Nine out of ten gasoline stations to close Sunday

By Rafe Klingler
 Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Nine out of 10 Carbondale gasoline dealers surveyed Friday said they would be closed Sunday.

The shutdown for most of the dealers is a result of President Nixon's Nov. 25 request that dealers close from 9 p.m. Saturday to 6 a.m. Monday to conserve gasoline.

With the Sunday closings, many dealers predicted a Saturday evening rush to tank up.

"Saturday night is gonna be rough," said Don McCoy, manager of the Martin Station, 912 W. Main.

Three of the stations closing are owned by oil companies which ordered the shutdown.

"The company asked me to close at 2 p.m. last Saturday before the President's announcement even came out," said McCoy.

The pump at Penney's Rt. 13 East, have worn "out of gas" signs since last Sunday when the station's supply ran out. The manager of the station, Mike Janssen, said he buys gas from a wholesaler who has gas available but at too high a price.

Janssen said his service center would remain open as usual, even on Sunday.

Janssen was the only dealer who mentioned a wholesale price increase. The rest said their prices have been stable for the last month.

The one dealer surveyed who will be open Sunday is Ken Salus, owner of the Clark station, 801 E. Walnut.

"According to what I heard, they are not going to force us to close," he said.

Salus said he resents the government's attempts to tell him how to run his business. If the government wants to conserve gas, let them put a limit on the monthly supply, he said.

None of the stations has had its usual shipment of gas cut as yet. But dealers said they expect their deliveries to be reduced by 15 per cent in the near future as a rationing measure.

Three privately owned stations have been closing on Sunday's for several months.

Ken Garner of the Standard station, 941 W. Main, explained that though his monthly gas allotment is the same as last year, the demand for gas has increased. He closes on Sunday to keep from running out before his next shipment arrives.

None of the dealers thought the Sunday closings would help to conserve gas.

Manager Richard Berry of the Liberty station, East Walnut Street, said, "If people plan ahead of time, consumption will remain the same. They'll buy the same amount either on Saturday or Monday."

With many service stations closing on Sunday, auto repairs and emergency service may be hard to obtain.

In addition to Penney's, only Ken Marquard of Ed's Standard, 502 E. Main, said he is considering staying open Sunday even if he doesn't sell gas. "We do quite a bit of emergency work on Sundays," he said.

Local distributors voice concern

Fuel oil: Pay more, but get less

By Dan Haar
 Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The energy crisis for Carbondale area residents using fuel oil will mean paying more and getting less this winter.

Area fuel oil distributors say prices will be higher and customers will probably be restricted to a percentage of the amount they used last year.

The distributors voiced concern over what President Nixon's proposed mandatory allocations will do to their supplies of fuel oil.

Under those allocations, fuel oil cutbacks for each consumer may amount to 15 per cent.

John Armstrong, vice president of Martin Oil Co. in Carbondale, described the fuel oil situation for the winter as serious. "We are in short supply and prices are high."

"The shortage will get worse. Under the mandatory allocations, bookkeeping and record keeping will be required. The consumer must help in this area by being honest and trying to conserve fuel," Armstrong said.

Armstrong said his company has not had to turn down or limit any regular customers. New customers may find some trouble though, he noted.

People who hoard fuel oil only worsen the shortage, Armstrong said. "It adds to the problem and is unfair to other customers."

The shortage has not been fully experienced yet, Armstrong said. When the cold months come, he pointed out, people will be tested on how they can conserve energy.

"If people make an all-out effort to conserve and keep their heads and don't hoard, our chances of coming through this are good without anyone being hurt. Everyone must conserve in every way they can," Armstrong said.

With an increase in his supplier's wholesale price, the Penney's Auto Center manager said gas was too expensive to buy. Penney's pumps have been closed since last Sunday, but the service center remains open. (Staff photo by Richard Levine).

Commitments scarce

Hospitals searching for new fuel sources

By Randy McCarthy
 Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Although the energy crunch has caused few problems for local hospitals and nursing homes, administrators interviewed Friday said they weren't sure of sources of future supplies of energy.

All the facilities are lowering thermostats and dousing unnecessary lights but safety and health considerations limit the cutbacks.

John D. Taylor acting administrator of Doctors Hospital in Carbondale, said the hospital was having trouble getting fuel oil. "We're getting it wherever we can but distributors are reluctant to commit themselves to an order," he said.

Taylor said the hospital was paying an inflated price for fuel oil, eight to 10 cents per gallon more than last year's cost.

The Jackson County Nursing Home in Murphysboro uses natural gas for heating but may be forced to switch to fuel oil when the temperature falls below 40 degrees, administrator John Chapman said.

"We're not pinched yet but I don't know what it will be like in the future," he said. "We're now making every effort to get more supplies."

Sister Mary Bede, administrator of St. Joseph Memorial Hospital in Murphysboro, said the hospital is on interruptible service from Central Illinois Public Service Co. (CIPS) and has only a two-week reserve of fuel oil. Last winter, the hospital had to burn fuel oil for three months.

Sister Bede said although the hospital has been promised the same amount of

City Council to have zoning hearing

By Dan Haar
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A public hearing on an annexation and zoning agreement between Carbondale and the J.W. Land Trust will be held during the regular meeting of the City Council at 7 p.m. Monday in the University City Cafeteria.

The agreement involves about 300 acres along Route 13 across from the U.S. Post Office, University Mall and J.C. Penney's.

Under the agreement, a three-acre strip directly across from the Penney's store and a 39.5-acre area across from the Post Office will be zones B-4, suburban business, upon annexation.

The other 260 acres, stretching north from Route 13, will be zoned R-5, residential use.

The agreement, based on recommendation from the Carbondale Planning Commission, permits the owners of the land to attach to and use the city's sanitary facilities. The city also agrees to provide water.

According to the settlement, the owners must pay for the extension of the city's sanitary facilities that are required for any development on the land.

Other topics for the council meeting include:

—Recommendations from the Planning Commission regarding Cedar Lake policies.

—Authorization to execute a lease with the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad for the Walnut Street parking lot.

—An ordinance amending the precinct boundaries for city elections.

—An ordinance amending the City Code relating to assessment fees for city water and sewer lines.

—Ordinances annexing and zoning land belonging to the J.W. Land Trust.

It's filling up

Water rises in Cedar Lake, which will replace Crab Orchard Lake as the city's water supply. The water level of the lake rose about six feet from the heavy rainfall in the area last week. When completely filled, the average depth of the lake will be 30 feet. The current level is 13 feet (Staff photo by Tom Porter)

Distributors say energy crisis means pay more for oil but receive less

Phillips 66 Petroleum Distributors in Carbondale said the company has not taken on any new customers since last year. There has been no problem so far in furnishing to the old customers.

Company prices have risen three cents per gallon across the board, the representative said.

Louis Wides of Wides Oil Co. said the shortage will worsen as the colder months bring more demand for fuel oil.

He said definite figures on how much the company will receive will not be known until next month when the oil allocations are set.

Whatever percentage the company is cut, Wides said, that same percentage cut will be distributed to the customers.

"This is a serious situation. This shortage looks very bad this winter," he said.

"The public must realize they have a part in this shortage as much as the oil companies. Everybody must sacrifice," Wides said.

While fuel oil customers worry about shortages, users of natural gas may be in a better situation.

Bill Bolby, a representative of Central Illinois Public Service (CIPS), said the company should have no problem furnishing customers with natural gas.

Residential customers (private consumers) have top priority for natural gas, Bolby said. Second on the list are commercial users.

CIPS buys natural gas from Texas

Eastern Gas. Co. If the company receives the same amount as last year, Bolby said, both residential and commercial customers should have no problem.

Last year, Texas Eastern Gas Co. cut the contract amount 30 per cent. "Hopefully, it won't be more this year," Bolby said.

Although the supply of natural gas may be more stable, than fuel oil, prices will probably continue to rise.

CIPS uses a purchase gas adjustment. This means the company can pass an increase in the cost of gas to the consumer, but only the cost increase.

Bolby said he doesn't know what, if any, cost increase will arise this winter.

CIPS will have no problems furnishing electricity, Bolby said.

He said the company uses coal from local companies to generate power.

Half of gas stations ignore Phase IV

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—About 50 per cent of the central and Southern Illinois gasoline stations checked are not complying with Phase IV guidelines, the Internal Revenue Service says.

Service stations must display stickers on pumps to tell customers octane ratings and price ceilings. Non-compliance, the IRS says in a news release, can bring a fine of up to $2,500.

The taxmen said another check would be made Dec. 3

Nuckles declares two party affiliations illegal

Reform Party and Alliance for Radical Students (ARS) have both been declared illegal by Steve Nuckles, Student Senate election commissioner.

Four students who listed Reform and ARS as their party affiliations for Wednesday's Student Senate election will be listed on the ballot as Independent, Nuckles said.

The four candidates are Garry Seltzer, Maurice Richards, Larry Roth and Diane Johnson.

Competition not allowed

Student Center ruled out for student bookstore use

By Debby Ratermann
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The fledgling student-operated textbook consignment store will not be allowed to use the Student Center for its first textbook collection Dec. 11-16, Student Activities Coordinator Jack Baier, said Friday.

Baier, who had approved use of the center earlier this week, said Student Center Manager Clarence Dougherty informed him Friday that use of the center by a competing bookstore would not be allowed.

"Profits made in the Student Center must be used to pay off the bonds sold to build the center," Baier said. "I was not aware of this ruling when I okayed the consignment store's use of the building."

"This ruling is in no way intended to interfere with the operation of the store," Baier said. "I'm very supportive of the idea of a student-operated store, but we can't have two competing stores here in the center."

John Hardt, one of the students involved in organizing the store, said collection of textbooks will be at 715 S. University, where Harts' Records used to be. Collection will begin Dec. 11.

Hardt previously had said the store would move into its University Avenue quarters over break in time to open Jan. 2, 1974.

Hardt said volunteer solicitation and orientation also will not be done in the center as previously scheduled.

"Anyone interested in working in the store, which will use all volunteer labor, should call 549-8194," Hardt said.

Wind damages

human hearing

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Researchers have reported that a 20-mile wind striking the ear of a hard-headed man produce noise readings that average 92 decibels on the A scale and that a 70-mile wind produces a mean level of 109 decibels (A).

"When you consider that the Occupational Safety and Health Act established 90 decibels (A) as the maximum level for continuous eight-hour exposure to noise levels without impact on hearing, you can see that natural wind sources in the human ear also become part of the very complex subject of noise and its effect on the human hearing mechanism."

Christmas sales up in department stores, but not for downtown

By David Kornblith
And Terry Martin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writers

Sales during the first week of Christmas shopping in downtown Carbondale were about the same as last year's but managers of the three largest area department stores said their volume is up, a survey indicated Friday.

"Sales have been about the same since Thanksgiving," Kirby Madden, manager of Don's Jewelry said. "Business should increase considerably starting the first week in December."

Ernie Anderson, manager of Discount Records said, "The closer you get to Christmas, the more the sales pick up."

"There are not too many Christmas shoppers yet," said Barb Jacob, manager of Blum's. "People are just buying for themselves."

"Soon, students will start buying gifts for their roommates and sorority sisters," Ms. Jacob said. "A lot of guys will also start to come in to buy gifts for their girl friends and wives."

Another group, townspeople, will descend on many of the downtown stores after the students leave, many merchants agree.

"We expect to pick up when the students have finished with finals and the townspeople come in," Ms. Jacob said.

In an attempt to increase Christmas sales, the Squire Shop promotes buying through additional advertising, said Don Hagge, owner. The store aims its advertising toward December clientele. As a result, "We get people travelling as far as 50 miles to come to the store," Hagge said.

Sales are up at the Squire Shop, Hagge said. "Christmas shopping is doing the same as last year, very good."

Sales at Discount Records are also up, said Art Keith, regional director of the stores. "Our sales are up from last year at this same time."

"Jazz is selling more this year," Anderson said. "Many people also give boxed records which are mainly the classics," Keith added.

"People are buying a little bit of everything from the men's clothes stores," said Steve Goldsmith, owner of Goldsmith's.

"When you buy across the board, that is a healthy situation because everything moves," Hagge said.

The new look in women's clothes this winter is "satin-like material and material with sequins," said Ms. Jacobs. Cardigan sweaters will also be big.

An increasing problem during the Christmas season is shoplifting. "When you get busier, more shoplifting occurs," Goldsmith said.

"Shoplifting is more of a problem at this time," said Anderson. "In a record shop all you need is a long coat or a newspaper. We watch for shoplifters a little closer this time of the year," he said.

The managers of the three biggest area department stores said sales are much better now than at the same time last year.

Edward Keyes, manager of Penney's, said the store started its Christmas season in October rather than after Thanksgiving.

"Each year, our stores put out the Christmas items prior to the Christmas season to give the public better service, which it definitely does do," Keyes said. "There are an increasing number of the public who pre-plan their buying and have improved buying habits. We've had a good Christmas business," he said.

Keyes said he definitely anticipates a better Christmas season this year than in the past. "Next year might be a different ball game, however," Keyes said. "The national economy indicates the energy crisis is not working in favor of the higher levels of business."

Bob Kissinger, manager of Mohr Value, said sales are way up for the year.

"Our Christmas sales are about 20 percent ahead of last year," Kissinger said. He attributed the increase to the store's selection of merchandise and the energy crisis. "Because of the crisis, sales of sweaters, robes and coats are going good," Kissinger said.

Kissinger said sales of Christmas lighting decorations are down but "selling clothing and heaters is offsetting it right now."

Save-Mart manager Robert Heuer said sales are more than marginal with an emphasis on toys, decorations and artificial trees.

"People don't buy Christmas things until they have to," Heuer said. "They usually wait until the last minute."

The large store managers said incidences of shoplifting have not "noticeably increased."

Thompson Point flea market to be held on Sunday

The Thompson Point Executive Council will sponsor a flea market from 6 to 10 p.m. Sunday at Lentz Hall, dining room one, Rich Stribling TP activities coordinator said Friday.

The flea market will enable students to sell or trade anything "that students don't want to take home with them," Stribling said. He said tables will be available at no charge for anyone to sell their merchandise.

Stribling expects a large turnout and brisk trading. "I expect that students will take advantage of this opportunity to trade their records and other items they no longer want."

Campus phones lose their rings

All campus phones having 453 or 536 prefix numbers were out of order Friday from 10:45 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. because of a ringing machine problem, said Scott Cleaver, service office supervisor of General Telephone.

"The ringing machine's resistor blew out at about 10:45 a.m. but now everything's back in order," Cleaver said.

Cleaver explained that when a number is dialed, the machine is usually activated, sending a current that triggers the ring. "No ringers were going out," Cleaver said.

Dean Jefferson testifies at Canut-Amoros hearing

By Daine Mizialko
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The School of Engineering and Technology had four women faculty members in 1969, but today there is one, Thomas Jefferson, dean of the school, said Friday.

Jefferson made the statement during testimony at the Illinois Fair Employment Practices Commission (FEPC) hearing on sex discrimination charges filed against SIU by Marisa Canut-Amoros, former professor of technology.

Jefferson said there has been some recruiting effort made by his school to add minority and female members to the faculty, but since he assumed the deanship in 1969 no women have been hired.

Jefferson took the stand around noon, Laver, chairman of the Department of Economics and former SIU chancellor and president. Laver's testimony lasted less than a day, and Sylvia Roberts, attorney for Ms. Canut-Amoros, said she hoped to finish with Jefferson Friday.

Ms. Roberts said the witnesses she plans to call before completing the complainant's case will be asked for relatively little testimony. With five witnesses to go, Ms. Roberts still hopes to wind up the case this weekend.

A Saturday session, beginning at 8 a.m., and a Sunday session have been scheduled by Hearing Examiner William Regas. On Sunday the hearing will adjourn until sometime in January, when SIU will open its defense.

Complainant's witnesses still to be called are: James Brown, chief of board staff; Warren Buffum, SIU Budget director; Charles Bernardoni, SIU general accounting director; Jerry Lacey, assistant to the vice president for development and services and Affirmative Action Officer, and the complainant herself.

The hearing is held in the Regatta Room of the Holiday Inn.

Bond issue deserves voter attention

Carbondale voters will face a rerun of a bond issue for the park district's proposed recreation center. The advantages the center promises to provide are too important to be eliminated again by a handful of voters.

A Nov. 10 referendum on a $750,000 bond issue for the swimming pool-ice skating rink drew an embarrassing low turnout of 1349 votes and resulted in the bond issue's 751-598 defeat.

Park district commissioners have tentatively agreed to hold another bond issue referendum in the early part of March. The commissioners' strategy for the upcoming election is to clear up confusion citizens had about the center and to solicit citizen support more vigorously. These are good practical courses of action but it makes one wonder what the park district was doing before the first referendum.

Amid the confusion and the apparent lack of interest on the part of the voters, the fact that the center would provide badly needed services to the people in the area must not be overlooked.

Those in opposition to the center attack the plans for the olympic-sized swimming pool pointing to the abundance of lakes in the area and the pools at Pulliam Hall at SIU, the YMCA pool and the pool included in SIU's planned recreation center.

The existing pools in the city are not as open to public activities as the recreation complex pool would be. Pulliam is crowded with swimming team members and students in physical education classes or during free time. The YMCA pool has its own program of activities and is open to the general public for recreational swimming only a few times a week.

The fact that there are so many lakes in the area is an argument for rather than against the necessity of a pool where swimming lessons and water safety could be held. Robert Coatney, park district director, has emphasized this point often.

The pool would also be open for a whole program of activities geared for the general public. The program would include swimming clinics, competitive swimming, life saving courses, recreational swimming and parties.

The indoor ice skating rink will be a real service to area people since the nearest ice skating rink is in Granite City. The rink would also make the center economically possible.

While the outside pool would be opened only 100 days a year, the rink would operate year round. The rink could be used for ice skating, roller skating, basketball, meetings and other indoor sports.

These advantages will not be provided without a cost to those living in the city. The bond would be paid back with any profit the center makes. Taxes would be levied if the profit is not enough to cover the bond payments.

The most property taxes could increase with the approval of the bond would be 6½ cents per $100 assessed valuation. This means that for a house assessed at $20,000, the greatest tax increase would be $13 a year.

Coatney has stressed that the center would generate enough revenue to make the bond payments with calling on taxes. The tentative figures he released backing up this statement, however, are a bit shaky and need some clarification.

Another matter needing clarification is how the area in which the center will be built would be prepared to handle the increased traffic generated by the center.

James Rayfield, city planning director, announced that streets in the area would need widening and sidewalks would need to be built. No definite plans on these modifications were available.

With the confusion cleared, voters could sit back and decide whether the center is worth a possible increase in their taxes. Coatney has promised that not more than one or two cents per $100 valuation would probably be needed.

A fuller disclosure of how Coatney arrived at those figures and what he bases his estimates on would help enormously.

The center offers worthwhile benefits to the community. But the citizens of Carbondale must be willing to pay for them.

Community concern

To the Daily Egyptian:

Probably it is only fair to recognize that the Newest Board member will have some degree of responsibility in the area of community concerns.

First by virtue of a great number of faculty and staff personnel which reside in the city of Carbondale presenting an overlap of responsibility, and secondly by the policy decisions made by the Board of Trustees affecting the community as a whole. Also included in this is the fact that a considerable number of students of Southern are graduates of Carbondale High School. Many activities and relationships which are a concern of area businessmen in areas such as liquor, personal supplies, and things such as food, clothing, and recreation such as theatres. The Board has and will have direct effects on these activities and businesses and must be recognized by our new Board of Trustee member-Student representative.

Cooperative crime control

In a move that will unify and strengthen the law enforcement operation, the Carbondale Police Department will join other police agencies in a statewide crime reporting system, the Criminal Justice Information System.

Planned to become nationalized in the near future, the information system will replace local crime reporting procedures with a standardized computerized classification process.

This method will eliminate local peculiarities in crime reporting and lead to the compilation of more accurate crime statistics.

Under the new system, when a police officer fills out an offense report, the original copy remains with the local police agency, with duplicates sent to the local detective section and the state crime studies section. The reporting officer retains a copy for court purposes.

The chief importance of the Criminal Justice Information System seems to lie in the fact that it will promote more efficient cooperation between all levels of police agencies, particularly in the apprehension of offenders.

Joint information regarding the method of operation used to commit a crime should prove most helpful in isolating a small group of suspects, and finally, the one suspected offender.

For instance, if a string of armed robberies had been committed in Carbondale, and a rash of similar offenses started up in DuQuoin, it would seem likely that the same suspect was responsible for the criminal activity in both cities. This would appear even more likely if the same pattern of perpetration was found to exist. (For example, the offender always entered through a rear window and always used the same wording in his hold-up demands.)

Based on these similarities, investigators in both localities would be able to exchange clues—fingerprints, victims' descriptions of the offender—and work jointly to identify and locate the offender.

This system would also prove helpful when a suspect escaped from one locality to another. Police units would have access to the same report of the offense and could work together in the apprehension of the suspect.

The implementation of the Criminal Justice Information System by the Carbondale Police takes a giant step in assuring the public of a more efficient, more productive law enforcement operation. Carbondale residents may rest assured that once participation in this system begins (in March, 1974), crime will be combatted not only on a local level, but with the assistance and knowledge of state agencies as well.

While crime itself will never be completely eliminated, the formation of state and national police systems working with local police agencies is certain to help curb and control the criminal element of society.

All-day workshop clears some facts on the disabled

By Sam Denoms
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A detailed look at physical disabilities was provided by Jerome Lorenz, SIU Rehabilitation Institute, in an all-day staff workshop on "Students with Physical Disabilities."

The workshop was sub-titled "What you wanted to know but were afraid to ask," and was held in Ballroom A of the Student Center. More than 35 SIU staff and faculty members attended the program. Following introductions and opening remarks by Chuck Landis of the Counseling and Testing Center, Lorenz began explaining some of the lesser known facts about physical disabilities.

Deer season will continue

The second half of shotgun season for deer in Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge is set for Dec. 7 to 9, with more than 300 refuge permits being available for Williamson County hunting licenses.

The hunt inside the refuge is aimed at thinning out a "dangerous over-population" of deer, said Dick Uptegraft, acting project manager for the refuge.

"Basically, there's an extreme case of 'eat-out' on the deer environment or habitat," Uptegraft said. He said the deer are consuming forest vegetation at a rate which would endanger normal forest growth next year.

In many areas of the refuge, Uptegraft said, one can see a "browse line" where deer have been feeding. All vegetation below "about chin-high on a man" is gone, he said.

Consequently, there is a problem for feeding the huge deer flock this winter. Additionally, Uptegraft said, hungry deer have destroyed portions of corn crops which geese in the refuge feed upon.

Uptegraft hoped hunters will "take" at least 400 deer over the hunting weekend, to alleviate the food shortage. The first half of the season this month saw 524 hunters bagging 327 deer.

The hunt will be placed in the refuge area south of Crab Orchard Lake, Uptegraft said. He said only hunters with Williamson County permits will be allowed to participate. Space for hunters on Dec. 8 and 9 is still available.

Southern Players' presentation of Moliere's 'Tartuffe' needs polish

By Tom Finan
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Any show which goes on tour is bound to pick up some road grime along the way, but little attempt appears to have been made to polish up the Southern Players' road production of Moliere's "Tartuffe" before showcasing it on the main stage at the University Theater.

The play, which opened Friday night and has performances at 8 p.m. Saturday and at 3 p.m. Sunday

"A physical disability is a condition of physical impairment having a subjective aspect that can usually be described by a physician," Lorenz said.

"A handicap is the cumulative result of the obstacles which the disability interposes between the individual and his maximum functional level," Lorenz continued.

He also explained some of the misconceptions accorded people with physical disabilities and how many parents feel guilt or that they have been punished when their child is born with a physical disability.

Several of the staff members present were confined to wheelchairs during the morning half of the workshop, while others were blindfolded or physically impaired in other manners. Some of the physically disabled staff members at the session were given additional disabilities.

Thomas Dickey, an assistant professor in the Rehabilitation Institute who has a visual impairment, talked about the problems blind people have, what has been done to determine the many conditions of blindness and tools that are used by the blind to enable them to function.

An estimated 2 per cent or 400,000 to 440,000 are blind in the U.S. and 60 per cent of these people are over the age of 45," Dickey said. "Approximately 12 per cent are absolutely blind."

Dickey told the workshop group that "mobility" was the most noted problem encountered by a blind person. He explained that a blind person gets no "non-verbal" cues which are so much a part of communications between people within the "seeing world."

Summarizing the morning discussions, Silas Singh, coordinator of Specialized Student Services, told the staff members some of the facts about his physical disabilities and how his family and fellow countrymen reacted to his condition.

Following a lunch-break Carol Harris and Richard Snyder, Division of Vocational Rehabilitation counselors, discussed "Vocational Concerns" yesterday.

Lack of time caused the student panel, made up of eight physically disabled SIU students, and a rap session between disabled staff members and non-disabled ones to be cut short.

itself is underplayed, although Bonnie Lurie plays Dorine with a saucy mischievousness which often brings the audience to life.

Her gestures, timing and intonations purvey both subtle and broad humor in an extremely charming manner.

The fact that Moliere was writing a commentary on the corruption and hypocrisy of the Church is almost obscured by the lackluster fashion in which these statements are presented. John Speckhart, plays Cleante as spouting automation rather than any sort of free thinking commentator.

While Speckhart's interpretation of Cleante's personality may be intended to represent a sort of effete snobbery, his gesturing is of the incessant sort that could drive a person to distraction.

From the moment he broaches the top landing of the staircase and instructs his valet to, "Hang up my hair shirt and my scourge," Rob Pocklington as Tartuffe plays the Several comic bits such as the introduction of a peanut-popping king in the audience, for whom the entire first act is reperformed in Keystone Cops pantomime fashion (Because he was "asleep"), may have their place when dealing with younger audiences, but tend to mask the inherent comedy in Moliere's writing.

IBHE expected to endorse higher tuition, budget slashes

By Marcia Bullard
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE) is expected to recommend higher tuitions and cut back budget requests for state universities at its meeting Tuesday.

The budget meeting in Chicago is crucial to SIU and other universities which are expecting much lower allocations than they requested this year. IBHE recommendations are forwarded to Gov. Dan Walker for final approval.

Compus treasurer Dan Orescanin has received a copy of the IBHE recommendations but said he cannot release them until the board votes on them Tuesday. He called the SIU budget prospect "grim."

Every fall, the IBHE reviews budget requests made by each university. The board's recommendations must then be approved by the General Assembly and Walker.

SIU President David R. Derge and Chief of Board Staff James Brown will attend the meeting Tuesday. Derge will return for a news conference on campus Tuesday afternoon.

The Carbondale campus has requested an $84 million budget for the next fiscal year, $24 million more than last year's request. Last year, SIU-C's request for $60 million was slashed by one-and-one-half million dollars.

An IBHE committee recommended a six per cent hike in tuitions at state universities about two weeks ago. The board will vote on that proposal Tuesday.

Lunches to start for the elderly

The Carbondale Senior Citizens' Council-Oakdale House will begin a hot lunch program for senior citizens on Jan. 4.

Volunteers are being sought for help in setting up the dining areas, preparing salads and deserts, taking reservations and cleaning up.

People interested in volunteering for the program can call 549-8241 or 549-1731 for further information.

Tuition waiver discrimination charged

By David Kornblith
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The president of the African Student Organization (ASO) accused the International Students and Affairs Office of discrimination in presenting tuition waivers Thursday.

"I think we have been discriminated against in trying to secure tuition waivers," Hassan Sisay, president of ASO said. "I suspect there has been a trend to give tuition waivers to one region and neglect other areas."

Fred Schulten, coordinator of International Students and Affairs, denies the charges completely. Schulten presents the tuition waiver requests to the committee that grants the waivers.

"I'd like to know what he is basing this on," Schulten said in response to the discrimination charge.

Sisay said he thinks this problem has been existent for awhile. "We have not gotten the right number of tuition waivers," added Olusegun Idowu, vice-president of ASO.

Schulten said the Idowu is upset because he applied for a waiver and did not get it. "It's the classic thing, anyone who does not get a waiver after they apply for it is upset."

In a meeting Friday night with the ASO, Schulten said he hopes "to clear the air."

Idowu said the meeting is designed to allow the ASO members to ask Schulten the qualifications needed to get tuition waivers. Idowu wants to make it clear who can get them, how many are available and how many African students have received waivers.

"I don't know the qualifications for tuition waivers," Sisay said. "And, none of the tuition waiver committee members know what's going on either."

Schulten had been unaware that the ASO meeting would be centering on the tuition waiver problem. "I thought because I was the coordinator of international students that I would be giving an introductory talk to the new African students," he said.

Jazz concert offers diversity

By Linda Lipman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

With an amateurish No. 2 Jazz Ensemble, a stimulating No. 1 Ensemble, a professional Improvisational Quartet and Hamiet Bluiett everywhere, the jazz concert Thursday night was diversified.

Bluiett, professional saxophone player of the Charles Mingus big band, held a featured solo during every part of the concert, and was applauded after all. He was appreciated before he even started playing during the Ensemble No. 2 number. "Blues in the Abstract Truth," The Ensemble No. 2 needed that lift after boring the audience with their first two so-called jazz selections.

The audience kept on believing they were hearing fine jazz music that was only a little slow to get started in jamming, but that never happened. Instead they remained sluggish. That wasn't too bad, considering Thursday was the first time they were allowed to play for a public audience.

The music switched in tone, when the professionals came on for the Improvisation Quartet, London Branch, director of Ensemble No. 2, Alan Oldfield, director of Ensemble No. 1, student Lee Hacker and Bluiett, once again, as the leader of the quartet, performed what all jazz musicians strive for... improvisation.

Bluiett knows that sax well enough to distort its sound, which is what he did during the first jam, and it went over quite well. Oldfield, on piano, lead one solo accompanied by the trio and Branch followed with his solo of picking out both high and low notes on bass. Both were talented and competent.

During an unusual arrangement of "Misty," lead by Oldfield on piano and accompanied by Hacker on drums, Bluiett calmed his sax down a bit and integrated his solo into the mellow blues number.

The more professional student band, Ensemble No. 1, took over for the second half of the concert and probably saved the show.

This band truly had a feel for jazz, improvising, soloing and respecting the potential of the instruments.

Nothing about "Pussywiggles Stomp" was typical. Everytime it seemed the tune was coming to an end, it would pick up again with more music, clapping, whistling and down-right shrieks, not from the audience... from the band. It looked like the band was having a good time.

Student soloists were featured on every number and proved their improvisation ability and sense of playing with others as well.

The "lucky people," as Oldfield called the audience, heard one encore of a Menard Ferguson tune, a fine comeback, and called it a night.

Fuel shortage may force short school day

By Dave Ambrose
Student Writer

Jackson County school children may find themselves going to school fewer hours this winter if the energy crisis becomes more serious.

That is the speculation of Monroe Deming, County Superintendent of Schools.

Deming said all but two of Jackson County's ten school districts have guaranteed fuel supplies for heating this winter.

"They have commitments," Deming said, "insofar as their suppliers are able to fill them."

The real problem, however, is if the situation reaches an extent to where it is necessary to "mandate allocation of fuel on a reduced basis," said Deming.

Should this occur more drastic measures would have to be taken to conserve fuel.

Among the possibilities put forth by Deming is a shortened school day.

Deming said state law requires that children beyond the first grade must attend a minimum of five hours of instruction daily in order for the school to receive state reimbursement. Children in the first grade must attend four hours. Kindergarten students must attend a minimum of two hours.

"Most schools in Jackson County operate with more than five hours of instruction," Deming said. "Most of them have six hours with one hour for lunch."

By reducing the lunch period to 30 minutes and using recesses for physical education instead of free-play, the length of the school day could be considerably shortened.

"Schools could then cut thermostats back that much earlier in the day," Deming said. "There are no legal stipulations on times for the beginning or end of a school day."

Deming also discussed the inevitable switch back to national daylight savings time.

"If daylight savings time is passed," Deming said, "schools will almost have to change their starting times."

He noted that some Jackson County children meet the bus at 7 a.m. "With daylight savings time it would be dark then," he said.

A second alternative would be to dismiss in mid-winter and make up the lost days in summer. "This is purely speculative," Deming emphasized.

The problems of the extended year are multiple. For each day of session over the originally approved school calendar, teachers would have to be paid on a per diem basis.

"Unless the law is changed," Deming said, "we will have to pay money that we simply do not have."

"Another problem of having school in summer is that when the heat becomes unbearable no one functions as well," he said.

At present, two of the county's schools are air conditioned. Deming jokingly noted that he didn't think people would be receptive to the idea of installing air conditioners in more schools as a solution to the energy crisis.

Also conceivable would be a shortened school year to allow for the winter break and to avoid extending into the summer, he said.

Under present law, Deming said, schools are required to hold classes for 180 days. For each day by which they fail to meet this standard they are docked 1 per cent of their state reimbursements. Special legislation would be required to nullify this requirement. Deming cited as an example, the Kaskaskia Island school which was flooded last spring. Special legislation lifted the requirement from the school in this special instance. Similar legislation could be enacted to allow for fuel conservation by shortening the year. "Whether you shorten the day or shorten the year," Deming said, "I think the most important factor is that the children are shorted in their education."

Five teachers from area try for 'Teacher of Year'

Five Southern Illinois teachers are among 55 candidates nominated for the 1973 Illinois Teacher of the Year.

A state selection committee will narrow the list to five finalists, and the winner will be announced Dec. 12 in Springfield.

Candidates are nominated by superintendents of educational regions. Include among these nominees are Sarah M. Doerner of DuQuoin, John Fullerton of Sparta, Frank Samuel of Carterville, Wilfred H. Beckmeyer of Mount Vernon, and Blanche Stofoer of Centralia.

Most important among qualities being judged, according to a release from the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, is the ability to inspire love of learning in students. Other areas evaluated include community involvement, innovative and creative ideas and respect of peers, students and parents.

Evaluations are to be based on information submitted by the teachers, and on letters from students, peers and community leaders, according to the release.

Survey finds few obstacles at SIU Airport

By Gary Houy
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A survey team from the National Ocean Survey will wind up its field examination of Southern Illinois Airport on Saturday, James W. Barton, head of the team, said Friday.

The survey party, a joint program using manpower provided by the U.S. Department of Commerce's National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and financed by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), is a safety study of possible obstructions to runway approaches.

On Nov. 23, the team began their study of the character, elevation, and location of obstructions to air traffic and the position of all aids to air navigation, at the airport. The study centers on a "penetration area" extending from ground level in a circular area with a horizontal radius of about 20,000 feet from the airport to an altitude of about 150 feet.

Barton said the survey party found "not too many" obstructions in the penetration area but that the surveys always find at least several obstructions at the airports they have studied.

Results of the survey, the first of its kind at Southern Illinois Airport, will be published in an Airport Obstruction Chart in five or six months. The charts were used by the FAA in planning operational procedures for the arrival and departure of aircraft.

The FAA determines what constitutes an obstruction, and this criteria is followed by the airport survey teams in all parts of the country. The obstruction charts are developed from the surveys along with aerial photographs of the airport.

The plaque on the front of the interpretation center at Fort Massac State Park commemorates Howard H. Hays, newspaper publisher and conservationist, for his efforts to restore historic Fort Massac. The fort includes a new historic exhibit hall, which will be staffed and maintained by the SIU Museum. The exhibit hall, which depicts in graphics and dioramas the history of Fort Massac and Massac County and the reconstructed fort, will be formally dedicated Sunday.

Candidate for student trustee removed from election ballot

By Debby Ratermann
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Candace Richards, one of two women candidates among the 13 contenders for student trustee, has been removed from the election ballot.

Trustee election commission member Ralph Rosynek announced Friday that Ms. Richards' name was dropped from the ballot because she failed to attend two mandatory activities.

After she had already been dropped from the ballot, Ms. Richards had her name withdrawn, saying she is moving to Chicago. Chief Election Commissioner Steve Nuckles said.

The ballots were scheduled to be printed Friday, Rosynek said, "so if other candidates fail to attend two functions between now and the election Wednesday, they will be declared illegal candidates, even though their names appear on the ballot."

Two required activities remain for the 12 trustee candidates. "They must spend at least one hour Monday at a table on the first floor of the Student Center to answer students' questions," Rosynek said.

"This is the first time this has been required in an election here, but we feel trustee candidates should learn to communicate with students directly," Rosynek said. "It also gives a student a chance to question, or at least see, the candidates."

Rosynek said trustee candidates are also required to turn in a written report on their reactions to the election process no later than 5 p.m. Tuesday.

"These reports will help us improve election procedures," Rosynek said.

Two graduate students and two undergraduates make up the four-man trustee election commission. Graduate student Mike Riviere was approved by the Graduate Students' Council Thursday night to replace John Deichmann as the second graduate student on the commission. Deichmann resigned earlier this week.

Nuckles said, "There have been no problems in the campaign so far. We're expecting a big turnout next Wednesday. I'm looking for at least 8,000 voters."

Hospital Auxiliary will offer annual tour of area houses

Tickets have gone on sale for the Carbondale Hospital Auxiliary's seventh annual Home Tours, to be held Sunday, Dec. 9.

Home Tours committee chairwoman, Mrs. Hugh Watson, explained that the $2 ticket entitles one to visit four area homes from 1 to 5 p.m., which will be lavishly decorated for Christmas and to attend the 2 p.m. tea at the Pink Geranium Gift Shop located at Doctor's Memorial Hospital.

Proceeds will go towards a nurse's scholarship and the purchase of an isolette for the hospital. An isolette is an incubator for premature babies, designed to provide controlled temperature, humidity, and oxygen supply and to permit feeding and care under antiseptic conditions with a minimum of handling.

Tickets can be purchased at Westown Drugs, Penneys, Blyers, or from Auxiliary members.

"We would like to top last year's sale of 1,000 tickets for this very worthy cause," said Mrs. Watson.

Tupperware sale slated for Sunday

A tupperware party sponsored by Kappa Omega Phi, an honorary Home Economics society, will be held at 7 p.m. Sunday at the Newman Center, 715 S. Washington.

The party will include the sale of refrigerator and freezer storage containers, baking aids, food serving storage containers and educational children's toys.

Orders may be placed by any Kappa Omega Phi member, by a friend attending the party or by calling Ms. Smith at 549-5891.

Christmas party

The Oakdale Senior Citizens will hold their third annual Christmas party for the mentally handicapped children of the Tri-County Special Education Center on Dec. 12 at 1725 Shomaker Dr. in Murphysboro.

Pinky Kaufman, community relations specialist for the center said the center has sixty children ranging in age 3 to 21. "They come from three counties," she said, "Jackson, Perry and Union."

The center, which is a regular public school, only handles what are termed as the "trainable" mentally handicapped children, according to Mrs. Kaufman.

Only senior citizens and the children may attend the Christmas party Mrs. Kaufman said.

The time has not yet been scheduled for the party.

Plans for Special Olympics under way

Approximately 40 interested individuals met Wednesday night to help organize the 1974 Southern Illinois Special Olympics for mentally retarded individuals.

The Southern Illinois regional games will be held in Carbondale May 10, 1974. The games are tentatively scheduled at McAndrew Stadium.

Participants for the Special Olympics are mentally retarded individuals, 8-years-old and older. Only participants from the southern 36 counties of Illinois are eligible.

Jane Hodgkinson, co-director of the Special Olympics, said there were 800 participants last year, and "we expect at least 1000 this year."

Participants for the Olympics come from community schools, sheltered workshops, institutions and sheltered care facilities throughout Southern Illinois.

Events offered at the 1974 Special

Olympics are swimming, gymnastics, and track and field events.

The largest source of collected revenue for the Special Olympics is Tag Day.

Tag Day is a day set aside by the Special Olympics Committee in which volunteers are sent to various cities in the southern 36 counties of Illinois to collect donations by selling tags which state "I gave to Special Olympics."

Ed Chismar, president of the Special Olympics Committee, said $5,000 was collected at last year's Tag Day. He said a date for Tag Day 1974 has not been set.

Barb Silverstein, finance chairwoman for the Special Olympics, said a bake sale will be held Dec. 5 at 7 p.m. at the Murdale Bowling Alley, to help raise money.

Money collected through the fund raising committee along with donations from Tag Day are used for financing the regional games as well as sending winners to the state competition in Chicago.

Bonnie Watts, co-chairwoman of the volunteers committee, said a meeting for any interested volunteers will be Dec. 5 at 7:30 p.m. in the International Lounge at the Student Center.

Chismar said the next Special Olympics meeting will be Dec. 12.

Bowling tourney set

The women's physical education department is sponsoring an inter-collegiate bowling tournament at 7 p.m. Tuesday, at the Student Center Bowling Lanes.

The tournament is open to any woman undergraduate. The cost is 35 cents per game and 15 cents for shoes. Each contestant will bowl two games.

Boot Hill Bowl set for Saturday

DODGE CITY, Kan. (AP)—Millikin University of Decatur, Ill., will depend on the passing of Jim Talston in the Big Blue's football game against Bethany College of Lindsborg, Kanl, Saturday in the fourth annual Boot Hill Bowl.

The game begins at 3 p.m. EST. Talston could have trouble passing against the Swedes, who have been designated the home team, Bethany is 20th in the nation in pass defense in National Association of Inter-collegiate Athletics statistics.

"We like to play more conservatively than does Millikin," says Bethany Coach Keith Rasmussen. "Our success will depend upon our ability to control the ball. We rely somewhat on our size and strength. Millikin has a pressure type defense, and they like to come up with the big play."

Bethany, co-champion of the Kansas College Athletic Conference, won seven and lost three during the regular season. Millikin, 7-2, tied for second in the College Conference of Illinois-Wisconsin.

Millikin has never appeared in a postseason game. Bethany, in its only previous postseason test, defeated Missouri Valley College in the 1971 Mineral Water Bowl.

Australia leads 1-0 after first round of Davis Cup

CLEVELAND (AP) — John Newcombe, bull-strong and bulldog tough, blunted a dramatic comeback by Stan Smith and battled to a 6-1, 3-6, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4 victory that sent Australia into a 1-0 lead in tennis' Davis Cup Challenge Round.

It was 3 hours, 7 minutes of high seesaw drama.

Smith tragically double-faulted at match point.

It was the first Challenge Round defeat in six years for the 6-foot-4 Smith of Sea Pines, S.C., and a bitter one. The loss turned the restructured Aussies into an imposing favorite for the most coveted trophy in the game.

The day's second singles match sent 27-year-old Tom Gorman of Seattle against Australia's Rod Laver, 35, a two time Grand Slam winner and one of the greatest players who ever lived.

This match will be followed by a doubles match Saturday pitting Smith and 22-year-old Erik van Dillen of San Mateo, Calif., against the awesome pairing of Newcombe and 39-year-old Ken Rosewall.

The best-of-five match series ends Sunday with a reverse pairing of the

The best-of-five match series ends Sunday with a reverse pairing of the opening singles. Gorman plays Newcombe and Smith takes on Laver in the series which will decide next year's residence of the 73-year-old bowl which is the symbol of international tennis supremacy.

A sparse crowd of about 3,000 watched the program from the cavernous, 53-year-old Public Hall, built for musical shows and concerts. It is the first time in history that the matches have been played indoors.
