Interim provost steps down

Jackson turns down permanent chancellorship

Interim provost decides to comply with faculty request for nationwide search.

Faculty, Graduate Council vote to follow standard procedures

Tom Chamberlain

A joint resolution disapproving the process of appointing John Jackson as permanent chancellor was passed by both the Graduate Council and the Faculty Senate Tuesday and led Jackson to ask for the removal of his name from consideration.

The Graduate Council passed the resolution, which stemmed from a meeting of the executive members of the council and Faculty Senate last week, by a vote of 22-2 Tuesday morning, and the senate approved the measure in the afternoon by a vote of 27-3.

David Kammerer, Graduate Council chairman, said the vote reflected faculty objections to not using the proper hiring procedure

Jackson has previously said that while the possibility of becoming the permanent chancellor appeals to him, he wanted to see how the campus community felt about the proposal. Sanders met with SIUC deans and constituency groups Nov. 15 to discuss appointing Jackson as permanent chancellor.

"I think it's important to respect the faculty's views," Jackson said. "These groups speak for the University's faculty, and I'm going to act accordingly." David Kamber, chairman of the Graduate Council, said Jackson made the right decision.

"He said the haste to place Jackson into the permanent position by ignoring the proper procedure to select leadership. The whole rushed-up event was to circumvent the board- published procedures on how to select leadership," Kammer said. "That's not how we do business in academia.

"We believe in open searches and involving the constituency groups. John [Jackson] is a respectable individual, and it was the right decision. According to board regulations, the board appoints a chancellor upon the president's recommendation. Before a recommendation is made, the president is required to develop and publish a search procedure involving appropriate University committees. Ultimately, the choice lies with the president. "In President Sanders' mind, Jackson was the best choice, but Dr. Jackson obviously feels strongly that without the Faculty Senate and Graduate Council support he did not want to be considered," said Scott Kaiser, media coordinator for the Office of the President. "President Sanders respects that." Jackson will continue to fulfill duties as interim chancellor and pursue the plans he laid out in his Strategic Plan.

As for his future at SIU in another form than chancellor, Jackson is opting to "wait and see" before he makes any commitments.

Joe Foote steps down as CMCMA dean

KAREN BLATTER
DAILY EGYPTIAN

Joe Foote will end his seven-year term as the first dean of the College of Mass Communication and Media Arts June 30 after a year-long sabatical to pursue research interests and spend more time with his family.

He will focus on two research projects—one examining the external role of the university in Congress and another looking at television in South Asia. After his sabatical, he will return to the Radio and Television Department Faculty.

"From the time I took the job, I had looked at the eligibility of sabatical as a decision point whether to stay or go on," he said. "It has been in the back of my mind for sometime."

His wife, an associate professor in Library Affairs, also has applied for sabatical to be taken at the same time as Foote.

"Being a dean is not always compatible with being a good father," Foote said. "There have been days when I have been away from home. The real appeal of sabatical is being able to devote extra time to my family."

President search guidelines released

KAREN BLATTER
DAILY EGYPTIAN

Guidelines for the SIU president search were released Tuesday by the President's Office and the SIU Board of Trustees with the hopes of a new president being named in January.

By Dec. 10, each constituency group has to nominate a person to represent them on the advisory committee, which will meet for the first time at Dec. 13.

The board will conduct a nationwide search as a whole committee, with one nationally based consultant, and will consider and seek the advice from others to provide a "high quality" group of candidates.

Scott Kaiser, media coordinator for the Office of the President, said the January goal is manageable and reasonable.

"This is a goal to have someone in place by the time (Students leave)," he said. "If that's not achievable, the board will make adjustments as the situation permits."

The guidelines are a result of a special Nov. 14 board meeting in Springfield. The board met in closed session for two hours before opening the meeting and unanimously deciding to prepare guidelines. Siuc students interested in science, engineering and mathematics.

Students may need in nominations, research papers, poster session papers and related materials no later than Jan. 21.

For the context include $4,500 in SIU foundation, $8,000 in undergraduate tuition scholarships, medals, cash awards and an expense-paid trip to the national competition. The contest is sponsored by SIUC, the Academy of Applied Sciences and the U.S. departments of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

FULTON, Mo.

Rumors force officials to cancel class for meeting

Rumors of students being sexually assaulted, HIV spreading to campus and several drinking parties spinning out of control prompted officials at Westmaritz College to cancel classes for a day to talk with students about the true state of social affairs on the small liberal-arts campus.

The unprecedented Nov. 10 meeting brought together most of the college's 654 students and faculty, who broke down into 46 focus groups to discuss four questions: What is the current social situation on campus? What are the factors that contribute to the social situation? What is the ideal situation? How could we obtain that situation? Many students suggested that the college do more to sponsor substance-free events and provide guidelines to take place that would increase safety, such as campus escorts and shuttles, a school-sponsored, on-campus bar.

School officials said they would include the students' input in the college's master plan for future improvements.

Our Word

Be realistic about Millennium Initiative

Promising lines of communication between administration, greeks and led to the creation of a program that will replace Select 2000, a nine-year plan regulating aspects of Greek fraternity alcohol use to community service. While the SIUC Greek Millennium Initiative rules: improvements on the often-criticized Select 2000 plan, the University must find a way to stop the red while not spoiling the child.

Interim Chancellor John Jackson passed the initiative on to the Board of Trustees, but as he describes the implementation of the Millennium Initiative as "not official at all," it is clear there's still some negotiating to do. These negotiations should begin with a robust round of applause to all involved for taking the time to work together in the creation of a new program that maximizes student input prior to implementation. This lack of consultation by SIUC is a prime example of how greeks to shine a spotlight on at criticizing Select 2000.

After speaking with Jackson about Select 2000, it seems clear the administration still believes the student consultation problem with Select 2000 was a compromise of its educational challenge. This education, Jackson believes should be realized during the implementation of the new program. To forever-addressal of a "party school" image, SIUC must stand on the principles it had in mind when it first decided to bring a program like Select 2000 to our University. It's not clear what would motivate adminstration to reconsider accountability and enforcement of the rules.

If this new initiative is implemented, gone is the perception of lack of consultation. More importantly, it would seem that the university is finally ready to do something about the volatile issue of alcohol as it relates to greeks and the collegiate problem of binge drinking. Jackson believes because they couldn't follow the rules, but the riot number of a "party school" image, SIUC must stand on the principles it had in mind when it first decided to bring a program like Select 2000 to our University. It's not clear what would motivate administration to reconsider accountability and enforcement of the rules.

in the selection of a chancellor. He said Jackson's action cost him his character.

"I think it is shown that Dr. Jackson is showing a lack of integrity," Kammier said.

"I think he's being responsive to the concerns shown by the constituencies,"

Though the resolution condemned the appointment process suggested by SIU President Ted Sanders in a meeting Tuesday, the faculty association, led by Walter Jaehnig, media coordinator, said both groups were careful to be sure the resolution displayed no ill will toward Jackson.

"It is in no way expressing anything negative about Dr. Jackson," Gus Bode said.

"It expresses a great deal of negative about the process used by Dr. Sanders in a problem he created," Other constituency groups also have decided their stance on the issue of appointing Jackson permanent chancellor, and the faculty association decided last week to stand against the process.

The subject of Jackson being named the permanent chancellor was discussed by both the Departmental Representative Council and the general assembly of the faculty association last week, and Walter Jaehnig, media coordinator, said both votes were unanimous against the process recommended by Sanders.

Jaehnig said the votes today and Jackson's withdrawal from consideration for the time being was the correct move.

"This is what the faculty association thought was the right thing to do," Jaehnig said. "It seemed ill-considered, and what we heard from other sources confirms that,"

The faculty association released a statement last week condemning the process and stating that Ken Carr, faculty association president, was authorized by the association to seek legal counsel on the matter.

"Carr] has requested that the IEA attorneys look at the legality of the process," Jaehnig said. "But if Jackson removed his name, it becomes kind of a moot point."

Jaehnig said the association believes a competitive search process is the only way to properly fill the chancellor position, and appointing someone just before a new president comes in makes little sense.

"You've got to follow a logical order in filling these positions," Jaehnig said. "Circumventing that order is not seen as the wise thing to do."

One constituency group that was prepared to come out in favor of appointing Jackson as permanent chancellor is the Administrative and Professional Staff Council, which indicated it was leaning in that direction as early as Nov. 17.

Chairwoman Paulette Curkin said she had been collecting responses from her group since that time.

"All I can say is, in soliciting feedback from by constituents, more than 95 percent of those were in support of Dr. Jackson," Curkin said.

"He is a steady, cool head with a commitment to the institution that's pretty unquestionable."

However, she said there was some concern among those about avoiding the search process, the same concerns expressed by the faculty constituency groups Tuesday.

Because Jackson removed his name, Curkin said matters are still somewhat uncertain in regard to campus leadership, but she believes the people at the University will continue to do their jobs just as they have.

"Obviously we will go on, it just makes it more difficult for all of us," Curkin said. "We're treading water right now."

Undergraduate Student Government had planned a special meeting tonight to discuss Sanders' proposal, but USG President Sean Henry said he decided to cancel the meeting upon hearing Jackson's request to not be named the permanent chancellor.

Henry said he was shocked by the votes of the Graduate Council and the Faculty Senate, but he was still planning on recommending to Sanders that Jackson be appointed.

"Officially I'm still going to furnish the recommendation to Sanders on Friday just as I planned until I hear otherwise," Henry said.

"I'm just going to base it upon what I've heard from the campus and what I've heard from other students."

Kammier said the message sent by SIUC's faculty constituents Tuesday was one of finding a University leader at a time when the University is lacking permanent leadership in several key positions.

"Nothing is more important than selecting good leadership," Kammier said. "If you do that, the place functions. If that doesn't happen, the place falls apart."

"Now we shall begin to try to build a University here."

When does a date become a crime?

It happens when a man forces a woman to have sex against her will. And even when it involves college students, it's still considered a criminal offense. A felony. Punishable by prison.

So if you want to keep a good time from turning into a bad one, try to keep this in mind.

When does a date become a crime?

When she says, "NO." And he refuses to listen. Against her will is against the law.

Services. Rollin M. Perkins, medical chief of staff for Student Health Services, stressed meningitis is a very rare, affecting about nine in every 100,000 students.

Students in residence halls are at a higher risk, with about three in every 100,000 diagnosed with the disease.

Once a person has contracted bacterial meningitis, hospitalization is always required. Prompt treatment can result in full recovery, but the disease has an almost 10 percent mortality rate despite antibiotics, according to the Center for Disease Control and Prevention.

An additional 10 percent of cases diagnosed have severe aftereffects from the disease, including brain damage, paralysis or loss of limb.

Women’s basketball team looks to break .500 barrier as it plays host to St. Louis University

CHRISTIAN BROWN

Senior Melaniere Baudley knows exactly why the SIU women’s basketball team has a record of 2-3.

“This is not last year’s team playing,” Baudley said.

With the regular season underway, SIU is handling in the right direction, considering last year’s squad did not win its second game until Jan. 4. That squad mustered only six wins in 27 games.

The Salukis tipped off the 1999-2000 season Friday, Nov. 19, in the Time Warner Cable Classic in Lincoln, Neb., where SIU finished 1-1. They finished third in the four-team tournament.

In the first game, the Big 10 University of Wisconsin defeated the Salukis, 66-58. Baudley led SIU with 13 points and eight rebounds while freshman Molly McDowell scored 15.

On Sunday, Nov. 21, SIU ousted Georgia Southern University for a 63-58 victory. Again it was Baudley leading the Salukis with a career-high 17 points and 14 rebounds.

Baudley, who averaged 15 points and 11 rebounds in the two tournament games, was named to the All-Tournament Team. In addition, she was also named the game.

“What the team did is more important—what we are doing, how far we have come and how much we have improved,” Baudley said.

The Salukis remain at home for its second game until Jan. 4. That squad mustered only six wins in 27 games.

“Hopefully, we can come out of the game with a win this year,” Baudley said. “I think we need Baudley, Abramowski and Hathaway. Those three are the solid starters, and better play from the upperclassmen. Although most of the teaming has heavily depended on freshmen Janina Lopez and McDowell, Beck is looking to the upperclassmen for all-around support.

“They know what it takes,” Beck said of the upperclassmen. “I think we need Baudley, Abramowski and Hathaway. Those three are the solid starters, and better play from the upperclassmen.”

The SIU women’s basketball notes: Sophomore forward Geshia Woodard will be out for the next four weeks with a stress fracture to her foot. Woodard averaged three points and five rebounds in the regular season.

Bowl Championship Series standings remained Monday. Tech is a solid No. 2 in the BCS standings and a prohibitive favorite for the Sugar Bowl.

The Hokics more than doubled Nebraska’s edge over Nebraska in the strength-of-schedule column. McDowell and Junior center Kristine Abramowski recorded 12 points apiece while junior Ticia Hathaway added 10 points.

“We came out ready to play, but in the second half, we just got out of gas,” head coach Julie Beck said. “I don’t know if we were tired. The kids are still learning how to travel.”

After the MU loss, the Salukis returned to the SIU Arena for the regular season home opener defeating the University of Illinois at Chicago, 68-46. Satisfied with the 2-2 mark, SIU places it on the line when it welcomes Saint Louis University to the SIU Arena at 7 tonight.

Last year’s leading Saluki scorer, Hathaway, who scored 11 points in the win over UIC, is glad to be home against the Billikens.

“We came out ready to play; but in the second half, we just got out of gas,” head coach Julie Beck said. “I don’t know if we were tired. The kids are still learning how to travel.”

Currently on two-game losing skid, senior forward Chris Thunell and the Salukis will try to break out of their early slump against Santa Clara Saturday.

Exciting sophomore season, struggled with his shooting touch last year while battling health problems. This season, Thunell is at full speed, but through the season's first three games, as still not playing at the level SIU needs if the Salukis are to emerge as a contender in the Valley.

"I'm just not hitting shots," Thunell said. "I'm getting open, open looks, and I'm not getting them. That's something personally that I have to work at and work on. It's just one of those things when a player plays right now I'm in a little slump, but you have to work your way out of it and keep focusing on the team."

During the Ball State game, the 6-foot-9-inch Thunell drew head coach Bruce Weber's ire by taking nine of his shots from three-point range. He made only two of them.

Thunell's only three point attempt at Long Beach State was a desperation shot for the win at the buzzer that didn't draw iron, but still couldn't get his offense untracked.

"Weber would like to see better shot selection from Thunell," SIU head coach Bruce Weber said. "I think he tries to fight out of the slump by shooting long shots," Weber said. "I think you've got to start over and come inside." Weber said part of Thunell's problem may be his intense drive to succeed.

"He wants to do so well -- it means so much to him," Weber said. "I think that's why he's been so hard and mentally, he thinks he's got to score to help us win and then he ends up maybe forcing some shots." While it may be too early for Thunell and the Salukis to panic, SIU, which entered the season harboring post-season aspirations, would be well-served to shore up its defense before the early-season struggles snowball.

"We want to make the post-season, and these are the games you have to win -- road games, non-conference," Thunell said. For SIU to get back in the win column, Thunell said the Saluki defense must become more collective and tighten the screws.

"We aren't the quickest team we have to win on the post defense," Thunell said. "We haven't really been playing that, and that's something we've really got to look at."

The Saluki's most immediate challenge will come Saturday in the SIU Arena when Santa Clara University comes to town. Thunell said the game is of major importance for the Salukis.

"Fortunately we have a home game coming up," Thunell said. "This has got to be our breakout game that sets the pace for the rest of the year." Whether the Salukis win Saturday may hinge on if Thunell can snap out from his slump. Thunell takes solace in the knowledge that the Salukis have been on the verge of winning despite his poor shooting and with the team playing sloppy basketball.

"The positive that we found is we didn't play good and we lost by one," said he said about his loss to Long Beach State. "We didn't play good at Ball State and we lost by five. That shows there are just times in the game where we let them set the tempo, and we can't have that."
