraining the flow of American dollars into the hands of Panama's strongman, but he indicated the companies were forced into making the payments because of legal problems.

In his late afternoon statement Thursday, Fitzwater also said that all the measures involving American companies and individuals are voluntary.

Fitzwater said many companies had expressed a desire to find a way around paying Noriega.

Noriega's opposition ponders Church offer

PANAMA CITY, Panama (UPI) — The Panamanian opposition, faced with a crumbling national strike and new tough-guy tactics by Gen. Manuel Noriega, weighed a Catholic Church proposal Thursday to broker a solution to the country's month-old political crisis.

Manuel Burgos, secretary of the Civic Crusade opposition coalition which has been pressing for Noriega to step down since last summer, said opposition groups were meeting Thursday to discuss an offer from Catholic Archbishop Marcos McGrath for the church to act as mediator between the Noriega regime and its domestic opponents.

"We might be willing to consider negotiations, but only with the precondition that Noriega leave power first," Burgos said.

The opposition, buoyed until now by the success of the 11-day strike, previously had thought it could force Noriega's removal on its own.

The strike was the result of Noriega's supporters ousting President Eric Arturo Delvalle from office after he tried to fire the Noriega over the general's indictment in Florida last month on drug charges.

But the strike's failure, combined with the arrest of more than 30 of its leaders Monday when Noriega ordered a bruising raid on a downtown luxury hotel, forced them to consider new tactics.

Burgos, a businessman, said "the strike is still on" Thursday. But the supermarkets and a major chain of pharmacies, plus many smaller businesses, already had opened their doors and abandoned the strike, which had been more than 95 percent successful at its peak last week.

Shoppers jammed the supermarkets and food stores, stocking up for the long Easter holiday weekend, but other retail businesses were nearly empty.

Senate endorses Contra aid bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate approved and sent to President Reagan Thursday a nearly $48 million bill renewing humanitarian aid to the Contra rebels and supporting efforts to peacefully end the seven-year Nicaraguan civil war.

The Senate approved the bill, 87-7, with five Democrats and two Republicans voting against amid warnings the action amounts to selling out the guerrillas.

"For my part, it is too little, too late, too limited, and too loaded with the stench of betrayal," Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., told the Senate before voting for the plan. "This proposal is nothing more than a Band-Aid on the conscience of Congress."

The proposal cleared the House on a 345-70 vote Wednesday, and President Reagan planned to sign it before he leaves today for an Easter holiday.

The bitterness that has divided Congress over Reagan's policies toward the Marxist-led Sandinista government he accuses of exporting subversion to Central America and his support of the "freedom fighters" resurfaced during the Senate debate.

With a cease-fire agreement between the Sandinistas and the Contras, there was a general truce on Capitol Hill, although Reagan's allies expressed skepticism about the commitment of the Soviet-backed Nicaraguan government to democratic reforms and the wisdom of cutting off military aid to the rebels.

Helms said the pivotal refusal of the House to give the Contras new military aids had doomed the guerrillas and that the aid would not stop subversion in Central America.

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia said the bill will maintain pressure on the Sandinistas to work for peace and democracy.

AIDS virus becomes virulent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — People infected with the AIDS virus who develop symptoms of the deadly disease harbor more virulent strains of the virus as their condition worsens, researchers reported Thursday.

The scientists at the University of California at San Francisco said this could mean the virus evolves into more powerful forms as symptoms increase in severity, or that a more virulent form of the virus present at the time of infection kicks into action later in the course of the disease.

"I bend towards believing they evolved over time," said Dr. Jay Levy of the more virulent viral strains. "If they came in at the same time, the more virulent forms would take over more quickly.

"It's somewhat depressing to think this agent is doing this," he said, but the findings also imply that a genetic mechanism within the virus may control virulence, and this mechanism could be a target for anti-viral drugs.

Already existing drugs that prevent the virus from reproducing itself may also prevent the virus from evolving to more virulent forms, said Levy, a co-author

Confidentiality proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — To encourage voluntary AIDS testing, the Department of Health and Human Services proposed regulatory changes Thursday to assure confidentiality of laboratory records of persons tested for the fatal disease.

William Roper, administrator of HHS's Health Care Financing Administration, said laboratories no longer would be required to maintain names and identification of most persons tested for acquired immune deficiency syndrome, which destroys the body's ability to fight infection.

However, the proposed change of the regulation makes exceptions for recipients of Medicare and Medicaid, the government health insurance programs for the elderly and the poor respectively. These patients must be identified by some means, so the government can make the proper benefit payments.

of the report in the journal Science, and thus slow the progression of symptoms.

In a separate report, another team of researchers from the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston and the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases reported on a possible new approach to a vaccine against HIV, the AIDS virus.

They said they detected white blood cells in blood from infected people that appear to respond specifically to an enzyme crucial to reproduction of the AIDS virus. The type of cell they referred to is involved in destroying disease-causing elements in the body.

If the cells prove to have some protective effect against the virus in lab tests, a compound could be developed to stimulate their activity and thus prevent infection with the AIDS virus, they wrote.

Measles kill two children, report says

ATLANTA (UPI) — The national Centers for Disease Control reported the measles deaths of two children infected with the AIDS virus Thursday, the first measles fatalities since 1985.

The deaths of the children, plus other reports of severe measles involving adults and youngsters infected with the AIDS virus, prompted the CDC to revise its recommendations on measles vaccinations for people with HIV, the human immunodeficiency virus which causes AIDS.

"Like many other infections, measles appears to be more severe in persons with HIV infection," the CDC said.

Both of the 4-year-old children, one of New York City and the other from Miami, acquired their HIV infections at birth from their mothers. The CDC said the children developed pneumonia during their bout with measles and had not been vaccinated against the childhood disease.

"The two measles deaths involving HIV-infected children in 1987 were the first deaths due to measles in the United States to be reported to the CDC since 1985," the federal health agency said.

In addition to reports of severe measles in HIV-infected children, the health agency said there had been two measles cases in HIV-infected adults.

The CDC had previously recommended that children with HIV infection, but showing no symptoms of AIDS, be immunized against measles, mumps and rubella but did not recommend vaccinating children with active cases of the fatal disease.

After considering reports of severe measles in children showing symptoms of AIDS, the CDC said measles immunization should be considered "for all HIV-infected children, regardless of symptoms."

Pulitzer winners announced

Richard Rhodes wins for book on atomic bomb

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three newspapers — The Wall Street Journal, The Miami Herald and The Charlotte Observer — won double Pulitzer prizes Thursday, and author Toni Morrison won the Pulitzer for fiction for her novel "Beloved."

The Charlotte Observer snatched the coveted public service Pulitzer Prize for revealing the misuse of funds by the PTL evangelical television ministry. The Pulitzer board said the probe was "conducted in the face of a massive campaign by the PTL to discredit the newspaper."

The Observer also shared a Pulitzer for editorial cartooning with the Atlanta Constitution, for cartoons by Doug Marlette. Marlette worked at the Observer for 15 years before joining the Constitution in 1987.

THE WALL Street Journal won the explanatory journalism award for illuminating the complex issues surrounding the case of an investment banker charged with insider trading, and the critical day that followed, the Oct. 19 stock market crash. Daniel Hertzberg and James Stewart were the reporters who wrote the stories.

The Journal also was awarded the specialized reporting prize for Walt Bogdanich's "chilling series of reports on faulty testing by American medical laboratories."

The Miami Herald's two Pulitzers went to Dave Barry for commentary and Michel duCille for feature photography.

THE FEATURE writing prize went to Jacqui Banaszynski of the St. Paul Pioneer Press Dispatch for her "moving series about the life and death of an AIDS victim in a rural farm community," the board said.

Two small newspapers — The Alabama Journal (Montgomery, Ala.) and Lawrence (Mass.) Eagle-Tribune — shared the general news reporting prize, given for a distinguished example of reporting within a newspaper's area "that meets the daily challenges of journalism."

The staff of The Alabama Journal was cited by the board "for its compelling investigation of the state's unusually high infant mortality rate" which prompted legislation to combat the problem.

THE LAWRENCE Eagle-Tribune staff won for an investigation that revealed "serious flaws in the Massachusetts prison furlough system and led to significant statewide reforms."

Tim Weiner of the Philadelphia Inquirer was awarded the national reporting prize for a series of stories on "a secret Pentagon budget used by the government to sponsor defense research and an arms buildup."

Scott Shaw of the Odessa (Texas) American won for spot news photography.

The award for investigative reporting went to Dean Baquet, William Gaines and Ann Marie Lipinski of the Chicago Tribune for their detailed reporting on "the self interest and waste that plagued Chicago's City Council."

THOMAS FRIEDMAN of The New York Times won the international reporting prize for what the Pulitzer jury called his "balanced and informed coverage of Israel." It was his second Pulitzer. In 1983, Friedman shared the prize for international reporting for his coverage of the Israeli invasion of Lebanon the previous year. He is a former United Press international Middle East correspondent.

The editorial writing award went to Jane Healy of The Orlando Sentinel for her series of editorials "protesting overdevelopment of Florida's Orange County."

TOM SHALES of The Washington Post captured the criticism award for his television criticism.

The Miami Herald's duCille won the feature photography award for "portraying the decay and subsequent rehabilitation of a housing project overrun by crack."

Barry, the Herald's second winner, for commentary, was cited for his "consistently effective use of humor as a device for presenting fresh insights into serious concerns."

Alfred Uhry captured the drama award for his play, "Driving Miss Daisy."

The history prize went to Robert Bruce for "The Launching of Modern American Science 1846-1876," published by Alfred A. Knopf.

David Herbert Donald claimed the biography award for "Look Homeward: A Life of Thomas Wolfe," published by Little, Brown and Co.

WILLIAM MEREDITH won the poetry award for "a distinguished volume of verse by an American author" for "Partial Accounts: New and Selected Poems."

Richard Rhodes took the general non-fiction award for "The Making of the Atomic Bomb," published by Simon and Schuster.

Morrison's 'Beloved' wins

NEW YORK (UPI) — Toni Morrison's novel, "Beloved," won the literary world's Triple Crown for fiction.

"Beloved" is a novel of love, family and motherhood set in Ohio just after the Civil War. Its central figures are a former slave woman, Sethe, and the incarnation of her dead child.

The book "celebrates the struggle for liberty, not just of body but also of mind and soul," said UPI in a review.

Morrison, who was born in Lorain, Ohio, Feb. 18, 1931, and lives in Nyack, N.Y., won the 1978 National Book Critics Circle Award for "Song of Solomon." Her novels, including "Tar Baby," have been translated into 14 languages.

Harvard historian David Herbert Donald won a Pulitzer, his second, for his biography of Thomas Wolfe, "Look Homeward: A Life of Thomas Wolfe."

Donald's biography of Wolfe represents a major departure from his previous works, which have been about the Civil War period.

Duke will rise above crowd to win it all in Kansas City

Arizona is the season's surprise team, Kansas has the nation's No. 1 player, Oklahoma's run-and-gun style excites the crowd and Duke is boring.

There is nothing exciting about a well-disciplined team that comes back year after year, with top-notch athletes, to finish well in the tournament.

Blue Devils' coach Mike Krzyzewski, in his eighth year at Duke, doesn't throw chairs like his mentor Bobby Knight at Indiana, but he does get the job done. He hasn't coached all over the country like Kansas' Larry Brown nor does he stand out like Arizona's Lute Olson and his white hair. And his name doesn't remind you of your best friend in first grade, Billy Tubbs.

No, Krzyzewski's name is rarely pronounced correctly, let alone connected with the face of Duke's quiet leader. Krzyzewski blends in with the masses of people, but his teams always rise to the occasion.

From the Press Box Stephanie Wood

Kansas has the nation's top college player in Danny Manning, but the Blue Devils have a Danny of their own. Danny Ferry, whose talent and experience have led Duke to the Final Four, fashions himself after his coach. He doesn't stand out. He doesn't look smooth and he's easy to overlook.

But if Kansas, Oklahoma or Arizona choose to overlook Danny Ferry, they can say goodbye to the NCAA championship.

They might as well say goodbye now because the Blue Devils have the name to win it all. The Sooners sound like a group of farmers that should be out planting the spring crops rather than playing in one of college's biggest sporting events.

The Jayhawks and Wildcats are tough, but they can't stand the heat when they go one-on-one with the Devils.

But they don't play like devils. There is nothing tricky about the way they play. The names of their game are execution and discipline. They don't rely on one superstar to score all the points. If you rely on one person, you end up like John Chaney and Temple, watching instead of playing.

I hope you will be watching Duke very closely this weekend, because if you don't pay attention, the Blue Devils will be basketball's 1988 National Champions and you won't remember why.

playing about half their games against non-Division I opponents.

Their pitchers have combined for a sparkling 2.71 ERA. Possible starters for the doubleheader are Greg Reed (5-0, 0.51 ERA), Dale Bowling (2-2, 2.32 ERA), and Jerry Oetting (2-2, 3.67 ERA).

Reliever Tony Floyd (1-2, 4.24 ERA) has three saves.

First baseman Brian Mahaffey (.364, 8 HRs, 28 RBIs) is the Bears' chief offensive threat.

The Salukis will redshirt left-handed pitcher Tim Hollmann, a junior, and outfielder Brian Gibson, a freshman. Hollmann (1-0, 3.60 ERA) fractured his right wrist fielding a ground ball against St. Mary's on Friday. Gibson, hampered by a sore hand, received limited action. He did manage to hit safely in six of 11 plate appearances.

With Hollmann's injury, the staff is down to 12 members. Minus injury-plagued Lee Meyer, Larry Beattie and David Henley, the Salukis have nine healthy pitchers.

make a contribution. We were looking to get her into the lineup on an everyday basis."

Taylor, a 5-foot-5 infielder from Clinton, has played in 13 games. She has eight hits, of which three are doubles, five runs and a .250 batting average. Most of her time in the lineup was as a designated hitter.

The other injuries are to Kayla Boston, Lisa Robinson and Jan Agnich. Boston, an outfielder, has tendonitis in her shoulder. Robinson, a right-handed pitcher, has a sore throwing arm. Agnich, a utility player, has a hamstring problem and a sore right knee.

The nagging injuries shouldn't hamper the Salukis' offensive production though, Brechtelsbauer said.

"We're starting to get good hitting throughout our lineup," she said. "People like Theresa Smugala, Shelly Gibbs, Jan Agnich and Mary Jo Firnbach have been hitting well for us since early season. Now we have another group of three or four who have started to hit well.

"Knowing that we can hit and score with the top or the bottom of the batting order will take some of the pressure off our top hitters. Over the long haul, good consistent hitting throughout the lineup will make us a team to be reckoned with."

The Salukis open the tournament against Southwest Missouri at 9 a.m. today. The Bears are coming off a second-place finish in last season's Gateway Conference Tournament, but have only a 3-11 record this spring.

Southwest Missouri has nine newcomers on the roster. "They are a team that always gives us fits, even though they are starting out slowly," Brechtelsbauer said.

SIU-C plays Missouri at noon. The Tigers are 20-7 and have a nine-game win streak. The team's top hitter is Kris Schmidt with a .436 average. Pitcher Sue Ann Wheeler is 12-4 with an 0.89 ERA and 33 strike outs.

"Missouri is always tough. We'll have our hands full," Brechtelsbauer said.

The Salukis meet Missouri-Kansas City (3-9) at 1:30 p.m. The consolation and championship games are scheduled for Saturday.

Men's track team to meet defending NCAA champ

By Stephanie Wood
Staff Writer

The men's track team will face the 1987 defending national championships at the Hot Springs Invitational Saturday in Arkansas.

Host Arkansas, who won the NCAA last year, will top the competitive field of teams including Wisconsin, George Mason, Memphis State, Mississippi State, Baylor and Oklahoma.

"(Arkansas) is always tough," Coach Bill Cornell said. "It's a tough field but there's no team score. We're just going after good performances."

Cornell is disappointed with the team's attitude even though it won the Saluki Open last Saturday in Cape Girardeau, Mo. He said the team has a long way to go before the conference championships in May.

The other objective throughout the outdoor season is to qualify as many athletes as possible for the NCAA championships.

Potential qualifiers for the outdoor nationals are Bret Garrett in the 800-meter run, Brian Bradley in the long jump, Erick Pegues and Kevin Steele in the 400-meter dash, Shane Weber in the pole vault, and Leonard Vance in the triple jump.

Women to race at Ole Miss track

The women's track team will compete in the seventh annual Ole Miss Invitational today in University, Miss.

The Salukis will race against Mississippi, Mississippi State, Rhodes College, Memphis State, Mississippi Valley State and Rust College.

Christiana Philippou will lead the Salukis in the triple jump and long jump. She set a school record, of 40 feet, 1 inch in the triple jump at the Saluki Open last Saturday in Cape Girardeau.

Men's golf 2nd at Edwardsville

The men's golf team is in second place after the first 18 holes in the SIU-Edwardsville Spring Golf Invitational.

The University of Indianapolis is leading with 307 strokes, followed by SIU-C with 308, SIU-E is in third with 309, Tennessee Martin with 312 and Louis College with 314.

There are eight other teams competing in the invitational.

SIU-C's Jeff Mullican is in second place overall with a 74. Mike Cowen shot a 75, which ties him for third place.

The second round of the 36-hole invitational is today.

Eastern assistant goes to Northern

DEKALB (UPI) — Sheldon Herd, inside linebacker coach at Eastern Illinois University, was named Thursday as defensive line coach at Northern Illinois University, NIU athletic officials announced.

Herd will replace Ted Huber, who resigned to take over the head coaching duties at Warsaw High School in Warsaw, Ind.

Rhoades seeks University support

By Jeff Griesser
Staff Writer

Newly appointed SIU-C head football coach Rick Rhoades told Saluki boosters that it's going to take more than coaches and players to build his team into a winner.

"We're going to have to have a tremendous effort from everyone involved in the University," Rhoades said to boosters at the Carbondale Holiday Inn on Thursday. "For us to be as successful to the extent I want to be, we're going to have to have a lot of help from a lot of people."

Rhoades said he believes the five assistants he has named will work together well. "I'm excited about the staff we've put together," he said. "We've been able to get a great mixture of people with Illinois backgrounds."

Of the two positions still unfilled, Rhoades said: "We're close on a couple of coaches. We could make an announcement in the morning."

The assistants named Wednesday are Jim Tompkins from the University of Southern Mississippi, Greg McMahon from the University of North Alabama, and Jeff McInerney, who came here with Rhoades from Troy

State.

"Jim (Tompkins) is a great technician, tactician and recruiter," Rhoades said.

McMahon, from Rantoul, was a recruiting rival of Rhoades when he was at North Alabama. "We've always locked horns," Rhoades said. He added that he's always said that if he got the chance he would get McMahon on his staff so he wouldn't have to compete against him anymore.

Two members of former head coach Ray Dorr's staff will remain as assistants under Rhoades. Rod Sherrill, who has been here for seven years, will be on the other side of the ball this year, coaching the offensive instead of defensive line. Jim Bentivoglio will be an administrative assistant, Rhoades said.

Rhoades said that he and his staff have contacted some of the this year's recruits. "By the end of this week we will have contacted every recruit," he said.

Rhoades also stressed the importance of academics. "When a young man leaves our program I want him to be able to go on in life," he said. "We've got to get our players committed to going to class."

Sophomore Mike Licnoltz tries to get a hand on the ball during the Rugby Club's game against Indiana University last week. The club lost two games, 19-0 and 19-4.

Rugby club out to rebound from big losses to Indiana

By Greg Huber
Staff Writer

The rugby club will need better ball control than it had in last week's loss to Indiana if it wants to rebound against Eastern Illinois on Saturday in Charleston.

Indiana defeated SIU-C 19-0 and 19-4 last Saturday at the campus rugby pitch.

"No ball control," SIU-C's Dave Graham said. "We beat them in the scrums and lineouts but in loose play they dominated."

SIU-C fell to 2-2 on the season while Indiana, coming off a 4-0 showing in Florida over spring break, improved its mark to 7-0-1.

Graham said SIU-C did not played as well as it did at the Old Miss Tournery. He cited the spring break as being detrimental to the momentum the team was building after a second-place finish there.

"We didn't play like the same team in Mississippi," Graham said. "We just played different. Our week off hurt, especially at this part of the season."

Indiana captain Jeff Ehman said his squad did well even though several key players weren't there.

"We weren't at full strength, but we did bring a decent squad and we're pleased that we're undefeated this season," Ehman said.

Indiana coach Dave Fischbaugh said conditioning and a positive mental attitude is the reason for Indiana's success.

SIU-C's Jim Schejbal, a junior, had the team's try in the second game.

SIU-C's next home game will be April 9 against the St. Louis Hornets. Other home games will be Western Kentucky on April 30 and the Southern Old Loads May 7.

The remaining road games are the following: at Western Kentucky Banshee Tournery, April 16; at Western Illinois Scrumdown Tournery, April 23 and 24.

Louisville pitchers remedy for ailing Saluki baseball

By Dave Miller
Staff Writer

The Saluki hitters will try to get well against a struggling Louisville pitching staff at 3 p.m. today at Abe Martin Field.

During the four-game losing streak, the Salukis have averaged less than three runs per game. Prior to the skid, they scored more than eight a game.

"I'd like to see us get back on the winning track again," Coach Itchy Jones said. "We need a few victories so the kids start believing in themselves again. In Miami, I thought the kids played with confidence. Now I think they're doubting themselves a little bit."

Chuck Verschoore will try to continue his 21-game hitting streak and spark the Saluki offense, which has had trouble bunting hits of late. The offense will get to face a Louisville pitching staff that has a 9.55 ERA.

Poor pitching and inexperience have caused Louisville to get off to a 8-18 start. The Cardinals' troubles can be characterized by center fielder Jeff Burkhart. Last year, he batted .368 and was a first-team All-Metro selection. This year Burkhart, a senior, is hitting .295.

Four veterans have been the steady influence on a team comprised mainly of freshmen and sophomores. Burkhart, senior catcher Todd Cooper (.418, 2 HRs, 19 RBIs), junior right fielder Jamie Fietke (.398, 3 HRs, 10 RBIs) and senior third baseman Harry Meeke (.303, 7 HRs, 30 RBIs) have led the Cardinals to a .285 batting average.

The Salukis play Louisville again at noon Saturday.

Pitchers Dale Meyer (0-0, 4.50 ERA) and Rick Shipley (1-0, 3.00 ERA) will start for the Salukis.

On Sunday, Southwest Missouri State comes to Carbondale to play the Salukis in a 1 p.m. doubleheader.

The Bears, who made their first NCAA playoff experience last year, have a 16-7 record thus far this season while

Broken finger to keep freshman off diamond

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

The softball team wraps up its non-conference portion of the schedule at the University of Missouri Invitational Friday and Saturday. However, the Salukis are going in slightly banged up.

Several players will be in action despite the minor injuries, but the team did lose freshman Shannon Taylor for three weeks because of a broken finger on her left hand.

"It's an especially tough injury for her," Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said. "She just started to come around to
