World AIDS Day stresses on responsibility

By Lori D. Clark
Daily Egyptian Reporter

One in every 500 college students may be infected with HIV according to the Department of Public Health and the Centers for Disease Control, which means approximately 50 SIUC students may have HIV.

Because of increasing worldwide numbers such as these, the World Health Organization is sponsoring the 8th annual World AIDS Day, a SIUC Wellness Center spokesperson says.

The theme for the 1995 World AIDS Day is "Shared Rights, Shared Responsibilities," to stress the rights and responsibilities of those with and without HIV, a Jackson County Health Department spokesperson said.

Project Director Sandra Ceto from the Southern Illinois HIV CARE Consortium said, "The goal is to emphasize the rights everyone has to avoid HIV infection, receive health care if infected and be given respect and personal freedom."

In Jackson County, 25 people have HIV and 25 more have AIDS, Desiree Mills said. Mills is the sexuality education coordinator for the SIUC Wellness Center.

HIV is the virus that causes AIDS, a disease which weakens the immune system. The HIV virus may develop into AIDS. A person with HIV can appear to be healthy. Mills said there are SIUC students who had HIV but was unsure of the numbers.

The Southern Illinois HIV CARE Consortium provides case management for people infected with AIDS. Ceto said married, single, healthy and working and very ill. "Everyone is so unique," Ceto said.

Long-term survivor of AIDS re-evaluates life

By Melissa Jakubowski
Daily Egyptian Reporter

As long as Stephen St. Julian can take in a deep breath of fresh air, he says he can not have a bad day.

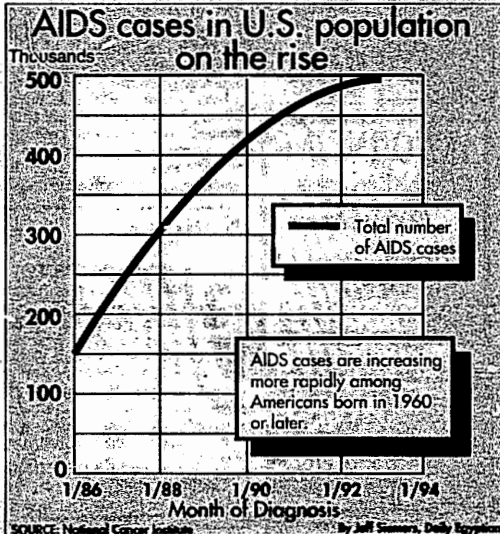

At exactly 4 p.m. on October 9, 1987, St. Julian was informed by a San Francisco clinic that he had tested positive for the AIDS virus. At the time, St. Julian was in his second year of law school in San Francisco.

St. Julian said because he has been a long-term survivor of the AIDS virus, he has had a chance to re-evaluate his life. "It's like being 80-years-old and realizing that you don't have that much longer to live, and you start acting nice to everyone," he said. "There is no such thing as a bad day. You put into perspective all the important things in life."

"I have learned and benefited from my experience in ways other infected people don't," he said. "When I'm gone I want people to say, 'He was a really good guy. I really liked him.' That's what is important to me."

St. Julian is one of the 4.5 million people living with the AIDS virus, as reported by a June 1995 estimate of the World

"We never know how many," Mills said. "I might see one infected student per semester. They just won't come in because of the stigma."

the consortium has 60 clients. The clients range from African American, international, Caucasian, men, women, children, homosexual, heterosexual.

An estimated 20 million men, women and children worldwide have been infected by the HIV virus as of June 1995 according to the World Health Organization. The number of those that have developed AIDS is 4.5 million.

As of December 1994 in the United States, 441,528 people have been diagnosed with the AIDS virus. Of that number, 270,870 have died.

Erika Cohoutec, of Gays, Bisexuals, Lesbians and Friends whose step-mother has HIV, said she wants people to acknowledge there are people living with HIV.

"It doesn't matter how people get it, they have it," she said. "It's a very personal thing. They (people) don't think about HIV until it happens to them. This is my way of dealing with it. By educating people to think about their actions before they become part of a statistic."

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported that among 25 to 44-year-old people, HIV is the leading cause of death.

Student Center may receive food court

By Donita Polly
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Instead of running for the border off campus, SIUC students could tame that crave and many others on campus if price quotations for Student Center revisions are feasible and receive the approval of the SIU Board of Trustees.

Larry Juhlin, associate vice president for Student Affairs, said vendors have made proposals to make one area of the Student Center into a food court like at shopping malls, airports and other universities. He said the Student Center's contract with Marriott vending ends in May. Juhlin said the vendors had statistics of food habits that report that children who grow up with food courts in malls prefer brand name food stores to cafeterias like The Marketplace in the Student Center. Juhlin said The Marketplace has not been doing much business and asked vendors for the best layout for a food court.

"We want something to put a lit tle more pizzazz into the place," Juhlin said.

"Prior to McDonald's, we had an in-house place that was not very successful," Juhlin said. "McDonald's changed the Student Center's appearance, and now it's a whole lot nicer."

Juhlin said there are two ways the Student Center could be revised. First, when The Marketplace is removed, the food court could be put there, and the Roman Room would be used for the seating.

ONCE AGAIN, GOLD RUSH ON IN S. AMERICA—
CAJAMARCA, Peru—In a coincidence of history, this ancient city—where conquistador Francisco Pizarro seized the Inca ruler Atahualpa in 1532 and collected a ransom in gold but had him killed anyway—is the focal point of a new rush for gold in South America. The most productive gold mining operation on the continent is rapidly gnawing down timeworn volcanic hills at a place called Yacocha. 25 miles north of here in Peru's northern highlands. The Yacocha complex will yield more than 500,000 ounces of gold in 1995, and next year the company plans to extract 600,000 ounces—worth more than $225 million at recent prices. Big new gold mines are also panning out in Chile, Bolivia and Brazil. Companies are working to prove other promising claims around the continent, while geologists scour the hinterlands, from Venezuela's "wild south" to Argentina's Patagonia, for more signs of the glittery yellow metal.

LASERS NEXT: GREAT HOPE TO FUTURE DEFENSE—
"Arm the phasers" is a battle command that Pentagon officials believe will soon move out of the realm of science fiction. Under an ambitious $5 billion program that is supposed to revolutionize warfare much as gunpowder once did, some of the top scientists in the United States are working on a high-energy chemical laser that would shoot lethal beams a few hundred miles to knock out enemy missiles. The 100,000-pound laser, carried inside a Boeing 747 jet that would hover near a battle zone, would be powerful enough to destroy targets in about three seconds—forcing missile wreckage and any warhead to drop back onto the enemy launch site.

Nation

WHY MICROSOFT IS TODAY'S ECONOMY KING—
WASHINGTON—Increasing returns to scale, network effects, the tendency of one monopoly to produce another—any of these factors is likely to lead to winner-take-all markets. But there is one industry-computer software—and one company—Microsoft Corp.—where they are all at work. So it is perhaps not surprising that Microsoft, which controls the essential functions of 85 percent of the world's personal computers, has become an obsession of the government's antitrust regulators. To federal regulators the Microsoft case has offered an ideal chance to show that 100-year-old laws designed to protect the economy against monopoly power are still relevant to the economy of the information age.

CALIFORNIA LOSES SHINE OFF GOLDEN STATURE—
SAN FRANCISCO—The California Dream, a vision of a sun-kissed land of opportunity, was a magnet attracting restless Americans. Beginning before 1990, cutbacks in defense spending and by the aerospace industry hammered Southern California. Housing prices slumped. Financial institutions failed. Crime rose. Earthquakes, fires, floods and droughts took a toll on property and enthusiasm for living here. Altogether, these events added up to a sea change that dampened the state's optimism. The analysis by San Francisco Fed economists says that even under a set of very optimistic assumptions, the best the state can hope for in coming years is "slightly positive net domestic in-migration to California."

BARBIE BEATS BARNEY AND POWER RANGERS—
The Power Rangers are losing steam and Barney the dinosaur is nearly extinct. Those latter-day playthings are hot no more—displaced by the familiar this holiday season as kids and their nostalgic parents turn to classic, tried-and-true toys in a big way. Consider Barbie. A perennial favorite, she's now the top-selling toy for the first time in the 13-year history of Playing Magazine's holiday season list. And there's nothing new about the old-fashioned toy kitchen set—except its sudden appearance on one trade group's best-seller list. And while the Power Rangers have cooled off, the once-popular X Men are no longer even ranked.

Corrections/Clarifications

In the article, "SIUC signs top-ranked prep player," in Wednesday's edition, it was incorrectly stated that Steve Ruggeri was a senior at Herrin High School. Ruggeri is currently a senior at Johnston City High School.

In "City gets closer to mass transit vote," there was incorrect information. USG already passed a resolution to allow the city a voting representative on the Mass Transit Advisory Board.

Want peace and tranquility? Look to "omaha (the movie)"

By Aaron Butler
Daily Egyptian Reporter

The real test of a movie, no matter how much or little it cost to make, is its ability to entertain and involve the viewer. As a low-budget ($80,000) film, "omaha (the movie)" has the same responsibility as its much richer cousins like "Waterworld" and "Toy Story." It must make us glad we sat on our butts for a couple of hours to watch it.

Happily, "omaha" succeeds most of the time. It is easier to forgive the few places it falls short because it doesn't make excuses for itself — all in all, it's a comedy that takes itself even less seriously than we take it, if that's possible.

Spirituality and the quest for a life philosophy is a well-used theme in comedy, most recently shouldered by mainstream comic Jim Carrey in the second "Ace Ventura" film. But while Carrey made faces at religion and spirituality, "Omaha" presents the search for spiritua: peace as a legitimate journey while getting a lot of comedic mileage out of those who ride spirituality into absurdity.

Simon (Hughton Walkinshaw), the films "hero," is a twenty-somthing Omaha native trying to reconcile his newfound spirituality with the technology that follows him everywhere. It even follows him to Nepal, where on Sundays the Buddhist monks watch monster truck rallies. Simon whines a lot and keeps looking outward for inner peace, traveling the world for a year and returning with some prayer stones he believes will eventually bring him fulfillment.

Watching out for Simon is the freaky yet very likable Gina (Jill Anderson), the opposite of Simon — a kickboxing optimist who seems to truly enjoy life and pursue experience for its own sake. Anderson is an exciting actress, crackling with energy in every scene, and, despite her obvious lack of real martial arts skill, we believe she could kick everybody's ass — she has that much attitude. Anderson truly dominates throughout the movie, grabbing your attention whenever she appears, and she will hopefully spark a lot of industry interest with her performance.

Together, Simon and Gina must face an assortment of bad guys to come out spiritually and romantically triumphant, but their true challenge is to come to terms with their crazy world. And Omaha, Neb. is as good a place as any to find one's self, Simon must learn.

The mayor of Omaha, the governor of Nebraska, the president of the University of Omaha and the sheriff of Lincoln, Neb., all make hilarious guest appearances, helping "omaha" find the irony in Midwestern politics. These guys are the real thing, and you can't help but wonder what they think of their image now. "Omaha" isn't one of the political videos director Dan Mirvish used to shoot before he made movies, everything the officials say is presented as a tongue-in-cheek jab at the rhetoric and reality of issues like unemployment, crime, education and tourism in the region.

I give it eight out of ten stars. "Omaha" is a gentle ride, taking its time getting started and grinding to a halt slowly, so in a way the moments within the film add up to more than the whole. Viewers may leave unsure of exactly what the point was — this isn't the usual Hollywood script worked over by several writers for perfect marketability. But thinking back, most should appreciate the fresh approach and the gems that happen when a filmmaker takes risks.

Omaha, (the movie) is not rated, and is showing at the AMC theater.

Omaha, small budget mix well for director

By Aaron Butler
Daily Egyptian Reporter

If a movie were made about the making of director Dan Mirvish's first film, it would probably be called "omaha (the movie) (the documentary)." An awkward title, but making a full-length feature on the budget for one day of filming on the average Paramount motion picture is no picnic either, Mirvish says.

"The film is full of product placements," Mirvish said. "During the opening credits we have a guy in a chicken costume deliver a package to an American Airlines shipping office — it took care of two placements in one."

"Omaha" is Mirvish's thesis project for his master's degree at the University of Southern California. The title was originally intended to draw the interest of investors who wanted publicity for the city, he said. In the end, a fondness for the area that made the film possible and the relevance to the film's content motivated Mirvish and the crew to keep the name.

But making a movie on a shoestring budget, in a location hundreds of miles from production facilities, was a daunting task for all.

Mirvish said. "We had less than $40,000 to get a full-length, 35 mm color film in the can," he said. "But we had the world's most dedicated cast, crew and the support of the entire state behind us. There was no way we were going to fail."

Dan Mirvish

Mirvish said he believed a feature-length film, funded independently, would give him an edge when he entered the industry because most film students complete their graduate degrees with only a short film.

Although he was enrolled in USC, Mirvish decided he had a better chance of getting funding for his film in his hometown of Omaha, Neb. There he found a large fraction of the community willing to invest in a film tentatively titled "omaha (the movie)," in hopes of promoting their Midwest city.

"The local city/county film commission was a tremendous help," he said. "They put me in touch with cast, crew and other interested people."

Omaha also happened to be the home of Dana Altman (the grandson of Robert Altman), who became Mirvish's partner in producing the film. Mirvish said his friend's grandfather gave the two quite a bit of over-the-phone advice.

The senior Altman also inadvertently helped publicize the finished product, when "omaha" was shown at "Slamdance '95," an independent film festival in Utah. In the highly

USG vote makes policy changes in RSO funding

By Signe K. Skinion
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Registered Student Organizations have a new funding policy to follow if they wish to receive money for next year since the Undergraduate Student Government passed a bill creating stricter guidelines for funding Wednesday night.

The bill, effective July 1, 1996, will not allow general funding in excess of $200 to be given to RSOs who do not fill out the annual allocation fee forms, which determine their funding for the next year, during the proper time.

Eric Bottom, College of Business senator and author of the bill, said there are many problems with the RSO funding system, but the misuse of general funding is a major problem.

"The idea behind general funding is to help an RSO fund a special event or activity," Bottom said. "We only fund one-time special events through general funding. National Conventions that groups go to every year should be allocated during the annual allocation time."

Bottom said this bill is to create a more fair system of funding for USG and the RSOs.

"It's unfair for the RSOs who go through the annual allocation to receive their money, and other RSOs just to wait and go through general funding," Bottom said. "If we don't know about all the RSOs who need funding, they may not get what they need. The problem is there is never enough money out there."

President of USG Duane Sherman said the bill is not to reduce the money RSOs receive, but to reduce the misuse of the funding.

"What the bill does is reduce the amount of general funding allowed throughout the year, not the funding of the RSOs at the beginning of the year," Sherman said. "We'll actually be giving out more money at the beginning but less throughout the year."

Baldwin Hall residents petition hike in student recreation fees

By Signe K. Skinion
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Members of Thompson Point's Baldwin Hall have signed a petition opposing Wednesday's Undergraduate Student Government decision to increase student recreation fees for the construction of a intramural-sports complex.

Alex Goodson, president of the Baldwin Hall Council, said she brought a petition of 70 signatures to the USG meeting but was not heard by the senators. She said people signed the petition because they either do not support the construction of the complex or are opposed to the two semester fee increase of $11.20.

"I am not personally opposed to the fee increase," Goodson said. "I'm opposed to the complex. I do not feel they have to put three lighted fields on that land, it's nice the way it is now. I feel they could find other uses for that money."

Jessica Beasley, Residence Hall Association representative for Baldwin Hall, said she and a majority of the people that signed the petition are against the fee increase.

"Personally, I feel this is an unnecessary additional fee increase, and so do most of the

"I don't think USG is representing the students very well on this complex."

representative

people I have talked to," Beasley said. "I don't think USG is representing the students very well on this complex."

Goodson said she feels the complex represents a continuing attitude of the campus in attempting to make SIU look new.

"There are buildings and areas on campus that are rundown, and instead of building something new, they (the University) should improve these places," Goodson said. "I think this is the mindset of society and this University — new, new, new. Not improve, improve, improve."

"I have talked with people other than those from Baldwin, and they are opposed to this," Goodson said. "I know USG's soul purpose is to listen to the students on this campus. I feel they didn't even give me a chance to speak my opinion at the meeting, and that kind of goes against their whole purpose. They have not listened to all sides of this situation."

David Vingren, Thompson Point senator, said he tried to get Goodson heard at the USG meeting, but a vote was called before he could give her that chance.

"I really wanted to give her (Goodson) a chance to speak, but once the question is called there is nothing anyone can do but vote," Vingren said. "I have wanted to speak a few times on proposals, but someone called the question. And I never got to speak. It happens to senators too, not just those in the audience."

Vingren said he is happy that Goodson came to the meeting with something to say, but doubts anything would have changed the vote even if she had spoken.

"I have talked with several people at Thompson Point and across campus, and everyone seems to be in favor of the complex," Vingren said. "Basically she (Goodson) and those who signed the petition are the only ones opposed to it. I appreciate her efforts, but I highly doubt it would have made a difference."

Education could quell gun violence

THE VIOLENCE CREEPS CLOSER EACH DAY. Nikki Gilmore, an SIUC women's basketball player, was shot in the leg on Monday night in St. Louis on her way to pick up another member of the team to return to campus. Even in Carbondale people's lives are constantly in danger because of gun-related violence. Gilmore, a star for the Salukis, will likely have her career hampered by this incident. Thankfully she was not seriously injured in the incident.

America has a problem with using guns irresponsibly. It is such an epidemic that it should have spawned an anti-violence campaign long ago, much like the war that has been waged against drugs. A "war" against guns though, as the drug war has, would probably fail miserably.

Instead, educating citizens throughout childhood and adolescence about the serious nature and side effects of firearms would likely have a positive impact on people who decide to use them. Teaching people early in life to use guns for hunting game or only as a last resort in a life threatening situation would likely reduce a number of needless fatalities and injuries in the long run. Incentives like free attendance to concerts or sporting events in return for firearms provides a lesson to people how giving up weapons can be beneficial.

WHEREVER ANY VIOLENCE TOUCHES DOWN it has a devastating effect, physically or emotionally. The amount of meaningless violence has far exceeded acceptable levels, if there is such a thing, for years now. To borrow words from the president, "it is our responsibility as Americans" to curb a serious problem plaguing our country.

To those who have been affected by violence, make your voices heard by local representatives. Do not stand for an unsafe community because the conditions have been that way for a long time. Demand gun education in schools for the safety of your family, neighbors and the youth who are heavily influenced by the conditions which permeate their environment. Through education and example setting there can be safety within the borders of this country

GPSC, USG failed

THE GRADUATE AND PROFESSIONAL STUDENT Council and Undergraduate Student Government vote to elevate the city representative on the Mass Transit Advisory Board from being an adviser to a binding vote position is undesirable. The DE disapproves of the decision because the bill for the mass transit system was and will be footed primarily by the students at the University.

Carbondale did play a significant role in making this dream come to a reality. But removing parking spaces, installing transit signs off campus for free and performing other intangible tasks does not warrant a voting position. City expenses for the system that serves its people will be next to nothing in the future.

THE CITY HAS DONE A COMMENDABLE JOB IN cooperating with the University on this issue, but let's not go too far in showing our appreciation for good work and excessive donations of manpower and time. The city and University need to cooperatively co-exist but as two separate entities. The DE is not in favor of the alliance that GPSC and USG have created between the University and city which activates the voting role for a city representative.

Citizen patrol program violates our privacy

Just when you thought Big Brother could go no farther, enter our newest older sibling, Mr. Don Strom, chief of police. His newest plan of attack and control on you, the private citizen, is his "fabulous" idea of using volunteers to check the speed of your vehicle. Shortly thereafter, you receive a phone call describing your supposed infraction and detailing the consequences, had you been clocked by a real police officer.

The last time I checked, COP was defined as Constable On Patrol, not Citizen On Patrol. It is bad enough that I have to be watched by overzealous police officers with high-tech weaponry aiming to fine me for driving too fast in places where the speed limit is intentionally low. But now, I get the added inconvenience of being harassed by some do-gooder citizen who has found it necessary to take some of the law into their own hands and become involved in the ever-growing presence we call the police force. These Citizens On Patrol gain access to my name, address, and phone number from the police computer, using my license plate number, so they may inform me of the crime I have supposedly committed. I cannot wait to go into the police station to find out the identity of the jerk who stole my parking place (Legal? Hardly!). Moreover, the police, we can be assured, will have a nice record of all reported speeders for future use, which we can again be assured they will use.

When I applied and paid for my drivers license, I was tested on the rules of the road. Every vehicle operator is quite aware of the consequences, legal and otherwise, of speeding. They have to be to get a license. I haven't heard of anyone needing a friendly reminder.

As for me, I will be speeding by at least 10 mph over the speed limit you "citizens on patrol," however, won't ever get my license plate number. I ride a bicycle. Now I only have to worry about getting a ticket for riding through Thompson Woods. Catch me if you can!

Binding city vote bad

I have been a student here for the past two years and during this time I have discovered something. Carbondale citizens are the most ungrateful people I have ever met.

The people of this town do not appreciate the University, for all it does for the city and region, and certainly doesn't give a damn about the students. The University built this town and without it there would be nothing here. There would be no University Mall, Super Wal Mart, or other stores paying taxes into the city's coffers. Most of the money spent in Carbondale can be directly attributed to the school, its employees or the students. The city shows the most contempt towards the students.

The city would like the students to come to town, do their thing, spend their money and respect Carbondale. I believe that everyone is inherently good, and it is only when push comes to shove and people perceive that they are getting the shaft that they act in irresponsible ways. I am not making excuses for it, I am just telling you like it is. I believe the city brings most of its problems upon itself. By no means do I think students deserve special treatment, but I think they should receive the same treatment as everyone else.

All the blame doesn't rest on the city. The administration of the University is also at fault. It is good that they allow the city to have input into decisions, but to let them dictate what we can and cannot do is wrong. I know of no other place where a city council has as much power over a school as it does here. I believe that the administration should not allow the city to have a binding vote on the transit board. This is just another example of the school giving into the city again.

I know the city doesn't want change and the administration won't change. I think that this is wrong.

Participate in Aids Day

World AIDS Day is Friday, Dec. 1, and there are a lot of reasons not to attend the rally and candlelight vigil here on campus: "I'm just not a political person. People will think I'm gay if I am seen there. What good does it do? I don't know anybody with HIV/AIDS. I'm tired. I have to study..." And so on.

The fact is it doesn't matter what your political affiliation is. The people with HIV/AIDS on this campus and in Southern Illinois need as much support as they can get. It doesn't matter whether you are Republican, Democrat, or don't even care. It doesn't matter whether you are gay, lesbian, bisexual or straight. People will think you are showing your support by attending. That's all. Each person who shows up will be bringing a can of food to donate to SIREA, the Southern Illinois Regional Effort for AIDS. And while you're there, maybe find out about volunteering. That's what good it does.

And for the people living with AIDS in our area, it is good to see the sheer numbers of people who are really out there, willing to show support and willing to find out how to help. Because we are all living with AIDS, reality. It affects us all in one way or another, and if it hasn't affected you yet, it will. It is not somebody else's problem. People all over the world are taking a little time out to show their support on this day. Won't you join us? Please meet in the Roman Room in the Student Center at 5:30 p.m. We will march to Sbrzyock Auditorium by 6 p.m. Don't forget to bundle up and bring your candle and can of food.

Investing in college students

By Patrick Ellis
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—Financial aid to students is an investment in the national quality of life, not a coddling of the undeserving young.

By financial aid I mean grants. Simply put: They are not a giveaway; the nation gets them back in taxes, sooner or later.

In the very short run, student loans look better than grants. People make money on the transactions, and they give some of it to campaigns. But government spends money to get the money back. More important, students have to opt for the highest-paying jobs they can get right from the start of their careers in order to stay on the repayment schedule. This means they don't go into teaching, social work or other important, necessary professions that don't pay well initially. There is considerable evidence that the generous-hearted young would serve in more of these jobs if they could afford to.

Unfortunately, real grants are all but gone as a significant component of financial aid. Institutionally based discounts, masquerading as grants, help the student but drain the university, eroding fair salaries and needed maintenance. And such grants are largely meaningless because of the tuition levels needed to sustain the discounts.

Loans have another disadvantage in that they erode the collegiate experience. Generations of higher education people have evolved a formative lifestyle of class, activities, sports, commu-suggest that education should include leisure, in the form of conversation, attendance at plays, recitals and films, even at spectator sports. Nevertheless, it is a sad fact that today's undergraduate, in many cases, never goes near the athletic events or other cultural activities on their own campuses because they simply can't afford the time.

Clearly, no source for the massive re-establishment of grants is evident just now. Programs such as the GI Bill were products of an expanding economy and growing population. Whatever the reason for introducing such grants, they had the effect of opening higher education to whole new swatches of American society.

We have let this purpose erode as a national priority, substituting clumsy and nagging encumbrances that weigh on young people long after their college years are over. We should at least step back a few paces from the details to reconsider the principles involved here. History suggests that if we can achieve consensus on those principles, we can find the means of honoring them.

Second, the Roman Room could be used for the food court, and the Marketplace would be used for the seating.

Juhlin said the better of the two revisions will not be known by the administration until February. He said the quotations for the revisions will go out in mid-December and will be voted on at December's BOT meeting.

Juhlin said the administration talked to constituency groups and got their input on the topic, but mainly relied on surveys and student opinion.

T. J. Rutherford, acting director of the Student Center, said the plan to put brand name food stores in the Student Center is a good idea.

"We've done a lot of surveys, and students are more interested in brand names," Rutherford said. "That's the way everybody likes service."

Juhlin said the constituency groups did submit some ideas about creating a coffee house area in the Student Center. He said there could be a stage on one end with lighting that could be turned up or down when there was a performer.

Undergraduate Student Government President Duane Sherman said he thinks it would be interesting if there was some way to put computers in the room and let people "surf the net" while drinking their coffee.

Health Organization. He is also one of the main reasons for recognizing World AIDS Day.

Despite his life threatening illness, St. Julian received his law degree and serves on the Ryan White AIDS council, which disperses federal money to different causes in Jackson County.

Tonight, St. Julian will be speaking at a candlelight vigil and rally at Shyrock Auditorium organized by the Gays, Lesbians, Bisexuals and Friends organization. The event was designed to raise awareness concerning the AIDS virus, organizers said.

St. Julian was first tested for AIDS because he was seriously involved with a woman and was considering marriage.

St. Julian said because of his lifestyle at the time, he knew he could test positive for the virus.

"I knew from my past history the test could be positive," he said. "It would be a miracle if it was not negative. I loved her and she loved me, but we broke it off. It was the right thing to do. Fortunately she was not infected."

Even though he lived in the city with the best AIDS treatment in the world, St. Julian said he wanted to return to the Jackson County Area because he missed the area and his family. He attended SIUC for his undergraduate studies.

"A lot of people said 'you're leaving the best medical treatment in the world to go where,'" he said. "But after a while, city life gets to you. You get tired of looking at sick people. I had attended 83 funerals, I had lost the most important people in the world to me."

St. Julian said he has visited many dying patients and friends in hospitals, and he said that experience made him realize the importance of his family.

"So many people don't have family for whatever reasons," he said. "I've spent so much time in hospitals and no matter how old they (patients) are, they always cry out for their mothers."

St. Julian said his family has always been supportive. He said he never hid his lifestyle, and the first person he told in his family of his infection was his grandmother.

"She called me and told me she was praying at her Baptist Church and said they were tired of praying for rain," St. Julian said. "So they decided to pray for the people with the AIDS virus."

"That was her way of saying everything was okay," he said. "She helped me break the news to the rest of my family."

St. Julian said the unavailability of medical attention is a problem in the area. He said Jackson County has a visiting doctor that must treat between 70 to 80 patients in one day. "I'm at the point that I'm more concerned about his (the doctor's) health than mine," he said. "He really needs to rest."

St. Julian said he is optimistic about a new FDA approved drug, 3TC, which has proven to greatly increase T cell counts in AIDS patients.

"The drug was quickly approved by the FDA, which proves its effectiveness," he said. "It's now a matter of availability."

St. Julian said he is impressed by the efforts of the community and campus for today's events.

"When I was infected, no one even wanted to admit it existed," he said. "Now people have accepted the fact, and I'm glad its reaching the rural areas. It takes a lot of guts to bring together an event like this."

Union contract bargaining losing ground

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—Contract bargaining is getting a whole lot harder for unions in the global village.

After a bitter 17-month strike, the United Auto Workers union is about to surrender to Caterpillar Inc. and the only question now is the effect of the UAW defeat on the rest of the labor movement as it grapples with the impact of foreign competition.

At issue is what is known in labor-relations as "pattern bargaining," the system in place for decades, in which major industrial unions such as the UAW insisted that all companies in the same industry pay the same wages and benefits. At the start of each round of contract bargaining the union would pick a target company, negotiate an agreement and then demand other companies in the industry accept the terms of that agreement, or "the pattern."

If General Motors Corp. agreed to pay union members $15 an hour, guarantee jobs or boost pensions, the union would insist that Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. do the same. Under the system, the unions argued, no company would have a competitive labor advantage and, more important for the unions, none would be able to whip saw union members by pitting one company against another in an effort to drive down wages and contract benefits.

But now the UAW, the staunchest defender of pattern bargaining in the years since World War II, has agreed to let its striking members vote on a proposal that is far different from the contract "pattern" agreed to by U.S. competitors such as John Deere & Co. and J.I. Case.

Caterpillar was willing to suffer a strike rather than agree to the terms of the UAW's pattern contract. The company argued that its major competitor was Komatsu in Japan, not John Deere, and that it needed more advantageous contract terms to be able to compete in global markets if it was to continue manufacturing in the United States. This week the union agreed to submit a contract proposal to striking Caterpillar workers that the union admits is little different from the offer on the table when the strike began.

"There's no denying this is a setback," a UAW official acknowledged this week. But he insisted that the magnitude of the loss to both the UAW and the labor movement in general might not be known for many years.

The next big test of the pattern concept will come quickly for the UAW. The union begins contract negotiations with General Motors, Ford and Chrysler early next summer with every intention of pursuing the pattern bargaining strategy.

competitive festival, producers and directors went to great lengths to attract film professionals to their screenings, from passing out flyers to dressing up in costumes.

"At 'Stamdance,' Robert

Mirvish realized his true calling a little later than some — he decided to make movies after following a political science career all the way to Washington, D.C.

There, with a B.A. in political science and history, he wrote speeches and directed video presentations for Senator Tom Harkin, D-Iowa.

Mirvish is now distributing "omaha" with Dana Altman, and has written a script for another comedy, also set in the Midwest — a Western about postal workers

Prosecutors seek restraint charge against Moro

By Carey Jane Atherton
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Prosecutors would like to add aggravated unlawful restraint to alleged kidnapper John D. Moro's list of charges, after Moro's defense recently filed a motion to have his kidnapping charges dropped.

Mike Wepsiec, Jackson County States Attorney, filed a motion to charge, Moro, 35, of Centralia, with aggravated unlawful restraint, and asked that a trial date be set.

A hearing has been set for 9 a.m. on Tuesday in Murphysboro.

Moro is accused of abducting his daughter Demetria at gunpoint from Giant City School on Aug. 29. He pled not guilty to aggravated kidnapping, one count of unlawful use of weapons and two counts of armed violence on Oct. 31. Moro also faces a federal weapons charge.

A motion filed on Monday states that Wepsiec's request to add an unlawful restraint charge is a response to any motions to dismiss charges against Moro that might be filed.

At his preliminary hearing on Oct. 31, Moro's attorney Jackson County Public Defender Patricia Gross argued before Judge Thomas H. Jones to dismiss all charges against him.

Gross cited a 1990 First District Appellate Court case ruling in which a Chicago man had his aggravated kidnapping conviction reversed because he was the girl's biological father.

Gross maintained that the same law should apply to Moro.

The motion Wepsiec recently filed states that Gross was advised to raise the issue to dismiss before Moro's trial judge David W. Watt Jr.

Along with filing an additional charge, Wepsiec is asking to have Moro's case set for trial by Jan. 9.

The motion filed by Wepsiec states that the 120-day period in which defendants who are in custody must be tried expires in January.

If the court uses the date that Moro was arrested in Washington, Moro's trial would be required to begin on Jan. 9.

However, if the court uses the date that Moro returned to Jackson County, the 120-day period would expire on Jan. 25.

If a trial date is not set before the 120-day period, Wepsiec said the speedy trial law will go into effect. Moro would have to be released and all motions would be dismissed, Wepsiec said.

Moro was arrested by FBI agents and local authorities in Ellensburg, Wash., after a two-week, nationwide manhunt.

At the time of the kidnapping,

Moro did not have custody of his daughter and was court-ordered to have visits with his daughter supervised by of the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services.

As part of the Moro vs. Moro 1994 divorce, custody of Demetria was granted to Moro's ex-wife, Kelly E. Kurtz of Carbondale.

Moro has been in the Jackson County Jail since his return to Southern Illinois, and his daughter Demetria was returned to the custody of Kurtz.

Creative software key to keeping children interested in computers

Los Angeles Times

Twins Lauren and Kendall Cartier are a part of a new generation of children who use computers as just another way to learn and play. Parents are budgeting thousands of dollars for computers, hoping to give their children an edge in life.

"The computer opens up so much for you," says Mary Hackworth, a St. Louis graduate student whose 4-year-old daughter, Paige, spends more than an hour on the computer every day. "It's much better than letting her watch television."

Nobody really knows whether spending a lot of money on computers for kids is worthwhile. But if you have a computer and you want your kids to use it, the key is buying the right software.

Usually the best titles come from top children's title publishers, such as Edmark and Broderbund. But there are also less-know publishers, such as Sunburst, that do excellent work.

To make your money go far, experts recommend that parents buy open-ended software titles that act as "tools" requiring creative input from the child.

"If it's a game, they will play it for a while and then won't touch it again," says computer specialist Marianne Britsanos, the computer specialist at Lauren and Kendall's school in Seattle.

Lighted parade this weekend

By Alan Schnepf
Daily Egyptian Reporter

The strip will be taken tomorrow night — not by drunk partiers slam-dancing in the street, but by the floats, animals and bands of Carbondale's annual Lights Fantastic Parade.

The parade, one of the city's biggest family events, begins at 6:30 p.m. It starts near the SIUC Recreation Center. It will travel west on Grand Avenue, turning north on Illinois Avenue and proceeding up the Strip to the Town Square Pavilion on the corner of South Illinois and Main Street.

Diane Dorsey, coordinator of the parade, said about 20,000 spectators are expected. She said attendance has grown since the parade's first year in 1991 when about 8,000 people attended.

There will be about 75 entries in this year's parade, Dorsey said, and more than 45 of these will be floats. Other entries will be as diverse as a jump roping double-Dutch drill team, pom-pom squads and what Dorsey said is an annual favorite in the parade: a miniature horse pulling a small sleigh.

Dorsey said it takes about an hour for all the parade entries to pass any given point.

The parade's name stems from the fact that nearly all the entries have lights on them, Dorsey said. Even band members sometimes put battery-operated lights on their instruments for Lights Fantastic. Most of the floats have hidden generators in them that power their lights, Dorsey said.

She said street lights along the route will be turned off during the parade.

Two other events coincide with Lights Fantastic. Twelve businesses along the parade route and seven more in the Murdale Shopping Center participated in a window decorating contest. Several choirs, including the Southern Illinois Children's Choir will perform Saturday afternoon in the University Mall.

Dorsey called the parade "a wonderful cooperative effort between all the factions of the community." She estimated that about 1,500 people donate their time to produce the parade.

She said volunteers are needed for many different jobs such as keeping children from walking into the route and manually unscrewing all the street light bulbs along the parade route.

"I can't say enough good things about all the volunteer time people put in," she said.

"Any students who want help with the parade should call Kathy Lorentz at 453-5714."

Parade attendees may find the following information useful.

- No parking will be allowed along the parade route beginning at 3:30 p.m. Police will begin towing cars along the route at 5 p.m.

- Beginning at 5 p.m., shuttle buses to the Town Square pavilion will run from University Mall and Murdale Shopping Center.

- Grand Avenue between Wall Street and Illinois Avenue will be closed between 3:30 p.m. and 8 p.m.

- Traffic on East Walnut Street will be detoured at University Avenue.

- Traffic on Main Street will be detoured at Wall Street.

- Northbound traffic on Illinois Avenue will be detoured at Pleasant Hill Road.

Annual 'Jingle Bell' race to raise funds for arthritis

By Julie Rendleman
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Jingling bells will ring throughout Carbondale tomorrow morning when people running and walking take part in the Jingle Bell Walk/Run for Arthritis at University Mall.

The Southern Illinois Arthritis Foundation hosts this event to raise awareness and to find a cause and cure for the more than 100 arthritis diseases in existence, Paula Reeves, branch coordinator for the Southern Illinois Arthritis Foundation, said.

"Money is desperately needed for arthritis," she said. "There are 75,000 people afflicted with arthritis in Southern Illinois alone."

She said the disease has no age barriers — it inflicts infants as well as adults.

She said the event is in its sixth year and usually has 300 people participate in the event. She said the event raises around $7,000 for the Arthritis Foundation each year in Carbondale.

Everyone who enters the event will receive a free long-sleeved shirt and jingle bell shoelaces, Reeves said. There will also be a holiday costume contest in which the first, second and third-place winners receive a plaque.

Bonnie Wheeler, vice president of news for WSIL-TV 3, has participated in the race all six years, along with her family.

She said people afflicted with minor forms of arthritis walk in the race to keep their joints moving for "crappy reasons."

Reeves said the race route will go around University Mall, up Giant City Road and will circle back around the mall.

It is five miles, with a three-mile walk for fun.

Reeves said the registration fee for the race is $18 dollars per person or $150 for a group of five.

Sponsors for the event are University Mall, WSIL-TV 3, WCIL, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Illinois, and The Southern Illinoisan.

The race starts at 9 a.m. tomorrow and sign up times to register are today from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. at the University Mall, 1201 E. Main.

Participants can also register from 7:30 a.m. the day of the race up until race time.

Krzyzewski: Happy to be back at Duke

The Los Angeles Times

DURHAM, N.C.—He entered Cameron Indoor Stadium to a standing ovation at 6:59 p.m., took his customary seat on the bench and picked up where the legend left off.

Nearly 11 months after he was forced to walk out on his team, an act of betrayal in his mind no matter how dire the circumstances, Mike Krzyzewski returned to the Duke campus arena to restore order to a program that had gone adrift without its mast.

To the hoots and hollers of the Cameron Crazees, and the kind of pressure defense Blue Devil fans remember, Duke continued its return-to-normalcy campaign with a 71-57 victory Wednesday night against UNC Greensboro before a sellout of 9,314.

"Yeah," Krzyzewski said afterward, "I was ready to play."

Coach K had already returned triumphant, having led Duke to three victories and the Great Alaska Shootout championship last weekend.

If you don't think a great coach makes a difference to a team, think again.

When Krzyzewski left the team last Jan. 6, to recover from exhaustion wrought on by his early return from back surgery, the Blue Devils were 9-3.

Without him, they went 4-15 and finished with 18 losses for the first time in school history.

With Coach K back, Duke is 4-0 and ranked 12th nationally with a team supposedly weakened by the loss of last year's senior leaders, Cherokee Parks and Erik Meek.

"Today he was more fired up than we were," sophomore guard Ricky Price said after Wednesday's victory.

With his team sluggish and losing grip on a nine-point halftime lead, Krzyzewski ignited the Blue Devils when he was called for a technical with 15:25 left.

"One thing he proved is that he's going to fight for us," senior guard Chris Collins said. "I think that was the biggest play of the game."

Nets, Kenny Anderson headed for messy split

Newsday

HACKENSACK, N.J.—Kenny Anderson, a natural playmaker almost from the day he started playing basketball on the playgrounds of Queens, is engineering the play of his career.

His escape from the New Jersey Nets.

And if he is able to pull it off—turning down tempting gobs of money from the Nets in the process—it will be the best move of his life.

The Nets, er, Nets, have nothing to offer him except money. They have no real fans. No tradition. Nothing.

That's why it shouldn't come as a big surprise that Anderson, an unrestricted free agent after the season, recently turned down a six-year, $40 million deal.

The Nets are stunned.

Anderson, with well-focused attorney-agent Richard Howell in his corner, claims he just wants to test the free-agent market. That's at least what they are telling the media.

It's not true.

Anderson, 25, the second overall choice in the 1991 draft, wants out of New Jersey in a big way. So bad, people close to him say, he'd probably take less money to go elsewhere. Anderson, a nice guy, hasn't said that. But it's so clear.

Can you blame him? Of course not.

Plain and simple, the Nets are a bad organization. It doesn't matter what color uniforms they wear. It doesn't matter who the coach is. It doesn't matter if they get a new mascot or not.

Scott said improvements in defense and rebounding are essential if the Salukis are to improve their record to 2-1.

The squad has not out-rebounded an opponent so far this season and is allowing 40.5 rebounds per contest.

"The key factor for us is our defense," she said.

"We need to play tough defensively and rebound."

Tip-off is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday in Cookeville, Tenn.

Wasting no time, Perkins said Gilmore began a therapy program Wednesday.

Scott said the news of Gilmore's diagnosis was not what she expected.

"It was much better than I had anticipated," she said.

"We hope we can get her back as quick as we can now."

A spokesperson for the St. Louis Police Department Public Information Division said no new information regarding the shooting was available at this time.

Swimming/Diving

SIUC to defend MVC title this weekend

Saluki swim/dive squads play host to conference championships at Recreation Center

By Jared Driskill
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Hey boys and girls, what time is it? No, it is not Howdy Doodly time. It is time to watch the defending Missouri Valley Conference Champion Saluki swimming and diving teams show just why they are the best in the conference.

Last year, both the men and women's teams outperformed the competition with stellar All-Conference showings from then junior swimmers Doug Fulling and Ward Braken; sophomore Chris Pelant; freshmen Jeff Clark and Steve Munz, and diver Alex Wright.

Although SIUC is picked to finish second on the men's side to Southwest Missouri State, men's swim coach Rick Walker is confident in his team and it's competitive tradition will prove it to be the winner in the end.

"I have said since the beginning of the year that this is a weak year for us because we don't have the depth," Walker said. "I voted for SIUC only because we did win last year."

"It's ours to have taken away from us and if Southwest comes in here and does that, then they will have had a good meet," he said.

Fulling broke his hand earlier this season, but he will attempt to swim with a cast on it this weekend.

"When you're dealing with so few athletes, the injury of one swimmer is big and Doug Fulling is even bigger," he said.

Walker said although he has a small freshman class compared to last year's squad, he has high hopes for them.

Freshman swimmer Liam Weseloh, who is preparing for the Canadian Olympic trials, is rested and Walker still feels that he will have a good performance.

"I can't wait to see (freshman) Trevor Peterson swim," Walker said.

"I think he is going to do some great things."

The women's team returns All-Conference standout sophomore swimmers Anne Underwood and Diana Roberts; junior swimmer Laura Humphrey; and seniors Donianzu Murgiondo and Melanie Davis.

Diving specialist Lisa Holland won All-Conference honors on both the 1 and 3-meter boards.

All of these athletes have moved up a class and bring with them the priceless experience of competing in a conference championship meet.

The history of Saluki swimming and diving is filled with a rich tradition and the honor of being the only competitive sport at SIUC to win five conference championships while being in the arguably tougher Gateway Conference from 1982-1992.

The other five years were second place finishes behind rival Illinois State.

"I think the conference is about the same as in years past, but I think the focus on the conference may be a little different now," diving coach Dave Ardrey said.

Ardrey added a lot of schools make this meet their number one goal and he said that there are one or two schools in the conference that are working toward a higher level.

Ardrey said SIUC is one of those schools.

"We have always focused our attention on the national championships," Ardrey said.

"That does not mean to look past this meet, but sometimes in terms of training you have to do things that are good for March and not just for December."

History shows that Illinois State and SIUC are the top—two teams in women's swimming, continuing a rivalry that dates back to 1982.

"It looks to be the same situation this weekend," women's swim coach Mark Klumper said. "Evansville is improved and if SIUC and Illinois State don't perform the way they should, Evansville, has got an outside shot to win."

"More than likely it will come down to a battle between us and Illinois State," he said.

Klumper said there is definitely senior leadership on the team this year.

"Melanie Davis is seeded first in all three of her events," Klumper said.

"Tia Barlean is seeded first in all three of her events and Donianzu Murgiondo is seeded first in two out of three of her events.

"There is definitely a senior leadership factor in the pool."

Klumper said the team oriented junior swimmer Jennifer Bobanic and sophomore swimmer Diana Roberts, who has shown excellent performances on relays this year, will also be big factors in the meet this weekend.

Klumper said that the key to winning the meet is the top performance of support swimmers who are seeded lower in the events.

The meet begins at the Recreation Center Pool on Friday December 1, at 5:00 p.m. and will end on Sunday December 3, with both the swimming and diving finals taking place Sunday afternoon.

81-year old conference to disband

The Los Angeles Times

Many Texans no doubt will feel forlorn Saturday, when 81 years of Southwest Conference football come to an end with two games, one a cross-town rivalry, Houston at Rice, and the other a cross-state rivalry, Texas and Texas A&M, that even Broadway has been unable to ignore.

But, in truth, it has been years since SWC fires raged. When the four "have" schools—Texas, Texas A&M, Texas Tech and Baylor—announced they were joining the Big Eight to form the Big 12, leaving the "have nots"—Rice, Southern Methodist, Texas Christian and Houston—to fend for themselves.

Many of the good teams in recent years became so because they cheated. The only two programs in the conference that have not been apprehended by the NCAA since the mid-'80s are Baylor and Rice.

Salukis hoping to contain Eaglettes

By Melanie Gray
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Saluki women's basketball head coach Cindy Scott said her team needs a balanced offensive attack and wants her squad to stop Terrance Oglesby, Tennessee Tech's six-foot senior and pre-season All-Ohio Valley Conference selection, when SIUC takes on the Golden Eaglettes at Eblen Center Monday night.

Oglesby has led Tennessee Tech in scoring the past two seasons and averaged 14 points and seven rebounds in her first two games this season.

"I'm looking for Christel Jefferson to contain her, and if she can keep her under control we can win the game," Scott said.

Jefferson is averaging 12.5 points and 7 rebounds per game this season and leads the team in rebounds along with LaQuanda Chavours.

SIUC's 51-48 overtime victory at Murray State Tuesday night should be a confidence builder for the squad going into the game, Scott said.

The win came despite the absence of starting guard Nikki Gilmore, who is out of action due to an injury suffered in a shooting Monday night in St. Louis. Several SIUC players contributed in the contest, with seniors Kasia McClendon and LaQuanda Chavours combining for 26 points and 13 rebounds.

Gilmore will be out of SIUC's lineup for the second straight game, but Scott said she is looking for the same effort from her players against the Golden Eaglettes that they showed at MSU.

"We're down to 10 players and eight

Gilmore OK; star may be back in one week, SIUC trainer says

By Melanie Gray
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Saluki women's basketball player Nikki Gilmore, who was wounded Monday night in a random drive-by shooting, may return to the hardwood in approximately one week from today, SIUC athletic trainer Sally Perkins said Thursday.

Gilmore, a two-time All-Missouri Conference selection, was shot in her lower right leg while in St. Louis picking up teammate Heather Slater.

"This morning she saw our Dr. Thorpe," Perkins said. "He told her that she could return in as soon as a week. There was no damage to the muscle, just some soft tissue."

According to Dr. William Thorpe, SIUC's orthopedic surgeon, the bullet did not shatter Gilmore's bone or cause extensive muscle damage and she could be ready for SIUC's home opener against the University of Illinois Dec. 9.

Saluki women's basketball head coach Cindy Scott said Gilmore has lost mobility in her right foot due to the injury.

St. Louis to host 1999 NCAA regional games

By Chris Clark
DF Sports Editor

St. Louis will be the host of back-to-back Midwest Regional rounds of the NCAA Men's Basketball Championship Tournament after the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee gave the Gateway City the thumbs up.

The newly completed Trans World Dome will be the site of the Midwest Regional of the 1999 NCAA Tournament.

St. Louis will hold the Midwest Regional rounds at the Trans World Dome March 18-20, 1999. Kiel Center is already the regional site for the 1998 tournament.

The announcement came from Missouri Valley Conference Commissioner Doug Elgin and NCAA director of the Division I Men's Basketball Championship William Hancock at a press conference Thursday at the Trans World Dome.

Hancock said he was pleased to make the announcement and that St. Louis could not be a better place to host the regional.

"Congratulations to the Missouri Valley Conference and St. Louis on landing this event," he said.

"Having the ability to have beautiful basketball facilities makes St. Louis a better choice than 98 percent of other cities."

According to Hancock, St. Louis was one of 55 cities which bid on the 12 sites that will host the 1999 NCAA tournament.

Hancock also said granting of back-to-back regionals is an uncommon practice by the committee, but it is to the credit of St. Louis that the city be considered for it.

"The committee no longer gives back-to-back awards to cities — this is unusual in this day and age," he said. "This shows the teamwork that a city like St. Louis has to be able to do this."

The Midwest Regional determines one of the teams that makes its way to the Final Four round of NCAA Tournament.

In 1998, the Final Four site will be the Thunder Dome in St. Petersburg, Fla. and the Alamodome in San Antonio, Texas will play host in 1999.

Holding the Midwest Regional may put St. Louis in the running to hold the Final Four and Championship rounds of the tournament in 2003 — the next year which has no site announced for it — Hancock said.

In order for St. Louis to be considered for the Final Four rounds, the city will have to meet certain criteria including a stadium with at least a 30,000 seat capacity, 7,400 first-class hotel rooms within a 10-15 mile radius to the stadium and good airport service.

Kiel Center only has 20,000 seats, so the Trans World Dome with its 70,000-seat capacity seems to be the logical choice if the committee were to select St. Louis for the 2003 Final Four.
