Date set for license suspension appeal

By Steve Haba
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Illinois Liquor Control Commission (ILCC) has scheduled hearings for Sept. 13, on the appeals of five Carbondale liquor store owners whose liquor licenses were revoked by the ILCC.

The hearings, announced by a spokesman for the ILCC Monday, follow the suspensions of the licenses Wednesday by the Carbondale Liquor Control Commission.

The date for the hearings could be postponed if the ILCC grants a continuance to either the city or the owners before Sept. 13. However, neither side has requested the delaying.

W. Stephen and Thomas Hoffmann, owners of record for Eastgate Liquor Mart and Robert and Thomas Palmer, owners of record for Leo’s Westown Liquor Mart, received 30-day suspensions. Philip Hoffmann, owner of record for ABC Liquor Store, received a 30-day suspension.

The ILCC can overrule the Carbondale decision, or it can increase or decrease the penalty. License holders found in violation of state liquor laws, can have their licenses suspended for a maximum of 30 days or have it revoked.

Revocation of any one license would mean the licensee could no longer hold any liquor license in the state.

If the five men decide to appeal the decision of the ILCC, their cases would then go to the district court level, and could proceed from there to the appellate court and then to the Illinois Supreme Court. The Illinois Supreme Court, however, is not required to hear all cases brought to its attention.

An appeal by the Hoffmanns of a one-day ILCC suspension for illegally selling beer from a truck in 1973 is still pending an appellate court decision.

States Attorney Howard Hood said Monday the city has not contacted him concerning a possible case of perjury by W. Stephen Hoffmann and Robert Palmer.

The two men were cited by Neal Eckert, Carbondale commission chairman, for perjuring themselves by giving contradictory testimony at the hearings held last week and a hearing held April 29.

Perjury is a felony. Conviction on a perjury charge would make liquor license revocation automatic, since convicted felons are prohibited from holding a liquor license in Illinois.

The liquor licenses held by the five men were suspended after the Carbondale commission found the Hoffmanns and Palmiers had misfiled the license application forms by concealing financial interests and of illegally transferring liquor between their retail establishments.

A delivery man pushes cases of liquor into ABC Liquor, 110 N. Washington St. Philip Hoffmann, owner of the store, is appealing the suspension of his liquor license which was scheduled to go into effect Monday, Don Malbis, manager of the store, said Monday, "It was business as usual." Construction stops on Rec building as union workers honor picket line

Tom Chessar
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Construction on SIU's Recreation Building slowed to a halt Monday as all union workers except iron workers and general supervision personnel honored a picket line of electrical workers there.

The picketing electrical workers represented the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW), local 193, based in Springfield.

The union is picketing the job site in Carbondale because of dissatisfaction with negotiations between its Springfield and Egizi Electric Co., an electrical contractor based in Springfield and hired to work on the Recreation Building.

Union representatives here said the West Frankfort IBEW local 702, which includes union electricians in Carbondale, is satisfied with the contract it has with Egizi.

The picketers said their local in Springfield has agreed with Egizi on a 90 cent per hour raise but wants double pay for overtime, and not time and a half as Egizi wants.

Hugh McCue, one of the picketers, said that since his Springfield local's contracts with several electrical contracting firms expired June 1, pickets have shut down 39 job sites in a 14 county area.

McCue said his local is picketing job sites whose contracting firms are negotiating with their locals, even though the job site may come under the jurisdiction of a different IBEW local.

Otto Aue, superintendent of J. L. Simmons Co., the general contractor for the Recreation Building, said the business agents of all the unions, except the local IBEW, have insured him that their men will be on the job Tuesday.

Aue said he will designate one entrance to the job site for use by Egizi electrical workers only. The designation will limit picketing to the one entrance, he said.

"This will allow the other workers to enter and work without being confronted by pickets since the picketers are only picketing one contractor and not the seven or so involved at the building site," said Aue.

Aue said the iron workers did honor the pickets because they have an agreement with other union locals that they receive a 24 hour advance notice of a strike. Aue said the business agent from the Springfield local of the IBEW did not serve that notice.

The unions affected at the job site Monday include those of laborers, sheet metal workers, carpenters, painters, pipefitters and plumbers, pipe covers and temperature controllers.

McCue said Jackson County is farther south than other counties in which his electrical local is picketing. "For now," he said, "all we can do is keep moving, stay out of the road (entrance to the site) and inform people of what we're doing." Aue said he could not believe workers of locals different from those represented on the job site would picket a foreign site. He said he was surprised workers here honored the picket.

"We're not having this," said Gus Bode, a member of the Springfield IBEW local 193, of the Rec Building construction site. Bode says the electrical workers blew a fuse at the Rec Building.
More quakes feared in China

TOKYO (AP)—Chinese authorities fear that an expected new earthquake will strike closer to Peking—and possibly with even greater force—than the devastating tremors that rocked northeast China last week, foreigners evacuated from the Chinese capital said Monday. Hundreds of members of Peking's diplomatic community and other foreigners arrived in Tokyo and Hong Kong on Monday and told of the continuing apprehension of new earthquakes that would make rebuilding efforts futile. Chinese officials reported 110 aftershocks in the Tangshan area over the weekend, most between 4 and 5 on the Richter scale.

Mysterious disease kills 14, 35 ill

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—An unknown disease with symptoms resembling flu has killed at least 14 persons who attended a state American Legion convention in Philadelphia late last month, state and legion officials said Monday. At least 14 other persons were hospitalized, some in critical condition. All had similar symptoms—chills, fever and chest pains. Officials in Philadelphia called a news conference, saying they had found no evidence of an epidemic.

Harris judge denies mistrial motion

LOS ANGELES (AP)—William and Emily Harris' trial judge, refusing to declare a mistrial or remove himself from the case Monday, attacked the credibility of two women who swore under oath that a sitting judge made prejudicial remarks. Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler suggested that the jury merely speculate as to the motives of a perspective juror in the trial, "imagined or magnified what she heard," and reported it because she was not becoming a "good juror." Meanwhile, the jury—unaware of the courtroom controversy—continued its deliberations on the kidnapping, robbery and assault charges.

Scientists study Martian gas theories

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—A special team has been formed to look into a theory that gas coming from a soil sample tested by Viking's robot lab is the result of a "unique" interaction between sunlight and sand on Mars. Scientists said Monday that the scientists are looking for a way to explain the puzzling data coming from the Viking robot lab. They are startled by two (perhaps even more) possible explanations—Martian life or a strange chemical reaction.

Revivalists charges dismissed

The last legal entanglement between the city and a group of religious revivalists was broken Monday when charges of disorderly conduct were dropped against seven members of the group. Darrell Stafford, 36 of Grover, and Robert Stacy, 59 of Okoona Miss., both revival preachers, were arrested in June after they allegedly interfered with Carbondale police attempting to limit noise levels coming from their revival tent on East Grand Street.

Democratic candidates to meet here Wednesday

All five Democratic candidates for statewide office will be at SIU Wednesday for public meetings to discuss services in state government.

The meetings, a part of a series of platform hearings announced last week, will be held in Ballroom C of the Student Center on the campus at 6:30 p.m., unless noon, testimony will be heard from patients. Officials in Philadelphia state. From 3 to 4:30 p.m., the public will be allowed to question the candidates and offer sponsors.

The candidates conducting the hearings are: Secretary of State Michael Avanti, candidate for governor; Neil Hartigan, candidate re-elected as attorney general; State Treasurer Alan Yost, candidate for secretary of state; Illinois Senate President Neil Parke, candidate for lieutenant governor; and former State Superintendent of Public Instruction Michael Bakalis, candidate for comptroller.

Heavy rains cause some area damage

Raul Ayala, general agent at Wall Street Quadrangle said there was minor water damage at the apartments from a sewer backup. He received no complaints from other residents of other damage. he said.

Robbin Kirkland, administrative assistant at the Student Center, said water seeped into the north end of the Student Center, damaging the ceiling and floors. He estimated damage at $1800 and reported it as damage, Kirkland said the north end drainage system could not handle Saturday's flooding. Carpeting near the bookstore's north entrance became wet but because the books are off the ground they were not damaged.

Several reports of funnel clouds near Chester and Johnson City were reported by the public. One tornado sighted south of Du Quoin was apparently confirmed. No injuries were reported.

The Physical Plant received reports of roof leaks in campus buildings but there were no other reports of damage to property under the jurisdiction of the plant.

The Illinois Central Co. (CFP) reported power failures of up to five minutes in the Carbondale area, with the longest outage occurring in the area of the Giant City blacktop. Kirkland said a concentrated line of thunderstorms moved over the Carbondale area Saturday morning and was followed by a cold front Saturday evening.

The heaviest rainfall this summer occurred between July 2nd and 3rd when 4.21 inches fell. Kirkland said the airport received no damages in any of the last weekend's thunderstorms and none of the airport's flights were delayed.
LOVELAND, Colo. (AP) — Don Ragsdale attributed her death to "about 10 stab wounds". The body had been dead for three weeks and there is no indication from the Carbondale Police Department that any of those who have taken a polygraph test have been interviewed in the McSharry case. Kennedy said they are being given to persons who were acquainted with McSharry. Two of those rescued were a 5-year-old girl and her 14-month-old sister. Rescue workers said the unidentified boy told them he was watching the baby to make certain it wouldn’t fall into the swirling waters. He did not say what happened to the rest of the family.

Medical personnel at a vacant hospital hastily converted into a morgue struggled to identify the dead. The process was difficult because most had been stripped of their clothing by the churning waters, and doctors were fingerpicking the corpses for positive identification.

The body of McSharry, a 34-year-old college student, was found Saturday in her home at 321 N. Allyn St. early Monday morning. A neighbor, Don Ragsdale, attributed her death to "about 10 stab wounds". Reagan receives
Almighty answer

By Arthur Hopkins

Scene: The Heavenly Real Estate Office

The Landlord is happily creating still another galaxy as his business agent, Mr. Gabriel, enters. As he begins to tell Gabriel about the new building, the latter is seen looking up at the ceiling with a question mark on his face.

The Landlord: Let me see, the recipe calls for one Mr. Gabriel, one trillion rainbow, one billion galaxies of birdsong, a cup of dreams.

Gabriel: Excuse me, sir. From that tiny little jar of gum you're putting that way, one of your tenants says he's going to put you in your place.

The Landlord: (sighing) All of them try. But who is it this time, Gabriel? Bill Graham again?

Gabriel: No, sir. Ronnie Reagan.

The Landlord: I never could tell those two apart And what, pray tell, Gabriel, is my place?

Gabriel: The Landlord. The classroom? Are you sure? Gabriel?

The Landlord: Yes, sir. In every speech he gives, Ronnie Reagan promises that if he is elected President, he will take the Government out of the classroom and put the Government in. After

The Landlord: (frowning) Teachings is noble profession, Gabriel, but I'm afraid I'm not cut out for it. Application problems, who did what to whom in 1066 and all that... besides, I do have other things to do. It reminds me, where did I put that jar of jam of morning mist?

Gabriel: (thoughtfully) Maybe he's appointing you, sir, or... maybe he's interested in the Superintendent of Schools?

The Landlord: Well, there's a thankless task. P.T.A.'s, tax rates, teachers' unions... tell him I'm underqualified.

Gabriel: Wait, I have it, sir. He obviously feels that if he puts you in the classroom, you'll be handy so that the children can ask you for things.

The Landlord: What? The answer to the multiple choice question on page three? Tell them it's usually (unless that says, "None of the above.")

Gabriel: No, he'd want them to ask you for things like blessing America and keeping it strong.

The Landlord: (testily) I already blessed America purple mountains, majestic, tranquil, the works. And what does he mean by strong?

Gabriel: Oh, you know, sir. The most guns, the most bullets, the most rockets...

The Landlord: (angrily) By me, Gabriel, do you mean I'd have my little children for me for weapons with which to kill my other little children?

Gabriel: (eagerly raising his Golden Trumpet) Yes, sir. Shall I sound the Eviction Notice? That's clearly blasphemy.

The Landlord: No, no, Gabriel, I think it's only confusion. He obviously meant he would take me out of the classroom. After all, the Government's the one you pray to for things like that.

In July 31, Daily Egyptian "Viewpoint" by Robert Fancher, one paragraph stated that "the EGO is asking for money which if it existed could be put to better educational use than providing prerequisites for T.A.'s (hiring more senior faculty, for instance)." It should read "perquisites".

Mass transit needed to aid commuters

To the Daily Egyptian:

At a time when gasoline prices are high, parking facilities around campus are almost nonexistent, and traffic at peak hours is limited to a crawl, it doesn't seem to be a logical time for either the City of Carbondale or the University to introduce some form of mass transportation!

I am only one of the many commuter students (between Murphysboro and Carbondale) who feel that mass transportation could benefit Carbondale citizens. University students, and citizens of neighboring communities.

Bus lines between neighboring communities which have a high student population will not lower the price of gasoline, but it will help lower the students' personal expenses. This expensive barrier of having to own and keep up a car confines many students to look for housing in Carbondale (which is already packed). A bus line would not only save money for students presently living outside of Carbondale but would also open the way for more students to live outside of Carbondale.

The bus lines would not have every student riding them each day but it will eliminate some of the parking problems as many students who would normally be driving would be leaving their cars at home and riding the buses.

With fewer students driving back and forth to school each day and more riding the buses, the amount of cars on the road will decrease, thereby decoupling many of the exit roads out of Carbondale.

Not only would the students be able to use the bus lines but also other citizens of the community who don't own cars and are having a difficult time getting around. Therefore, doesn't it seem logical that mass transit operations should be considered.

Campus lake unfit for nudies or anybody

To the Daily Egyptian:

In response to a "Viewpoint" of Scott Caldwell's appearing in July 31, Daily Egyptian, if the student government were truly concerned about the students, a referendum would come in handy regarding the quality of water in the campus lake.

All of the algae growing in the swimming area, combined with a rotting stench that gently wafts its way to all parts of campus, makes swimming in the campus lake an unpleasant affair.

Algae is no doubt due at least partially to the natural process of eutrophication. Hydrogen sulfide gas, metabolized from sulfer by bacteria on the bottom of the lake is probably a large percent of the malodorous ether emanating from the body of water. This also is a result of eutrophication. There are no doubt, many coldforn bacteria present due to a sewage leak from Thompson Point. Frankly, I can't see why Mr. Caldwell would want to swim in the campus lake.

The sewage leak will eventually be repaired, but eutrophication of a lake is difficult to reverse. I don't see much hope of making the campus lake a clean and refreshing place to swim.

State miners wildcat grows, list of mine closings increase

CENTRALIA (AP) — Poled by growing sympathy for recently turned wildcat West Virginia strikers, the United Mine Workers union is gathering strength in Illinois.

Twenty-one of the state's 57 mines—all but five of which are UMWA represented—closed Monday.

Some 4,000 miners, about half the state's active UMWA members, were idled. Ten mines were closed by roving pickets by Friday and two more shut by Saturday.

Gene Mitchell of Benton, a member of the UMWA international executive board, said some of the new closings were sympathy walkouts not forced by picketing.

Over the weekend he had urged union members to return to work but few expected them to cross picketlines. Mitchell's own local ignored his advice, he said, and decided Sunday to strike with or without pickets.

Tickets first appeared in Illinois late Thursday. It was presumed they are from West Virginia where an unauthorized walkout became more than a week ago in protest against what the UMWA believes is undue federal court interference in contract disputes.

Arnold Miller, national UMWA president, has twice ordered the West Virginia union back to the mines, says directives which were ignored.

UMWA leaders expected the list of Illinois closings to grow and said they were preparing to stop it.

Keneth Daves of Villar, president of the union in Illinois, was reportedly making the rounds in the coal fields Monday talking to the men.

However miners in some surrounding states were returning to their jobs Monday.

"I hate to see us come out like that and they are working all around us," Mitchell said.

"There are some of them that haven't been picketed out. So it looks like they are out in sympathy with the ones in West Virginia," he said.

Safer mining predicted with drilling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Bureau of Mines reported Monday encouraging progress in efforts to drain explosive methane gas out of coal beds before mining. The approach may make mining safer and at the same time provide a source of usable natural gas.

Methane, essentially similar to natural gas, is trapped in coal deposits and is often released during mining. In underground mines it must be constantly removed by ventilation to avoid reaching concentrations which can explode.

Methane explosions have in fact caused some of mining's worst disasters.

The bureau said it has been researching for the past ten years the idea of draining methane in advance of mining, by drilling holes into coal deposits.

Five holes were drilled into a coal seam recently destined to be mined by Eastern Associated Coal Corp. at its Federal No. 2 mine in Monongalia County, W. Va., the bureau reported.

"After almost three years," it said, "a total of 770 million cubic feet of methane had been drained and methane flows of a least 600,000 cubic feet per day can be expected for the next two or three years."

It said some 130 million cubic feet of methane, of pipeline quality, has been captured and sold to Virginia strikers.

The award is "intended to further the operatic careers of baritones between the ages of 20 and 32 who reside in California, Oregon, New York, Massachusetts, Toronto, or Montreal, and carries a $1,000 stipend."

The Pomona 4-H Panthers and Rural Creative Workshop will co-sponsor a summer festival at Pomona on August 7 from 1 to 10 p.m. featuring a pet luck dinner and pie auction.

Other events scheduled for the day include the "Officer Bill" program, sports events, craft demonstrations, and craft workshops. The "Officer Bill" program features Mike Norgren, SIU security policeman.

The schedule is: 1 p.m. festival starts, 2 p.m. "Officer Bill" program for children in 8-year-olds, 3 p.m. "Officer Bill" for 8 to 12 years old, 4 p.m. "Officer Bill" rap sessions for teenagers, 5 p.m. petluck dinner, 6:30 p.m. old-fashioned pie auction, 7 p.m. workshop with parents and "Officer Bill". 7 p.m. dance: 10 p.m. program over.

The Rural Creative Workshop began over a year ago as a community development project with a human services delivery approach. It is a large volunteer organization involved in promoting youth activities and interests through vocational programming, counseling, service programs, cultural enrichment, and sports to 300-400 rural Jackson County youth. The executive director for the Workshop is Ms. Barbara Trev. Their main office is located directly above the coffee shop in Makanda.

University Mall
Guest organist plans 'Transformations'

By Wendy Kearns
Student Writer

David Britton will be the guest artist and organist for "Transformations," a dance-theatre concert to be performed by the Southern Repertory Dance Theatre at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, at Shryock Auditorium. Britton's organ music will accompany Lonny Gordon, the American dance choreographer, in a photoshopping of four distinct time periods in the life of Gordon's career. Costume changes and dance will suggest four statements about Gordon, Britton said.

Their approach to Gordon's work includes gesture in terms of physical form and musical movement, Britton said. "One of the things I am attempting to do with Gordon is to be inspired by him in a way that is saying a lot...is going to improve," Britton said. However they may agree upon certain parameters.

"It won't be merely two people flailing around madly without any thread running between them," he said. "I hope to experience a fine communion between us."

The performances are a mirror of certain qualities of his motion in sound. Britton feels that he is working with him, but whether I am actually working with his gesture or against it, his gesture is the departing point for what I'll be doing.

Tempo changes and gestures all suggest to Britton certain qualities of his motion and how they might influence his next movement. Britton believes that the sound may influence Gordon's next movement, and his next sound will influence his next sound.

"I am writing music to play for this work certain pre-composed pieces. I thought I would try to find suitable pieces for this work from standard repertoire," Britton said.

"We are trying to have a part of this "set," or composed ahead of time, with certain elements, especially in the music. Left to right, said Britton.

He also said the semi-improvisational approach in a new way call for a new experience for him, although the idea of music-dance improvisation is not a new one.

Britton received his B. A. in music from the Oberlin Conservatory in Massachusetts. Between his sophomore and junior year he discovered Jacob's Pillow, a dance festival in Westfield, Massachusetts, and became aware of dance.

He said he studied Spanish and East Indian Hindu dance with Goya and Matteo, an ethnic dance team and guest artists at the dance festival, in master's class in Springfield, Massachusetts.

Britton said he became high on the nature ability he found with dance and spent his junior year at the Moratorium Academy in Salzburg, Austria. In his sophomore year at Oberlin he joined the modern dance club.

Britton said he considered leaving music to become a dancer, but decided against it. Britton received a masters and doctorate degrees in music from the Eastman School of Music, part of the University of Rochester, New York.

In his discussions, the study of the shaping forces of rhythm through body movement, was part of Britton's study for two years, he said.

My experience with dance and movement, combined with my analytical knowledge of music structure, has helped me communicate the shaping forces in a musical structure, has helped me communicate the shaping forces in a musical structure, Britton said.

"Music only exists as a continuum in time. A good performance communicates that forward movement, degrees of varying tension and dissonance in a musical phrase," he said. Britton said his approach to rhythm is more fluid, plastic and pliable in the sense of time.

At the concert Britton will also be working with the dancers of the SRDT in a work entitled "Romantic to Leonardi," in which he will be playing the organ music of the French composer Jean Guillain. Britton will also be playing Bach's Prelude and Fugue in a minor in an orgel solo. Britton said that the fugue rhythm is stylized and has a dance quality to it.

Britton is a native a Western Massachusetts. He served as chairman of the Organ Department at Capital University. Columbus, Ohio, before moving to the West Coast. While at Loyola Marymount University in Los Angeles, he became Artist in Residence at Whittier College. He is currently chairman of the Organ Department at California State University, Northridge.

Britton has been invited to perform at the American Guild of Organists, the Music Teachers National Association, the Mount Vernon Ladies Association, the performance of the Presbyterian Church, Los Angeles. Southern Methodist University in San Antonio, and the University of California, Los Angeles.

Mystery still pervades Hoffa's disappearance

By Pete Yost

DETROIT (AP) -- In the year since Teamsters boss James R. Hoffa vanished last July 30, investigators have tracked down a stone north of Detroit to a carpeted suite, fully air conditioned, cafeteria with up-to-date service and free off-street parking.

The $800,000 reward offered jointly by the family and union groups would help solve the case.

Under Michigan law, a missing person is not presumed dead seven years after his disappearance.

A U.S. District Judge Philip Van Dam, heading the investigation, said this week that there were "indications around the corner...but we have not reached a stone wall. It's an active investigation but a ram's gate comes one."

Last July 30, Hoffa, then 62, drove away from his lakeside home in Lake Orion north of Detroit to arendevous outside the Machus Red Fox Restaurant in Bloomfield Township. He stepped off an aer limousine service where he told his friend at the limousine service . Hoffa's last call was to a Detroit restaurant looking for his father's old Detroit local. has been 'holding up as well as can be expected' and shared his hope that the $800,000 reward offered jointly by the family and union groups would help solve the case.

Ronstond, films, big band, jazz
highlight week at River Fest

Keith Textorn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A night of jazz and blues, three rock performances, two nights of film and the music of the 1940's are all in the week of activities beginning Saturday, Aug. 4 at the Mississippi River Festival, on SIU's Edwardsville campus.

An important date change for the week will be the rescheduling of Linda Ronstadt's concert from Aug. 8 to Monday, Aug. 6.

On Wednesday, Aug. 4, the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band returns to the MRF with special guest artist Valdy. The Dirt Band, following the success of their latest album, "Symphonon Dream," remains one of the most exciting groups in the country-rock field. The success of the "Will the Circle Be Unbroken" album in the early '70s moved the group to the top of the field, and cuts like Pumpkin Water, and Dream from the latest album have helped the Dirt Band maintain that status.

"Women in Love" and "The Conformist," the two films slated for the "Director's Prospective" segment of the MRF Film Series, will be shown in the University Center's Circle on Thursday, Aug. 5. "Women in Love," the 1970 film adaptation of D. H. Lawrence's classic novel, is directed by Ken Russell, who also directed "Tommy" and "The Music Lovers." Bernardo Bertolucci's "The Conformist," another 1970 movie, is a narration of a rising, young fascist assassin in the '30s. Bertolucci also directed "Last Tango in Paris".

Friday, Aug. 6 will be a night of music from the '40s, with Paula Kelly and the Modernem, Cab Calloway, and Ray McKinley and the Orchestra. The "big band" sound will come alive when McKinley and the Orchestra perform wellremembered hits like "Moonlight Serenade," "Chattanooga Choo Choo," and "Juke Box Saturday Night.

Barry Manilow who will appear Saturday, Aug. 7, is one of the most prolific songwriters in the business. Although many of his tunes go relatively unheralded, since they were produced as various television and radiojingles, Manilow also co-produced and arranged Bette Midler's first album, "The Divine Miss M," which won a Grammy Award, and has had hit albums and singles on the charts, most notably the No. 1 hit "Masquerade.

Linda Ronstadt began with the Stone Poneys in the mid-'60s, and has since moved out on her own with the success of such hits as "When Will I Be Loved," and "Heat Wave.

With three gold albums, a number of single hits and successful performances around the country, she has become a leading figure in country-rock entertainment.

Also on Aug. 9, two swashbuckling films, "Robinson Crusoe" and "The Thief of Bagdad," will continue the Film Series. "Robinson Crusoe" is a 52 version directed by Luis Bunuel which explores the classic tale alone on a deserted island. "The Thief of Bagdad" is the original silent version, starring and produced by Douglas Fairbanks.

On Tuesday, Aug. 10, Esther Phillips and Bobby "Blue" Band will bring a night of jazz and blues to the festival site. Phillips, as one critic put it, is "a vibrant, straightforward, strong personality who exhibits a very personal, pleasing glow when communicating with her audience." Band is the performer of such hits as "Blues for Sale," "Two Steps from the Blues," and "Poverty." He has been recording since 1958, when his first solo effort, "Loving Blues," started a career that has established him as one of the top blues artists in the business.

South Vietnamese work farmland, capital loses citizens to countryside

By Denis D. Gray
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Bicycles, pelotons and a few public buses have taken over the streets of Saigon from the bustling automobile traffic that once filled the city during the long American presence accounted to Americans who were flown out of the country.

Scarcely and expensive gasoline almost completely make it impossible for the Saigonese to drive their vehicles.

William Smith, 27, a former U.S. serviceman from Detroit, said bicycle traffic or car use are too slow for motorists to get everywhere. An improve supply of motorcycles once in great demand will sell for about a third their former cost.

"The former South Vietnamese capital, now part of a unified country ruled from Hanoi, also has been losing Saigonese in the 13 months since Communist forces defeated the U.S.-backed Saigon regime. Almost one-fourth of the four million population has been reported sent to the countryside to work in new agricultural areas.

Faculty member John Sloan, an architect from Chicago, said Vietnamese were moved out of the cities to the new farming areas are dying from disease and lack of medical care.

Smith and many others have fled to neighboring American and some Vietnamese wives and children who arrived here Sunday on a flight arranged through the United Nations high commissioner for refugees.

About 30 other Americans and Vietnamese with U.S. passports are believed still in Vietnam.

Those who arrived here included refusals and war protesters, former U.S. soldiers, and some, according to the Vietnamese of whom the U.S. ambassador, who returned to find sweethearts or children.

Krasny won the waterbed and first-place title of backgammon champion in a tournament sponsored by the store. Out of a field of 32 contestants, Krasny beat Howard Saver, area businessman, in the grand finale in two and one-half hours, final score being 9-4. Disputes likely for sea conference

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) - Delegates from some 150 countries - rich and poor, landlocked and coastal - gathered here again Monday hoping to resolve the disputes that have hobbed Law of the Sea negotiations for 27 years.

The mood was markedly different from the optimistic hoopla that preceded previous negotiating sessions in Cartagena in 1974, Geneva in 1975 and New York in 1977.

This time, both organizers and delegates predicted a hard fight on the half-dozen key disputes and agreed that at least one more negotiating session would be necessary, probably in early 1977.

The goal of the Law of the Sea Conference, which has consumed six years in preliminary talks and actual negotiations, is to write a comprehensive rule book for the oceans and the harvesting of the immense resources they hold.

"We are at a crossroads where it is possible to go forward and resolve the outstanding issues remaining to be negotiated," T. Vincent Learson, the chief U.S. delegate, told a news conference.

"To do this, we must avoid bogging down in ideological debate which would impair the possibility of signing a treaty in early 1977." In an introductory note, Conference President H. Shirley Ann Majura of Sandia Laboratories said the session would be "the most crucial stage of this process.

"The negotiations will prove to be a severe test of diplomatic acumen, international goodwill and political vision," he said.

The Winner

Faculty, staff decals available next Monday

Faculty and staff parking decals for 1976-77 will go on sale Monday, Aug. 8, but students will not be able to purchase them until the first day of fall semester, Aug. 23, to purchase the decals.

The decals can be purchased at the Parking Division Office, Washington Square Building D. The decals are available to faculty, staff and disabled students, and carry a $3.50 fee. Red decals, which allow parking in a few fringe lots, are $5.

Departments wanting decals are asked to call 533-5903. The "76-77 decals are valid until September 1.

At lots 42, 56, 63, and 106, tickets will be issued only after the first week of school. At all other lots the parking regulations will be enforced.

A staff parking decal will be issued to any person who owns money for undischarged obligations under the university or for vehicle regulations.

Bicycle registration will begin September 30. Bikes will not be registered unless they have a white front reflector, a red back reflector, a light if they are to be used at night, and an audible signaling device.

The cost is $1 and a license which can be used to trace the bike if it is stolen.

Licenses can be purchased at the parking office, Washington Square or the City Clerk's office at City Hall. Licenses do not need to be renewed.

Lab to instruct parents to develop children's skills

By Gregory Johnson

Student Writer

An infant care lab, which would instruct and introduce parents to the developmental skills of their child, may be offered by the Child and Family Department of the College of Human Resources.

Use of the coordinators, Jackie Edelman, professor of Child and Family, said that although the lab is not currently in the planning stage, there are indications it may be approved to proceed in the fall. Edelman said the infant care lab will be an extension of the department's Lab for Pre-Kids which teaches only three and four-year-old children.

"We are now more acutely aware of the need to extend the age limit downward so that the program will meet the needs of children from 0-3 years," Edelman said. "This will help guarantee a good developmental start for children in life for the future." Edelman said the lab will help parents in understanding their child's motor, emotional, social and intellectual skills in the lab and at home. She explained that by making each lab consistent with home care, most basic physical and emotional needs will be fulfilled.

Krasny said the lab will be different in that several schools in the University will be involved in the project. Parents will be observed by the centers and construct a program which met the University's specific needs.

"Our idea is to expand her ideas to take various aspects of the centers and construct a program which met the University's specific needs," Krasny said. "Our lab will be different in that several schools in the University will be involved in the project. Parents will be observed by the centers and construct a program which met the University's specific needs.

We'll be unique in that we will have and interdisciplinary look to it."
Gilbert to receive award at commencement exercises

Approximately 1,500 students are candidates for degrees at SIU's Aug. 6 commencement exercises in the SIU Arena. Ceremonies will begin at 2 p.m.

During the program, President Warren W. Brandt will present SIU's Distinguished Service Award to John G. Gilbert, Carbondale attorney who served in the Illinois Senate from 1961 to 1973. Gilbert's father, the late John P. Gilbert, was chairman of the University's history department from 1911 to 1929 and his mother, also an SIU graduate, taught school in Carbondale for 25 years.

Gilbert has been a long-time supporter of SIU, both in and out of the state legislature.

According to the university's office records, the list of graduation candidates includes 82 for the master's degree, four for the certificate of specialist (between a master's and a doctorate) and 89 for the Ph.D.

All graduates and guests are invited to a reception to be sponsored by the University Alumni Services in the Student Center immediately following the ceremony.

AT&T phone rates, income found reasonable by judge

WASHINGTON (AP) - American Telephone & Telegraph Co.'s longdistance telephone rates and income went on trial by a Federal Communications Commission administrative law judge today. The FCC is asking the judge to rule whether the rates are in line with its rules of reason.

Judge David I. Kraushaar rejected FCC trial staff that Bell System customers had been overcharged and a recommendation that they get refunds of more than $1.6 billion for the year.

Kraushaar also rejected a trial staff recommendation that the FCC ask Congress to break up AT&T, the former monopoly, by offering competition, by splitting off its huge manufacturing and supply subsidiary, Western Electric Co.

The problem of managing 'Bell's bigness' does not call for 'a return to the extreme and revolutionary remedy of divestiture and spinoffs in the holy names of competition and 'free market,' Kraushaar said.

The question of whether the FCC has gone far enough, or too far, in allowing competitors to enter the former monopoly by AT&T in providing business phone services and equipment is before Congress and the federal courts.

Thomas S. Nurnberger, executive vice president of AT&T, commented in New York that 'we'll be wined and dined, and the midnight oil to analyze all the details in this SIP-page decision, but I can say right now that the decision in most respects appears sound.'

Commandos, Schwartz win IM titles

The Dugout Commandos and Buster Schwartz emerged victorious Friday evening as the two men's intramural softball playoffs came to an end at Evergreen Park.

Timely hitting and excellent pitching enabled the Commandos to blank the S.O.B.'s, 10-0 to claim the championship of the 16 inch softball tournament.

Schwartz, ahead 9-0 tallied seven runs on four hits in the second frame to put the Wallers permanently behind.

Three walks were issued to Schwartz during that inning. The big hit of the inning, a triple was provided by left fielder Bill Cleary, immediately after a key double by shortstop Mike Beck.
