Lack of control, judgment blamed for Reagan’s woes

By Patricia Edwards

President Reagan’s hands-off style of conducting administration policy got him into trouble when a low-ranking military officer apparently made a risky foreign policy decision on his own involving political policy experts.

Lt. Col. Oliver North’s decision to sell arms to Iran and funnel profits to the Nicaraguan guerrillas in Nicaragua was apparently violated at least two laws, they said in telephone interviews Monday. It appears that the intermittent U.S. policy of forbidding aid to Contra guerrillas in Nicaragua was violated in 1985 when two arm shipments were made to Iran, a press aide for Sen. Paul Simon, D-M. Akaqanda, said.

Also, Congress should have been consulted on the decision to sell the arms to Iran, political science professor Manfred Landecker said.

Men have played fast and loose with both the law and the president’s own administration, Simon said.

A press agent for Simon added: “It certainly looks as if Simon’s conviction that it violated the spirit and the letter of the law.”

There has been speculation that North is merely a scapegoat for other high-ranking administration officials.

But, Turley said, it is possible the other high-ranking officials didn’t know all the details of the arms deal involving the “tremendous authority” Reagan gives to his subordinates.

“We do know Reagan is inattentive to detail—that is, in fact,” Turley said. “Reagan ran a very personal administration.”

The possibility of high-ranking White House officials being involved in the fiasco raises questions of who should investigate the matter.

A number of individual committees have pledged to mount their own investigations.

Simon supports the formation of a special committee to prevent overlaps from the various separate committees, his aide said. It would likely be composed of members of the individual committees, the aide said.

Attorney General Edwin Meese should be replaced as leader of the investigation by a special prosecutor, Simon said.

Landrecker agreed that if preliminary investigations indicated that high White House officials were involved, a special prosecutor should replace Meese.

The ordeal cripples Reagan’s presidency, Turley said. The question is what to do now, he said.

In a parliamentary system, Turley said, a new election would be called and the government could get back on its feet within a month. But now, short of impeachment, the United States has no alternative to laboring with a wounded president.

The scandal, however, does not appear to be an impeachable offense, Turley said. Most impeachments are treason, bribery or other high crimes and misdemeanors. Impeachment is generally limited to demonstrably criminal acts in the United States.

FBI investigates seven in Iran arms deal

WASHINGTON (UP) - President Reagan said Monday he would welcome a special prosecutor into the Iran arms Contra aid scandal and internal Pentagon documents released indicate high-ranking military officials and military figures are key targets of an FBI criminal probe.

In the first indications of the specific figures being investigated, Justice Department officials and Attorney General Edwin Meese requested information on the seven from the Pentagon.

White House, State Department and CIA last Friday.

The attorney general asked particularly for all information on former national security adviser John Poindexter; his predecessor, Robert McFarlane; Don Porter, an aide to McFarlane who died last summer; Lt. Col. Oliver North, Poindexter’s deputy; and CIA last Friday.

FBI investigators want to interview the high-ranking officials.

The Pentagon directive, obtained by United Press International, ordered that all military departments and defense agencies “locate, segregate and hold” for FBI review any information relating to the Iran arms sales, any hostage negotiations and all financial activities involving the Contra rebels and Iran or Israel.

The FBI is looking into revelations by Meese last week that millions of dollars in profits from the Iran arms sales to Iran were diverted to the Contra rebels fighting to overthrow the Sandinista government in Nicaragua.

Kelley declares candidacy in mayoral race

By Toby Eckart

City Councilman Patrick Kelley on Monday outlined several goals he plans to work toward if elected mayor in the upcoming city election.

Kelley, 45, a city councilman, announced Friday he would seek the office being vacated by Mayor Helen Westberg, who has decided not to seek re-election. Kelley is the second person to announce candidacy.

Witness nab suspect in attempted robbery

By Carolyn Schmidt
Staff Writer

An attempted armed robbery at a Parrish Vessel Service Station, Station 1123 E. Walnut, ended in arrest Friday after the attendant refused to hand over any money and a witness outside the station caught and detained a suspect.

According to Carbondale police, two black males wearing ski masks entered the station and demanded money from the attendant at gunpoint. The attendant, Eric Anderson, an SIU-C student, refused to give them the money and told them to leave. The men then ran out of the station. Anderson attempted to stop them but fell on the concrete, striking his head, police said.

Two men outside the station claimed they were trying to rob the attendant as one suspect, Willie J. Richardson, an of Carbondale fired a gun at them. Richard Hite of Carbondale continued to chase Richardson into a wooded area a few blocks south of the service station where Richardson discarded the gun, police said.

Hite caught Richardson as he was running out of the wooded area, threw him to the ground and detained him until police arrived, police said. Anderson reported the robbery at 8:45 p.m.

Richardson is charged with attempted armed robbery, armed violence and attempted murder. He is being held in Jackson County Jail without bond, police said.

Fundraising events set

A video cassette recorder raffle and a benefit concert are two events scheduled this month for former SIU-C graduate student Robin Sigler.

Proceeds from the fund-raisers, sponsored by SIU-C Security, will be pay for Sigler's first heart-lung transplant operation, performed Nov. 9.

The drawing for a video cassette recorder will be Dec. 15. Tickets for the raffle are $1 each or six for $5 and are available from SIU-C Security, Washington Square, Building A.

Three gospel groups, The Spiritual Travellers of Carbondale, the Phelps Brothers of Eldorado and Reunion of Union County will perform at 7 p.m. Dec. 16 in Ballrooms A, B, C and D of the Student Center.

Tickets for the concert are $5 and are available at the door or by mailing a check to Robin Sigler Trust Fund, care of Nelson Ferry, SIU-C Security, 701 S. Washington. Tickets are also available at the Student Center Ticket Office.

Contributions may be sent to the Robin Sigler Trust Fund, P.O. Box 435, Carbondale, Ill., 62901, at the First Bank of Carbondale.

Expert lists year's worst toys

BOSTON (UPI) — A noted child safety advocate Monday unveiled his list of the "10 Worst Toys of 1986" and charged America's toy shops and nurseries are stuffed withplaythings that can kill and maim because of a "conspicuous silence.'

Dowees of children have died in the past two years by choking on small parts or being strangled by crib fixtures that conform to standard government standards, said trial lawyer Edward M. Swartz, author of "Toys that Kill.

This year's list of worst toys, according to Swartz:
- Aven Products' "Puff the Magic Dragon" which emits "soft cloud of baby talk from his nose," which can result in serious illness.
- PlaySkool's "Tyke Bike," a plastic bike "designed too low to the ground and without brakes" that is hard for motorists to see.
- Dakin's "Circus Clowns Tie-Up," which has a cord and carries a "real risk (of) death from strangulation;"
- "Baseball," which includes "swallowable eyeballs, pieces of fingers and other interesting anatomical parts" that could be dangerous if swallowed.
- "HG Industries' 'American Ninja Weapon Set,'" which has plastic arrows with rubber tips that can "snag off and result in tragedy;"
- "Aladdin's 'Child Guidance System,'" which has small parts that could injure children.
- Upright's "America's Newest Hero Bazooka," which "fires a plastic rocket from its muzzle;"
- Fisher-Price's "Tag-Along Turtle and Pull-Along Plane," which have strings that could strangle a toddler.
- "GMG's 'Lovely Baby Doll,'" which is clothed in a flammable dress and has a head that "falls off readily, exposing its ingestible stuffing;"
- and Edison Giocattolli's "Staromatic 13-Shot Cap Gun," which weighs about a pound and "feels real enough to fool almost anyone," raising the question "is this a toy or a weapon?"

Swartz said there are other, "killer toys" that have "been recalled but "can still be found in toy boxes throughout the United States."
Editorial was waste of paper

Any editorial that doesn't support itself with solid facts and keep the prose razor-sharp is an awful waste of paper. The Nov. 11 editorial, "We need a mayor unlike Westberg," is a textbook example of such waste and an embarrassment to this paper.

Government projects can take months, even years. The bigger the project, the longer your time expectation should be. And the finished projects are the result of many people's decisions. The bigger and longer the project, the more people involved in the decisions.

And, most importantly, for all that time, and with all those people involved, government still doesn't have control over most projects. Two major uncontrolled forces are voters and the business community -you know, the people who have money for projects.

To imply or accuse that Mayor Westberg alone is responsible for a list of failures is absurd and naive. Did she alone decide on the "quick take" action that killed the council's chance for a new pool? No, it was a council-management decision.

Is she showing the current center project? No, the development is in the process of getting backing money. Can she herself make the student housing problem better? No, that will take millions of dollars from landlords and thousands of students from now until eternity being respectful of the space they rent.

Your editorial says the mayor (alone, of course) was unable to shake accomplishments from our city staff. I'd refer, for just one recent example, the Halloween fest. (If the D.E. staff thinks this year's party was a riot, maybe they should go do some reading on college life in the '60s to really understand what a "riot" means.)

The city staff spearheaded work on the fest, in coordination with businesses, individuals and the media and made it a more diverse, and safer fest than it was last year. In the last several years, diversity and safety have been the mayor's main concern and she has dutifully impressed the city staff with that very success.

The mayor hasn't been unsuccessful in getting student representation on the council because it isn't really her job. Student representation on the council should elect a student with a seat on the council. I hope students are aware we have student membership on city boards and commissions and the USO has a city affairs commission.

I believe I've seen everything: a Carbondale Halloween, a $5 burrara bill for a campus doctor's precious two-and-a-half minutes, and now, an illiterate teacher (yes, he's not foreign!)

The other day, my anthropology instructor spoke of "ritual's passage." He actually wrote the plural like that in the overhead projector! I hope I receive good grades on all of my anthropology test's!

As if this weren't enough proof of his incompetence, he used the phrase "integrated together" less than five minutes ago. We all know they say "evolved over time" and walked "bipedally on two feet!"

Today I was lectured on "whicchcraft," which he corrected and wrote as "witchcraft." Aaargh.

Zimmerman said he was surprised by some of the colleges that made, and did not make, the Top 40.

About the "display" during Springfest, Zimmerman said, "I’ve seen a lot of things in my sphere of interest here, but I didn’t see anything like that at Springfest.

If two people were doing anything by the stage, they were probably urinating on the building.

Albert Somit, SIU-C president, said the first question after hearing about the list was "who else is in the list?"

He said if the magazine has found a way to recognize outstanding academics and participate in any quest for an award, "I really have something"

Somit, who has supported legs at football games and other programs to overcome the "University of Illinois party school" image, said, "I don’t think anyone will suffer from insomnia because of this poll."

Volcano threatens homes; 3,000 flock to lava site

KALAPANA, Hawaii (UPI) – A mile-long stream of lava from long-erupting Kilauea volcano has threatened to overrun several houses, Hawaii County Civil Defense officials reported Monday.

A spokesman said the main flow, which has been feeding into the ocean, spread out and neared five homes while an unpredictable finger changed direction and flowed toward one structure on the ocean side of a two-lane highway.

Last week nine houses were destroyed.

The flow of molten rock into the ocean had slowed, he said, but a scientist at the Hawaiian Volcano Observatory said Kilauea was continuing to belch lava at the rate of 1 million tons per day.

"Activity at the volcano seems to be undiminished. It is still pumping out 500,000 cubic meters of lava per day. So you can say it’s still fairly vigorous," Tom Wright, scientist-in-charge at the observatory, said.

After a morning flyover, Observatory spokesman Reggie Okamura said, "A small amount of lava is moving very slowly and going into the water. Part of the flow has splintered and is threatening five houses."

ANOTHER LOBE to the east neared another house, he said. However, he said that, because of the inching-long process, it was difficult to determine when, if at all, the flows would reach the structure.

Okamura said the front entering the water was about 10 yards wide with an area behind it about 80 yards across. The black-crusted river of fiery lava pouring into the ocean was slowed because of the hardening of the old flows, scientists said.

KILAUEA, ON the eastern flank of 13,600-foot Mauna Loa, Hawaii’s other active volcano, began erupting Jan. 3, 1983, and the current phase between July 20.

The current activity sent a 6-mile-long stream of lava into the ocean last week, but had slowed because of the hardening of old flows.

Visitors continued to flock to view the spectacle.

A spokesman for Hawaii Volcanoes National Park said more than 3,000 people visited the flow site Sunday. That raised the total number of visitors for the three-day period to about 7,000.

involved in any quest for an alternative to the convention center, he has been.

Kelley also pledged to prepare a "road map" to the ever-changing Carbondale highway to encourage additional industrial and commercial growth in the city.

"We are the commercial leader of the region," Kelley said. "We need to build on what we’ve done and move ahead."

In order to offset the impact of the loss of $2 million in revenue sharing and Community Block Grants, Kelley said he would push for cuts in the city budget.

The City Council, he said, "will have to cut the job it has begun."

The City Council, he said, "will have to cut the job it has begun."

Although not opposed to a referendum on the ward-alderman system of government proposed by mayoral candidates Norwell Haynes, Kelley said he did not favor changing the current at-large election system.

A ward system, he said, may produce a situation in which neighborhoods with a high population turnover are underrepresented. Such neighborhoods tend to have a lower number of registered voters than more stable neighborhoods.

"You might eventually wind up with a system in which one vote in a se ward may count more than one vote in another ward," Kelley said.

McFarlane, North testify before committee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former national security adviser Robert McFarlane testified secretly for six hours before the Senate Intelligence Committee Monday and Congress intensified its calls for a special Watergate-style committee to investigate the growing Iran arms scandal.

Following McFarlane's testimony, Lt. Col. Oliver North, the mastermind of the Iran arms sales and subsequent transfer of funds to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels, arrived in full Marine uniform before the committee. He made no comment as he entered the hearing room.

McFarlane's appearance before the panel came as President Reagan was considering whether to call Congress into special session to form a select committee to begin immediate full-scale investigations into the affair rather than waiting until a new Congress convenes Jan. 6. McFarlane, his face flushed and his expression grim, left the closed committee room at last afternoon after about six hours of testimony. He made no comment to dozens of reporters waiting outside the door.

Congress members disagreed over whether a special session should be called but leaned toward the select committee approach to prevent separate probes by some dozen committees.

Details of McFarlane's appearance before the Senate Intelligence panel were not revealed, but Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., said McFarlane testified briefly about the secret Iranian arms sale and subsequent funneling of funds to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

"Yeah, I'm sure it was McFarlane. It wasn't Santa Claus," Eagleton told reporters as he left the closed meeting. McFarlane negotiated the arms sale with Iran's "moderates" and had at least some knowledge of Lt. Col. Oliver North's scheme to transfer some of the money to the Contras, Attorney General Edwin Meese said in revealing the operation last week. North was first questioned by the National Security Council after the money transfer was revealed.

Questions have been raised about McFarlane's truthfulness in a 1985 communication with the committee. Just before McFarlane left his national security post, he wrote a letter in which he gave "a categorical no" to questions from the Senate intelligence panel asking whether North was assisting the Iranians, a congressional aide told United Press Ints.

Eagleton, who retires at the end of the year, said, "No one in the world believes Oliver North was acting alone.

"Lieutenant colonels don't intervene in one war (Iran) and another war (Contras-Nicaragua) on their own," he said.

NEW YORK (UPI) — A federal judge hearing the case of a retired Israeli intelligence official and others who allegedly plotted to sell arms to Iran ordered the government Monday to halt destruction of documents relating to the arms shipments.

The Los Angeles Times last week reported that Lt. Col. Oliver North, who was fired from the National Security Council when it was learned problems with the arms sales were funneled to the Nicaraguan rebels, shredded documents crucial to an investigation into the shipments. "No person employed by the U.S. government, regardless of agency or capacity, is to destroy, conceal or destroy any document which relates to shipments of arms to Iran either directly from the United States or from some other country unless he is legally further order from this court," Judge Leona L. Sands ruled in U.S. District Court in Manhattan.

Sands was responding to a request made by a defense lawyer for four people charged with plotting to sell more than $2 billion in U.S.-made weapons to Iran, including fighter planes, tanks, missiles and other sophisticated equipment.

Prosecutors have said the defendants violated an official U.S. embargo on such sales. The defense has said high-ranking U.S. officials knew and approved of the sale, which was conducted through Israel.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The leading Iranian opponents of the Khominei government said Monday they have evidence of a large and continuing flow of American arms to Tehran through an Israeli arms merchant.

The Mojahedin opposition group released a news conference a copy of a contract between the Iranian Ministry of National Defense and an Israeli company known as International Desalination Equipment Ltd., headed by Jacob Nimrodi.

Nimrodi has been identified as a major seller of arms, but he said in a statement issued Sunday in Tel Aviv, "Ever since the fall of the shah and the rise of Khomeini to power in Iran, I have not executed even a tiny deal with Iran, either directly or indirectly."

According to the document released by the Mojahedin group, the contract was signed by Nimrodi July 24, 1981, well after the takeover by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's government.

The contact called for the sale of $135,842,000 in arms, including 50 Lance surface-to-surface missiles, 68 Hawk surface-to-air missiles and about 15,000 rounds of heavy artillery ammunition.

At least one of the planesloads of U.S.- manufactured arms were shipped from the United States, according to the group, in a routine shuttle operation that began in Chicago and operated through the international airport at Frankfurt, West Germany.

The arms, according to the group, were shifted to Iranian cargo planes that flew twice a week between Frankfurt and Iran.

The group had no explanation for how the American-made arms, which required an export license approved by the State Department, got through U.S. controls.

The group had no explanation for how the American-made arms, which required an export license approved by the State Department, got through U.S. controls.

The contact called for the sale of $135,842,000 in arms, including 50 Lance surface-to-surface missiles, 68 Hawk surface-to-air missiles and about 15,000 rounds of heavy artillery ammunition.

At least one of the planesloads of U.S.- manufactured arms were shipped from the United States, according to the group, in a routine shuttle operation that began in Chicago and operated through the international airport at Frankfurt, West Germany.

The arms, according to the group, were shifted to Iranian cargo planes that flew twice a week between Frankfurt and Iran.

Court rules on citizen tax suit

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — A private citizen does not have the standing to bring suit for the collection of taxes, the Supreme Court ruled Friday.

In this Lake County case, a couple was suing the state for what they charged was the underassessment or exemption of property used as a hunting camp in their area. Although the property did not belong to them and was underassessment or exemp­tion from property taxation of land in their area, they alleged that the property was being assessed unfairly. They challenged property tax irregularities and the constitutionality of the law involved.

Justices said that in writing for the court, called the suit "the worst sort of in a way which plaintiffs counsel, Paul Hamer, has waged against revenue officials in this state for more than two decades."

Simon chastised Hamer, a Northbrook lawyer, for filing the suit, saying it was a "prolix, confusing and — in many respects—unintelligible.

"The primary difficulty in reviewing the testimony at what it is by no means evident from the files of the complaint just what irregularities are alleged and what relief is being sought," the court said.

Justices said there already is a legal way for taxpayers to challenge property tax assessments if they believe them to be unfair.

WSIU-TV benefit set

American and international students will have a chance to learn about other cultures at an international potluck dinner from 6 to 9 p.m. Wednesday in Quigley Lounge.

Kelly O'Shea, counseling and administrative assistant at Women's Services, said she hopes American students will come to represent their culture because the purpose of the dinner is not for North American students to do something for international students but rather to share in a cultural exchange with them. We all have cultural differences," she said, "but this can help to bridge the gap."

O'Shea said participants are being asked to bring a dish or music that represents their culture. People who bring food are also requested to bring the recipe to exchange with others.

Some international groups have expressed an interest in performing native dances, wearing traditional dress or exhibiting artwork from their country, O'Shea said. Although the theme is "Women of the World" men and children are encouraged to attend.

Re-entry program coordinator at Women's Services, Pat Cochran, said the theme was chosen to represent students' interaction in the global community rather than international students' involvement with American society.

A children's playroom will be available and anyone interested in helping with planning or child care may call Women's Services at 653-9505. The dinner is co-sponsored by Women's Services, the International Spouses Group and the International Student Council. Reservations are not required.

Soap opera fanatic turns addiction into profit

NORTHBROOK (UPI) — Unlike other soap opera addicts who sit in front of the television for the pure satisfaction of seeing whether Cliff and Nina get back together or if Viki gets her memory back, Dale Goldberg turned her video habit into a business.

Goldberg, with the help of her husband, Harlan, invented "The Soap Opera Game," a board game that is being sold in the Chicago area at limited locations.

COMPLETE WITH steamy story lines and thickening plots similar to those on the daytime soaps, the game is designed for both the soap opera fanatic and those interested in a "mindless, fun adult game," Harlan Goldberg said.

Although the characters, locations and script lines are typical of the sleaze and glitz printed on the soaps, they are not based on any specific soaps. Instead, players attempt to create their own scripts using the courtrooms, motels, hospitals and characters often found on daytime TV.

THE GAME, which takes about two hours to complete, can be played by couples or two to four people, the Goldberg's said.

The idea for "The Soap Opera Game" was born 14 years ago when Dale left the working world to stay home with her first child. She admits to watching the shows in between changing diapers and preparing dinner.

"I guess I became addicted. Harlan used to kid me, saying I should try to make something constructive out of watching them," Dale said.

S O L A T E AT night after her daughter was asleep and the chores were done, Dale began jotting down characters, soap opera-type plots and other details for the board game.

"When other people were doing what they should be in bed we were sitting up there thinking of names for our characters," joked Harlan, who admits to playing a role in naming the characters, such as Ivy Needle, the nurse; Reed N. Wright, the journalist; and Hy N. Low, the stockbroker.

A LOT OF late-night brainstorming sessions and two children later, the Goldbergs completed the game in the summer of 1985 and attempted to sell the idea to the major game companies across the country.

"I made hundreds of calls and the answer was always the same. They told me they had in-house people who came up with new games, but thanks anyway," Dale said.

"One company offered us $50 and one-thousandth of the profit—meaning we had to sell 1 million copies to make $100," Harlan added.

THAT'S THE point when we said "What the heck, we'll do it ourselves." The Goldbergs formed the Hardale Game Co., Ltd., secured a patent for the game and hired several manufacturers to print the board game, make the boxes, game pieces and cards.
Elvis blasts Beatles in disclosed Nixon memo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Elvis Presley told President Nixon in a private White House meeting Dec. 21, 1970, that the Beatles were “a real force for anti-American spirit,” once-secret papers revealed Monday.

The rock ‘n’ roll singer also told Nixon he had been studying communist brain-washing and the drug culture for more than a decade and said he wanted to help in Nixon’s law-and-order efforts.

Presley, in a letter to Nixon, said he could influence the “hippie” movement, because he was not considered a part of “the establishment,” and made a pitch to be named a federal drug enforcement agent.

The Nixon-Presley meeting was detailed in a memorandum written that day by Nixon aide Egil Krogh. The memo was included among more than 3.5 million pages of Nixon-era documents made public Monday.

“Presley indicated that he thought the Beatles had been a real force for anti-American spirit,” the Krogh memo recounted. “He said that the Beatles came to this country, made their money and then returned to England where they promoted an anti-American theme.”

“The president nodded in agreement and expressed some surprise,” the memo said. “The president then indicated that those who use drugs are also those in the vanguard of anti-American protests.”

Presley, who died in August 1977 of a drug overdose, kept repeating to Nixon that he wanted to lend his name to the president’s law enforcement initiatives and to “restore some respect for the flag, which was being lost,” the memo said.

“He (Presley) said he could go right into a group of young people or hippies and be accepted, which he felt could be helpful to him (Nixon) in his drug drive,” the memo said.

Another Krogh memo, dated Jan. 27, 1972, said that during the meeting, Presley asked if Nixon could give him an official badge from the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs. The memo said an arrangement was worked out to give Presley “a specially prepared badge.”

In a letter from Nixon to Presley dated Dec. 31, 1979, the president thanked the singer for his support and for Presley’s gift of a commemorative World War II Colt .45 pistol.

According to a memo from Nixon aide Dwight Chapin to White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman dated Dec. 31, 1979, the date of Presley’s visit, the singer indicated he wanted to keep the meeting with Nixon private.

Rec Center ‘free week’ available for faculty, staff

By M.J. Starchak
Staff Writer

In an attempt to increase the number of faculty and members participating in intramural sports, the Rec Center will sponsor a Faculty Staff (and spouses) ‘Free Week’ Dec. 8-14. It is the first time this offer has been made, said Goldammer.

Members of the university faculty and staff have the option of using the Rec Center for a semester fee of $32. During the Free Week, members of the faculty and staff who have not paid the fee can receive passes to use the Rec Center facilities at no charge.

Goldammer said that of the approximately 3,000 faculty and staff members on campus, only a very small percentage pay the semester fee and the number is going down every year, he added.

“We want to make them feel welcome,” said Goldammer.

Knicks fire coach after five seasons

NEW YORK (UPI) - Hubie Brown, mired in his third losing season and unable to rally a team decimated by injury, Monday was fired as coach of the New York Knicks.

Assistant Coach Bob Hill was named Brown’s replacement by Knicks Vice President and General Manager Scotty Stirling. Terms of the contract were not released.

The Knicks finished with the worst record in the NBA last year (29-53), one victory less than the previous year. New York had not reached the playoffs since the 1983-84 season and is 11-12 this year, the league’s third worst record.

Brown, in his fifth year as the Knicks’ coach, expected a stronger club this season with Patrick Ewing, the 1981 No. 1 draft choice entering his second season, and 7-foot-1 Bill Cartwright returning from a broken foot.

Cartwright had played in two games in the last two years. The Knicks lost scoring champion Bernard King late in the 1984-85 season. The forward has not played since.

In his first two contests, the juco transfer from Coffeyville (Kansas) Community College has hit eight of 15 field goals and 12 of 15 free throws for 38 points. Richardson also pulled down 16 rebounds.

"Tim did a good job and I think he’ll improve with every game," Herrin said.

"If he can play 27 or 28 minutes of solid basketball per game, he’ll be a big help to our team," he added.

Although Herrin had predicted in the preseason that the NCAA’s new three-point shot would benefit the Salukis, the 19-foot 9-inch perimeter shot almost did them in both nights. The Salukis have hit just seven of 17 three-pointers this season while opponents have hit 11 of 17.

"I didn’t think anyone would shoot the three-pointer as good as we would," Herrin said. “We’ve got to get better pressure out front on the shooters in the future.”

this season in four games at Davies Gym.

"We didn’t transition from defense to offense," Hunter said. “We played well for 2 ½ games and they played well for three.”

Hunter described the first game as being “tight.” In the second game the spikers were down 7-0 and fought back to win 15-9. The spikers were then up by four points in the third game before they lost.

"We started to try and crush the ball over the net instead of playing intelligently," Hunter said.

Hunters stated that senior Jan Tremblay had the best performance of her career in the match against the Panthers.

Tremblay had a .74 attack percentage and six block solos. Even though the Panthers are known for their hitting, being ranked second in the nation in offense, Hunter stated she was more impressed with their setter.

"The setter for Northern Iowa is as cool as a cucumber," Hunter said.
Intramurals wrap up events award turkeys, basketballs

By M.J. Starshak
Staff Writer

The intramural sports department closed the racquetball singles season with a first-place finish for Lori Swanson in the women’s intermediate division. Rina Slade placed second in the competition.

Amanda Allen and Brad McMullen teamed up to win the tennis mixed doubles competition. Their second-place team was Mary Ann Maloney and Chad Cox.

The Water Dogs defeated Sea Men 11-9 to take first place in the men’s A Division of innertube water polo. The Mud Guppies defeated the Scholarships with a 21-16 victory in the Co-Rec A Division for a Mud Guppies first-place finish.

Gary Martice hit all 24 of his free-throw opportunities to win a turkey in the intramural department’s “Turkey Shoot.” Anne Campbell made 24 baskets and Scott Maurer hit 17 to win turkeys for first-place finishes in the women’s and wheelchair divisions, respectively.

Denny Baggett and Mike Sanders each connected on 24 free throws, but Baggett shot Sanders in the tie-free throws to place second in Angela Anello hit 19 free throws to place second in the women’s division and Dan Hall made 11 baskets for second place in the wheelchair division.

A record number of 110 people participated in the competition, said intramural sports coordinator Buddy Goldammer. Of those 110, 19 were women and seven earned the wheelchair competition.

New leather basketballs will be awarded to the winners of the one-on-one basketball competition that will be held at noon Saturday in the Rec Center.

The men’s division will be divided into an open league for men of any height and a six-foot-and-under league. Women will compete in one league only. Entries for the one-on-one competition close Thursday evening.

A meeting for prospective intramural basketball officials will be held at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 18. The guest speaker will be Dave Phillips, the commissioner of the Missouri Valley Conference basketball officials and an American League umpire.

Maryland grid coach quits over ethnicities

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — University of Maryland football coach Bobby Ross resigned Monday after five seasons, citing broken promises made by school officials about improvements to aging athletic facilities.

The resignation completes a clean sweep of officials overseeing Maryland’s revenue sports since the cocaine-induced death of star basketball player Len Bias and the subsequent controversy centering on the academic shortcomings of the school’s athletes.

Last month, Athletic Director Dick Dull and 17-year basketball coach Charles “Lefty” Driesell announced their resignations.

Ross, 49, amassed a 39-19-1 record at Maryland. The former NFL assistant coach took his teams to a recording three straight Atlantic Coast Conference championships and four consecutive bowl game appearances before posting a 5-5-1 season, which concluded Friday with a 42-10 victory over Virginia.

“I am very proud of what our football team has accomplished these five years,” he added. “I feel our football team has represented the university well both on and off the field.”

Martin’s fate undecided

NEW YORK (UPI) — NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle met with Charles Martin of the Green Bay Packers Monday but did not rule on the player’s appeal of last week’s two-game suspension for slamming Chicago quarterback Jim McMahon.

Martin was accompanied by Judge Robert Paris, the Packers president, and Tim Engholm of the NFL Players Association.

Martin’s suspension, the sevearest by Rozelle in his 26 years as commissioner, came after the nose tackle dumped McMahon in a Nov. 23 game in Chicago. Martin was allowed to play in Green Bay’s Thanksgiving Day game against Detroit while his appeal was pending.

Martin’s controversial actions came after a play in which McMahon threw an interception was whistled dead. Many in the NFL called for a harsher penalty because McMahon was expected to miss the rest of the season because of a shoulder injury that was aggravated by the slam.

Martin was seen on television on the sideline after his ejection with a “hit list” — a towel with the numbers of several key Chicago offensive players — tucked in his pants.

Racer rally spoiled in 97-87 Saluki win

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

Despite losing a 22-point halftime lead, Rich Herrin's Salukis charged to an overtime victory over Murray State.

SIU-60 led 63-58 at the half, scoring just four points in the game's second minute. The Racers, meanwhile, pulled closer on three two-pointers and a pair of buckets by guard Don Mann. At the 13 minute mark, the Racers had pulled to within 65-67. Randy House and Brian Welch then combined for 12 points on a series of driving layups and breakaways to put the Racers up 83-79 with 8:17 remaining.

Another Saluki layup later, the ball seemed to bounce our way tonight," an emotional Herrin said after the game. "We really had great efforts from everybody."

Herrin said he felt his team had something to prove against the Racers, and added they may have wanted to make up for what the team felt were subpar performances against Wisconsin-Stevens Point and William Penn.

Men cagers struggle to capture victories over Division III teams

The Salukis may have won the first two games of the season, but coach Rich Herrin wasn't pleased that his squad had to come from behind to beat a pair of respectable Division III teams.

In the season-opener against Wisconsin-Stevens Point on Friday night, the Salukis led 31-17 at halftime before rallying to overcome a five-point deficit and win 95-88.

Junior guard Steve Middleton hit both ends of a one-and-one with 31.2 left, then scored again on a steal set up by the Saluki full court press to pull SIU-C within one at 58-57. Tim Richardson then hit both ends of a one-and-one with 19 seconds to go, giving the Salukis a 39-58 lead and enough margin for the victory.

The Pointers had one last gasp, but Craig Hawley, the game's leading scorer with 27 points, kicked the ball to a teammate inside nine minutes remaining, assuring the Saluki win. Although his three-pointers kept the game close all night, two crucial errors in the final two minutes dampened Hawley's outstanding offensive performance.

Middleton led the Saluki scorers with 22 points, while Richardson chipped in 13. Pointers' Gary Bechtle had 22, scoring 11. No other Salukis scored in double figures.

The Salukis' original starters -- Dan Sowders, Randy Rose, Mike McQuary, John Hone and Craig Hawley -- combined for 22 points, with seven rebounds and two steals. Doug Novsek added 17 points on five of nine three-point shooting and Brian Welch added 11 points and four assists. Tim Richardson chipped in with 10 points and six rebounds.

Women hoopsters tripped in season opener

The jinx held true as the Salukis' women's basketball team lost the fourth straight season opener at Memphis State University.

The Salukis hit the big screen with a bang but ended up 68-66 losers.

The Salukis coaches took the blame for the loss, saying the Salukis charged to an 11-point lead in the first half but blew it in the second period. Coach Cindy Scott said he shook aubed the lineup that will precede the next game.

"We've struggled for the last week but that's what we do with our personnel. We're an unsettled ballclub in that respect," Scott said.

The starting combination of three seniors (Marialice Jenkins, Ann Kuttrell and Cassie Wallace) and two juniors (Marcy Berggren and Bridget Geldenhuys) saw the Salukis paced initial eight minutes with a light score in the low 20s.

At the 12-minute mark, sophomore guard Dee Seals relieved Jenkins at point guard and ignited a key stretch for the Salukis, quickly nailing eight of her total 10 points.

The combination of Seals, sophomore Dana Fitzpatrick, Bonds, Berggren and sophomore Cathy Kampwerth broke open the contest.

Variations included (freshman Dee Kibbels and junior Anne Thrueven, who helped the offense close the gap against the Tigers zone to lead 27-26 at the half. On the other hand, Senior guard and senior Seals saw the Tigers run out of the locker room, their busting fullcourt press and defense burned the Salukis, generating turnovers. Tim Richardson tied the game five minutes within the third quarter. Senior guard and senior Seals scored six points and five rebounds.

Junior guards Rhonda Laydander and Connie Hbben steadily sparked the Tiger comeback with 16 points each.

"We scrapped and pawed and made it happen with our quickness," Tiger coach Mary Lou Johns said.

When Lauderdale and Hlobber missed, senior center Phillips Vaughan got the ball in the lane to draw Bonds into foul trouble. Salukis Bonds and Seals eventually fouled out. Vaughan converted nine of 10 from the stripe -- including a pair of clippers at the end -- enroute to the game-high 19 points.

"From last year, if my life was at stake for a free throw, I wouldn't want to be it was Phillip shooting," Johns said, "but she's a senior and she should make those."

On the whole, Johns left the gym wondering about the Tigers' 38 percent from the field and 56 percent from the line, while Scott left wondering how the Salukis' could lose with 52.8 percent shooting. In the final analysis, 28 Salukis turnovers and 20 personal fouls hinded the win to MSU.

To try a better combination on the floor, Scott will give starting nods to the sophomores Seals and Fitzpatrick. Bonds, who led the Salukis with 15 points but eight turnovers, will shift back to power forward in the lane rather than swing forward.
