Campus extends parking privileges

PARKING

•Decals can be purchased from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Parking Division in Washington Square Building B.

GREEN SPACE: Stickers offered to sophomores, freshmen on first-come basis without applications.

NICCI CORALUS
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

For Tracey Evans, finding a parking space for cars with green decals soon will be like finding a four-leaf clover.

Under a new policy, SIUC students now are able to purchase green parking decals on a first-come-first-serve basis instead of by application.

Evans, a freshman in pre-law from Batavia, is one of many students affected by the limited number of green parking spaces — the only spaces offered to freshmen and sophomores who do not commute.

"I had no idea that it was going to be this hard to find a space," Evans said. "I probably would have listened to my mom, who told me not to bring a car, if I would have known."

In previous years, green decals were given to freshman and sophomore students living in resident halls according to their needs. Students who had to leave because of doctors' appointments, home necessities, military leave or any substantial need were given the decals.

Evans said she plans on leaving for home at least once a month and needs a car here.

"There was no way I was going to take a boring bus ride for seven hours to get home," she said.

The decision to have on-campus parking available to all students regardless of need is on a trial basis and was made this summer by SIUC Chancellor Donald Beggs; Harvey Welch Jr., vice chancellor for Student Affairs; and James A. Tweedy, vice chancellor for Administration.

"Instead of telling (freshman and sophomore) students that there were no cars allowed, which wasn't true, we decided that we would open it to everyone and inform on what options they have," Tweedy said.

There are three lots for vehicles with green decals: lot 59 located northwest of Greek Row, which has 164 green parking spaces; lot 100 on Washington Street, which has 176 spaces; and lot 106 on South Wall Street, which has 145 spaces.

Adding to the limitations for green decals is the permission granted to junior and senior students with red decals and faculty with blue decals to park in the green spaces.

"If the lot that green students want to park in is full, they must go to the next green lot," said Marilyn Hogan, coordinator for the Parking Division.

The purpose for the change in the parking rule is to aid in the Parking Division's planning for future additions on parking lots and garages.

"We are trying to figure out if all freshmen and sophomores could bring cars, how many spaces and how much money we would need," Hogan said.

The Parking Division will find out numbers of how many green decals were purchased in addition to the amount of permits bought from the city of Carbondale and the Newman Center.

Old monkey skull yields information on evolution

DEAD HEAD: 1994 discovery by SIUC researchers gains world-wide attention.

BRIAN EBERS
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

SIUC researchers are receiving worldwide attention for their discovery of a 15-million-old primate skull in Kenya.

The discovery is providing anthropologists with information surrounding a vague time period when apes and monkeys took separate evolutionary paths.

Stephen Gitau, a doctoral candidate in physical anthropology, assisted with the 1994 excavation, along with two other SIUC researchers, by marking the specific location of the skull.

Over the past few months, USA Today, CNN and a variety of newspapers across the globe featured the find.

"It's been an exciting opportunity," Gitau said. "There's been a lot of attention, both internationally and here at home."

The skull was found in 1994 on an island in Lake Victoria, the second largest body of fresh water in the world, which is a prime location for anthropologic research.

The excavation was part of project funded by the National Science Foundation in the African country of Kenya.

Dating techniques had to be completed before researchers

"This artifact sheds light about where we come from," Gitau said. "In the depths of time when apes and monkeys were undergoing changes, we can now see the characteristics of our early ancestors."

Athletic director may seek House

DRAFTED: Local Republicans petition SIUC's Jim Hart to run against Jerry Costello.

KIRK MOTTRAM
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Democrats say a Jim Hart congressional candidacy would not derail U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Ill., from his current post, but Republican county chairmen still want to expose the congressman's "weakened" position.

A petition to draft Hart, the SIUC athletic director, for a run against Costello in the 12th Congressional District has been distributed among key Republican constituencies and has elicited excitement from party faithful.

"I think he'd be the caliber person we'd be looking for," said Stephen McGlynn, Randolph County Republican chairman. "But there're other people we're looking at, too."

McGlynn did not elaborate on alternative candidates.

Hart gained popularity as a professional football player for the St. Louis Cardinals. He quarterbacked the team from 1966 to 1972, spending his last year with the Washington Redskins. Before playing football, he attended SIUC from 1962 to 1967, graduating with a bachelor's degree in education.

Hart also worked as a broadcaster for WGN in Chicago and as a talk show host for KMOX in St. Louis, where he owns a restaurant.

Hart could not be reached for comment as of press time.

Bruce Brown, Illinois Republican committee chairman, would not comment on the existence of a petition, but said the idea of a Jim Hart candidacy is an intriguing proposition.

"It would be one of the most exciting things possible for Republicans," Brown said.

Some Democratic county chairmen and representatives in the 12th Congressional District, however, say Hart's name is the only thing fueling the petition campaign.

New symbol represents SIU's global role

GRADUAL TRANSITION:

Familiar old SIUC dot will be phased out over two years.

WILLIAM HAIFIELD
DE POLITICAL EDITOR

An international presence and a need to bring all SIU campuses under one symbol has prompted administrators to revamp the University's logo.

Since the mid-1960s, students have been familiar with the SIUC dot, which displayed the letters SIUC in a maroon circle.

However, returning students are being greeted by a new logo in which the "I" is dotted with a large, striped ball representing the earth.

Jack Dyer, the president's executive assistant for media services, who served on the committee that chose the new logo, said it represents all of SIU's campuses including Carbondale, Edwardsville, East St. Louis, Alton and Nakajo, Japan.

"There was no one symbol which united the campuses to tell people what a large international connection we have," Dyer said. "This logo symbolizes the international scope of the University."

University administrators also have discussed the possibility of developing campuses in Malaysia and Shanghai.

Dyer said the circle representing the earth is used in a number of corporate logos such as Comfort Inn, AT&T and IBM.

Violence rates increasing

Emergency rooms at hospitals across the country are treating more than 1.3 million people a year for injuries caused by violent attacks, an increase of 250 percent over previous government estimates, the Justice Department reported Sunday.

Sixty percent of the victims were men and 40 percent were women. More than nine of every 10-94 percent were injured during an assault. Almost half the injuries, where the place of attack was known, were sustained in the home, either the patient's or someone else's. Two percent were hurt during a robbery, and 5 percent were injured during a rape or sexual assault.

Women were more likely than men to have been injured by someone with whom they had an intimate relationship — a current or former spouse, boyfriend or girlfriend. Men were more likely than women to be treated for injuries caused by non-relatives — acquaintances or strangers.

The findings were based on emergency room visits in 1994 at a nationwide sample of 31 hospitals that provide 24-hour service and have staffs trained to record the cause and circumstances of every injury, according to the Bureau of Justice Statistics.

Teamsters leader under fire

With his seemingly revitalized union embroiled once again in controversy and allegations of corruption, Teamsters President Ron Carey faced a demand Sunday from his defeated rival that he abandon his post.

Two days after a federal monitor said the union's 1996 presidential election must be re-run because the Carey campaign received illegal contributions, challenger James P. Hoffa said Carey should be disqualified and that an independent counsel should be appointed to investigate. Carey denied knowing about the financing irregularities and indicated he would not step aside.

Chancellor greets new students

CONVOCATION: SIUC

Chancellor inspires new arrivals with Saluki Creed.

TRAVIS DE NEAL
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

In hopes of creating a new student tradition, SIUC administrators and faculty encouraged students at a new student convocation Saturday to have higher goals than just earning a degree.

SIUC Chancellor Donald Beggs told two groups totaling about 1,400 students and parents at Saturday's convocation at Shryock Auditorium that students interacting with other students is an important part of University life.

"We have students here from across Illinois, across the nation and across the world," Beggs said. "We have a rich history of cultural differences coming together."

"It's a privilege of being at a university."

Beggs and other administrators, wearing academic robes, spoke to the group about expectations and goals. A group of about 60 faculty members, also in academic regalia, sat at the front of the auditorium.

To emphasize students' roles in the University, Beggs asked Undergraduate Student Government President David Vingren to read the newly developed Saluki Creed, as the crowd stood.

"I will respect the rights and property of others. I will know and understand the ideals and values of this community of scholars and will strive to incorporate them in my daily life," Vingren read from the creed. "I will fulfill my responsibility as a citizen-scholar by striving to make this campus and community a better place."

The creed, which was developed by the University this summer, outlines higher goals for students, Vingren said.

"It details the expectations and opportunities for students to succeed at the University," he said.

Victims of abuse receive hi-tech help

LIFELINE: Local businesses and organizations provide emergency cellular phones to domestic violence victims.

J. MICHAEL RODRIGUEZ
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Domestic violence victims soon will have a hi-tech way to contact area police in times of trouble.

On Aug. 14, First Cellular of Southern Illinois teamed up with Motorola Co. to distribute 40 cellular phones to the Women's Centers of Marion and Carbondale, the Jackson County State's Attorney's Office and the Carbondale Police Department.

The phones will be given to domestic violence victims who are considered to be in danger of future abuse.

Jamie Shaw, public relations Manager for First Cellular of Southern Illinois, approached these organizations with the idea. The company donated about $1,000 to $2,000 to be used for air time, batteries, charging units and general expenses to keep the program running.

Completing its part of the deal, Motorola donated 40 phones at a value of $8,000.

"The Cellular Telecommunications Industry Association (CTIA) were the ones who began this program," Shaw said. "We're the third in the nation to use this program."

The other two programs have been started in Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Shaw said if a phone is stolen, it will be shut down completely, and any broken phones will be turned over to Motorola for repairs.

The phones are programmed exclusively to call the Carbondale Police Department, the Jackson County State's Attorney's Office and the Women's Center in case of emergencies.

Phones are distributed to victims who still are living with the abuser and also victims who recently have left an abusive relationship.

The Women's Center, which served more than 600 victims last year, received 20 cell phones to be divided up between its two main locations in Marion and Carbondale.

"We are glad to be a part of this project which enables us to have another tool that allows for providing safety," said Mary Kay Bachman, executive director of the Women's Center, 408 W. Freeman St.

No trees? Blame Congress

As so many other students did Saturday evening, I headed up to my favorite watering hole to meet up with a friend who had been away visiting family. Rather than appearing well-rested, my friend Mike was deeply troubled over the situation out at Bell Smith Springs.

"What's this I hear about logging out at Bell Smith Springs, Rob? I thought we won that fight two years ago when a federal judge ruled that the Shawnee National Forest could not be subject to commercial use, including logging, until a scientifically sound forest management plan could be developed. Now I hear they're choppin' down trees anyway."

"Well, Mike, I thought we had won, too. As you recall, the Sierra Club was behind that lawsuit. In the end, the judge found that the Forest Service had ignored the cumulative effects of various logging operations; had been "arbitrary and capricious" in its determination of the size of contiguous forest required to protect migratory songbird nests from predation by cow birds; and had failed to fully consider the environmental effects of other uses of public lands, including mining for oil in the forest. Later, that judge ruled that the Forest Service had been negligent in its management of the Shawnee National Forest, and ordered that all commercial uses of the forest be halted until a new forest management plan could be created."

"Yeah, that's pretty much the way I remember it. We all jumped for joy, thumbed our noses at the Forest Service, and went home. So, what went wrong?"

"The Republicans took over Congress, that's what."

"Hold on. How in the world could that have an effect on what goes on in the Shawnee?" Mike's usual skepticism was showing its ugly head again.

"Simple," I said confidently. "In 1995, the Republican-controlled Congress passed a Rescissions Bill with a really nasty rider attached to it — the Salvage Logging rider. This rider allows timber companies to move in and chop down trees that are reaching the end of their lives. The justification used is that allowing these trees to die without harvesting them would be a waste of good timber. But it's really just a clever way of bypassing the courts and overcoming legal challenges from environmentalists."

"Oh, well, if the trees are going to die anyway . . ."

"Don't say it. Dead trees are part of a healthy forest. Among other things, they return nutrients to the soil and provide habitat for many forest animals. Besides, the classification of timber as 'salvage timber' is subjective and easily influenced by political considerations. As long as this law can be invoked, there is no incentive to sit down and hammer out a forest management plan that protects the forest. Instead, you simply declare the timber 'salvage' and cut it down."

"So, how does the rider work?"

"For something so sneaky, it's pretty straightforward. They can cut down the trees, and the courts can't do anything about it. That means that the legal rights of local environmentalists are suspended. No legal challenges, no court orders. Just dead trees and profits — exactly the way the Republicans like it."

"So, even though a judge ordered a halt to commercial logging, commercial timber companies get to come in and cut down the trees because Republican congressmen — who have never been to the Shawnee and don't understand the issues of this local controversy — think they should be cut down," Mike asked.

"Yep."

"We need the Salvage Logging rider repealed."

"Yeah, we do. And we have at least one ally — Clinton wants to repeal it, too."

"But the Republicans still control Congress. It seems to me that we have to repeal the 'Republican Revolution' before we can repeal this abusive law," he said.

"You know, I think you're right. That's one more in a long list of reasons to vote those money-grubbing, environment-destroying, oppressive, manipulative, lying, cheating, deceptive fascists out of office in the next election. Let's hope the American people wise up this time

New campus parking policy unfair to freshman drivers

THE UNIVERSITY HAS MADE A SMART move this semester by allowing all freshmen and sophomores to bring vehicles to campus. But restrictions placed on where those students can park ultimately may do more harm than good.

UNLIKE PREVIOUS SEMESTERS, SIUC'S parking policy now allows all freshmen and sophomores to purchase a permit to park in any of the three green decal lots on campus. In the past, freshmen had to demonstrate a need, such as military commitments or medical appointments, to receive such a permit.

AT FIRST GLANCE, IT APPEARS THAT THE university finally is granting freshmen and sophomores the right to have their own transportation. However, the decals will be issued on a first-come-first-served basis, which means freshmen and sophomores who have a serious need for transportation may be denied parking stickers.

IN TOTAL, THE THREE GREEN LOTS HAVE only 485 parking spaces for all freshmen and sophomores to use. Bearing in mind that juniors and seniors with red stickers can use these spaces as well, it is easy to see the makings of a large problem.

SIMPLY PUT, IT IS LIKE SHOVIING A LARGE block into a small hole. Something has to give. Not only are the spaces too few in number, but they are too far away. The green lots, located on South Wall Street, Greek Row and Washington Street, are a long walk for any student rushing to classes or returning to the dorms late at night.

MERILYN HOGAN, COORDINATOR FOR the parking Division, said the change is a way of further evaluating the already-identified parking problems. Hogan said that by allowing freshmen and sophomores into the mix, administrators will be able to evaluate the solutions for the problem utilizing a real-life model. At that point in time, which has yet to be determined, Hogan said resources could begin to be allocated for the construction of new lots or possibly a new parking policy.

THE FACT OF THE MATTER IS THAT freshman are not second-class citizens. By breaking down the "color barrier" of the lots, freshmen and sophomores could park anywhere they wanted, just like the juniors and seniors. If the University is going to allow freshmen and sophomores to bring vehicles to campus, it should follow through completely and allow them the same courtesy it extends to juniors and seniors.

"For the Republicans now, they're not looking at who's the most qualified, it's who's the most electable," said Rep. Dan Reitz, D-Steeleville. "He has the name recognition, and that's a tremendous asset."

In 1988, Hart was appointed athletic director of SIUC, overcoming fiery criticism from various SIUC faculty members, coaches and student: as well as the media for his lack of job qualifications.

Then SIUC President John Guyon, at a 1988 press conference, clarified his reasons for selecting Hart.

"Jim is a very important window for us," Guyon had said. "You can learn administration, but you either have name recognition or you don't."

Some Republican leaders in the district hope Hart's name can win the support of voters this election season, as it did with SIUC officials in 1988.

Some Democrats, however, are skeptical of this tactic and say Hart may have a name but none of the political skills or knowledge it requires to run for federal office.

"It'll be hard for Hart to come out of nowhere and stand against a sitting congressman and know what he's talking about," said Tony Mayville, St. Clair County Democratic chairman. "The name Hart is a name people like, but Costello would be a hard candidate to beat."

"He (Costello) has loyal supporters and raises funds well. Hart's going to have a tough race."

McGlynn said a Republican regaining the 12th Congressional seat is a plausible scenario.

"There's a lot of interest in the Republican Party in this congressional race because Costello has been weakened because of the conviction of his lifelong friend, (Amiel) Cueto," McGlynn said. "People see the corruption. It's all Democrat."

Prosecutors in the 1996 trial of Costello's childhood friend and former business partner, Amiel Cueto, failed in their attempt to link the two. Witnesses alleged Costello was a "silent partner" in an unsuccessful casino deal, using his influence to pass legislation recognizing the Indian tribe on whose land the casino was to be built.

In 1993, Cueto and gambling boss Thomas Venezia purchased 32 acres of St. Louis riverfront property with the intention of building a casino. It was contended that Costello was to receive one-third of the land in the deal. Costello has denied the charges vehemently, saying he broke off all business ties to Cueto in 1992. Costello was never convicted in the trial.

Cueto, however, was convicted of attempting to derail the federal investigation of Venezia, who is serving a 15-year prison sentence.

Some Republican leaders say Costello's link to Cueto could ruin his election chances in 1998 and clear the path for Hart.

But Brian Lott, Costello's press secretary, said this effort will not elicit a victory because the congressman has not been convicted of anything.

"He (Costello) did not have a roll in it, and that's been proven," Lott said. "He will continue to run on his record as he has always done."

Lott said a July poll taken in the district shows Costello's favorable ratings surpassing those of President Bill Clinton, Sen. Dick Durbin, D-Ill., Gov. Jim Edgar and Sen. Carol Mosley Braun, D-Ill.

"He still has unprecedented support in the district," Lott said.

Mayville said Republican efforts to unseat Costello based on the corruption issue are bogus and inflammatory.

"They'll always be looking for a thing in someone's past to beat the drum on, and they'll try to link Costello," Mayville said. "They'll try to use it (the link with Cueto) to assassinate his character — it's the shame of politics."

"They'll seize on to that (casino deal) like a shark on a bloody body."

Mayville and Reitz urged people to analyze Costello's record and not the false character issue. They said his record will get him re-elected.

"I think people in this district have seen Costello's ability to get things done," Reitz said. "I'm comfortable with whoever they (the Republican Party) decide to run that Costello will continue to be our congressman."

"I'll be proud to run with him," Rep. Mike Bost, R-Murphysboro, said Hart could fill the position well and is excited about a Republican take over in the 12th District.

"I've talked to Jim but I can't say if it's about that (a candidacy)," Bost said. "But, I think he'd be great."

Student Center food court serves up new options

PLUSH: Million-dollar renovation includes new carpeting in Roman Room.

LA'KEISHA R. GRAY
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Neon lights and the aroma of Chinese food and tacos greet Tina Goolsby as she enters the recently cooked-up food court in the Student Center.

"It's better because it's much brighter instead of ducking inside of every other corner in search of the next restaurant," said Goolsby, a senior in social work from Chicago. "The look is different. The trees, TVs and everything makes it look more homey."

What once appeared as a dimly lit hallway housing a splattering of restaurants is now a $1 million remodeling make-over.

The remodeling venture replaced the vendors Sub City, Pizza Hut and Yogurt and Cream, while the welcoming mat was displayed for brand-name eateries Taco Bell Express, Subway and Papa John's.

Places such as Kitchen Classics, International Garden, Freshen's

Yogurt and Ice Cream, Magnificent Mealery and Roosters also have taken up residency in the Student Center food court. Soon to come are other snack shops such as Ritazza.

Other changes to the food court are carpeting in the Roman Room and the addition of eight new cafeteria-style cashier lines that are expected to ease traffic at the Student Center.

Gregory Tatham, the director of the Student Center, said that to achieve the new look of the mall-style food court, a lot of work had to be completed. The work included construction and painting, removing asbestos, plumbing and electrical work and implementing a heating and air conditioner ventilation system.

Despite the enormous amount of remodeling, Tatham proposed to open the food court before the fall semester.

"I'm pleased with the fact that we opened on time and that we got the main part of the food court opened before the first week of school," he said. "I am also pleased that we're going to be able to provide better service to the majority of the campus community."

Some aspects of the food court that are not complete are the manufacturing and delivery of new equipment and furniture that Tatham said will be delivered soon.

Darnell Jones, a freshman in radio-television from Chicago, said the Student Center has definitely passed his "cool test."

"From my experience of going on college tours at other schools, I thought it (food court) would be generic, but actually it's pretty nice," Jones said. "I see they have a Chinese food place, and that's my favorite, so I'll be going there a lot."

For Sara Ober, a junior-transfer student in photography from Alton, the food court helps her recognize the new things people encounter when coming to a new school, even while dealing with something as diminutive as a dining area.

"I come from a small town and this amazes me," Ober said. "It's a lot better than the food court in the mall I was working at."

"It's a little hard having to come in and not knowing how it works — the lines and everything. But I see it is very beautiful, and I was really impressed."

Still, the advancement of the Student Center does not stop with the remodeling of the food court.

"We want to continuously upgrade," Tatham said. "We have a number of areas in the Student Center we want to upgrade to provide a comfortable environment for everyone."

Non-traditional students juggle school, employment

WORKLOAD: Some put in full time at school while working full time.

KORTNEY HARGRAVE
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Achieving a matured dream and brighter future is becoming a reality for Pat Scarborough, who, after leading a family life, has enrolled at SIUC in her quest for higher education.

"I always wanted to go to college. Now, I have the opportunity," said Scarborough, a 30-year-old mother and tutor in paralegal studies, from Fairfield. "I hope to get my degree and go to work."

Scarborough is considered a non-traditional student, which can include many types of students.

"A non-traditional student is one that is older, returning to school after being out of high school, a parent. They can be married, divorced, widowed or a veteran," said Michelle Garrett, a graduate assistant in Non-traditional Student Services. "The student has a lot of external responsibilities outside of class. They usually have to be at least 24 years old."

"The difference between traditional and non-traditional students is that traditional students are usually between the ages of 18-22, enter immediately after high school and are residents, going to school may cause. Some of the services offered to the non-traditional students are programs, tips for child care, an emergency locator service and a newsletter.

The University also offers a Non-Traditional Student Workshop on October 13-17 and Brown Bag Lunches, when University officials or ence, chose SIUC because of its location.

"It was the farthest away from home and still in Illinois," Poole said. "This way the Air Force will pay for me going to school. It had the nicest looking campus of all the colleges that intertwined with the cities they are in."

Although Scarborough had her own circumstances that brought her back to school, many non-traditional students may come back to school for quite different reasons.

"These students come back to school because of life circumstances, to finish their degree, get a better job, move up in their career or to better themselves," Garrett said.

Alice Kaylor, a 38-year-old sophomore in radiology from Herod and a former school bus driver, said that because of the low pay she was receiving in her job, she wanted to better herself by coming back to school.

"I want to finish school and get a decent job," Kaylor said. "I've got kids to raise. Put them through college one day, hopefully."

whereas non-traditional students are usually commuters."

On Saturday, Non-traditional Student Services sponsored a non-traditional student orientation in the Student Center for incoming students.

In addition to workshops, there are other services SIUC offers to help these students cope with the strains that department faculty speak with the students during lunch hour.

For Scarborough, getting her degree, finishing school and getting a decent job are goals she hopes to accomplish by coming back to school after a 10-year absence.

Certain personalities prone to homesickness

RESEARCH: Worry about classes, not mom.

COLLEGE PRESS SERVICE

Homesickness can put a damper on the first few months of freshman year. While some first-year students are out meeting new friends, cheering at football games and wheeling it up at dorm parties, others are doing nothing—except thinking about home. Why do some students get homesick, and others not? That's exactly what Nicole Scaramelli wanted to know. The 1997 Dartmouth College graduate spent her senior year researching a problem that experts say afflicts as many as 30 percent of first-year students. "Homesickness is one of the leading causes of people coming into the health center to see a counselor or doctor," said Scaramelli, a psychology major. For the 12-month project, she studied about 100 Dartmouth students and dug up evidence to suggest that homesickness is mostly linked to a student's personality: people who are introverted or neurotic tend to be more likely to be homesick, according to her study. Scaramelli says she delved into the topic even though she herself never experienced a bad bout of the homesick blues. But during her freshman year, "one of my roommates had a difficult time adjusting and ended up leaving school," she said. "That kind of sensitized me to the issue." Working with Dartmouth Professor William Morris, Scaramelli asked first-year students to fill out a questionnaire in the summer before starting Dartmouth, and then six weeks after arriving on campus. The questionnaire tested students' personality types. Scaramelli says she thought the survey results would verify what she calls her "grieving" hypothesis, that "people who were happiest with their home life might have a greater sense of loss in a new situation, and would therefore be more likely to experience homesickness." But that was not the case. "We were pretty surprised," she said. "The results were exactly opposite. People who were most unsatisfied with their homelife were most likely to be homesick."

Learn how you can profit from sweeping tax law changes.

When the proposed tax law changes are adopted, they will affect the tax status of millions of American taxpayers. You can profit from that situation as a professional tax preparer trained by H&R. Block. Now more than ever, taxpayers will be looking to professionals for help with interpreting the new laws and preparing their tax returns.

As a qualified tax preparer, you'll enjoy the challenge and satisfaction of helping people save money on their income taxes. Of course, proper training is essential to equip you to handle income tax returns that can range from the simplest 1040A to the most complicated collection of forms and schedules. An excellent way to learn is with H&R. Block. The nation's number one tax preparation firm, H&R. Block has trained more than 2 million people to prepare tax returns.

Learn about the new tax laws and much more. An H&R. Block tax training course will cover tax law changes. Proposed changes include lower capital gains tax, new deductions for college education expenses and a new tax credit for parents. The course will also provide you with thorough, practical training in the most commonly encountered items on personal income tax returns. You'll learn tax theory and application from H&R. Block instructors with years of real-world experience. You'll also receive the comprehensive H&R. Block textbook and related IRS material.

Is tax preparation right for you? If you like to work with numbers and enjoy helping people, you may find it's just what you're looking for. People from many different walks of life have enrolled in H&R. Block tax training courses and succeeded as professional tax preparers. All you need is a desire to learn — and to earn.

For more information, call 1-800-TAX-2000 or visit our web site at www.hrblock.com/tax

SIU law school founder Lesar dies at 85

OBITUARY: Law school's namesake served for eight years as its first dean.

SARA BEAN
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Hiram Lesar, founding dean of the SIU School of Law and its namesake, died Aug. 4 of cancer. He was 85 years old.

The Thebes native devoted his life to legal education, public service and scholarship and had tremendous effect on his school and his community, friends and colleagues say.

"He didn't talk much about himself; he didn't seek publicity," Lesar's widow, Barbara, said. "Everything that came to him came from his own abilities."

After serving 12 years as the dean of the School of Law at Washington University in St. Louis, Lesar came to SIUC in 1972 to head the newly formed School of Law. He stepped down from the dean's position in 1980 but continued to teach until the time of his death.

Lesar won state approval and funding for the School of Law, recruited top faculty and students from across the country and was heavily involved in the organization and construction of the School of Law.

"Ultimately our goal is to assist its (the Law School) students in gaining the knowledge and insight that are necessary to lead better and more satisfying lives," Lesar told the Daily Egyptian during a 1974 interview. "To me that means useful lives."

Lesar made many other contributions to SIUC. He served as interim president in 1974 and as acting president from 1980 to 1982. For his efforts as president, Lesar was presented by the Board of Trustees in September 1980 with a resolution of recognition. In November 1980, the University honored Lesar again by naming him the first Distinguished Service Professor.

Lesar earned degrees from the University of Illinois and the College of Law at University of Illinois. Lesar also won a Sterling Fellowship at Yale and taught law at University of Kansas from 1937 to 1942 before joining the Board of Legal Examiners in Washington, D.C.

Lesar served in the Navy from 1944 to 1946 and was a member of the bars of Illinois, Missouri and the Supreme Court.

He was involved with many of community groups such as Green Earth

Inc., the Rotary International, K.T. Shriners, the American Baptist Church of Carbondale and the Land of Lincoln Legal Aid Society.

"Lesar's death is a great loss to Land of Lincoln," said Joseph Bartak, Land of Lincoln Executive director, "not only to the board on which he served but to the staff and the clients. His guidance and wisdom as a member of the board was invaluable, and he will be greatly missed from the board on down."

Lesar authored dozens of articles for numerous law journals as well as two books, "American Law of Property," (Vol. 1) and "Landlord and Tenant."

He is survived by his second wife, Barbara; his sons James, Keith and Byron, and a brother, James Christopher Lesar. His first wife, Rosalee, died in 1985.

A memorial service took place at 2 p.m. Sunday at Shryock Auditorium. Those speaking included some of Lesar's former students and colleagues, as well as John Jackson, vice chancellor for Academic Affairs and provost, and former U.S. Sen. Paul Simon, who heads the Public Policy Institute at SIUC.

"It went beautifully," Barbara Lesar said of the memorial.

Carbondale Police will not distribute the phones to first-time victims but rather to people who

"The clientele will be identified by us," said Pam Green, Carbondale Police crime victim advocate.

On the SIUC campus, 37 incidents of offensive domestic battery were reported to the University Police from 1995 to July 31, and 22 arrests were made from these on-campus occurrences.

Both the Women's Center and the Carbondale Police will not issue the phones until they have had a meeting with First Cellular on proper usage, which has not yet been scheduled.

wants to include students in its decisions.
"We want to emphasize that we are in a community of scholars, and keep that foremost in our mind."

Dillard said, "Everything we do in the community has something to do with education and scholarship."

Beggs said the idea for the convocation came from the "White Coat Ceremony" at SIU's School of Medicine in Springfield, where the incoming class receives inspiration words from professors, who are wearing lab coats.

Beggs said the lab coats emphasize the professional nature of the students' course of study, much as the academic robes worn by administration and faculty emphasize the scholarly nature of the convocation.

were unaware of concerning the Miocene time period, which is when anthropologists think apes evolved into monkeys.

Barbara Benefit, an associate professor of anthropology who also was involved in the dig, said the skull resembles a creature that existed when monkeys and humans split from a common ancestor into separate species.

"It (the skull) represents an animal that lies somewhere on the evolutionary tree between modern monkeys and the ancestor that gave rise to all monkeys, apes and humans," Benefit said.

Benefit said the finding is unusual in that the palm-sized skull has a longer and lower brain case than that of the modern gibbon, the family of apes now in existence in Asia.

The physical characteristics of the skull closely resemble that of Aegyptopithecus, a 32-million-year-old Egyptian primate.

"The Egyptian skull didn't have the round head and short face of the gibbon-like (modern) model," Benefit said, "so one group of scientists claimed it couldn't be an ancestor of monkeys and apes. Another group said it was an evolved ape."

"Now we can see that the skull of this Egyptian primate is very similar to that of the earliest monkeys. It fits right on the line that gave rise to both monkeys and apes."

Numbers should be compiled by the end of this year.

If vehicles with green decals are found anywhere else but green spaces, a parking ticket of $4 will be issued.

"One thing about Carbondale is there are about 300 towing companies just waiting," said Mike Hepner, sophomore in pre-med from Bishop Hill. "I can look out my dorm window and see cops circling a car, and in 15 minutes I'll see like five tow trucks show up."
Students also are warned not to park in spaces marked for visitors. Those spaces are for people not affiliated with the University and if violated, a fine of $15 will be implemented. Police run license plates of suspected cars for names and addresses.

"It doesn't take long to figure out that you're a student if we see your car parked Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 10 a.m.," Hogan said.

If students have not purchased their decals by 8 this morning, the only places they can park until the end of the week are lot 56, located south of SIU Arena; lot 59, located northwest of Greek Row; and lot 100, located north of Washington Street.

Students must bring a University I.D., driver's license, proof of insurance, vehicle registration card and $30, if they wish to purchase a green decal. Decals can be purchased from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Parking Division in Washington Square Building B.

For students who are unable to purchase a decal, parking is also being made available throughout the city of Carbondale and the Newman Center lots located on Washington Street.

"The only good thing about the green spaces is that they are not that expensive," Evans said. "It's worth the hassle to have a car because I don't have to wait. I just go."

North Korea's Stalinist image impairs relief

STARVATION: Many countries, individuals wary about helping oppressive regime.

THE WASHINGTON POST

SEOUL, South Korea—The young mother sat on a North Korean riverbank with her infant son. She looked listless and sickly, hot and weak. Then she leaned over and vomited violently. When the convulsions stopped, she sat up and cradled her baby in her arms before lying down on the rocky ground. Her baby sat over her motionless body, wailing and trying to rouse her.

This glimpse of life inside staunchly isolationist North Korea greeted millions of South Koreans when they turned on their television sets this summer. The mother's collapse was the opening sequence in an hour-long documentary on network television, a nearly non-stop montage showing North Koreans weakened or dying from hunger.

The video footage, along with photographs of emaciated and sick children that have been printed in newspapers and magazines around the world, have had an impact: Private donors in South Korea have donated $18 million in the last two months, more than triple the total they contributed in the last two years.

When the U.N. World Food Program issued an appeal for $45 million last month, most of that amount was raised in less than a week, a record. When the food program issued an appeal for just $8 million for North Korea in 1995, the world yawned and donations fell $1 million short of the goal.

As North Korea lets a few cameras inside its closed borders, the "stealth famine" is coming into focus, and aid agencies say they are no longer finding that the outside world doubts the severity of North Korea's problem. But that's only half the battle: Even in the face of millions of starving children, many nations and people still have trouble writing a check for the Stalinist parish state.

"We are beyond disputing whether this is a need; it's well established that the hunger problem is real," a U.S. official said. "But the North Koreans are not warm and fuzzy and likable people. A lot of countries remember sending goods up there and not getting paid. Then the North Koreans sell drugs to keep their embassies abroad afloat, they blow up airliners, and they talk like jackasses. The incentive to give is reduced."

The historical animosities are hard to erase. A Korean War veteran sent an e-mail to The Washington Post's Tokyo bureau recently complaining that if the United States sent even one grain of rice to North Korea, "it would be done on the graves of 57,000 Americans who died in the Korean War."

Others say feeding North Korea has the long-term effect of extending the life of one of the world's most repressive and brutal regimes. That, they argue, will ultimately lead to more human suffering than the famine will cause.

Aid agencies continue to urge the world to distinguish between starving innocents and the totalitarian government whose stubbornness and failed policies have caused the problems.

"Large amounts of food aid are needed urgently. It's the only way of feeding the millions of hungry people who are suffering through no fault of their own," said Catherine Bertini, executive director of the World Food Program.

But many people still can't bring themselves to offer large-scale aid, partly because of nagging suspicions that food destined for starving children ends up feeding a soldier whose artillery piece is pointed at Seoul.

Members of a bipartisan U.S. congressional delegation that visited North Korea this month said they had been denied access to areas affected by two years of flooding and this summer's severe drought. The delegation's leader, Rep. Porter J. Goss, R-Fla., said the United States would be unlikely to provide significant new food aid unless North Korea made its distribution "fully transparent and verifiable."

Rep. Jane Harman, D-Calif., said the group believed much of the food aid going to North Korea actually reaches hungry people. Harman said the delegation had no proof that food was being diverted to the military, but she said North Korea's secretive system makes it easy for that to happen.

No such diversion of food has ever been proven.

and design who also served on the committee, said although the logo change is a positive step, this similarity could pose a potential trademark problem for the University when it seeks to register the logo.

"It really depends on how close some of these people feel we came to their logos," Briggs said. "If those people feel we came too close to their logo, then we might have a problem."

He said the University will have to pay for a search of all similar logos before the logo is registered.

Dyer said he has received about four calls in favor of the new logo, and the same number of people who dislike the logo.

"In anything like this, you have about 20 percent of the people enthusiastic about the change, 20 percent dislike the change, and the other 60 percent are indifferent," Dyer said.

Dyer said most corporations change their logos for marketing reasons every three to five years.

"This is not anything that doesn't happen in other places," he said.

The new logo was chosen by a committee from about 200 different entries from students, faculty and administrators.

"We went through and spread them all out and narrowed them down to the five best," he said.

"Some were very traditional, some were avant-garde, and some were middle of the road."

The winning logo was produced by Gregory Myers, the director of University Graphics and Publications at SIUE.

Dyer said the new logo will be phased in over a period of about two years.

"One thing we are stressing to everybody is, 'Don't throw out the stationary with the old logos. don't get new business cards or reprint over every old logo,'" Dyer said. "We won't change the logo immediately because that would be foolish and costly."

SIUC Chancellor Don Beggs said he is pleased with the new logo.

"Although it is going to take awhile to get it on all of our things, I think it's yet another step as we look to the future," he said.

Women take over on campus

GENDER GAP:

Women outnumbering men by more and more at U.S. universities.

COLLEGE PRESS SERVICE

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — In her search for the perfect college, Maggie Trees visited three campuses last spring. When she arrived on the final campus, UNC Chapel Hill, it took only minutes to make up her mind. "This is it," she told her mom. She enrolled last week.

In the process, Trees became part of a quiet revolution that has, in less than a single generation, transformed American higher education.

Twenty-five years ago, in 1972, Title IX outlawed sex discrimination in education and opened doors for women on college campuses across America.

But few people expected what happened next: The number of women attending college eclipsed the number of men. Today, women make up more than 55 percent of the nation's undergraduate enrollment. At Chapel Hill, it's 60 percent.

As classes begin this month, a growing gender gap on some campuses, particularly at private liberal arts colleges, has spurred a new debate.

Should schools lower standards for men or recruit more so they can keep their male-female ratios nearly equal?

"The college people call me from time to time and say, 'What's going on here? Do we have to have some affirmative action for men to achieve gender balance?'" says Thomas Mortenson, a higher-education policy analyst based in Iowa.

Explanations for the disappearing-male phenomenon vary. Though boys outnumber girls nationally, some educators suggest fewer males attend college because it's still easier for them to earn a decent wage without a college education.

Some think maturity plays a role. "I think there's some evidence ... that the 13- to 16-year-old female is probably some more mature than the early teen male," says Bill Starling, Wake Forest University's director of admissions and financial aid.

As entering UNC freshman Bridgett Williams of Rock Hill, S.C., puts it: "It's just like girls are more focused or something."

But some experts believe the lower numbers of college men illustrate a crisis facing American men and boys. While they acknowledge men still control a disproportionate share of power in society, they also point to the soaring numbers of boys found to have learning and behavioral problems and the growing population of young men behind bars.

These troubling trends reflect male anxiety over the evolving role of men in society, some experts say. "The plate tectonics of gender are shifting under our feet, and we're seeing the eruptions of psychic earthquakes," says Barney Brawer, co-director of the Harvard Project on Women's Psychology, Boys' Development and the Culture of Manhood.

Crocodiles rebounding

ENDANGERED:

Driven to brink of extinction, crocodiles are now recovering.

WASHINGTON POST

MIAMI — Toothy, tough and terrifying, the crocodile is one of Earth's dogged survivors, and one of mankind's worst nightmares.

"They are right up there with sharks, snakes and spiders, one of the few species that commands almost a reflexive fear," said biologist Frank Mazzotti. "On seeing a crocodile, most people think, 'This animal wants to eat me.'"

In Florida, home of the only crocodile native to the United States, that fear helped push the 200-million-year-old reptile to the brink of extinction, even though the American crocodile is not much of a threat to humans. The croc's hide was coveted for fashionable shoes and handbags, its coastal habitat was perfect for beachfront development and many were killed just for sport.

As recently as 1978, three years after being declared an endangered species, estimates of the U.S. population of the American crocodile fell to 200, and a U.S. Park Service report estimated that fewer than 20 females had nested the previous spring.

Now the beast is back. Although the American crocodile remains the rarest reptile in North America, "today we have more crocodiles in more places in Florida than we did 20 years ago," said Mazzotti, a University of Florida professor who puts the current number of adults at between 400 and 500. "In terms of recovery, I think we can get the population back to what it was before we started altering the habitat, maybe 2,000 to 3,000 animals. I'm cautiously optimistic."

Program orients new engineering students

BUILDINGS: Optional program designed to ease transition from high school to college.

LINDA A. KRUTSINGER
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Just like his upcoming college career, a pile of drinking straws and tape lay in front of Greg Casten, waiting for development. His task: build a weight-supporting structure as part of an optional, week-long orientation for the College of Engineering.

Casten, a freshman in mechanical engineering, and 92 of his classmates volunteered last week to attend Engineering for Success Week, a program designed by faculty for incoming freshmen.

"This week has been lots of fun," said Casten, of Barrington. "It has also given me time to settle down and see the campus."

Created last year to help new engineering students make the transition from high school to college, the week contains time for fun, forming relationships, learning about engineering careers and the college setting, and building study skills.

Making a structure from straws and tape may not seem like a difficult task at first, but for many of the students it was closely akin to building a house of cards, as one structure after another collapsed under the pressure of added weight.

"This is a really fun way to learn about civil engineering," said Andrew Ditch, a freshman from Johnston City.

Students also made simple machine designs and tested their machines with computer software.

"This week gave us a good overall view of the four different aspects of engineering," said Joshua Kucera, a freshman from Wheeling. "It makes it easier to decide what major to go into if you are undecided."

Doug Lawson/Daily Egyptian

LOAD LIMIT: Lucas Megli, a freshman in engineering from Lyndon, tests the strength of his straw bridge in the courtyard of the Engineering Building Thursday. The project was part of a week-long orientation for new engineering students.

The four aspects of engineering are mechanical, electrical, civil and mining.

Projects in mining and electrical engineering also were included in the freshmen's week-long schedule. The SIU Touch of Nature Teams Initiative, skills courses were utilized to build team skills.

"We thought that would be a great way for the students to get to know one another," said Bruce Chrisman, academic adviser for engineering.

Organized by Chrisman and Wayne A. Helmer, a professor of engineering, the project is in its second year and has grown from just a few participants last year to 90 percent of the current freshman enrollment. There are about 100 freshmen in the College of Engineering.

"My parents decided to send me early," Kucera said. "I'm glad they did. I got to get into the dorm early, avoid crowds and get some experience."

The program, which cost $50 apiece, also included many social events throughout the week, which ranged from an ice cream social at the boat-dock Thursday night to a dinner at Giant City Lodge.

"This gives the students a chance to organize study groups, exchange information, as well as have fun," Helmer said. "It also gets them acclimated to the University."

Casten emerged from within a tightly closed circle of students — his straw structure held aloft in triumph as one of the few designs to withstand the strains of added weight — and shoved the straw and tape conglomerate to another student.

"The secret is the bottom tape," he said. "The tape added support to the sides, which allowed weight to be evenly distributed."

African government officials tour SIUC

Six members of South Africa's Parliament visited SIUC on Aug. 7 to tour the campus' broadcasting facilities and talk to radio-television experts.

The South African broadcasting system is being revamped as a result of a change in government, and the South African officials asked to meet with SIUC faculty familiar with their nation's broadcasting system.

In 1995 and 1996, members of SIUC's radio-television faculty served as consultants to South Africa's Independent Broadcasting Authority, similar to the U.S. Federal Communications Commission.

Topinka visits SIUC

Judy Baar Topinka, treasurer of the State of Illinois, visited the SIU School of Law on July 31 for the Safety and Soundness hearing Carbondale.

The hearing was developed to determine if Illinois is susceptible to a public finance disaster.

Topinka also met with a group of international political science professors to talk about American government and Topinka's Czechoslovakian ethnicity.

Governor acts on tuition prepayment bill

Gov. Jim Edgar made wording changes on Aug. 14, to a bill that would allow parents to pay for their child's future college costs at today's prices.

The changes will require the approval of the Illinois General Assembly in the fall session.

Gov. Jim Edgar retires

On Aug. 20, Gov. Jim Edgar announced that he will not be a candidate in the upcoming election. Some politicians expected Edgar to run for the U.S. Senate or seek a third term as governor.

The announced Democratic candidates seeking the position are Glen Poshard, a Southern Illinois U.S. Representative; John Schmidt, former Justice Department official and Roland Burris, an SIUC graduate and former Justice Department official. Chad Koppie, the U.S. Taxpayers candidate in the 1996 Senate race, is the lone announced Republican candidate.

RSOs can appeal funding

Registered Student Organizations that are dissatisfied with last April's funding decisions by the Undergraduate Student Government can appeal for more money this fall.

No date is set yet. At least one executive officer of an RSO must meet with the USG Finance Committee to appeal the RSO's April funding. The Finance Committee and the USG Senate must approve an increase in a group's funding.

USG will elect its new Finance Committee at its Sept. 17 meeting before the fall appeals process can begin.

Congress split over NEA funding, debate to continue

A June U.S. House vote slashed the National Endowment of the Arts budget by $89.5 million. Since then, the Senate has voted to restore funding to the nation's largest public arts foundation, allotting the agency a larger budget than what was allocated last year.

House conservatives, opposed to the endowment's use of funds for controversial art, also have said they reject the agency because its money should be used to balance the budget.

The pro-NEA constituency has expanded now to include Republican moderates and, according to federal officials, might have the voting power to override House opposition.

SIUC currently houses three programs that are financed indirectly by NEA money: the Big Muddy Film Festival, Shryock Concert Series and Opera On Wheels. Each of these programs could be eliminated if the NEA budget ultimately dissolves.

A joint house committee will take up the issue in the fall to settle the legislative differences.

Capitol Hill keeps tuition waivers as non-taxable

Graduate students scored a victory on Capitol Hill as congressional negotiators reached an agreement July 29 on language in the Tax Relief Act, preserving section 117d of the federal tax code, which allows for tuition waivers and reductions to be non-taxable.

SIUC graduate and professional student leaders pushed for the retention of the legislation and lobbied on behalf of their constituencies by writing letters to congressional leaders and coordinating their efforts with other schools.

The House version of the Act axes the tax code line, while the Senate version retained it. For months, graduate and professional students have worked to kill the House bill. However, if 117d was scrapped, students would be paying up to one-third of their "income" to taxes.

New murder trial to begin next month

A double-murder trial this summer resulted in a hung jury July 24, and a new trial is scheduled to begin Sept. 2.

Labron C. Neal, 18, of Carbondale, is charged with six counts of first-degree murder in the shooting deaths of Terrance Mitchell, 16, of Carbondale, and James Austin Campbell, 15, of Murphysboro.

The two teens were found shot to death Aug. 11, 1996, at Carbondale Mobile Homes on Route 51.

Neal's trial began July 14 at the Jackson County Courthouse in Murphysboro. The jury, which deliberated for 25 hours, was deadlocked at 11-1, with a lone juror holding out for not guilty.

Paul Christensen, Neal's defense attorney, sought a change of venue, but it was denied July 27 by Jackson County Circuit Judge William Schwartz.

The families of Campbell and Mitchell were barred from the courtroom in the first trial, but Schwartz has allowed them to remain during the re-trial.

Neal has been held in the Jackson County Jail in lieu of $500,000 cash since November.

Hangar 9 for sale

The co-owners of Hangar 9, 511 S. Illinois Ave., announced in June that they plan to sell the bar and perhaps the name. Several parties have shown interest in buying the club.

Sally Carter and Richard Simpson, co-owners of the bar for 17 years, said the bar will remain open until it is sold, and the future is uncertain after that.

As of Thursday, no deals had been made.

UB Offers a Free Lunch!

This fall the University Bookstore is introducing the UB Low Price Guarantee. According to UB director, Jim Skiersch, "if any customer discovers that one of our textbooks is priced higher than any of the other local bookstores, we'll match the lowest price."

UB's goal is to give students the best deal possible. "Based on our new pricing guidelines, I don't expect many challenges on our prices," said Skiersch.

If the University Bookstore does need to verify that a competitor has a lower price on a textbook, they will buy lunch for the customer who brought it to their attention and mark all those remaining textbooks with the lower price. Customers have five (5) days from the time they purchase the book to bring a price discrepancy to UB's attention.

"The whole process is very simple and easy," explains Skiersch:

“if any customer discovers that one of our textbooks is priced higher than any of the other local bookstores, we'll match the lowest price.”

Any customer who finds a lower price on a textbook that's in the same condition as ours (new or used) will fill out a very brief form. UB will verify pricing of the book(s) in question within 24 hours. Once verified that a lower price is being offered, the customer may purchase the book at the lower price, or if he or she has already purchased the book from UB, they can pick up their refund at UB refund desk.

In either case, the University Bookstore will also treat the customer to lunch in the Student Center's new food court.

DAWG Book Makes Its Debut!

Student life simplified:
Many of the things SIUC students need in one place

The official 1997-98 Dawg Book is now on sale, exclusively in the University Bookstore. "The book is designed to be a resource for SIUC students," explains Doug Daggett, Associate Director of the Student Center. "We wanted (the book) to be useful to students, as well as being informative and very affordable."

In addition to over $50 in savings, the Dawg Book contains: A planner; a calendar; valuable information about the SIUC campus; a complete Saluki Express bus schedule; a place for addresses and phone numbers and more. The book is priced at only $1.95.

Come & get it!

New food choices are a hit with students

After much anticipation, the Student Center's new food court is open for business. Housed within the "Mainstreet market Place" will be Taco Bell Express, Papa John's Pizza, Roosters Chicken, International Gardens, Kitchen Classics, Magnificent Mealery, Quenchers Beverages and WW. Cinnamons. Also located on the first floor, are Subway Sandwich Shop and Ritazza.

Saluki punter takes a kick at NFL

FOR HIRE: Gagliano still searching for spot in pros after solid, yet unsuccessful tryout with Carolina Panthers.

TRAVIS AKIN
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Former Saluki punter Mark Gagliano's search for a spot in the NFL brought him to a tryout with the Carolina Panthers Thursday, but even a solid performance was not enough to upset rookie punter Ken Walters.

Walters was the Panthers' choice to replace Robb Stark at the beginning of training camp. Walters wrapped up the spot by averaging 52 yards per punt on three punts against the Pittsburgh Steelers in the team's final exhibition game Friday night.

There were no drills during Gagliano's tryout with the Panthers. The former SIUC punter was given was 21 snaps to impress the coaches.

The hardest aspect of the day for Gagliano was not knowing the reactions of the coaches watching him.

"It was kind of stressful because you don't know what they are thinking," Gagliano said. "It's a tough business. They don't want to tell you anything."

Despite the pressure, Gagliano said he did well.

"I have improved my hang time," he said. "I feel I need to get a little stronger, but my consistency is there."

But Gagliano said he is not discouraged by failing to make the Panther squad.

"Everybody told me that it is tough to get in as a rookie," Gagliano said. "But I think things will go well."

Before going to Carolina, Gagliano participated in the Indianapolis Colts training camp. He was unable to beat out Indianapolis Colts Pro Bowl punter Chris Gardocki, and the team released him Aug. 14.

But Gagliano's release has not deterred him from pursuing an NFL career.

"A lot of guys at this position go to many teams before they hook on a team," Gagliano said. "I feel I have prepared well because I have competed against Gardocki. I am ready to start life in the NFL. It is hard, but it is worth it when you make it."

Gagliano already has a taste of the NFL, having played in an Aug. 1 preseason game between the Colts and the Cincinnati Bengals.

The punter finished the night with one 53-yard punt and one 31-yard deep punt that he used to pin the Bengals deep in their own territory. Gagliano also had the opportunity to kick off for the Colts.

"I kicked it down to the goal line. The Colts were playing rookies, and they were not ready for the speed of the NFL," Gagliano said. "(The Colts) had (the Bengals' Cory Dillon) hemmed in, but Cory was able to beat them all the way back and I tackled him. I said to Gardocki, 'This is what I want to do for a living.'"

Gagliano's father, Joe Gagliano, said the experience with Carolina could help his son in his bid for a place in the NFL.

"The more people who see him, the better chance he has to land a job," Joe Gagliano said.

In his career at SIUC, Mark Gagliano punted for 10,776 yards in 264 attempts. During his senior year in 1996, he averaged 45 yards per punt, the best in the nation.

Gagliano also was named Division I-AA All-American in his last year.

While Gagliano's future is uncertain, he is confident he can make it in the NFL, and he knows he can succeed if he is put in the right situation.

"I would like to play in a dome for a team down South," Mark Gagliano said. "That would be a pretty good situation, and I think I could have a chance to lead the NFL in punting."

BONNER

it's going to be a dogfight for that position. It's not completely mine.

"If I get the starting job, you'll know I earned it. We have a good tailback combination now, and Carp will be here during the spring working really hard. I came out and watched them a few times, and he was doing really good. Now I'm back, and he's not willing to give that position up."

Although competition could create some hard feelings between the two running backs, Carpenter is confident the rivalry will improve both players throughout the season, which begins Sept. 6 at Nicholls State University in Thibodaux, La.

Bonner's reputation as a team leader with a strong work ethic has been noticed even by players who were not team members last sea-

"With Coe, from what I've heard and saw, he's a hard runner," Skornia said. "He's a great competitor, and that's all you can ask for."

While Bonner is focused on playing well this season, the possibility of an NFL career is just around the corner.

Bonner's strong campaign did not draw him the attention of NFL scouts in 1996, like his former teammates Damon Jones and Mark Gagliano, but he is intent on getting noticed this season.

"I have to go out and sell out this last year and give it everything I've got," Bonner said. "Hopefully, I can catch someone's eye."

If I get the starting job, you'll know I earned it.”

Athletic inquiry pending

INVESTIGATION: Pell Grant Fraud evidence sought.

COLLEGE PRESS SERVICE

WASHINGTON—Athletic department officials expect a lot of visitors this time of year: reporters are checking out the hottest football players, boosters are looking for tickets, and scouts from other teams show up to evaluate their competition.

But this month, athletic departments across the nation are dealing with new visitors: federal investigators in search of evidence of Pell Grant fraud. U.S. Education Department officials have been visiting schools to take a close look at the financial aid records of student-athletes in search of possible abuses. ESPN, the all-sports cable network, has reported that players at 22 universities — almost all major football powers — have been targeted by the Education Department, working with the General Accounting Office.

Dianne Van Riper, assistant inspector general for investigations at the Education Department, says the investigations are centered on Pell Grants, namely who gets the money and for what purposes.

"We want to take a close look at the process in individual situations," Van Riper said. "We're looking for actual examples of abuse."

Van Riper said at least one school is being investigated by a separate federal grand jury for illegal financial aid procedures.

David Boles, associate athletic director at MSU, says his department has nothing to do with Pell Grants. "That's something that's handled by the financial aid office," Boles said. "That has nothing to do with us. And I'm sure the people at financial aid don't treat football players or basketball players any differently. I hear them complaining. They have to wait in line and on the phone just like everyone else."

Van Riper said the latest investigation is a direct result from a probe into the University of Miami in 1994. Federal officials noticed a pattern of financial aid abuse there that could be traced to other schools.

"We received information that the financial aid abuses were taking place at other campuses," Van Riper said. "The current investigation is a way to check on those allegations."

The investigation led to the conviction of Anthony Russell, an academic adviser who helped football players and other athletes illegally obtain financial aid with falsified records. Russell was recently released from prison after serving a sentence for fraud.

Although the current focus is on Pell Grants, Van Riper said investigators are taking a close look at work-study programs as well.

Pell Grants are a form of financial aid from the federal government for students from low-income families. Nearly 3.7 million students received the grants last year.

experience," Motsinger said. "But I decided after 35 years, I needed a change. I'm confident I can make the adjustment and have a good rapport with the players like I've had for 35 years."

While Motsinger will enter some uncharted territory this season, his relationship with Rich Herrin has been anything but a new experience.

Herrin and Motsinger originally met in 1952 at McKendree College where both played on the basketball team. Motsinger and Herrin are both 64 years old.

Motsinger took a coaching position at Woodlawn High School after graduating from McKendree in 1955. After five years at Woodlawn, Motsinger began his coaching career at Southeastern.

Motsinger's record of 683-392 has earned him a spot in both McKendree College's and the Illinois High School Basketball Coaches Association's Halls of Fame. Motsinger also has been recognized for his contribution in the classroom, as he was named the outstanding faculty member at Southeastern and selected as one of the top 35 educators in the state by the Illinois Community Colleges Board of Trustees Association.

Even though his credentials show he is a valuable addition, Motsinger is satisfied with playing a small role for the Salukis this season.

"I'm not going to come in and turn things around," Motsinger said. "I know I'm not going to be able to replace what Ron meant to the team. I'm going to try and communicate with the players and let them know they can communicate with me."

Players, programs make changes

SPORTS WRAPUP:

Summertime brings new coaches, staff and players.

RYAN KEITH
DAILY EGYPTIAN SPORTS EDITOR

Major changes have taken place in the SIUC sports world throughout the summer.

There will be new faces in several sports, including players, coaches and staff. Here is a quick look at some of the on-the-field and off-the-field moves that occurred during the summer.

Men's Basketball

The Saluki men's basketball program went through the biggest changes on campus, and this time coach Rich Herrin was affected more than anyone else.

Saluki athletic director Jim Hart announced July 22 that Herrin's contract would not be automatically renewed into a three-year deal, which was the case following each of the past several seasons.

Hart said in a press release that Herrin's contract, which is now set to expire July 31, would be evaluated following this season.

"... should the men's basketball team have a winning season in the 1997-98 school year, I will reconsider this decision."

Hart stated in the press release. "My agreement to reconsider should the men's basketball team have a winning season in no way guarantees what the outcome of such reconsideration might be."

That was just the start of a summer of struggles for Herrin. His brother, assistant coach Ron Herrin, died of a brain aneurysm May 11 at the age of 67.

And on Aug. 12, Saluki assistant Tommy Deffenbaugh announced he had accepted an assistant's job at Oral Roberts University. He left SIUC Aug. 15.

Herrin announced Friday that long-time Southeastern Illinois College head basketball coach Virgil Molsinger will take Ron Herrin's spot as a restricted-earnings coach. But Herrin still has to find another full-time assistant between now and the time practice starts in mid-October.

The team also announced it will play one of its toughest non-conference schedules ever, including a home opener against the Big East Conference's University of Miami Nov. 14, and road dates at the University of Oregon and former Missouri Valley Conference foe the University of Tulsa.

The Salukis' conference schedule pits them against defending conference-champion Illinois State University, which has its starting lineup intact, and the University of Evansville and Northern Iowa University.

Football

First-year SIUC coach Jan Quarless received a big boost with the June 17 announcement that running back Coe Bonner will be able to play a fifth year on a hardship waiver granted by the Gateway Football Conference.

Bonner played only six quarters in his freshman year at Illinois Valley Community College in 1993 because of a back injury, and qualified for the waiver.

But Quarless' job will not be easy, especially because transfers, academic problems and graduation have dropped his squad to fewer than 75 members.

Returning lettermen Nigel Jones, Orlando Rogers and Lawrence Watkins were declared academically ineligible this season, dropping the numbers to just 30 returning lettermen.

Former Dawgs go Pro

Several Saluki athletes have made the adjustment to playing professionally over the summer following successful careers that ended during the 1996-97 school year. Others have found a few bumps along the way.

Former Saluki baseball players Aaron Jones and Jerry Hairston made a rather quick transition to success in the minor leagues. Jones was picked up in the 26th round of the Major League Draft in June by the New York Yankees and played Class-A short season baseball for the Oneonta Yankees.

Hairston was taken in the 11th round by the Baltimore Orioles and spent his summer playing for the Bluefield Orioles, Baltimore's lower Class A team for newly drafted players.

Former Saluki football standout Damon Jones found the transition to be little more difficult as off-the-field problems continued to haunt him.

The Jacksonville Jaguar, who was selected in the fifth round of the NFL Draft in April, was arrested on charges of assaulting a police officer and resisting a peace officer after an incident at a Jacksonville nightclub July 6. Jones was permitted to play after posting $2,500 bond and has seen limited action in the team's preseason games.

Former SIUC basketball players Troy Hudson and Kasia McClendon have also found the going a little rough in the professional world.

Hudson and McClendon were not drafted by the NBA or WNBA, but both have continued to explore their options. McClendon has attended tryouts for teams in both the WNBA and American Basketball League, while Hudson has received some serious looks from the Utah Jazz and Atlanta Hawks.

Saluki recruiting

The Saluki baseball and men's track and field teams had a successful summer off the field, with the two combining to bring in eight recruits for the 1997-98 school year.

SIUC baseball coach Dan Callahan announced the signing of three recruits July 9. Freshmen Casey Boydston, a shortstop from Galesburg, and Peter Bracken, a third baseman from Sandwich, Miss., along with Brian Phelan, a junior transfer catcher from the University of Arkansas, will join the squad this year.

Boydston was a three-time All-Conference selection for Galesburg High School and will help fill the loss of shortstop Jerry Hairston to professional baseball and senior Jamold Little to graduation.

Phelan was a solid defensive catcher who lettered for two years and played in 41 games for the Razorbacks. Bracken is an offensive threat, hitting .391 and smacking nine home runs in 20 games as a high school senior.

Saluki men's track and field coach Bill Cornell is looking forward to adding five recruits to his squad for a run at another conference title this spring. Freshmen Loren King, Peter Forder, Brandon Dell'Arling, Ryan McVeity and Chris Owen are under Cornell's wing for 1997-98, with the possibility of one more recruit joining the group before the start of the season.

King was a two-time All-State selection for Glenbard South High School in the high jump and added an All-Conference selection in the triple jump. He sat out last season for academic reasons and worked with coach Cameron Wright, a former U.S. Olympian.

Forder ran the fastest 100-meter dash in the St. Louis Parkway North District for Christian Brothers College High School. Dell'Arling had the best time in Missouri in the 110-meter hurdles for Eureka High School.

McVeity qualified for the Illinois cross country meet at Palatine High School, while Owen was a four-time state qualifier in the two-mile at Salem High School.

Redskins fine Westbrook

Washington Redskins wide receiver Michael Westbrook has been fined $50,000 for his fight with teammate Stephen Davis on Tuesday. Westbrook, who did not make the trip to Miami for Thursday's 28-7 loss to the Dolphins, was told of the fine in a pre-practice meeting Saturday with head coach Norv Turner.

Westbrook and Davis were on the sideline during practice talking with Cris Dishman and Brian Mitchell when Westbrook punched Davis in the face. Davis fell to the ground, and Westbrook starting punching him in the back of the head. Westbrook left Davis face down and bleeding. It is unclear as to what prompted the incident, which was broadcast on national television.

Westbrook, a third-year receiver, has been unproductive in two seasons with Washington. He has 68 career receptions with two touchdown catches.

Davis is Terry Allen's primary backup at running back. He was selected by Washington in the fourth round of the 1996 draft.

Miller released by Steelers

The Pittsburgh Steelers have released quarterback Jim Miller, who was the team's opening-game starter last season.

Miller started against the Jacksonville Jaguars last season, lasting three quarters in the opening-game loss. He was benched in favor of Mike Tomczak the next week, and played sparingly during the rest of the season.

Miller's contract was structured so that he would have earned about $1.2 million against the salary cap this season, and he was expected to be the third-stringer behind starter Kordell Stewart and Tomczak.

With the release, he will cost the Steelers' cap $287,500 this season and $575,000 in 1998.

Miami's Holmes suspended by NFL for drug violation

The NFL suspended Miami Dolphins defensive back Clayton Holmes Saturday for at least four regular-season games for an unspecified violation of the league's drug policy.

Holmes had signed a one-year deal to play for Miami coach Jimmy Johnson, who was his head coach in Dallas. Holmes has not played since 1995 because of a suspension for cocaine use.

The league would not specify what Holmes' latest violation involved, but did say he is eligible for reinstatement Sept. 22. His application for reinstatement would have to be reviewed and approved by Commissioner Paul Tagliabue.

Holmes' original four-game suspension for using cocaine in 1995 eventually turned into a one-year ban because he reportedly failed four drug tests. Holmes petitioned to be reinstated to the Cowboys during last season's playoffs, but a federal judge denied his request and Dallas subsequently released him.

Holmes was cleared to play on Feb. 12 and signed with the Dolphins a few days later.

All-Conference Saluki returns for fifth year

BACK FOR MORE:

(Top) Coe Bonner, a senior tailback from Franklin, Ga., runs a play at the Arena's practice field Thursday. (Left) SIUC football coach Jan Quarless takes some time during practice on Thursday to instruct fifth-year running back Bonner before the season begins. Bonner was recently granted a fifth year of NCAA eligibility because he missed most of his first season due to a back injury.

SECOND CHANCES:

Old Dawg gets new lease on football, but faces tough competition from young pups.

RYAN KEITH
DE SPORTS EDITOR

SIUC running back Coe Bonner realizes that second chances in life are hard to find — especially those that could lead him down the path to a professional football career.

But on June 17, Bonner was granted a fifth year of eligibility and a second chance when Gateway Football Commissioner Patty Viverito announced the conference's eligibility committee had granted Bonner's request.

Bonner's college football career began with a disappointment. Bonner was limited to just six quarters of playing time as a freshman at Illinois Valley Community College before being sidelined with a lumbo-sacral strain in his back.

Bonner's back injury gave him the chance to receive a hardship waiver for a fifth year of eligibility. NCAA rules reward players who suffer season-ending injuries an extra season.

The announcement and the opportunity to showcase his talents for another year caught Bonner by surprise.

"I was doing a little rehab on my shoulder, trying to get it back into shape," Bonner said. "When I found that out, I knew I had to hit the weights extra hard. I needed to bulk up and rebuild again."

"I was totally lost for a while. I was thinking I would come in and get into grad school and graduate, but they gave me a rebirth, and now here we go again."

After recovering from the back injury, Bonner returned for a solid campaign in 1994 before transferring to SIUC in 1995. That season he played 10 games and rushed for 349 yards and three touchdowns while spending most of the year as a backup to tailback Karlton Carpenter.

Bonner rebounded strong in 1996 and took advantage of a season-ending injury to Carpenter by grabbing the starting spot. Bonner rushed for 1,234 yards and 11 touchdowns while being named to the Gateway's All-Conference first team.

Bonner earned team Most Valuable Player honors and offensive player of the year honors while ranking 21st in the nation in Division I-AA in rushing at 112.2 yards per game.

Bonner said his success last year has prepared him for taking the next step this year — accepting a leadership role as one of the veterans on the team.

"I thought it was all over with, and here I am again for another year," Bonner said.

As a veteran, Bonner is subject to the occasional ribbing from his teammates in the form of nicknames such as "grand-daddy" and "re-run."

"They're starting to give me all these old names now that I'm a veteran, but I don't have a problem with that," he said. "I'm looking forward to a great season."

While Bonner has set some high expectations for this season, capturing the starting tailback spot may not be a lock. Carpenter has returned to nearly 100 percent health, and he will push Bonner for the spot he had in 1995.

"I have a whole lot of competition now," Bonner said. "Carp is back, and

FILLING THE GAPS:

Herrin announces first of two replacements to fill coaching void.

SIUC men's basketball coach Rich Herrin has found an old friend to solve one of his assistant coaching dilemmas.

Herrin announced Friday that Virgil Motsinger, former head basketball coach at Southeastern Illinois College in Harrisburg and an acquaintance of Herrin's for 45 years, will be hired as a restricted earnings coach for the 1997-98 basketball season.

Motsinger, who spent 35 years at the helm of Southeastern's basketball program before retiring this spring, will replace former assistant Ron Herrin, who died May 11 after suffering a brain aneurysm at the age of 67.

Rich Herrin said Motsinger's experience as head of a top-notch junior college program at Southeastern made him a logical choice for the job.

"I'm kind of excited to have Virgil here," Herrin said. "We're in a good position now. He's dedicated, and he knows what it's like to handle all of the travel. He's done that for 35 years."

"To get a good person like Virgil is a good addition for our program. He's a good individual, and we're in a very advantageous situation."

Herrin now must find one more assistant coach before the start of the season. Herrin is searching for a full-time assistant to replace Tommy Daffebaugh, who accepted a similar position at Oral Roberts University Aug. 12.

Herrin said the list of candidates has been trimmed from 10 to about three, and he expects the position to be filled within the next two weeks.

Motsinger, who also served as athletic director at Southeastern, said returning to coaching after such a short layoff was an exciting surprise.

"I've known Rich for a long time and we'll get along just fine," Mtsinger said. "To be honest, I didn't think about it until Rich came and asked if I would be interested."

ward to retirement, but later she realized that this wasn't too bad an idea either."

Motsinger and former Saluki basketball player Paul Lusk were the finalists in a field of about 15 possibilities. But Lusk is currently playing basketball in Argentina and was forced to withdraw his name from consideration.

Motsinger will handle all Saluki travel arrangements and other details that Ron Herrin handled until his death. In accordance with NCAA rules, Mtsinger will not be allowed to make recruiting trips, but he is excited about the challenge of a new position.

"It will be a brand-new
