Bill revives Civil Rights Commission

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan revived the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights on Wednesday after waiting until virtually the last moment to sign legislation reducing his power to influence the panel.

Reagan named the commission's last chairman, Clarence M. Pendleton, to serve on the reconstituted panel and said outgoing staff director Linda Chavez should resume her position, although her appointment is subject to concurrence by the full commission.

Technically, the commission died at midnight Tuesday. The bill signed by Reagan revives it, but with greater congressional — and less presidential — control over its makeup.

The 218 career employees of the commission, which for 26 years has prodded the nation to hold fast the battle against discrimination, had kept their offices open Wednesday to distribute the commission's final report and await Reagan's decision on whether to sign the bill or let it die by "pocket veto."

In its final report reviewing the course of civil rights during the commission's history, the panel said, "Most of the legislation necessary to guarantee civil rights to women, to the nation's racial, ethnic and religious minorities and to its older and handicapped persons has already been enacted," with the notable exception of the Equal Rights Amendment.

"In this context," the commissioners said in their 82-page report, "the commission believes the national interest compels the continuing existence of an independent, bipartisan federal agency mandated to appraise civil rights issues and progress throughout the nation and to recommend to the president and Congress, without regard to political considerations, steps it believes necessary to ensure equal opportunity for all Americans."

Weather, distance called factors

Pilot gives opinions on flight

By John Racine
Staff Writer

Capt. Curtis Welge, Air Illinois' chief pilot, testified Wednesday that — if he had been at the controls — he might have proceeded with Flight 710 despite the plane's faulty generator.

Flight 710 ended in a crash in which the three-member crew and seven passengers were killed Oct. 11 about 25 miles north of Carbondale.

Welge said, however, that the decision to continue would have been based on variables such as the weather. He testified for more than three hours during the second day of National Transportation Safety Board public hearings on the crash in which ten people died.

In a hypothetical situation presented by Air Illinois spokesman Richard Littell, Welge said he would have considered factors such as weather, winds, distance to the final destination as well as the condition of the plane's generators and batteries.

"With the information available at that time would you have made the decision to continue?" Littell asked.

"Considering several variables... such as the weather, I might have proceeded," said Welge, who has been chief pilot since March of 1983.

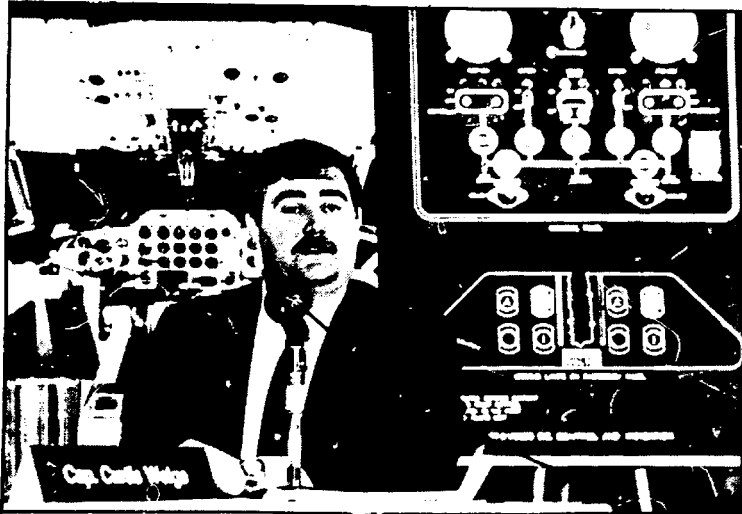

Welge also testified that he would not have entered the generator problems as "a mechanical discrepancy, but would have listed it as an in-flight abnormality."

That abnormality occurred during an Oct. 2 flight to Springfield when the right generator of the Hawker Siddeley 748 experienced some troubles, he said.

There were no further incidents with the plane's generators so he did not report the problem, he said, but he did inform the maintenance crew of the abnormality.

On Tuesday, Air Illinois pilot Craig MacArthur testified that the problems with the plane's generators began around Sept. 22, but were cleared up at least a week prior to the crash.

Previous testimony has indicated that generator failure crashed the plane's crash.

Also Wednesday, NTSB Chairman Jim Burnett granted a request by Littell that British Aerospace, the planes makers, provide a second set of drawings of the instrument panel so that it would reflect "an interpretation that rules out the possibility that the right generator went back on line."

Ron Schleede, NTSB chief investigator, said that the drawings were designed to aid the board and the public in understanding the pilot's point-of-view.

Burnett directed the Manchester, England firm to present another set of drawings, which show the right generator on line.

Littell also said that the NTSB should consider crew member's voice tones from the cockpit voice recorder.

The CVR tapes indicated to Welge that the pilots were in agreement on the actions that were being taken before the plane crashed, he said. "There were moments of levity in First Officer Frank Tudor's voice," he said.

Earlier Wednesday, airline President Roger Street told reporters that the times listed on the CVR transcript would not be correct. "From the information that they have listed, we can guess that the plane was flying anywhere from 50 to 1,500 mph," he said.

Street was critical of the pace at which the hearings were moving. "The snail's pace at which the hearings are proceeding is resulting in operational problems for Air Illinois," he said.

While one pilot was on the stand Tuesday, a flight was delayed two hours and four flights had to be canceled Wednesday.

In two days of public hearings the board heard testimony from only nine of the 24 scheduled witnesses. The hearings had been expected to conclude on Thursday but have been extended until at least Friday.

Street said that he has been pleased with the testimony offered so far by Air Illinois employees. "We were pleased with the testimony of most of our witnesses, who provided accurate and balanced accounts," he said.

He also announced that the regional carrier will have a human resources manager beginning Dec. 15. "This position has been created to allow all personnel the opportunity to candidly discuss any problems they perceive in any area of the airline's operation," he said.

The program is being started, he said, in light of information revealed by individuals with regard to Capt. Lester Smith. On Tuesday, fellow Air Illinois pilots testified that Smith, who was in charge of the plane at the time of the crash, sometimes took unnecessary risks.

Hearing focuses on teachers' salaries

By Phillip Fiorini
Staff Writer

About 20 professional educators agreed on Wednesday that if salaries for teachers in Illinois continue to be considerably lower than those in industry, the quality of teachers will suffer as a consequence.

Testifiers at the third of 12 hearings across the state by the Illinois Commission on the Improvement of Elementary and Secondary Education in the Student Center said that students are being drawn away from teaching because of the low salaries offered to teachers.

The 20-member commission, composed of both state legislators and educators, will present final recommendations to the General Assembly by the fall of 1984. The commission is chaired by two Democrats, Sen. Arthur Berman of Evanston and Rep. Richard Mulcahey of Durand.

Testifying before the commission, Sen. Kenneth Buzbee, of Carbondale, said the state must put a priority on funding education to attract the best students and to eliminate the inadequacies in teacher preparation.

"If we paid beginning teachers higher salaries, we wouldn't have to be worrying about teacher preparation courses in college," he said.

Buzbee said that last spring's state income tax increase, which will be phased out after this year, wasn't big enough. He said the state should've asked for a larger income tax increase and a decrease in local property taxes.

He said that if the state relied less on local property taxes to support education, people throughout the state wouldn't be "screaming."

"We have continued to rely on local property tax, but people are screaming about high property taxes and about the inadequacy in public education," Buzbee said.

Mulcahey said there's no question that teachers in Illinois public institutions are underpaid. He said this must be corrected by the General Assembly.

"If you want to get down to quality education, this issue has to be addressed," he said. "The good teachers are leaving the profession and many are going into private sectors."

However, Mulcahey said that he wasn't sure whether the solution would be to extend the tax increase or to ask local districts to raise taxes to pay teachers higher salaries.

"Putting that responsibility back onto the shoulders of the local school district, which will have to pick up the tab may not be the answer," he said, remarking that it may be difficult to convince districts that salaries need to be higher.

Mulcahey said he didn't

Bridge on Ho Chi Minh Trail in funding for rail relocation

By John Stewart
Staff Writer

A grant from the Federal Highway Administration will fund the design and construction of a pedestrian bridge across the path known as the Ho Chi Minh trail and U.S. Route 51, according to Eldon Gosnell, director of the Carbondale Railroad Relocation Project. The overpass is part of an on-going project which has already relocated the rail station and promises to create a 2-mile long, 72-foot wide by 30-foot deep depression of the tracks by 1990. This year's federal grant, which totaled $5.7 million, pays for 95 percent of the costs of design and construction of the bridge, and design of the depression.

Local sources make up the additional 5 percent of the costs, and SIU-C is paying for a quarter of 1 percent of the project, or approximately $142,000, according to Clarence "Doc" Dougherty, vice president for campus services. Dougherty said University utilities, such as electrical wires and steam tunnels, will have to be carried across the tracks and Rt. 51 on the underneath portion of the pedestrian bridge. The bridge will cross the road and tracks at the Ho Chi Minh trail, an unpaved path which runs between Wright Hall and the Physical Plant. Though plans are still being drawn, Dougherty said the bridge will be similar to the existing overpass between east campus and the main campus. Dougherty said the trail would be safer once the bridge is built. Dougherty also said he expects the path will be paved and lights will be installed. The bridge will be designed in 1984 and constructed in 1985, Gosnell said, but there is still much paperwork to be done before the overpass receives complete authorization by the Federal Highway Administration. Legislation is expected to be introduced next year in Congress to fund the track depression, the last phase of the rail project.

The depression will be a four-year project costing $60 million and construction would start in 1986 should funding legislation pass, Gosnell said.

Economic index up for 14th month

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government reported Wednesday that its main economic forecasting gauge rose 0.8 percent in October, the 14th consecutive monthly gain, prompting one analyst to say the economy is "lookin' good" for next year. Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said in a statement the 14-month string of gains in his department's Index of Leading Economic Indicators has been exceeded since World War II only by an unbroken 17 months of advances following the 1973-75 recession. "With the long upswing ... still in progress we can expect the current economic expansion to continue," Baldrige said. White House spokesman Larry Speakes said, "The recovery is on track and the leading indicators show substantial economic improvement is still ahead. Full steam ahead." Several private economists agreed, although Robert A. Gough Jr. of Data Resources Inc. saw some "risks that lurk in 1984" — notably the large federal budget deficit, continued weakness in some corporate balance sheets and the possibility of an increase in inflation. "Almost all systems are 'go' except for the foreign sector," he said, referring to a record foreign trade deficit of more than $70 billion that the United States is expected to run up this year. Ortner said that "beyond part or most of 1984, the expansion really isn't carved in stone" and that "if there is a single critical factor to monitor, it's inflation."

Galesburg to be site of new prison

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Galesburg, which lost a state mental health center this week, will gain a 750-bed prison, Gov. James R. Thompson announced Wednesday. The Republican governor said the state will build a medium-security prison in the western Illinois city. Thompson said the prison would cost $38 million to build and would employ about 425 people, excluding construction workers, at an annual payroll of about $10 million. It could be built within two years, he said. Thompson said several other communities under consideration offered similar settings, but the loss of the mental health center was a factor in his decision. "We wanted to ease the particular economic pain of the health center closing,"

Thompson said during an impromptu news conference at the governor's mansion. Building a new prison in Galesburg would help offset the impact of the closing of the Galesburg Mental Health Center and the loss of hundreds of jobs. Thompson said the new prison will be built on 80 acres of land, most of which will be purchased by the city.

Husband uncooperative in case

BLOOMINGTON (AP) — A 30-year-old businessman whose wife and three children were slain in their home last month has "refused" to cooperate with the investigation of the killings, McLean County's top prosecutor said Wednesday. "The very fact that he (David Hendricks) is not cooperating tends to continue to make us interested in him," State's Attorney Paul Dozier said. Hendricks has not been charged or identified as a suspect in the slayings of his wife, Susan, 30, and their children, Rebekah, 9; Grace, 8 and David, 5.

Fighting at Beirut airport continues

BEIRUT (AP) — Shellfire roused Beirut airport Wednesday, and Druse gunners threatened fierce attacks on Lebanese army positions at the terminal, harbor, power stations, schools and peacekeeping bases. No casualties were reported at the airport, where the U.S. Marine base came under shelling for a third day, but Druse attacks on army positions in Christian east Beirut Tuesday killed six civilians and wounded 30.

FBI releases profile of suspect

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — A newspaper editor and his family who were killed in their home probably were victims of an attack by a young man living within walking distance, according to a FBI psychological profile released Wednesday. But Police Chief David Riemen said police have no suspects matching the profile, which was requested following the Sept. 19 bludgeon slayings of Dan Osborne, 35, his wife Jane, 34, and their son Ben, 11. Only the couple's daughter Caroline, 2, survived.

Pathologist testifies in murder case

WHEATON (AP) — A pathologist testified Wednesday that unemployed rock musician Jeffrey Williams was shot in the back and not the chest, as the defense contends in the murder trial of a 22-year-old Peoria woman. The testimony came in the second day of prosecution's case in the trial of Roberta McCumber, who contends she shot her live-in boyfriend May 20 in self-defense during an argument.

Hitchhikers were murderer's prey

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Young men who hitchhike at night on major highways between Indianapolis and Chicago were part of the gay community because many of the victims were homosexuals or hustlers.

Initially, police thought a possible link between the slayer and some or all of the 13 victims found in Illinois and Indiana was the gay community because many of the victims were homosexuals or hustlers.

However, police developed the new profile because some of the highway killer's victims were not homosexuals, an investigator told the Indianapolis Star.

slayer lured his victims with a sexual proposition, offering them either $100 in cash or placidyl, a hypnotic sleep-inducing depressant prescribed for insomnia, said the investigator who asked not to be identified.

Police said people ingesting placidyl become physically weak through loss of muscle response, which would explain why the victims have shown a lack of defensive wounds.

State police said that a man charged in one of the slayings was near the grave sites of four other victims when one of the four was reported missing.

Larry W. Eyster was in Lake Village early this year when Michael D. Bauer of Chicago was first reported missing, Indiana State Police Detective Sgt. Ted Knorr said during a daylong meeting of 35 law enforcement officers and prosecutors working on the case.

However, Knorr stopped short of naming Eyster as a solid suspect in the four deaths.

"I think I have to be careful and not jump to any unwarranted conclusions," he said.

Bauer, a 28-year-old pizza deliveryman, is the only one of the four bodies found Oct. 19 at the Newton County site to be identified.

foresee the Legislature approving an extension of the income tax package.

Bruce Appleby, director of general studies in English at SIU-C, said the state should mandate 12 years of language arts instruction through both the elementary and secondary education levels.

Appleby, also a member of the state Association of Teachers of English, said the task of public education is to develop the communicative skills of students to make them informed citizens in society. He said this should be "the first and most essential goal in education."

"Elementary teachers must be aware of the centrality of the English language to what we do," he said, adding that teachers must be freed from non-teaching duties, such as babysitting students for parents after the school day has ended.

Appleby said "outstanding teachers" should be recognized through merit pay, adding that there is also a need to provide teachers with opportunities where they can be paid for improving their teaching and writing skills.

He said that until teaching becomes a financially attractive profession to enter, the brightest students will shy away from it. D. John McIntyre, a professor at the SIU School of Medicine in Springfield, said higher education in Illinois has failed to provide the proper formal training for future teachers and that the requirements for granting teaching certificates should be upgraded.

"All universities should implement internships for, perhaps, an extended fifth year," said McIntyre, also a member of the state Association of Teacher Educators.

He also said graduate students teaching at universities should be supervised by "field experience trainers" before receiving their certificates.

Judith Ivarie, a professor of special education at Eastern Illinois University, said the commission should try to determine how the state can recruit, educate and reward good teachers.

Ivarie said that practicum center programs should be established to determine whether students are qualified and have the proper articulation skills to teach.

Teacher-rewards on board agenda

Rewarding outstanding teachers and making possible curriculum additions are among items to be discussed at a Carbondale Elementary School District 95 Board of Education meeting Thursday night.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. following an hour-long executive session that will start at 7 p.m., part of the board's new policy of holding executive sessions prior to regular meetings and limiting them to an hour. The meeting will be held at the Brush Administrative Center at 400 W. Monroe.

The teacher rewards and class additions were issues in the board elections held earlier this month. Newly appointed Board President Donald Garner had earlier expressed his support for adding foreign language classes to the elementary curriculum and enhancing math and science classes. He also said he wants to develop some form of merit rewards for teachers, providing a thorough teacher evaluation system could be devised.

Board Superintendent Bill Thomas said there have been indications that other board members may support such changes.

The board will also examine compiling a directory of community resources available to the district and discuss rotating the bimonthly meetings among locations.

Opinion &amp; Commentary

Welcome, Mr. Dixon

CARBONDALE'S new city manager, William Dixon, takes office Thursday and we extend our welcome.

Dixon has big footsteps to fill as he takes over for Carroll Fry, who presided over city hall for 11 years. Fry came to Carbondale when it was financially broke and still suffering from the scars left by the Vietnam War protests.

Fry reined in the runaway budget, restored confidence in city government and has left Dixon a competent, professional city staff.

HE ALSO, however, has left the new city manager with a public relations chore. For although Carroll Fry has certainly left the city in better shape than he found it, diplomacy was not his strong suit and many people, particularly residents of the city's predominately black northeast side, feel alienated from city government.

Dixon's performance as manager remains to be seen, of course, but the initial impression he gives is a good one.

He has stressed his belief in the need for a team effort in the decision-making process and has said that it is important for the manager to listen to the views of all city residents. This philosophy could go a long way in improving the city's image in the eyes of Carbondale's black residents.

THAT ATTITUDE should also help Dixon as he faces some major problems that confront the city. He inherits a social service program that runs out of federal funds this year and a conference center project that is 15 days from going down the drain with a whirlpool of city funds.

But these problems are certainly not insurmountable and in looking for solutions Dixon has another attribute that should prove invaluable. Like his predecessor, Dixon has said that it is important for a city manager to retain his sense of humor.

In a city such as Carbondale, where at times the unusual is the norm, the ability to laugh is often the only thing that keeps people sane.

We wish William Dixon the best of luck and many chuckles to come.

Countries of the third world being raped by superpowers

The world is entirely more complex than the United States vs. the Soviet Union and communism vs. democracy. Grenada and Lebanon are but tiny incidents in the big picture. Third world countries are being raped by the superpowers.

Companies are abusing international law and have no social responsibilities. Products that are deemed unsafe for human consumption here are being marketed to third world countries. Companies are continually investing money in the apartheid government of South Africa where all non-whites are treated as second class citizens.

We are a community of men sharing limited resources and we all want more than our share. We must either learn to co-exist with one another or we are doomed to war with one another. We should concentrate on our similarities and shared accomplishments. At the Olympics, athletes compete, but also share a certain comradeship. We admire each other's culture through art, music and science.

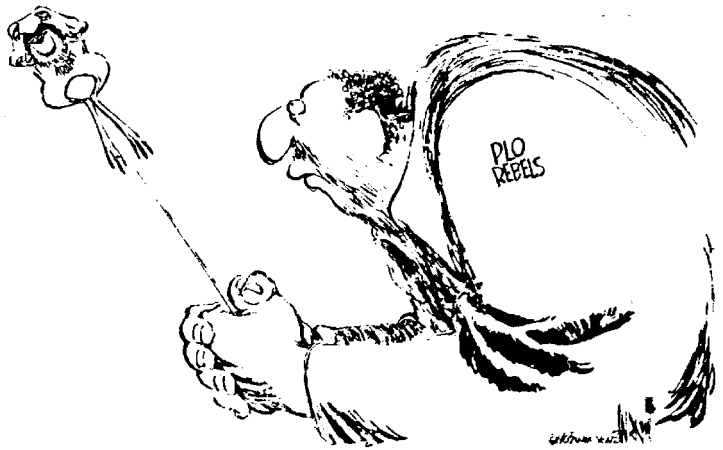

The greatest accomplishment to date is the United Nations, where we send our greatest and, supposedly, most brilliant minds to discuss peace. The truth is our representatives spend more time on rhetoric, propaganda and the execution of their veto powers while mothers, fathers, sons, daughters, brothers, sisters, husbands, wives, and sweethearts are being killed.

There is no peace keeping as long as the superpowers do not agree. The United States and allies are peacekeeping in Lebanon. The Soviet Union and allies are peacekeeping in Afghanistan.

No one has the solution to the world's problems. Illinois and Moscow have more universities than a lot of little countries. If we study the problems, can we not come up with a solution?

I may not be as brilliant as a lot of people. But I will guarantee that killing one another, building more weapons and selling more arms is not the solution.

We're warned, coaxed and fined but Throwaway Society thrives

By Karen Torry
Staff Writer

"OURS is a wretched society."

From my vantage point, it seemed a strange remark for my friend to make. I stood hundreds of feet above civilization on a bluff in La Rue Pine Hills, an area of Shawnee National Forest near Grand Tower. In the distance, as the sun was setting, I could see the Mississippi River winding along the horizon, a stretch of railroad track, flat Southern Illinois farm land dotted with barns and silos.

The real world seemed light years away. The weekend was a calculated escape from all that: deadlines, textbooks, noise and people. But in his hand my friend held a bagful of reminders of the real world and how "civilized" people seem to feel about their planet.

BEER CANS, soda bottles, empty hot dog packages, assorted other memorabilia from our Throwaway Society—they filled a five-pound ice bag and my friend had only scratched the surface of the trash left behind, just around our campsite, by people who presumably had come there to get back to nature.

And that's just one example of the arrogant, "ownership" attitude that people, particularly Americans, have toward the earth. They love the seashore, the forests, the mountains—but on their terms, which means they want to whoop it up, have a good time and leave the mess for somebody else to clean up.

THE PROBLEM is that there's no maid service in the Shawnee National Forest. There aren't any bus boys to come around and collect the empties after the campers have all passed out around the camp fire. And, unfortunately, six packs of Budweiser aren't biodegradable.

The problem is that there's no maid service in the Shawnee National Forest. There aren't any bus boys...

Another problem is that few people seem to think about any of this. We've all seen the highway signs telling us that we can be fined up to $500 for littering. We've seen the television commercials with the little owl urging us to "give a hoot," and the garbage cans with signs asking us to "pitch in." But somehow those messages don't seem to register as we toss our cigarette butts out the car window rather than stub them out in the ash tray, drop a candy wrapper on the sidewalk instead of sticking it in our pocket, break our beer bottles on the cliffs at Little Grand Canyon because it's too much trouble to carry them back to a trash barrel.

AND NO ONE thinks about what happens to those wrappers and bottles and cans. Americans have a vague image in their minds of a mystical place SIU-C Forestry Professor Gerald Gaffney calls Away. Away is out of sight and out of mind, a convenient place for the culprits to store any brief pangs of guilt they might feel, along with their disposables.

But Away doesn't exist. And all that trash just lies there on the forest floor. Perhaps it is covered by fallen leaves in autumn or snow in winter, but it's there, ruining the neighborhoods of the millions of other forms of life that we humans forget also exist on this planet.

THE BIGGEST problem is that there's little we can do to force people to take those few extra steps to the trash bin or suffer through a trek in the woods without a bottle of their favorite cold libation. You can bet that littering isn't a priority in the Reagan-run Interior Department, even minus James Watt.

The best we can do is try to make people think. After all, isn't thinking what makes us superior to all the creatures living in the Shawnee National Forest?

Whose truth do we have a right to know?

I read with interest your piece entitled "Grenada: a debacle; Reagan is wrong" on Nov. 10. You state that "...the invasion of Grenada ... was actually a crushing defeat for freedom of the press and the public's right to know the truth." The editorial proceeds to lambast the Reagan administration for its attempt "to manipulate public opinion for his personal gain."

These statements lead me to ask these questions: What motivates this careful attention to press freedom and the peoples' right to know the truth? And whose truth do we have this right to know?

I submit that the American press corps has vested interest in its crusade to be the vanguard of the peoples' right to know. Its business is to sell news. Public indifference to newsmakers is bad business. What motivates people to take notice? Bad news. Sensational news. And cynical news. That's what the publishers have learned. The press has an economic interest in stimulating the "peoples' right to know."

Editorial boards salivate at the chance to make issue on the question of the First Amendment and the elusive "peoples' right to know" concept. The Reagan administration attempted to take its side of the story directly to the American people through news conferences, key government officials, film coverage, etc. The attempt to bypass the ever-growing subjective and biased press in an effort to let the American people decide for themselves their own views frightens the journalistic image-makers, i.e. editorial writers. This valid threat to the media elite information monopolists, routinely leads the press to cry, "Save the First Amendment!"

The people have, in fact, judged the rescue mission as an invasion, yes invasion, worthy of support. Several factors cannot be ignored in the peoples' decision-making process:

— The plea of local countries for U.S. assistance in restoring a stable democratic government ravaged by a murderous few.

— The need to stem the tide of Cuban Marxist revolution exportation, sympathetic to the designs of Moscow, in our own backyards.

— The chance to change the U.S. paper-tiger image, with demonstrated U.S. capability and the will to use it.

This time the American people have decided for themselves whose truth to believe. Press relations have deteriorated to such a nadir not only with the White House, but with the American people themselves, that they seek the truth in spite of the press. No great cries of press support from the grassroots for relief from the Reagan oppression. The press should speak less of its determination to fight for the "peoples' right to know," own up the facts and recognize the capacity of the people to "know the truth." We're smarter than you think.

— G. Randy LaCava, Carbondale.

Singing guitarists set for Thursday performance

Singing guitarists Suzy Bogguss and Lisa Smith will perform their unique combination of musical styles in the second coffeehouse performance of the season at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Old Main Room of the Student Center.

Although singing guitarists are often said to be "a dime a dozen," this is not the case of these two young performers. Whether performing as a duo or as soloists, Lisa Smith and Suzy Bogguss captivate audiences with their sensitive interpretations, strong vocals, interesting harmonies; and refreshing repertoire.

The duo resists categorization of their music in any particular genre, but combine influences from folk, blues and country, with contemporary, old-time and traditional styles. It is their unique ability to combine all these influences that makes their performances exciting.

Bogguss and Smith have entertained throughout the Midwest and Northeast in such well-known clubs as Charlotte's Web, Orphan's and No Exit Cafe in the Chicago area; the Coffeehouse Extempore in Minneapolis; and The Speak Easy in Greenwich Village.

Admission is free to students and $1.50 for the public. Free International Coffee will be served.

Fired male reporter files sex bias lawsuit

WHEATON (AP) — A man contending he was fired from his job as a reporter because of his sex has filed a $6 million damage suit against his former newspaper.

The suit on behalf of Richard Sorci was filed Tuesday in Circuit Court against the Wheaton Daily Journal, which serves an area about 30 miles west of Chicago.

The suit seeks $5 million in damages and $1 million in compensatory damages, contending that women at the newspaper, both full-time and part-time employees, were paid higher wages.

The suit also alleges that men working at the paper were not compensated for overtime.

But city editor Ann Davis said she regularly works "80 hours a week" without compensation. Said Ms. Davis: "As I recall, Mr. Sorci never worked 80 hours for as long as he was here."

Sorci's lawyer says Sorci is now employed at a different, unnamed, paper.

Schnuck's chain 'considering' locating store in Carbondale

Schnuck's, a St. Louis-based retail grocery chain is considering placing a store on the east side of Carbondale, according to a spokesperson for the company.

"Considering" is as far as the plans have gone so far. Where exactly, or if and when the store will be built is still indefinite.

Schnucks, with company offices located in the St. Louis area, currently operates 61 stores in Illinois, Missouri, Kentucky and Indiana, employing 6,500 people, the spokesperson said.

The typical Schnuck's store includes an in-store bakery, delicatessen and floral shop, she said. The company also has "super stores" with a pharmacy, cosmetic and fresh seafood departments.

School racial bias faces court test

WASHINGTON — A Supreme Court decision last May upholding the government's power to deny tax breaks to racially discriminatory schools, a political bombshell at the time, has had little impact so far.

But the stage is set for a more far-reaching decision in a case that has generated little notoriety.

In it, the high court will decide sometime in 1984 whether private citizens can prod the government to use its power, and prod it to move more forcefully against private schools that may discriminate.

A lawyer representing black parents from seven states — Tennessee, Louisiana, South Carolina, Virginia, Alabama, Illinois and Massachusetts — said winning that case "would hand us the bat we need" to force the government to help.

In May, the justices repudiated the Reagan administration by ruling, 8-1, that the Internal Revenue Service may revoke or withhold tax exemptions from schools with racially discriminatory policies.

The administration had argued that Congress never gave the IRS such authority.

The IRS denied tax breaks to Bob Jones University in Greenville, S.C., which forbids interracial dating by its students, and the Goldsboro Christian Schools in Goldsboro, N.C., which had refused to admit blacks. In both instances, the racial policies were based on religious beliefs.

President Reagan said after May's ruling, "We will obey the law." But in practice, the decision has had only minimal impact.

Officials for both Bob Jones University and the Goldsboro schools say they have suffered no significant decline in donations, even though contributors may no longer claim their gifts as tax deductions.

"Things are pretty much the same," said Archie L. Hines, chairman of the board of the Goldsboro schools. Contributions have not slackened because donors still "believe in the Lord's work," he said.

The Second Baptist Church in Goldsboro, which runs the schools, changed its policy this summer and now says blacks are welcome. But none has applied for admission, and the schools, which include grades kindergarten through 12th, do not intend to re-apply for tax exemption.

Asked why the school changed its policy, Hines said the church is carrying out God's word. "God is in control," he said.

Richard Smith, a spokesman for Bob Jones University, said the college, which has an enrollment of 6,000 students, may have to undergo some "belt tightening" in the future. But so far donations have not dropped, he said.

Smith said the university relies on student tuition — now about $2,000 a year per student — to pay operating costs. Contributions are used for expansion and improvements on the university's campus.

Both Bob Jones and the Goldsboro schools face heavy back Social Security and unemployment taxes, perhaps running to hundreds of thousands of dollars, because of the Supreme Court decision.

But officials at both institutions say they received no orders to pay up.

"We've had no meetings, no discussions" with the IRS in the five months since the court ruled, Smith said. IRS officials refused to discuss the potential tax liability of the schools, or when they will be ordered to pay.

Current reports from Bob Jones University and the Goldsboro schools contrast sharply with earlier warnings from officials of religiously affiliated schools. They had said losing tax exemptions could mean financial disaster for many institutions.

Bob Jones and Goldsboro lost their tax-exempt status, as have more than 100 private schools since the current IRS policy was adopted in 1970, because they openly admitted policies found to be racially discriminatory.

But the IRS essentially accepts the word of a school in deciding whether it qualifies for an exemption. The only required proof of good intention is that the school state publicly that it does not discriminate against blacks.

The only exception to that IRS policy is in Mississippi, where a federal judge said schools must do more than assert they do not discriminate. Five Mississippi schools facing the loss of their tax-exempt status have appealed the ruling.

Proponents of a more aggressive policy say the government should infer discriminatory intent if, for example, the founding of an all-white private school coincides with court-ordered integration.

The Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law helps represent parents of 25 black students attending public schools in seven states who want to force the government to take such evidence into account.

A federal appeals court here ruled in their favor in 1981. It gave private citizens a broad right to file lawsuits aimed at compelling the government to examine tax exemptions of private schools.

Norman Chachkin, a member of the Washington-based lawyers' group, said the ruling provides a powerful weapon to challenge tax breaks for alleged discriminators.

If the ruling is upheld by the Supreme Court "a school would have to demonstrate that it's truly open" to all races, he said.

The justices agreed to review the appeals court decision, and the Reagan administration is now urging that the decision be overturned.

The black parents say there may be 3,500 racially segregated private academies in the nation with an enrollment exceeding 750,000 pupils. They are among some 20,000 schools with tax-exempt status, the black parents contend.

But the Reagan administration says the parents lack legal standing because they have suffered no injury themselves "at the hands of the private schools whose tax exemptions they challenge, and no injury at the hands of the government other than their disapproval of government practices."

Big man's business weathers civil war

SANTA TECLA, El Salvador (AP) — At 6 feet 7 inches, American businessman Phil Hand is a big presence in this small, war-torn land, and not just because of his height.

Dozens of other Americans conducting business here and many well-to-do Salvadorans abandoned El Salvador when leftist rebels and rightist death squads intensified their campaigns of urban terrorism in 1980.

The 36-year-old Hand decided to stay despite the civil war. In 1981, he invested much of his savings in a small canned food company and took over as its manager.

"People think I'm a crazy gringo for investing in El Salvador. My American and Salvadoran friends questioned my judgment," he said, smiling. "But I had a lot of faith that in the long run the Salvadorans would solve their problems."

In 1982 the Committee of Salvadoran Exporters recognized Hand's efforts by naming him exporter of the year, the first foreigner so honored.

Hand, originally from the San Francisco Bay area, arrived in El Salvador in 1975 as an accountant with a British tobacco company after having spent five years with the firm in Honduras.

Once here, he fell in love with the country's beaches and lakes, its year-round warm weather and, most of all, its "pleasant, hard-working" people. Knowing the tobacco company would transfer him one day, he began looking for a way to stay.

The opportunity came in January 1981 when he and a Salvadoran business associate bought a small canning plant, renamed it Bon Appetit and expanded production.

Besides meeting local demand for specialty items no longer imported because of lack of dollars, the company also began exporting palm hearts, baby corn, ketchup and other products. Most of the exports go to the United States.

"It was the right moment to do it. I'm a firm believer that every problem presents opportunities. You just have to find them," Hand said.

But Hand admitted there are times when he has doubts.

"At times I ask myself what I'm doing here — wouldn't it be easier to be an accountant for General Motors in the States?"

Those thoughts usually come after his plant has been shut down all day by a power blackout or when he's having difficulty getting the dollars needed to import bottles and cans.

Guerrilla attacks on the nation's power grid are part of the rebels' campaign to sabotage the economy. The country is also strapped for foreign exchange to finance imports.

Bon Appetit's gross sales this year will be around $800,000, twice last year's figure, but the net profit after three years is less than $5,000.

"What I'd like to do is get it into a nice, medium-sized, well-managed company. I don't have plans to be super-rich. I enjoy what I'm doing right now. I'd just like to be able to live off it," he said.

Hand, with a neatly trimmed beard and thinning, sandy-colored hair, has a lean, athletic build. He keeps in shape by playing in an industrial basketball league.

His participation in the league is a sign of the close involvement with the Salvadoran people that sets him apart from other foreign businessmen. Another sign is his marriage in October to a Salvadoran.

"I thought by staying around I would encourage Salvadorans to stay," he said.

He also takes pride in his company's small contribution to improving the war-wrecked economy.

"It gives me great satisfaction that we've got 35 to 50 people working — there's so much unemployment here," he said.

Hand has never been the target of any threats and only twice has he had run-ins with the leftist guerrillas who have been fighting for four years to overthrow the U.S.-backed conservative government.

Both times occurred at roadblocks outside the capital. Both times he made a "contribution" to the rebel cause and was allowed to pass.

"I don't take a fatalistic attitude, but at the same time you have to maintain a certain faith that things will work out for the best," he said.

For Hand, that faith means going out to dinner at night without looking over his shoulder to see who's following him. It means carrying no gun and not using an armored car.

"There are no guards around here, as you can see," he said, pointing towards the interior of his warehouse in this mountain town of 67,000 people seven miles southwest of the capital.

He said, however, that the atmosphere of violence that pervades El Salvador touches everyone, himself included.

"We've got a lot of very hurt people here. We have people who've had their whole families massacred. They're bound to feel vengeful," he said. "Even if peace comes tomorrow, there are going to be a lot of problems."

Library computer user classes discontinued by low attendance

By Sheila Rogers
Staff Writer

Classes offered by Morris Library to teach students and faculty to use its new Library Computer System have been discontinued for the remainder of the semester because of low attendance. a librarian said Wednesday.

The classes will be offered again next semester, though, said Catherine Martinsek, chairwoman of the Library Information and Orientation Committee.

The class sessions, offered throughout the semester by the LIOC, have not had a satisfactory attendance rate, she said. Each session has usually been attended by two or three people she said. Eight people could be accommodated a session.

She said the classes were highly publicized on campus by putting up signs in the library, on the computers and by placing ads in the Daily Egyptian.

The total attendance for the semester is about 55 students and faculty.

"People have been smiling and enjoying the sessions, they're pleased with what they are discovering," Martinsek said.

The $370,000 system, financed by a two-year Library Resources Sharing Grant through the Higher Education Cooperation Act, was installed this semester to enable students to locate materials from the 22 libraries in the system statewide.

The libraries range from University of Illinois to smaller colleges in the Chicago area.

The 13 terminals are used to find books for students that are already taken out, or that Morris library might not have or books that are misplaced, Catherine Martinsek, chairperson of the Library Information and Orientation Committee, said.

Material holdings from the central card and undergraduate catalog are listed together. With the proper entry of the author's name, title and call number, the material can be located through the computer.

Once the requested book is located, the person must fill out an interlibrary loan request form. The interlibrary loan department then runs the request through their computer. After that, the book is packaged from the library that the book is being borrowed from and sent to Morris Library. The process takes a few days.

Next semester, the classes will be offered Monday through Friday from 4 to 5 p.m., on the first floor by the undergraduate card catalog. Three LIOC members will teach the class.

Martinsek hopes to see more of a response.

"You don't have to have the sessions to learn about the computer," she said. "Things that you'll learn the hard way will come easier with the session. You can type without taking a typing course, but it takes a while to get there."

Metro jobless rate drops again; retailing credited

CHICAGO (AP) — Increased hiring by retail stores and the start of school contributed last month to the fourth consecutive monthly decline in unemployment in metropolitan areas of Illinois, according to the Bureau of Employment Security.

The bureau released figures Tuesday showing the Quad Cities area with the highest unemployment rate, followed by Kankakee, Peoria, Decatur and Rockford. The Champaign area had the lowest unemployment rate.

"The improvement has been steady the past few months," said bureau spokesman Francisco Garcia.

"Schools began in October and there was scattered hiring in the retail trades," he said. "Non-academic workers were added throughout the state university system.

"We'll see further pickup in general during the Christmas season."

The 9.7 percent overall jobless rate in Illinois was the first month of single-digit unemployment since March 1982, when it was 9.9 percent, the bureau said.

Petition asks prompt settlement of Brach candy heiress's estate

CHICAGO (AP) — Helen Vorhees Brach, a candy company heiress who mysteriously vanished in 1977, should be declared legally dead and her estate — valued at up to $35 million — should be distributed, a court petition says.

Most of the estate would go for the care of homeless dogs. The petition was filed on behalf of Charles Vorhees, Mrs. Brach's closet surviving relative and the named beneficiary of a $500,000 trust fund established in the widow's will. Vorhees is a retired railroad worker living in Ohio. Mrs. Brach, who lived on a seven-acre estate in north suburban Glenview, vanished in February 1977, after she visited the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. Her chauffeur said she returned home for a few days and then headed to Florida but no one else has reported seeing her since she left the clinic.

Reward offers of up to $200,000 — which expired about two years ago — have turned up psychics, reports of sightings of the candy heiress, and calls and letters from Europe to South America, but no clues leading to Mrs. Brach, said James Leaton, the attorney who filed the petition Monday.

"You have one of the wealthiest women in the world missing," Leaton said Wednesday. "I think it would have been satisfactory (to have her declared dead) after six months. I think it's ample (time)."

Leaton's petition says evidence is clear Mrs. Brach is dead, noting she was not the type of woman who would disappear without telling friends or relatives of her whereabouts.

"She had a lovely association with her brother and his family and many friends," Leaton said in a telephone interview. "She enjoyed her money. She enjoyed spending it. She enjoyed living."

Alumni authors showcased

By Ed Foley
Student Writer

How can a collection of books that includes everything from paperback romance novels to behavioral science texts be called specialized?

It can if every book in it was either authored, co-authored, edited or photographed by former SIU-C students.

Such a collection can be found in the Student Center's Office of Alumni Services, on the second floor.

Four-hundred-thirty-eight titles make up this varied library, organized and maintained by Robert Odaniell, director of alumni services, and his secretary, Nadine Lucas.

The collection, according to Odaniell, was begun sometime in the early '60s, although no one is certain of the year.

Since then, Alumni Services has received a more-or-less steady flow of published materials from authors, publishers and private donors. Odaniell said his office actively seeks out books from alumni through newsletters and mailing lists.

The collection may be a tribute to the variety of education offered at SIU-C. It is concentrated in no particular area. There is something in the library to interest anyone.

Subject areas include volumes on international politics, law, the arts, short fiction and more.

Southern Illinois History is well represented. Titles include, "Taylors at Devil's Kitchen," by Noel M. Taylor, E.G. Lentz's history of SIU-C, "Seventy-five Years in Retrospect, 1874-1949" and "Illinois in the Civil War," by Victor Hicken.

There are also some prominent names among the many volumes. Dick Gregory, a 1956 graduate, is represented in the collection with, "No More Lies," "From the Back of the Bus," and "Nigger," next to Walt Frazier's autobiography, "Clyde." Frazier graduated in 1967.

This library features what may well be the most lucid title for a self-help book, "How to Help Yourself," by Robert J. Hasting. Bestselling author Leo Buscaglia's "Living, Loving and Learning," was edited and photographed by Steven Short, a 1973 graduate.

"The Travels of James McPheeter," a 1958 novel about a father and son's journey westward during the 1849 Gold Rush, won a Pulitzer prize for Robert Lewis Taylor, a 1954 graduate. Novelist Robert Coover is represented by his book, "The Public Burning," He graduated in 1953.

A collection this varied wouldn't be complete without a book that explains why we laugh. It's there. It's called "Understanding Laughter," by Charles R. Gruner, a 1955 graduate.

Alumni have also made contributions to the romance novel. Lucy Phillips Stewart, a 1940 graduate, writes them.

County judge upholds death penalty

BELLEVILLE (AP) — A St. Clair County judge Wednesday turned down motions to set aside the death penalty or withdraw the guilty plea of a man on death row for the June 19 slayings of a Mascoutah man and his fiancée.

Chief Criminal Court Judge John J. Hoban rejected motions made by Charles Thomas Walker, 43, of Fayetteville. Walker had pleaded guilty to two counts of murder in the deaths of Kevin Paule, 21, and his fiancée, Sharon Winker, 23. Each was found tied to a tree and shot in the head at a fishing spot on Silver Creek, just outside of Mascoutah.

The Illinois Supreme Court is scheduled to review Walker's case on Thursday. Illinois law requires automatic review by the court of any death sentence.

Walker told authorities he had only planned to rob the couple but decided to kill them after Paule recognized him.

Walker confessed to the crimes in a written statement given to St. Clair County Sheriff Mearl Justus and Lt. James Lay shortly after his return to Illinois after being arrested in Colorado July 16, authorities said.

The defendant had exercised his option to allow a jury, not the judge alone, determine whether the death sentence would be imposed for the murders.

Inter-Greek Council plans Yule party

Operation Merry Christmas, a party hosted by the Inter-Greek Council for children in the Carbondale area, will be held at 1:30 Friday on the fourth floor video lounge of the Student Center.

About 60 to 65 children between the ages of 3 and 5 are expected to attend the party, according to Bob Craig, IGC chairman. IGC has been hosting the party for the past six years. "A Sesame Street Christmas" is the theme this year.

Santa Claus will be among the guests at the party. He will distribute gifts to the children. They will also see a movie and a puppet show, hear a story, play games and have refreshments.

Gift of tools given to STC

Tool-manufacturing equipment valued at more than $200,000 will be given to SIU-C by Colt Industries' Elox Division.

The machinery will be used by School of Technical Careers tool and manufacturing technology students and will be installed during spring semester.

The gift was secured by the SIU Foundation and Harry Soderstrom, coordinator of the tool and manufacturing technology program, and Dorothy Bleyer, STC assistant dean.

Elox is providing a $150,000 electronic discharge machine described as a state-of-the-art wire cut machine used in tool and die manufacturing. Also promised by Elox is the computer that drives the electronic machine, as well as two weeks of training for two instructors; an audio-visual series to be used as a training package; and, all expenses and labor required to move and set up the equipment.

"Our students now work with a 15-year-old machine," said STC Dean Harry Miller. "But technology in the field is changing rapidly. We need state-of-the-art equipment to educate our people."

Congratulations. You've just become a better photographer.

No need to change your equipment or your technique...just try the new family of Kodacolor VR films.

Advances in color print film technology can help you get the best color pictures ever from Kodak films. Try all four new films in your 35 mm camera...and be a better photographer!

Kodak redefines sharpness. Kodacolor VR 100 film is the sharpest color negative film we've ever made.

Ideal for big blowups with top quality.

Great for close-ups, anything where detail is important.

Kodak redefines versatility. Kodacolor VR 200 film has all the sharpness, fine grain, and color saturation you got with Kodacolor II film—with twice the speed. Great all-around performer. Kodak redefines fast action.

Kodacolor VR 400 film has wide exposure latitude, plus color that's even more saturated on undeveloped areas, and grain that's even finer than Kodacolor 400 film.

Ideal for stopping sports action, even with long telephoto lenses.

Kodak redefines low light.

Kodacolor VR 1000 film is the fastest color print film in the world, for good pictures in low light, and when you need very high shutter speeds to stop action. An advanced, new emulsion technology enables the film to capture more light without the grain and loss in sharpness you'd normally expect with such a fast film! Try all four new films...and see all the ways you can be a better photographer!

SIU-C police force dwindles; state funding seen as reason

By Joyce Vonderheide
Staff Writer

A budget that hasn't increased with inflation has led to a 40 percent decrease in the size of the SIU-C police force over the past 12 years.

The largest security force of 75 officers was employed in 1971, Dan Lane, SIU-C Security administrative assistant, said. Now 43 officers are employed.

The present staff has 10 officers in supervisory positions, such as director, captain and sergeant, down from 18 in such positions in 1971, Lane said.

One reason for the decrease in officers is that officers who have retired or left the staff have not been replaced. Lane estimated that 50 to 60 officers have retired or left since 1971, but only about 15 new officers have been hired.

Lane said the police staff has been operating on the same amount of state funding for five years. In 1971 the state budget was $1,013,020. The state budget now is $1,144,072. Of that amount, $987,022 is for salaries. The remaining funds pay for such items as car rental and gasoline.

More of the state money has had to be paid for salaries in recent years, leaving less for other purposes. In 1971, an officer's monthly salary was $730, Lane stated, while the present monthly rate is $1,650.

"We are reaching a point where expenditures will pass income," Lane said.

With the loss of officers has come an increase in campus crime. In 1971, 1,821 total criminal offenses were reported, while in 1982, 1,774 crimes were reported. However, Lane said, in 1971 SIU-C Police patrolled area trailer courts and off-campus dormitories in addition to campus. Now off-campus crime is seldom recorded by SIU-C Police.

If students at Lewis Park Apartments or the Wall Street Quadrangles call campus police, they are told to call the Carbondale Police Department. Limiting the patrol to campus reduces the work load for campus police and crimes reports are not duplicated, Lane said.

Lane said six to seven officers patrol campus at night, with a lieutenant and sergeant also on duty. Two to four student officers also patrol until 11 p.m.

To save gasoline expenses, more patrol cars have six- and four-cylinder engines than in the past, said Bob Harris, acting director of the security office.

Credit offered for travel-study

By Belinda Edmondson
Staff Writer

The Division of Continuing Education is offering 10 travel-study programs, most of them abroad, for the 1984 summer term.

Each year, the travel-study program allows students to gain experience by traveling in other countries. This year SIU-C instructors will take their classes to France, Japan, Hong Kong, Scandinavia, Italy, Greece, China, Mexico and the southwest states of America.

James Osberg, travel-study coordinator at the Division of Continuing Education, said participants in the program can earn up to six hours of credit.

"Credit is variable, depending on the class," said Osberg. "However, it's standard for a course which provides 16 hours of instruction a week to offer 3 credits. If a student takes more than one class, he can get up to 6 hours of credit, which is the average course load for summer."

Last summer, 310 students participated in the program. Osberg said a minimum of 12 students is required to be enrolled in a travel-study course, though a trip to China last summer yielded only two or three students because of the higher prices involved.

"It's a very good deal really. You could never get such prices in a tourist package," said Osberg of the China trip. "The student pays $1,100 or $1,200 for the six weeks, which includes food, hotels, touring and instruction. The airplane fare is under $2,500, which is good."

The average cost of travel-study programs abroad is approximately $700, but students who receive financial aid may apply the same grants to the costs of the travel program, as long as they are registered for the minimum credit hours acceptable for the summer term.

Departments taking part in the program include the School of Music, which will conduct piano and music study in France; the Special Education Department, which will conduct special education study in Japan, Hong Kong and Scandinavia; the French Department, which will conduct a "cultural immersion" project in Paris; the School of Design, which will teach design education in Rome; the Philosophy Department, which will conduct studies in Greece; the Radio and Television Department, which will create a television program in Mexico; and the Botany Department, which will study ecosystems in the southwest United States.

Congress' support of Taiwan disturbs U.S.-China relations

PEKING (AP) — Two measures in the U.S. Congress that support Taiwan have disturbed Chinese-U.S. relations and cast some doubt on President Reagan's plans to visit China in April.

Reagan is expected to sign an appropriations bill, passed by Congress in mid-November, which backs Communist China's application to join the Asian Development Bank. But the bill also says that Taiwan — which still claims to be the legitimate government of all China — should remain a full member of the bank.

The vote prompted a formal protest from the Chinese government on Nov. 25, the second in a week, warning of "grave consequences" for relations with the United States.

The first time U.S. Ambassador Arthur W. Hummel was summoned by Zhu Qichen, assistant Chinese foreign minister, was Nov. 18. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee had passed a resolution saying Taiwan's future should be settled "peacefully, free of coercion and in a manner acceptable to the people on Taiwan."

Peking, which claims Taiwan as one of its 22 provinces, said both votes betrayed a lingering "two-Chinas" policy in Washington and infringed on China's internal affairs.

Hu Yaobang, secretary-general of the Chinese Communist Party, said that without an acceptable U.S. response to the protests, Reagan's visit might be canceled, as would Prime Minister Zhao Ziyang's planned trip to the United States in January.

However, it might be significant that China chose an assistant foreign minister — two rungs from the top — to make the protests.

At a banquet for visiting Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau of Canada Monday night, Zhao indicated he planned to make at least the Canada leg of his North American trip.

When the vice-foreign minister, Qian Qichen, who is one step higher than Zhu, was asked how China would react if Reagan signed the appropriations bill, he replied, "You'll just have to wait and see."

Diplomatic sources said that after more than a week of angry rhetoric, China had invested much prestige in the Taiwan controversy. A response from Reagan acknowledging damaged Chinese feelings might be a remedy, they said. The last president to visit China was Gerald Ford in April 1976. Richard Nixon broke the ice in U.S.-China relations with his February 1972 trip.

Swimmers to take on Indiana Thursday in first home meet

By Scott Rich
Staff Writer

A tough University of Indiana swimming and diving team will come to Carbondale Thursday night and should give the Saluki women their toughest competition of the year, according to Saluki Coach Tim Hill.

"I'm looking for the meet to be very competitive," Hill said. "They will be bringing 25 swimmers with them and they should be strong in most of the events. They're going to be tough."

The Hoosier roster boasts five standout swimmers that Hill said he would be paying particular attention to.

Sherri Geil and Chris Juda, both sprinters, are described by Hill as being fast in their events.

"Geil is an excellent butterfly and backstroke sprinter and also a very good IM swimmer," Hill said. "Judas' best events are the 50-yard freestyle and the 100 back."

Backstrokeer Vilma Aguilera, flyer Jan Baubils and mid-distance freestyler Diane Griebel are the other Hoosiers that Hill will be keeping his eye on.

"I expect all of the races to be close," Hill said. "They don't have quite the depth that we do, but they have some good swimmers."

Women's diving Coach Dennis Golden also expects a good showing from Indiana.

"This meet should be a good test for the women," Golden said. "I think that Indiana will be favored in the diving, but second and third places will be up for grabs."

According to Golden, the Hoosiers have one of the best divers in the country in Lona Foss.

Foss finished first in the AIAWs and second in the NCAA championships in 1982, and was one of the top finishers in last year's NAAs. Golden said Foss is the favorite to win the one-meter competition.

Indiana also has a pair of high school All-America divers in Tina McCrey and Dana Wiegand.

McCrey was the Illinois state diving champion and Wiegand was the Indiana state champion for 1982.

Both coaches said that the meet with Indiana will be the most competitive one this season, and should bring out some outstanding performances.

Thursday's meet will start at 7 p.m. at the recreation center pool.

Raetz said. "I know it has helped us only because we won. The point is that each week is a new week and you have to play better than you did last week."

One of the key players Raetz will be counting on to play better is MVC passing leader Jeff Miller.

The sophomore quarterback averaged 160.1 yards passing per game during the regular season, completing 143 of 261 passes for 1,762 yards and nine touchdowns, with just four interceptions.

Saturday, Miller completed six of 11 passes for just 88 yards. "Our offense is built around Jeff," Raetz said. "He'll need to have a big day in order for us to win. Fortunately he has been able to do that for the most part this year."

After starting tailback Darrold Clardy was injured in the fourth game of the year, Kevin Henderson and Miller had to carry the ground game. Henderson gained 768 yards and scored 11 touchdowns. Miller, running mainly out of the option, rushed for 326 yards and scored seven touchdowns.

Flanker Anthony Kimball, 40 receptions for 492 yards, and split end Terry Bell, 32 catches for 494 yards, have been Miller's top two targets. Split end Joe Downing and Henderson have combined for 59 receptions and 571 yards.

Defensively, three All-MVC first team players key the Sycamore defense, which is ranked second in the MVC.

Linebacker Quintin Mikell won one MVC Defensive Player of the Week Award this season while leading the Sycamores with 110 tackles.

Defensive end Ed Martin, winning All-MVC first team honors for the second straight year, finished with 85 tackles.

Cornerback Kevin Ramsey topped the MVC with seven interceptions, had three pass break-ups and 45 tackles.

She's connecting at a .714 clip, having converted 10 of 14 attempts from the field.

Beck said that the Salukis should also be able to stave the Sooners' running game.

"We need to control the tempo of the game," she said. "We need to work on our transition game, getting back and setting up against the fast break. For every action we have a counteraction, but it's just a matter of doing it."

She said the Salukis are keyed for the game, especially after the loss to Creighton in Memphis.

"I think they're fired up to play, especially the seniors," Beck said. "We had a 20-win season last year, and they're used to winning. After you win 11 games in a row, you know what it's like to win."

"This is a strong, respectable tournament," Beck said. "It's a class tournament. If we play like we've been taught to play, we'll do well. We need to do in a game what we've been doing in practice for three months."

ISU coach expected success

By Jim Lexa
Staff Writer

Entering the football season, Indiana State Coach Dennis Raetz had some ideas that his team could be a good one.

"Going into this season I felt about our team the same way Rey Dempsey felt about his team," Raetz said. "If we could stay away from injuries, and play competitive football, I thought we would have a good year."

He turned out to be correct. His Sycamore squad finished the regular season 8-3, was ranked No. 5 in the final I-AA football poll and then knocked off No. 6 Eastern Illinois in the first round of the playoffs.

Raetz' squad faces its next test Saturday when it plays the No. 1-ranked Salukis at 12:30 p.m. at McAndrew Stadium.

The quarterfinal playoff game will mark the second time this season that these two Missouri Valley Conference squads will play each other.

In the first meeting, SIU-C rolled to a 31-0 lead before the second quarter was four minutes old at Indiana State and hung on for a 34-21 victory.

Raetz said his special teams will have to play a sound game if Indiana State is going to beat the Salukis.

"We have to hold up our end on the special teams this time," Raetz said. "We can't go around giving up easy scores by dropping punts. We can't lose on account of the special teams."

"Southern has to earn every point that they get. That's something that didn't happen the last time we played them."

The Sycamores won two close football games from Eastern that helped land them in the quarterfinals. Saturday, the Sycamores beat Eastern 16-13 and they needed two overtimes to do it.

Placekicker Todd Bridges kicked his third field goal of the game for the winning points.

The first time Indiana State played Eastern occurred with the Sycamores holding a 5-3 record and moving dangerously close to being out of the playoff picture. The Sycamores were trying to recover from their loss to the Salukis and had to play Eastern on the road.

Indiana State was up to the task. The playoff picture brightened for the Sycamores after they beat Eastern 17-13. Raetz, though, said he figured his team still had a good shot at the playoffs even after the Saluki contest.

"If we had lost another game after being beaten by Southern," Raetz said, "then yes, I thought for sure we'd be out of the playoffs. I felt, though, if we could win our last three games and finish 8-3, then we should make the playoffs."

"Based on our schedule this year, I felt we would deserve to be ranked as one of the top 12 teams."

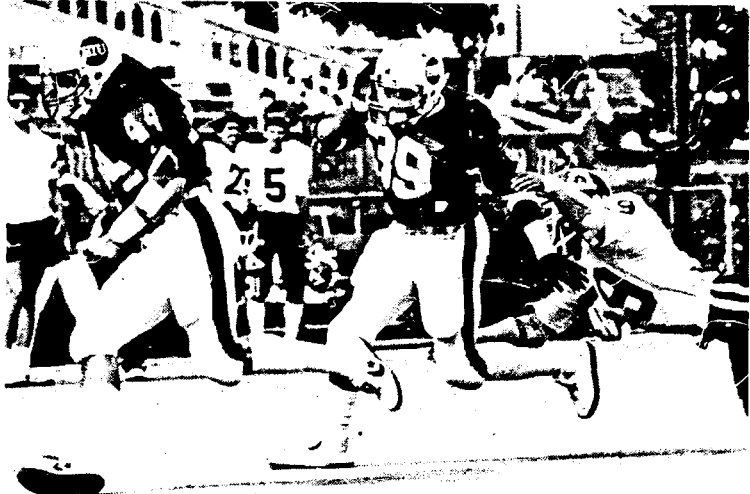

Besides beating Eastern in the regular season, Indiana State defeated Northeast Louisiana, which was ranked as high as No. 2 in I-AA this year before finishing at No. 13, and two I-A teams, Ball State, 35-14, and Wichita State, 24-22.

Losses to I-A No. 12 Florida, 17-13, and to MVC foe Illinois State, 37-20, mar the Sycamore record along with their loss to the Salukis.

When Indiana State and SIU-C take the field Saturday, it will have been three weeks since the Salukis have played a game. Raetz said he did not know whether SIU-C will benefit from the three-week layoff or if Indiana State will be sharper with a playoff game already under its belt.

"That's always hard to say,"

Cagers gun for tourney crown, take aim at first goal of season

By Sherry Chisenhall

After a disappointing third-place finish in the opening tournament of the season last weekend, the Saluki women's basketball team will try to bounce back and meet one of its first season goals by capturing the title of an early-season tournament.

Meeting that goal will be no small task, as Coach Cindy Scott's team heads to Pullman, Wash., this weekend to fight for the crown of the prestigious Dial Classic at Washington State University.

Assistant Saluki Coach Julie Beck said her team has its work cut out in its first game. Friday night the Salukis open the tournament against Oklahoma, a team SIU-C has met only once.

"On paper, we should be the favorite," Beck said. "We're familiar with Big Eight teams and we know what we're up against. Oklahoma lost an All-Big Eight player in Molly McGuire, and that has to be a little depleting."

Saturday night SIU-C will face Washington State or Portland State. The meeting with either of those teams will be a first for Scott.

But Beck said the Salukis aren't looking past the game with Oklahoma. The Sooners lost three starters from a 17-11 squad, including Big Eight Conference Player of the Year McGuire.

McGuire holds most of the team's records and leaves a big gap in the Sooner lineup. Part of the slack is being picked up by 5-foot-11 forward Lynn McCurdy, who scored 22 points in the Sooners' only game, their season opener against Texas-Arlington. Oklahoma blasted UTA 92-66 and should carry considerable momentum into the contest with SIU-C.

Beck said the early word is that the Sooners play a physical game and like to run with the ball, neither of which should be a problem for the Salukis. Oklahoma's biggest player is 6-foot-1 Jacquetta Hurley, while SIU-C boasts three players in the 6-foot-3 range in Connie Price, Char Warring and freshman Tamie Sanders.

Beck said the Salukis have the tools to claim their first win over Oklahoma.

"We're confident in what we have," she said. "We're just trying to get the kinks out after the disappointing loss to Creighton last weekend. We didn't go inside well, and our inside game should be our bread and butter."

A boost to the team's inside game should come from point guard D.D. Plab and shooting guard Petra Jackson. Jackson leads the team with 31 points, while Plab is third with 23.

Warring is second in scoring with 23 points from the inside.

Bring on the Missouri Valley. For the second straight game, the SIU-C basketball team won handily over its non-conference foe. This time the victim was Indiana State-Evansville, 103-73 losers to a red-hot shooting pack of Salukis Wednesday night at the Arena.

SIU-C poured in 64 percent of its shots from the field, 71 percent in the second half.

Nate Bufford led the shooting barrage, making good on 12 of 16 shots en route to scoring a team-high 26 points. Bufford's backcourt mate Roy Birch contributed 20 points to the Saluki cause. Birch was 10 of 14 from the field.

"I can't take any credit for the way our kids shot the ball tonight," Saluki Coach Allen Van Winkle said. "Even though Nate (Bufford) scored 26 points, he wasn't selfish. I liked the way he just took the open shot."

SIU-E was led in scoring by Steve Jackson's 18 points.

There were many contributors for SIU-C. Forward Pie Walker, a starter last year, came in to score 13 points. Walker was five on nine from the floor and pulled down four rebounds during his 28-minute of play.

Chris George also came in to contribute 11 points, hitting on five of six shots, including a spectacular gliding one-handed stuff shot over Chuck Gans in the first half.

The Salukis' win came with little offensive support from their centers, Ken Perry and Harry Hunter. Perry, limited to just 17 minutes because of foul trouble, had two points and six rebounds. Hunter scored four points in nine minutes.

The Salukis never trailed in the game. They broke the contest open in the second half, connecting on their first 13 field goal tries. Five of those were made by Bufford. By the time that streak was stopped, SIU-C had opened a 76-51 lead with 9:48 left in the game.

The Salukis gave the crowd of 2,390 plenty to cheer about, but the biggest roar came when Bernard Campbell's 12-foot jump shot from left of the free throw line broke the 100-point mark with 41 seconds remaining in the game.

The Salukis' next game will be Friday against Mississippi Valley State at the Arena. Tipoff is set for 6:00 p.m.
