Victims of fire receive aid from area

By Richard Nunez
Staff Writer

Less than two days after fire destroyed their home, five University students were on the 4 p.m. train to Chicago to attend the funeral of the friend who saved their lives.

Steve Schaefer, 20, majoring in radio and television, lost his life in a fire Saturday after alerting others inside the house at 203 W. Elm St.

Among those Schaefer rescued were roommates

Darren A. McKillip, 21, senior in industrial technology, Jeffery A. Frezza, 23, former agribusiness economics major, Gordon E. Wellons, 21, senior in administration of justice, John Borner, 20, junior in accounting and Tom McCarthy, whose major was not available.

Besides losing a friend, the five of them also have to cope with losing most of their possessions. With the help of the Undergraduate Student Government, University officials and the Red Cross, their burden is being made lighter.

With authorization from Harvey Welch, vice president of student affairs, all except Frezza, who no longer is a University student, were given temporary housing in Boomer III and issued meal cards by Edward Jones, director of University housing.

Welch also authorized Joseph Zimny, counselor in student work and financial assistance, to provide emergency short-term loans if necessary.

Dale Turner, assistant director of the Office of Student Development, said he will ask 350 student life advisers to contribute articles of clothing.

Pat Cosgrove, co-chairperson of the Jackson County Red Cross, gave all five of them them disbursing orders to buy clothes, shoes, toiletries and linens. All but Frezza were given vouchers for school supplies.

Bill Hall, USG president, who organized the efforts to meet their needs, was given authorization from Welch to give them money from USG funds to purchase textbooks at the University Bookstore.

Because the University could not house Frezza, Hall tried to contact landlord Dan Roosevelt to provide tem-

Practicing fire drills saves lives

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

Fires can be prevented and lives could be saved if proper drills and procedures are practiced before it's too late, John Manis, assistant chief of the Carbondale fire department, said.

People living together should have a planned exit and a designated meeting spot in case of a fire, Manis said.

Every household should have fire drills periodically, to ensure a safe escape for everyone.

Everyone should know which exits are closest to their rooms in case of a fire at night. Escaping from a burning house should be made from doors rather than breaking windows.

Many times people panic and try to get out through broken windows and they cut themselves badly, Manis said.

Check the doors leading to the hallways for heat. If the door is hot, the fire is likely to be right outside the door. Window exiting should be used only when there is no other way out.

Rescuer deemed hero by surviving friends

By Richard Nunez
Staff Writer

Friends and roommates of Steven Schaefer, a 20-year-old University student who lost his life in a fire Saturday, would like him to be remembered as a hero.

Schaefer died Saturday morning after saving others from a fire in a white, two-story house at 203 W. Elm St.

Some of the people he saved said Schaefer woke everyone in the house by screaming and knocking on doors.

A visitor to the house last saw Schaefer in a downstairs barroom telling people to leave the house, John Manis, assistant chief at the Carbondale Fire Department, said.

Manis said Schaefer was later found in his upstairs bedroom.

Manis and roommates of Schaefer believe he went back upstairs to make sure everyone inside had been awakened.

"He's a hero," Darren McKillip, 21, a senior in industrial technology and one of Schaefer's roommates, said.

"He was downstairs waking people up. He was saying, 'Come on, let's go, get out,'" John Borner, 20, a junior in accounting and Schaefer's roommate, said. "We think he went back upstairs to make sure everyone was out," Borner, also Schaefer's long-time friend, added.

Linda Schaefer, Steve Schaefer's mother, said she had been told that her son had perhaps gone back upstairs to check a locked room from which he received no answer earlier.

Manis said preliminary autopsy reports indicate Schaefer died of smoke inhalation.

Schaefer, majoring in radio and television, was a sports announcer at WIDB, campus radio station, and held down two weekly broadcasts: 10:30 p.m. Wednesdays and 2:30 p.m. Fridays.

Schaefer was memorialized at 4 p.m. Sunday on WIDB. A moment of silence was observed on "Radio Sports View," a weekly one-hour sports talk show hosted by Cory Alan Fargue, sports director at WIDB.

Fargue told listeners that Schaefer was "a great guy" who carried out a "heroic effort."

Fargue also dedicated the show to Schaefer, stating, "This is a very tough day for us here at WIDB," after which he asked listeners to bear with

Security tight as Gorbachev arrives in Havana

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI) — Police sealed off Jose Marti International Airport Sunday in anticipation of the arrival of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, who was promised the "warmest welcome" by Cuban leader Fidel Castro.

Cuban Deputy Foreign

Minister Raul Roa, meanwhile, said Gorbachev's arrival had been delayed about an hour (to 5:05 p.m. CDT) because of "winds" that slowed his flight.

The youth newspaper, Juventud Rebelde, carried a bold headline both in Spanish and in Russian that said "Welcome." Below the headline appeared an official portrait of Gorbachev and a printed message from Castro to the Soviet leader.

"We are impatiently waiting your arrival to Cuba," the message said. "The city of Havana is enthusiastically preparing to extend to you the warmest welcome."

Diplomats say during Gorbachev's three days of meetings with Castro, the two will try to iron out policy differences.

Oil spill could cause pipeline to close

VALDEZ, Alaska (UPI) — Gov. Steve Cowper threatened Sunday to shut down the Trans-Alaska oil pipeline, America's biggest source of oil, unless he can be assured that the oil industry is capable of responding to a major oil spill.

Cowper's promise came as the state organized a fishermen's strike force to mount an attack, starting Sunday, in sensitive areas it said had been neglected in Exxon's effort to clean up the largest oil spill in U.S. history.

A large slick threatened an important fish hatchery at Port San Juan, and the governor ordered two state ferries to become floating quarters for workers chasing the spreading spill to defend sensitive shoreline.

In an interview with ABC's "This Week With David

Brinkley," Cowper admitted the difficulty in getting safety guarantees from the oil companies and repeated his promise to reporters in Valdez that closing the pipeline was a real possibility.

"We have jurisdiction, we believe, to require the Alyeska pipeline to submit an adequate contingency plan in case there is a spill, another one. And to prove they have the material on hand and the trained personnel," he said.

"If they don't do it, we're going to shut it down," Cowper said.

Cowper's threat to shut down the pipeline was viewed by just about everyone involved in the spill as an extreme last resort.

But Cowper told reporters that would not stop him. "I'm not going to be cornered by saying we wouldn't have any money to live on," he said.

Police, rebels continue fighting in Namibia

WINDHOEK, Namibia (UPI) — Police clashed with SWAPO guerrillas along a 125-mile front Sunday, pushing the death toll to an estimated 142 in the first two days of what was supposed to be a U.N. peacekeeping mission to bring independence to Africa's last colony. Inspector Derek Brune of the South West Africa Police based in the northern town of Oshakati said by telephone that 122 SWAPO guerrillas and 20 members of security forces, including five white South Africans, had died in battles Saturday and Sunday.

Moslem fundamentalists claim election rigged

TUNIS, Tunisia (UPI) — Tunisians voted Sunday in presidential and legislative elections with the opposition Islamic fundamentalists and social democrats accusing President Zine El Abidine Ben Ali's ruling party of blatant vote rigging and intimidation. The Social Democratic Movement, the largest opposition grouping, said in a statement that it withdrew its observers from polling stations and electoral offices at 1 p.m. because of "all kinds of abuses" by the authorities and members of Ben Ali's Constitutional Democratic Rally Party.

U.S. ambassador's home struck in fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Rockets fired during battles between Christian army troops and Syrian-backed Moslem militiamen struck the residence of the U.S. ambassador to Lebanon Sunday, damaging furniture and igniting fires, police said. The ambassador, John McCarthy, was not in the building at the time and there were no casualties, said a secretary at the residence.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Oliver North opens his defense of 12 Iran-Contra charges this week without the one witness he says could testify that all his actions in the foreign policy affair were authorized — former President Ronald Reagan. COVINGTON, Tenn. (UPI) — The two northbound lanes of a 55-year-old bridge collapsed, possibly because of the erosion of its base by the rain-swollen Hatchie River, killing at least six people, authorities said Sunday. At least three automobiles and a tractor-trailer rig plunged into the swirling waters Saturday night and officials said they feared there might be more victims trapped under tons of concrete from the U.S. Highway 51 bridge.

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — The computer "virus" that infected a nationwide research network was the work of a graduate student who acted alone and never intended permanent damage, a Cornell University panel said Sunday. # Kids make masks at Imago workshop

By Christine Broda
Student Writer

They were amazing. By noon Saturday, 50 brilliantly-made, original masks were the results of three morning workshops held at Shryock Auditorium.

From 9 a.m. to noon, 50 industrious children and several equally industrious parents huddled around long tables to glue, clip, cut and color manilla envelopes that had been pre-cut into various mask shapes.

The workshop was offered to children, grades one through six, in connection with Imago, the masked mime troupe that performed Saturday evening. The workshop was offered as an introduction to the Shryock performance.

Bob Hageman, assistant director of Shryock Auditorium, said that modern theater is difficult to explain to the public and usually gets misunderstood.

Holding an outreach workshop allows potential audience members to actively involve themselves with some aspect of the show.

It is an effective tool used to familiarize the public with a new type of performance, Hageman said.

Whether or not the children knew their endeavors were preparing them for the evening's performance, their creativity was not stifled.

Damien Blackmon, 4, of Carbondale, shrugged while he discussed his mask.

"It looks like me because sometimes I have purple and red hair," he said.

One child did not want the eyeholes of his mask cut out so he glued them back in and placed one eye in the center of his mask, making something of a Cyclops.

Marilyn Coddling-Boysen, a local artist and expert mask maker, led the workshop and said she was taken by surprise when the children took her pre-shaped masks, turned them upside down and began their own designs.

Coddling-Boysen designs her own masks and also makes full headaddresses using natural materials such as feathers and bark.

"This really shows great imagination. The kids are adding mohawks, braids and earrings to their masks," Coddling-Boysen said. "You just know they are going to be wonderfully animated when they put them on."

Christine Cedusky, public relations intern at Shryock Auditorium, assisted with the workshop.

"The most amazing thing is their creativity. They're doing things with those masks that I would never thought of doing," Cedusky said.

Cedusky called the workshop "a step up for Shryock and a chance to improve community relations by getting people involved."

Along with the masks came some wonderful stories. A pirate mask represented a kind pirate who gave all the gold back.

One parent, whose child could not attend, showed up in her child's place. She made a mask entitled "What's on Your Mind?" It included money, candy and a drink on the upper part of the mask.

stopped coloring long enough to say that he brought two of his children, Ellen, 3, and Jimmie, 8, and their friend Jeff Clough, 7.

"This is really excellent,"

King said of the workshop.

When Coddling-Boysen announced that it was time to think about finishing, a heavy "Awww" filled the air and it wasn't just from the kids.

Mime act at Shryock makes hit

By Christine Broda
Student Writer

So, where did you go Saturday night?

I hope you were at Imago, watching one of the best combination mime, dance, drama troupes around.

Theater Review

It's a shame that Imago didn't sell out, but that only meant that there was more room near the edges of our seats, where we were kept for the entire performance.

No, it wasn't your average mime with a white face, trapped in an imaginary box. After all, how many of those mimes can fit into a suitcase or impersonate a frog so well that you can actually hear their slimy feet sticking to the floor?

Imago's mimes were so obscure and covered the imaginative spectrum so fast, it made your head spin and your heart stop. From a slinky to monkeys demonstrating the process of evolution, it was an evening of powerful and in-

Yow, Flowers are best to serve council

CITY COUNCIL elections are Tuesday and here are our suggestions as to who you should vote for when you step into the polling booth.

The two incumbents are John Yow and Keith Tuxhorn; the challengers are Carl Flowers and Marvin Tanner. It was suggested in a prior editorial that you not vote for Tanner.

We suggest instead that you vote for Yow and Flowers.

Yow has many years of experience working for the city and four years on the council. As a life-long resident of Carbondale he knows the issues, the people and their concerns, and seems willing to do his best to meet those concerns.

YOW WANTS TO discontinue the Halloween celebration and has expressed concern over the consumption of alcohol at the Sunset Concerts at Turley Park, saying, "Both situations are asking for trouble."

He strongly supports the revitalization of downtown Carbondale as well as the development of the University Mall.

Yow said he would support the mass transit system and might vote for new revenue to implement it, depending on the tax.

Yow said he would always support a tax on alcohol over a gas tax because gas is a necessity. He said a food tax could raise enough money in one year to pay for a study for the northern connector.

FLOWERS, ALTHOUGH he lacks experience said he is as capable of making decisions in the best interest of the city as his opponents.

Although he is in favor of the northern connector, he does not want to raise taxes to pay for the study. He feels alternatives to taxes need to be looked into. Flowers also is concerned with preserving the historical area that the east-west couple will run through.

On the issue of Halloween, he agrees that it cannot be continued in its present form. His idea is to turn it around to a family oriented event and utilize an outside firm with experience in planning this type of event. He would also like to move the celebration from South Illinois Avenue to campus and perhaps hold the celebration during the day.

FLOWERS WOULD like to improve the Carbondale mall, he said two malls as close as Marion and Carbondale cannot coexist.

He is concerned with the disabled population of Carbondale — the problems with the tracks, and accessible housing, which he says needs to be more available. And his position as a job placement specialist for disabled people makes him especially qualified to serve the needs of the city's large disabled population.

Concerning mass transit, Flowers said he would look for funding sources other than taxes, but mass transit is not his primary concern.

Tuxhorn has six years of experience on the council, and says the success of Halloween depends on the cooperation of the University, the city and the business community.

HOWEVER HE said he would not hesitate to ask for money from SIU.

Both Flowers and Tuxhorn advocate unrealistic solutions to the Halloween problem when they suggest the University would be willing to help fund an event that its president is attempting to stop. It also seems outrageous to suggest that the University should help pay for Halloween when it can't fund its own academic programs.

But Tuxhorn does have some good ideas for improving Carbondale's economy with downtown revitalization and a northern connector.

Tuxhorn is articulate and experienced and the city would not be ill-served if any two (Yow, Flowers or Tuxhorn) were elected.

The American disaster pattern

WE ARE A strange people; all of our natural disasters are man-made. Oh, God favors us with a hurricane from time to time or a flood, but for the most part the bad things that happen to us we bring on ourselves. Or, to put it more accurately, they are brought by corporate America.

The Great Alaskan Oil Spill is only the most recent example. It arrived almost 10 years to the day after the Three Mile Island nuclear accident which, while it did not reach the status of a full-fledged disaster, gave it a thrilling try.

This is the standard pattern of an American natural disaster:

A CORPORATION announces its intention to build something that will be a boon to all of mankind and, incidentally, make it a lot of money — a dam, a nuclear generating plant, an oil pipeline, something.

Environmentalists rise up as one in protest, arguing that the project will do irreparable damage to the environment and, additionally, run the risk of an accident that will mean the end of the world as we know it.

"No-growth liberals," fire back the corporate flacks. Far from hurting the environment, the project will enhance it, they say. As for accidents, the project is safer than ice cream and even if an accident happened, the technology for neutralizing it is foolproof.

THE PROJECT gets built.

There is an accident.

"Not to worry," the

Donald Kau

Tribune Media Services

flacks say, "It is not a bad accident; everything's under control."

As it turns out, it is a bad accident, things are not under control and the technology for dealing with it is not foolproof.

"Why weren't we informed of this dangerous situation?" the politicians say. "We are shocked and outraged. We're going to name a blue-ribbon commission to investigate the matter and issue a report."

"It's not our fault," says the corporation. "The operator was drunk."

Environmentalists warned that building the Trans Alaskan Pipeline to the pristine shores of Prince William Sound was an ecological disaster waiting to happen. There would be an oil spill, they said; irreplaceable commercial fishing areas would be contaminated, perhaps destroyed.

NONSENSE, EXXON executives said. We will use invulnerable, double-hulled tankers to take the oil from the pipeline and, as a backup safeguard, have at the ready equipment that will render an oil spill harmless.

Of course, they didn't and they didn't.

The oil had been leaking out of the single-hulled Exxon Valdez for three days before the company made a move on it. During that time the corporation had rebuffed the offers of the commercial fishermen of the area to help control the spill. The emergency equipment that was supposed to be there, wasn't.

THE ALASKAN OIL spill may or may not be a great disaster. At this moment the situation is at the mercy of the wind. We could escape with a merely good disaster — this time. But, in any case, I think we should send a message to corporate America that it has to do better. To this end, several steps should be taken:

The officers of the corporation should be jailed and the lawns of their homes drenched with oil until it begins to run off into their swimming pools.

The company should be fined until it has to change its name to Ex-Exxon.

The corporate headquarters should be razed, the rubble cleared and the ground salted.

I DOUBT THAT will happen. What will happen is that a blue-ribbon commission will be named, a strongly worded report will be issued and the federal government will finance the cleanup and reimburse the fisherman for loss of income.

I'm not a religious man but there are times when nothing will suffice but to quote the Bible:

"Jesus Christ is the same yesterday and today and forever" — Hebrews, 13:8.

Thief should return booth curtain for election

Thief. Yes, you! The scum who stole the white plastic curtains with the blue wheelchair logo from the handicapped booth at Grinnell Hall during the Feb. 24 election. I can't imagine why you wanted them, surely your friends weren't that impressed.

I am writing to encourage you to return the curtains before the April 4 election. They are needed!

Just drop them at the front desk at Grinnell Hall, no questions asked! If you don't have enough conscience or guts to do so, maybe someone who knows what you've done could encourage you to do the right thing.

If these curtains are not returned, a disabled or "other able" person will be forced to use the regular voting booth which is inconvenient. — Pamela Mulligan, election judge, Carbondale.

Hall said a University group probably will be formed to provide future disaster victims with immediate relief through direct efforts and contacts with other relief agencies.

The fire was reported to The Carbondale Fire Department at 6:58 a.m. Saturday. Assistant Fire Chief John Manis said he and other firefighters arrived shortly after 7 a.m.

Borner said Schaefer had awakened everyone in the house by screaming and knocking on the doors.

Friends and roommates of Schaefer believe he went back upstairs to make sure everyone inside had been awakened.

will be released at the beginning of the week. unknowns: Manis said.

After he was informed that Schaefer was still inside, Manis said firefighters "tried to go in, but there was so much heat that we couldn't get in."

Manis said the open doors and windows of the house created conditions similar to a flue, which caused the house to burn quickly.

Cause of the fire is still

Manis said Borner, McCarthy and visitor Christine Celinka, 20, a nursing major, escaped the fire by jumping out of windows. McCarthy and Borner had to break the glass of the windows and suffered severe cuts, Manis said.

Borner and McCarthy were taken to Memorial Hospital of Carbondale, where they were treated and released.

Corrections

The Illinois Department of Human Rights, working through the Carbondale Fair Housing Office, have received about 40 complaints in the areas of job and housing discrimination and discrimination in public accommodations. Phillip James, the office's intake-outreach officer, has received 100 to 150 inquiries for his services from individuals with concerns in the aforementioned areas.

James said he did not send two white people, to inquire about an apartment allegedly denied to black people by the complex's landlord as reported in Thursday's Daily Egyptian.

Bon Jovi will appear at 8 p.m. Saturday in the SIU Arena. This information was incorrectly reported in Friday's Daily Egyptian.

Bill, the green-cheeked Amazon parrot, was returned to her owner March 27, spending about two days in the wilderness. She was found in Hurst, a village about 10 miles due north of Crab Orchard Lake. This information was incorrectly stated in Friday's Daily Egyptian.

him.
Off the air, Forgue canonized Schaefer, remembering him as "very dedicated. He wanted to go places in this business. Very dependable — showed up at all the meetings. He will be sorely missed."

"He wasn't too interested in being on the radio," Forgue said. "He really wanted to do the reporting, which is hard to find around here. Everyone just wants to be a radio star."

Schaefer's mother said her son had recently told her that he didn't believe anyone was listening to his show on WIDB.

"He was sure nobody was listening to his show," Mrs. Schaefer said. "He tested his theory and one time broadcast that the Kentucky Derby would be on the coming weekend, which, of course, it wasn't."

"Nobody called to say he had made a mistake and he was sure no one was listening," Mrs. Schaefer said.

Mrs. Schaefer described her son as a "very social person," who had a lot of friends. She also said he was an "average student" who, if he took a class he liked, usually received grades of A and B.

She said Borner and her son grew up together in Chicago, where they met in the 5th grade and went through eight years of grammar school. Both joined the Cub Scouts, the Boy Scouts and participated in several sports activities together, she said.

"He's been my roommate for three years, since freshman year," Borner said. "He was a great roommate. He'd do anything for anybody."

"He was one-of-a-kind; always looking out for everyone," Borner said.

A minute of silence also was observed in Schaefer's memory during Honor's Day ceremonies in the College of Communications and Fine Arts.

Dean Keith Sanders said he is writing a letter of condolence to Schaefer's parents, expressing the "deep sadness over the loss of their son."

A wake for Schaefer will be conducted today at Malec Funeral Home in Chicago and a funeral will take place Tuesday at St. Thecla, also in Chicago. The burial will be in Mary Hill Cemetery in Niles.

Schaefer is survived by parents William and Linda Schaefer, brother Bill and sisters Karen and Kristin.

Staff members, Deedra Lawhead and Wayne Wallace, contributed to the story.

prospective exploration.
That's right. Twelve of the best thought-provoking acts were performed by three very agile, graceful and expressive performers.

There was hardly anything these performers couldn't do. Bill Robinson, Beverly Schuster and Mark Greenfield, all brilliant, performed under the artistic direction of Carol Uselman and Jerry Mouawad.

Sorry, there's absolutely no telling who was what or who was who. But I can tell you that it was all magic or illusion, or a little bit of both.

I can also tell you that "Osakar" was a rounded, blue creature that resembled the Michelin tire man, only "Osakar" moon-walked, did a Pee Wee Herman dance and lost his head in the process. By the way, he begged the audience for his head back, only nobody could quite get it to stick.

This is the kind of ingenious mime that imago performs. But what else would you expect from this multi-talented group whose members have studied everything including plastic arts, silent films, animation, dance, children's theater and martial arts?

Combine that with the fact that the artistic directors are both trained in the Lecoq approach to mime theater and that might have prepared you for Saturday night's show.

The theory behind Lecoq is based on the idea of creative freedom. The method is an attempt to free the mime from preconceived ideas of the world, forcing a sensory rediscovery of the environment and the mime's hidden self.

Were they successful in this rediscovery? That they were.

Palestinians celebrate Day of the Land

By Fernando Felli-Moggi
Staff Writer

The people of Palestine are unarmed, fighting for their freedom, their right to self-determination and an independent state, Omar Elmusa, officer of the General Union of Palestinian Students, said. University students from Palestine demonstrated Friday in front of the Student Center to commemorate the Day of the Land.

Elmusa said that on the Day of the Land, Palestinians commemorated the 1976 uprising against Israeli occupation.

Elmusa said, the uprising was the beginning of a struggle that is still alive today.

He said 600 people have died in the last 16 months, 1,700 are imprisoned and thousands have been wounded.

"We want them to realize that every dollar the U.S. government sends to help Israel is used to kill innocent human beings," he said. "The rubberballs and the tear gas (used by the Israeli police) are made in the United States."

Elmusa said the U.S. should exercise its influence over Israel to end a problem "created by the super-powers."

Undergraduate Student Government president Bill Hall, who stood among the demonstrators for some time, said it was important for University students to demonstrate in support of a struggle for human and citizen rights, values that Americans often take for granted.

He said the student government promotes the rights of the Palestinian students to acquire full citizenship, freedom of assembly and to run for the higher office of their land.

Tim Hildebrand, member of USG, said the student government is working on a resolution in support of the Palestinian state.

He said the resolution could be included in the agenda of the next USG meeting Wednesday.

Circle K holds 2nd road rally

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

Following a route that led them through Murphysboro, Cobden, Pomona, Alto Pass and Makanda, Greg Steinbrecher and John Shriver won the SIU-C Circle K's second annual road rally.

Frank Dougher, chairman of the rally, said the 66-mile route was challenging but fun for the 13 teams that competed in the Saturday rally.

Steinbrecher, junior in radio-television, was driver and Shriver, freshman in plant and soil sciences, acted as navigator for his team in the event. The two solved the 88 clues that told them the route and correctly answered all but two of the questions along the route.

Some of the clues to the route included "turn to starboard" (right), "go 270 degrees to the right of the direction the arrow points to," and "it won't be yellow, but take the first of these roads to the left" (brick roads).

Contestants were awarded points for answering questions along the way such as "how many (gas) meters are on your left," "when was the first person buried here" asked when the team reached a cemetery that opened in 1869, and "what kind of children play here" when the team saw a sign saying "slow-children-at-play."

The route led contestants through parts of Jackson and Union Counties. Dougher said Murphysboro was one of the most troublesome areas for the teams to get through.

"Apparently five teams were lost in Murphysboro for some time," Dougher said.

Steinbrecher and Shriver said the Murphysboro portion of the rally was tough, but felt it was because clues were placed so close together that if they weren't constantly attentive they would drive past clues.

Steinbrecher said one of the highlights of the rally was a clue that told him to answer a call in a phone booth in front of a dentist's office on Route 51. The phone was ringing when he reached it and the caller told him to write "phone" at the bottom of his clue sheet and where to go next.

Dougher said one of the 13 teams to participate came from Northern Illinois University in DeKalb. The team rented a car to be in the rally, but wound up lost in Cedar Lake and never completed the race.

Contestants received five points for each question answered correctly, and lost points for each mile over or under shortest legal mileage, and for each minute over or under minimum legal time.

TV station apologizes for April Fools' prank

SEATTLE (UPI) — A TV station program director apologized Sunday for an April Fools' comedy skit that said the Space Needle had collapsed, triggering hundreds of telephone calls from frightened viewers — some children in tears.

"If we scared anybody, we certainly want to apologize," Craig Smith of KING-TV, an NBC affiliate, said.

The KING-TV comedy show "Almost Live" broke into its program with a "special report" announcing the landmark had fallen down, crushing nearby buildings. Although the skit was accompanied by a disclaimer with the "Almost Live" logo and the April date, Smith said the disclaimer was not bold enough.

The phony report featured man-on-the-street interviews with distraught witnesses, a picture of the destruction and updates from a newsroom by a broadcaster. The report said no one was critically injured because the Space Needle was closed for the NCAA Final Four basketball tournament.

Space Needle spokeswoman Kim Kimmy said more than 700 people called after the broadcast. Many were concerned for the safety of family members dining at the restaurant.

"I can do that," said Bryan Burgess about stand-up comedy four years low-key, sardonic wit (delivered in a everyday idiosyncrasies of life in the 1980's. Computers, dating,

'An Evening of New Plays' enjoyable and funny

By Wayne Wallace
Entertainment Editor

Often the most exciting theater experiences are found not on a glamorous Broadway stage but in intimate laboratory theater settings.

Such was the case with "An Evening of New Plays," an enjoyable trilogy of one-act stories, performed by theater students at SIU-C's Lab Theatre over the weekend.

Theater Review

The caliber of the acting and directing ran high, but the texts themselves proved to be the most impressive aspect of all three performances.

Fred Norberg, Gretchen Smith and Lynne Guido, a trio of student playwrights with productive careers ahead of them, painted three vastly different portraits of American life and seemed to share a common tone and insightful style of humor more than they shared any common narrative theme.

In an effort to capture snippets of real life, Norberg, Smith and Guido each paid keen attention to the naturalistic behavior of their characters.

In Guido's "Mel 'n' Charlie," Stephanie Crist, as Melissa, and Ken Traynor, as Charlie, mastered the range from naive to bitter sarcasm as they enacted a deteriorating relationship based mainly on sex, from its awkward beginnings to its disillusioned end.

Crist displayed a fine flair for comedy as the impatient maiden while her co-star Traynor was more convincing as the volatile lover in the play's intense moments.

Norberg's "Thirty" starred Jerry Murray as a wisecracking modern-day messiah, whose holiness doesn't interfere with his sense of whimsy, as he leads a homeless troupe of desert-weary disciples in search of paradise.

While Murray successfully brought warmth and humor to an otherwise sanctimonious historical figure (Jesus), it was actor Bob May, as doubting disciple Jing, who delivered the play's — and possibly the evening's — finest and most intense performance.

"Fear Itself" was Smith's witty screwball comedy about a social recluse (Heather Currie) who wins a dream date with a soap opera heartthrob (Kevin Easterwood) and tries to back out at the last moment.

Easterwood and Currie delivered strong comic performances as the unlikely

Highest GPA's receive fame
on Honors Day

Outstanding students were honored by the University for academic excellence Sunday afternoon at several awards presentations and a reception held in the Student Center ballrooms.

The award ceremonies were held by the individual colleges prior to the reception and family and friends of the honorees were invited to attend both functions.

Students must have at least a 3.5 overall grade point average on the 4.0 scale to be recognized on Honors Day. Those who have received scholarships and other prizes or awards during the past year are also recognized.

University President John C. Guyon and his wife, Joyce, the official hosts of the day's events, were on hand to greet the 1,680 students and their guests in a receiving line at the entrance to the reception.

"This is always an exciting day. It's a privilege to honor these dedicated students," Guyon said.

Mrs. Guyon added she was particularly pleased to meet the students and their parents. "It's wonderful to see students excel and to see them sharing this experience with their parents. Just go look in there and see all the happy faces," Mrs. Guyon said.

Refreshments were provided and tables were arranged by college as introductions and congratulations were traded in the packed ballrooms.

The students themselves had a lot to say on the day of their recognition.

"It's incredibly great to be here. I got the award last semester, so I didn't really expect this," Mike Stockman, senior in graphic arts.

For some students, it was not only a day of recognition, but a time to reflect upon the achievements of their college careers.

"At our ceremony they said that this is not an ending, but a milestone in an advancing career and I think that's true," Janel Wenneman, sophomore in business management.

Others said being an honor student was good preparation for a competitive working world.

"I think to be an honor student is to advance yourself and that this will definately be an asset after graduation," Diadre Woods, senior in business administration.

Some students felt the sacrifices and the hard work they put into making the grade was worth it.

"I'm pretty happy about it. I think all the hard work and a good education really pays off in the end," Colleen Gleason, junior in administration of

"I think it's great to be here. I was here last year as well," Bob Michaelson, sophomore in political science, said.

Non-traditional students, described by the University as older, married part-time students who juggle work, home and school at once, were represented at the ceremonies as well.

"I feel very privileged. It's exciting to realize that a growing number of non-traditional students are being recognized. We have families to take care of and often have a job besides our studies. We have to work a lot harder than most students to find time for our studies, but our overall grades are often better, which I'm proud of," Mary Elizabeth Buchannon, senior in social work who will be continuing her studies at the University after graduation, said.

Some students felt by honoring the outstanding students, the University was encouraging future academic success stories.

"I think it's nice to get all of us together. By congratulating the good students, they'll want to perform well again, to receive that recognition," Mark Neugebauer, freshman in accounting said.

Friends and families of those honored shared their day and echoed the sentiments of faculty and staff about the students.

"I'm really proud of her. She worked really hard to get this award," Gleason's mother, Gloria, said.

"It's just delightful," Woods'

parents, Dixie and Robert, said

Many students' guests traveled long distances to attend the ceremonies.

APRIL IS

NATIONAL HUMOR MONTH

SO GO AHEAD, LAUGH, IT'S GOOD FOR YOU

Laughter helps to control pain. It:

- distracts attention
- reduces tension
- changes expectations
- increases production of endorphins — the body's natural painkillers.

- Laughter exercises the lungs, stimulates the circulatory system, and exercises your breathing muscles.
- Laughter increases oxygen in the blood, and this benefits your entire cardiovascular system.
- During laughter, the chest, abdomen, and face get a vigorous workout. During hearty laughter, even the legs and arms get a workout.
- When laughter subsides, the pulse rate drops below normal, and the skeletal muscles become deeply relaxed.
- It has been scientifically proven that laughter increases relaxation. As laughter subsides, so too does tension.

Some ideas to heighten humor

- Adopt an attitude of playfulness.
- Laugh at life's contradictions. This helps to put them into perspective.
- Only laugh with others, not at them: laugh at what they do, not at what they are.
- Find things that make you laugh and do them

GET PLENTY OF REST + EXERCISE.

- Laugh at yourself with objectivity. The more this is done the closer you are to true self-acceptance.
- Share your laughter.

anyone go back into a burning house," Manis said. "More people lose their lives that way than actually getting caught in the fire."

If a fire starts, do not try to extinguish the fire unless it's a cooking fire that is out of control, Manis said.

Homes should be free of potential fire hazards, he said.

Many homes in Carbondale are fires waiting to happen because of piles of rags, clothes and other clutter that occupy houses, Manis said. It is very easy for piles of clothes to catch on fire and spread quickly.

Houses should be as clutter free as possible.

Overloaded extensions and extensions that run under the carpeting are also serious fire hazards.

Since January 1, the fire department has responded to 123 reports of fire. They usually respond to more than 700 fire reports a year.

That number could be reduced considerably if prevention methods were practiced, Manis said.

Competition for city council positions stiffens

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

Newcomer candidates Carl Flowers and Marvin Tanner will try to oust incumbents John Yow and Keith Tuxhorn for City Council positions in the April 4 general election.

Flowers, a University job placement counselor, is a 17-year resident of Carbondale with experience as a member of the Liquor Advisory Board and former president of Carbondale's chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

"I believe in the city of

If elected, Flowers promised to talk to as many Carbondale citizens as possible and vote with his constituents in mind.

Carbondale," Flowers said. "I've seen a lot of positive changes and I want to be a part of it."

Flowers proposed better cooperation between the city and the region.

"If we want economic development, we, as a city, are going to need the cooperation of cities around us," the 36-year-old said.

If elected, Flowers promised to talk to as many Carbondale citizens as possible and vote with his constituents in mind.

Incumbent Yow, who is running for his second term on the council, proposed the total elimination of the Halloween celebration.

"It's the talk of the town as to what happens and goes on," Yow said. "And it is not very attractive at all."

The former city employee said being retired gives him extra time to study, council issues and discuss those issues with the citizens.

Tanner is still in the race after threatening to withdraw when an area newspaper printed an article about the possible revocation of his probation for driving under the influence of alcohol.

According to court records, Tanner failed to complete his in-patient alcohol treatment and pay court fees and costs.

But Tanner said he would not withdraw after all to keep the election interesting.

The 28-year-old unemployed resident advocated Carbondale's proposed Mass-transit system as coordinator of the Undergraduate Student Government's committee on the system last year and helped obtain $32,000 from the Illinois Department of Transportation for a feasibility study.

"I have a new motivation for City Council," Tanner said.

Incumbent Tuxhorn said his honesty should allow him to return for a seventh year on the council.

"I don't plan on leaving anybody guessing," the former program director for Carbondale Cablevision said.

Tuxhorn said the council has always been supportive of the University when support has been needed.

Township candidates contend for incumbency

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

Republican Eddie E. Turner and Democrat Clara McClure both want Robert Kelley's job as Carbondale township supervisor.

Turner and McClure are running for Carbondale township supervisor in the April 4 general election since Kelley is retiring after 12 years as supervisor.

McClure said after serving as a township trustee for 16 years, "I know how to provide general assistance in a humane and suitable way."

McClure said the township doesn't get the recognition it should especially since township government affects everybody in Carbondale.

Turner, a native of Carbondale, said he has concerns about seeing the township fire department upgraded.

He suggested obtaining equipment from the military bases, which might be closed.

Incumbent Marie Harrell is running against newcomer Yolanda Harrington for township clerk.

Harrington, a Chicago native, came to Carbondale in 1980 to attend the University.

Now a substitute teacher, Harrington said she would work hard as township clerk.

Democrat Jim Greer is running against Republican Oscar Bodkin for highway commissioner.

Greer, a Carbondale native, said he is qualified for the job, as he used to own Carbondale Brick & Block, 210 Industrial Park Drive.

Bodkin was ill and could not be reached for comment.

Incumbent John Parrish said he has done thousands of appraisals as the current tax assessor.

The current status of the township property value is as close to the average as it can be, Republican Parrish said.

He said he has been certified as tax assessor as required by Illinois law.

President keeping agenda in advance to active week

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Bush was on the run Sunday, maintaining an active schedule in advance of a busy work week that will see him meet with five foreign leaders and test his throwing arm at baseball's season opener.

One day after inaugurating the White House horseshow pit and being roasted and toasted late into the night at the annual Gridiron Dinner, Bush and his wife, Barbara, attended morning church services at the Washington Cathedral. Later, the Bushes attended a lunch at the Washington home of friend Charles Bartlett.

Though Monday brings a return to work, Bush will take time to fly to Baltimore — with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak in tow — to throw out the first ball at the season-opener between the Orioles and the Boston Red Sox.

Bush kicks off a round of Middle East diplomacy by meeting with Mubarak.

Progress for Volleyball team; 2 sign intent letters for SIU-C

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

The volleyball team finished with a 4-1 record Saturday at the Eastern Illinois Invitational in Charleston. The Salukis lost to EIU 12-15, 15-12, 15-13 in the final.

"We came out to show people we could play. We just ran out of gas at the end," said first-year coach Patti Hagemeyer, whose team has two spring exhibition tournaments remaining.

In the other matches: SIU-C defeated Bradley 15-6, 15-6;

Evansville 15-7, 15-2; Valparaiso 15-5, 15-5; and Washington 15-12, 11-15, 16-14.

Hagemeyer said that freshman setter Terri Schulteheinrich and sophomore hitters Lori Simpson and Margaret Cooney have shown improvement.

"Terri is finding her way around on the court," Hagemeyer said. "Lori is putting up a great block and Margaret is starting to come around after hurting her shoulder."

On the recruiting front, Hagemeyer, who plans to give two of her three remaining scholarships, confirmed that she had received one national letter of intent over the weekend. However, she refused to release the name of the recruit until she received the second letter today.

Assistant Athletics Director Nancy Bandy said she believed the deadline for a national letter of intent to be binding expired Saturday. In other words, a volleyball player signed after that date has no commitment to that school, and could change schools without penalty if she desired.

In addition to the relay win, the Salukis added five more first-place finishes to keep up with the Veilow Jackets. Included in the winners circle were Saluki runners Erick Pegues, David Beauchem, and Paul Burkinshaw.

Pegues, who handled the anchor for the 4 x 400, flew past the field of 400-meter runners to a first-place finish in 47.93.

"Erick look good as usual this weekend," Cornell said. "He needs to get out faster on his first 100 yards if he wants get the NCAA qualifying time."

Beauchem ran a 9:24.98 time for a victory in the 3000-meter steeplechase, finishing ahead of teammate Vaughn Harry who came in second.

Burkinshaw led the Salukis in a near sweep of the 800-meters, winning in a time of 1:53.43. Paul Glanville and Craig Steele finished third and fourth, respectively, to pad the Salukis winning score.

According to Cornell, the individual performance of the day was Mark Stuart's third place finish in the 5,000-meters.

"Mark ran to a personal best of 15:08.05," Cornell said. "That's 30 seconds better than his previous best. His third place gave us two points and took two away from Tech, so he is responsible for us coming home with a win. He really deserves a pat on the back for the job he did."

The Salukis first win of the outdoor season made Cornell realize that his team has the potential to win on a weekly basis.

"I hope this is the start of better things for us," Cornell said. "I had a talk with the team after last week's loss at home, and I think that they realized they didn't perform well. We got down to business this week and it is the team effort that we need."

Swim team sets four school records

By David Gallanetti
Staff Writer

After claiming six honorable mention All-American honors and breaking four school records, the men's swimming team is still disappointed.

A 27th-place tie with Arizona State didn't make a pleasant flight home for coach Doug Ingram and his team, despite the individual honors the team racked up at the NCAA swimming and diving championships in Indianapolis, Ind.

"We are disappointed because (finishing in the top 20) was an obvious goal for us," Ingram said. "With the difference between the point spreads, if we could have scored a few more we would have moved up several places."

The Salukis ended up with 21 total points. Saturday's 12 point performance moved the team up a notch from 28th after Friday when they scored five points.

"We were somewhat up and down," Ingram said. "There were some outstanding performances, but some did not live up to their best times. We needed to have more consistency with our performances if we wanted to finish in the top 20."

The team finish one place under last year's 26th-place mark, and well under the 13th ranking the Salukis sported coming into the meet.

Senior Scott Roberts shattered his 200 freestyle mark with a 1:36.93 performance, which gained one of the six honorable mention All-American spots. Roberts finished 16th in the event.

SIU-C's 400 free relay team of Deryl Leubner, Roberts, Jeff Goetz and Chris Gally set a new school mark with their 2:58.45, also good for an honorable mention All-American spot. The quartet finished 14th.

The Salukis also set school records in the 200 free relay and the 200 medley relay, which were both run for the first time in the NCAA finals. Roberts, Leubner, Goetz and Gally set the free relay mark with a 1:20.72 good for 15th place, and Roberts, Gally, Goetz and Carry set the medley relay mark with a 1:31.01.

The 200 free relay team also earned an honorable mention All-American spot, as did Gally in the 100 butterfly with a 13th place finish and Mark Canterbury and Alex Yokochi with finishes of 12th and 16th in the 200 breaststroke.

"We were very pleased with those," Ingram said. "They

Baseball team experiencing positive morale swing

Oblivious of the downpour that eventually canceled the second game of Sunday's doubleheader against Southwest Missouri, Saluki players spent the 55-minute rain delay happily playing pepper and other bat and ball games.

Team spirit appears to be at a season high for the Salukis, whose pitching staff threw with renewed confidence in the two games played this weekend at Abe Martin Field.

Freshman Sean Bergman (3-2) used his changeup to stay ahead of Southwest Missouri batters, striking out five and holding onto a 2-1, regulation 9-inning victory Saturday.

Then on Sunday, Dale Meyer (1-3) fanned seven and allowed only three hits in his second complete game, a 2-1 win for 16-5 Southwest Missouri.

The loss prevented the 9-11 Salukis from breaching the .500 mark for the first time since they were 1-1 at the start of the season. However, Coach Itchy Jones, who is five wins from his 700th career victory, was pleased with his team's performance.

"We didn't give anything away," Jones said. "If we had been playing like this all year, we wouldn't be in this position (under .500). This one just wasn't meant to be."

Southwest Missouri's Pat Kelly successfully steals second base Sunday while shortstop Kurt Endebrock and second baseman Tim Davis look on. The Bears defeated the Salukis 2-1 at Abe Martin Field, to gain a split with SIU-C on the weekend.

Saturday despite a one-walk showing.

"All four pitchers for both teams threw well," Bears' Coach Keith Guttin said. "Conditions were conducive to pitching. This was only Crain's second start, but perhaps we've found his role. And Bowling always gives you a chance to win with his control."

Without question, though,

Bergman's victory was the inspirational rallying point for the Salukis. "I was concentrating more on the mound, and it felt like everything clicked for the team," Bergman said.

"Bergman knows how to pitch," Jones said. "In his case it was just a matter of gaining confidence."

If anything, it marked a turning point for the Salukis mentally. Saluki assistant coach Dan Hartlieb said the players on the bench showed much more attention to the game and was supportive of Bergman throughout. Evidence of such camaraderie carried over to Sunday's game.

Offensively, the Salukis did not score with runners in scoring position in three different innings Sunday. That's the next area to work on, Jones said.

"We haven't gotten clutch hits. We had good chances to score, but we've got to get some key hits."

Such wasn't the problem Saturday, as Doug Shields doubled and Rick Damico and Jeff Nelson each came up with RBI singles in a two-run fourth for the Salukis.

Men runners capture victory for Coach's 28th anniversary

By Paul Pebat
Staff Writer

The men's track team gave coach Bill Cornell a special present for his 28th wedding anniversary this weekend.

A win. Capturing a victory in a storybook finish, Cornell's runners edged host Georgia Tech by three points to claim the meet.

The Salukis were ahead of the Yellow Jackets by one point going into the final event, the 4 x 400 relay (Salukis John Stinson, Kevin Steele, Donnell Williams and Erick Pegues). SIU-C sprinted to a winning time of 3 minutes, 10.45 seconds to edge Georgia Tech by fifteen one-hundredths of a second.

Stinson, who ran the lead leg of the victorious relay, said all four runners realized that their finish would decide the Salukis' fate.

"We said to ourselves 'Let's win it for Coach on his anniversary,'" Stinson said. "We knew that we had to beat Tech to win it all. I think the pressure made us run harder. We went out and got it."

Cornell said that the four were up for the challenge when they had the pressure on.

"It was very dramatic," Cornell said. "It was announced on the public address system that the winner of the 4 x 400 would win the meet. The boys got excited when they heard that. They held off Georgia Tech and won by one stride. They rose to the occasion and pulled it out for us."

The final scoring saw the Salukis total 72.5 points, Georgia Tech with 69.5 and Georgia bringing up the rear with 49.

"The meet had us and Tech going back and forth at first place. It was up in the air until the final race," Cornell said.

But the win did not come without a price. The Salukis lost one of the teams most consistent performers, pole vaulter Mike Michels.

Michels pulled his hamstring in the warm-ups of the pole vault. The injury could take up to three weeks to recover from according to Cornell.

Softball team goes 1-2 at Indiana tournament

By Douglas Powell
Staff Writer

The Saluki softball team moved their record to 8-9 after returning home this weekend from an unfinished Indiana Invitational Tournament.

The highlight of the weekend for the Salukis was their defeat of Western Michigan Sunday before rain forced the cancellation of the first- and third-place games.

SIU-C was defeated Saturday by Eastern Illinois and Indiana. The Panthers downed the Salukis early Saturday by a score of 2-1, as pitcher Dede Darnell suffered the loss.

Darnell pitched the first four innings, and Jennifer Brown came in to finish the game. Billie Ramsey went 3-3 at the plate but was left stranded all three trips. The Salukis outthit the Panthers 7-4.

"We have no excuse. We were flat and we weren't ready to play," said head Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer.

The Salukis had three errors against Eastern Junior second-baseman Shelly Gibbs said, "That hurt us, but you can't win unless you score runs."

Errorless ball helped Indiana give the Salukis
