Variety Show Planners Elected

Carl E. Adkins and Kenneth L. Adams have been elected cochairmen of the 19th annual Theta Xi Variety Show to be held March 4 and 5 in Shryock Auditorium.

Entries are divided into three categories according to the number of participants in each act. Delta Zeta and Delta Chi won first place in the group division last year, the Justin Singers won the intermediate division and the Pointers, a barbershop quartet, took first place in the individual category.

The variety show was started in 1947 by Kappa Delta Alpha, a fraternity which later became Theta Xi. Begun as an outlet for student talent, the show has become a two-night event.

Adkins and Adams are both juniors majoring in radio-television. Adkins has served on the Homecoming Steering Committee, the University Center Programming Board, Christmas Week Steering Committee and has been a steward for the fraternity.

Adams is a transfer student from the University of Illinois.

Basketball Fans' Horns Get an OK

Multi-Purpose Election Set For Thursday

Students have the opportunity to give their opinions on women's hours, on financing the athletic program, and to elect four senators to the Campus Senate, in a multi-purpose election Thursday.

The referendum to increase the activity fee, the money to go to the athletic program, is worded as follows:

"The students at Carbondale Campus shall provide a $4 activity fee increase in order to give additional money to the Athletic Department, which would make it possible for the Athletic Department to provide NCAA scholarships for the Carbondale Campus. This increase shall take effect Summer Quarter 1966; and henceforth, all admission charges to athletic events will be dropped for students enrolled at the Carbondale Campus."

The purpose is to reflect student opinion. Any action concerning the activity fee must be taken by the Board of Trustees.

Senators from the School of Technology, the College of Education, the Vocational-Technical Institute and married family housing will be elected Thursday.

The following students are candidates for the offices:

Technology, Millard Cameron; education, Virginia Benning; VTI, Richard Markham and William McLaughlin; married family housing, William Hall.

Polls will be open from 9 a.m. to 5:15 p.m. at the following locations:

University Center, Home Economics Building, Old Main, Morris Library, Agriculture Building, Wham Education Building and the Student Center at VTI.

Trial in Arena Wins Approval

Students may use horns and other noisemakers at basketball games in the Arena, the University Athletic Committee decided this week.

But the committee emphasized that if students do not exercise good judgment when using them, the horns may be banned.

The biggest complaint about the noisemakers has come from older non-students, according to the committee, but many students have also complained when they were used constantly during games.

On the other hand, the committee decided that they show a lot of spirit when used at the right times, such as during time-outs and when the Saluki score.

The ruling by the Athletic Committee was met with mixed reaction from students. Here's what some of them had to say:

Ivan N. Cravens, a sophomore majoring in accounting who played on last year's freshman basketball team, said, "Horns should be banned from the ball games because they cause too much disturbance. At one time last season, the disturbance due to the horns was so loud and unruly that the players could hardly hear the officials whistle."

"I believe if the students would show their enthusiasm toward the team in an organized manner it would be better accepted by the team and fans."

Raymond L. Hill, a freshman majoring in theater, disagreed.

"I believe students should be allowed to have horns at the basketball games," Hill said. "It gives them an outlet for their pent-up aggressions instead of an outlet upon opposing fans and rooters."

Dale R. Martin, a sophomore majoring in pre-dentistry, said, "I think there is so much noise anyway that it doesn't matter if the students have horns or not."

Robert L. Marlow, a senior majoring in forestry, said, "I think the horns should be banned from the ball games to prevent players from confusing the horns with the official timekeeping devices."

Paul F. Mackey, a freshman majoring in pre-medicine, said, "There's enough noise at a ball game without all those horns. I think they should be banned."

The final event in the Season of Holidays festivities will be a concert presented by the Glee Club at the 40-foot tree at the east entrance to the University Center at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 9.

5 Students Fined Over Intoxicants

Five SIU students have been arrested and fined in Murphysboro after being found guilty in Jackson County Court on charges of underage acceptance of liquor. The five each paid fines of $25 plus $7 court costs.

Glenn A. Parks, 19, a sophomore from Crete, Ill., and freshmen Danny R. Barnes of Nilwood, William M. Mitchell of Oak Park, and Paul Midgley of Villa Park were found by police in Murphysboro's Rome Tavern.

Although police did not see them drinking, they admitted to police that the purchased beer in the tavern.

James C. Finck, 18, a freshman from Wyoming, Ill. was arrested after police received complaints concerning motorcycle noise.

Finck, a passenger on a cycle, was arrested on a charge of underage acceptance of alcohol after the cycle on which he was riding was stopped by police.

TECHNOLOGY SEMINAR — P. J. Pushpavati, assistant professor of engineering, will discuss "Noise in Space Charge Limited Field Emission Devices" at 4 p.m. today in Room 110 of Building T-26. A coffee session at 3:30 p.m. in Room 113 of Building T-27 is also open to all students and faculty members.

CHARLES BENNETT AND JANICE GROMAN

First Chamber Dance Quartet To Present Concert Monday

The First Chamber Dance Quartet, a company of American dancers, will present a concert at 8 p.m. Monday in Shryock Auditorium.

Jointly sponsored by the Department of Physical Education for Women and the lectures and entertainment committee, the concert is free to the public, according to Jane S. Dakak, dance instructor and director of the Modern Dance Club.

The company is composed of Charles Bennett, Wheaton, Lois Bewley, Louisville, Ky., Janice Groman, New Britain, Conn., and William Carter, Durant, Okla. All four have been members of the New York City Ballet and have been soloists with the American Ballet Theater.

Miss Bewley toured Europe with the ballet theater and toured the United States with Jerome Robbins' Ballets USA. She was also a member of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo. Miss Groman toured Venezuela, Japan, Australia and the Philippines with the New York City Ballet and was a soloist with the American Theater Ballet when it made history as the first American dance company to appear behind the Iron Curtain.

Bennett, Miss Bewley and Carter have all appeared on Broadway and on television. Bennett first studied dancing with Bentley Stone in Chicago. His first professional engagement was with Ruth Page's Chicago Opera Ballet.

The ensemble has rated high acclaim in reviews of its performances. A New York reviewer called them "models of good taste," showing "high imagination," producing "lovely sequences of movement poetry." Another said "their dancing has warmth, wit and character and is devoid of empty exhibitionism."

AFROTC Offers Advisement Plan

A program to advise students interested in the AFROTC program at SIU is being established by the Department of Aerospace Studies.

Any male student, whether a four-year student here, a transfer or a graduate student, can apply for this service. All could be eligible for the new AFROTC two-year program provided they have at least two years remaining in school.

There is no obligation incurred by students using this service to gain further information as to whether they would like to earn a commission in the U. S. Air Force. Inquiries about the advisement service should be directed to Robert W. Propst, assistant professor of aerospace studies.

Premiere of 'The Fantasticks' Slated for Thursday Night

"The Fantasticks," a musical-comedy about parental influence in young love, opens at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Playhouse for performances on Dec. 2-5 and 9-12.

Darwin Fayne, who has been with the Southern Players touring theater for the past three months, is director-designer of the play.

"The Fantasticks" involves two fathers, played by Bob Pevitts and Raul Ramirez, who decide that their children should fall in love. With the knowledge of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" they invent a feud. The children, having been told to stay away from each other, fall in love.

Judy Sink portrays the girl and Gary Carlson is cast as the boy. Al Erickson, as El Gallo, the narrator, sings "Try to Remember," which is the show's best-known song.

Payne explains that the inventive quality of the comedy comes from the simple quality of the production. When a moon is needed, it comes down from overhead and shines. When properties are needed, the mute, played by Pam Worley and Pat Duffy, carries them on stage.

When additional actors are needed, an old Indian and an old actor pop out of boxes on stage. Burt Dikelsky and

An Alternative To General Studies?

The maximum number of hours which the College of Arts and Letters at Michigan State University allows students to take in a major field has been cut from 75 to 55.

Students are urged to include three areas related to their major field of study in their four-year programs. These are known as cognate subjects. This move will provide students with a broader general education and will strengthen their major field of study, said a CAL spokesman.

"Since the graduation requirement has been lowered to 180 credits, it is not justifiable for a student to spend 70 hours in one field," he said. "Although only a few students have taken the maximum hours in a major field, the new requirement should bring the average hours for study in one department down to forty or fifty."

Coming Soon?

Southern Illinois University - World's Greatest Junior College

The University must soon make up its mind as to which direction it is to follow in the future. Two possibilities are in the offing. One of these is that of maintaining the present course and becoming one of the largest four-year junior colleges in the country. The other is that of tightening up the academic structure to such a degree that some good might come of it.

Had the administration set out with the deliberate intention of creating a university program of studies designed to destroy academic potential and to prevent all individual growth within the university community, it could not possibly have come up with anything approximating the present situation at SIU, primarily General Studies requirements, but there is much more.

The administration's ideal of providing a broad general education to as many people as possible (in particular, the people of southern Illinois) is no longer suited to the educational picture of the state. The level of education of persons entering Southern is considerably higher than it was when the policy was first instigated.

Furthermore, the quality of that education is much better than it was ten years ago. Unfortunately, the General Studies program was seen as a solution to the problem of supplying the background that the preparatory high school programs had failed to provide. The break-down occurs in the fact that by the time that General Studies was plotted out and "concretized" to the point where it could be implemented, the problem had, by and large, been solved.

The solution came from Southern, by way of another "plan of salvation," namely, that of supplying the area with better qualified teachers for the area high schools.

The end result was that General Studies was put into battle to meet an enemy that was already in full retreat. Granted, that many entering students are still in need of the "remedial academics" that the program provides, but are these students in the majority? An out exists, of course, for the student who comes to SIU with an adequate high school background. Unfortunately, this out is so complicated that it takes two or three years at Southern to figure it out and by that time, it's too late.

The planned reduction of General Studies requirements suggests that the abortion is finally on its way out, but what of the program that will be left? Is it going to be of such a nature that students will not have to be hesitant about applying to graduate schools outside of SIU? Is the new program going to be sufficiently lenient to permit the student to study in his major area before his junior year? Is it going to allow enough elective hours to permit the student to take more than the required number of hours to qualify for a major in his chosen field?

For the sake of future students, I hope so. Beyond General Studies lies more stomping grounds. Because of the tremendous amount of freedom given to academic staff below the dean's level ("Freedom?" yes, it's really there.), very little attention is paid to the quality of instructors who are teaching the courses.

A man may be able to present a good record; PhD. from California, several books to his credit, etc., but WHO in the administration ever checks to see what kind of an instructor he is?

Academic freedom is most beneficial when the individual instructor is able to present his views and to carry out whatever research he may choose. It is freedom when it allows the instructor to participate in those civic and private activities which he feels contribute to his development.

It is not freedom when it permits half-hearted teaching activities, lack of concern for students, under-qualified instructors and instructors who fail to keep up on the developments in their particular field of specialization. Doing these things, it is nothing more than a violation of the principles on which a university is founded.

Both faculty and students alike are aware of the current academic problem at SIU. Oddly enough, the administration, whose duty it is to look after such matters, does not seem to be aware of the situation.

If Southern Illinois University is to make progress in anything else other than sheer head-count and area services, the administration is going to have to make some rapid and significant changes.

If a program of general education is necessary for some students, then by all means provide it; but let's have it as an optional selection. There simply is no rational need for preventing students from getting a college education at Southern. The longer "Mickey Mouse" courses like many of those in General Studies are around, the longer it will be before SIU is graduating college students.

A fantastic waste of knowledge is underway in the academic endeavors of the University. If the amount of time and energy spent by the school's Ph.D.'s in trying to plan and conduct worthwhile General Studies courses (a hopeless task under the demands of the program) were calculated, I venture to guess that it would run into the thousands of hours. The time could be better spent shoveling snow.

I urge the administration to take a critical look at its present academic course. Unless SIU is to continue as a four-year junior college, these changes must be made.

The first step is considering the possibility that perhaps a mistake has been made, and then, admitting it.

It's not a matter losing face. It's a matter of saving face.

"SIU would have more money for football scholarships if the athletic department staff wouldn't drive University cars home morning, noon and night."

The Athletic Fee Plebiscite; or,

Dear Dr. Morris: I need some money for a selective scholarship.

Tomorrow's vote on the athletic fee increase will determine the feelings of the student body regarding a selective-benefits tax.

The four-dollar per quarter increase in student activity fees will be used to provide one hundred and thirty NCAA scholarships for Southern's men in maroon and white.

If approved, the increase will mean that each year, each student will be paying eighteen dollars to help put another student through school. The NCAA scholarships would be the only full scholarships paid for by the student body. $442,000.00 per nine-month year for the privilege of saying, maybe, we won a football game.

If passed, the increase will mean that the student will be paying more each quarter in activity fees than he is currently paying for tuition. Who says SIU is a COUNTRY CLUB?

What has happened to the president's policy of trying to provide a good education for a relatively low price? Evidently the policy doesn't consider activity fees a part of the cost of education. But when the fees get to be as much as the tuition, somebody had better dig out the account books. Is the administration aware of this fact, or is the athletic fee increase being railroaded in under their noses?

In addition to being able to identify with a football team that wins (some of the time) students have been promised season passes to the school's athletic events, and student government is to get a $10,000 bonus from the gate receipts.

What is not brought out, however, is that out of 10,500 seats in the arena, only 5,250 are set aside for the student body. Five thousand seats for seventeen thousand students? That's what I call foresight. I'll take two blondes for the other two-thirds of my seat. And, that is just for basketball and gymnastics.

Want to pay eighteen dollars a year for a chance on a bleacher seat in McAndrew? Or how about trying to get one of the couple of hundred seats set up for baseball games?

The only sound solution to the fee increase problem (next to total extinction) that I've heard came from Marie Adele Humphries (KA, November 10). She suggested that if the athletic department needed money for scholarships, season tickets could be sold to students wishing to support sports at SIU.

Under the proposed system, each full-time undergraduate student would have to pay eighteen dollars a year whether he wants to go to the games or not.

The vote tomorrow isn't a plebiscite, it's a farce too ridiculous to believe.

A Reply to KMW - A Defense for the Daily Egyptian And a Supervised Press

by Tim Ayers

In regards to your article ("Campus Publications") in the November 24 edition of KA:

I would first suggest that you read Mr. Borhoff's article, not just the interpretation by Mr. Tebbie. The article can be found in the October edition of Harpers Magazine. I hate to malign the dead, but I feel it necessary to point out the inaccuracy and limited scope of the study. Mr. Borhoff climbed on the bandwagon that has been making the rounds of the slick magazines for the past forty years and (he) adjusted his findings to fit their conclusion. He fell prey to the old New Yorker syndrome, which now even the New Yorker is finding both unfashionable and out of date.

In keeping with that philosophy, student newspapers should not serve the students in such mundane matters as news or comment on the news, but rather leave this function up to the mechanics who work for Time, Newsweek or the Chicago Tribune, all of which are classified under the same heading.

They see the function of the student newspaper to lie in the field of literary comment, satire, and the like. In our particular case here at SIU, we have nothing to fill this position except KA (which for the most part does an excellent job). The fact that we need a publication to fill the gap can hardly be disputed. However, the stand that the student newspaper should fulfill this function is up to some question.

Not only does the Daily Egyptian keep the student informed of campus news, it also is the only source of national and world news for many students. It can be argued that this is the students' own fault. But this argument can be paralleled to Mr. Goldwater's comment that the poor could get out and earn a decent living if they only had the gumption.

The answer is, of course, for SIU to have a magazine or journal to fill the gap. If the administration is to be criticized, it should be for not coughing up the cash to provide the campus with this type of publication.

In regards to your comments on the Daily Egyptian being a public relations arm of the University, I can only say that you have become a victim of somewhat selective reading.

Had this been the case, I doubt that you would have seen stories on University Park, on Camp Breckenridge, on student arrests, on Smith Hall, on chain letters, on town-gown relations or on the SIU football team in the Daily Egyptian. Had the Daily Egyptian not reported the RAM movement last spring, I personally doubt that the movement would have met with the success that it did.

It is a very sad and broad generalization to say that just because the newspaper is entirely controlled by the students that the newspaper is free and better than one with faculty supervision.

Newspapers on other campuses that are entirely controlled by students are some of the most unbending in editorial and news policy. They become, in some cases, papers controlled by certain tight factions. Either entirely pro-left or entirely pro-right, pro-Greek or anti-Greek, pro-Democrat or anti-Republican (very seldom will you find a pro-Republican college newspaper). In these papers you will see exciting editorials but only supporting one view. And as far as news is concerned, the out group is under a total freeze. Anyone doubting that this is the case need only look a little deeper into college newspapers. Or better yet, talk to a member of the out group on this type of campus.

I would not end on the note that the Daily Egyptian is above criticism. There are many areas in which we need and are striving for improvement. But I do believe that the goal and purpose of the paper are above criticism. Our aim is journalism, something for which we should not have to apologize.

The story of a checker-team coach and his quest for money,

by John-Paul Satyr

Big Bill, quiet-minded checker coach, walked into the office of his boss, Smiling Sam, a big king on the boards.

Bill spoke first: "What ya want, Sammy?"

"I wanna talk tuh yuh, Billy, I wanna talk." Sam lit up a cigarette and looked at the picture of his first dollar bill which was on his desk.

"Sure, Boss, go ahead," Big Bill twitched his shoulders and settled back into his luxurious chair.

"Billy, you know dat duh checker season is about to open up."

"Yea, I got duh team all ready."

"How does duh team look?" Smiling Sam eyed Bill watchfully.

"Good as possible. I mean, de're coming along all right," Bill shifted uneasily.

"What do you really mean?" "Yuh didn't give me much tuh work wid, Boss."

"How many matches can yuh win?"

"Maybe two, three!"

"Out of how many?" Sam leaned forward.

"Twenty."

Settling back, Sam smiled, "Good."

"What duh yuh mean, Boss. I gotta win." Big Bill looked puzzled. Hadn't he come to Sam with the intention of winning? What was the shifty king up to?

"What I mean is this, Stupid. "You had better not win more dan three matches dis season. If yuh do, I'll have your scrawny neck."

"But why, Boss, why? Bill was confused.

"Because if yuh lose, the team and the organization beint it will look bad, right? Right! And so, when I hit Fat Freddy, the key man behind the organization for more money, then I'll have an argument, See?"

"No, Boss."

"I'll just tell him that we didn't have enough money to get any good checker players. Then he'll see that we need money and give it to us." Sam sat smiling.

"Oh, yeah, I see. We foot him. I lose all duh matches and then you hit him for an increase in funds," Bill smiled bigly. "Pretty smart, Boss. Pretty smart."

Sam nodded nonchalantly. "cept for one thing."

Sam leaped forward, "What's wrong? You're gonna lose ain't ya?"

"Yeah, Boss, yeah. But Gorgeous George, the chess coach. He ain't gonna lose. He wuz almost number one in de nation las' chess season. He's got a swinging team of chess men. Dey's mighty good, Boss."

"Stupid! Oaff! Don't you think I know Georgie is good. I thought of him. I'm going to hit Fat Freddy for the lettuce before Gorgeous George gets to play chess."

Big Bill settled back in his chair once again. "Gee, Boss, you sure is smart."

Turn to KA next week and see if Fat Freddy comes across with the greens for Smiling Sam and Big Bill's checker team.

Big Shift Planned For Student Body

Marissa, Ill. (KA) - Movem Out, SIU vice president in charge of evictions, announced earlier this week that his office is doing everything possible to relocate the student body.

As a starter, several houses of students along Mill Street are being purchased in order to evict students; and on-campus housing is coming along splendidly as evidenced by the proposed eviction of the residents of Smith Hall.

Nothing will be done on Greek Row for the present time because of the excitement caused last year when the residents of Small Group Housing 115 were moved out to make way for Health Service.

Movem Out says, however, that all is going according to plan, and eventually the entire Carbondale student body will be shifted to Marissa as a part of the One-University concept.

Motorbike of Carbondale disclosed plans for expansion this week on reports that monthly sales were up 50 per cent. The announcement came in conjunction with the licensing of fifteen new funeral directors for the Carbondale area.

Vending Machines of Anna denied rumors that they were going to begin "under cover" vending operations on the SIU campus. The circulating report claims that after hearing the "State of the Campus" address in which students were reported to be spending 16 million dollars a year in Carbondale, VMA immediately began shipping their machines to the campus.

Kueller Grease, spokesman for Salughter's Food Service, an affiliate of the vending machine company on campus now, stated that he wasn't worried about competition. "There is no one who could compare to the service and food students are now getting."

Getting Your Dollar's Worth

This business of tuition can be expensive. In four years at a university, the student and his family will spend from six to ten thousand dollars. The amount is much higher at many schools where the tuition alone runs into the four digit figures.

Stop and consider, for a minute, how many dollars, how much time, and how much energy have you spent at Southern for courses that will seldom, if ever, do you any good. How much time etc. have you spent in "extra-curricular activities?"

How much of time and money is expended for educational ends? Stop and consider it for a minute.

Viet Ground Fighting Increases in Tempo

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Vietnamese troops and their American advisers fought off an attack Tuesday by about 200 guerrillas on a special forces camp and militia post 90 miles southwest of Saigon.

But a Viet Cong battalion apparently overwhelmed about 200 government militiamen in the central highlands 15 miles east of An Khe, headquarters of the U.S. 1st Cavalry, Airmobile, Division.

Ground fighting picked up after a brief lull during the latest inspection trip by Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, which seemed to be a prelude to another major buildup of U.S. and South Vietnamese armed forces.

B52 jet bombers from Guam smashed at three suspected Viet Cong camps in Binh Duong Province northwest of Saigon, hoping to blast elements of a guerrillas task force that virtually destroyed the Vietnamese army's 7th Infantry Regiment on the Michelin rubber plantation Saturday. Results were not announced.

In the air-sea campaign, the nuclear-powered carrier Enterprise and guided missile frigate Bainbridge sailed from the Philippines to join a flotilla of the U.S. 7th Fleet on combat duty off Viet Nam. They are the first vessels driven by nuclear engines to be used in war. The Enterprise, an 85,000-ton craft with a flight deck of 41 1/2 acres, is the biggest aircraft carrier in the world.

McNamara said on his return to Washington the Communists are increasing their infiltration from North Viet Nam. He said the rate was 1,500 a month during the recently ended rainy season and now is expected to go to 4,500

Freed GIs Praise Viet Cong Captors

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP)—Two U.S. soldiers newly freed by the Viet Cong praised their captors and criticized the allied war effort Tuesday. Both told newsmen they expect harassment when they get home.

The soldiers are Sgt. George E. Smith, 27, of Chester, W. Va., and Spec. 5 Claude E. McClure, 25, of Chattanooga, Tenn., who were captured with two other Americans in a guerrilla attack on a special forces camp outside Saigon Nov. 24, 1963.

"I have known both sides and the war in Viet Nam is of no interest to the United States," Smith said. He reported he is returning home "so Americans can see the light about the war in Viet Nam."

a month in the dry season. Intelligence sources previously had reported seven North Vietnamese regular regiments were in South Viet Nam and McNamara said he now believes there are nine. A North Vietnamese regiment is rated at about 2,000 men.

Asked about speculation U.S. military personnel in Viet Nam may be increased to about 300,000 from the present level of more than 165,000, McNamara said he didn't want to forecast, but "it will be a long road ahead."

The central highlands battle developed when the Viet Cong jumped two militia platoons east of An Khe, which McNamara visited Sunday.

A militia company was dispatched to reinforce the platoons. This company radiocoded an interim report that it had suffered moderate casualties. Then headquarters lost all contact with it. There was no report of any American troop movement to the battle area, about 240 miles northeast of Saigon.

In the fight southwest of this city, U.S. Special Forces men and their Vietnamese allies battled Communist attackers for nearly five hours. The Special Forces camp and the militia post were targets of Red shells from both mortars and recoilless rifles.

De Gaulle Cites His Importance

PARIS (AP)—With a side-sweep at "a stupid war" in Asia, Charles de Gaulle asked Frenchmen Tuesday night to give him a vote of confidence in Sunday's election.

He said France shuns subordination to any of its allies—an apparent reference to the United States.

De Gaulle, 75, made a frankly political speech to the nation, soliciting votes. He did not deign to name his five opponents, but said: "The only point on which they bring their passions together is for my departure."

Election of any of them "would without fail mark the return to the odious state" in which the nation suffered under former regimes, he said in arguing that he alone can unite the nation and lead it independently toward progress and peace.

It was De Gaulle's formal entry into the political arena, aside from his original announcement that he would seek another seven-year term. When the campaign started, he planned to forego opportunities to speak in the national television network. Polls indicating that his opponents were making points led him to schedule this address.

France for the first time is choosing a president by popular vote. Few doubt that De Gaulle will be re-elected, but some question whether he will get a majority Sunday. If not, he will be forced into a runoff election—a blow to his pride.

Move Underway To Split California

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—A state senator has renewed the old argument on splitting California into two states. This time, he says, the people want the state divided.

Republican Sen. Richard J. Dolwig, from San Mateo County, near San Francisco, says California is just too big.

"We have a population of 19 million, and this single state is now larger than about three-quarters of the governments of the world," Dolwig said in an interview Tuesday.

"This means that we have big government, becoming hard to control. The bigger it gets, the further from the people and the further from local control."

The Viet Cong announced their release Saturday, the day of a "march for peace" in Washington. The guerrillas said the two were being freed to show good will toward Americans opposing the war.

Smith and McClure said they chose to be repatriated through Cambodia rather than South Viet Nam because "Cambodia is at peace."

They crossed the frontier Sunday and were brought to Phnom Penh Monday. McClure said the guerrillas cared for his wounds, shared their food with him and allowed him Red Cross packages and mail from his family. "Had it been the Saigon government, I would have been tortured," he declared.

McClure said the Viet Cong did not try to indoctrinate its prisoners. He said they gave him books to read and paper for his letters and that he did not do much work in the prison camp.

Smith said he was told Nov. 21 that he was being freed. "I couldn't believe my ears," he said.

Of the South Vietnamese, he said officers frequently ran away whenever there was a fight.

"The Saigon government is not the government of the people," he said. "I have seen South Vietnamese villagers who were ready to help the Viet Cong."

Commission Okays House Remap

SPRINGFIELD, (AP)—The Illinois House reapportionment commission reached an agreement Tuesday night on new districts for state representatives.

Before the new map becomes official, it must be signed by the commission members and filed with the secretary of state's office. James Ronan of Chicago, Democratic state chairman, said members expected to complete signing by the end of the week.

Eight of the 10 commission members announced the agreement after an all-day session of weighing proposals and counterproposals by Republicans and Democrats.

The only member voting against the agreement was Einar Dyhrkopp of Shawneetown. Of the five Democrats and five Republicans on the commission, a total of seven must agree on the reapportionment.

Another commission member, Robert Decker of Chicago, was absent.

The 59 districts on which the commission agreed will each elect three members. The districts will be used for the first time in 1966.

In 1964, Illinois had its first at-large House election. Voters balloted for all 177 seats to be filled.

The commission finished its task with 12 days to spare before its time ran out.

The commission, like the one in 1963, was appointed by Gov. Otto Kerner. The duty fell upon Kerner in each instance after the legislature failed to agree upon a revision of districts.

Russian Changes Mind, Returns to U.S.S.R.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two Russians sought U.S. asylum in Alaska last August, but one of them changed his mind about staying in America and was turned over Monday to the Russian Embassy, which hustled him home, the State Department reported.

The other Russian, Peter Kalitenko, 34, is still in the United States. His request to remain is being considered by U.S. officials.

Gregory Sarapushkin, 30, told of his decision to return to the Soviet Union at a meeting with U.S. and Soviet Embassy officials Tuesday morning, State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey said.

Sarapushkin was turned over to the embassy immediately and was to fly to Moscow Tuesday night.

Sarapushkin and Kalitenko showed up Aug. 7 at Wales, Alaska, the point of the Seward Peninsula closest to Soviet territory across the Bering Strait.

As American officials got the story from the two, they were on a fishing and hunting trip in a boat powered by an outboard motor; the motor went dead and they drifted to the Alaska shore.

They were taken in by U.S. residents, fed and sheltered. The two told their hosts they were residents of Siberia.

British Aid to Zambia Delayed by Objections

LONDON (AP)—An 11th hour snag Tuesday night forced Prime Minister Harold Wilson to defer an announcement of British plans for sending token military aid to Zambia.

A message from President Kenneth Kaunda, British informants said, showed some objections to certain of the conditions laid down by Wilson in his offer to provide a token force.

As a result, the sources said, the question of British aid for the African-ruled commonwealth nation on the northern frontier of rebellious Rhodesia has been thrown into some doubt.

Government spokesmen said they could not disclose the precise nature of the objections Kaunda is said to have raised to the terms of the British offer.

There appeared to be a fundamental difference in approach between Wilson and Kaunda on the purposes of the proposed British force.

As Wilson intended it, the force would remain under British control, would not be stationed on the Zambian-Rhodesian frontier and would serve only as a symbol of British political support.

Kaunda has insisted the British force should take responsibility for guarding the Kariba hydroelectric dam installation which powers Zambian towns and industries. This would entail sending British troops to the frontier, which is straddled by the dam.

Wilson is expected to consult his cabinet Wednesday before replying in detail to Kaunda's latest message.

Kaunda last weekend requested British help to protect the dam: after saboteurs blew up a tower on the line that carries electricity to Zambia's copper belt.

In Salisbury, capital of Rhodesia, Premier Ian Smith said he could not take exception to the sending of British troops to Zambia and would not regard it as "a threat to Rhodesia."

But Smith, himself a former Royal Air Force fighter pilot, indicated Rhodesian troops would be prepared to fire on British forces if they crossed the border into Rhodesia with military intent.

Asked how serious he thought sanctions might prove to be, Smith said, "We don't know precisely how tough things are going to be."

Schmitz's Championship Form Leads Teammates to Victory

Frank Schmitz started 93 on the side horse. where he left off last year—winning three events and leading the junior-senior team to a 67-45 victory over the freshmen-sophomores.

Schmitz, the NCAA champion in free exercise and trampoline, proved he was just that as he turned in scores of 94 and 91 and added a winning 94.5 in long horse.

Veterans Tom Cook and Mike Boegler won their specialties with Cook scoring 92 on the rings and Boegler 93 on the side horse. The other first-place finishers were Rick Tucker, who scored 93 on the high bar, and sophomores Paul Mayer and Ron Harstad, who tied for first in parallel bars with scores of 92.5.

Mayer was the leading performer for the freshmen-sophomores as he added two second-place finishes in free exercise and side horse and a third in long horse to go with his first-place finish on the parallel bars.

Salukis Will Open Thursday Against Northeast Missouri

Coach Jack Hartman will go with a veteran force of five lettermen in his starting lineup Thursday night when the Salukis open their basketball season against Northeast Missouri State.

Game time will be 7:30 p.m. at the SIU Arena.

Besides the starting quintet, Hartman will have four lettermen on the bench as reserves. This wealth of experience gives Hartman reason to be optimistic despite the loss of his three top forwards from last year.

Lost by graduation are Joe Ramsey and Thurman Brooks. Walt Frazier is missing because of scholastic ineligibility. Losing Ramsey, the team's captain and third leading scorer, and Frazier, the top rebounder and second best scorer, could hamper the Salukis' offense.

Stepping into their shoes at the forwards for the game will be Randy Goin and Ralph Johnson. Goin, a 6-2 senior from Rankin, was one of Hartman's top reserves last year, and was the leading scorer in the game with the freshmen last week. Johnson, a 6-7 junior, alternated as a starter at the pivot last year and finished fourth in rebounding and sixth in scoring.

Starting at center will be either Boyd O'Neal or Lloyd Stovall, both 6-6 seniors. O'Neal was the team's second in rebounding last year when he alternated at center. He also holds the SIU record for the most rebounds in a game with 21. Stovall returns after a year of ineligibility. He averaged 10 points a game as a sophomore and is a strong rebounder.

Returning from last year to start as guards are George McNeil and Dave Lee. Both were given honorable mention on Little All-America teams last year.

"I'm sure there are a number of more talented guards than either McNeil or Lee, but I'll put the two of them up against any pair any place," Hartman said in praising them.

McNeil, a senior from St. Louis, led the team in scoring last year when he hit half of his shots from the field and was the nation's fifth-best free throw shooter in the college division. Lee, another senior, hails from McLeansboro and is the team's defensive wizard.

Lettermen who probably won't start against Northeast Missouri are guards Bill Lacy and Roger Bechtold and forward Clarence Smith.

After Thursday's home opener, the Salukis take to the road for a game Saturday with State College of Iowa at Cedar Falls and another road game Monday with State University of Iowa, one of the top teams in the Big 10.

N.Y. Knicks Can Harry the Horse

Former Saluki basketball Coach Harry (the Horse) Gallatin couldn't pull the New York Knickerbockers of the National Basketball Association out of the basement.

So Monday, Gallatin was fired by the Knicks, who immediately named former New York ace Dick McGuire to succeed him.

The unexpected coaching change was dictated by the Knicks' inability to win despite their acquisition of scoring stars Walt Bellamy and Dick Barnett in early-season trades and by Gallatin's apparent reluctance to utilize the team's speed in a free-wheeling, fast-break style of play that characterized his teams at Southern.

Gallatin coached four years at Southern from 1958-62. During that span his teams won 79 games and lost 35.

He left Southern in 1962 to take the head coaching job of the St. Louis Hawks, another NBA team.

He coached the Hawks to two consecutive second-place finishes before he was fired by Hawks' owner Ben Kerner in the middle of last season.

Saluki Boyd O'Neal Gets Height From His Family of Six-Footers

By Bob Reincke

Most boys look to someone or something as a measuring stick while they're growing up. Since parents are the most accessible people, they usually do the trick.

And it's not uncommon for the boy to grow taller than his mother once he gets into his teens. Boyd O'Neal, one of the centers on Southern's basketball team, was no exception. But he shouldn't be. After all, he is 6 feet 6 inches tall.

The twist is that Boyd's mother is still taller than her son when she is in high-heels. Mother O'Neal is 6 feet 5 inches tall.

And Boyd still hasn't caught up with his father, and probably never will. Papa O'Neal is 6 feet 10 and weighs 250 pounds.

The O'Neals have two daughters besides their son. One of the daughters is 6-2 and the other 6-3.

A sportswriter in his home town of Philadelphia once called the O'Neals the "Tree Family." When Carmen Piccone, former SIU football coach, no small man himself, went to see the O'Neals about getting their son to come to Southern, he remarked that he felt like he was "standing in a valley."

O'Neal has always been tall. So tall, in fact, that he had to spend nearly a year in a hospital to allow his weight to catch up with his height.

"I got so tall when I was in junior high," he recalled, "that I had to miss a year of school to lay in a hospital and put on some weight." Boyd said he was 6-4 and weighed less than 100 pounds when he went into the hospital.

After putting on weight, he was able to return to school, but he still didn't take up basketball. "I let those other guys shoot basketballs. I just stood around and talked to the girls," he said.

But when he got into high school, O'Neal began playing basketball, the sport which got him to Southern. The basketball coach at his high school, undoubtedly impressed by O'Neal's height, talked him into trying out for the team.

"I didn't even hardly know how to play when I started, but Tony Coma (the coach) stuck with me and made me work out a lot," he said. O'Neal said he owes much of his basketball ability to Coma. "He got me working out and putting on weight and I finally began to get the game down by the time I was a sophomore," O'Neal noted.

O'Neal must have been a good student of the game,

Bus to St. Louis Set for Saturday

A bus excursion to St. Louis Saturday is being sponsored by the University Center Programming Board.

The ride costs $1.50. Students must sign up for the trip at the Student Activities Office before noon Friday.

judging from his performance at Southern. Last year as a junior, he played in 24 of Southern's 26 games, and was the team's second best rebounder. He didn't play in the other two games because of a case of flu.

One physical characteristic that helped O'Neal become one of the leading rebounders is his muscular expanse of shoulders. His shoulders, in fact, are one of the first things people notice about him, and are a point of envy of many fans at the SIU basketball games.

Ironically, his shoulders are so large that O'Neal says he has somewhat of a complex about them. "Sometimes I find myself bringing my shoulders in a little bit so people don't notice them so much. They're always amazed by my shoulders and most people think I'm a football player."

O'Neal's shoulders are so much larger than the rest of his body that people often think he worked out especially to build them up. He said, however, that he has always had broad shoulders and has done nothing special to develop them.

From his massive shoulders, O'Neal tapers down to a narrow 29 inches at the waist. This makes it especially difficult to get clothes. He has to buy his clothes at a special store in Philadelphia which caters to professional basketball players.

O'Neal said he doesn't know exactly how big he is across the shoulders, but he has to buy a size 50 coat and have it cut down. His slacks have a 29-inch waist and a 36-inch inseam, and he said a suit of this size runs him about $110.

His size also poses other problems besides clothes. For instance, there are no special accommodations in Abbott Hall, where he lives during school. "The beds are a little too short for me, and I just have to roll up at night to keep from hanging over," he said.

O'Neal said his height hasn't interfered much with his dating. "The only time it really bothered me when I was dancing. If the girl was very short, I'd wind up with my arm around her neck and she'd think I was choking her," he quipped.

The height must not have been too much of a problem, however, because O'Neal is engaged to Desiree Farmer, an SIU coed nearly a foot shorter than her fiancé.

O'Neal is a senior this year and said he has no definite plans for the immediate future. "I'd like to get an offer to play pro ball, but if I don't I'll probably go on to grad school. Eventually I'd like to be a coach."

HELP BRING
TO

BIG TEN UNANIMOUS JN RID

1. Several national studies have been made concerning financial support given by students to intercollegiate athletic programs. One of the more recent indicates that the average amount has been $19.12 per student for the regular academic year. The present average for the academic year per student at Southern Illinois University is $6.00.
2. Northern Illinois University is presently charging students $10.00 per semester or $20.00 per academic year for the support of intercollegiate athletics. Northern Illinois is using part of this income to support NCAA scholarships.
3. The Illinois Teachers College Board indicated, when the $20.00 fee was approved for Northern Illinois University, that other state schools under its control may also charge students $20.00 per year for the support of intercollegiate athletics.
4. If the athletic increase is approved, students will have no additional cost for any athletic competition. Admission to athletic events will be free to all students who pay their regular fees each quarter, and there will be no standing in lines for tickets to be issued.
5. In addition to the regular program of 10 varsity sports, a new summer quarter sports program would be developed if the new athletic fee plan is approved. Such a summer sports program would include a baseball league made up of midwestern universities such as Illinois, Purdue, St. Louis, Bradley, Washington University, Indiana and others. Golf, tennis and swimming would also be included.
6. If the students decide to support the athletic fee increase, none of this income would be used for NCAA scholarships. Income from the increased student athletic fee would be sufficient to pay usual athletic program expenses such as team travel, food and lodging, equipment, medical and dental expenses, laundry, guarantees, officials, etc.
- NCAA scholarships could then be supported by gate receipts and other income from concessions, advertising, Century Club and Benchwarmer donations and similar athletic department revenue.
7. An NCAA scholarship provides room, board, tuition, fees and $15.00 per month. Approximately 150 NCAA scholarships would be the goal, with football receiving 100 such awards and 22 going to basketball.
8. NCAA scholarships at Missouri Valley schools competing for the football title --- Tulsa, Louisville, North Texas, Cincinnati and Wichita --- most of which are scheduled to play against Southern Illinois University through 1968, average over 100 each for football at these schools.
9. Having NCAA scholarships would not assure Southern Illinois University of membership in a major athletic conference. However, if the students at SIU show their support of athletics through a fee increase, the possibilities of membership would be greatly increased.
10. Because of high entrance requirements, the quality of the General Studies Program, and the necessity for all junior and senior scholars to maintain a 3.0 average in order to compete in intercollegiate competition at SIU, high quality, capable students must be recruited to take part in athletics. Such students are highly sought after by other large schools with fine athletic traditions. To interest such students in Southern Illinois University, NCAA scholarships are needed. Parents hesitate to send their sons to colleges where they must practice their sport for three hours a day, work on a student work program for their room and board, and still attempt to find the time to meet high academic requirements.
